

Consultants Eye New Jail

Construction of a new jail in downtown Detroit and creation of a county corrections department are among the preliminary recommendations made by consultants to the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

Creation of a county corrections department to take over operation of the jail from the Sheriff is also recommended. The new department would also operate the Detroit House of Correction (DeHoCo), which houses convicted misdemeanants, plus the probation departments of Circuit Court and Recorder's Court under the plan.

State legislation would be needed to transfer the jail operation to the proposed new department. The recommendations were submitted this week by the consulting firm of Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum as part of a correctional needs study sponsored by the County Board under a $150,000 federal grant.

Findings of the consultants are subject to revision after review by the Board of Commissioners and the Wayne County Citizens Jail Advisory Committee.

A new jail, consisting of two six-story buildings that would house a total of 750 inmates, is recommended at an estimated cost of $21,285,000. It would be located on the site of the old Recorder's Court building across Clinton Street from the new Recorder's Court building and the present jail.

The consultants also recommended that: By 1980 the county build a third jail facility and court facilities at part of an out-county governmental center on county-owned land in Westland near Wayne County General Hospital.

The present $2.2 million renovation at the existing jail be continued and another $3.3 million be spent to rehabilitate the jail for continued use into the foreseeable future.

The state is asked to take over the entire cost of the correctional system in Wayne County, including DeHoCo.

The new jail be financed through a bond issue without a vote of the people.

The county seek state legislation to establish a public bail bond agency and to lower minimum bond levels, and that greater use be made of pre-trial release programs for defendants.

The consultants favored a complete assumption of correctional functions by the Michigan Department of Corrections but described the creation of the county corrections department as the most feasible approach in the near future.

The Board of Commissioners has set a target date of January 1, 1973, for the start of construction of new jail facilities.

If that target is met, the consultants reported, the first six-story unit could be completed in 1974, with both Wixom's Police Community Fund is growing by leaps and bounds.

Latest contributor is Wixom's V.F.W. Post, Friday, Post Commander Howard Cunningham and Post Treasurer Arthur Cronin were present at the Wixom City Hall to present Police Chief George VonBehren and Juvenile Officer Michael Schott with a $280 check for the fund.

The donation was the second made by the V.F.W. Previously, the organization had donated $100 to the fund. The Police Community Fund was initiated in November by VonBehren which finance various activities promoting good police-community relations. So far, contributions to the fund total approximately $800 and more is on the way, says the Wixom Chief.

Coming up is a "Cops" versus "Kids" softball game on May 26. Monies from the fund will also be used to finance a summer baseball program for Wixom youngsters.

We don't have that healthy depreciation allowance, which was hiked recently, and which will result in substantial tax savings — and substantial tax dollars lost for government operation.

We'd love to see smart tax experts who make a living at finding loopholes in the local, state and federal tax laws.

We're too busy living hand to mouth.

When the Nixon administration recently hand-crafted a healthy depreciation allowance for business, the argument was that business would thus be provided with the capital and incentive, which would encourage building expansion, more jobs, more productivity and lower costs.

Theoretically, economically, the idea is great. But, in fact, that has not been accomplished. The goodies given to the people and entities at the top have not filtered down to the man, you and me, here below.

Frankly, I like the reverse idea.

Give the tax break to the little man, put more money in his hands, giving him reason to spend more, and let the benefits, through increased sales, prompt the businessman to expand.

Which ever party advocates the latter has his foot in the door for my vote come November.

Accident Closes I-96

There were probably hundreds of words that would have been appropriate to describe the accident which occurred in Novi on the I-96 expressway early last Thursday morning, but "nostalgia" was not one of them.

SOURCE OF THE PROBLEM—Novi Police had to contend with a major traffic jam Thursday that saw cars backed up along Grand River all the way to Wixom Road. Source of the problem was this truck which overturned on the I-96 expressway and forced State Police to block off traffic at the Wixom Road exit.

It's Official!

Donation of nearly nine acres of land to Northville Township for use as the site of a proposed township hall-fire hall complex became official this week with presentation of the property deed by Thompson-Brown company's chief executive, Robert Carey, to Supervisor Gunnar Stromberg. Looking on are two other executives of the Farmington based development company, Roy Russell (left) and William Bowman, and the township's deputy clerk, Mrs. Margaret Tegge. The property is located on the north side of Six Mile Road, just east of the old Farmcrest barns (background).

LWV Ends Study

Backs Unification

Unification of Northville city and township received official support from the League of Women Voters of Northville-Plymouth this week following a consensus meeting April 13 after a two-year league study.

A statement on unification was issued Monday stating: "The League of Women Voters of Northville-Plymouth supports unification of Northville Township and the City of Northville to insure orderly growth of the total area and to provide more economically and efficiently the necessary services for an expanding population."

"The League believes that unification would facilitate the expansion and operation of library services and the recreation program. We also believe that fire and police services are presently inadequate in the township, and that unification would provide better protection, at a lower cost, to the increasing number of families moving into the township."

"We feel that with unification complete trash disposal services could be supplied more conveniently and economically to the majority of residents of the entire community."

"The League further believes that improved planning and zoning for the total Northville area would be accomplished through a single planning commission and zoning board, answerable to the entire population. In addition, employing only one planning consultant would be more economical."

"We support either annexation or consolidation as the method for this unification."

"The statement was released after the league heard the report of the Northville Community Planning Committee composed of Mrs. Steven Orban, league president, and Mrs. Kent Mathes, Mrs. J. Thomas Handy, Mrs. William Dayton, Mrs. Richard Lyon, Mrs. Joseph Kluesner and Mrs. Diane Butler."

"Mrs. Harold Wright led the consensus of opinion on the unification assisted by Mrs. John Federspill."

"In announcing the league's support for unification of the city and township, Mrs. Orban pointed out that the league has been involved in the study of long-range planning for orderly growth of the city and township for two years."

Censorship A Gray Area

Admittedly a touchy, vague area, censorship of books in the Northville and Novi libraries and other member branches of the Wayne County Federated Library System receives a minimum of attention.

But censorship does exist — although in a "very modest" form, admits Leo T. Diman, director of the library system.

"We don't believe in censorship," he asserts, "but neither do we believe in pandering."

From a practical standpoint, complete censorship or removal of books from libraries is not practiced by the federated library system which covers Wayne, Oakland and Midland.

However, certain books are given a "restricted" classification while others, which Diman calls "scatological books," simply are not purchased and hence not available to patrons. "Restricted" books are not available to juveniles without parental permission.

Diman, who says he personally finds it "unfortunate" that some books carry a "restricted" label, particularly in view of the fact that a controversial book of 10 years ago may have wide public acceptance today but may still carry a restricted label.

Deciding which books should be "restricted" is often a "judgment on our part," and admittedly there is very little real guiding criteria, he says.

While he finds the word "censorship" offensive, the library headquarters continues its "restricted" labeling, Diman explains, to take the matter completely out of the hands of the local librarians. "We don't want them to be subject to criticism."

"You must remember that we serve many communities, a cross-section of all kinds of people. So our

Hire Attorney For Township

Hiring a new township attorney and consideration of a revised zoning request from Greenspan Building Company topped Tuesday night's agenda for Northville township trustees.

Morgan as township legal counsel was Donald C. Morgan of the firm of Kerr, Wattles and Russell, Morgan, who has offices in Plymouth, also serves as attorney for Plymouth township.

Morgan replaces John Ashton of the firm Drueggels and Ashton which did not renew its contract with the township because of growth of its private practice.

In unanimously voting to retain Morgan, trustees noted he is familiar with township government and problems facing the area.

James Littlell, one of the attorneys considered for the post, with drew his name from consideration.

Trustees also heard a revised zoning request from Greenspan Building Company seeking to rezone 16.29 acres of land between Five Mile, Winchester and Robinson from single family to multiple use.

No action was taken on the request because trustees said they had not been given enough notification that the item would come up for discussion at the special meeting.

Garage Sales In Dog House

When is a garage sale no longer an innocent house-cleaning project? That question is bugging Northville city councilmen, who are considering putting clamps on sales, which in some cases are becoming thriving businesses.

Council consideration of the ordinance proposal has been prompted by reports that some sales are being operated regularly for several weeks in a row. In at least one case, a seller has been purchasing articles from other communities for sale out of his garage, councilmen have learned.

If regulations now under consideration become a reality, housewives (househusbands, too) may find they cannot conduct more than three sales per year at a maximum of three days per sale.

Furthermore, proposed restrictions would not permit articles from other communities for sale out of his garage, councilmen have learned.

Swimming Club Sets Holiday Opening

Opening plans for the Northville Swim Club were discussed at the first meeting of the season of the club board of directors April 10.

The board announced that "there is every hope of opening on the first warm weather holiday, Memorial Day weekend."

The complete staff for the season has been hired under the guidance of Dane Trembath, manager. Mrs. Robert Bogart and Mrs. Keith Wright are in the process of purchasing playground equipment for the club.

A resolution commending Dan Boland, retiring president, was passed, stating, "The board feels extremely fortunate in retaining the advisory services of Dan Boland after his having served three very productive and successful years as club president."

It also cited the service of retiring member, Keith Wilson, "who worked most effectively for the membership."

The club is receiving new memberships presently.

WINNING ART — Winners in the juried art show of Three Cities Art Club are viewed by Judge Donald Gooch, University of Michigan art professor and expert, after he chose the picture, right, by Charles Yerkes as the first-place painting and best of show. The show is part of the celebration planned to coincide with Artrain's arrival in the area this week.

Three Cities Show winners and a Hanover Choir concert Sunday are announced as part of the celebration to coincide with the arrival of Artrain in this area this week.

Artrain — four bright cars of art and art demonstrations — arrived at the Plymouth station early this week and will remain through May 6.

Winning Works in the Three Cities Art Show are on display in merchants' windows in the area. Judging the show was Dr. Donald Gooch, University of Michigan art professor.

Hanover College Choir from southeastern Indiana will present its concert at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Plymouth First Presbyterian Church.

Two awards in the Three Cities competition went to Marie Bonamic of Northville, who won first place in sculpture and honorable mention in paintings. A second place graphics award was won by C. Phelps Hines of Northville, club president.

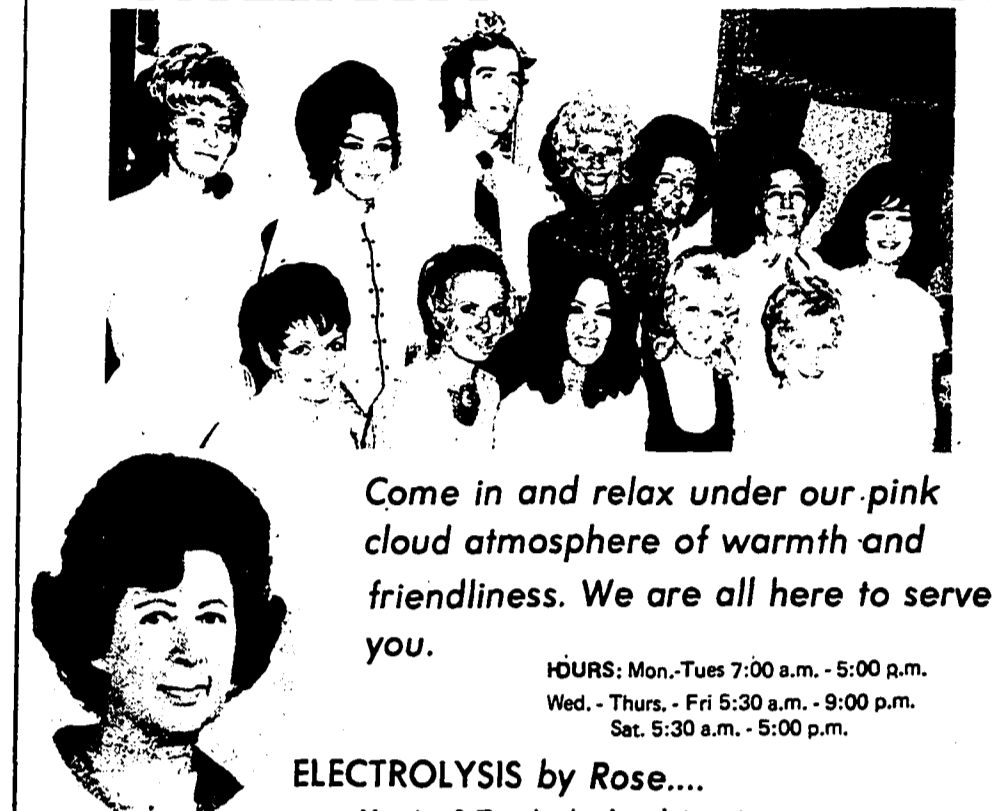

Other categories and winners are: paintings, Charles Yerkes, first, Fern Ursa, second, both of Plymouth, Peggy Trabalka, third, Farmington, Mary Lucille Ruggiero, Livonia, and R. Graham Martin, Plymouth, both honorable mention; Textile awards were won by Ervina Rutledge, first, South Lyon, Mrs. Jessie Hudson, second and third, Plymouth.

Board May Cut School Activities

Fate of all extra-curricular activities, including sports, will be decided Monday by the Northville school board.

Trustees will consider cuts from the proposed 1972-73 budget totaling $142,000, the same amount which would have been raised if the millage had been approved by voters April 8. Preliminary budget stands at $3.6 million.

"We're not threatening the community," Superintendent Raymond Spear said this week. "We're just telling them what cuts must be made because of the millage failure."

Spear maintains items totaling $142,000 will be cut from the budget and explained the board won't ask again for the millage.

"A margin of 304 votes (by which the millage was defeated) is significant," he said, "and the board has said it will not put the millage on the June 12 ballot."

Items cut from the preliminary budget include:

- all extra-curricular activities, except service squad and safety patrol at elementary levels which Spear said are needed "for the protection of children," about $90,000 cut;
- second assistant principal at the high school;
- six-subject class load at high school and replacing it with a maximum of five class hours;
- all field trips and spectator buses; and
- food service at middle and high school levels changed to guarantee it will be self-sustaining.

Spear said in past years the district has pumped money into the hot lunch program to guarantee it would not operate with a deficit budget.

"The only way the cuts will not be made," he explained, "is if the citizens petition us to place the millage question before voters again and if it passes."

Also up for consideration by school trustees Monday night will be placing a smaller bond issue before voters in June. Pegged at $755,000, the issue is expected to include funds for:

- Highland Lakes site and legal fees;
- a shopping center complex, Northville Square, which is expected to get underway next month.

Councilmen Monday approved a contract with the developer, Richard McManus, for provision of parking spaces. Under the contract, McManus is to pay the city $200,000 in $20,000 installments at 6-percent interest, for his share of parking requirements while the city is to provide 300 parking spaces for south and north of the site by late next year.

City to Pay Moving Of Old Landmarks

Within a couple weeks a building that has stood on one site for more than 125 years will be cranked up and hauled away to a new location.

Moving of the old library building, located on -Wing Street opposite the city hall, was virtually assured Monday as the Northville City Council awarded a contract to the C.L. Hofess moving firm at a cost of $7,300.

The moving price, which excludes an estimated several hundred dollars for temporarily removing utility lines along the moving route, includes moving the old Herman Hartner house at the foot of Griswold Street on the south side of Main Street.

Both buildings are to be moved to the Ford property on the west side of Griswold, north of the Ford Valve Plant parking lot. The property is being donated to the city by Ford.

Under plans of the Northville Historical Society, both buildings — and possibly others at a later time — are to become part of a small historical village. Plans call for the old library building, which originally was built for a church and which has been used over the years as a young men's hall, barracks, school board office, and most recently as the township hall, to become a public museum.

In awarding the moving contract, after waiving bids, councilmen expressed concern that the Society act rapidly in pinpointing the location of the buildings on the property.

City Manager Frank Ollendorf urged council members not to consider placement of the buildings along the edge of the dam or millpond — a location he hopes will be preserved for recreational purposes, (fishing, relaxing, etc.).

The library building is being moved to make way for a shopping center complex, Northville Square, which is expected to get underway next month.

Tickets on Sale for Musical

Tickets are on sale now for Northville High's spring musical, "Guys and Dolls." Slated for May 3 through 6, curtain time for each performance is 8 p.m.

Tickets are $2 pre-sale and $2.25 at the door and may be purchased at the high school before school, noon hours and after school.

Directed by drama coach Kurt Kinde, the musical is based on a story by Damon Runyon and written by Jo Swerling and Abe Burrows. The theme centers around two lovers, a 14-year engagement, crap games, Save a Soul Mission and betting.

Adelaide, who has been engaged to Nathan Detroit for the past 14 years, is set against his crap games. Detroit bets sky Masterson that Masterson will not succeed in getting one of the mission girls, Sarah, to go to Havana with him. Masterson loses the bet he must find a place for Detroit's

Camp Planned By Girl Scouts

South Oakland Girl Scouts will be "doing their own thing" at camp this summer with a variety of activities being planned for girls 7 to 17 who apply for camp now.

At Camp Narrin, Southern Oakland's resident camp, girls choose, plan and participate in dozens of activities which range from boating and swimming to ecology, survival camping and such special interests as backpacking, bike trips, canoe trips and conservation.

For high school girls, a counselor-in-training program is planned.

In addition to Resident Director Miss Lynn Hedrick and a staff of 43, there will be a counselor, Daja, from Yugoslavia.

Four two-week sessions from July 2 to August 26 are set. Campers live in platform tents in units of 32 girls of similar age at the camp near Ortonville, Michigan, 42 miles from Royal Oak, on 197 acres of woods and lake.

Per session fee is $60 with an additional fee for some of the special interest units.

Junior, Cadette and Senior Scouts can apply now for camp. Non-scout girls age 9-17 may apply after May 1.

For further information call South Oakland Girl Scout office, 548-2244.

Police Blotter

Arrest Five for Hospital Theft

In Township
Five Northville State Hospital employees have been charged with diverting funds from patients' accounts to their own use.

Arrested on charges of larceny by conversion over $100 were Virginia White, 28; Delores Bueyk, 27; Robert Lee, 38; Bessie Herring, 40; and Lorraine Dowdle, 35. All are from Detroit.

Lee and Mrs. Herring led to the charges while the other three stood mute before 38th District Court Judge Dunbar Davis. Each is free on $10,000 bond.

Preliminary examination for Mrs. White will be held today (Thursday) while the other four employees will face examinations May 2.

According to Michigan State Police, the five employees withdrew funds from several patients' accounts in order to make purchases for the patients and used some of the money to buy items for their own use.

An audit of the books disclosed money was missing from accounts of the patients, state police said.

Mrs. White is charged with making purchases totaling $151.23 which cannot be accounted for during 1970-71. Mrs. Bueyk is charged with making unsubstantiated purchases during 1971 totaling $292.52.

Lee is said to have diverted $277.87 to his own use during 1971, while in 1970, Mrs. Herring is charged with taking $147.95 and Mrs. Dowdle, $114.05.

Conviction on a charge of larceny by conversion carries a maximum sentence of five years.

FIRE CALLS

In Novi
A breaking and entering of a residence at 1431 West Lake Drive netted thieves an estimated $700 worth of television and stereo equipment, police reported.

The theft took place sometime between 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 12, and 2 a.m. the following day.

Police are investigating a case of felonious larceny which occurred Friday, April 14, at the B&B Construction Company at 25301 Novi Road.

According to police reports, approximately $175 worth of equipment was taken from two different diesel trailer tractors.

Missing a safe? Call the Novi Police Department. Police received a report Tuesday, April 11, of a safe lying in the ditch at Nine Road and Center Street. Patrolman Ralph Flahart investigated and found the safe empty and with its door propped open. The safe was found on the floor of the utility room.

A portable television and stereo were stolen from a home at 15483 Robinwood which was broken into April 12.

Residents of the home told township police that when they returned home they found the door window broken and the front door left partially open. A roof was found on the floor of the utility room.

Township police are investigating several small fires which were reported along Clement Road between Fomer and Northview early Saturday morning.

Mailboxes were destroyed at several of the residences and police found a can of charcoal fluid nearby. The fires were reported between 1 and 1:30 a.m.

In Northville
A tape deck and two speakers were stolen from a car parked at Northville High last week. Value of the equipment was placed at $75.

Fire extinguishers and first aid kits were stolen from nine school buses over the weekend.

According to reports, unknown persons crawled under the gate and entered the bus compound near Cooke Middle School.

First aid kits were found dumped on the ground in back of the lot and one fire extinguisher was found in a nearby field, police said.

Value of the missing equipment is $270.

Legion Plans Drug Program

A drug abuse seminar, sponsored by the Lloyd H. Green American Legion Post, will be held here Friday, April 28. Post officers announced this week.

The seminar, open to the public with special appeal to area young people and parents, will get underway at 7:30 p.m. at the post headquarters, 100 West Dunlap Street.

Keynote speaker will be Corporal Robert Starnes of the Novi Police Department, assisted by Northville Patrolman David DeLauder.

The two officers, both of whom are considered experts in the field of drugs and drug abuse, will show displays of various drugs.

Other speakers will include Mrs. Eleanor Hagne of the Michigan Department of the American Legion; the Reverend Fr. Leslie Harding of the Holy Cross Episcopal Church of Novi; Jack Wickens of Northville High School, representing the Northville board of education.

The program will consist of various displays and talks, with a question and answer period to follow.

"The Children & Youth Committee of the local post and its auxiliary is sponsoring the seminar as part of its "continuing program to help the youth in our communities."

Post Chairman Jim Zite will be assisted by Dave McDougall and Helen Reiger of Post 147 and Pat Hartley of Unit 147 in moderating the program.

Antiquers Set Show, Sale

Of interest to area antiquers is the 17th annual antique show and sale being sponsored by the Grosseto Pontiac Rotary Club April 28, 29 and 30 at the War Memorial Center. Dealers will be on hand from 25 cities in 10 states.

She's Walking Way to College

Sue Presnell, a 1970 Novi High School graduate and now a sophomore at Detroit Bible College, is looking for sponsors to "pay her way" to Kennedy Square in downtown Detroit.

She is hoping they will come forward before this Monday, April 24, and offer to pay any specified amount for each mile she walks between the college, located on Meyers Road near Seven Mile, and Kennedy Square.

In hiking this route Sue will be participating in a college project, "Walk a Mile in My Shoes," to raise needed operating funds for the college.

Sue is the daughter of Novi Councilman and Mrs. Edwin Presnell, 23740 Maude Lea Circle. A music major, she recently returned from an Easter tour with the college chorale through Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia.

She has been on the college dean's list with a higher than 2.5 average since she entered and was a National Honor Society member as well as a member of the marching band at Novi High School.

Students and faculty plan to march Monday with mile tabulators in hand. These will be presented to sponsors who have agreed to pay a certain amount for each mile walked. Proceeds are tax deductible, adds Sue, and go to the college general fund.

Sue says she has one sponsor who has agreed to pay $1 a mile, but she's looking for others.

"They can pay any amount, even 10 cents," she declares. Anyone who'd like to sponsor the young marcher may contact her at 476-8911.

Recently ordered remodeling presently in the bidding stage, is seen only as a brief postponement of those needs. The library presently is housed in the city hall building. The balcony area is to be remodeled to house the children's reading section, thus freeing the main floor area for adult reading use.

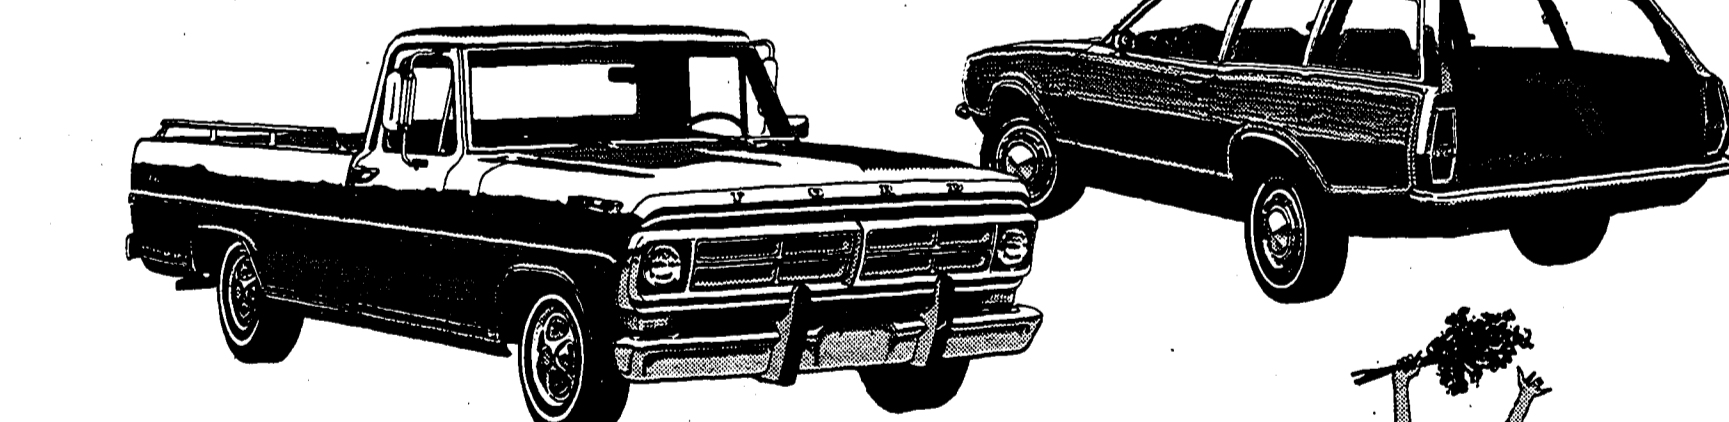

Current books especially popular locally are God is An Englishman and Winds of War. The Northville library is jointly financed by the city and township—with contributions based on the percentage of by residents of the two municipalities.

Group Studies Goals

Reviewing and updating Northville Public School or the educational philosophy and goals has been undertaken by the Philosophy, Goals and Objectives (P.G.O.) Committee of the school district.

The group was established as a result of Superintendent Raymond Spear's "Setting Sights for 1971-72 and Beyond" report in which he noted that one of the tasks to be accomplished during the school year was drawing up an educational philosophy for kindergarten through grade five, grades six through eight and the high school.

In addition," Miss Panatoni commented, "the state has charged each district with establishing goals and objectives appropriate to the district or the adoption of those established by the state in its "Six Step Management System."

Parents on the PGO Committee are Mrs. Bernard Bach, Mrs. Charles Freydl, Mrs. Thomas Schaal, Mrs. Frank Blaser, Mrs. Von Boll and Mrs. James Crain.

Students include Kathy Biery, Peter Bedford and John Forrer. Teachers are represented by Mrs. Gayle Fountain, Moraine Elementary; Mrs. Coral Adas, Amerman Elementary; Miss Margaret Sours, Main Street Elementary; Mrs. Sue Evans, Cooke Middle School; Ronald Meteyer and Mrs. Mary Bray, High school.

Administrators on the committee are Milton Jacobi, Moraine principal; William Craft, Amerman principal; Richard Norton, Cooke assistant principal; Fred Holdsworth, high school principal; David Longridge, high school assistant principal; and Miss Panatoni.

Directed by Robert Williams, the Wind Ensemble will also be conducted by several graduating seniors.

The evening's music will center around show tunes and light numbers, including themes from "My Fair Lady," "Great Themes from Great Italian Movies," "Sea Portrait," "Trumpets Ole" and "American in Paris."

During the program, the Langfield fund committee will explain the purpose of the fund and a brief history of the contributions the Langfield family has made to music in Northville.

Dedicated will be the school's instrumental and vocal music rooms and the adjoining facilities. A portrait of Langfield and a plaque are expected to be hung in the music suite.

SPEAKING for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

The recent defeat of the Northville request for an additional 1.5 mill levy for operating funds reminds me of an old joke.

It's about the enterprising young man who, when introduced to a beautiful young lady, says "if you can guess what I've got in my hand you can kiss me".

The equally alert girl replies, "it's an elephant."

Whereupon the not-to-be-denied young man answers, "that's close enough."

Millage defeats, of course, are not funny.

But in many ways the voter is not unlike the young man. He expects to get what he wants regardless of the response at the polls.

The situation points up the dilemma facing board of education members.

They are property owners and taxpayers, too. And they know full well when confronted with the decision of going to the voters for more tax dollars that the chances for passage these days lie somewhere between slim and none.

So before seeking more money, they must be certain of their ground.

Do we really need additional dollars to maintain our present program of education, presumably a standard desired by residents of the district?

If the request is an absolute necessity, then it is the responsibility of the boardmembers to present the request along with the alternatives.

Conversely, if the request is defeated, alternative action should be taken.

If it is not, the board was not acting honestly in the first instance and those who supported and voted for the increase were the victims of a hoax.

So now, in the case of Northville, the board has indicated it will eliminate all extra-curricular activities along with a sixth-hour of teaching, which is not required but has been offered for those wishing to take additional subjects.

There will be the inevitable charges accusing the board of using "threats" to gain more money. This will be especially true in the case of varsity athletics.

And sports' boosters will immediately volunteer to come up with enough money to pay the tab for football, basketball, baseball, swimming and track, and maybe even golf, wrestling and tennis if enough parents have youngsters involved in these activities.

And if the board accepts this contribution, they'll be playing the same game as the young man without an elephant in his hand.

There were many who voted against the millage request because they honestly oppose any increase in taxes and are willing to accept the consequences.

There may have been others who refuse to believe that additional monies are needed. And there are other wellknown reasons for "NO" votes.

There were 585 voters who believed the board and voted "YES" to support a full educational program, including sports, debate, a sixth hour, etc.

If the board initiates its cuts (as announced in this edition), it will be complying with the will of the majority (the "NO" voters who accept the consequences); it will preserve its integrity with those who believed the board and voted for additional millage and a full program.

If it permits contributions from special interest groups, it will give credence to the theory that more tax dollars are not really needed.

It is an unpleasant position for the board. Extra-curricular activities are an important and popular part of the total educational program. But when cuts must be made, they rank low in terms of priorities.

Figures recently compiled by school administrators show that varsity athletics cost the district some $54,000 after subtracting gate receipts. Girls' athletics cost some $6,000. All extra-curricular activities add up to an annual cost of about $90,000.

The study shows that between 150 and 300 boys participate in varsity athletics, many times the same ones in several sports.

Most expensive sport on a per-pupil basis, according to the school figures, is football at a cost of $220 per player. Basketball is $110, baseball $129 and golf $126.

Combat Soldier Backs Administration on War

By JACK HOFFMAN

With voices of dissent booming anew in the wake of bombings in North Vietnam, words on the opposite side of the ledger by a combat soldier seem appropriate:

"I want to see the Conscriptee enforced and bring a lot of them damned Copperheads down here to live on rotten sow belly and mouldy crackers and have the regulation—about six months and I think by that time they would hold their peace and let the administration alone and stop giving encouragement to the Rebs."

The words, of course, are those of a Civil War soldier in one of several letters sent to Northville more than 100 years ago. The letters and the envelopes they came in are yellowed but nevertheless well preserved.

They were loaned to me by E.M. Bogart, formerly of Northville and now of Plymouth, who is

Speaking for Myself Revenue Sharing?

YES...

The crucial problem facing cities and counties today is that many are at the legal and practical limit in their ability to raise revenue from property taxes to meet demands for essential services.

In spite of the local fiscal plight, an ever increasing amount of Michigan taxpayer dollars flow to the federal government. For every dollar we send to Washington, only a small portion comes back directly to Michigan in the form of categorical grants for various programs and projects.

Federal revenue sharing means (1) that a larger share of these dollars will come back to Michigan for essential government services, such as local police and fire protection, street repair and sewage and rubbish disposal

(2) that local property taxes can be reduced or further increases can be avoided to the extent that federal revenue sharing fills the gap, and (3) that the delays, bureaucratic red-tape and overhead costs which waste millions of dollars annually in traditional federal grant programs are completely eliminated.

As Governor Milliken recently stated, "Federal revenue sharing means a first step toward a better allocation of our domestic resources and a higher priority for solving problems at the state and local level."

NO...

Business and individuals must live within their incomes. To let costs exceed income means bankruptcy. The fight for survival, then, becomes a continual appraisal of our real needs. Cost increases or changes in our individual wants require that we find some expenditure we can eliminate to keep total cost within our income.

Not so with government. New government programs usually mean a search for "new revenues" or a means of prying more money out of the already overburdened taxpayer. On the local level, the taxpayer has control of tax levels through city charter tax limitations and school millage elections, and can force city governments and school administrations to get the job done within their income. However, there are no such controls at the state and federal levels, and those legislators seem to be quite willing to pass cost increases on to the public through higher taxes instead of looking for places where government expense could be cut.

Local governments are now under the same pressure to control costs as the individual. Revenue sharing would relieve that pressure because state and federal legislators could levy the additional taxes that local voters refuse to authorize, and then pass the money back to the local governments under the fraud of revenue sharing.

It would appear that the clamor for revenue sharing comes from a desire to avoid the nasty job of resisting cost increases and eliminating the costs that are not really necessary. As taxpayers, we should try to keep our local government administrators controlling costs in government just as we must control our personal expenses, and in addition, try to promote a little cost control responsibility in the state and federal governments.

'Year Round' Under Fire

To the Editor:
Here we go again. Attempts to force Year Round School down the throats of the families of this community are being made again. Again we are not being asked but told it will be mandated.

It seems from this past millage-bond election that the voters are telling school officials that they are angry - angry that their children are being used as mere pawns by various bureaucrats. We as parents are not going to give up our children to be experimented with by anybody! We want to retain control over our children - not give them over to bureaucrats to carry out their pet projects.

I am even opposed to the experimental program. One hundred thousand dollars is being asked to fund a program which nobody wants - dollars which come from the voters' pockets at a critical time when school districts are being forced to close down. Voters in this district have many grievances with this school board. Perhaps more time should be spent trying to listen to the electorate as well as trying to alleviate these problems rather than using all that time, energy and money for programs which tend to introduce even more problems.

I also resent the scare techniques constantly being employed to get more and more money. We are told either give us your money or we'll force Year-Round School. The voters are answering back. We gave you all we have, now live with what you have, and quit threatening us. Our children are our children, not the State's nor the school board's, nor the Superintendent's. What we are saying is, "Don't forget that!"

Sincerely

home sites per gross acre." Progress stalled, however, when Strack said he could comply with only 35 of the 98 items in Nov's ordinance. "On the other four points," he said, "we would require a variance."

Several members of the council took exception. "There's no way that we are going to barter on ordinances," retorted Mayor Joseph Crupi. "Either our ordinances are good or they aren't good. If they're not good they won't hold up a court of law, but we're not going to change them for one particular developer. It should be made absolutely clear that we are not going to barter on ordinances."

Strack contended that his development had in effect what Nov's ordinance had in mind — a low density mobile home community, even if his was slightly different than what the ordinance specifically called for. "You had a slightly different concept in mind when you drew up your ordinance," he said. "But new concepts come up in designing mobile home parks just as they do in designing sail boats. Basically, we're both driving at the same thing."

And the case was right back where it started — deadlocked and destined to be determined only by a court decision.

As Councilman William O'Brien said, "We appreciate your appearance and your concern, but we can't change our ordinances. It was nice to meet you, anyway."

branch to offer several other unique services to its patrons.

Faremost is a catalogue of more than 3,000 eight and 16 millimeter films which can be ordered through the Novi Library. "We have films on every subject from Africa to Yosemite National Park and from Ancient Persia to the Weyth Phenomenon," Mrs. Flattery points out. "There are also a couple of W.C. Fields and Charlie Chaplin flicks," she adds with a smile.

One of the regular users of the library's film catalogue is Police Chief Lee BeGole, who orders films on police procedures and uses them as instructional tools for the Novi officers.

Mrs. Flattery has been head of the Novi Library for the past nine years when she and Mrs. Joseph White, the assistant-librarian, were hired to replace the library's two founders who retired at the same time.

"I had no real background in library work at the time," Mrs. Flattery admitted. I had taken a lot of literature courses in college and have always been interested in books. Some friends of mine suggested that I apply for the job. I did, I was interviewed, and then I got hired. I've been grateful ever since."

"What does it take to be a successful librarian?"

Mrs. Flattery answers without a moment's hesitation. "You've got to like books," she says. "If you don't read and "restricted" labeling becomes sort of a guide to those communities where people may take offense to certain books," he explains.

In the final analysis, however, the matter is in the hands of the local library board or the community itself, Dinman asserts. If the community or local board disagrees with the restricted list, they may ignore or alter it, he adds.

Books likely to be found in the library "restricted" files include those on sexuality, homosexuality, birth control, etc. Other specific examples include Valley of The Dolls, The Couples, Lady Chatterley's Lover and Love Machine.

"Actually, we have very few 'restricted' books," says Northville Librarian Mrs. Robert Thornbladh. Juveniles may read them with parental permission, she says.

A few unrestricted books have been found offensive to some parents who complain to the library, while other parents have complained when their children have been unable to check out a "restricted" book without permission, says Mrs. Thornbladh. But, she adds, "we have very few complaints."

A chief concern of Mrs. Thornbladh is trying to avoid embarrassing teenagers who come in to get a "restricted" book perhaps for a class assignment. Rather than call a parent in the presence of others, Mrs. Thornbladh would much prefer a written note from a parent. Some parents have placed permission slips on file at the library, indicating their children may read any restricted book they choose.

Because "restricted" books in the Northville library are not easily found, adults may also have to ask to see them. Others, however, who are regular patrons and know their location may simply walk to the shelves where they are kept.

Some "restricted" books may appear on regular shelves as well. These, generally, are those books which were listed several years ago and have gained wider acceptance. The word "restricted," in these cases, appears on the card inside the book.

His letters, mailed in 3 x 5 envelopes and bearing three-cent postage stamps, were simply addressed: Mr John Harmon, Northville, Wayne Co., Michigan.

Perhaps some local Civil War buffs will know something about the writer and pass their information to Mr. Bogart.

College Prexy Enacts Freeze

Responding to a need for accurate data on the current status of the budget for the 1971-72 fiscal year, Schoolcraft President C. Nelson Grote has called for a freeze on all discretionary spending at the school until May 1.

The president announced the restriction at a special meeting for faculty and other College employees the afternoon of April 13.

He said the action was necessary to insure the general fund in the black on June 30, the end of the fiscal year, and to get firm data on the school's financial position.

What happens after May 1 will be determined by the financial picture on that date. Dr. Grote explained that College have been made throughout the current fiscal year — "some weekly and some on an almost daily basis." The problem he has experienced is that while needed adjustments were being made, additional expenditures were going on at the various offices and departments of the College, making a firm accounting at any point impossible to determine.

Further adjustments are yet to be made this spring, but the president did not give an estimate in dollars. He did say that to finish in the black — something required by law — could be accomplished only by "spending the least amount possible between now and the end of the fiscal year."

Dr. Grote said that contractual people would not be affected by the spending freeze, but that it will cover all accounts and expenditures which do not disrupt the instructional program.

terms of multiples and mobile homes.

Opposition to enacting a moratorium per se came from several sources, although the concept of drastically slowing multiple development was one which drew general approval of all councilmen.

City Attorney Howard Bond advised the council that such a moratorium would probably be ruled illegal in court proceedings. Troy and Madison Heights, he reported, have attempted to pass similar ordinances, but lost their cases in court.

Another source of opposition was Councilman Edwin Pressnell.

"Let's not forget," he said, "that each one of us on this council has a vote on each one of these rezoning requests. We may be overloaded with multiples, but we're also getting overloaded with moratoriums. If we don't want any more multiple zonings we don't need a moratorium to reject them. We can reject them with the votes we already have."

City Manager George Athas informed the council that he however, "in the Walled Lake area and in the southeastern part of the city," he said, "we have reached the saturation point of multiples and even though an R-2-A might be proper land use in that area we have to start reviewing these rezoning requests in light of overall density."

"The Master Plan," Crupi continued, "tries to maintain a well-planned community with a certain density level in certain areas we have already reached the desired density level and should be careful not to make it any more."

The council considered issuing a directive of its position to the planning board, which must approve all rezoning requests before they come to the council for final approval, but the idea was rejected.

"I think there's a consensus that we have a saturation of multiples," Crupi said in terminating discussion, "and I think the planning board is cognizant of what our reaction to any more rezonings to R-2-A will be."

Commencement Speaker

Governor Here Sunday

Honors, degrees and certificates of completion will be conferred at Schoolcraft College's Seventh Annual Commencement to be held Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. in the school's main gymnasium.

Some 500 students have been invited to participate in the ceremonies which will be highlighted by an address by Michigan's Governor William G. Milliken. The Governor will be making his first visit to the Schoolcraft campus. Dr. R. Robert Geake, chairman of the Board of Trustees, will introduce the Governor.

Schoolcraft President C. Nelson Grote will present associate degrees and certificates assisted by Deans John P. Adams and Frederick Stefanski. Dr. Robert Keene, vice president for instruction, will announce special honors.

It is anticipated that a number of honorary associate degrees will be awarded, a practice initiated last year but the recipients names will not be announced until that portion of the ceremony.

The Reverend James W. Schaefer, minister of Pilgrim

United Church of Christ and president of the Livonia Ministerial Association, will conduct the invocation and benediction.

Schoolcraft's orchestra under the direction of Richard T. Saunders, and the Chorale under the direction of Bradley Bloom, will perform.

A reception for graduates and guests will be held in the Waterman Campus Center immediately following the service. The general public is welcome to attend both the commencement and the reception.

The revised request includes eight or nine single family homes fronting on

Original request, turned down by the planning commission in February, called for 123 multiples without the single family buffer.

Trustee Bernard Baldwin look exception to the request, noting that when rezoning was approved in November, 1966, to build Northville Forest Apartments, Greenspan promised it would be the last rezoning request.

"Why, economically, is it necessary to put as much as 98 acres of land per acre?" Baldwin asked.

Spokesmen for Greenspan noted the economics of the country make it necessary to ask for multiple zoning rather than build single family homes as planned.

They said homes in the Greenspan subdivisions north of the area in question were not selling as fast as anticipated.

However, Baldwin said there were "some concerns expressed in 1966 that what is happening now would happen, that the land would lie fallow and eventually you would want to build multiples."

He explained he found it hard to believe "economic conditions changed so dramatically that you must look at the land with as much as possible."

"Ninety-eight units on 11 acres (actual usable land less the roads) is lucrative. It's not a break even proposition of someone wanting out. That's money," Baldwin charged.

Spokesmen for the developer maintained that the promises made in 1966 were not the primary questions but that what is most important is "what is best for the community, requires the least amount of services and is not detrimental to the area."

SIGNING UP — Mary Bray adds her name to petitions being circulated by the Northville Education Association as fellow teachers Phil Demski and Barbara LeBoeuf wait their turn. The petitions call for placing two tax reform proposals on the May 16 Michigan Presidential Primary ballot.

On Tax Reform

Teachers Open Petition Drive

Petitions are being circulated this week by more than 150 Northville teachers calling for the tax reform questions to go before voters in the May 16 Presidential Primary.

"It's really an improvement on the Governor's package," commented Northville Education Association president Mrs. Sylvia Torma.

Mrs. Torma explained the petitions seek to place two tax reform questions on the ballot, not only one as proposed by Governor William Milliken.

The first would eliminate the property tax as the basic support for education while the second removes the ban against the graduated income tax.

Sponsored by the Michigan Education Association (MEA), the petition drive goal is 350,000 signatures.

The petitions differ from the Governor's proposals in that they also include language to clear up the question of bonding without a vote of the people, as raised in a recent Supreme Court decision, and do not include a section which some feel would automatically allow a graduated income tax.

The second petition asks to remove the graduated income tax ban.

The petition says the state may levy a graduated income tax but noted that other units had government, such as cities, counties and school districts, may enact local income taxes only if permitted by the legislature.

What effect will the changes have on local control of schools? Legally, boards of education have always been agents of the state.

As such, the state has imposed requirements and responsibilities on them without providing resources to meet those responsibilities. Included among these are free textbooks, length of school year, hours of instruction and so forth, MEA spokesmen note.

If approved, the amendments will require the legislature to provide the proper funding to local school boards can implement quality local school programs.

The MEA proposals give local boards control over substance in exchange for control over poverty, the group states.

Registered voters may sign the MEA petitions even if they have signed petitions circulated by Republicans or Democrats since the MEA is asking to amend the state constitution differently than have any of the other petitions.

Unaffected by the regulations, if approved, would be garage sales conducted by civic or church organizations.

First there was an immediate decrease in the frequency of occurrence of bizarre or unusual behaviors. These decreases remained throughout the initial six-month period of the program.

Second, some changes occurred more gradually on both wards. These changes included inter-personal communication and decreased frequency of loss of earliest memories.

Finally, a third pattern showed changes between the two wards.

Eye and physical contact between patients (a person touching another person) increased for the females on both wards, while these behaviors increased for the males only on the free enrichment ward.

Initial results, he explains, favor the token program over the free program. Decreases in the amount of care given by the nursing staff for personal hygiene and dress on the token ward seems to indicate that this is an efficient Society's Neglect The Real Pain Of Aging...

Growing old may be certainly need not be painful. The pain of the aged, insists Brian L. Mishara, a psychologist at Northville State Hospital, often is in the eyes of the beholder—a society so turned off by the thought of growing old that it unconsciously tarries the silver years for others.

"The awful thing about growing old," he asserts, "is how often you younger people have."

"We don't like the thought of getting old and dying so we

Experiment at State Hospital

Glass of Wine Holds Cheer For Those Vintage Years

Drinking wine or beer in a state mental institution?

It's done... experimentally and on a very limited scale at Northville State Hospital where psychologists are attempting to improve the lot of old people...

The wine experiment is part of a larger on-going environmental enrichment program for "hopeless" patients. It could, suggests Mishara, have possible spin-off benefits for old people in general...

The study, he says, challenges the often prevailing assumption that rehabilitation programs for long-term hospitalized elderly mental patients have little chance of success.

Basically, the program allows comparison between one rehabilitation program where various enrichments are free to all participants and a program in which the same enrichments are available to everyone contingent upon the individuals having earned them.

One of these "enrichments" is the wine furnished by the Wine Advisory Board of the State of California.

Forty men and 40 women were randomly assigned to two co-educational research wards, explains Mishara. The two groups represented the rejected from all other available treatment program.

Mishara compares them to the "worse" patients who might be housed in local area convalescent homes.

Mean age of the participants was 68.8 years, and mean length of hospitalization was 21.4 years.

The program involved three introductory steps.

First, activities, social stimulation, and a somewhat cheerier environment was made available to patients.

Second, patients were given an increased opportunity to make their own choices to put on their tooth brush in the morning.

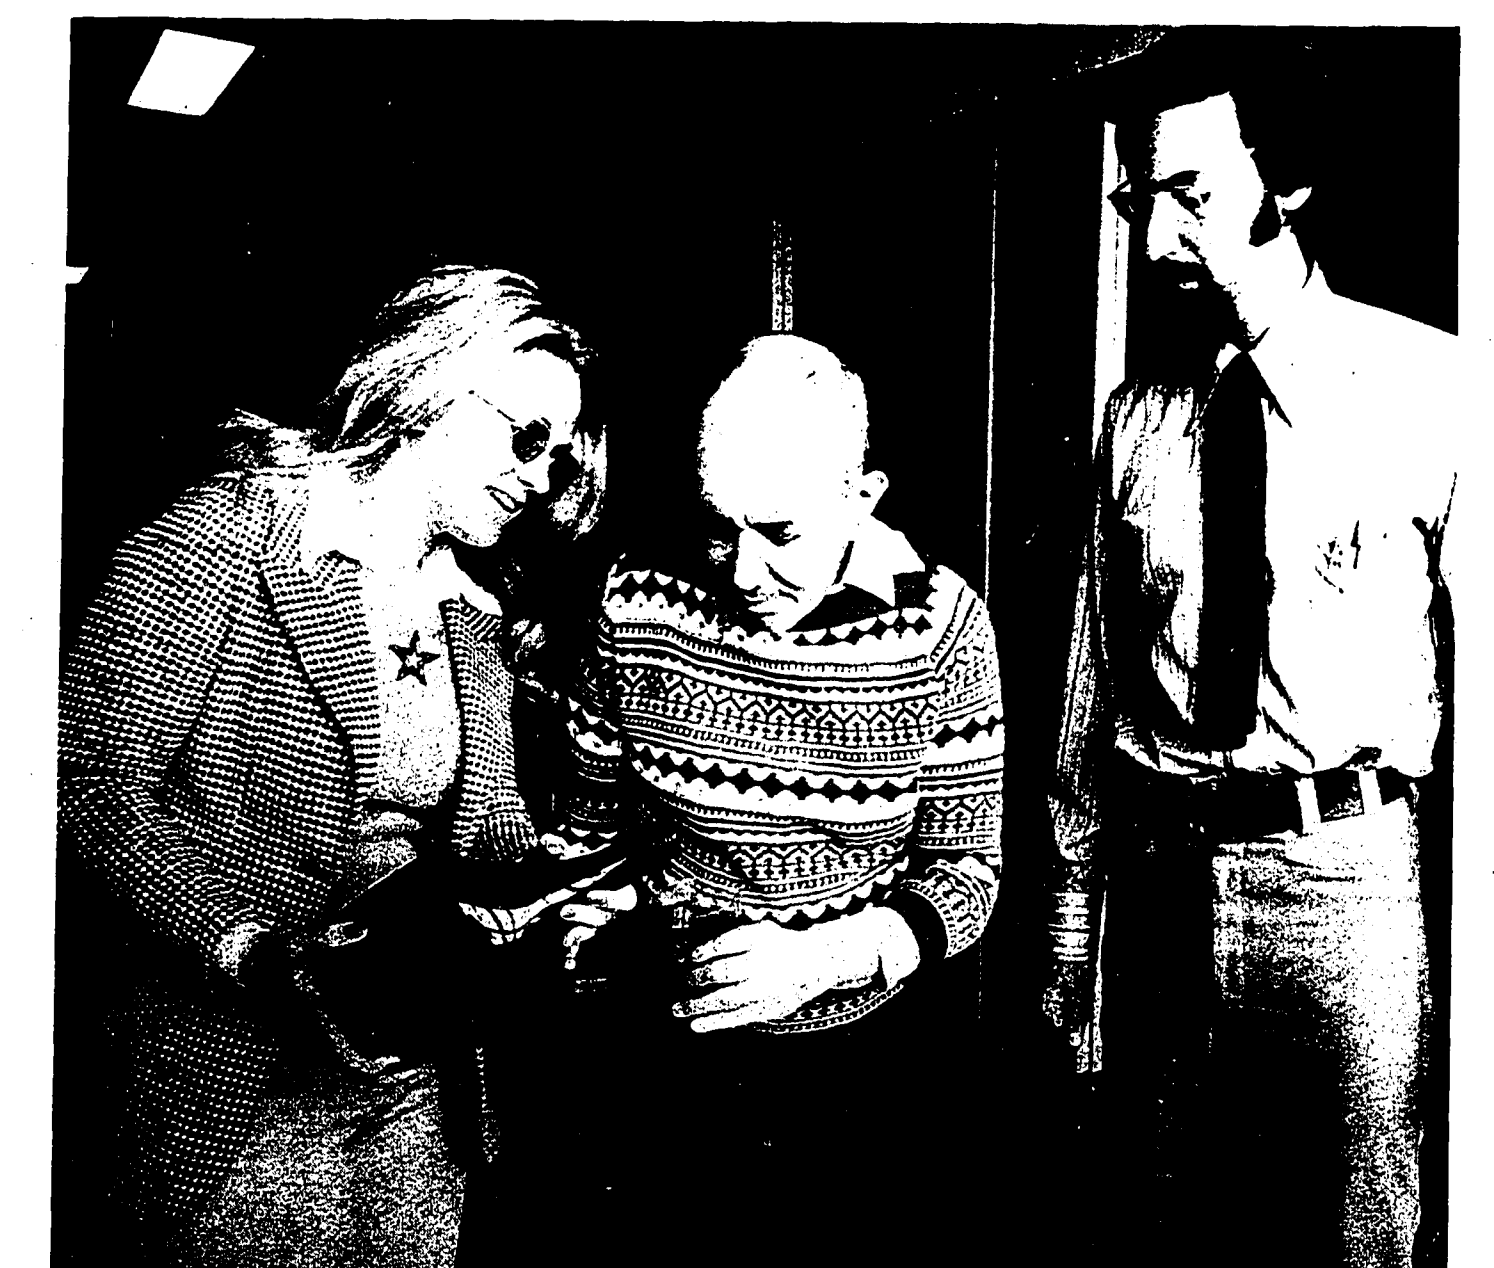

Third, the staff was made more aware of the importance of the patients' welfare and its own satisfaction with helping others.

A token economy program was developed, involving the rewarding of tokens for engaging in desirable behaviors.

Results were dramatic, says Mishara, in a number of participants. Instead of "worse" characteristics previously attributed to residents of the units, outside observers indicated that participants of both research wards seemed much more active, interested, and happier.

Three patterns of changes evolved, he noted.

First there was an immediate decrease in the frequency of occurrence of bizarre or unusual behaviors. These decreases remained throughout the initial six-month period of the program.

PAUSE THAT REFRESHES—Barbara Robertson, educational psychologist at Northville State Hospital, pours a glass of wine for a hospital patient as Psychologist Brian Mishara looks on. The wine program is part of an experimental program at the hospital for aging patients.

way of freeing nursing time from ward work so the staff can spend more time "interacting personally" with patients.

Mishara was unhappy with the fact that the token ward did not foster strong interpersonal relationships. Instead, he says, there was an "every man for himself" attitude.

Presently, research is continuing in hopes of increasing these relationships. For example, tokens are being given those who may help another make his bed.

Concerning the wine experiment, which is continuing and which, in one case, includes beer for a patient, similar positive results are being noted.

Mishara cites the example of the old woman who sat throughout the day, her head bowed, speaking with no one and taking no part in patient activities.

Encouraged to have a glass of wine, the patient soon was participating — even dancing with male patients. When questioned by the staff why she now enjoyed dancing, she replied, "Oh, it really doesn't matter now because I'm drunk."

She wasn't drunk, of course, but it gave her an excuse for mixing with others, says Mishara.

Consumption of wine was high the first week, he recalls, then dropped sharply the next week and then rose again.

Port is preferred by patients, Chianti least preferred.

Interview responses, says Mishara, indicate that many patients value wine for making them sleep well.

Immediately after drinking wine two types of reactions occur. Approximately half of the patients are eager to go to sleep, while the other half are eager to engage in ward activities which previously they found less interesting.

Generally speaking, the staff is finding, says the psychologist, that wine tends to "bring out individuality in an environmental setting where undifferentiation had prevailed for years."

"It is clear from this study that the effects of wine do extend to chronic, severely impaired older men and women who had otherwise been judged unsuitable for any form of treatment program."

Neglect: The Pain Of Aging

revelation, sadness, irritation, sympathy—all of which is readily telegraphed to grandma or grandpa even when wrapped in syrup, he says.

How is my little boy today? Has he gone poty like a good little boy?

"Part of our problem is that we don't know how to communicate with old people. 'Why, Mishara asks, 'do we automatically talk down to the elderly as if they were children. Why can't we respect them as adults?'"

Another problem is that society is dishonest, he says. If a problem between the family and an old person occurs, the family attempts to cover it up with artificial assurances to the old person that he is welcome in the home when in fact he is not.

"We skirt the issue and are dishonest. We come in to the old person and say, 'Oh, we really do love you so much and everything is going to be fine,' and then the next moment we're talking about getting rid of him."

"You can't say one thing to an old person and then treat him differently. He can see through it."

This kind of dishonesty may compound the injury, he suggests. Not only is the old person hurt because he feels he is unwanted but he also is hurt because his family does not candidly discuss the problem with him.

The underlying cause of society's hangup over the aged, says Mishara, may be its fear of death and dying—its prejudices.

"If I think that old age is a horrible thing, then I'm going to assume you are going to be miserable and I'm going to act accordingly. Why should I stay around someone who is miserable?"

"So a lot of our prejudices are self-sustaining prophecies. We think that it is horrible to be that way, therefore we make it that way."

Perhaps, he suggests, this is why society has so long neglected its aged and why, even today, it does such a poor job in providing such important things as transportation, recreational activities, housing, etc.

This neglect, he says, is really what makes growing old painful—not aging itself.

"For example, fifty percent of old people," he says, "are below the poverty level. That's painful. Transportation...it's simply not available to a lot of old people. They can't get to where they want to go. This may seem unimportant, but for the old people who should become involved in outside activities to make life more meaningful or who could be less dependent and happier it's very important."

a network of Personal Care Organizations to fill the service gap to the elderly. They would be staffed by "home help aids," who could not only assist the older client with housework, cooking, shopping and minor repairs, but also keep him informed of other community resources for transportation, medical care, recreation, legal aid and other needs.

"In general they would act as the advocate of the older person, making certain that community services are as accessible to him as to other citizens," Huber explains.

It is Huber's "conservative" estimate that one out of five persons over 65 could make use of such a service. In Michigan alone, that is a population of 150,000. Federal money for such a program has been available since 1962 as part of the Social Security Act, Huber points out. The terms are that once a state presents a plan for operating such services, the federal government will match its funds three to one.

Huber blames the states for being "extremely slow" in getting the programs developed.

Jim Brickley: Rising Political Star

LANSING — When lists of rising political stars are compiled in Michigan these days, one of the first names to be seen is James Brickley, lieutenant governor.

The handsome, youthful looking former FBI agent is in a post which has served as a stepping stone for numerous other Michigan political figures. The list includes Sen. Phillip A. Hart, Supreme Court Justice and former Gov. John B. Swainson, Court of Appeals Chief Justice T. John Lesinski and, of course, Gov. William G. Milliken.

Brickley, it is assumed, will run either for governor or the U.S. Senate some day.

THE FIRST OPENING comes in 1974 when the term now being served by Milliken expires. The governor hasn't decided whether he'll run for another term, and many people expect he will not.

And if he doesn't, Brickley will be the most logical Republican candidate to succeed him. He would probably have the nomination for the asking. Indeed, it is believed Milliken hinted this to Brickley without actually spelling it out in 1970 when he handpicked the then U.S. Attorney for his running mate. The implied statement was more to the effect that when Milliken didn't want to run anymore Brickley could have the nomination, rather than a flat promise for 1974, at least that is the way theory runs.

IF MILLIKEN should decide to run for another term, Brickley could be his running mate again with the promise of a 1976 shot at Hart's Senate seat. The nomination in this case too would be his for the asking. And he would represent the first formidable candidate Hart had faced after successive ridiculously easy campaigns against Elly Peterson and Lenore Romney.

Brickley could change jobs a lot sooner, too. Should Attorney General Frank J. Kelly unseat Sen. Robert Griffin this November, the attorney general's office would be vacant.

That post would be a natural step for a former U.S. Attorney, and Brickley could probably have it if he wanted it.

THE LIEUTENANT Governor's path, then, is strewn with possibilities for advancement. All he has to do is wait for the opening to come and take it.

Brickley himself has given no indication of which road he would prefer, devoting himself to his duties as lieutenant governor. But there is no doubt he expects to try for bigger things. "Nobody," he once told a reporter, "dreams of growing up to be lieutenant governor."

ONE OF THE ANNUAL stories which pops up around the Capitol each year concerns the Republican Legislative Fund Raising Dinner and the purchase of tickets to it by employees of Republican legislators.

The $100 a plate affair is held in the spring of each year with an outside speaker coming in. Last year the speaker was Oregon Sen. Mark Hatfield. This year on May 18 it will be New York Sen. James Buckley.

The dinner raises money for Republican legislative races — mainly the races in swing districts which decide the political control of each house.

SOME $60,000 was raised last year for the kitty. It is hoped by Republicans it will be even more this year as they attempt to wrest control of the House away from the Democrats — a very difficult, if not impossible assignment.

Again this year, there was some complaining by a few secretaries about the $100 cost of the ticket, but the whole thing isn't all that shocking when looked at more closely.

For one thing, the secretaries, most of them in the $9,000 — $11,000 or more per year category, make a lot more than they would working for private business. For another, if their bosses aren't re-elected, they have to go job hunting.

The sponsors of the dinner don't mind the publicity at all. They believe the old theory that it doesn't matter what is said about them, just so their names are spelled correctly. "News stories just give the dinner more publicity and help with sales," said Senator William Ballenger, R-Ovid, the Senate coordinator of the dinner this year. "I kind of look forward to them. Free advertising never hurt anyone."

Big Year for Truck Sales Predicted

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass. — Truck manufacturers should experience gains in sales and earnings this year well above those recorded in 1971, especially in the area of heavier-duty trucks. Several favorable factors are making a healthier climate for this important industrial segment in 1972: Reinstatement of the investment tax credit, lower interest rates, the probable absence of labor difficulties, a more encouraging economic environment, continued strong demand for recreational trucks, and a sounder financial position for the companies involved.

While there are several companies with operations in the general field of truck manufacturing, the Detroit Big Three — General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler — produce the lion's share of trucks in terms of numbers. In 1971, these three giants posted substantial gains in the total of trucks they manufactured. In fact, last year was a record-setter for the entire industry, with factory shipments breaking through the long-sought magic mark of 2,000,000 units.

ADDITIONALLY, in the heavier end of truck manufacturing, the three leaders International Harvester, White, and Mack (a Signal Companies division) all fared well during 1971. Although competition is increasing steadily in this heavy-truck area, the three aforementioned independents have been predominant and continue to maintain their leadership positions.

It must be mentioned that these independents do not rely on automobile manufacturing for the bulk of their sales as do the car makers also involved in turning out trucks.

Although an industry engine supplier strike is retarding some heavy-truck production at this writing, demand continues strong and is building up because of strike conditions. The walkout referred to is at Cummins Engine; it began in the early part of March. However, as each day passes, the potential for settlement increases.

IN CONTRAST to the auto makers, where an estimated 15 percent of the marketplace is currently controlled by foreign cars, the domestic truck manufacturers are relatively free from foreign competition, especially in the field of medium- and heavy-duty trucks. The foreign producers are at a distinct disadvantage when it comes to making the larger-size vehicles and exporting them to the United States, owing to this country's size, weight, and tax restrictions.

As for the lighter-weight trucks, the situation is somewhat different. In recent years, Japanese auto manufacturers — namely Datsun and Toyota — have made some inroads, although their percentage of the market so far is small. We expect, however, that they will continue to make progress in this area, but we do not look for them to become involved in heavy-duty truck manufacture.

THIS YEAR the investment tax credit represents a strong plus for truck sales. Also, the current hue and cry about pollution which has led to the tightening up of regulatory standards concerning emissions and safety may spur purchases of new trucks to meet the more stringent standards.

This will be especially true if periodic inspections are implemented for maintaining anti-pollution standards, thus hastening the prevailing process of obsolescence.

Another favorable factor for truck manufacturing is the expected strengthening of the economy as 1972 moves along. Sales of larger trucks traditionally increase during periods of stronger economic activity. The active truck market that began in 1971 has carried into the initial months of 1972, and sales and profits increases are anticipated for this year.

At present, the Research Department of Babson's Reports favors purchase of the common shares of International Harvester and White Motor Corporation, both on the N.Y. Exchange.

Kite Contest Nears End

This year's Safe Kite Flying Poster Contest is entering its final stages with some of the most creative designs in the six-year history of the program, according to an announcement today by the Detroit Edison Company.

The contest, which began in mid-March with announcements in all public and parochial schools in Southeastern Michigan, will end April 21.

Dale Hoyt, a safety coordinator for Detroit Edison, said that the posters submitted to date have evidenced a lot of creativity and originality on the part of the youthful contestants. "Just about the time of the first breaking of spring," Hoyt said, "the company sponsors the kite safety program to call to the attention of the cherished, but often forgotten, kite flying generation, the many pitfalls and dangers involved in unsafe handling of this very enthusiastically pursued sport."

The contest, he said, is open to school children from kindergarten through the ninth grade and offers prizes of Detroit Edison stock and appropriate trophies for four distinct categories. Those categories, designed to enhance the opportunities for all participants and particularly the younger ones, are kindergarten through the second grades, third through fourth, fifth through sixth grades, and seventh through ninth grades. First, second and third prizes will be awarded in each category.

Hoyt said that the posters should evidence originality and must be drawn, painted, or pasted on six x 11 inch pages and submitted, with full personal identification on the reverse side, to any Edison customer business office or mailed to Safety Services at the company's headquarters prior to the closing date.

He said that 25,000 contest announcements and an equal number of safe-kite-flying discussion guides have been distributed to local school boards throughout the 7,600-square-mile area served by the company.

It is better to lose a kite than a life and no attempt should be made to get kites that have become lodged in utility wires or high trees.

Hoyt said that judges for the contest have been selected from among safety and advertising people who have no direct connection with the Edison company. They will examine all entries shortly after the contest ends, notify the winners, and prizes will be awarded at the schools of the individual winners during the current school year.

•Nails and pins, left exposed on kites, may cause injury to arms and hands.

"Here we have a massive job which not only to develop comprehensive service delivery, but to make it acceptable to the elderly who need it. It must carry none of the stigma that many of them associate with services resembling welfare. "Ideally it should in no way reduce their sense of independence, but provide the means to maintain it."

Home-Lawn And Garden

THE NORTHVILLE RECORD—NOVI NEWS

PRUNING—This is a "how to" diagram for pruning bush roses. On the left is a bush before pruning and on the right is the same bush after pruning. The rule of thumb in this case is: remove all dead wood and weak growth, then cut back all the remaining canes to a uniform height of about two feet.

Getting Longer Life From Cut Flowers

There are several things a person can do to extend the vase life of cut flowers, says Dr. William Carpenter, Michigan State University horticulturist. He offers these tips: The most unusual—but effective—flower preservative is Sprite and 7-Up. The citric acid and carbonation in the soft drinks control the development of microorganisms that can block water-conducting vessels of rose stems and reduce firmness. Sugar in the soft drinks sustains life. Carpenter recommends mixing one part water with each part soft drink and adding a half teaspoon of chlorine bleach to each quart of solution. The bleach cuts bacterial growth.

Draw Plan Of Garden On Paper

For the "finished" look, plan your flower garden on paper before you dig, says J. Lee Taylor, Michigan State University horticulturist. "Determine the size and color of flowers you want and draw a plan of what size and shape the garden will be," says Taylor. "All this planning should be done before you begin spading."

He suggests placing the garden where you will enjoy it the most, and where there is a good background to show off the blooms—in front of a stone wall, a fence, a building, or some shrubbery. "Don't put a flower garden in the middle of the lawn," says Taylor. "You'll have to mow around it, and it will break up your landscape design."

Informal designs, the front edges slightly curved, add character to the shape of the garden. "Once you have decided on the location, size and shape; plan for color and height. The seed packet or flower label should describe the color and average height of the plant in flower."

Generally, taller plants should be placed to the rear, medium ones in the middle, and low-growing plants in the front. Sometimes by alternating plants the flower bed can appear to have waves or ripples. Taylor also suggests planting flowers that bloom at different seasons, to give you color throughout the year.

Don't overcrowd your flower bed, warns Taylor. Flowers grow in width and planting them too close will only result in the weak flowers that might fall over. A

1. In a well drained and spaced area, dig a hole approximately 15 inches wide and 18 inches deep. Add a quart of peat moss or compost and mix well with the soil. Form blunt cone of the mixture in planting hole.

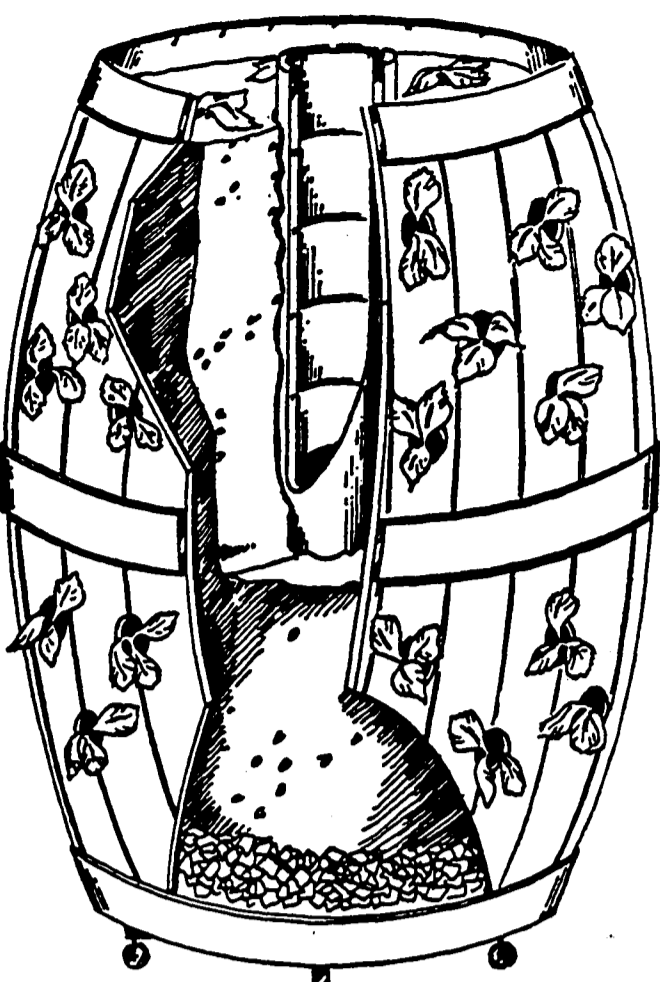

2. Prune all rose canes to 12 inches and remove any broken or injured roots. Position rose on soil cone so that the bud union (swelling at base of stem) is about one inch below the surface. Spread roots out in a natural manner down slope of mound.

3. Work in soil around roses to eliminate any air pockets. Firm soil about roots and add more soil until hole is three-fourths full.

4. Fill remainder of hole with water and allow it to soak in; then refill. Fill remainder of hole with soil and tamp. Head canes back to about eight inches, making cuts one-fourth inch above an outside bud.

5. Mound soil around and over plant to height of 8 to 10 inches. This protects the rose canes from drying out. When buds break, gradually remove mound of soil—probably within a week or 10 days. When vigorous growth starts, apply plant food according to manufacturer's specifications.

Essentials for success with roses are good healthy plants, well prepared beds with good drainage, and a minimum of at least a half a day of sunshine in the areas in which the roses are planted.

STARTING STRAWBERRIES—The strawberry barrel provides an interesting and ornamental way for any gardener to grow strawberries. The holes for the plants should be about eight inches apart and staggered in adjacent rows.

Now... 3 Wilt Stoppers Better Boy

For years, breeders have looked for a tomato variety that was not only an F<sub>1</sub> Hybrid, but also resistant to the three main causes of wilt (blight) in tomato plants: verticillium, fusarium, and nematodes (VFN).

Verticillium Wilt (V)
Verticillium wilt is caused by the verticillium fungus which attacks the plant's roots and stops the nutritional flow. No nutrients to the blossoms, no blossom set, no tomatoes.

Fusarium Wilt (F)
Fusarium wilt is caused by the fusarium fungus which produces a poisonous substance in the plant's roots and thereby kills the plant. No plant, no tomatoes.

Nematodes (N)
Nematodes are little worms which attach themselves to the plant's roots and actually strangle the plant from food. No food, no plant, no tomatoes.

Better Boy Resists VFN
Better Boy resists that evil fungus and those pesky little worms. Better Boy will give you more fruit, tastier fruit, over a longer period of time, because it's triple disease-resistant.

At Kensington

Plan Nature Hikes

Early morning nature walks will be conducted by the naturalist staff of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority at Kensington Park on the first four Sundays in May.

Persons interested in joining the naturalists for these guided walks should meet at the Nature Center at Kensington, located near New Hudson.

Starting time is 7 a.m. on May 7, 14, 21 and 28. General theme will be "Nature's Response to the Spring Season," but the attention will be focused on whatever natural events are evident as the walks proceed.

These tours are limited to families and individuals, not organized groups. Additional information may be secured by calling 685-2417.

Boat launching facilities at Kensington Park are now open. Six boats may be launched at one time from the East launching site where there is space for 60 cars and trailers for additional parking for cars only.

The meeting will be held under way at 8 p.m. in the library of the Brighton Area High School. "What is to become of our community?" is the topic for discussion.

Regional problems, feature story writing and a variety of newspaper subjects will be examined at the Wayne State University Press Club's 35th Newspaper Workshop.

The Eclectic, Birmingham, and David Dolson, recently promoted to Sunday editor of the Detroit Free Press from his previous post of editor of Detroit, the Free Press's Sunday tabloid magazine.

Workshops of the WSU Press Club were begun in 1951 and have been staged semi-annually or annually ever since. Membership is open to all persons in Michigan who are interested in print journalism.

Current officers are Richard Brown, Ingham County News, Mason, president; Jack Hoffman, Northville Record, first vice president; Mary Klenanski, Ferndale Gazette-Times, second vice president; W. Sprague Holden, Wayne State University Journalism Department, secretary-treasurer.

Reservations may be made at the Wayne State Journalism Department, telephone (313) 577-2527.

Kroger Plans New Packaging

Anybody knows that ignoring a problem will make it go away. Yet many Americans persist in burying their heads with respect to a certain, very touchy subject.

The subject is venereal disease. Quite simply and alarmingly, according to the National Commission on Venereal Disease, the subject is getting out of hand.

There's an epidemic running loose, striking 2.5 million Americans, red blooded, blue blooded, yellow, white, black, pink and purple, every year.

Besides advocating federal spending of $296 million over the next five years to control VD, the advisory panel of 16 physicians and one osteopath, after a one-year study, called for VD instruction down to the seventh grade.

The proposal for class instruction stands about as much chance of succeeding as an ice cube in Hell. The same people who object to sex education in the schools today—currently this practice is now in court in Livingston County—will raise another how and cry.

Certain parents object to the teaching of sex in the schools. One argument is that the teaching of sex education is the particular province of parents. Another argument is no telling what those dirty teachers will tell the kids.

Each of these arguments holds as much water as a wet piece of toilet paper.

The new bacon package went on sale this month at 302 Kroger stores in Missouri, Indiana and Illinois. By the end of 1972, Kroger's 1,430 supermarkets are expected to be equipped with the new package.

Kroger's private label bacon is packed under the name of "Kroger's Bacon" and "Kroger's Bacon". Herring added, "Consumers today want to know as much as possible about the products they buy."

The November ballot. The League of Women Voters of Michigan announced its refusal to endorse any of the tax reform petition drives now under way in Michigan.

"We are convinced that the four competing and ever-changing petitions to place constitutional amendments on the ballot only serve to confuse the voters and will result in an exercise in futility," stated Mrs. Marvin Tomber, state League president.

"We strongly feel that the state legislature has been remiss in failing to enact meaningful tax and education reform since it was elected two years ago. Instead, it has been busy with the bickering bring it to the point where it has said 'let the people decide through petition drives what type of tax reform they want."

"We agree that this right of initiative petition, as guaranteed in the state constitution, is a real cornerstone of grass roots democracy because it permits the people of the state to initiate action themselves."

"However, we do not think the legislature should slough off its leadership responsibility in the field of taxation and financing education. There is still plenty of time for it to place legislation directly on the ballot without going through these costly, time-consuming, and we are convinced, unsuccessful petition campaigns."

The Michigan House of Representatives passed last August a proposed constitutional amendment, HJR 36, but the Senate has been unable to muster the necessary 26 votes to put it on Selecting the right college was the topic of last night's (Wednesday) Planning for College program at Northville High.

The program, geared to sophomores, juniors and their parents, was held from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

Speakers included Lyle See of Olive College, who discussed four-year colleges and how to select colleges; Barbara Geil, admissions director for Schoolcraft College, speaking on what community colleges have to offer high school graduates; and Russell Bogarin of Schoolcraft, speaking on financial aids.

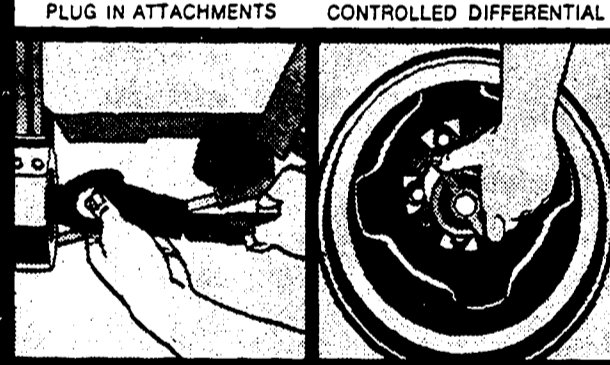

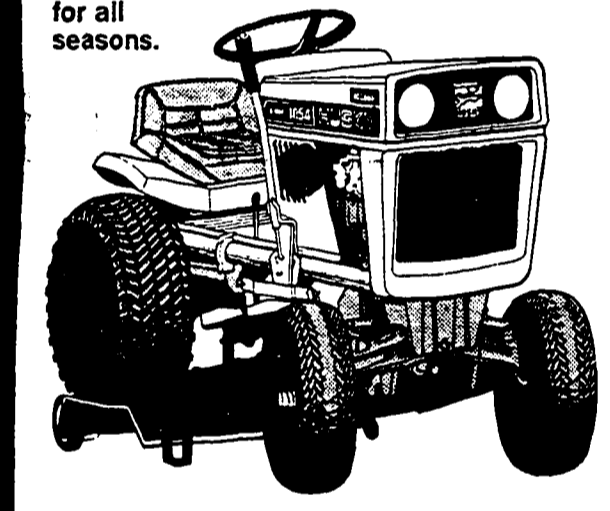

Chairing the program was Mrs. Alta Olson, high school counselor.

In Northville

Annual Blood Bank Scheduled

Northville's annual blood bank will be held Friday, May 5 from 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. It was announced this week. Appointments with prospective donors are now being accepted.

Area residents are urged to participate and they may make their appointments with Elden Biery, blood bank chairman, at 349-2665 or with Mrs. Beatrice Carlson, blood bank representative, at 349-1330.

"Northville has had a community bank for many years," explains Mrs. Carlson, "and has maintained sufficient blood credits for community needs."

"Anyone living in the city or township of Northville may draw on this blood. There is no charge for this blood but the person requesting it is asked to work with the blood chairman in securing donors to replace the blood received so that there will always be a sufficient supply in the community bank for any emergency."

In addition to the community bank, blood may be credited to any group account, personal account or replaced for someone having already received blood.

"The Northville chapter of volunteers have given hundreds of hours of service not only to the local community but to the Northwest Center and factories throughout the area. They will be glad to serve you May 5 at the First Presbyterian Church," emphasizes Mrs. Carlson.

Offer Scholarship

Applications are being accepted from senior boys who will graduate from Novi High School and who have won at least one athletic letter during their school career and has maintained a "B" average and also intends on attending college.

Applications also can be made by previous graduates of Novi High School who are engaged in a course of higher education and who are making satisfactory progress, school officials said.

Applications for "The Richard Erwin Memorial Scholarship" are available through the Novi High School Counseling Department. Applications should be returned no later than May 15.

Amount of the scholarship is based on the interest accrued from the principle investment during the previous twelve month period.

Winner of the award will be selected by a committee of three high school teachers. Presentation of the award will be made at the Novi High School Honors Convocation.

CHATHAM complete food centers

- We're concerned about the confusion that may have been created by various statements from food chains made last week in the Detroit area. Our business policy and growth is based on saving you money on your total food bill - yesterday, today and tomorrow. For the record... "Chatham has - and always will lead in providing our customers with the lowest overall food prices." (Quoted from Paragraph 4 - Chatham Price Policy 1947). We're concerned about food prices too! And we're continually doing something to keep them low!

Low Cost Food Seen. Despite the foreboding food price outlook for 1972, April promises an abundance of low-cost items, a Michigan State University consumer information specialist reports. Pineapple and rhubarb are in peak supply in April, according to Maryann Beckman. You can also expect lower-priced celery and broccoli. Lettuce quality is better and prices are lower than in recent months. A record supply of pears continues, with good supplies of D'Anjou, Bosc, and Comice varieties available. Onion supplies are increasing, and tomato prices are far below this time last year, Mrs. Beckman reports. Cabbage and oranges, however, are higher-priced than last April. Canned cranberry juice cocktail, apple juice, and frozen concentrated grape juice appear on the USDA's April plentiful foods list. Canned pears, fruit cocktail, and canned apricots all are priced well below a year ago. Egg prices continue to decline through April. Chicken and turkey supplies are also large.

Novi Asks Sewer Cost, Final Plans

Development of a major shopping center on the southeast corner of Novi and Ten Mile Roads was brought a little closer Monday as the Novi city council took a slow but steady pace forward in bringing a sewer line to that location.

Specifically, Monday's meeting was a preliminary hearing of necessity to determine the means of financing the proposed Novi sewer line extension. The action taken by the council was the adoption of the third in a series of seven resolutions which must be passed before a special assessment district to finance the project can be levied.

Resolution number three authorizes City Manager George Athas to draft final plans, specifications, and detailed cost estimates from which the actual special assessment district will be determined.

Still ahead are a preliminary hearing of necessity, a hearing of necessity, and two hearings to set and approve the assessment rate. Once that has been accomplished the role will be sent to Lansing for approval, and then bids must be let and approved before construction can begin.

"We ought to be able to begin construction of the line in a year," said Mayor Joseph Crupi in response to a question. "If all goes well," quipped Councilman William O'Brien.

The line will extend from the railroad tracks on Novi Road south to Ten Mile Road and then proceed east down Ten Mile until it again ties in with the main sewer trunk line at the railroad tracks. Preliminary estimates of the total cost of the line have been placed at $441,000, according to City Engineers Johnson and Anderson.

Representing Michigan Tractor, George McGrath pointed out that the existing elevation of his company is lower than the proposed sewer trunk. As the sewer line is based on gravitational flow it would be difficult for Michigan Tractor to get any real use out of the line.

McGrath asked the council if he could proceed with negotiations with the property owner immediately to his north to attain easements so he could tie into the main trunk line which runs along the railroad tracks.

The problem is that if Michigan Tractor does not tie into the proposed sewer lateral and ties into the main trunk line instead, the city could tentatively be left holding the bag with their front foot assessment.

A similar problem arose in the past. Of course, the low fat content means low calories, too—about 130 calories in a 3 1/2 ounce serving, a boon to the dieter. As for nutrition, turkey has always contributed generous portions of protein. It's one of the most generous sources of protein, as well as riboflavin and niacin.

When you select the new ground turkey, you not only get these things, but you get economy as well. With little or no waste in bone or fat, what you purchase is what you serve... it's all edible. One pound serves 4 to 5 at 18-22¢ serving. And food economists say that a serving is an excellent value today.

Ground turkey is treated as any ground meat... it must be handled carefully, stored in the refrigerator and used within a day or two. It may be prepared in the dozens of ways which are so popular with ground beef—burgers, in casseroles, as meat loaves etc.

School Landscaping Heads Novi Projects

NINE MILE ROAD CONSTRUCTION—Residents living along Nine Mile have had to endure a variety of difficulties lately as their main road has been the object of extensive construction projects. On the east end of Nine Mile by Meadowbrook Road, workmen are busy installing a sewer line. Meanwhile, the west end of the road by Novi Road is being prepared for paving.

A wide range of projects involving remaining monies in the building and site fund were approved Monday by the Novi Board of Education. Approved projects and costs include: Purchase and installation of a gym divider at the middle school, by Laich, Inc., at a bid price not to exceed $5,689.

Expenditure of $4,500 for new books at the middle school and of $3,000 for new books at Village Oaks Elementary School. Erection of an 800-foot chain link fence, six feet high, with posts at 10 foot intervals and larger posts at ends of fence along the Ingersoll Drain, and installation of nine pieces of playground equipment at Village Oaks Elementary school, by the New Hudson Fence Company, at a combined cost not to exceed $2,500.

Contracts to Green Ridge Nursery of Northville to seed middle school property at a cost of $9,215; to landscape Village Oaks property at a cost of $70,500; to landscape middle school property at a cost of $3,241.75; and to install drainage fields at the high school baseball diamond at a cost of $400, with provision for any additional drainage at a cost of $1 per foot.

Concerning landscaping, the board tabled until its next meeting proposals for repairing (filling and sodding) of the high school football field and landscaping of a steep embankment adjacent to the middle school. Administrators were also authorized to take quotes and purchase two crown-control gales in Village Oaks School.

Severely important that the millage pass and I think it's our job to make the point loud and clear so everyone can hear that everybody is going to benefit from this millage. I've always been against millage increases because they're always to do the same job. Here we have to emphasize to the voters that we're asking for the millage to do a job that we haven't been able to do and needs doing desperately.

If the millage is approved, it will bring only an additional $70,000 of income to the city, a fact that was duly noted by Mayor Joseph Crupi. "The funds from the millage are minimal to the amount of money needed to do the job," he said. "I will take a number of years for these improvements to start becoming noticeable. The only improvements you can make with this kind of money are limited."

Councilman Raymond Evans reiterated Crupi's point that the money the millage will bring in will have to be augmented from other sources. "A good many people think if the millage passes there won't be any assessments," he said. "We've got to make people aware that there always going to be assessments." An additional point was made by Councilman William O'Brien. The median house in Novi is assessed at $28,000, he pointed out. When that is translated into what the one mill increase is going to cost the average Novi citizen it figures out to $13 per year. "I would hope," he said, "most residents would give up a dollar a month to improve our roads."

Bigger Hike Seen for SEV

First, the council scheduled public hearings for May 9, 10, and 11 to begin proceedings to cap all roads in the city's older subdivisions and, secondly, adopted a general statement of policy to the effect that the city will participate on a 20 percent basis whenever a special assessment is levied.

However, the city has informed school officials that the city portion of the Novi school district will be $54,846,000-city's total SEV was put at $77,602,000. Valuation information has not yet been received from Wixom or Novi Township, Dale said.

It would appear, therefore, that the district's valuation will approximate $56 million—$3 million more than anticipated, Dale said.

Petitions Available For Board Seats

Nominating petitions for seats on the Novi and Walled Lake boards of education are now available. Two seats will be up for election June 12 in both districts.

In Walled Lake petitions may be obtained at the administrative offices located at LaVerne M. DeWard. Members whose terms are expiring in Walled Lake are John C. Clark and Dwight L. Wiseman.

Union Issue Faces Vote

A movement to unionize Novi's city employees will be decided one way or the other May 9.

That's the date set by the Michigan Labor Relations Commission for a special election of city employees in which they will be asked to either accept or reject the union.

The date was set Monday as officials of the Municipal Employees Division of the AFL-CIO met with Novi officials in the Michigan Labor Relations Building in Detroit Monday morning.

At that meeting City Manager George Athas presented state labor relations officials with a list of city employees eligible for the union. The union is closed to supervisory and council-appointed employees. At the same time, union officials presented the state with what amounts to cards of intent from Novi employees requesting a union.

In order for the unionization question to be brought to a vote of the workers, more than 30 per cent of the eligible employees must have signed cards. If less than 30 percent have signed, the matter falls before going to a vote.

Athas indicated approximately 23 employees were ruled eligible for the union. The 23 include Novi High School co-op students.

Asked how the unionization movement will affect the 1972-73 fiscal year, the Novi School Board just south of Eleven Mile.

Dates Planned For Gala Days

Novi's Gala Days, the annual summer festival sponsored by the Novi Jaycees, have been officially scheduled for the weekend of July 29-31, it was announced Monday by Bill Lapham, Jaycee Publicity Chairman for the event.

One of the added features of this year's Gala Days celebration will be a chicken barbecue, Lapham reported. The family-style barbecue will be sponsored by the Novi Little League and has been set for Saturday evening.

In the planning stages is the possibility of having a pancake breakfast on one of the three Gala Days, although nothing definite has been set. Lapham and the Jaycees are still looking for an eligible person to be in charge of special events such as the barbecue and proposed pancake breakfast. All ideas or special events should be submitted in writing to either Philip Cozad or Jerry Fortenberry, the overall chairman for Gala Days, at Box 249, Novi, Michigan.

Other features of festivities will be the Jaycees "Beer" tent open to 18-year olds and the Jaycees' refreshment stands, numerous games sponsored by area clubs and organizations, and a dozen rides.

Projects tabled for review and consideration later were: Conversion of temporary mobile classrooms for administration offices. Installation of two sections of bleachers, 100 seats each, for the visitors' box of the high school football field.

Construction of a walkway from Village Road to the rear of Village Oaks Elementary School. In discussing proposals for construction of the tennis courts, Trustee Mrs. Sharon Felchak suggested the board first consider proper drainage for the existing high school track before taking on a new project.

The board is seeking a replacement for Superintendent Thomas Dale, whose contract has not been renewed for next year.
