"We're going to contact and communicate with all the actors involved in getting this problem solved," he added, "and keeping away from the confrontations of the last few weeks."

Morrill and Salci said they would try to arrange a meeting, possibly next week, with local officials to continue negotiations on the Lakes Area Special.

If there appears to be absolutely no hope of resolving the issues, Morrill said, SEMTA will give local leaders seven days' notice of cancellation of the service, but he emphasized: "There are no deadlines or cutoffs."

Murphy said county officials will continue to negotiate with SEMTA for a contract to provide for the start of the Oakland County Advanced Reservation Transit (OCART) system, a countywide Dial-A-Ride program that will absorb existing programs, hopefully by October 1.

Following Monday's meeting, Murphy said it was his understanding that there would be no push for local funding return and possibly work out the funding problem before the service was discontinued.

McConnell had indicated that they would seek a court restraining order to block discontinuation of the service, if SEMTA had carried out the threat.

The possibility of a lawsuit was dropped after Monday's meeting with the SEMTA officials. Murphy said.

The main issue at stake in the negotiations between the county and SEMTA goes beyond the Lakes Area Special, Salci said, and centers on Murphy's and McConnell's claim that the Dial-A-Ride programs, including OCART, should be funded 100 percent by the regional authority since county taxpayers have contributed some $10million to state transportation coffers in the form of higher license plate and

However, the SEMTA board has a policy that Dial-A-Ride programs must be funded on a two-thirds, one-third split between the regional authority and local units of government.

McConnell has said that he and Murphy hope to have that policy changed.

A proposal to backdate the contract for OCART to July 1 and add the Lakes Area Special as the first vehicle in the system cannot legally be done, Salcisaid, because SEMTA is reimbursed by the state for its programs.

"We could never backdate a contract for state reimbursement." he added. Further, federal funds are not available for the Lakes Area Special, Salci said, because west Oakland County is outside of the urbanized Detroit area as defined by federal regulations. Reflecting on the problems that have occurred regarding the Lakes Area

City holds Ex-Cell-O bid

A request from the Ex-Cell-O Corporation for designation of its property in Walled Lake as an industrial development district in order to obtain a 50-percent reduction in property taxes on a proposed $3-million administration building has been tabled by the City Council for further study.

Council members asked City Attorney Paul Bibeau to come up with a list of pros and cons on the proposal before the August 1 meeting at which a decision may be made on granting the industrial development district designation. According to Thomas J. Stuart, assistant corporate controller of the Troybased firm, the 60,000-square-foot corporate administration building will provide several benefits to the city, including some $16,800 a year in additional taxes, more business for local merchants, industrial growth, and enhancement of Walled Lake's image as a progressive community. The Walled Lake Schools and Oakland County also will receive half of the official tax rate. There would be no costs to the city, he said, since the company's facilities are self-sufficient.

In additioon,,, Stuart said that, since the new facility would be an administrative complex, there would be no pollution from manufacturing facilities, and designation of the firm's entire 44-acre site at West Maple and Ladd roads would have no effect on the $50,000 a year Ex-Cell-O already pays in property taxes on its five existing struc-

The tax break would be in effect for 12 years, he said, but would end in the 13th year. At that time, the company's taxes to the city, schools and county on the new structure would be 100-percent of the tax rate.

If the council votes to create the industrial district, Ex-Cell-O then would apply to the City, State Tax Commission and Michigan Department of Commerce for an industrial facilities exemption certificate in order to obtain the tax reduction. If Ex-Cell-O's entire 44-acre site is designated as an industrial district, the company would have to file separate applications for each tax reduction certificate for new facilities.

The application must include a description of the building, proposed uses, a construction time schedule and estimated cost, Stuart said.

Some 75 employees would be hired to work in the administration offices, he said, bringing the company's total staff in Walled Lake to 485. Many of the employees would be transferred to the new complex from existing Ex-Cell-O and McCord Corporation offices, Stuart added, although "some support jobs (such as secretaries and file clerks) would be hired right away."

Stuart said the state law that estabished the industrial development district procedures was adopted in order to improve the business climate

Wolverine Lake Village Council this week is expected to hire a new garbage · added. contractor.

Watkins Disposal recently resigned as the contractor, effective August 1, citing problems in fulfilling the agreement, according to Village President John McLellan.

As of Monday, McLellan was attempting to schedule a special council meeting at which he is expected to recommend the hiring of B & J Removal of Northville through the end of this year.

The Northville firm will provide the same collection services, McLellan said, although the cost of the contract will be $2.25 per unit a month, 25 cents more than the agreement with Watkins.

However, the village president said that $3,000 withheld from Watkins in lieu of a bond would be used to offset the higher price charged by B & J. Watkins has been informed that the village will keep the $3,000 for its failure to perform under the agreement, McLellan said.

The proposed contractor has been in business for eight years, McLellan said, and has its own garage and three mechanics to keep its 11 trucks in ser-

Precision Coatings, Incorporated, has applied to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) for a permit to install a new coating machine and thermal after burner.

However, some 100 residents of nearby subdivisions have petitioned the DNR or written letters to the state agency in opposition to the permit approval until the company "guarantees wilean air" by eliminating allegedly noxlous odors emanating from the plant, located at 8120 Goldie Street in Commerce Township.

According to Tom Maki, an engineer with the DNR's air quality control division, the odor problem in the area has improved somewhat since Precision Coatings installed a 150-foot smokestack earlier this year.

Although residents have reported the problem to the DNR on several occasions, Maki said another engineer. Jack Larsen, was able to detect only a slight odor on several visits to the Haggerty-

Richardson area. There were some problems apparently resulting from leaks in the plant's duct work, he said, but those were corrected with chaulking. Maki added that Larsen felt subsequent reports of odors emanating from the plant probably were a result of "ground level sources, such as open doors (at Precision Coatings)."

Bloomfield's Crystal Echo Beach Subdivision, said that DNR investigators "don't smell anything" when they visit the area because the "wind changes or something."

Many times, the odor problem is most noticable at night, Gore said, when the DNR and other regulatory agencies are

He noted that residents' objections to the plant increased this spring when they discovered that Precision Coatings had applied for the permit for a third coating machine. The permit request was filed with the DNR in May. We don't want to shut them down," the resident said. "All we want is clean Maki said he isn't sure of the status of the company's permit application, but

Alford Gore, a resident of West added that the matter probably will be heard by the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission in August or September.

'We won't issue the permit until we've been assured that the present odor situation is corrected," he said. "We've also asked the company to demonstrate a new odor reduction to make sure there's no nuisance."

Alfred W. Rich, president of Precision Coatings, said yesterday that the company plans to make some sort of presentation to the commission "on what we plan to do. We want to make the commission aware of what we are proposing through discussion and the presentation of data."

He added that company officials have not received any complaints from area residents in recent months concerning the alleged odor problem. In October, 1976, Commerce Township officials first received complaints about the company's operation, and Building Inspector Bill Mitchell

wrote to Rich about the problem. The company's president responded that Precision Coatings officials "do not believe that our operations result in any noxious or odorous matters being emitted beyond our lot line, but we recognize that the possibility exists that a combination of unlikely circumstances could occur from time to

Ex-Cell-O request would benefit city

The Ex-Cell-O Corporation has asked the Walled Lake City Council to designate its 44-acre site in the city as an industrial development district so the company may apply for an industrial facilities exemption certification for a proposed $3-million corporate administration building.

If the industrial development district is approved, Ex-Cell-O officials apparently will apply for the certificate which would entitle the firm to a 50 percent reduction in its property taxes for 12 years. After that period, the full value of the building will be added to the city, county and school district

Company officials have estimated that, even with the tax break, the city will receive some $16,800 a year in property taxes during the 12-year period. School and county taxes also would be reduced for 12 years.

Designation of an industrial development district is permitted under a state law that is designed to improve the state's business climate: increase capital expenditures and employment opportunities, both in the construction industry and for the new facilities; and increase tax collections resulting from the higher

Thomas J. Stuart, Ex-Cell-O's said that, while many of the employees who will be assigned to the new building will be transferred from the firm's other offices. some support positions, such as secretaries and file clerks, will be hired immediately.

Company officials have noted that the 60,000-square-foot administration building will provide several benefits for Walled Lake, including more business for local merchants, industrial growth of the city and enhancement of the city as a progressive community. while there would be no costs to Walled Lake in terms of demands for municipal services, except for sewer and water capacity.

The new facility would not pose pollution problems since it is an administrative building. Stuart also said that the company has staggered its quitting times to ease traffic congestion; the new facility would not change the character of the community; and approval of the development district and certificate would not affect taxes on some Ex-Cell-O facilities in the city which amount to some $50,000 a year for Walled

The bottom line, he said, is that Walled Lake will receive additional taxes — approximately $16,800 a year for the city alone without demands for municipal services.

Several city officials have raised questions concerning the company's request and have suggested that Ex-Cell-O might consider financing the new building under the city's economic development district designation. Councilman Tom Brookover, a prime mover behind adoption of the EDC ordinance, said that utilization of the income tax exempt revenue financing through the EDC would not cost the city anything, while Ex-Cell-O's proposal would cost the city, county and schools half of the property taxes generated by the new struc-

development corporation (EDC)

instead of seeking the industrial

He also has noted that, if Ex-Cell-O's entire 44-acre site is designated as an industrial development district, company officials may come back to the city in several years to request a tax break for renovation of two buildings that were constructed in

Once the company's entire site is designated as an industrial development district, Brookover said, it is possible that, even if the city opposes the issuance of additional certificates, those requests could be approved by state tax and commerce officials.

The councilman also has noted that Ex-Cell-O may decide to build the new facility, even if the city doesn't go along with the request for the tax break.

While we share Brookover's concern that approval of the entire site as an industrial development district may give Ex-Cell-O a "foot in the door" on subsequent requests, we feel that the council should attempt to reach a compromise with the company, which now has five buildings and 410 employees at its Walled Lake

One solution may be to nail company officials down on an exact site for the new building and designating only that property as the industrial development district. If that is done, company officials would have to seek industrial district designation for any additional projects.

While it is possible that Ex-Cell-O will build the new facility, even if it does not receive the development district approval, we would like to note that Walled Lake commons, developers of the proposed Kmart shopping center that is seeking EDC bonds, also has been rather vague as to whether they would build in Walled Lake without the income tax exempt financing. If that issue did not matter to city officials relative to Walled Lake Commons' request, it should not be an issue for Ex-Cell-O.

The Ex-Cell-O Corporation has made a commitment to Walled Lake by building five company facilities in the city over a 21-year period. They also have stated that Walled Lake is their first choice for the administration building.

We believe the city should reward its long-time corporate resident with a commitment to help Ex-Cell-O — and Walled Lake — grow.

Movie theater advertising?

GOOD ...

From an advertiser's viewpoint, it makes good sense to run my ads for The Tux Shop at the theater. For my business, I am trying to reach an audience between the ages of 17 and 25, and 75 percent of the people who attend movies fall within that range.

According to statistics, 50 percent of the people who see my ads at movies will remember them one month after they've been there. For my ad dollar, I have the undivided attention of the audience I want to reach. Another advantage for me as an advertiser is that I use the theater in my trading area, and no other competitor can advertise at that theater. Theater advertising, I think, is a cut above the commercials you see on television. Theater ads have to be entertaining. Spots range from 10 to 60 seconds, so we have to get our message across in a creative way. And only very selective advertisers use the theater. We don't want to get the same image people have about television

But I think the most important point about advertising in movies is that it helps maintain reasonable ticket prices for consumers.

On a lot of first-run movies, theaters will only make 10 percent profit from tickets while the distributor takes 90 percent. The theater owner relies on concession stand sales, and advertisers like myself, for his profits.

In this way, he is able to keep ticket prices from rising astronomically, and this, of course, is a direct benefit to the movie goer.

But nowadays, it seems a lot of theaters are skipping the preliminaries and are just running the movie. But what is more aggravating is that some theaters run commercial messages prior to the movie.

If I wanted to see commercials, I would stay home and watch television for free.

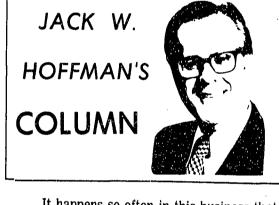

Now if I go to a movie and see commercials, I get up and get some popcorn or candy or go to the restroom. I suggest others do the same.

First off, I want all readers of this column to keep this information to themselves. If this news should get out, there may be a crime wave in Novi and I certainly do not want to be responsible for that. I am about to give out one of the secrets used by the commercial kings at the Twelve Oaks Palace to catch shoplifters. They watch you while you get dressed. And un-

So if you should forget to take off a couple of pairs of pants and try walking out of a store with four pairs of pants on, they will have seen you putting them all on and will throw you in jail for a few

That, anyway, is the rationale behind this apparently acceptable form of peeping-tomism (peeperism, peeping tomishness?). So one should not be angry at the idea of Big Brother looking over your shoulder and back and other more private sections in the name of justice.

There I go again, showing the chauvinist in me I mean, I don't even know if it is Big Brother or not. It could be Big Sister, you know, who watches me while I try on that pair of Johnny Miller slacks. Now, don't get me wrong. I don't really mind being watched while I get dressed. My mother used to do it all the time when I was a youngster and, though I wasn't even aware of the Constitution at iect to is the formality and secrecy of the whole setup. I mean, how many people even realize there is someone up there watching. And if they do realize that, they still have no idea who that person Perhaps a better way to go about it would be to that point in my life, even if I had been, I wouldn't have raised any strong objections. No, what I ob-introduce the man or woman employed as a peeper to the person getting dressed before he or she enters the dressing room. "Hello." the voice could boom out from the ceiling, "I'm Harold Binglebaum and I will be watching you as you try on that pair of striped pants. I must say, however, that you would be much better off matching checks with that shirt, And I might add that if you lost a couple pounds you could probably fit into a 32. Again, good wishes." I wouldn't mind that so much, I wouldn't think.

At least then I would know that Harold Binglebaum knows how to match clothes and cares about my diet. But as it is, I don't know a thing about who is watching me. I don't know if it is even a man or a woman. Or whether I even merit watching. If it is a fellow in charge of watching both the female and male dressing rooms, why, I might not even get so much as a once-over glance.

For example, I was in one of the stores last week buying clothes and when I entered the dressing. rooms, some little high-pitched buzzer began bleeping. "He looks like he could be one of those darn shoplifters," it seemed to say. Now I don't know whether that bleeping was some sort of sign I was being watched or not, but I gave a dirty look up at a hole in the ceiling and the dang thing started

I suppose I should take some of the blame Some people naturally look like professors, others like movie stars, others like quarterbacks. I happen to look like the sort of guy who might get a kick out of walking out of a store with $300 worth of clothes without first stopping at the checkout counter. So naturally they give me a bleeping good

I don't know what can be done about this situation and I must state that not all of the stores use this Big Brother surveillance. I called up the head of surveillance of the mall to find out which stores used it, but a public relations type returned my call to tell me the surveillance head couldn't talk to me. And she said she didn't know the answer to my question. The old "you can't get there from here"

So all I can say is keep this in mind the next time you're shopping at the mail — and wear clean

Ron Ford of Novi caught fire at the plate for the Detroit Caesars over the weekend and pumped his batting average up 21 points to .681, tops on the team. His efforts earned him player-ofthe-week honors in the American Professional Slo-Pitch League.

The 23-year-old power-hitting outfielder belted 14 hits in 16 at-bats, helping the Caesars to a split of their fourgame series with Trenton. Ford had four home runs and 13

RBI's during that time, hiking his league-leading totals in those departments to 50 and 124. Rick Trudeau of Walled Lake, meanwhile, pushed his batting average up 14 points with a 9-for-14 performance, including five RBI's. New short-term, high return Money Market Certificates.

Now you have the opportunity to buy NBD's new six-month Money Market Certificates that pay a high interest rate, equal to the latest average auction rate for 6-month U.S. Treasury Bills. Certificates are available in any dollar amount of \$10,000 or over. The current annual rate for six-month Treasury Bills is 7.497 per cent. By comparison, the maximum annual rate currently available to commercial bank customers for periods from 90 days to six months is $5\frac{1}{2}$ %.

NBD will charge no fees. At the end of six months, NBD will automatically renew if you wish at the then-applicable

The annual interest rate will be set at the time of purchase and remain constant for the six-month period. Your funds at NBD will be insured up to $40,000. Should you decide to withdraw money before the end of the six-month period, federal regulation requires that a substantial interest penalty be assessed. For your added convenience, NBD has a Money Market Hotline – 225-2700 – that quotes current Treasury Bill interest rates 24 hours a day.

New 7³/₄%, eight-year Time Investment Certificates.

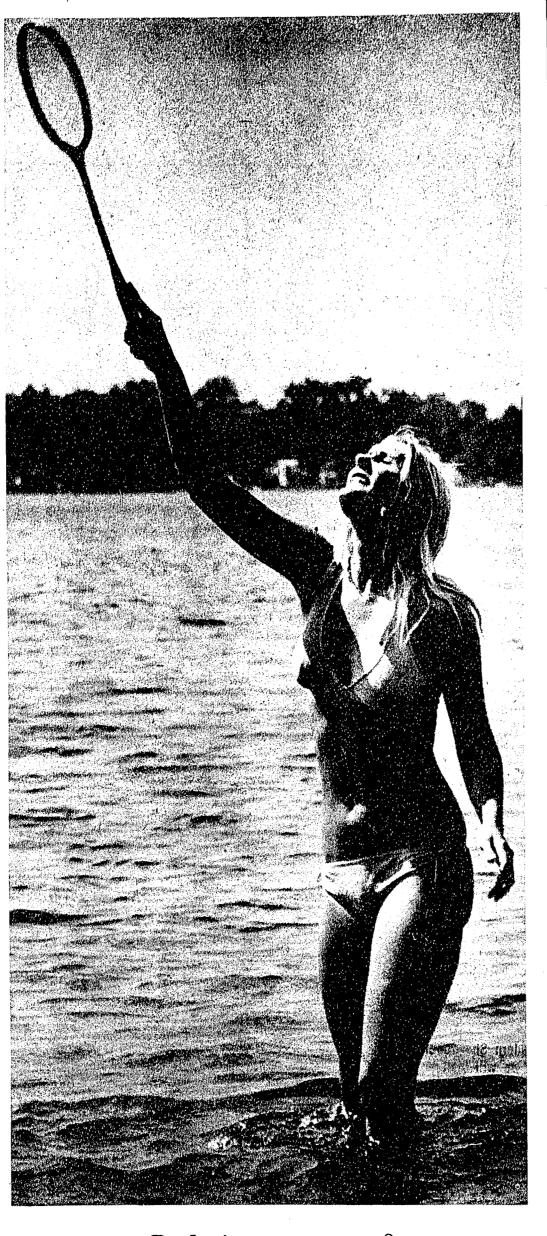

Also available now are these new NBD Time Investment Certificates. They'll be offered for denominations of $1,000 or more. The interest is computed from day of deposit and compounded quarterly. For a growing number, the backyard pool is a vacation land at home, especially for families that can't get away in the summer. "More and more pools are being built.

They are becoming a more accepted way of life," says John Austin, a Howell pool builder. The pool industry, Austin says, is only about 20, 25 years old. But in the last 10 years significant engineering advances have been made, so that a pool requires less maintenance, primarily due to better

An inground pool may cost from 3,500 to $15,000. An above ground pool costs less, depending upon the type and size.

There was a time when inground pools were made exclusively of concrete. Now, one may opt for a vinyl pool, with pre-formed structural backing and a vinyl covering. The vinyl is smooth, non-porous, stain resistant and can be patched by the pool owner with relative ease.

Austin compares the purchase of a pool to puchase of a car. You even have your choice of options. But a pool, he maintains, is a bet-

"You might spend $6,000 or $7,000 for a car," Austin said, "and it will be obsolete in five years. A pool is a more permanent type recreation costs, the pool "is not that expensive." He notes, for example, that a person might pay $10,000 to $30,000 for a motor home and use it infrequently, whereas about tops for a pool is $15,000 and a family uses it much

Buying a pool isn't the end to expense, however. The pool must be maintained regularly. And, as one pool owner noted, it can be a headache.

First, there is the expense of filling the pool. Figure about $12 per 1,000 gallons. If you have a 30,000-gallon pool, that's $360. You don't have to fill the pool every year, although some do. You may have a private business truck in the water. But you also may fill the pool from your water tap, which means a bigger water bill if you are serviced by a central water system, or a bigger electrical bill and wear and tear on the pump if you have your own

Chlorine must be added, to kill bacteria, to control algae and to destroy organic matter. An algaecide is needed. Muriatic acid is needed to assure the proper chemical balance in the pool and healthy swimming

The filtering system should operate more often during a 24-hour period than it is off, and 24-hour operation is encouraged. This means electrical expense.

Another cost might emerge on your tax bill. An inground pool adds value to a home, whereas an above-ground pool normally does not, because it is not considered a permanent

The pool must be winterized. The normal approach is to drop the water level about 12 inches, drain the filter, heater and pump, so they don't freeze, and perhaps the lines, depending upon the type of pool you have. No one likes to pull maintenance on the backyard pool. But most people accept it as part of owning — and enjoying — one.

Self-determination key in medical decisions

Doctor hero worship, a love affair with frightening area of prolonging dying," Dr. Benmachines and "bumper sticker philosophy" have made Americans forget they know as much as

"Moral issues surrounding such decisions as whether to refuse or receive treatment are not the exclusive property of medical professionals," says Michigan State University philosophy professor Martin Benjamin.

Dr. Benjamin, an ethics specialist, told paricipants at MSU's annual College Week that Americans have actually surrendered some of their self-determination rights by not thinking through such oversimplified slogans as "Right to Die,' "Death with Dignity" and "best health care

"Father Knows Best" is the common attitude toward doctors, added East Lansing surgeon Dan English. "Only 10 to 20 percent of people seeking a doctor really need one," he told the College Week

"Self-determination is becoming increasingly important in an age where miracle drugs, machines and techniques have put medicine on a fine line between prolonging living and a more tually involve only a patient's religious and personal values. "Whether a cancer patient wants treatment that will give him a longer, but more painful life or a shorter pain-free life depends on his own goals."

He said emotional association of "right to die" and similar phrases with mercy killing keeps some people from understanding the nature of the Medical Treatment Decision Act now in the Michigan Legislature

The proposed bill, similar to others currently under debate in 32 states, would provide that all competent adults have the right to accept or reject medical treatment and appoint an agent to act for them in case they become incapable of decision "Provisions of the bill are based on the right of privacy and merely extend the rights people already have in common law," Dr. Benjamin He pointed out that "living wills" have legal standing only in California and that hospital "no code" policies (no emergency treatment for the dying) are not based on patients' wishes.

Both Dr. Benjamin and Dr. English said that without standard guides it was difficult for a doctor. to know a patient's values today because mobility, make personal contacts too rare.

"Fewer than 25 percent of Americans have a family doctor they know well," Dr. English said. The surgeon added that Americans also don't take advantage of all the health information publicly available, seek out doctors then passively do everything they say. "Our culture is so technology-oriented that both patients and doctors depend on lab slips and X-ray reports to get a sense of sureness — even hough the error rate in good laboratories can run up to 10 percent on even the simplest tests." Dr. English added that the American value

The area is fast becoming a hub of international visitors. Some of those visitors are planned for, while others, just passing through, find a welcome awaiting them in scattered homes. At any rate, their visits lend a bit of excitement and a change of pace to the summer months. Take Joan Daley, Carol Smith, Carol Bauer, Julie Gahman, and Cindy Hoops, for example.

The Novi ladies and their families have opened their homes on two different occasions to touring musical groups. They helped house a Danish choral group; more recently, several young members of the Hague Youth Symphony. More than likely they will host musicians from a West German orchestra due here in August.

Most are members of the Novi Foundation for the Performing Arts, and as such, are called, sometimes at the last minute, asking if there is a spare bed available for a young musician. "It's a fun thing to do," claimed Mrs. Hoops. "A lot of the arrangements are last minute and a micro-wave oven is a lifesaver," she

The guests, appearing in concerts throughout the Detroit-Metro area, are usually taken on sightseeing trips during their stay by the host families. They are provided with meals and transported from concert to concert by their hosts.

"It really isn't all that involved although it does take a little time," Mrs. Hoops pointed out. "If you get really into it, it would be possible to have ongoing summer guests.'

Problems do arise occasionally as evidenced when the Hague Youth Symphony Orchestra was visiting the area. Arriving over the Fourth of July, all their instruments were lost at the airport.

Not only the instruments, but the music stands as well, were lost. "We managed to procure 85 music stands from Grinnell's, loaned to the kids for the entire two-week period," Cindy said. "But their poor conductor was about going out of his mind. He wanted us to call in the F.B.I. to find the truck," she laughed.

Such anxious moments don't always occur and sometimes the distance traveled to get the kids to their concerts seems a bit far, Cindy pointed out. "But, when you hear the kids play or sing, whether it be on a beach, in a church or a gym, it's really worthwhile."

Sister Rosario (Rose) Ware, the principal of a boarding school in Tipperary, has been with the Wares for a month. Claiming the area is very similar to Ireland, she and the Wares have journeyed to the tip of Michigan — Copper Harbor. "It was lovely, lovely, and not one drop of rain in the whole while," said Johanna Ware, herself endowed with a super Irish brogue.

Our discussion led to the ongoing war in Ireland. The often controversy-laced commentary received in the United States leaves most of us bewildered.

Johanna, of course is well versed.

Her first suggestion to understanding is to read Leon Uris' "Trinity." "You know, he's neither Catholic nor Protestant — just a good, Jewish boy who put much time, energy, and research into the book. He understands the situation as it really is," she says.

Fun at the library

All eyes are on Wixom resident Carole Hill who led off a series of four special programs Friday for elementary aged children at the Wixom Public Library. Held in conjunction with the summer reading program conducted by the library, Mrs. Hill led the children in an enthusiastic sing-a-long session with accompaniment supplied on her ukelele. The children later dipped into art supplies as they were directed through drawing to music from "outer space." A puppet show, movies and special concluding party are planned for the children to stimulate their interest in reading.

Right now, it is on a gigantic stage at Notre Dame University in South Bend, Indiana. She is Michigan's representative in the nationwide Juvenile Miss Majorette of America competitions at the Ameican Youth on Parade pageant. Shannon won the right to twirl, model, and fancy

'Crimson Brigade' off to Notre Dame

tle in April. A grueling procedure for any youngster, Shannon also had a series of interviews to pass before gaining her crown. Competing in baton twirling and related activities since she was six. Shannon has racked shelves of trophies, ribbons, jeweled tiaras, and strut in the nationals by capturing the Michigan ti-silver serving pieces proclaiming her a champion in her age group. A young lady with a penchant for activity, the petite blond with large, flashing smile is also into gymnastics, tap dancing, and has time for singing along the way. Entered in the AYOP pageant last year, Shannon walked off as national open champion drum majorette and national open solo twirl champion in 1975. This year's goal is to take the national-world solo championships Reaching for a second title, Shannon, along with her mother and coach. Vikki Lang, will journey to Ashville, North Carolina. On the heels of the AYOP competitions, she will also represent her state in the Little Miss Majorette of America competitions. That title requires not only modeling, strutting, military strut and twirling abilities, but a threeminute talent routine as well. Her skill with the baton has also found Shannon listed in the 1977 and 1978 editions of "Who's Who in Baton Twirling."

Farmington in the year 2000? Perhaps recall is one of the ways to forecast. Instead of looking ahead 22 years, let's take a look back 22-to see where we were. That puts me at the age of 10, when I spent most of my time in a treehouse where Drakeshire Apartments now grace the land. Playing in the woods was the daily summer routine for kids in my neighborhood with an occasional foray into town. Sometimes we parked our bikes on the southwestern corner of Grand River and Farmington Road to get an ice cream cone at the drugstore there. The owner. Eddie Mosher, was the kind of guy who plopped another scoop of vanilla on your cone when you'd licked down to the rim. One day we pedaled into town to discover that the drugstore had folded. So much for nice Looking back, I guess that's when I discovered that business in Farmington was changing. The building of Bel-Aire, Alta Loma, and Warner Farms subdivisions in the early '50s had a lot to do with that.

THE MID-'50s were a period of transition for the town. The library was located in the Masonic Temple, where Mrs. Droege could find anything to interest a 10-year-old. On rainy Saturdays, the Civic Theater was crammed with all the new ex-Detroit kids in town. I saw "The Swiss Family Robinson" three times, snuggled into a bal-

When the familyowned dairy burned in the late '60s the secret of those milkshakes died-at least I've never tasted a duplication.

KAREN PILCHAK

A garbage dump, part of the urban sprawl, or a congested, but basically unchanged town are the projections for Farmington in the year 2000, according to some of its current residents.

As Farmington celebrates its 14th annual Founders Day Festival, residents were asked to ponder the area's future in the 21st century. Most of those quizzed weren't enthusiastic.

"The open fields will all be built in with offices, businesses, and new subdivisions," responded

JANICE SCHRIBER became Janice Schriber Fredericks this spring in a ceremony conducted in Nardin Park Methodist Church.

She was engaged for about a year before that to James Fredericks, also of Farmington Hills, while she was attending Eastern Michigan University. She was majoring in fashion merchandis-

HOLLY ANN SCHMIDT declined to ride in this year's Founder's Festival parade because that is the day of her wedding to Larry Lichtman, a young man she has dated since they both attended North Farmington High School.

She is the only one of the Farmington queens who went on to win the Miss Michigan contest, and spent a good deal of her time she said, "doing Miss Michigan things." Her reign, which required her presence at such things as parades, conventions, and benefits throughout the state, ended June
