Showing how it's done

"Step right up, folks. There's nothing to it." That was the pitch of carnival worker Bill Green at the Paul Bunyan Days Festival sponsored by the Union Lake Jaycees as he attempted to persuade onlookers to demonstrate their prowess in the hammer-swinging booth. And just to show how easy it really is to ring the bell atop the pole, Green took the hammer in hand and proceeded to do just that. The Jaycees reported another successful Paul Bunyan Days Festival with residents flocking to the fairgrounds throughout the four-day event. Pictures of the winners of the annual "most beautiful baby" contest can be found on Page 2-D.

Commerce may fire building contractor

By DAVID RAY

The Commerce Township Board may fire the general contractor for the community center construction, if sufficient progress isn't made on the structure by August 15.

At a special meeting Monday night, board members heard a report from Township Environmentalist Dan Shapiro that the contractor, Lakewood Construction Company, owes more than $10,000 to sub-contractors; failed to pay a utility bill, prompting Consumers Power Company to threaten to discontinue service; failed to meet the contractual deadline for completion of the structure; and failed to contact township officials who sought an explanation on the problems.

A motion to give Lakewood seven days' notice that its contract with the township would be terminated was tabled by the board in order to give Supervisor Robert Long, who returned from vacation Monday, a chance to try to resolve the problems.

Trustee John Jack said it appeared that the contractor has gone out of business and probably doesn't intend to finish the community center, located in the 80-acre Richardson Park at Oakley Park and Newton roads.

However, Long said he hoped to contact Lakewood in an effort to avoid any problems in finding a new contractor since the project is being financed by federal Community Development Act grants. Federal regulations require hiring certain eligible contractors and payment of specified wages, the supervisor added.

Hopefully, Long said, some arrangment can be made with Lakewood so the sub-contractors can finish the work they've started.

According to Shapiro, construction problems at the center first came to the township's attention on July 18 when the Lakeland Building Supply Company notified Commerce officials that the contractor owed the firm some $1,700.

Later that day, Shapiro and Assessor Wynn Berry visited the construction site and found a sub-contractor performing unauthorized ceiling work.

Straub, Van Dine and Dziuman, the township's architects for the project, met with Commerce officials July 18 to discuss the lack of progress on the job and the unauthorized work, and assured the township that it was not responsible for the ceiling, Shapiro said.

On July 19, the township was informed by Consumers Power that utility service to the center would be discontinued because the contractor had failed to pay the bills. Lakewood, under its contract with the township, was responsible for paying utility bills, Shapiro said.

The township also received inquiries from the International Building Supply Company, Haggerty Lumber and several sub-contractors on why they hadn't been paid for materials or labor, he added.

The architects sent a letter to Lakewood July 18, stating that progress on the center was "very unsatisfactory" and asking the contractor to contact them or the township to resolve the problems. Failure to do so, the architects said, could lead to termination of the contract.

Township officials also have contacted the bond company that insured completion of the project and were told

EDC reviewing Kmart proposal

The Walled Lake Economic Development Corporation (EDC) board of directors tonight will begin its review of an application from the Walled Lake Commons for approval of income tax exempt financing, through the issuance of revenue bonds, for the construction of the proposed Kmart shopping center at Pontiac Trail and West Maple Road.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the City Council chambers.

Walled Lake Commons, developers of the 109,000-square-foot shopping center, has applied for the tax exempt financing, and Stuart Frankel, a partner in the firm, brought the EDC concept to the attention of city officials in May.

Under an outline prepared by Robert Cooper, Frankel's attorney, the corporation's board may adopt a resolution of intent, including a memorandum of agreement, to establish the public purpose for eventual issuance of the bonds. The documents also set a date after which Walled Lake Commons may proceed with contruction.

The EDC board also must adopt resolutions requesting the appointment of two additional directors for the specific project and designating the project area, which also recommends the project district area.

Cooper explained the project application procedures to the board July 25 at its first meeting, according to Councilman Tom Brookover, but Frankel did not make a presentation on Walled Lake Commons' application.

The directors last week elected officers, adopted proposed by-laws for the corporation prepared by Cooper, and asked city officials to check on liability insurance coverage for the board.

Named as president and chairperson of the EDC board was Cameron Rose, a Walled Lake businessman, while Arnold Wilcox was selected as vice-president. Other officers are Patricia Hoppe, secretary, and Erskine Lightfoot, treasurer.

Also serving as directors are Ed Carey, Harry Carlson, Paul Hamilton, Dick Melvin and Bruce Reeves.

Once the board initiates action on the application, the City Council must appoint the two additional directors, hold a public hearing to designate the project area and project district area, and decide whether to create a project district citizens' council of up to 18 members.

The EDC board then may recommend approval of the project plan, after studying the proposal to determine its impacts on the district area. The Plan Commission also reviews the plan and makes a recommendation to the council.

The council must hold a second public hearing on the project plan before approval. At that point, the EDC board may approve a resolution for the issuance of bonds and may, under certain circumstances, request an election.

Documents are then prepared for the lease agreement, leading to the sale of the bonds to a lending institution.

Cooper has said it is up to the applicant to negotiate the terms on the loan with the lending institution.

Under the EDC format, Frankel has said, the applicant is able to secure a loan at a two- to two-and-a-half percent lower interest rate than regular commercial rates because the lending institution gets a break on income tax it must pay on the interest.

Noting Walled Lake's high property tax rates, the developer said the lower interest costs could provide an incentive for businesses to build or expand in the city.

There is no property tax abatement for successful applicants, he said, and no liability to the city or EDC, if a borrower goes out of business.

Frankel has said his firm hopes to begin contruction on the project before winter.

Six candidates eye trustee posts

Six candidates are vying for the Republican Party nomination for two trustee posts in Commerce Township's August 8 primary election.

Since there are no Democrats running for trustee — or any other township office, for that matter — the primary winners are just about assured of election in November, unless a successful write-in campaign is waged by someone.

In order for a Democrat to win a spot on the November general election ballot, the candidate would have to receive write-in ballots totalling 15-percent of the number of votes cast for the top Democratic vote-getter for a state, county or local office in the township primary.

As an example, if George Montgomery, who is unopposed for the Democratic nomination for county commissioner, is the Democrat with the most primary votes in Commerce and receives 2,000 ballots, a write-in candidate would need 300 votes to qualify for the November 7 election.

Republican write-in candidates would have to receive more votes than any of the office seekers they oppose who are listed on the ballot in order to win a GOP nomination.

Seeking the GOP nominations for trustee for a two-year term are:

—Robert D. Ackerson, 45, of 4907 Whitlow, Union Lake, chairperson of the Commerce Township Road Study Committee and office manager of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance office in Detroit, who is making his first bid for public office;

—Paul Collom, 36, of 2140 Sunnybrook, Milford, a member of the township Parks and Recreation Committee and a partner in the Tri-All Building Company, who was unsuccessful in a 1974 bid for a Republican trustee nomination;

—Bruce T. Enfield, 50, of 1100 Laura Lane, Walled Lake, chairperson of the township Parks and Recreation Committee and an engineer for the Ford Motor Company;

Marilyn Fraczek, 40, of 2255 Darnell, Walled Lake, an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for township treasurer in 1974 and 1976, the only Wolverine Lake Village resident in the race, and office manager of the Forex Corporation in Walled Lake;

—Kenneth K. Hausauer, 52, of 2069 Alsup, Union Lake, an incumbent trustee who won election in 1974 as a Democrat after making an unsuccessful try for a GOP trustee nomination in 1972 and an engineering supervisor at GMC Truck and Coach; and —Jack Tapscott, 52, of 3237 Glen Iris Drive, Milford, a retired Detroit Police detective sergeant who now works for West Bloomfield Township's Building Department and a first-time candidate for public office.

Trustee John Jack, a Democrat, is not seeking a second term on the township board.

Commerce's three full time elected officials — Supervisor Robert Long, Clerk Robert McGee and Treasurer Patrick Dohany, all Republicans — are unopposed in both the primary and general elections.

The only other primary contest in Commerce is for the two-year post of constable where incumbent Reynold Lanni, who won election as a write-in candidate two years ago, is being challenged by Frank J. Dennis for the GOP nod.

In interviews with The News and position statements submitted to this newspaper, all of the trustee candidates: agreed that Commerce should become a charter township in order to protect its boundaries and said they would ask for voter approval of any possible tax increase, although a charter township board may levy up to five mills without an election; felt the township should continue with planning for the super sewer system, although local sewers aren't needed at this time; and said that the township master plan and zoning ordinance are sufficient to deal with growth, without adoption of a growth limitation ordinance.

On the issue of alternatives to the cancelled M-275 freeway, five of the candidates — Ackerson, Collom, Enfield, Hausauer and Tapscott — said they support the McConnell proposal that calls for construction of a four-lane, divided, landscaped, limited access boulevard along Haggerty, from I-96 in Novi to about Pontiac Trail, where it would veer northwesterly along the original M-275 alignment to M-59 in White Lake.

Mrs. Fraczek said she was not familiar with the alternatives, but conceded that, "as the community grows, we probably will need a north-south (state) trunkline. I'm basically opposed to a freeway, though."

All of the candidates said there is a need for an emergency medical services (EMS) program and agreed that it would be more economically feasible for the township to enter into an agreement with the Fleet Ambulance Service for its proposed advanced life support system at a cost of $24,000 as opposed to assigning EMS duties to the Fire Department at an estimated expense of some $250,000.

They added, however, that the township should establish a committee to study creation of an EMS unit in the Fire Department, and said that firemen should be trained, if they wish, for advanced first aid or basic emergency medical technician status.

Wixom councilman seeks Ford gift

Wixom City Councilman Dennis Andrews thinks it would be a nice gesture on the part of Ford Motor Company if that corporation donated $125,000 to the city to help build a park.

Andrews first approached Ford Public Relations Representative Mark Scarr over a month ago with his proposal, but as yet Ford officials have done nothing concerning the requested donation.

"I think we need to improve our relations with Ford," said Andrews, "and this is one way to do it. They've donated money in this fashion to other cities where they operate huge plants, and it shouldn't be any different with us."

Ford officials might not be so quick to donate $125,000 or any lump sum to the city of Wixom until the two can figure out a settlement in the ongoing tax litigation case. The city of Wixom and Ford Motor Company disagree on the city's assessed value of the Ford plant on Wixom Road. Some estimates for the difference in tax evaluation are given at $8 million, while other estimates are much higher. Nobody on either side will admit to any definite dollar figure on the difference of the valued property.

Wixom city officials had earlier planned to build a $170,000 pavilion for the Wixom City Park behind the VFW hall on Loon Lake Road, but those plans were shelved in late June. The city currently has $149,000 from the 1978-79 and previous community development block grants for park improvements, but the money will be spent on a smaller rustic building, tot lots, tennis courts, and a new softball field among other improvements.

Andrews stated that a donation from Ford would be a big boost in the city's bid to build its pavilion.

Assitant to the Mayor Steve Bonczek stated that if the city could obtain the funds, the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation Funds, in cooperation with the Department of Natural Resources, might come up with a matching figure.

But so far Ford officials have not followed up on Andrews' proposal.

Wixom eyes HUD okay

Wixom Assistant to the Mayor Steve Bonczek feels that final HUD approval for the city's fourth year community development block grant is only a matter of time after meeting with HUD representatives last week.

Bonczek met with HUD grant representative Jean Meyers last Thursday to discuss the city's progress in fulfilling HUD's requirements for final $160,000 block grant approval.

"I presented our comprehensive package and I believe she was very impressed," said Bonczek. "There should be no problem in getting the final approval but I can't say anything official until we hear from HUD."

The Wixom fourth year grant was temporarily approved more than a month ago, but the temporary approval carried with it several requirements the city must enact within sixty days to receive final approval. Among the requirements needing action was 1) pass a fair housing ordinance, 2) reprogram senior housing acquisition funds, 3) begin a housing rehabilitation program, 4) begin park and road improvements, 5) initiate low-cost housing within the city, and 6) adopt a section 3 affirmative action plan for small businesses.

In recent weeks Bonczek has worked with city officials in meeting all six HUD requirements, and feels the grant will soon be approved.

"We'll hopefully receive a letter sometime this week," he said.

The city has allocated $74,000 of its 1978-79 grant for park improvements, and another $75,000 for housing rehabilitation loans and grants.

Sign program receives funds

A proposal by the Board of Oakland County Road Commissioners to upgrade signs on the 1,481 miles of urban area roads has been approved for federal funding.

Chairman John R. Gnau, Jr., announced that the Federal Highway Administration has approved $203,000 for the project. Total cost is estimated at $290,200. He said the road commission would contribute $87,000.

"We sought this project in an effort to increase motorists' safety which is our number one top priority," commented Gnau. "Projects of this sort are a top priority in our Risk Management Program. The area involved represents 60.5 percent of our 2,448 miles of country roads and is the area with the greatest volume of traffic per mile.

Gnau said examples of the type of projects include new railroad crossing signs at 278 locations and new lane transition signs at 263 locations. An objective of the two-year project is to replace all obsolete and worn out signs.

"Improved signing at such high risk points along the roadway should help reduce accidents," continued Gnau.

Tax proposal on primary ballot

Allocation plan may aid schools

By DAVID RAY

The Walled Lake Schools could gain a financial benefit by voter approval of an Oakland County fixed tax allocation proposal that will appear on the August 8 primary ballot.

If the county-wide proposal to limit separate tax allocation millage rates is approved, the Board of Education could levy an additional 1.41 mills ($1.41 for each $1,000 of state equalized valuation), which would generate new tax revenues of some $560,000, based on the district's state equalized valuation of approximately $402 million.

Superintendent Dr. Don Sheldon was unavailable for comment earlier this week as to whether the board or administration have discussed the possibility of levying the new millage.

Assistant Superintendent Roland Langerman, who just returned from vacation, said he was unaware of any discussions on the county proposal and added that he thought the issue was going to be listed on the November general election ballot.

The proposal that will appear on next week's ballot asks:

"Shall separate tax limitations be established for an indefinite period, or until altered by the voters of the county, for the County of Oakland and the townships and school districts within the county, the aggregate of which shall not exceed 16.46 mills as follows: County of Oakland, 5.26 mills; townships, 1.41 mills; intermediate school districts, .25 mill; and school districts... 9.54 mills?"

At present, the county is limited under state law to a total tax rate of 15 mills, which may be levied without a vote, that is distributed to the county, townships and schools by the Tax Allocation Board.

Under the present format, the Tax Allocation Board has assigned 5.23 mills to the county; .23 mill to the intermediate schools; 1.01 to 1.41 mills for townships; and 8.13 to 9.54 mills for local school districts.

According to James Brennan, director of the county's Office of Management and Budget, state law allows counties to levy up to 18 mills under a fixed millage format.

He emphasized that the county, townships and school districts do not have to levy all of the millage designated in the tax limitation proposal.

The proposal on the primary ballot could raise millage rates to 16.46 mills basically by assigning the 1.41 mills to townships and giving all local school districts a maximum of 9.54 mills.

For cities, which levy their own millage, the total county fixed millage would be limited to 15.05 mills.

And, of course, voters in townships and school districts may approve additional operating and special use millages.

"The proposal does not cut taxes," county officials said in a statement on the fixed millage. "It does not raise taxes. It simply fixes a limit, or ceiling, on the rate that can be levied."

Advantages of the plan, county officials said, include:

—tax rates would be set by elected representatives of the people. At the county level, for example, the Board of Commissioners and the County Executive would be responsible for the county tax rate. Presently, tax rates are set by the Tax Allocation Board which is not elected;

—fixed millage would allow local units of government to plan ahead. Presently, intelligent planning is difficult because the local units of government cannot be sure what their tax rate will be from one year to the next;

—the annual Tax Allocation Board meetings cost about $6,500 a year which would be saved since the board would be abolished; and —another $15,000 would be saved by the county in costs associated with the preparation of its annual allocation budget.

Local units of government that share in the county's revenue pie also would be spared the expense of preparing an allocation budget.

Harry Carlson, Walled Lake's assistant superintendent for business, said that he is "aware of the proposal," but added that the district officials have been "very noncommittal."

Carlson noted that school districts which serve cities presently receive 9.54 mills from the county. If the county fixed millage plan is adopted, he said that districts that serve townships could benefit from the same millage rate.

The Walled Lake Schools now receive 8.13 mills from the county because several townships it serves receive the 1.41 mills from the allocation board.

"As I recall," Carson said, "this was an effort to equalize the millage that all local school districts receive."

As far as the expense of preparing an allocation budget, Carson said he tries to "dovetail that with our regular budget," although he added that it "takes a lot of time and effort. I don't think I could put a dollar figure on it, though."

An advantage of the proposal, he said, is that the school district will know how much it will receive from the county each year.

"That would help in planning," he added.

The Novi Community Schools, which serve the cities of Novi and Wixom, already receives 9.54 mills from the county allocation board and would not benefit from additional millage, according to Dr. William Barr, assistant superintendent.

Added millage from Novi Township to the schools will go up about one mill, Barr said, but that would happen anyway since the township will be annexed to the city.

Barr said that approval of the county proposal would "eliminate a cumbersome part of bureaucracy," especially since the allocation board hasn't changed its annual millage formula for several years.

"It would save us some time," he said, "but I can't put a dollar figure on it."

In the past, Barr and Superintendent Dr. Jerry Kratz have spent about half a day waiting to go before the tax board, he said, and "we probably have one person working on the allocation budget, typing it up for the board, for about a week."

Novi Schools officials also try to work the preparation of the allocation budget into their regular budget procedures, but Barr said one problem the district has faced is in trying to come up with the allocation budget by April when officials don't know how much they will receive from the county.

Kratz added that the Novi Board of Education is expected tomorrow night to take a stand on the county proposal. The administration will recommend an endorsement of the plan, he said.

Two Novi trustees have served on the eight-member Tax Allocation Board in the last two years.

Board Treasurer Joel Collieau, who served on the county panel last year, said he supports the fixed millage proposal, although he conceded that it is an "extremely complicated issue due to the (allocation board) procedure that was established long ago."

"I'd like to see the Tax Allocation Board abolished," he said. "It's a very expensive procedure for everyone concerned in time and budget preparations."

Collieau said that, while it is disturbing that millage rates could be increased for some county residents, the objective of the plan was to equalize the county millage distributed to local school districts.

"The county would be well served by passage of the issue," he said, noting that the proposal seems to go "hand-in-hand with the mood to limit taxes."

Commerce Supervisor Robert Long, whose township has received 1.41 mills from the county for the last three years, said the allocation procedure "for a long, long time has just been a matter of routine."

Although the preparation of an allocation budget for the township has involved "no great amount of work," the supervisor said he feels the limitation aspect of the proposal is "great."

County Commissioner Dennis Murphy (R-Novi) said the proposal "puts a maximum on (the millage rate) so we'd have to go back to the voters for approval of increases."

He emphasized, however, that government bodies don't have to levy the full amount of millage set in the fixed allocation plan.

As an example, Murphy noted that the county is currently levying 5.25 mills. And, if the Headlee state tax limitation amendment is approved in November, he added, the Board of Commissioners has indicated that it will reduce its millage to 5.06.

Inflation and higher state equalized valuation figures will help units of government adjust revenue sources in order to possibly reduce millage, Murphy said.

County Commissioner Robert McConnell (R-Farmington Hills) said he also supports the county proposal because it would "do away with the preparation of allocation budgets and the allocation board."

Walled Lake schools face deficit

The Walled Lake School Board has decided to proceed with plans to adopt a 1978-79 budget in which expenditures will exceed revenues by some $446,000.

That was the concensus reached by the school board at a special budget meeting last week to consider ways in which the proposed $446,000 deficit could be trimmed to a more acceptable level.

Specifically, the meeting was held to consider a list of cuts totalling some $314,750 proposed by Superintendent Dr. Don Sheldon to bring projected expenditures more in line with projected revenues.

After approximately two hours of discussion, however, the board decided that the proposed cutbacks would "hurt kids" and that the administration should proceed with plans for the adoption of a 1978-79 budget in which expenditures will exceed revenues by the $446,000 figure.

The budget is scheduled to be adopted at a public hearing on Monday, August 14, in School Administration Offices at 7 p.m.

In spite of the projected $446,000 deficit, the Walled Lake schools will be able to balance their 1978-79 budget with some $991,000 in general fund equity left over from the 1977-78 school year. State law prohibits adoption of a deficit budget.

The district had a general fund equity of approximately $1.1 million at the end of the 1976-77 school year. However, expenditures exceeded revenues by approximately $118,000 during the 1977-78 school year, trimming the general fund equity to its present level of approximately $991,000.

If the projection of a $446,000 deficit during the upcoming school year holds true, the general fund equity will have been further reduced to approximately $545,000 at the end of the 1978-79 school year — an amount considered dangerously below acceptable standards.

According to auditors, the district should maintain a general fund equity of approximately 10 percent of the overall budget. With a proposed budget of $19.7 million for 1978-79, the Walled Lake Schools would have to maintain a general fund equity of $1.9 million to meet the recommendation of the auditor.

Trustee Robert Cooper led the opposition to the cuts proposed by the administration at last week's board meeting.

Cooper noted that most of the proposed $315,000 worth of cutbacks involved materials even though some 85 percent of the district's budget goes into salary and fringe benefits. Cooper noted further that the district is projecting a decline in enrollment of some 135 students.

"All of the proposed cutbacks involve materials and yet we're labor intensive," commented Cooper. "I wonder if we're really attacking the right area in attempting to bring revenues and expenditures more in line.

"We're labor intensive and we're facing declining enrollment," he continued. "I think we're ultimately going to have to attack staff — both instructional and administrative, but this is not the year."

Cooper's observations were endorsed by Trustee Dr. Leo Wessinger who stated that the proposed cutbacks related to only 20 percent of the overall budget.

"We're nickel and dime-ing the budget without really attacking the major area which is salaries and fringe benefits," he said. "If we're really going to attack the budget, we should start looking at staff instead of materials for the kids."

Members of the school board were also critical of a proposed $22,000 increase from $58,000 to $80,000 for data processing.

The bulk of the increase can be attributed to implementation of a student records package.

Cooper stated that if he had a choice between spending money for a new roof and spending money for data processing, he would take the roof. "I'm saying that we should curtail the student records package," he added.

Cooper stated further that the number of students is decreasing and data processing costs are increasing. "Where are the savings?" he asked. "If we're saving administrative time with data processing, perhaps we don't need as many administrators. It looks to me that we haven't decreased any staff and may even have increased our staff. I just wonder if we may be gilding the lily.

"In times of a deficit budget and declining enrollment, I don't feel we should be expanding the program," he said.

Trustee Warren Williams said he did not oppose the student records package, but cautioned administrators that data processing can become a costly monster that can get away from you.

"Unless you're careful, you end up with all kinds of information which you don't really need and can't really use," he said.

Superintendent Dr. Don Sheldon asked for a two-week grace period before a final decision is made on the proposed data processing expenditure in the budget. He said the goal in implementing the student records package was more efficient utilization of staff by reduction of clerical responsibilities.

"I think that would occur," said the superintendent. "I don't feel it would be less expensive, but I do feel it would be more efficient."

Although the board ultimately decided not to adopt any of the proposed budget cuts, they directed the administration to attempt to curtail spending in 1978-79 by keeping a careful eye on all expenditures.

"I'm really not happy with deficit spending," stated Williams, "but I just don't see how we can cut the budget."

Board President Betty Campion stated that she couldn't go along with the cuts proposed by the administration because they take things away from kids.

"I would recommend that we balance the 1978-79 budget by taking $446,000 from the fund equity and then take a hardline approach on all expenditures," she said.

Local voters asked choice of M-275 alternatives

Voters in eight west Oakland County communities will be asked at the August 8 primary election whether they favor the construction of a north-south state trunkline road approximately along the originally proposed M-275 freeway route, to be built with state and federal funds.

The advisory question will appear on primary election ballots in Commerce (including Wolverine Lake Village), Novi, Walled Lake, Highland, Milford, White Lake, Springfield and Orchard Lake.

Six Chambers of Commerce from Oakland and Livingston counties last Wednesday sponsored a public forum on M-275 that saw some public officials and many area residents indicating support for the original freeway, which was cancelled by the Michigan State Highway Commission in January, 1977.

During the 2½-hour session which was attended by more than 200 persons, Mike Flajole, coordinator of the state highway department's M-275 study team, presented analyses of the two alternatives to the now dead freeway that are under review by the team.

One alternative, proposed by Oakland County Commissioner Robert McConnell, calls for the construction of a four-lane, divided, landscaped, limited access boulevard along Haggerty Road, from I-96 in Novi to about Pontiac Trail in Commerce, where it would veer northwesterly over the original M-275 alignment to M-59 in White Lake.

The study team has changed the plan to include six lanes, with the Haggerty Road portion most often running adjacent to the existing road instead of using Haggerty as part of the alignment.

Flajole said McConnell's alternative would cost an estimated $49 million and would displace 33 residential units, three businesses and two public or semi-public sites. He added that a major problem with the McConnell plan would be obtaining federal approvals to build the road through the Dodge Park Unit Five, although Flajole noted that the highway department and state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) have agreed on a replacement parcel for the park which already has been acquired by the state.

McConnell, who explained how he worked with local officials, especially the Commerce Township Road Study Committee, to come up with a compromise alternative, urged residents to vote "yes" on the advisory question.

Citing the 187,000 residents of the west Oakland area and the present 20,000 vehicles a day that travel Haggerty, the commissioner said a "yes" vote would "tell the highway commission that we are united and there is a need for a north-south trunkline in this area."

The other alternative under study by the department, proposed by the Citizens in Opposition to M-275 which led the fight to cancel the original freeway plans, calls for the construction of a limited access scenic drive along Haggerty, from 12 Mile Road to Union Lake Road where it would proceed north of Cooley Lake Road and then connect to Williams Lake Road to M-59. The proposal also calls for a connecting boulevard from Northwestern Highway to Haggerty along 14 Mile Road.

The Haggerty and Williams Lake segments of the drive would be divided, while the Union Lake Road section would be undivided.

Flajole said the study team has changed that plan to six lanes, with seven lanes in the Union Lake segment.

He added that the estimated cost of the Citizens in Opposition plan is some $68 million, with the displacement of 242 residential units, 60 businesses and one public site.

A major problem with that alternative, he added, is the legality of condemning enough land along the corridor to provide the semi-limited access.

Stephen Rosman, chairperson of the Citizens in Opposition and a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state representative in the 24th District in the August primary, said his group came up with the alternative because west Oakland needs a road to get its residents to and from work in Detroit and its northern suburbs instead of an inter-state freeway bypass route.

The last cost estimate for the 24-mile M-275 bypass route was about $69 million.

Rosman said the original freeway would have "devastated" the environment of west Oakland and described other alternatives to the cancelled project as "worse than the original."

According to Rosman, his organization's plan was designed to start at 12 Mile Road in order to serve the 12 Oaks Mall in Novi, while, at the same time, making sure that the trunkline doesn't connect to existing freeways which could result in urban sprawl and uncontrolled growth in west Oakland.

Further, he said that, while it may appear that the Citizens in Opposition plan would be more harmful to Lower Straits Lake, it actually could be a benefit because of troughing the road so that run-off goes into holding basins instead of the lake. Highway officials could use sand instead of salt for traction during the winter and also would be able to monitor pollution of the lake, he added.

As for Union Lake Village, Rosman said his group's alternative would alleviate traffic problems at Union Lake and Cooley Lake roads, although three businesses — which he and Flajole were unable to identify — would be eliminated.

After explaining the alternative, Rosman blasted the Oakland County Road Commission for its alleged neglect of west Oakland at a time when the agency is "putting out tax dollars down in Southfield" and near the Pontiac Silverdome.

Rosman described the advisory question as "nebulous and hard to understand." He said he was at a loss to explain what the election results could mean.

Rosman said he interpreted an affirmative vote on the advisory question to mean "yes we do have a problem and we want a road built, but that would include both alternatives."

Also addressing the public forum was John Grubba, managing director of the Oakland County Road Commission, who said that his agency still feels the original M-275 freeway provided the best design for a north-south trunkline in western Oakland County.

Grubba said that the installation of sewers generally has more impact on growth in an area than the construction of a freeway, and added that, even without M-275, growth in west Oakland is continuing. He said that the road commission staff expects to review subdivision plats for some 2,800 new residential lots along the freeway corridor this year.

The road commission director cited several advantages of freeways, including continuity with other trunklines, adequate capacity and "drivers know what to expect on a freeway because of similar design standards." Safety, energy consumption and getting trucks off of local roads were among the other benefits Grubba mentioned.

Three state legislators — Senator Kerry Kammer and Representatives Richard Fessler and Claude Trim — said they felt there is a need for a major north-south road in the area. Fessler and Trim also added that they were amazed and disappointed by the highway commission's cancellation of M-275 in January, 1977, especially since commission chairperson Peter B. Fletcher had been quoted in several newspapers as saying the decision on the controversial project would not be made that day.

Fessler, a West Bloomfield Republican, also renewed his battle with the commission over funds that have been earmarked for M-275 by the legislature.

The Lakes area lawmaker asked Fletcher, who was a panel member at the forum, where the funds from increased gas taxes had been spent. The gas tax law listed several highway projects that were supposed to be financed with the increased revenues, including M-275 and the Northwestern Highway extension, Fessler said.

Fletcher replied that higher road construction costs and demands for other kinds of transportation service have made it difficult for the commission and department to "build every mile of highway we ever had on the drawing board," and added that the gas tax increase has not gone up with inflation.

The commission chairperson also disputed Trim's and Fessler's claims that M-275 was cancelled without warning.

The four-member highway panel gave the freeway project "careful and prudent review," Fletcher said, including a special public hearing in October, 1976 that was held at Walled Lake Western High School at Fessler's request.

"We made it clear that we had reservations and second thoughts on freeway construction in general and this project in particular," he added.

Fletcher said the commission has recognized a need for some sort of north-south road in west Oakland, but added, "How do you best solve this kind of road problem, especially with the deep divisions we've seen in the community (over the type of facility that is favored)."

Fessler later indicated that cancellation of M-275 monies may have had something to do with a plan to use highway fund monies to finance Governor Milliken's transportation package.

Fletcher, a close advisor to Milliken, has repeatedly denied that the governor had any role in the cancellation.

He also told the audience that adoption of the Headlee tax limitation amendment or the more radical Tisch tax cut would impair highway construction programs in Michigan because of the limits they would place on generating revenues for the department.

In response to questions from the audience:

—Grubba said that local roads are insufficient to support additional traffic generated by any of the alternatives. He said improvements to local roads have been estimated at a cost of $30 to $40 million, although the county agency receives only $17 million a year with $8 million earmarked for construction; and

—Fletcher, asked what could be done to revive M-275, replied whimsically that area residents could pretend they were Rip Van Winkle, who had been asleep for two years, "and then maybe you can explain why you never appeared before the commission in support of M-275."

What does ballot question mean?

What does the advisory question on alternatives to the cancelled M-275 freeway mean?

The answer to that question depends on who you're talking to.

Adding his interpretation of the ballot wording last week was State Highway Commission Chairperson Peter B. Fletcher, an Ypsilanti Republican.

Fletcher said he's sure voters in eight west Oakland County communities will overwhelmingly say "yes" and "confirm what has already been said about the need for a north-south road."

He added, however, that the type of facility — whether it is a freeway, parkway or scenic drive — could be decided at a later election. Local officials have indicated that, depending on the results of next week's balloting, they may come back with an advisory question in November aimed at addressing that issue.

Fletcher said the phrase "approximately along the original M-275 route," in his opinion, included both alternatives to the freeway that are now under study by the state highway department.

Asked if a "yes" vote could be interpreted as support for the original freeway proposal, Fletcher replied: "No. If that's what they wanted, that's what they should have put on the ballot."

Other commission members said they would rather not discuss their interpretations of the advisory question until after the election.

Commissioner Weston Vivian, an Ann Arbor Democrat, said he would look at next week's vote results in an effort to interpret what the electors meant.

Commissioner Hannes Meyers, a Zeeland Republican, said he hasn't discussed the ballot proposal with his colleagues and hasn't made up his mind what the question means. He added, "I think it would be inappropriate to comment on it now. I wouldn't want my interpretation of the advisory question to sway even one voter."

Explaining that he hasn't studied the ballot language, Commissioner Carl Pellonpaa, an Ishpeming Democrat, said he wouldn't want to comment on the advisory question.

"Let the voters decide and we'll take it from there," he added.

Meanwhile, a coalition of 10 citizens' groups that opposed the extension of Northwestern Highway in West Bloomfield and Commerce townships recently reorganized to oppose the McConnell parkway alternative to M-275.

The coalition also questioned whether the advisory vote on the alternatives "will serve any useful purpose in delineating citizen opinion regarding road needs in the former M-275 corridor."

George Snyder, chairperson of the coalition, said the groups feel that "upgrading and improvement of the existing grid road system will best serve the needs of individual communities; and would "minimize environmental damage to this particularly sensitive area."

Describing the McConnell plan as a "junior M-275," Snyder said the parkway plan "ends up on the M-275 alignment essentially where it will do the most damage to the environment."

As to the advisory question, the coalition's John Makris, representing the Detroit Audubon Society, said members "could vote either yes or no with equal conviction." He said the ballot proposal "fails to solicit public opinion on what is needed most. This would be a study of and appropriate solutions to the traffic situation in the northwest area as a whole."

Last week, officials from Commerce, Novi, White Lake and Springfield said the north-south trunkline should be built as close as possible to the original M-275 freeway.

"Minimal route changes would be made to preserve and protect environmentally sensitive areas, public recreation areas and the lakes of west Oakland Coutny," the officials said in a statement.

"We believe this proposal offers the options necessary to provide an environmentally sound and effective route and the flexibility to include the concerns for people and the required federal safety standards," they continued.

"Utilizing as much of the original M-275 route as possible also reduces lengthy time delays and large additional planning, design and study costs which would be required for any other trunkline location. This means we can have the use of this long delayed trunkline much more quickly and at much less cost."

If electors in the eight communities favor the primary advisory question, the officials said they would place a proposal on the November ballot to determine what type of facility the voters would prefer.

Housing boom falls short of expectations

With the 1978 construction season nearly half-way finished, a survey of area builder reveals that about 550 new housing units will be constructed in Novi this year.

The 550 figure is less than half the number predicted by city officials in March, as the construction season began. But even so, the 550 units represents a growth of about 1,500 residents to the city in a year's time.

Officials estimate the population of the city at about 18,000 today. Add the 1,500 that will come from 1978 construction and the 1,500 or so that will come from the anticipated annexation of township lands, and the population could swell way over 20,000.

But if the earlier projections had proven true, the city could have expected as many as 6,000 new residents to join the city in 1978.

Novi Assistant City Manager Alex Allie predicted that between 800 and 1,200 single family residences would be constructed as well as another 480 multiple units.

At the time of Allie's prediction, there was also the possibility that another 1,200 apartments could be on the 1978 horizon behind the Twelve Oaks Mall.

But plans for a 1978 start to the massive complex fell to the wayside as did plans for several other developments in the city.

But the figures now available from developers show about 170 single family residences and 380 multiples will be constructed in 1978.

If these figures should prove accurate, the amount of building done in the city in 1978 will differ little from that done in 1977, when 600 permits were issued.

The total number of permits issued in 1978 seems unlikely to challenge the number issued in the city in 1972, when a total of 1,110 permits were handed out. In fact, it is likely the 1978 permit total will lag behind 1973, when 735 permits were issued.

But, in at least one category, this year's construction certainly outstrips the efforts of all previous years. And that is in the cost of homes being constructed in the city.

Officials of the Bob Binder Building Company, constructing the Whispering Meadows Subdivision at the corner of Nine Mile and Haggerty Roads, report that prices for their houses will run from $70,000 to $90,000. The developers hope to complete about 45 of the 446 lots proposed this year.

Another developer, Gurmal Singh Grewal, constructng the Turtle Creek Subdivision at Nine Mile and Meadowbrook Roads, plans on completing about 50 homes and selling them in the $95,000 price range.

Grewal reports his company plans on completing the 141-lot subdivision in

Special census request rejected

It appears no census will be taken in Novi this summer.

The Novi City Council split on a decision to conduct the census this year on a 3-3 vote at the July 31 meeting, thus killing the motion. The census would have added another three liquor licenses to the city, according to City Manager Ed Kriewall.

Voting to conduct the census were Mayor Romaine Roethel and members Bob Schmid and Ron Watson. Opposed were members Martha Hoyer, Guy Smith and Jim Shaw. Council member Pat Karevich was absent.

On June 26, the council had voted to reject the special census proposal after some members commented they would like to see Dayton-Hudson's pay for the project.

Voting for the census June 26 were Mrs. Roethel, Schmid and Watson, while Mrs. Hoyer, Mrs. Karevich and Smith opposed the proposal. Shaw was absent.

Kriewall reported July 31 that mall officials had balked at the idea of providing the $10,000 funding necessary to conduct the census, but had agreed to help fund a water main project in lieu of the census.

Kriewall told the council this was a key time in the history of Novi to to compete for high-quality establishments to come into town. Kriewall said a liquor license could attract a hotel or a wedding hall into the community.

Kriewall said he feared losing out in the race to attract these establishments to neighboring communities, since the city does not now have any liquor licenses remaining.

The census would grant one liquor license for every additional 1,500 people. The last special census was conducted in 1975, producing a population of 14,385.

Kriewall said he was reasonably certain the population would have risen 4,500 since that time, thus granting an additional three liquor licenses.

The city manager noted the census could be conducted and finished by September 3rd validated by the end of the year. If the census were not conducted, Kriewall said, it might be January, 1981 before the 1980 census were validated.

Council member Martha Hoyer said it will take a long while for a developer to put together a proposal for a large hotel or similar establishment mentioned by Kriewall.

She added that the council had just finished discussing a matter concerning how to find funds to keep employees with the recreation department and she did not want to spent $10,000 for a census.

The need for the special census was also questioned by council member Guy Smith, who stated he saw no reason it should be conducted. Smith also stated he did not want to get any funding from Dayton-Hudson's for the census.

Council member Bob Schmid echoed the comments made by Kriewall, saying the city was in a crucial time and needed the liquor license in order to compete with other communities such as Farmington Hills for high-quality establishments.

Schmid also said the city may make more money off the census in the long run from the tax dollars received from the entrance of a large establishment. He said he knew the census was a gamble, but a good gamble in his opinion.

The special census would not increase any state-shared revenues to the city because the state only recognized one special census between each regular census.

The population of Novi at the time of the 1970 census was a little more than 9,000.

City officials estimate the population of the city now at about 18,000. As soon as the annexation of the township property becomes effective, the population could rise over 20,000.

Twelve Oaks development plans draws angry response from council

A request for three simple lot splits at the Twelve Oaks Mall turned into a major discussion about the future character of the development at the July 31 Novi City Council meeting.

The request was straightforward enough — mall officials John Weber and Dave Ware simply asked the city council to okay the splitting of three of the 18 peripheral lots around the mall.

One of the lots would be for a McDonald's restaurant.

The mall officials are apparently taking advantage of a zoning bylaw which allows the developer to split each of the peripheral lots four times. So, instead of 18 buildings surrounding the mall, there could conceivably be 72.

City council members approved two of the three lot splits — the third was returned to the city planner for further review — and directed City Attorney Dave Fried to come up with an ordinance to restrict further lot splits.

"When you come to the city council with a plat and then you come in with all these lot splits, then what good is a plat?" Fried asked the mall officials.

"I really wonder what a plat is good for," Weber replied, adding that they just get changed later.

Weber told the council they would do nothing to damage the character of the overall development. He said mall officials had a sense of civic pride and would do nothing that would detract from the beauty of the community.

Council member Bob Schmid commented he was not an expert at such things, but he would guess the development would look more pleasing with less buildings than with more.

"I think you will use the land to the maximum financial advantage, keeping in mind you won't develop to detract from your major developments," Schmid said.

Schmid said he was not aware the mall had the right to proceed with lot splits without council approval. He said he had envisioned just a few buildings along the peripheral property so that you could still see the mall, instead of an entire group of buildings surrounding the mall.

Weber told the council most of the developments have been in the planning stages for the past year and a half and they have not been kept secret.

Ware stated the company had rejected a number of restaurants from entering onto the property because they were not of the quality desired. Ware also presented to the City Council a picture of the proposed McDonald's, which is unique in that it does not have the conventional golden arches.

The two mall officials noted they would not be asking for 72 lots out of the 18, since many of the developments would require the whole lot.

Council member Martha Hoyer echoed the sentiments voiced by Schmid, stating she was unaware of the proposed lot splits and did not want to see the peripheral property filled with buildings.

Mayor Romaine Roethel commented that a number of restaurants have opened in the area lately and there are only so many restaurants needed in one community.

The council members questioned City Attorney Dave Fried closely about whether there would be any legal recourse beside approving the lot splits.

Fried responded there would be no legal reason under the present ordinances to reject the lot splits, since they all met the requirements of the ordinances.

Council member Jim Shaw said that one of the lot splits had not even been addressed in the report given to the council, but added at the last moment, so he wanted to delay action on that request.

A motion to that effect was approved on a unanimous vote of council.

Council increases recreation staff

Two additional employees for the Novi Parks and Recreation Department were approved by the City Council at its July 31 meeting.

The two employees will replace in part three employees dropped from the department as a result of the discontinuation of the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) Special Projects payroll.

A total of 12 employees were dropped from the city payroll when the program was discontinued June 23. The loss of the three recreation department employees cut Director Barry Smink's staff in half.

Smink was forced to stop running the senior citizens program because of the staff reduction and supervision of many activities became scarce.

Smink appeared before the council July 31 along with Parks and Recreation Commission Chairman John Balagna to persuade council members to approve the funding of the two positions.

The money for the position was made available when the Department of Natural Resources would only provide 50-50 matching funds for a pair of ball diamonds if they were constructed without lights.

If the lights were added, it would be completely at the city's expense.

The reduction of the ballpark proposal placed another $35,000 in the recreation department budget. A total of $22,319 was used to hire the two employees.

Smink told the council he sought to add one recreation leader and one clerk-typist to his payroll. Smink said the city has reached a point where it must think either about maintaining its program or experiencing some cutbacks.

"And that's just what we'd have to do if we don't add two people," Smink added.

The director stated he was reluctant to chop any of the programs now operated by the department.

"It's such a new community, it's hard to say what programs are marginal," he said.

As an example, Smink told of a "slimnastics" class offered in Novi. The first class drew only eight members, but a baby-sitting service was provided and the next time the program was offered, three classes of 20 people were involved.

Smink admitted his department may have relied too heavily on CETA funding to maintain its operation.

Mayor Romaine Roethel commented she was willing to go along with the recommendations made by the Parks and Recreation Commission to add the two employees.

"Of all the departments in the city, as far as feedback I receive, I get very few complaints about Parks and Recreation, and that tells me something," Mrs. Roethel said.

Council member Bob Schmid questioned the wisdom of adding two employees to the payroll.

"I have no qualms with the Parks and Recreation Department or with adding two personnel," Schmid said. "The question is whether the city has enough money to add two employees."

Schmid noted that the monies for the two employees would come from the November recreation half-mill approved by voters. He added that half-mill would expire in three years and then the city would be forced to find monies to keep the employees on.

Another question was raised by council member Guy Smith, who commented that according to figures released by the department, only about 1,400 people took part in recreation activities offered last year.

Smith questioned whether the city could afford to spend $22,000 on 1,400 people in the community.

Smink replied that the 1,400 was a very conservative figure of the number

More police officers aim of vote request

A proposal that would add another ten officers to the Novi Police Department has been referred to the city administration for review.

The proposal to place a request for one mill on the November ballot to beef up staffing of the police department was made by Marge Malazzo, who lives along East Lake Drive. The request was brought before the Novi City Council at its July 31 meeting by member Martha Hoyer, who said Mrs. Malazzo had asked her to bring forth the proposal.

Mrs. Hoyer stated Mrs. Malazzo would petition to place the matter on the November ballot if the Novi City Council refused to do so.

The one mill would raise approximately $210,000 for the city and, at about $20,000 total cost per officer, would fund about ten officers for a year.

Mrs. Hoyer said Mrs. Malazzo's concern was with beefing up the night patrol of the police department.

Novi Police Chief Lee BeGole reports he does have some problems with late night patrol, because union contracts require that two officers ride in each car.

BeGole said he tries to have at least two cars on the road at all times, but sometimes only one patrol car is on the road.

Officers could not be assigned solely to night duty, BeGole said, but the night patrol could certainly be increased if a millage proposal were passed.

Here's what faces the voters in primary election

Voters throughout the state will be going to the polls for the primary election next Tuesday (August 8).

Polls in all communities will open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Purpose of the primary is to winnow the field of candidates down to acceptable levels for the general election in November. No one will be elected to office on the basis of the results in Tuesday's primary.

That is not to demean the importance of the primary, however.

Many candidates are fighting for their political careers since defeat in the primary will eliminate them from the ballot in November's general election.

Unlike the general election, voters are not permitted to switch parties in the primary. Anyone who votes in the primary must decide to vote either for Democratic candidates or Republican candidates. It is not possible to vote Democratic in some races and Republican in other races.

As a result, it's a good idea to know whether you want to vote Democratic or Republican before you go into the polling booth.

Here's a rundown on what you will find on the ballot next Tuesday:

County Question

Voters throughout Oakland County will be asked to vote "yes" or "no" on the following question: "Shall separate tax limitations be established for an indefinite period, or until altered by the voters of the County, for the County of Oakland and the townships and school districts within the County, the aggregate of which shall not exceed 16.46 mills as follows: County of Oakland — 5.26 mills, Townships — 1.41 mills, Intermediate School districts — 2.25 mills, and school districts (a school district located entirely within a city of charter township shall receive in addition millage equal to the township millage) — 9.54 mills?"

Advisory Question

Voters in Commerce Township, Wolverine Lake Village, Walled Lake, and Novi will be asked to vote "yes" or "no" on the following advisory question: "Do you favor the construction of a North-South state trunk line road approximately along the originally proposed M-275 route, and to be constructed with state and federal funds?"

Franchise Proposition

Novi voters will find the following question on their ballots: "Shall the City of Novi grant a franchise to The Detroit Edison Company giving permission to erect, construct, lay, operate and maintain within the City, all needful and proper poles, mains, wires, pipes, conduits, and other apparatus requisite for the transmission, transforming, and distribution of electricity for public and private use, subject however, to all conditions and restrictions of a proposed franchise ordinance as introduced and now on file with the City Clerk and open to public inspection and copying? Yes or No?"

Court of Appeals Judge

All voters will be asked to select one candidate for Judge for the Court of Appeals — 2nd District. The three candidates are Luke Quinn, Walter P. Cynar, and E. Thomas Fitzgerald.

6th Circuit Court

All voters will be asked to select three candidates from a field of 14 candidates for the Sixth Circuit (Oakland County) Court. The 14 candidates are: Gene Schnelz, Robert C. Anderson, Bernard L. Kaufman, Hilda Gage, Fred M. Mester, Michael S. Friedman, Robert C. Williams, Judith Dennehy Doran, Albert A. Kramer, Robert E. Cunningham, Mildred A. Vlaich, Stuart H. Brickner, Bruce H. Keidan, and Williams A. Ortman, Sr.

Governor

There are four Democrats and one Republican running for governor.

If you have decided to vote Democratic in the primary, you may vote for any one of the following candidates: Zolton Ferency, William Fitzgerald, Patrick McCullough, or Williams Ralls.

If you vote as a Republican, your only choice is William Milliken.

U.S. Senate

There are six Democrats and two Republicans running for the United States Senate.

If you vote as a Democrat, you may vote for any one of the following candidates: Anthony Derezinski, Carl Levin, John Otterbacher, Philip Power, Paul Rosenbaum, or Richard Vandeveen.

If you vote as a Republican, you may vote for either Robert Grifffin or L. Brooks Patterson.

Representative in Congress

There are two Democrats and one Republican running for the United States Congress — 19th District.

If you vote as a Democrat, you may vote for either L. J. Peterson or Betty Collier.

William Broomfield is unopposed for the Republican nomination.

State Senate

There are two Democrats and one Republican running for the State Senate — 15th District.

Individuals voting as Democrats may vote for either Daniel Cooper or Douglas Ross.

Markus Simon is unopposed on the Republican side of the ballot.

State Legislature

Three Democrats and one Republican are running for the State House of Representatives — 24th District.

The Democratic candidates are Elizabeth Giese, Dennis McCoy, and Stephen Rosman.

Richard Pessler is unopposed on the Republican side of the ballot.

County Commission

Voters in Novi, Walled Lake, and Wixom vote for the Oakland County Commission from the 24th District.

Lew Coy is unopposed for the Democratic nomination. Martha Hoyer and Dennis Murphy are running for the Republican nomination.

Voters in Commerce Township and Wolverine Lake vote for the Oakland County Commission from the 25th District.

George Montgomery is unopposed for the Democratic nomination in the 25th District and Robert McConnell is unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Commerce Township

All the candidates for office in Commerce Township are running as Republicans. If you've decided to vote as a Democrat, you may not vote in this race.

Robert Long is unopposed for supervisor, Robert McGee is unopposed for clerk, and Patrick Dohany is unopposed for treasurer.

There are six Republican candidates for two vacancies on the township board. They are Robert Ackerson, Paul Collom, Jack Tapscott, Bruce Enfield, Kenneth Hausauer, and Marilyn Fraczek.

Judge Beer dropped from ballot

The Michigan Supreme Court has ordered Oakland County Circuit Court Judge William Beer out of the race for one of three new Oakland (Sixth) Circuit Court judgeships.

Beer, 69, has been a Circuit Court Judge for the past 20 years. His present term is slated to expire in 1981, when he would be prohibited from running for re-election by a ruling which states that judges cannot run for office after they are 70 years old.

Beer was attempting to circumvent that ruling by running for one of the three new Oakland Circuit Court judgeships in the August 8 primary. If successful in his re-election bid, his term on the Sixth Circuit Court would have been extended to 1984.

Beer's candidacy for one of the three new positions was apparently shot down Monday when the Supreme Court ruled that he cannot run in the August 8 primary because he sought election as an incumbent. The court stated that incumbency would apply only to judges whose terms expire January 1, 1989.

Beer's candidacy for one of the three new judgeships was challenged by one of his opponents (Michael Friedman) who charged that Beer had wrongly attempted to take advantage of a loophole in the law which created the three new judicial positions.

That loophole permitted incumbent Circuit Court judges seeking the new positions to waive the requirement of filing nomination petitions and gave them the right to have "incumbent" appear on the ballot following their names.

In essence, the court ruled that Beer was not an incumbent, did not have the right to have the word "incumbent" listed after his name, and was required to file nominating petitions.

There has been no indication as to whether Beer will challenge the ruling of the State Supreme Court.

The apparent elimination of Beer from the ballot reduces the field of candidates for the three new Sixth Circuit Court judgeships to 14.

The 14 candidates are:

—Robert C. Anderson: Currently on the 51st District Court bench, a governor of the American Judges Association, member of the State Bar Panel to arbitrate disputes among attorneys, and a member of the State Bar District Committee.

—Stuart H. Brickner: A West Bloomfield attorney with 10 years of trial experience. Is a member of the American Trial Lawyers Association, Oakland County Bar Association, and serves on the panel of arbitrators of the American Arbitration Association.

—Robert E. Cunningham: Currently a 50th District Court Judge.

—Judith Dennehy Doran: A Birmingham attorney with a private law practice. Her positions include vice-president of the Detroit College of Law Alumni Association and past president of the Women Lawyer's Association of Michigan. Is a member of the State Bar of Michigan, Oakland County Bar Association, and the Birmingham-Bloomfield Bar Association. She has been endorsed for one of the three new Circuit Court positions by the Oakland County Democratic party.

—Michael S. Friedman: A practicing attorney in Southfield.

—Hilda Gage: A practicing Oakland County attorney. Presently serves as co-chairperson of the Committee on Grievance of the State Bar of Michigan and sits as a member on numerous State Bar Committees, including the Scope and Correlation Committee, the Recorder's Court Committee, and the Lawyer's Assistance Committee. Was appointed by Governor William Milliken to the Michigan Civil Rights Commission in 1973 and re-appointed to an additional four-year term in 1976.

—Bernard L. Kaufman: A practicing attorney in Detroit and a West Bloomfield resident. Has been endorsed for one of the three new judgeships by the Oakland County Democratic party.

—Bruce H. Keidan: A practicing attorney in Southfield.

—Albert A. Kramer: A practicing attorney in Southfield.

—Fred Mester: Currently the administrator of the Oakland County Circuit Court.

—William A. Ortman, Sr.: A practicing attorney in Detroit.

—Gene Schnelz: Currently a 52nd District Court Judge in Walled Lake and Chief Judge of the 52nd District Court. Is a member of the American, Michigan, and Oakland County Bar Associations and is a past-president of the Oakland County Bar Association. He resides in Walled Lake.

—Mildred A. Vlaich: Currently a District Court Judge in the 52nd District Court (Rochester-Avon Township).

—Robert C. Williams: Is Chief Appeals Counsul with the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office.

County Bar favors Gene Schnelz

52nd District Court Judge Gene Schnelz of Walled Lake received the top rating among the 14 candidates for the three new Oakland (Sixth) Circuit Court judgeships, according to a poll of the Oakland County Bar Association.

Members of the Oakland County Bar Association were asked to rate the candidates on legal ability, temperament, impartiality, and industry. The ratings were superior, acceptable, unacceptable, or not known.

Schnelz, who is a past-president of the Oakland County Bar Association led the rest of the candidates in superior ratings. Some 1,204 members of the association rated Schnelz as "superior," representing 57 percent of the total ballots cast.

Robert C. Anderson received 465 superior ratings (36 percent) to finish second, while Bernard L. Kaufman received 378 superior ratings (20 percent) to finish third in that category.

Other judicial candidates who received superior ratings were: Hilda Gage - 354, Fred Mester - 289, Michael Friedman - 280, William Beer - 272, Robert C. Williams - 208, Judith Dennehy Doran - 109, Albert Kramer - 91, Robert Cunningham - 82, Mildred Vlaich - 79, Bruce Keidan - 41, and William Ortman, Sr. - 40.

Three of the candidates were labelled "unacceptable" by more than 25 percent of the members of the Oakland County Bar Association.

William Beer was said to be unacceptable on 977 ballots, 47 percent of the total cast. Beer has since been ruled ineligible for the August 8 primary and his name has been taken off the ballot.

Mildred Vlaich received 844 (44 percent) unacceptable ratings, while Robert Cunninghan was said to be unacceptable by 485 (25 percent) of the members of the Bar Association.

Village names refuse firm

B & J Removal has been hired by the Wolverine Lake Village Council to serve as garbage contractor through the end of the year.

At a special meeting last Wednesday, the council accepted the resignation of Watkins Disposal, effective August 1; waived the procedure to accept bids for the service because of the emergency situation; and hired B & J, a Northville-based firm.

According to Village President John McLellan, the new contractor will provide the same collection services as Watkins, although the cost will be $2.25 per unit a month, 25 cents more than the agreement with the previous contractor.

However, village officials have decided to keep $3,000 that was withheld from Watkins in lieu of a performance bond in order to off set the higher price, he added.

B & J has been in business for eight years, McLellan said, and has its own garage and three full-time mechanics to serve the 11-truck fleet.

The firm serves the Northville Schools and several subdivisions in Novi, and has provided emergency service to the cities of Northville and South Lyon, he added.

The new contractor is the village's fourth rubbish removal firm in 13 months.

The G. R. Chapel firm was fired by the village and Walled Lake in July, 1977 due to poor service. Frenchy's Disposal was hired by both communities at that time, but was dismissed by the village in December also because of poor service. Walled Lake fired Frenchy's in January.

At that time, Wolverine Lake hired Watkins, while the city retained its contractor, while the city retained Freedom Disposal of Northville.

Two Democrats vie for right to battle Broomfield

Collier

It's the second time around for Betty Collier, a Waterford housewife vying for the Democratic Party nomination in the 19th District's race for U.S. representative.

Collier sought the Democratic nomination in 1976 but lost to Dorothea Becker, who then was defeated in the general election by long-time Republican incumbent William Broomfield.

Collier again has primary opposition in the August 8 election, this time from the Reverend L.J. Peterson, a Presbyterian minister from Birmingham. If she wins the primary, Collier will then have to face Broomfield in November's general election.

Collier, who holds a college degree in political science and business and who has been active in party politics at the local and state level for several years, said she doesn't know that much about her primary opponent, Peterson.

"We've met at a 'meet the candidates' night, but I really don't know him," she said.

And asked if she disagreed with Broomfield's stand on any specific issues, Collier said she couldn't think of any areas of disagreement.

But she did say that "I can't see where he (Broomfield) has done a lot for the district. If you look at Mr. Broomfield's record, he's supported few bills that affect us in Michigan."

Collier said she thought Broomfield hasn't been responsive to the needs of his constituency. "Oh, he has good public relations," she said, "but the problems and concerns of the people aren't being taken care of."

She also said that Broomfield "could fight for more federal money" for the 19th District. "I'd like to see more federal money get back to the district," she said.

Collier said she will have more to say about Broomfield's stand on the issues and his record if she wins the primary. "We'll have people studying his record and we'll be taking more definite stands," she said.

Collier said that taxes, inflation and energy are the top three concerns of the residents in the 19th District, which includes Oakland County and the townships of Green Oak, Brighton, Hartland, and Tyrone in Livingston County.

She said she supports tax limitation. "I would like to see waste in federal government stopped," she said. "I get so angry when I read articles about wasting taxpayers' money. I don't believe it would be that much of a problem to trim budgets. A lot of things could be cut without hurting. There's a lot of waste."

One area Collier doesn't want to see slashed is federal spending for defense. "I wouldn't like to see defense cut because Russia keeps building," said Collier, who describes herself as "kind of conservative."

Inflation is another area of concern for 19th District residents, Collier said. "The federal government's deficit is so high," she said. "If we keep printing money to keep up with the deficit, inflation will continue. We have to cut the deficit."

On energy, Collier said the country has to examine alternatives, including solar and nuclear energy. "If nuclear energy can be safely used, it would help reduce our dependence on foreign oil," she said.

Collier said she would like to see tax incentives "to encourage people to conserve energy, but not in a way that would be damaging to the economy."

Collier said that in general she is satisfied with the Carter administration. "In some instances he hasn't lived up to his promises, but right at this point, I can't point to any area that I could criticize," she said.

Collier said she is running again because her supporters encouraged her.

"I wasn't really planning to run this time until I was urged by my supporters," she said. "After this, it will be the last time."

BETTY COLLIER

L. J. PETERSON

Peterson

L. J. Peterson pastor of Northbrook Presbyterian Church in Birmingham who calls himself "the new face on the political scene," says he is running for the Democratic Party nomination for the U. S. representative from the 19th District because it's time to "put up or shut up."

"With Mr. Broomfield in office, the last 15 years have been a frustrating experience," Peterson said. "I finally decided that it wasn't enough just to complain, that it was time to put up or shut up. That's why I'm running."

If Peterson gets by his primary opponent, Betty Collier, in the August 8 election, he will tackle William Broomfield, the long-time Republican incumbent, in November's general election.

Peterson said that Collier is from the "Wallace wing of the party, that segment of the party that's not with the majority," but saves his harshest criticism for Broomfield.

"People are getting fed up with a lot of politicians, and the party label isn't as important as it once was," Peterson said. "Broomfield is an inadequate representative of the 19th District.

"He has never been the author of any effective, meaningful legislation. He's been nothing but an errand boy in Congress, a do-nothing, passive legislator. We need active people to solve our problems."

Peterson, who says he's been a casual participant in politics and whose only involvement in party politics has been as a precinct delegate, charged that Broomfield's only role on the International Relations Committee of Congress has been as "a strong supporter of the Park regime in Korea, a repressive regime."

He also said that Broomfield supported an amendment to the Tuition Tax Credit Bill that would allocate tax monies for private and parochial schools at the elementary and secondary levels, a move, he said, that will sow "the seeds of destruction for public education."

Peterson said that tax reform, not tax limitation, is needed.

"The problem is how to deal with the tax problem," he said. "I'm not for taking the meat ax approach. What we need to do is tighten up on management, economize on administrative costs and reorder our priorities.

"Tax reform is the real need and that will only come with expenditure reform."

He said that Broomfield can't escape at least partial responsibility "for the (fiscal) mess we're in because he's been part of it for 22 years."

Peterson called the Tisch Amendment to limit taxes in Michigan a fraud and said the Headlee Amendment has merit on the surface.

"It should get the attention of the legislature and congress to bring about needed reform," he said.

He said the Tisch Amendment "in effect will destroy the tax base at the level where it's most needed" — locally.

Peterson said he opposes constitutional amendments as a method of solving problems. "It points to a failure of the legislature to do the job and there will be chaos if all these tax limitation proposals are passed."

Inflation, unemployment and energy are other major campaign issues, Peterson said.

Hopefully, we can develop voluntary means to stop the wage-price spiral," he said. "We're not gong to stop inflation. But in light of reasonable inflation, we have to develop programs to cure the rise of the wage-price spiral."

This will benefit persons with fixed or limited incomes and the unemployed.

To lower unemployment, "we must encourage expansion of the private sector to create jobs. The government could provide employment of the last resort for others. This would give people the dignity of working and at the same time, we'd be getting more out of our tax dollars."

Peterson said that short, medium and long-range solutions are needed to solve the country's energy problem.

"We're not as concerned as we should be about energy," he said. "Short-range solutions would be geared to everyday conservation. Mid-range solutions would give us better and more efficient use of current energy sources. Over the long run, we must develop new sources — solar energy and the safe use of nuclear energy."

Along the campaign trail, people have likened Peterson taking on Broomfield as a David vs. Goliath battle. Peterson doesn't mind the comparison.

That's okay. I just remind them who won the David-Goliath battle."

Six eye trustee posts

Other issues mentioned by the candidates included:

—a township police department, proposed by Tapscott, to replace the current contract with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department for six deputies assigned to Commerce at a cost of some $30,000 each;

—semi-annual tax collections for school districts, suggested by Hausauer, so the schools won't have to seek tax anticipation notes in order to operate until township taxes are collected in December through February; and —garbage collections for the township, proposed by Mrs. Fraczek. At present, homeowners and subdivisions have agreements with contractors.

The polls will be open election day from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Novi buys park land

The Novi City Council has approved the purchase of a home along South Lake Drive, next to the Lakeshore Park, for $45,000.

The site will be used in the future as a beach, but is not expected to be developed for at least another five years.

The city is purchasing the land under a land contract with a $20,000 down payment.

City park or commercial

Wixom debates use of Korex property

Now that the City of Wixom has the Korex property almost cleared, there appears to be some disagreement about how to use the land.

Councilman Dennis Andrews would like to see a permanent park built on the site, while Mayor Lillian Spencer believes the area should be left fairly clear in order to be sold as commercial at a later date.

"I'd like to see a permanent park built around a centralized object on the site," said Andrews, "and then we could landscape around it. Maybe a bandshell or a fountain in the center would look good. I'd like to see something done on a permanent basis, and then if we wanted to change it in 50 years we could do it."

Mayor Spencer, on the other hand, issued a statement to city council members urging them to reconsider a council motion allowing city consultant Charles Leman to prepare a purpose plan for a park on the site.

"That's a too valuable piece of property to make it a downtown park," said the mayor. "We paid $196,000 for it, and if we get a downtown area redevelopment grant, that property could be even more valuable. In ten years we could sell the property as commercial and get a better tax base."

Mayor Spencer is in favor of making the property a temporary greenbelt, stating that if the park were to be permanent the city would suffer a substantial tax loss.

Another factor against a permanent park is its location. Mayor Spencer would like to keep the area a temporary greenbelt until the Oakland County Road Commission and city decide what to do with the Pontiac Trail-Wixom Road intersection.

"We've got to wait for the county to fix up that intersection," said the mayor. "We can't have a permanent park there and then tear it up to put the road through."

Wixom Assistant to the Mayor Steve Bonczek agrees with Spencer on the idea of selling the land as commercial in a few years, but added that the profit from its sale would come back to the Community Development Block Grant Program from which the original payment originated.

"Money isn't the only consideration," argued Andrews. "Besides, that's a bad spot for commercial development anyway. Any place built there that has customers is going to have trouble getting in and out of there with the intersection the way it is, so I don't think it can be used too well as commercial."

Meanwhile, the Monarch Wrecking company is finishing up the demolition and clearing of the site more than a month ahead of schedule.

Novi to proceed with 13 Mile paving

Although there have been some delays, Novi officials are once more hopeful of paving 13 Mile Road this year.

Novi City Attorney Dave Fried reported to the Novi City Concil July 24 he had received word from Dick Rosen, an attorney for the Chateau Estates Mobile Park, that an agreement will be reached soon over the paving project.

The city must reach an agreement with Chateau Estates before paving can begin, since the park is located within Novi Township. The city is charging the park basically the same charge it would ask if it were now inside the city.

The park will become part of the City of Novi October 2 when the transfer of township lands becomes effective.

The news of the paving comes as good news to residents of the park, who feared another complication was going to delay the paving until next year.

Fried had reported at the July 17 meeting that he had difficulty reaching representatives of the park to firm up an agreement.

The 13 Mile paving project has been the focus of some controversy for several weeks as residents of the park had protested the city's handling of the matter.

The road has been slated for paving ever since the $4.7 million bond issue was approved by voters in 1975 for the surfacing of 18 miles of roads. Problems in acquiring right-of-way have slowed the paving program, however, raising costs and slicing about three miles that was originally proposed for resurfacing.

The city encountered some difficulty with the 13 Mile project, however, since it could not legally assess the mobile home park the normal $10 per front foot charge since it did not rest on city property.

An agreement had been tentatively hashed out between the owner of the park and the city, however, but the annexation dispute then began to hold the project back.

Hearing held on Willowbrook project

The second of three public hearings necessary to conduct a special assessment for the repaving of roads in the Willowbrook Subdivision Three was held at the July 31 Novi City Council meeting.

Despite a great reduction in the amount of work deemed necessary to renovate the roads in the subdivision, the cost of the project changed little from a previous estimate due to dramatically increasing construction costs.

At a public hearing held April 17, City Engineer Harry Mosher estimated that a complete repaving of the streets would cost $172,000. The present project, which consists of rebuilding Willowbrook Drive, Ripple Creek Street and Rockhill Court and the resurfacing of court roads, will cost $167,000 to construct.

At the next public hearing, Mosher hopes to have bids from companies to give a more exact idea to residents of the cost.

Using the $167,000 figure, residents would pay $1,288.46 per lot or $128.94 for ten years to pay for the project.

Mosher stated he had not proposed a major reditching in the subdivision, the main problem being to get the water off the road.

The roads would contain a 2½ inch overlay asphalt paving.

Mosher said the project cost would have been lower had not construction costs rose so quickly in the last few months. He estimated the project would have been 30 to 50 percent cheaper had it been completed last year.

He blamed the price increases on the vast amount of underground utilities work ongoing in Oakland County.

The project should be completed by November 1, Mosher said.

John Mitchell, of 23685 Maude Lee, asked if any work would be done besides resurfacing on the court roads.

Ray Cousineau, an engineer with Mosher's firm, said some work would have to be undertaken on the court roads, but they were mostly minor rebuilding jobs.

City Manager Ed Kriewall noted the work plans can be changed in the field and reduced. If a reduction is made, Kriewall said, the cost of the project could be reduced as well.

Bids for the project will be advertised in trade journals the next two weeks.

WL School Board rejects grievance

The Walled Lake Education Association (WLEA) is expected to take a grievance regarding administrative hiring practices to arbitration following denial of the grievance by the Walled Lake School Board last week.

Mrs. Evelyn Brown, chairperson of the WLEA's grievance committee, reported that the committee is scheduled to meet this week to decide if the grievance will be taken to arbitration.

She went on to say, however, that the committee chairperson will strongly recommend that the grievance be carried to the arbitration level.

Although an official decision on whether the grievance will be taken to arbitration has not yet been made, it is virtually certain that the committee will vote to take the matter to arbitration.

The WLEA had asked the school board to waive its right to a hearing on the grievance earlier this summer so that the grievance could be carried directly to arbitration. The request was denied by the board, however.

At issue is the question of whether or not the district has violated the master contract with the WLEA by not appointing Dr. Norene Daly, a reading teacher at Walled lake Western, to one of two elementary school principal positions which were filled earlier this year.

The appointment of Robert Voss and Gail Stephens to fill those positions was announced by Superintendent Dr. Don Sheldon at the June board meeting.

There were approximately 130 applicants for the two positions. Dr. Daly was one of five finalists considered for the appointments.

Specifically, the WLEA maintains that the district has violated the section of the contract which states that "...vacancies shall be filled on the basis of experience, competency, qulifications, and other relevant factors. All other qualifications being equal, service in Walled Lake shall be the determining factor."

Dr. Daly has been employed by Walled Lake Schools since 1974, while neither Voss nor Stephens have any previous experience in the district.

In essence, the WLEA maintained that Dr. Daly's qualifications were equal to those of the successful candidates and that she should have received the appointment on the basis of her experience in the district.

The district maintained, however, that Dr. Daly's qualifications were not as good as the qualifications of the successful candidates and that experience in the district becomes the determining factor only when all other factors are equal.

Arguments for both sides were heard at a special grievance hearing before the board on June 24. The board voted 5-0 last Wednesday (June 26) to deny the grievance, holding that the contract had not been violated.

Betty Campion, Chester Gerbensky, Warren Williams, Robert Cooper, and Leo Wessinger voted to deny the grievance, while Kenneth Tucker abstained from voting since he was not present at the grievance hearing. Barbara Sculy was absent at both sessions.

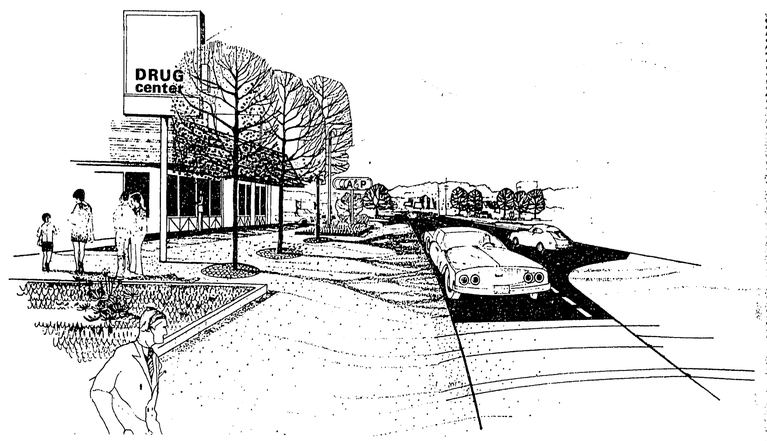
Wessinger stated at Wednesday's meeting that "many times our best teachers end up being administrators. It's a loss to the students and the community," he said.

"I would hope that our administration would add the appropriate weight to the applications from people within the district who are seeking administrative positions," he continued. "I hope they would be encouraged if they want to get ahead."

Gerbensky said that the other candidates appeared to have better qualifications than Dr. Daly. "I don't believe the people in the community would want us to hire strictly on the basis of experience in the school district," he commented.

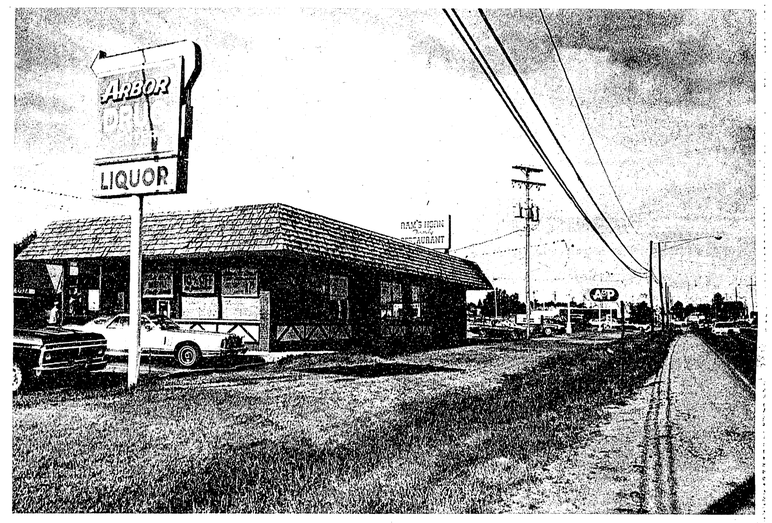
Williams entered the motion to deny the grievance which was seconded by Cooper and endorsed by the rest of the board by the 5-0 margin.

Mrs. Brown told The News after the board's action that she was disappointed in the decision. "If a person as eminently qualified as Norene Daly cannot benefit from the wording in the contract, then there is little hope that any teacher in the district can benefit from the language that has been negotiated into the contract," she said.



Before and after?

The Walled Lake Beautification Committee is seeking donations from city businesses to finance a beautification project along Maple Road. The sketch, prepared by Kent W. Smith of the Oakland County Planning Division, shows Maple as it could appear as early as next spring, if the committee is able to raise enough funds to purchase skyline Honey Locust trees for planting along the road. According to city officials, the Honey Locust was suggested for the project because of its hardiness in an urban area and its upright shape. The shallow-rooted tree, which grows to a maximum height of 30-40 feet, would have an impressive visual impact along Maple Road, city officials added. The committee will be contacting businesses for financial assistance for the project because of the limited beautification funds included in the city's budget. Contributions for the project may be sent to City Hall, 1499 E. West Maple Road, Walled Lake 48088 in care of committee chairperson Ardys Mercer or Mayor Gaspare LaMarca.



Novi gets compensation for January blizzard

The City of Novi is finally getting some money for all the work it did to clear the snow off the roads during the January 26 snowstorm.

The city has applied for a total of $14,345 of funds from the State Disaster Contingency Fund Grant.

The implementation of the act that provides the funding was recently approved by Governor William Milliken. The program, however, is still contingent upon the Michigan State Legislature appropriating an amount to cover the cost of the grants.

The Emergency Services Division of the Department of State Police is accepting applications from eligible local communities through August 2.

Prior to completing the application, the community must appoint an agent to administer the application. Novi Police Chief Lee BeGole has been appointed to that post.

In addition, the Novi City Council was required to pass a resolution that would certify that the emergency plan was implemented in a timely manner. The resolution would also have to show exactly what the extent of damage that was sustained in the snowstorm.

The resolution approved by the City Council July 31 states that "public damages and expenditures were extraordinary and placed an unreasonably great financial burden on the City of Novi."

Bob Moody, of the district Michigan State Police office, reports the funds for the city may not arrive until sometime in October, until the legislature has a chance to take action on fiscal bills in 1979.

Two employees added of people involved in recreation activities. He said about twice that many people would enjoy softball games, for example, as spectators and not participants.

Mayor Roethel added the number of people that would use city parks would also inflate the figure more.

"We're always trying to increase that figure," Smink said.

Council member Jim Shaw said the funds were available and the council would be derelict if it does choose to appropriate them in the best manner possible. He added he agreed with Schmid that some tough decisions await the council in three years when the funding runs dry, but that it was obligated to provide the funding today.

The council approved the funding of the two positions on a voice vote.

The matter had been discussed before the council at the July 17 meeting, but Smink was unable to attend because of a schedule conflict.

At the July 17 meeting, the council also voted to retain another CETA employee that had been dropped, police mechanic Tony Swope, by funding him out of the regular police budget.

Vote 'yes' on north-south trunkline advisory question

Voters in several west Oakland County communities — including Commerce, Wolverine Lake Village, Walled Lake and Novi — will be asked at the August 8 primary election whether they favor the construction of a north-south state trunkline road approximately along the original M)275 freeway route, to be built at state and federal expense.

Many people — officials and voters alike — feel the ballot wording is too vague. Perhaps because we've covered this issue for several years and know the intent of the framers of the language, we feel the question is not too complicated.

In our opinion, a trunkline is a state road that must be connected to other trunklines as part of the road network. It could be a freeway, a parkway, a boulevard, a scenic drive or a Dixie Highway type of facility.

The type of facility that voters would favor for a trunkline should not be an issue in the August election. Local officials have indicated that they will seek further voter direction on that question in November.

What is at issue is the alignment of the facility. In other words, where it starts, where it stops and what falls inbetween.

We feel that the phrase "approximately along the original M-275 route" would apply to the alternative proposed by Oakland County Commissioner Robert A. McConnell for a four-lane, divided, limited access, landscaped boulevard along Haggerty Road, from I-96 in Novi to about Pontiac Trail in Commerce, where it would veer northwesterly along the original freeway route to M-59 in White Lake.

We do not believe that the phrase applies to the Citizens in Opposition to M-275's alternative that proceeds along Haggerty Road from 12 Mile Road to Richardson before connecting with Union Lake Road and, via a new roadway, Williams Lake Road north to M-59. A boulevard along 14 Mile Road would connect the scenic drive to Northwestern Highway in West Bloomfield.

Therefore, we feel that a "yes" vote favors the McConnell alternative, while a "no" vote could be interpreted as support of the Citizens in Opposition's scenic drive or the so-called "no build" alternatives.

However, there are some who disagree with our interpretation, including State Highway Commission Chairperson Peter B. Fletcher.

Fletcher has said that he is sure the advisory proposal will be overwhelmingly approved because most people, including commission members, recognize the need for a north-south trunkline in west Oakland.

Further, the commission chairperson said that the advisory question does not address the issue of the type of facility that area residents prefer. Like most local officials, Fletcher is content to put that question off until November.

If Fletcher is correct in assuming that Lakes Area residents will overwhelmingly approve the concept of a north-south trunkline, then what significance can he attach to the election results?

Fletcher also said he would not interpret a "yes" vote on the advisory question as an indication that area residents want the original M-275 plans revived.

"If that's what they wanted," he said, "that's what they should have put on the ballot."

We agree with Fletcher on that point. And, with the aid of hindsight, we would suggest that the ballot wording probably should have given voters a choice of a.) the original M-275 freeway, b.) the McConnell alternative or c.) the Citizens in Opposition's proposal.

For those who view the advisory proposal as "Vote for M-275 — It's the only way to go," we emphasize again that that is not the question before the voters.

Earlier this year, The News endorsed McConnell's alternative to solve west Oakland's road problems. We will stand by that position.

Therefore, we urge our readers on August 8 to vote "yes" on the advisory question.

Here are our endorsements in the primary election

Commerce . . . Ackerson, Enfield

Several strong candidates are seeking Republican Party nominations for two trustee posts on the Commerce Township Board in next Tuesday's primary election. No Democrats are running for township office in either the primary or general election.

There are few differences on the issues among the contenders, which seems to indicate that the present township board is doing a good job of running the community. In fact, the candidates have supported the current board on its stand on all of the issues. Some of the major issues facing the township, such as an alternative to the cancelled M-275 freeway and super sewer, are really beyond the Board of Trustees' control.

Of the six contenders for the GOP nomination, we feel that Bruce T. Enfield and Robert D. Ackerson deserve the voters' first consideration.

Enfield, a long-time resident of the township, has served Commerce as chairperson of the Parks Committee, which has developed Bicentennial Park and built the community center in Richardson Park. He has been active in community affairs, conservation and youth organizations, and is making his first bid for elective office.

Ackerson served as chairperson of the township's Road Study Committee which studied alternatives to the cancelled M-275 freeway before coming up with a recommendation in favor of a reduced-speed, landscaped, limited access, four-lane parkway that would provide a north-south road for Lakes Area residents who commute to Detroit or its northern suburbs to work, instead of an interstate bypass route. The committee later endorsed the McConnell alternative, which uses much of the original M-275 alignment, except for the portion from I-96 to about Pontiac Trail, where it would be along Haggerty Road.

A thoughtful quiet man, Ackerson provided the right qualities of leadership when the committee was asked to back the McConnell plan as a compromise alternative in an effort to solve west Oakland's road problems.

If, for some reason, our readers are inclined to disagree with our endorsements of Enfield and Ackerson, we would recommend Paul Collom and Kenneth Hausauer as the best alternatives.

Collom also has been active in the community, serving on the Parks Committee, while Hausauer is an incumbent trustee who was elected as a Democrat four years ago and also serves on the parks panel.

State Senate . . . Ross

Government and the way it is conducted in Michigan are major issues in this year's election, especially in the 15th State Senate District.

Incumbent Senator Daniel S. Cooper, the majority floor leader, is being opposed by Doug Ross, former co-director of the Michigan Citizens' Lobby and former director of Michigan Common Cause, for the Democratic nomination in the August 8 primary. The winner will oppose Republican Markus S. Simon, a Southfield attorney, in the November general election.

Cooper feels that the major issue this year is the state bureaucracy which, through its rules and regulations procedures, is almost a law-making body in itself. In addition to being burdensome, Cooper said, the bureaucracy also is costly.

Ross, on the other hand, feels that Cooper is an issue because of his opposition to lobbyist reform, legislative accountability and refusing to disclose his outside income, as well as being a part-time senator.

Cooper says he voted for the lobbyist reform act, although he also admits that he favored several amendments that others say were designed to weaken the measure. He also has said that, as an attorney, he cannot disclose his law practice income because that would be a violation of legal canons on client confidentiality.

At a time when Michigan legislatorss statand accused of accepting bribes and unethical loans, as well as operating as a private club instead of as a public body, Cooper's defense of his actions have a decidedly hollow ring.

We believe that Doug Ross, as a member of the state Senate, would help the legislature clean up its own act in addition to confronting the issues that face Michigan.

We endorse Doug Ross for the Democratic nomination for the state Senate in the 15th District and urge our readers to give him their vote in next week's primary election.

State Representative . . . Rosman

Three candidates — Elizabeth Geise of Milford, Dennis McCoy of Walled Lake, and Stephen Rosman of Commerce Township — are seeking the Democratic nomination for State Representative from the 24th District.

The winner of the primary will run against Incumbent Republican Richard Fessler of West Bloomfield in November.

While all three appear to be viable candidates, we feel that Stephen Rosman is the best choice for the Democratic nomination.

Mrs. Geise has compiled an impressive list of credentials within the Democratic party and as an activist in the women's rights movement. A party "insider," she has been a member of the Democratic State Central Committee and served two years as spokesperson of the Michigan Democratic Women's Caucus.

In spite of those credentials, we were disappointed in her knowledge of and inability to articulate the issues. We further believe she would be more of a team player than an effective leader for 24th District concerns.

McCoy appears to be the antithesis of Mrs. Geise: articulate and knowledgeable on the issues, but with little or no record on which to forecast his effectiveness. We believe he has the capacity to be a potentially strong legislator, but are uncomfortable with his virtual lack of a record.

That brings us to Rosman, the Commerce Township resident who spearheaded the fight to defeat the extension of the M-275 freeway through western Oakland County. Although we believe he has much to learn about the qualities which are necessary to be effective with other legislators, we also believe that he is the best choice in the Democratic primary.

Articulate and intelligent, Rosman speaks knowledgeably to the issues. We also believe that he has the courage and conviction to introduce innovative approaches to traditional problems as witnessed by his opposition to a freeway through an environmentally-fragile area and his introduction of a proposed growth limitation ordinance.

The environment and the spread of development are probably the top concerns in the 24th District and Rosman has demonstrated his willingness to attempt to deal with them.

We support Stephen Rosman for the Democratic nomination for State Representative from the 24th District.

Oakland Board . . . Hoyer

A pair of Novi residents — Dennis Murphy and Martha Hoyer — are vying for the Republican nomination for the 24th District seat on the Oakland County Board of Commissioners.

Murphy is the incumbent. He was elected to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Incumbent Republican Lew Coy in a special election in the spring of 1976 and was subsequently elected to a two-year term in the general election in November of 1976. Coy is presently running for his old seat as a Democrat and will face the winner of the Republican primary in the November general election.

Mrs. Hoyer is a former member of the Novi Planning Board and has been a Novi City Councilwoman for the past three years.

Although we endorsed Murphy with some reticence in each of his previous election bids, we have not been displeased with his performance in Pontiac.

On the other hand, we are troubled by an attendance record during 1977 which rated among the poorest on the board of commissioners. Further, we believe that he could have done much more to establish positive chains of communication with the communities in the 24th District.

Mrs. Hoyer, on the other hand, has impressed us with her capacity for hard work and dedication to her responsibilities as a member of the city council in Novi. We are convinced that she would establish better lines of communication between the communities of the district and county government.

Although we do not find her as knowledgeable on county issues as Murphy at the present time, we feel certain that her penchant for hard work will erase this shortcoming.

We endorse Martha Hoyer for the Republican nomination for the 24th District seat on the Oakland County Board of Commissioners.

Tax Allocation . . . Yes

Oakland County voters will be asked next Tuesday whether "separate tax limitations (shall) be established" for the allocation of the county's non-voted millage to the county, townships and school districts.

Basically, adoption of the proposal would abolish the county Tax Allocation Board, which meets each spring to divide the county's revenue pie among the units of government, and place a limit or ceiling on the amount of non-voted millage that may be levied.

The county Board of Commissioners and local elected officials would not have to levy the maximum millage and, in fact, county commissioners have indicated that they will hold the line on taxes by reducing millage to 5.06 mills, from 5.23, if the Headlee state tax limitation amendment is approved in November.

While the passage of the proposal would increase possible maximum millage rates from 15 mills to 15.05 for city residents and 16.46 for township residents, the advantage of doing away with the archaic Tax Allocation Board would outweigh the possibility of tax hikes.

Those advantages include:

—giving tax powers to elected officials rather than the appointed eight-member Tax Allocation Board;

—designating the fixed millage rates so local officials can plan ahead of fiscal matters without waiting for approval of non-voted county taxes from the Tax Allocation Board;

—elimination of the $6,500 annual expense for the Tax Allocation Board meetings and some $15,000 that goes into the preparation of the county allocation budget; and —elimination of the cost to local units of government for the preparation of allocation budgets.

According to County Executive Daniel T. Murphy, adoption of the proposal "is an important first step in the direction of property tax reform," in addition to making government more efficient and local officials responsible for setting millage rates.

We endorse the county proposal to establish separate tax limitations and strongly urge our readers to vote "yes."

U.S. Congress. . . Peterson

Two Democrats, L. J. Peterson of Birmingham and Betty Collier of Waterford, are seeking the nomination in the 19th District race for U.S. representative.

In the Democratic race, we endorse L. J. Peterson, a Presbyterian pastor, over Collier. Simply put, Peterson is by far the superior candidate.

Frankly, we find Collier disappointing. This is not her first venture into politics. She is' been active in Democratic Party politics at the local and state level for several years and ran for the Democratic nomination in the 19th District in 1976, losing by only 800 votes.

But as a candidate, even with one campaign already under her belt, Collier seemed ill-prepared to discuss the issues, speaking mostly in vague generalities with few specific ideas.

Even if he were not intelligent, articulate and candid, L. J. Peterson of Birmingham would easily win our support.

Six seek election to two Commerce board seats

The six candidates for two Republican Party nominations to the Commerce Township Board were asked to provide pictures, biographical information and position statements on the major issues facing township voters at the August 8 primary election.

Position statements were limited to 250 words.

There are no Democratic candidates for any township office this year. Supervisor Robert Long, Clerk Robert McGee and Treasurer Patrick Dohany, all Republicans, are unopposed in both the primary and general elections.

ROBERT D. ACKERSON

Is office manager and a member of the long-range planning committee of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company in Detroit and vice-president of Executive Compensation Plans, Incorporated, of Dearborn.

Holds a degree in personnel administration.

Serves as chairman of the Commerce Township Road Study Committee and is active in the Moose Club, United Foundation and American Legion. Has been active in the Jaycees, Boy Scouts and a Parent-Teacher Association.

Attends Shepherd of the Lakes Lutheran Church.

Resides with his wife, Rosa Lee, and their four children at 4907 Whitlow, Union Lake. Is 45 years old.

At the present time, Commerce Township has many issues confronting it.

Roads: On the August ballot, the people will be asked to make a choice as to the type of road or whatever they want. As a member of the study committee, I am already on record as being in favor of a parkway type road of four lanes, not six, and built to conform to landscape and the type of community we have. I am not in favor of a "super highway."

Ambulance Service: I feel the township should enter into a contract with Fleet and let the professionals do the job they are trained for rather than train firemen. Again it comes down to economics which would involve a high cost, if we used firemen. I feel the firemen could be trained to a certain point which would help in certain situations, but I feel that they could not wear two hats and do a good job in both areas.

Township Incorporation: This is vital to the community and will stabilize our borders and eliminate the risk of annexation. It will enable the Planning Commission to complete the master plan and, in general, relieve a lot of worry.

Super Sewer: I feel that we should not pull out, but should remain active in the future planning. This would save in the long run and should be presented to the people so that it does not look like sewers are going to be built next week at a high cost — these are a long way down the road.

PAUL COLLOM

Is a partner in the Tri-All Building Company.

Is a member of the Commerce Township Republican Club, Union Lake Jaycees and Commerce Township Parks Committee.

Is a life-long resident of the Lakes Area and former partner in Action Cycle.

Was an unsuccessful candidate for Republican nomination for trustee in 1974.

Resides with his wife, Marilyn, and their four children at 2140 Sunnybrook, Milford. Is 36 years old.

The issues facing the citizens in the near future are as follows:

1. Pending boundary disputes and annexation attempts by neighboring communities. The best solution at this time is to continue to work to establish a charter township.

2. Once a charter township is established, the question of the tax rate to be spread is opened up. I will not support any tax rate increase for general fund operation over the present 1.41 millage without a vote of the people.

3. The need for a major north-south route through the Commerce area is commonly acknowledged. The need for such a route is still growing daily. On August 8, an advisory vote of area voters will indicate the will of the people in regard to this question. I will support that vote.

4. I am opposed to the immediate installation of sewers in Commerce Township. I realize the need in the future for sewers because existing septic systems will not meet future health standards. To plan for the future need, at the least possible cost, I endorse the current township position of reserving (super) sewer capacity.

As far as issues are concerned, Commerce Township in the past has been run by a very efficient government body and, as far as personal issues, I can find none, but there are some community issues which will have to be confronted. They are as follows:

1. Property Taxes and Local Spending: At present, Commerce operates on only 1.41 mills which is about three-percent of our tax bill. With the help of outside income, we have been able to exist. Therefore, I believe that no additional millage should be levied without a vote of the people.

2. Charter Township: I endorse the action of the Township Board in establishing us as a charter township. We need this action in order to protect our present boundaries. Many times in the past, I have worked with the township in fighting off attempts by neighboring communities that have tried to annex our industrial areas.

3. Super Sewer: Even though I am opposed to the immediate installation of sewers in Commerce, we must plan for the future. I, therefore, endorse the current township position of reserving capacity in super sewer. Any time that the DNR should decree that the township has met the ground saturation point, they can mandate that we put in a system of our own. This could be a far greater expense than taking action at this time.

4. The need for a major north-south route through Commerce grows greater every day. I don't know which route will be selected by the Highway Commission, but one will have to be built very soon. Also I support the will of the people on the August 8 advisory vote.

Roads: A north-south parkway through Commerce Township is definitely needed. The McConnell plan seems to be the best compromise. Those who favor the freeway concept need only take a drive on I-275 south of Ann Arbor Trail and observe the noise barriers being erected between the freeway and the residential dwellings. We certainly don't want that condition in Commerce Township.

Charter Township vs. Cityhood: Becoming a charter township will allow for planned growth without the pressures for services normally associated with cityhood.

Property Tax Collection Reform: I would like to investigate the possibility of semi-annual property tax collections. This would in effect reduce taxes or reduce the need for tax increase associated with school operation by eliminating the need for the school system to borrow money to cover salaries during the last quarter of the year.

We favor bike paths. 6. We oppose the Rosman plan on controlled building. 7. Super sewer, without a federal grant, is out of the question.

Hoyer, Murphy seek county commision nomination

Hoyer

Challenging incumbent Republican 24th District Oakland County Commissioner Dennis Murphy in the August 8 primary will be Mrs. Martha Hoyer, a member of the Novi City Council.

The winner of the Murphy — Hoyer contest gains the right to meet Democratic candidate Lew Coy in the November election. Coy held the commissioner's post before Murphy was elected two years ago.

Mrs. Hoyer has campaigned on the issue of Murphy's visibility in the district and has commented on his attendance record, which has been recorded as the second worst among the 27 commissioners in 1977.

"I feel I will devote more time to the job," Mrs. Hoyer states. "I have the time available to devote. I will be in constant contact with not only the public officials, but also the people in my district.

"I feel I can do a good job representing the citizens of the 24th District. I can be vocal if I need to be, or I can establish a rapport and work with people, whichever way I feel is needed to get the job done."

Mrs. Hoyer points to her own attendance record in her three years on the Novi City Council where she has missed only one meeting and states she would continue to attend as many meetings as possible on the county level.

Mrs. Hoyer has also charged that not enough of the funds on the county level are coming back to the 24th District.

"I feel the 24th District is a step-child," Mrs. Hoyer states. "It doesn't receive the funds that are given to the northern section of the district."

Mrs. Hoyer says that the 24th District, on a percentage basis, does not receive as much monies as do those areas of the county which are more densely populated.

As an example, she cites the attention given to the City of Novi last winter concerning the maintenance of roads. Mrs. Hoyer says the city was not given the service or manpower that was extended to other areas of the county.

Novi officials blasted members of the Oakland County Road Commission for lack of attention to maintenance of county roads within the city. At the time, 24th District Commissioner Murphy defended the Road Commission, saying that nothing could have kept the roads in good shape.

No promise is given by Mrs. Hoyer that she will improve the level of maintenance of roads in 24th District cities, but she does say she will seek improvement in that area.

Mrs. Hoyer has also stated she will establish regular office hours in the various communities in the 24th District.

"I think the commissioner should regularly check in with the communities in the district," she states.

Mrs. Hoyer says she would have voted against the county pullout from the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA). She says she would not be opposed to local communities picking up a share of the cost of operating the SEMTA Lakes Area Special bus service until the state OCART program takes over in October.

The SEMTA bus has been running into problems recently, since local communities have balked at a request from SEMTA for partial funding of the program.

On the need for additional roads in the area, Mrs. Hoyer favors construction of the original M-275 freeway over the several alternatives that have been introduced.

"I think a north-south artery is definitely needed," Mrs Hoyer says. "I personally favor the construction of M-275 because the alternatives I've seen do just as much damage to the environment as M-275 would."

She adds that the area seems just to get "patch jobs" instead of new construction.

Mrs. Hoyer also expresses concern at the small area forecasts released by the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG).

She says none of the seven alternate forecasts are acceptable to her, because all of them place a great deal of emphasis on curtailing growth in the suburbs. She says SEMCOG seems to be "getting a bit dictatorial."

On the Oakland County Organized Crime Task Force, Mrs. Hoyer says "It seems to be quite effective in making headlines for (Oakland County Prosecutor) L. Brooks (Patterson)." She says the effectiveness and need of the force should be justified through figures before it is given funding for the next year.

Mrs. Hoyer supports the county move toward resource recovery — the concept of recycling waste products.

"Something will be needed as the population continues to expand," she says.

She adds the program may cost more to implement if county officials put it off for too long.

Besides her three years on the Novi City Council, Mrs. Hoyer previously served two years on the Novi Planning Board.

Murphy

"I feel I have done a good job so far," says 24th District Oakland County Commissioner Dennis Murphy, "and I hope the people will vote for me so I can continues to do a good job."

Murphy, who serves as vice-president of the Bank of the Commonwealth in Detroit, faces Novi City Councilwoman Martha Hoyer in the Republican primary August 8. The winner of the Murphy-Hoyer contest faces Democratic candidate Lew Coy in November.

Murphy says he has been very active in winning additional programs for citizens of the 24th district from the county and says the district's share of funds from the county has steadily increased since he took office two years ago.

Murphy points to tax dollars at work in the county Emergency Medical Service program which should get underway soon, the senior citizens' lunch program and work on the Greenaway Drain as just some of the areas for which he has been at least partly responsible.

"It's obvious we're getting a good share," Murphy says. "Basically, I'm greedy for the district and I'd like to see more, but obviously we're making some headway. We're making gains."

Murphy says he has attempted to make as many county commissioner meetings as possible and considers himself as well-informed on the issues as any of the other 26 commissioners.

He says every city official in his district realizes he is available and is willing to work on volving any problems they might have.

Murphy says he has maintained a low profile throughout his two-year term.

"I get things done," Murphy says. "I don't go around and brag about it."

Murphy says he has been charged with a low-visibility during his term, but he maintains that charges arise only from the fact that he does not choose to publicize his accomplishments on the board.

The challenge from Mr. Hoyer has irritated Murphy, who claims that Mrs. Hoyer has never been involved in Republican politics before.

"I would classify her as a come-lately Republican," Murphy says. "To my knowlege, she's never done party work, at least not at the county and local level."

Murphy says he would expect a true Republican to view his record and allow him to seek the nomination unopposed.

"It baffles me more than anything else," Murphy maintains.

Murphy has been active in the fight to get the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA) to assume total funding of the Lakes Area Special bus service, rather than allowing SEMTA to get shares from each of the communities involved in the program.

Murphy says Oakland County already pays a tax to the state to fund SEMTA and the community share for the service would represent double taxation.

Murphy favors withdrawal from the SEMTA system if no "significant strides" are made in the next few weeks.

SEMTA is employing "scare tactics" to win the local funding, Murphy says, and he is prepared to take legal action if necessary against the agency.

On the issue of the Task Force on Organized Crime, Murphy holds an open stance. While admitting the concept of an organized crime task force is "sound," Murphy adds there is a question of it effectiveness and how much of the county's money should be expended on that purpose.

The difficulty comes in trying to determine its effectiveness, Murphy says, because there are few readily available statistics by which to judge the task force.

Murphy also questions whether the task force is not being used to further Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson's political future. Patterson is running for the United States Senate.

On the M-275 controversy, Murphy supports the construction of a north-south route with limited access.

"The freeway may, or may not, be the answer," Murphy says.

He adds he thinks there has been too much discussion on the project and says he opposes the idea of placing the question of whether a road should be built on the August primary ballot.

"It will only muddy the water again," Murphy says. "I don't think voters will know what they are voting on."

Murphy is not alarmed with forecasts released by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) concerning population projections for communities in the 24th District, particularly Novi.

The figures show an alarmingly slow growth rate for Novi, in direct contrast with predictions of city officials. The forecasts are important, because they would be used in deciding whether federal grants would be approved for a city.

Murphy says he believes there will be changes in the forecasts as more cities register their concern.

Youths' swing through bank ends in mighty crash

In Novi

A couple of young men have learned the hard way that an eleven foot high truck cannot go through an eight foot high hole — at least without some damage.

Two young men were taken to Botsford Hospital with multiple lacerations July 28 after one of them tried to swing a truck through the drive-in window of the National Bank of Detroit at Eight Mile and Haggerty Roads.

The truck, too high for the clearance, smashed into the wall and did extensive damage to both the bank and the truck.

Novi police reported to the scene a few minutes later and discovered that the door to the bank had been smashed open. Guards in Detroit were called to stand watch over the bank.

A 33 year old Novi woman, wearing nothing but a pair of pants and carrying a mop and an eight foot long clothesline, was picked up by Novi police July 31 along Ten Mile Road.

The woman was apparently trying to solicit males for the purpose of prostitution, police said. When police arrived, the woman made indecent gestures and swore violently at them.

At the station, the woman was placed in a holding cell, where she beat the walls and her own body. She also took her clothes off on several occasions.

The woman's sister was contacted and she said she would take the necessary steps to have the woman committed to a mental institution.

The woman was about five months pregnant, police said.

A 28 year old Novi woman living along Beachwalk was awakened about 5 a.m. July 28 by the sounds of someone tampering with her bedroom window.

The woman reported to police she sat up in bed and saw a man at the window. The man bent back the screen partition, she told police, and opened the sliding glass door.

The man then reached through the window, she reported, and entered her bedroom. The woman then reported the man said, "Oh well, hello there." and tried to place his arm around her. She ran into another bedroom in the house and screamed to wake her upstairs neighbor.

The neighbor was woken up and called police. When police arrived, no sign could be found of the man who had tried to break into the apartment.

Police received a description of the man as a white male with light hair, a mustache and a round face.

A 22 year old Farmington Hills woman reported to police a man had attacked her after he had picked her up hitchhiking along Ten Mile Road June 28.

The woman told police she was trying to get to a gas station at the corner of Ten Mile Road and Novi Road to use a pay phone and accepted a ride from a lone white male.

Soon after picking her up, she reported, the man pulled southbound down Beck Road and made advances toward her. She told police she then ran out of the vehicle and the man sped off.

A brand new Plymouth Horizon was given the torch by an arsonist June 24.

Police and firefighters found the vehicle burning in a structure east of Meadowbrook Road on the north side of 12 Mile.

The burned auto had a strong smell of fuel oil in its interior, police reported.

In Wixom

Two men stopped for an alleged malicious destruction of property incident at the Susan Manor Apartments on Pontiac Trail Sunday morning netted Wixom police with a pair suspected in a breaking and entering.

Off-duty police officer Jack Grubb of the Novi Police Department detained the men after their cars reportedly swerved through the lawn near his apartment.

Wixom Police investigating the incident reported seeing a large quantity of potato chips, pop, cigarettes, golf balls, beer, bread and napkins loaded in a station wagon belonging to one of the men.

A second wagon belonging to the other suspect was also said to hold similar articles. Police linked the two to an earlier breaking and entering at the Stonycroft Country Club in Bloomfield Hills.

The suspects told police they had missed a turn into another apartment complex on Pontiac Tail and attempted to make a turn at Susan Manor. Swerving across the lawn, one car was stopped with a flat tire.

A tri-axle trailer was reported stolen Saturday from its parking spot at 49200 Grand River. The trailer, described as a duck tail with double folding ramps and hardwood deck, was valued at $1000.

The owner told police the right front tire was flat when he last observed the trailer Friday night.

Two larcenies from autos, both thought to have occurred between 6 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., July 24, gained thieves two car radios.

Both owners reported the cars were locked before reporting for work at the Ford Motor Company. One car was entered by punching out the door lock.

In both cases, the middle part of the dashboard was removed and the radios disconected at the plug units. There was no damage to the interiors of the cars.

A 10-speed bike was chosen from a group of six bicycles parked on a driveway of a home on Chanticlare Circle, to be spirited away by an unknown assailant.

The bike, valued at $101, was reported stolen sometime between 10:30 p.m. and midnight Friday.

Novi housing short of expectations

two more years.

"Sales have slowed down a lot in the last four to six weeks due to vacations and a tight money market," Grewal says.

The Petros subdivisions, located between Ten and Eleven Mile Roads east of Taft Road, will probably see about 50 homes completed this year. The homes will cost about $75,000.

Construction has already begun on the Howell-Walled Lake Subdivision, located at the corner of Novi and 13 Mile Roads. The subdivision, platted years ago, will be made up of 60-foot lots. About 25 of the 50 homes proposed are anticipated for completion in 1978.

Officials from the North Hills Village Apartments, located on the south side of Nine Mile Road and the west side of Center Street, expect to finish approximately 100 units this year. The complex will have 180 units when completed.

A spokesman for the Meadowbrook Apartments, located near the Meadowbrook Glens Subdivision, says 65 one and two-bedroom units should be ready for occupancy by the end of the year.

The apartments will be developed by builder Chuck Barton.

Singh Associates, the developers of the Turtle Creek Subdivision, also hope to complete 60 units in its Twelve Oaks Townhouse complex. The development will be made up of eight buildings of five units apiece.

Country Place Condominiums, located at Eight Mile and Meadowbrook Roads, anticipate the construction of an additional 100 units, to be housed in 20 buildings.

Another 14 condominium buildings, comprising 56 units, will be added to the Stonehenge Condominiums, located on Haggerty Road between Nine and Ten Mile Roads.

Probably the major reason for the discrepancy between earlier estimates and the estimates made by developers are the delays of construction into the 1979 season.

Jack Fromm, with the Beztak Company, reports not one of the 343 lots proposed in the Dunbarton Pines Subdivision, located behind Brookland Farms, will be completed this year.

Fromm says work will begin to get all utilities installed and the paving completed before the start of the 1979 construction season. He says the major reason behind the delay is the time spent trying to win permits and approvals from the various agencies with jurisdiction over construction.

Another development, the Carriage Hill Subdivision, located north of Meadowbrook Manor, has already won site plan approval, but will delay construction until 1979. Chester Koppy said construction of the $100,000 plus homes had never been slated for 1978, however.

Other subdivisions which have won site plan approval, but which have no plans to proceed this year, are:

— Hummingbird Estates, a 95-lot subdivision, located on Beck Road south of Ten Mile Road.

— Birch Woods Subdivision, a 45-lot subdivision, located on Wixom and Ten Mile Roads.

— Jamestown Green, a 260-lot subdivision on Ten Mile Road next to Glenda Street.

— a 57-lot subdivision to be developed by Ben Marks Company on 20 acres north of the Carriage Hill Subdivision.

— Joe Weis Apartments, a 32-unit complex next to the Twelve Oaks Townhouses.

The great building permit race may mean little anyway in Novi, if the present rate of construction should continue for long.

City officials say about 2,500 sewer taps remain in the city, so if the 1978 building rate should continue, those taps would be used up in about four years.

Novi okays cash gift

The Novi City Council July 13 accepted a $30,000 "gift" from the Beztak Company of Southfield in return for the immediate paving of Taft Road from Nine to Ten Mile Road.

In addition, the company gave the city $52,000 for the $10 per front foot charge for paving the road. The company is building the Dunbarton Pines Subdivison along the stretch.

The question of whether to accept the inducement arose in February after the owners of the company offered to give the city $20,000 to upgrade the paving of the road from Class B to Class A.

In exchange for the extra money, the city was asked to move ahead on the paving of the road.

The discussion became further muddied when City Engineer Harry Mosher stated the city would not be able to upgrade the road to Class A for $20,000, but would require at least $10,000 more.

Then City Councilmember Bob Schmid questioned why the city needed a Class A road anyway. A Class B road was sufficient for most needs, Schmid argued.

Schmid suggested the city take the $30,000 that would have been used for upgrading the road and use it for furthering the troubled road program. The road program has been sliced from 18 to 15 miles because of unanticipated costs obtaining right-of-ways.

Schmid made a motion to accept the $30,000 and it passed on a 4-3 vote, with members Schmid, Ron Watson, Mayor Romaine Roethel and Guy Smith in favor and members Jim Shaw, Martha Hoyer and Pat Karevich opposed.

At the July 31 meeting, only Hoyer dissented in the vote to proceed with the paving of the road. Mrs. Karevich was absent.

that the firm had turned the matter over to its attorneys since they couldn't reach Lakewood owner Gordon Gouch.

Although township and bond company officials have been unable to reach Lakewood, Berry noted that the sub-contractors have been able to contact the firm to open the building for their work.

One sub-contractor was reported to have been working at the site last Friday, Shapiro said.

At that time, township officials met with Attorney Doug Chartrand, who prepared draft copies of letters to terminate the contract.

The letters noted that Lakewood, which apparently is now doing business as LaConCo, failed to complete the project on time; failed to promptly pay sub-contractors; failed to provide enough workers to complete the building; failed to provide the township with requested weekly pay summaries; failed to pay utility bills; and failed to respond to Commerce officials' request for information on the problems.

Chartrand said that, if the board decides to fire Lakewood, the trustees then could ask the bond company to take over the project or seize the contractor's equipment and materials to finish the job in any manner they deem necessary.

The architects also have certified that sufficient progress hasn't been made on the community center.

Long said he feared that, if the contractor is fired, it will take quite a while to complete the project while, at the same time, meeting federal regulations.

If the supervisor is unsuccessful in resolving the problems with the contractor, board members indicated that they would vote August 15 to give Lakewood the required seven days' notice.

While most of the work has been completed, township officials estimated it could take another two weeks to finish the center.

The township awarded the $151,900 contract to Lakewood last September, with a completion date set for this spring.

According to Shapiro, some $137,200 has been spent on the center already, although the township still has $27,225 to complete the work. That figure, however, includes 10 percent of the cost that has been held back until completion of the facility.

With outstanding bills of some $10,000, Long said it could be "tight" to bring the building in at the estimated cost.

Lorraine Tool and Die's Terry Kay gets ready to belt one

LTD clinches yet another Novi women's title share

Lorraine Tool and Die clinched at least a share of its fifth straight Novi women's league softball title last week with victories over Typewriter Shop and Suburban Rent-It.

The local powerhouse has now won 19 league games in a row dating back to 1976, and over the past four seasons has compiled a remarkable 39-2 record.

Patti Ward, Terri Kay and Shelly MacDermaid all went 3-for-5 and Ward knocked in five runs to pace LTD's 14-5 triumph over Typewriter Shop last Tuesday. MacDermaid powered two triples and a home run in her five trips to the plate.

Two days later the league leaders used a balanced hitting attack to rout Suburban Rent-It, 15-3. Sally Larzelere's run-scoring triple was Suburbans's big hit of the game.

The wins vaulted LTD, now 9-0 on the season, three full games ahead of second-place Goat Farm with just three games remaining.

In other women's league action last week Goat Farm plastered Michigan National Bank 22-5 on Tuesday but then suffered a 9-5 setback at the hands of Typewriter Shop Thursday.

The second-place club, which now sports a 6-3 mark, exploded for 24 hits against National Bank and scored 14 runs in the first inning alone. Ginger Gillick, Karen Taylor and Debbie Turner all went 4-for-4 and scored four runs each to pace the winners.

The outcome was reversed two days later, though, when Typewriter Shop broke loose for seven runs in the fourth and fifth innings to snap a 2-2 deadlock and beat Goat Farm, 9-5.

Ramona Farras was 3-for-4 for the winners while Dana Bauer went 3-for-4 and Patti Cameron added a triple for Goat Farm.

Typewriter Shop's victory over Goat Farm lifted their record to 3-6 for the season.

I-L East wins sassoon title

It took the Inter-Lakes East squad eight games to win the 1978 Sassoon Pigtail tournament last weekend, but according to Coach Tom Brunner, a tired champion is still a champion.

"We did it the hard way," said Brunner after his East squad dropped its opening game in the nine-team tournament and had to fight its way back through the loser's bracket for the tourney title.

Ironically, after bowing in the opener to Sterling Heights the Inter-Lakes East squad came all the way back through the losers bracket to face the same Sterling Heights team in the semi-finals. And needing two victories over the only team to beat them, the East girls came through...twice.

But it was a long time in coming.

After losing to Sterling Heights 9-3 in the tournament opener Friday night, the East squad knocked off South Farmington in the first of three games in the losers bracket on Saturday.

The East squad then knocked off Romeo and the rival Inter-Lakes West squad to keep its title hopes alive.

But the three-game Saturday 'warn't nuthin' compared to the four games in succession that the girls played on Sunday to win the title.

At 11 a.m. the Easterners turned back the Garden City Chicks, and at 2 p.m. the local unit downed the Garden City Panthers. That led to the 4 p.m. showdown with the only other team left in the tournament, Sterling Heights.

In the do-or-die first game, the Inter-Lakes East girls outslugged their counterparts, 14-8. The locals came back from a 6-2 deficit to take the lead in the fifth inning and hang on for the win.

In the tournament finale, the East squad jumped on the Sterling Heights team early and didn't allow a run in the 6-0 win. Lisa Doria smacked a two-run triple in the first inning for the only needed runs as pitcher Patti Schodowski held the runners-up scoreless.

"Patti throws a real high arc," said Coach Brunner. "Most of the girls throw a six or seven foot arc, but Patti throws an 11-footer and the girls weren't used to it. She's undoubtedly the best pitcher in our league."

Brunner also complimented the pitching of Michelle Lynch, who led the East squad through the long haul back to the finals.

So how did the local squad manage to twice beat the team that had beaten them earlier?

"I think that first game Sunday broke them down," said Brunner. "We psyched them out, but our pitching had a lot to do with it. Also, I had the benefit of a lot of place hitters. We quit hitting the ball in the air and began hitting them in the holes."

"In that very first tournament game, we weren't ready for them," he said. "They were small but they were tough. It was the first game our girls had played together and we weren't on track."

The top players in the Inter-Lakes Sassoon division were drafted onto the East and West squads. The West team won its opener, but bowed out of the tournament at the hands of the East squad two games later.

Members of the championship East team are: Linda Angot, Bridget Arens, Lisa Bruner, Lisa Doria, Lori Gustafson, Corky Kitzman, Michelle Lynch, Patsy Matheson, Peggy Hathaway, Phyliss Sacco, Patti Schodowski, Phyllis Schodowski, Karen Sulla, and Debbie Young.

Michigan Tractor wins, nears division crown

Michigan Tractor all but wrapped up Novi's National Division men's softball title with a pair of easy victories over Little Valley Mobile Homes last week.

Sparked by John Pantalone and Eddie and Dave Brown, the local resident league powerhouse stormed to a 14-8 victory in the first game of a doubleheader Thursday, then roared to a 26-11 rout in the nightcap.

Pantalone went 4-for-4, including a home run, and scored four times to pace the 14-8 triumph while Eddie and Dave Brown contributed a home run each. Brian Dennen had a home run and two singles for the losers.

In the nightcap Pantalone added three more home runs and five RBI's helping Tractor stretch its lead to three full games over Little Valley. The winners scored 21 runs in the third, fourth and fifth innings after creeping out to a 4 lead in the first two.

Also lending a hand in the 26-11 triumph were Eddie Brown (5-for-5 and four RBI's), Gary Ford (two home runs and six RBI's), Dave Brown (two home runs) and Mike Riley (one home run). Dennen went 4-for-4 and Dave Peitrowicz added two home runs and five RBI's to pace Little Valley.

Combined with a 24-17 victory over Mansfield Cabinets, the two wins over Little Valley gave Michigan Tractor a 16-4 record this season. Little Valley, which beat Portec 19-12 for its lone victory last week, is now 13-7.

In American Division action, meanwhile, Cardona's Pizza opened up a five-game bulge with 12-5 and 8-7 victories over the second-place Novi Jaycees, hiking their record to 16-1.

Dave Hartman went 4-for-4 with a home run and four RBI's and Roger Dery cracked a homer to pace Monday's 12-5 triumph.

Two days later Hartman smacked a two-run homer, his second of the day, with one out in the bottom of the seventh inning to give the divisional leaders an 8-7 thriller. Bill Ayotte also had a homer for Cardona's while Jeff Strehling went 3-for-4 and had two RBI's for the losers.

The Jaycees' two losses, combined with a 12-2 victory over Novi Inn, left them tied for second with Novi Police Officers Association (NPOA). Both clubs are 12-7.

NPOA blasted Stonehenge 25-6 last Monday and Novi Firemen 22-0 on Wednesday to gain the tie.

Mike Butler had four hits and Bob Overmars and Bob Kin three apiece to lead the triumph over Stonehenge.

Two days later Joe and Bob Kin combined for five home runs to pace the victory over Firemen. Joe Kin belted three homers and had six RBI's, Bob Kin added two homers and Overmars one while Larry Taylor went 4-for-4 for the winners.

Only one week now remains in the resident league season.

Fifth Rainbow Tournament is slated for mid-August

The Union Lake Colonels are now taking entrants to their fifth annual Rainbow Slowpitch softball tournament to be held August 11-13 at Clintonwood Park in Clarkston.

The tournament is open to any Class C or B residential league team that has not won a tournament in 1978. The fee will be $80 for the double elimination tournament with sponsor trophies awarded to the top six finishers.

All games will be played on three fields in Clintonwood Park, two of which are lighted for night play. The first place team will receive ten H & C Bombats and the second place team five.

The only changes from ASA rules will be a third strike foulout, and a three ball walk. There will be a ten run mercy rule after five innings.

The $80 entry fee should be sent to Max Burt, P.O. Box 128, Walled Lake, Michigan, 48088. Questions regarding the tournament should be directed to Burt at 363-0599.

Walled Lake girls show supremacy over Novi in pigtail showdown

Walled Lake's mighty Pigtailers left little doubt about their superiority in a doubleheader clash with Inter-Lakes League rival Novi last Friday.

With Marshann Hensley leading the way on offense and Kathy Fuson and Lee Mein turning in a pair of strong pitching performances, coach Jack Grubb's forces rolled to 14-2 and 17-0 victories at Reiley Field, hiking their record to 10-4 this saeson.

Hensley was flawless at the plate, going 7-for-7 and collecting five RBI's in the two games combined.

She had three doubles and three RBI's in three at-bats in the opener as Walled Lake erupted for 10 runs in the second inning and never looked back.

Capping the second-inning rally were back-to-back doubles by Margaret Grubb, Hensley and Beth Mead followed by a triple by Fuson.

Two innings later the winners scored four more times on a run-scoring single by Lisa Sahajdack, a two-run double by Hensley and a sacrifice fly by Mead.

Novi's only two runs came on a bases-loaded walk that forced Denise Burnham home and a sacrifice fly by Brenda Campbell. Fuson limited the visitors to just three base hits in the five-inning contest, with Burnham and Lori Tuck getting two of them to start the fifth-inning rally.

In the nightcap Walled Lake again jumped ahead early, racing out to an 11-0 lead in the first three innings on its way to a 17-0 rout.

Mead's two-run double highlighted a three-run outburst for Grubb's girls in the first inning. Two innings later they exploded for eight more — scoring all of them with two outs — to take a commanding 11-0 advantage.

With Mein on first base and two outs, Tracy Grubb triggered the third-inning rally with a single, and then came four consecutive doubles by Margaret Grubb, Hensley, Mead and Bobbi Brewer. Kris Mellema singled home the final tally.

The winners added two more in the fifth on an RBI single by Mellema and a sacrifice fly by Fuson, then closed with four more in a seventh-inning outburst capped by Mellema's bases-loaded triple.

Hensley went 4-for-4 to complete a perfect evening while Mellema, Brewer and Mead all went 3-for-4. Mellema had five RBI's while Brewer and Mead added three apiece.

Mein pitched a seven-hitter and went the distance for the victory. Campbell and Kim Selep both went 2-for-3 to pace the Novi effort.

Walled Lake's victories kept the team within one game of league-leading South Farmington, which boasted a 10-2 record as of last weekend. Earlier in the week South Farmington cost Walled Lake a chance to climb into first place with a 6-1 victory over the local girls.

Walled Lake managed only three hits in the contest, including a pair of singles by Fuson and Mellema in the sixth inning that produced the team's lone run.

Novi, meanwhile, dropped to 4-8 on the season and is mired in fourth place in the six-team league.

Walled Lake hosts South Lyon, which carried an 8-3 record into this week's games, in a contest at Reiley Field tonight beginning at 6:30 p.m. This Saturday Novi hosts last-place Redford in a doubleheader starting at 3 p.m.

Dolphins win it on total points, host champ meet

The Walled Lake Flying Dolphins have been awarded first place in the A division of the Northwest Parks and Recreation summer swimming league, according to team coach Del Covington.

The Dolphins posted a 2-1 record in dual meets, identical to the records of both Huntington Woods and Clawson. However, on the basis of total points posted in the three dual meets, Walled Lake was awarded the winning position.

"I think we outpointed Huntington Woods by about 15," said Dolphin coach Del Covington.

Walled Lake had beaten Clawson and fourth place Southfield while losing to Huntington Woods for its 2-1 record. Huntington Woods had lost to Clawson, and both teams knocked off Southfield to account for the three-way tie.

The Flying Dolphins host the championship meet today and Thursday at the Walled Lake Western pool. Swimming begins at 2:30 p.m.

Same old story for Novi legion

A problem that's been plaguing Novi's American Legion baseball team all summer long came back to haunt them one more time in their regular season finale Sunday.

The problem has been hitting — actually the lack of it — a problem that's resulted in only 10 runs in the club's last 60 innings of play, and 12 losses in the last 14 games.

Sunday it cost them a chance to sweep Farmington in a season-ending doubleheader.

After beating the visitors 1-0 in the opener on the strength of another sparkling pitching performance by Steve Weber, Novi dropped the nightcap 3-0. Combined with a 5-4 loss to Troy-Birmingham earlier in the week, the local squad wound up 7-16 in its maiden year of Legion baseball play.

Weber was almost flawless in the opener, allowing just six hits and two walks in going the distance for his first victory in five decisions this summer. In each of his four previous starts the tough-luck righthander had gone all the way but lost by scores of 1-0, 2-0, 3-2 and 4-3.

This time, though, he was supported by what manager Tom Shillito termed "our best defensive game of the year" and just enough offensive output to get by. The only run of the contest came in the fifth inning when Scott Taylor reached first on an infield error, then scored on a single up the middle by Jeff Laverty plus an error.

The winners managed just four hits in all — one each by Laverty, Weber, Randy Lewis and Keith Crosslin.

The tables were turned in the second game, though, when Farmington scored once in the fourth inning and twice more in the seventh for a 3-0 triumph.

Laverty gave up just six hits in going the distance on the mound, but suffered his third loss in eight decisions this year. Novi scrounged up only three hits in the contest — one each by Laverty, Crosslin and John Radnothy — and it marked the sixth time in eight games the local club had failed to score more than one run.

Earlier in the week Novi had rallied from a 4-0 deficit to tie the game, only to lose a 5-4 heartbreaker to Troy-Birmingham.

Trailing 4-0 after three innings, Shillito's squad scored twice in the fourth on a squeeze bunt by Weber followed by an error with two men on. One inning later they pulled even on a run-scoring single by Laverty and a successful squeeze by Lewis.

Troy-Brimingham scored once in the sixth, though, to win the game. Laverty topped the local squad with three hits, including a double.

Novi will compete next week in a six-day tournament for 16 and 17-year-olds at Milford.

"Right now we're playing good defense, we're running the bases well and we're getting strong pitching, but we're just not hitting the ball," Shillito noted after Sunday's doubleheader. "I think we'll show a little more at the (Milford) tournament. We're really pointing to that."

You may even be able to use the equity built up in your present home or building site to get started on a new Capp Home.
Come see for yourself at a Capp Open House. You'll have a chance to inspect a Capp Home that's partially completed, and decide whether you're cut out to finish a Capp Home.

St. William's rally upends Cedar Crest for title

New church league champs

It all boiled down to the last game of the season to determine the champion of the Walled Lake Community Education Church League American Conference. And St. Williams grabbed the title with an 11-6 win over Cedar Crest Lutheran.

St. Williams utilized a seven-run seventh inning to overcome a 6-4 deficit in the championship game. Both teams had entered the final regular season game with 8-3 records, and while St. Williams will walk away with the conference trophy, Cedar Crest will have to wait until next year.

But that almost wasn't the case as Cedar Crest overcame a 4-1 disadvantage of their own with a big five-run sixth inning. The eventual losers grabbed the 6-4 lead with one inning to play by having all five runners cross the plate with two outs. Doubles by Warren Schott, Charles Paul, and John Carlson were the key blows for Cedar Crest in the sixth. Rick Foster homered for the runner-ups' first run in the opening inning.

But in the fateful seventh, St. Williams scored seven times on seven hits to post the winning margin. Mike Kryskowski and Mark Kryskowski started the inning with singles. And with one out, Rick Wisenburger doubled them both home. Lenny Dries and Joe Schuld both followed with doubles, and after another out, Bruce Taylor and Mike Aschinger also doubled.

"That's good balanced hitting," said St. Williams Coach Jim Clifton," and the best part of it is that we got it when we needed it. There isn't any 'next time' in the last inning."

The championship was the first for St. Williams since Clifton has been associated with the club.

Best ball tourney winners named

The two-man team Chuck Seets and Tom Carmichael ran away from the rest of the field in the second annual Walled Lake Community Education best ball golf tournament at Andersonville Oaks last Saturday.

Seets of Pontiac, and Carmichael from Ortonville, carded a best ball 66 to win the tournament by four strokes over runners-up Fritz and Bob Tallian. The Tallian brothers' 70 was two strokes better than a trio of teams that completed the 18 holes with 72's.

"It was a real fine tournament," said Director Randy Kibiloski. "We had 38 teams competing and we could've easily had 55 if we could've found more tee times. This was the biggest field we've had so far."

The major excitement in the tournament was the three-way battle for third place. Rex and Jim Scarborough, Gerald Klisz and Carl Sundermeyer, and Box Foxworth and Denny Shearer were forced into a post-round playoff after each team carded 72's.

The playoff lasted only one hole, however, as the Scarborough brothers totalled a four, while Klisz-Sundermeyer scored a five, and Foxworth-Shearer shot a six.

"I was real pleased with the turnout we had this year," said Kibiloski, "I only wish we could've let everybody play."

Wixomite records ace at Brooklane course

John Fullford may have only three years of golfing experience under his belt, but in one area anyway he can claim greater achievement than many a lifetime pro.

The 25-year-old State Police officer from Wixom recorded his second hole-in-one in two summers last Wednesday morning at Brooklane Golf Course in Northville.

Using a nine-iron, he aced the 144-yard fourth hole and wound up with an 18-hole score of 74 over Brooklane's par 60 layout.

Fullford, who says he normally shoots about 44 or 45 over nine-hole par 36 courses, first learned to golf three summers ago while living in Petoskey, and it was there he collected his first ace last summer.

Fullford moved to Wixom about two months ago, and claims his round at Brooklane last week marked only the fourth time he's been out on the links this year.

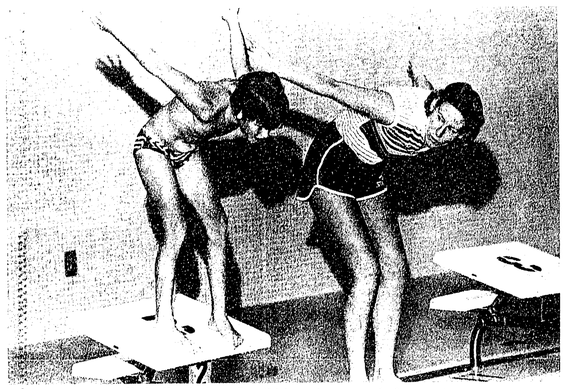
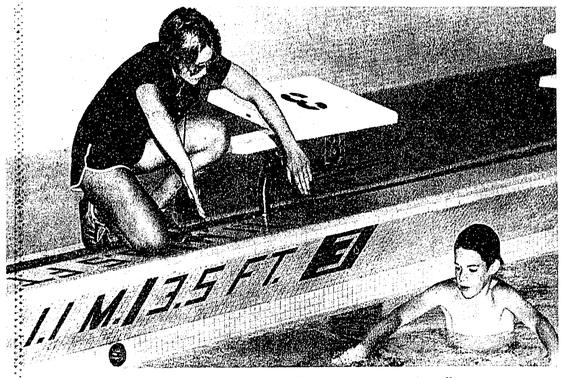
College swimmers enjoy coaching Novi summer youth tank program



Kathy Krupic shows Ray Erickson the proper platform start



Lori Bederka works with Jeff Taylor on the breastroke pull

Lori Bederka and Kathy Krupic are actually just a couple of college girls working a summer job. But unlike their counterparts waitressing at local restaurants, Lori and Kathy are giving tips, not getting them.

And they couldn't be happier.

The two coeds have been hired as coaches for the Novi summer swimming team, and the pair admits that they get a charge out of coaching the youthful squad.

"We love it," said Lori, "we've got great kids to work with and real good support from the parents."

Although Lori and Kathy haven't coached a swimming team before, they can't be compared to Novi's coaches in the past. There weren't any.

In fact, this is the first year the city has fielded a team in the Northwest Parks and Recreation summer league. Lack of facilities in summers past excluded Novi from a competitive swimming program of any kind.

"The kids really like it," said Bederka. "They don't even mind the practices."

Lori and Kathy come to Novi with a solid background in swimming. Both swam in high school on the Dearborn Heights Riverside boys' team before the school adopted a girls' program in their senior year. As a senior, Lori earned her team's most valuable swimmer honor and received an all-league rating in the 200 freestyle. Both girls took medals at the girls' state swimming meet in the 400 freestyle relay, while Lori added honors in the butterfly and 500 freestyle.

Both of the girls have continued their swimming in college, although they attend different schools. Lori swims the butterfly for Michigan State, while Kathy is a distance freestyler for Western Michigan. Each has instructed swimming in the Dearborn Heights area.

Lori explained that coaching swimming can be a lot of fun for everybody involved if the program is run with the right attitude.

"This is our first year and these are young kids," she said. "It's important to realize that we're not expected to beat many teams this year. Our goal is to try our best and have fun. And I guess you could say we're doing it."

Novi swimmers go for improvements

Despite being swamped by Interdivisional foe Clawson in a dual meet last week, the Novi swimmers are consistently improving, according to swim coach Lori Bederka.

"Clawson is in the advanced division so they were expected to beat us pretty bad," said the coach. "I don't even think anybody kept the score."

But while the score was unimportant, the young swimmers' times were of utmost importance as individuals are seeded in the championship league meet by earlier performances. And the Novi swimmers are improving their times practically each time they hit the pool.

Led by Judi Coolman, Coach Bederka cited four young swimmers who are strongly improving. Coolman, 13, swam her best times of the year in the freestyle and backstroke swims against Clawson.

Other top improving swimmers are Debbie Wohlfield in the backstroke, Sue Johnson in the butterfly and backstroke, and Andy Erickson in the freestyle and the breaststroke.

"It's hard to swim against a team that you know is going to beat you, so we swam against our best times. It's all we could do," commented Bederka.

The Novi swimmers finish competing in the Northwest Parks and Recreation league championship meet this afternoon.

Lobby dollars and legislators

LANSING LOBBYISTS HAVE SPENT THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS TO KEEP DOUG ROSS OUT OF THE STATE SENATE.

WHY!

- Because Doug Ross will fight for a tough lobby reform bill that will force Lansing lobbying out into the open and ban gifts to public officials.
- Because as director of the Michigan Citizens Lobby, Doug Ross consistently fought for Michigan's consumers and against the special interest.
- Because Doug Ross had 97% of his campaign contributions from individuals, he won't owe the Lansing lobbyists anything.
- Because Doug Ross is willing to be a full-time State Senator working to make government serve your interests not theirs.
- Because Doug Ross and his campaign volunteers have visited thousands of homes in the 15th District listen to you.

Novi youths still have fun

Novi youngsters failed to come home with any plaques at last week's annual Metropolitan Youth Fitness track and field meet, but according to recreation director Barry Smink they couldn't have tried much harder.

The recreation-sponsored event, which attracted over 2500 kids aged 10 through 15 from 62 communities across southeastern Michigan, was held at nearby Kensington Metropark.

"The kids did a great job," Smink said, adding that "the competition was a lot better this year."

Last year was Novi's first in the meet and, suprisingly enough, the city produced a winner when Peggy Wilson took a first in the Class B (ages 12-13) girls' softball throw. This year Wilson moved up to Class A (ages 14-15) and didn't place.

"Even though we didn't win anything, the kids really tried," Smink noted. "I thought we had one of the best behaved and neatest looking teams out there. I was really proud of them."

Smink was one of four organizers from the local recreation department to accompany Novi's 43 representatives to the meet. The others were Tom O'Branovic, Tom Shillito and Scott Taylor.

Plaques were awarded to the top three finishers in each of the meet's 48 events.

The winner of this year's Considine Award, a trophy annually presented to the city judged best for "sportsmanship, conduct and appearance," was Lapeer.

Colonels suffer rare setback in league play

When Manager Max Burt pulled his Union Lake Colonels out of the Walled Lake Community Education softball league this season, it was presumably to find his sluggers some stiffer competition.

Well, the Colonels are now playing in the Inde-Water Open League near Clarkston, and the competition is still not on the Colonels' level.

After 36 regular season games, the Colonel's have posted 33 victories and have a commanding ten game lead on their next closest rivals.

But one of the three Colonels losses occurred last week in the opening game of a doubleheader with Danny Paris, 20-17. The victors picked up eight runs in the top of the seventh inning and hung on for the win, smashing five home runs and 25 hits en route.

In the nightcap the Colonels didn't waste any time in turning things around with 12 first inning runs on the way to a 19-10 win. Doug Gaines collected four hits to pace the attack.

In Monday night's single game, the Colonels pounded Ben Powell Truckers, 19-2. Mike Turk, Jeff Moon, and Doug Gaines were the big sluggers for the localites with Turk smashing three home runs and being issued an intentional walk. Moon banged a double, triple, and two home runs, and Gaines clobbered two homers. The trio combined for 15 of the 19 Colonel RBI's.

Warriors' name new jayvee cage coach

Walled Lake Western officials have announced the selection of the Warrior junior varsity girls' basketball coach for the upcoming season.

Roy Artley, a Wixom resident with a varied basketball background, has been named to the post. Artley was the program supervisor for the Walled Lake Community Education 4-6 grade boys' and girls' basketball program for three years. He held a similar post in the Orchard Lake school district and also coached the Our Lady of Refuge 7th and 8th grade girls' and boys' teams.

Artley was selected for the junior varsity girls' post by girls' varsity coach Tom Sozcinski and Western Principal Dick Smith.

Our Caesars update

Ronnie Ford of Novi continued his torrid hitting pace for the Detroit Caesars last weekend with an 8-for-10 performance. His efforts pace Detroit to a doubleheader sweep over the Chicago Storm Sunday, 34-16 and 28-6.

Ford, who's now had 22 hits in his last 26 at-bats, walloped four home runs and had 10 RBI's against Chicago.

His batting average in the last six games has leaped 32 points (from .597 to .629), making him the top hitter on the team.

The 23-year-old power hitter also leads the American Professional Slo-Pitch League in home runs (54) and in RBI's (134).

Rick Trudeau of Walled Lake, meanwhile, played the first game of Sunday's doubleheader and went 3-for-6. Trudeau is now batting .513.

Norm Cash of Commerce Township, currently a .235 hitter, did not play Sunday.

The Caesars are now 35-8 on the season and have a whopping seven-and-a-half game lead in the competitive Midwest Division.

Second-place Minnesota is 26-14 and also sports the second best record in the entire league.

Colt registration

Football season is right around the corner, and that means registration time for youngsters interested in playing for the Northville-Novi Colts this fall.

The Colts program is open to all boys ages nine through 13 who live in the Northville, Novi and South Lyon areas and is designed to teach youngsters the fundamentals of football. Cut-off date for age determination is September 1, 1978.

There are also weight limits of 125 pounds for boys 12 and under and 130 pounds for 13-year-olds.

All boys or girls interested in cheerleading or further information should contact program president Bill Greer at 349-8231.

The Colts are a member of the Western Suburban Junior Football League, and competition gets under way in early September.

Jayvee tryouts set

Any Novi High School girls interested in trying out for this fall's junior varsity basketball squad should report to the team's first practice on Monday, August 14.

The practice gets under way at 9 a.m. in the new high school gym. The Ladycats are being coached by Donna Spala, whose squad compiled an 18-1 record last season.

Abuse doesn't deter their love of the job

By AL SCHULTZ

"Kill the ump!"

That phrase and others like it are heard every summer in every softball league from six year old girls to sixty year old men. And they're all directed at the man in the dark clothes and the little black hat — the umpire.

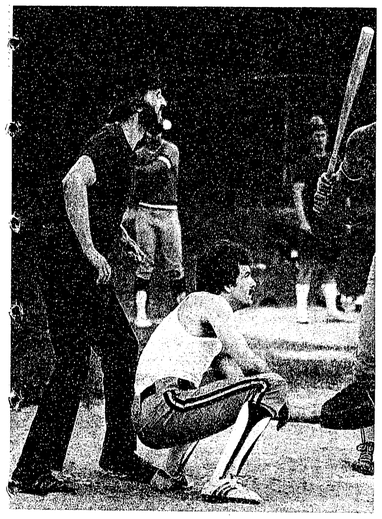
Umpires are a strange breed. They take all kinds of abuse from coaches, players, and fans, and consider their job to be lonely and thankless. And they love it.

"It has its rewards and its anxieties," says umpire Art Kohn, Jr., "but I love it. I think an umpire has to love his job or he shouldn't be an umpire. If he doesn't feel good about umpiring, it'll show and then he'll be in a lot of trouble."

Kohn is the chief umpire for the Inter-Lakes pigtail league, and is one of the few full time umpires in the area. He umpires 18 games a week and uses his paychecks to help put himself through college.

But most of the umpires in the area are part-timers, moonlighting by catching abuse on the ballfield instead of at home. Some are very good at their second job, and some aren't. And anybody who has played even one game of softball will swear he had one of the ones who wasn't.

"Umpiring is not an easy job," says Kohn. "a person can be sitting up in the stands and think it looks pretty easy, but if that person were running around down on the field he'd know better. An umpire always has to be hustling and keep his mind on the game. If you stop, you're sure to get burned."



Ump Clark Lawrence eyes the pitch

Paul DeWaelsche umpires in the Walled Lake Community Education leagues, and he summed it up like this: "You can watch a game and talk about a call after it was made. But an umpire has to give the call right away. It's not so easy letting the whole world know what you thought you saw within one second."

Slow decisions are the major enemy of an umpire, not counting wrong decisions. Even umpires can make mistakes, and most of them will admit it.

"I've called some plays slower than I should have," says DeWaelsche, "and when I do that, I leave myself open for an argument. I've also made some decisions that were totally wrong, and then I've changed them. An umpire should change his decision if he knows he made the wrong call."

Kohn agrees. "You can change your decision if you do it real fast. You've got to change it before the crowd moans. If you wait until the crowd makes noise, even if you know you blew the call, you can't change it. If you do it then you'll really get it from the other side. Sometimes you just have to eat your mistake."

Managers are the old nemesis of umpires. Rarely is there a baseball or softball game without at least one rhubarb. And generally the umpire wins.

"The managers often don't know the rules," said Kohn. "They think they do, but they don't know them as well as an umpire. I have my biggest problems with men's 'B' league softball. The class 'C' guys don't know the rules and they know they don't know the rules, but they're just out for fun and don't care. The class 'A' ballplayers know the rules and they know that they know the rules and that makes it easy. But the class B league players are the ones who don't know the rules but think they do."

"Generally speaking, I don't think anybody knows the rules," said DeWaelsche.

Kohn and DeWaelsche, like all umpires, have had more than one run-in with managers and players. Most of them even expect problems to occur during the summer softball season.

"I get hit once a year," said Kohn, "and I just got it for this year. Right square on the jaw. Let's face it, it happens. Sometimes the person gets so steamed up and frustrated that it results in a punch. I've had one of my umpires punched by a 12 year old boy."

Striking an umpire results in an automatic expulsion, but if no physical contact is made, it is up to the ump to decide who gets thrown out and when.

"I never throw anybody out on a spontaneous remark. If I call a guy out sliding into second he may jump up and scream something, but that's spontaneous. He's so upset at being out that he isn't thinking. I try to give them a break on things like that, but if he keeps it up, I'll warn him. If he still persists, I'll throw him out."

Although Kohn may have a more often used thumb than most of the umpires he has much more of a chance to use it, umpiring every day of the week. DeWaelsche recalls only throwing out about four people in four years of part-time umpiring.

"There isn't any rule of thumb," says DeWaelsche, "but the umpire has to be in charge of the game. If I get too much trouble I'll throw somebody out, but I try not to."

Generally, the game will run smoothly without more than one or two short discussions on calls. But sometimes the trouble doesn't come from on the field, but from people in the stands.

"The coaches are the ones who set the tone for the games," said Kohn. "If they get angry then it spreads to the fans in the bleachers. They can get pretty nasty in adult softball. But . the parents of the little leaguers can be a pain to an umpire too."

Sometimes the heated arguments are not with the umpire, but between player

Propositions to crowd November state ballot

By WARREN M. HOYT

Besides the usual number of stateside legislative and local candidates vying for public office, the November ballot will be crowded with at least nine proposals to change the state constitution.

Voters will be asked to decide such weighty questions as raising the drinking age, limiting state expenditures, halving property taxes and a voucher system for education.

Petitions were filed to place the voucher system on the ballot which supporters claim will foster "competition for excellence" among schools.

The opposition says the system, which will allow students to attend schools of their choice, is nothing more than parochial and will adversely affect integration programs.

Public money will support education in private and parochial schools under the plan and it could dismantle school busing programs. Its purpose is designed to create equality between the affluent and the lower-income families by letting students go to better schools than may be in their districts.

The amendment will eliminate property taxes as the major source of education funding, cutting the taxes therefore by 65 percent, or $1.8 billion. To make up the lost revenue, supporters propose increases in the income, nuisance and property transfer taxes.

The model plan requires that vouchers not be used for religious education. Religious schools will have to charge extra tuition for religious education and keep account of that.

Another question will be the so-called Meadlee amendment which would limit state spending to actual increases in personal income. The proposal is designed to put a cap on state spending to keep spending in line with personal income increases.

Signatures were filed also to place the so-called Tisch amendment on the November ballot to ask voters to cut property taxes. However, the final signatures were gathered in such a hurry there are serious questions as to whether they will be validated to qualify for the ballot.

The Tisch amendment also puts limits on the Legislature, prohibiting it from raising the income tax rate by more than one percent. The amendment also allows local income taxes on one percent for schools.

Here is a rundown of other amendments that will probably appear:

Bail Bonds – adopted by the Legislature; authorizes judges to deny bail bonds to accused felons with at least three other serious felony convictions on their records and for certain violent crimes.

Investments – adopted by the Legislature; authorizes the state to deposit its funds in credit unions, savings and loan associations or banks.

Constitutional Convention – required by the current constitution; asks whether a convention should be called to propose a new constitution.

Police Bargaining – initiative petition promoted by the Michigan State Police Troopers Association; authorizes collective bargaining by State Police troopers; provides for binding arbitration for unresolved disputes.

Drinking Age – initiative petition promoted by the coalition for 21; raises legal drinking age to 21.

Parole – initiative petition promoted by Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson; requires persons convicted of violent crimes to serve at least the minimum term before being eligible for parole.

Voters must more than ever prepare themselves very well for the November general election.

Past preserved

Restored outposts, homesteads and factories across Michigan mirror a time when life was simpler but by no means easier, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Attractions in 20 communities were chosen by Auto Club because they help preserve the Wolverine State's past. The exhibits show the way it was from the time of the first settlers and during the days of French rule to when Michigan laid its foundation as an industrial giant.

The more than 85 homes and buildings of Dearborn's Greenfield Village provide a 300-year panorama of American life. Among the historic structures from Michigan and other states are Thomas Edison's laboratory and the birthplace and tiny workshop of pioneer Henry Ford.

At Flint, a steam locomotive ride through Crossroads Village exposes visitors to more than a dozen local 19th Century buildings plus a recreation area and lake. The village is open Memorial Day to Labor Day.

Missourians to gather

All former residents of Missouri now living in Michigan are invited to a picnic on the grounds of the C.A. Smith home at 43643 Nine Mile in Northville Sunday, August 27.

It will be an all-afternoon event, Smith says, with those attending asked to bring their lunches. Coffee and soft drinks will be provided.

"Come and pitch horse shoes or just visit and have a good time," he invites.

He may be contacted for more information at 349-0854.

Umpires are abuse targets, but they still love jobs and player. If a fight breaks out on the field, the umpire has another job to do – get out of the way.

"When I see an argument that may turn into a fight I warn the instigators, if they don't stop, I'll throw them out of the game," said Kohn.

"When there is actually a fight, I get away from it. Umpires are not boxing referees and they shouldn't try to break it up. Usually guys from the teams come over and pull the fighters apart."

Verbal abuse from the bench is another problem encountered by umpires. While some umpires choose to ignore it, Kohn has a special answer to jibes where he cannot determine the guilty party.

"I go over to the bench and tell them I don't know who the trouble is coming from, but that if it keeps up I'll pick one of them at random to throw out. If it keeps up, I'll keep throwing them out one at a time."

One of the most hateful situations for an umpire is the ballplayer who comments about the umpire to his fellow ballplayers loudly during the game. A good example is an infielder telling the pitcher that the umpire is blowing calls. Many times a player will ride an umpire indirectly for an entire game, complaining about calls, but not to the umpire.

An umpire has to be alert at all times, say Kohn and DeWaelsche, and sometimes that can be a bit of a problem.

"The runaway games are really rough on an umpire because he has the tendency to get bored. That's when you're likely to blow a call or just plain miss a play."

Most umpires will generally call the player safe when they haven't seen the play, but both umpires concluded that when the umpire misses a play everybody else sees it.

"It's embarrassing to completely miss something," said Kohn, "but it happens."

Both umpires noted the difference between men's and women's softball, and between girls' softball and boys' baseball.

"The men are more picky about calls," said DeWaelsche. "They're out there screaming and yelling and the women are on the next diamond having a good time. I guess it's because most of the women's teams aren't as competitive as the men's."

Kohn, on the other hand, didn't quite see the lady softballers in the same light. "Women are horrible," he says. "They can be every bit as vicious as the men. And men umpires aren't crazy about being chewed out by women."

Kohn wishes all the pigtailed girls would just stay that way, as he has few qualms with the younger girls.

"The little girls are always great," he says. "I mean the real little ones. Most of them are so happy to be playing that they don't give the umpire any trouble. But once the parents start in on the umpire, the girls tend to imitate them. This happens with the older girls a lot."

Kohn trains umpires in the Walled Lake area, and some of the umpires he trains are (oh no) girls. And to make matters worse, the girl umpires have invaded the boys' leagues.

Lisa McNutt, one of Kohn's umpires, claims the boys aren't too thrilled about having a girl umpire. "The boys resent it that I'm a girl and I'm umpiring their game. They think they know more baseball than I do. They also tend to gripe more than the girls' teams do. And the men coaches try to intimidate a girl umpire."

McNutt has been umpiring a little over a year and she hasn't had the nerve to throw anybody out of a game yet. "I should have a couple of times, but I just can't bring myself to do it. The men scream at me that I don't know what I'm talking about, but I've sat through hours of instruction and I know what I'm talking about."

McNutt agrees that umpiring is a lonely and thankless job, but recalled once that a young girl from a losing team came up to her after the game and told her she did a good job.

Kohn also has a fond memory with the little girls' leagues.

"Before the game once when I was approaching the field a little girl came running up to me and asked me if I was going to be their umpire. When I told her I was, she ran back to her teammates and they all began clapping."

Kohn has yet to see that happen in a men's league.

"Umpiring isn't really too bad," he says, "you take a lot of abuse for what you think is the right way to do your job. But once a manager thinks you've wronged his team, he'll remember you. They don't forgive you very easily."

Kohn had an opportunity to visit Japan recently and actually do some umpiring in the country. He says that the umpires are very respected in Japan and that he felt it was an honor to umpire there.

"Do you know what they do in Japan if you blow a call?

"They bow."

Iris borer's a real pest

The major pest of iris in Michigan is the iris borer, and this pink caterpillar causes more damage than all other insects.

Washtenaw County Horticultural Agent, Bob Lawrence, advises checking iris for borers when you dig and divide the rhizones in late summer. Discard and destroy any rhizomes showing borer damage.

The feeding of the caterpillars damages the rhizomes, which often become infected with bacterial rot. This rot reduces the tubers to a putrid mush.

Early signs that borers are present include chewed leaf edges and tear stains. These occur in the spring, when the eggs that overwintered on last year's foliage hatch and the young larvae pierce the leaves and tunnel into the stems. In early July they bore into the rhizome, where they remain to feed and grow.

The adult iris borer is a large brown moth with black markings. It emerges from late August to October and lays eggs on iris foliage to start the cycle all over again.

In addition to removing and destroying infested tubers, conduct a thorough fall cleanup of old leaves, stems and other debris. This eliminates the eggs that would overwinter and hatch out the next spring.

Spraying every two weeks from the time first growth starts in the spring until June 1 will kill the young larvae as they hatch. Malathion or Lindane are the recommended chemicals.

Growing Old

I'm growing old, or so they say my life a withered grape.
I do not know what icky is,
I cannot bake a cake.
I used to run, I used to play,
But now I am too Old.
The bread I used to make, one time
Now has turned to mold.
"Sit down now Granny, please, be calm,
We do not want you hurt.
Be pretty, soft, and quiet.
No so loud and not so pert!"
My hands are tired, my body too
But still I love to go,
They try and stop me, they plead, they fuss
I guess they do not know
That the elderly, the aged aren't
An ape in some side show.
So Listen to us, don't plead, don't fuss,
You can laugh, enjoy, have fun,
For soon enough we'll all be gone.

Look, you incredible crow —
Sit upon that branch
And peer with beady, knowing eyes
Across my rustling corn field,
And I can read your avid mind.
A varice and greed?
Hunger and a fear of me?
I suspect both motives to be true.
How do I know?
I am that incredible crow —
A varicious, greedy and a little hungry,
Yet, we can be friends we two.
If only you would lose your fear of me
And I would lose by own disgust for you.

Back then nobody had heard of EEE Award homes.

At one time, when they built a house, one of its best features was a big front porch. And the most popular thing a porch could have was a wide, wooden swing.

Nowadays, the most important feature a house can have is energy efficiency because people are very concerned about keeping heating and cooling costs down.

That's why Detroit Edison presents its Energy Efficiency Excellence (EEE) Award to builders whose homes meet maximum standards in energy efficiency. EEE Award homes are properly insulated and are heated and cooled with an energy-saving heat pump, and could save you more than $260 a year in energy costs compared to homes using oil, propane or electric resistance heating.

Major appliances like refrigerators and freezers in EEE Award homes, if provided by the builder, are also energy efficient. Of course, it's important to use and maintain all major appliances properly so they don't waste energy.

If you'd like to visit an EEE Award home, call or stop in at any Detroit Edison Customer Office and ask for the names of builders who have EEE Award homes on display.

Save where it really counts. The power is in your hands.

REALTY WORLD CHAPMAN
A world of difference!

RIZZO NORTHVILLE REALTY

We proudly present what we consider to be the finest home in Northville. Truly magnificent, we'll let its history speak for itself.

HISTORY

Well preserved and beautifully maintained, this lovely historic home, constructed in 1843, is one of the oldest and most significant of the town's earliest days.

Built by Arden G. Byington, the original structure is still intact. On November 7, 1845 Sylvester Cochrane purchased the property and opened a school called the "Northville Academy". His daughter, Sarah Ann Cochrane, later operated the school exclusively for girls in 1857. The school existed until 1860 when Mr. Cochrane died and his children sold the property to Asa M. Randolph on February 1, 1866.

Asa Randolph resided here until his death in 1921. His daughter, Arabella, and son-in-law, John Tinham continued to live here during and through the depression. The Randolph family were all fine musicians and were sought out by Mr. Henry Ford when he revived square dancing at Dearborn.

After the depression, J. H. Boyce, a local banker, acquired the property and in turn sold it to Mr. and Mrs. John S. Canterbury who presently own and reside there. Appreciating the historic significance of the home the Canterburys have made many improvements to the house and have perfected the setting so that it exists in natural harmony with the home.

*We have a FREE brochure explaining OUR approach to marketing property. It's yours for the asking—no obligation.

ARE YOU LOSING MORE THAN YOU'RE SAVING?

an open letter to HOMEOWNERS

Our reason for writing this to you is simply stated: we are alarmed by the number of homes in this area that we are seeing sold for thousands of dollars under market.

Now, we realize, as most of you do, that when a purchaser sees "for sale by owner" what he really reads is "I can save the commission." And, many times, he does end up pocketing the commission himself.

But, apparently, in today's market, the buyer is also realizing a bonus over and above the commission. By selling your homes yourselves not only are you not saving the commission dollars (which you have rightfully earned), you are losing money by placing a lower initial value on your houses than current market conditions indicate. This is an absolutely unnecessary loss to you. Why does this occur?

Frankly, the buyer is more knowledgeable about market trends than are you, the seller. He has inspected more homes like yours than you have, and many others not at all like yours, in a variety of locations and price ranges. He can, therefore, recognize a "steal" more readily than you can recognize your loss.

What we are suggesting to you is that you seek professional help when it comes time to price your property for sale.

Naturally, we hope that Howell Town & Country, Inc. will be one of the firms you'll call in to discuss this vital question. But whether you do or not—please seek outside help from SOME professional, and enjoy the many benefits (other than establishing proper value) that they can offer.* You not only owe it to yourself—you owe it to your neighbors, the value of whose homes (when sold) will depend, in part, upon what your home sells for now.

Very concernedly yours,

HOWELL TOWN & COUNTRY, INC.

campaign trail

He receives sub's backing

The Barton MacFarlane Neighborhood Association of Detroit has endorsed Richard Vander Veen in his bid for the Democratic nod for the U.S. Senate. The 600 member neigborhood association serves the 27,000 voters in the 21st State Representative district of Detroit. They are the only community council in Detroit endorsing and working for political candidates. The 10-year-old group has an impressive history of effectively working with city government and the residents of the area for an improved neigborhood.

In announcing the endorsement, Reginald McGhee, board member and chairman of the Political Action Committee, said, "We wholeheartedly endorse candidate Richard Vander Veen. We feel he will be by and far the most electable candidate in the entire state of Michigan. We support him without reservation and will work hard for his election." The president of the association, Joseph W. Williams, joined with McGhee in making the statement.

Vander Veen in expressing his gratitude for the endorsement said, "This proves, once again, that my campaign is catching on with the people of Detroit as well as throughout the state of Michigan. When you look at the endorsements that have been added to this effort, there is only one conclusion to be drawn — I am ahead! Considering the fact that other candidates have only received minor endorsements, I have to conclude that, spite of some candidates so-called 'polls', I am the front runner."

Vander Veen is the Grand Rapids attorney who captured the 5th Congressional seat when Gerald Ford was made Vice-President. He has received the endorsement of the 85,000 member Michigan Education Association, the City Residence Committee of Detroit, The Sheet Metal Workers of Michigan, the Professional Air Traffic Controllers, The Maritime Engineers Benefit Association, the International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers (railroad), the Steamship and Airline Clerks, and Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

28 Democrats back McCollough

They include: Senator William Faust, Senate Majority Leader, Westland; Senator Bill Huffman, Madison Heights; Representative Dominic Jacobetti, Negaunee; Senator Joseph Mack, Ironwood; Senator John C. Hertel, Harper Woods; Senator David A. Plawecki, Dearborn Heights; Representative Alfred Sheridan, Taylor; Representative Thomas H. Brown, Westland; Representative Jell Sietsema, Grand Rapids; Representative Edward Mahalak, Romulus; Representative Thomas J. Anderson, Southgate; Representative Joe Conroy, Flint;

Representative Dana Wilson, Hazel Park; Representative Casmer Ogonowski, Detroit; Representative Larry Burkhalter, Lapeer; Representative Daisy Elliott, Detroit; Representative Jack Gingrass, Iron Mountain; Representative Lucille McCollough, Dearborn; Representative George Cushingberry, Jr., Detroit; Senator Jack Faxon, Detroit; Representative Jim Barcia, Bay City; Representative Frank V. Wierzbicki, Detroit; Representative Matthew McNeely, Detroit; Representative Dennis M. Dutko, Warren; Representative Claude Trim, Davisburg; Representative Joyce Symons, Allen Park; Representative William Keith, Garden City; and Senator Arthur Miller, Warren.

In announcing their endorsement of McCollough's candidacy, the group cited his legislative leadership, excellent record of accomplishments and ability to propose workable solutions to the problems facing Michigan residents.

"Pat McCollough has been out front on the issues since coming to Lansing in 1971 as a State Senator," Faust said.

"Whether you're talking about tax reform, political reform, environmental concerns, crime victims compensation or equitable wage rates, you will see McCollough's name at the head of the list of those who have sponsored and fought for these improvements," a coalition member stated.

The legislative leaders also pointed out that McCollough, who was the first gubernatorial candidate of either party to endorse a tax limitation amendment in Michigan, was fighting for tax reform a year ago.

"As Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Pat McCollough last year led the fight to try and force the present administration to keep its promise to roll back the state income tax rate from 4.6 to 4.4 percent. And he was also a leader in bringing about the necessary reform in the state's Single Business Tax," they said.

The coalition singled out McCollough's achievements in authoring the Michigan Clean Water Act, Crime Victims Compensation Act and Political Reform Act.

"Add to that the fact that McCollough was named Conservation Legislator of the Year in 1973 by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs and the fact that he was the chief sponsor of the 1974 law that improved Michigan's minimum wage from $1.60 per hour to the present hourly minimum rate of $2.30," they said.

"We think it's obvious that his record as a legislator proves that he not only can provide the leadership this state needs to move ahead, but that he also can accomplish his goals."

"The people of Michigan are looking for a Governor that can lead—not merely react—and that can finish what he starts out to accomplish. His record proves that Pat McCollough will be that kind of Governor."

'Reform plan is in danger'

A fairly good plan to reform the nation's Civil Service system is in danger of being distorted, and causing the federal work force to be thrown back to the old spoils system, warns Congressman William S. Broomfield (R-19th District).

Last March, President Carter offered a plan to revise the much criticized federal bureaucracy and make it more responsive and responsible to the public.

In Congressional committee, however, Democratic Congressmen have been successfully adding amendments, such as one revising the Hatch Act, that have been fought by an unusual coalition of Republicans and a few Democrats supporting the President.

"It has long been recognized that the federal Civil Service system needed major reforms. It has become a system where merit is not the criterion for reward, and poor performance is tolerated. Personnel actions are mired in red tape, delay, and confusion so that good managers find it difficult to administer their programs and the incompetent are kept on because it is too hard to fire them.

"The Congress was presented with a fairly good plan for reforming the Civil Service. Some changes were needed, but additions like the Hatch Act revision seriously undermine the entire concept of Civil Service reform," Broomfield said.

In 1939, the Hatch Act was enacted into law to protect the public, and the federal workers themselves, from abuses of partisan politics within the bureaucracy. it prohibits federal workers from participating in such activities as managing a partisan political campaign, running for partisan office, and soliciting or receiving funds for a political organization.

At the same time, it permits federal workers to exercise the basic rights of registering, voting, and joining and contributing to a political party.

The Hatch Act itself, Broomfield points out, was passed as a reform measure in 1939. By then, flagrant misuse and abuse of the federal work force for political gain had almost become a way of life. Rank and file federal workers were subjected to intense political pressures, and the electoral process was becoming increasingly influenced by the power generated through questionable tactics.

He disputes salary process

Donald Thomson, campaigning in a hotly contested race for Northville Township supervisor, said last week that he wanted to clarify remarks made several weeks ago about township salaries and the Wage and Salary Review Commission.

"With two exceptions, I did not then, nor do I now, question the increases given to the individuals employed at the township offices," he said.

"The two exceptions were and are: the 44½ percent increases received by the supervisor and clerk. I believe the increases granted to the other employees were justified and that those employees are doing a fine job for the township.

"My concern in this matter rested with the manner in which this process of wage increases was presented to the people of the township."

Thomson said it was "not true" that the salary increases were based on recommendations received from the Wage and Salary Review Commission of which he was an appointed member.

"The people were told by the supervisor that the chairman of the Wage and Salary Review Commission had appeared with the commission's recommendations at a budget study meeting this year.

"The facts are:

— the chairman never appeared before the board this year.

— the commission met only once, and that meeting took place well over a year prior to the formation of the present budget.

— the commission had expired several months prior to its chairman's supposed appearance.

— the wage increases granted the supervisor and the clerk exceeded established guidelines.

Thomson said that people were "misinformed" and that the "entire matter was mishandled and misrepresented.

"This cannot be condoned. This cannot be allowed to continue.

PROPOSITION 'A' SUPPORTERS — Those on hand at a news conference to announce their support for the county 1-mill continuation which will be on the Aug. 8 primary election ballot in Wayne County included Northville Township Supervisor Wilson C. Grier; Chief Circuit Court Judge Richard D. Dunn, chairman of the citizens committee for Proposition "A;" County Commissioner Mary E. Dumas (R-Livonia/Northville); and Dr. E. J. Conklin, director of Wayne County General Hospital.

'Proposition needs support'

Wayne County Commissioner Mary E. Dumas has announced a $179,000 award for Northville and Northville Township this year under the County's Community Development Block Grant program that solicits and redistributes federal funds for local public works projects.

Northville was given $80,000 and the Township $99,000. Mrs. Dumas presented contracts for these amounts to Northville Mayor Paul R. Vernon and Township Supervisor Wilson C. Grier. The presentation was July 17.

In Northville the funds will be used for public library addition to city hall, improvements on the Ford Field City Park, and general maintenance and development of the downtown commercial district, said Mrs. Dumas.

The township funds are planned for sewer construction in the Park Garden subdivision, and a planning study for future land use, she said.

Mrs. Dumas cited the block grant program as an example of county effort deserving continued support through renewal of Proposition "A" that will appear on the Aug. 8 primary election ballot.

Proposition "A" is a one-mill five-year property tax levy that has been twice renewed since first approved by voters in 1964. It provides about $14 million for the County General Fund that is already threatened with a potential $12 million deficit.

"Without approval of Proposition "A", it will be impossible to avoid cutting the level of service from many County programs as important as the block grant program, and probably the block grant program itself would be affected," said Mrs. Dumas.

Under the block grant program, she explained, the County organizes willing communities with less than 50,000 population and applies to the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for funds in behalf of the entire group.

With this year's grant, amounting to more than $5 million for the entire County, the program has obtained over $16 million since its inception four years ago. Thirty of the County's 43 local communities participate in the program.

The funds are granted for local projects such as work on parks and neighborhood playgrounds, senior citizens services, improvements on sidewalks, storm drains and watermains, demolition of substandard buildings, and land acquisition for public programs.

Although the block grant program is administered by the County Office of Program Development and Coordination, projects for expenditure of the grant funds are decided at the community level after both local and County-wide public hearings to determine priorities.

Both the city and township projects are part of three-year community development objectives, Mrs. Dumas pointed out. The library addition in Northville will eventually involve an additional $90,000 of block grant funds, plus $60,000 of general revenue funds from the City, she said.

In addition, she said, development of the downtown commercial could reach an expenditure of $300,000 of block grant funds in the next few years, which would result in improvements that would also help preserve the older residential neighborhood surrounding the area.

Over the next three years, said Mrs. Dumas, the township sewer project is proposed to require $431,000 of block grant money, and a total of $30,000 strictly for land use study and planning.

'Cooper neglects outlying area'

Doug Ross, Democratic challenger in the 15th District for State Senate, says his opponent in the August 8 primary, State Senator Daniel Cooper, has ignored the western part of the district in Oakland County before and during the current campaign.

Citing the South Lyon areas as an example, Ross said that "as far as I know, my opponent has not come here at all during this campaign or in the months preceding the campaign."

In the South Lyon area alone, Ross said he has spent parts of 18 days on the campaign trail.

"I've spent five days in the City of South Lyon campaigning door to door," Ross said. "I've gone up and down every street in the city. I've attended several evening coffees here, spent an afternoon at Michigan Seamless Tube, was here for the Memorial Day parade and have spoken to senior citizen groups."

Ross said he has a "good sense of what the community looks like" and has met a good portion of its residents.

"My campaign reflects the way I intend to hold office," he said.

If elected, Ross said he intends to open a district office, using private funds, in Oakland County, and that he plans to conduct town meetings in the district every few months.

"I think it is kind of disappointing and an insult that my opponent has not come here and campaigned at all," he said.

He assails price rises

"Ten years ago we would have laughed if someone talked about $100 grocery bills or $200 utility bills," recalled Paul Rosenbaum, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate. "But we're certainly not laughing now.

As head of a family of four, Rosenbaum said he knows as well as anyone that in the past 10 years the prices of basic necessities have skyrocketed. Food is up 80 percent, sugar up 114 percent, natural gas up 100 percent, and coal up 150 percent, he noted.

Unemployment, said Rosenbaum, is one of the major contributors to this high rate of inflation. For every one percent of unemployment, the U.S. Treasurer loses $16 billion — $2 billion in benefits and $14 billion in income taxes.

WHITNEY R. KIMBLE, president and chief executive officer of The Brighton State Bank, was elected to the board of directors of Pacesetter Financial Corporation effective June 30.

Kimble has been with The Brighton State Bank for 25 years and during his career has belonged to many professional, trade and civic associations. Currently, he is serving as second vice-chairman, Group 7, of the Michigan Bankers Association.

He is a member of the American Bankers Association, Robert Morris & Associates, the State of Michigan Ski Area Safety Board, member and past president of the Michigan Bank Examiners Association, and member and past president of the Brighton Area Chamber of Commerce.

In other business Pacesetter Financial Corporation announces a three for two stock split which will result in stockholders receiving three shares for each two shares currently held.

This marks the fourth consecutive year that Pacesetter has had either a stock split or a stock dividend. The new shares will be issued August 15 to stockholders of record August 1.

In addition, Pacesetter has declared a cash dividend of $0.20 per share payable September 15 to stockholders of record September 1. This represents a seven percent increase in the current rate after adjusting for the three for two stock split.

The larger cash dividend is a reflection of the higher level of earnings that Pacesetter is experiencing this year. This is the 22nd consecutive cash dividend declared by Pacesetter, which began operations in January, 1973.

Recent affiliation of The Brighton State Bank to Pacesetter Financial Corporation brings the number of Pacesetter bank affiliates to seven and increases total assets to over $730 million. These banking affiliates have a total of 52 offices serving 30 communities.

The affiliates are: First Security Bank of Grand Blanc; First National Bank of Cassopolis; First National Bank of Southwestern Michigan, Niles; The Owosso Savings Bank; Security First Bank & Trust Company, Grand Haven; Traverse City State Bank; and The Brighton State Bank.

CLARENCE K. TSAI, M.D. has been appointed to the medical staff at McPherson Community Health Center with privileges in internal medicine, general medicine, emergency medicine and minor surgery. Dr. Tsai has been certified by the American Board of Internal Medicine and is a member of the American College of Emergency Physicians. He recently opened his office in the Davis Professional Building in Brighton.

Dr. Tsai and his wife, Huey Shiang, presently reside in Ypsilanti with their two children, Elena, 4, and Edward, 3. They plan to move their family to the Brighton area as soon as Dr. Tsai can complete the transition of establishing his new practice in Brighton and phasing out his current practice in Ypsilanti. During this period of transition Dr. Tsai plans to gradually increase his office hours in Brighton as he reduces his Ypsilanti office hours.

Dr. Tsai received his post-graduate training at St. Joseph Hospital in Chicago and at Christ Hospital in Oak Lawn, Illinois. He holds medical staff privileges at Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti and at Saline Community Hospital. His practice in Brighton will include both general practice and internal medicine.

THE HOUSING MARKET faces increased pressure through the next decade from an accelerated rate of new household formations, according to the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors, (WWOCBR).

"The Census Bureau has reported a graduate decline in the average number of persons per household," said Conrad Jakubowski, WWOCBR president. "This figure has now dropped below two and will dip further with an increased number of young singles, divorced people, widows and widowers maintaining their own residences."

By 1990, he said the national population is expected to go from about 218 million to 243 million. This 25 million increase shows a growth rate of just over two million a year. At the same time, some 18 million additional households will be formed — about 1.5 million a year. This adds up to changes in both the demand and type of housing that will be required, he added.

"As the current rate of new housing starts, we are hard pressed to meet new demands each year considering the number of dwelling units razed or otherwise destroyed," Jakubowski said. "This factor, coupled with constantly rising construction and land costs and the influence of inflation, will mean that the value of most present homes will continue to rise if they are kept in good repair. Many, which have doubled in value since being built, will sell for twice as much in 1990 dollars."

While the WWOCBR president saw this as being especially true of single-family detached homes, he noted that values of townhouses and condominiums should follow the same path based on current trends.

"The no-frills housing concept introduced a few years ago was a good idea, but apparently the timing was misjudged," he said. "The trend continued in the opposite direction with the average new home increasing in size and containing greater amenities.

"There will always be strong demand for these types of homes but, over the next few years, added emphasis will be placed on supplying smaller, more efficient homes that eliminate wasted space and use less energy. A growing shortage of land for development and using costs for improvement indicate that lot sizes will become smaller and there will be more cluster housing."

Jakubowski sees large lawns giving way to smaller outdoor entertainment areas with more formal landscaping surrounding patios and decks.

"Half of all wives are now working outside the home," he said. "By 1990, it is expected that up to 70 percent of women 25 to 44 years old will hold such jobs. Dual incomes will continue to be a major factor in home purchases, but also will push the demand for homes requiring less maintenance both inside and outside."

Stephens helps Jeffry Howie on the weight machine

What handicap?

Novi man won't let blindness stand in way

By AL SCHULTZ

A Sporting an iron-grip handshake, a friendly smile, and a pair of unseeing eyes, Alvin Stephens has become a popular figure around the Novi Youth Center.

Blind almost since birth, the 25-year-old Stephens has found his disability almost no handicap in working with the Novi Youth Assistance teen program at the old Novi elementary school.

But then Alvin hasn't found being blind too much of a problem anywhere.

"I think I've adjusted pretty well," he says, "but then I've had a lot of time. And I've been helped by some wonderful people along the way. The more people help me, the more I want to help myself."

Alvin was an early victim of retrolentalfibroplesia, a disease caused by too much oxygen to the eye's retina. As an incubator baby with normal sight, Alvin was given too much oxygen in the incubator, resulting in a detached retina and the rare blindness condition.

"I was probably one of the last ones to become blind that way," he says, "because they discovered that cause of blindness very shortly afterward."

Stephens maintains that he can sense a little bit of light reception, but that it is very limited. He cannot distinguish, or even see, images.

"About all I can tell is that I am in a lighted room or a dark room," he says, "but nothing beyond that."

Faced with permanent blindness at a very early age, Alvin knew he had to sustain extra hardships to succeed in life. At age five he began his schooling at the Michigan School for the Blind in Lansing, and continued his work there until graduation. After high school, Alvin enrolled at Eastern Michigan University for two years and then transferred to Southern Benedictine College near Cullman, Alabama.

"I've been living away from home since I was about five years old," he says. "I grew up in northwest Detroit and have been living in Novi for about ten years, but they've mostly been just the summers."

Attending normal sighted colleges left Alvin little time for anything other than study. Although he came through with a strong 3.46 grade point average with a major in sociology and a double minor, Alvin will be the first to admit that it wasn't easy.

"I had to tape record every class lecture," he says, "and then I'd go home and replay the tapes and take notes in braille. Then I'd go over those notes to really get the most out of the lecture."

As a result of all that hard work, Alvin was listed in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" during his senior year.

"It was quite an honor to be named in a national publication," he says proudly.

Academic achievements haven't been Alvin's only accomplishments, as he considers himself quite a physical fitness buff as well. Alvin began weightlifting in high school and has continued a repetition program ever since. He began swimming back in grade school and concedes that he's pretty fast in the crawl stroke.

But he claims his proudest athletic achievement is his running of a five minute mile.

"I ran with a good friend of mine from college in Alabama," he explains. "He would lead and I would hold on to a towel to keep up with him. Just like in swimming, I can really do well when I'm sure I'm going straight. And we kept up our running and eventually we both got down to a five minute mile."

Alvin also spent some time on a wrestling mat, and can belt a baseball into the outfield with one hand.

Alvin's latest endeavor has been the game of pool with the youths at the Novi Teen Center where he works this summer.

"If someone lines up my shots for me I can do quite well," he says, adding that there are some games that are particulary hard for the blind person to play.

Alvin stated that he'd like to learn the game of chess, and that a braille chess set would not be an impossibility. But he foresaw other problems with the game.

"A braille chess set would be easy to make to determine pieces and their colors," he says, "But it would be next to impossible to remember where all the pieces were located on the board. It would take a very long time between moves to figure out just where the pieces were."

Alvin's blindness doesn't stop him from doing things he'd like to do, including singing. Overcoming initial stage fright, Alvin performed with a variety of rock and country bands in Alabama and Michigan. He has made regular appearances at a lounge in Flat Rock and even sang with the group, "Cornelius Brothers and Sister Rose."

"My singing isn't as steady as I'd like it to be," he says, "but breaking into the singing business is very difficult. Mostly I just do volunteer singing, but I have worked with groups on a part-time basis."

Although Alvin graduated from Southern Benedictine in 1976, he has run into difficulty getting a permanent full time position in his sociology career.

"The field is flooded," he says, adding that sociology is one of those fields that has more candidates than it has jobs. "I've thought about getting a masters degree in industrial relations, but I remember how hard it was as an undergraduate and it would probably be a lot harder as a masters candidate."

Alvin has made a few friends in the professional field, and he hopes one of those friends will come up with something permanent for him. But until that happens Alvin is more than content working with the Novi Youth Assistance program.

"It's a wonderful thing for me," he says. "It's a real good experience because I'm working with people and that's what I really want to do."

At the Novi Teen Center, Alvin assists with field trips, manages the weight room, and supervises youth activities in general. He also took part in the clown make-up activity and the soda pop giveaway earlier this summer.

"He's been a great help to us this summer," said Jaunita Hakala, director of the Teen Center. "The kids and Alvin get along just great."

German orchestra set for Novi performance

A German youth chamber orchestra will present a concert in the Fuerst Auditorium at Novi High School this Sunday (August 6) at 7:30 p.m.

The Jugendorchester of Whilhelmshaven, West Germany, is celebrating its 25th anniversary with a journey to the United States and a concert tour of Michigan.

The 40-piece orchestra consists of students from high schools and universities in Wilhelmshaven and the surrounding area.

The concert is co-sponsored by the Novi Foundation for the Performing Arts and the Blue Lake Fine Arts Music Camp. There is no admission charge.

The Foundation was organized primarily for the benefit of the residents of Novi to promote the performing arts. Such promotion includes sponsorship of Novi residents in music educational programs, public performances in the performing arts, the purchase of musical instruments and other assets, and the rental of facilities to be used in the performing arts.

Blue Lake Fine Arts Music Camp is located in the western part of the state near Muskegon.

The Jugendorchester of Wilhelmshaven was formed 25 years ago when teachers in the schools decided to join their groups into one large orchestra. The popularity of the orchestra enabled the group to be divided into senior and junior groups.

The senior group enjoys playing Italian, German, and contemporary works. Many of the former musicians and a few from the junior group will join the orchestra for its tour of Michigan.

While touring the area, orchestra members will be staying in the homes of local residents.

Five Novi residents will be hosting members of the orchestra during their stay in the Metropolitan Detroit area. They include Mr. and Mrs. Guy Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Daley, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bauer, Mr. and Mrs. Bennet Wright, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward DeBrule.

Right now is the time to remove spots and spills from your furnishings and rugs to keep your home fresh and sparkling. Don't let those stains settle before taking prompt and appropriate action to remove them. If it's alcohol, one teaspoon of white vinegar to one quart of warm water applied directly on the besotted area will clear up the problem. Let it dry and vacuum up. The same solution will work for blood with dry cleaning solvent applied as a second step and then vacuumed. All traces should then disappear. For light cigarette burns on the carpet, try snipping off the scorched area, then apply the vinegar and water solution. What it takes is some know how and prompt action to rescue your furnishings from household accidents and permanent damage.

Novi's Kay Jones on Chessie Special

"It was like going into a time capsule," said Novi's Kay Jones after returning from a memorable Saturday trip on the Chessie Steam Special.

The smoke-belching, old-time-train buffs' delight chugged its way from Detroit's Oak Yard, winding through Novi, Wixom, Milford, on to Flint and Clio. Kay and her party had the distinct pleasure of riding the observation car — Car 20, the very last one in the string of parlor cars, pullman's, and open cars.

Kay, who says trains run in her blood, purchased the tickets for the "Special" by bidding in the Channel 56 auction last April. "The trip was on the 'Dream Board' and I was determined to get it. I simply bid higher than anyone else and was thrilled when I won."

"I grew up in Pittston, Pennsylvania," added Kay, claiming Pittston a great railroad town. Her grandfather was an engineer on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, a position he held for 50 years. For Kay, weekends as a child meant riding "up front" in the engine of the train, trips she has never forgotten. "He was the engineer of the first diesel locomotive in Pennsylvania, too," recalled Kay, with a hint of pride in her voice.

"The Chessie Special really brought back memories and I felt like queen for a day." Her party included 13-year-old son Brad, and friends Lillian Harris and Doris Schucter, both of Birmingham. "Lillian had never ridden a train before so the trip was quite an experience for her. But, Doris is an old train hand. She was a nurse on the Sante Fe."

The group was greeted at the main station by executives of the Chessie System before boarding the train. They received a packet of souvenirs and a sound recording of the old train to add to their memoirs.

A real step into the past, the observation car was fitted with horsehair seats, a brass clock on the wall and down to the brass pulls on the window shades. "It even smelled old," remarked Kay.

Over 400 passengers rode the train that day, with ticket prices ranging from $23 to $50 per person. Only 15 rode in the observation car. They had their own host, hostess, waiter and chef. "We really had the royal treatment with food, beverages and coffee served throughout the 12-hour trip," she noted.

Complete with cinders in their hair and breakdowns along the way, the old puffer-belly ran into a bit of trouble near Clio. "Fire engines raced to our rescue by pumping 10,000 gallons of water into the engine," laughed Kay, recalling the colorful event.

All along the way people were waiting to see the old locomotive, gathering to the sound of the shriek of the train whistle. Everyone had cameras. They waved and cheered.

The engine, privately owned, is the same one that pulled the Freedom Train throughout the nation. The Chessie system provided the cars, and of course, the rail bed, for the special trip.

Son Brad had himself a time too, according to his mother. "We all spent more time hanging over the gate on the platform than inside the car and Brad had the time of his life." Making friends with a young apprentice railroad employee, Brad had a complete tour of all the facilities as well as learning the "in's and out's" of railroading. "He was really impressed and totally appreciated the trip," reported his mother.

Of the trip and the opportunity to ride on one of the old railroad giants, Kay expressed the hope that more "specials" would be offered. "With the number of people on that train it must mean that people do want something out of the ordinary."

"And if such a trip was offered again on that 'Dream Board', I'd bid again — only higher," she commented, with enthusiasm.

The unveiling of the historic marker at St. Patrick Chapel in White Lake Township Saturday drew a large crowd despite overcast morning skies and cool breezes.

Glenn Ruggles, author of the book, "...Beside the Golden Door", a folk history of the Irish immigrant settlers in the area, opened the ceremonies and introduced Secretary of State Richard Austin.

Representing the state in the historic dedication, Austin, with humor and warmth, immediately captured the numbers gathered around the old chapel and across the road on an ajoining knoll. His remarks drew rounds of laughter and applause. Joined by Mrs. William Hess and Margaret Doherty, Austin unveiled the familiar green state tablet.

Chatting afterwards, Austin busily signed autographs, toured the chapel and small cemetery and mingled easily with the crowd.

A special tribute from the Governor's office was read with copies of the significant document given to everyone.

Later, at a special premiere luncheon, 250 guests received copies of the Ruggles book along with the first showing of Father Bob Humitz's movie, "From These Stones".

Local students attend MSU music program

Two local students were among the more than 270 high school students from all over Michigan and other states who took part in this year's Summer Youth Music Program at Michigan State University.

The two students were Jo Ellen Baker of Novi and Darlene Durrwachter of Walled Lake Central.

The students gathered for either two or four-week sessions which included auditions, recitals, and concerts as well as valuable instruction. They also performed in live concerts and on radio and television.

Selected on the basis of recommendations from their music teachers, the musicians included instrumentalists, vocalists, pianists, and organists. Many received Youth Music Scholarships.

The students were instructed by members of the MSU faculty as well as several distinguished high school music teachers from around the state.

Both sessions concluded with a public recital on the MSU campus.

The Summer Youth Music Program, now in its 33rd year, is directed by Robert G. Sidnell, assistant professor of music, and is sponsored by MSU's Department of Music.

Three Novi students attend fine arts camp

Three Novi students are attending the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp in Twin Lake.

They are Tracy Neil, Michele Kamish, and Lauren McQuade.

Tracy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Neil of 12½ Mile, Michele is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Kamish of Apple Crest Drive, and Lauren is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McQuade of Highlands Drive.

Blue Lake hosts more than 3,100 elementary through high school students each summer and offers instruction in a wide variety of fine arts fields. The camp is located 15 miles north of Muskegon in the Manistee National Forest.

Students attending Blue Lake's two-week sessions have the option of majoring in art, band, jazz-rock ensemble, orchestra and piano.

Tracy, Michele, and Lauren are enrolled in the band curriculum. Students who elect a band major can expect to find their work challenging, no matter what their level of proficiency.

Band students are assigned to one of three different bands on the basis of ability.

Spicy herbs

The kitchens of herb growers will soon be filled with fragant aromas as the harvest season is rapidly drawing to a close and the fragrant plants will be hung up to dry.

Start harvesting herb gardens and follow these suggestions

A visit to the Sunshine Farm and Garden in Commerce Township is a fascinating and delightful introduction to the pungent subject of herbs.

Owner and "curator" of the farm, Jean Riggs, led a recent kitchen herb workshop — a "what to do with herbs now that you've grown them," session.

"Michigan is blessed with a good climate for growing herbs, so it is really important to know what to do with them at harvest time," commented the well-versed herb lady.

That time is now, in most cases, just before the plant begins to flower. "And, harvesting should be done before August 15 on all perennial plant stock," she emphasized.

By aiming at the mid-August date, the plants will have a longer time to rejuvenate for successful wintering, she said. "Throughout the growing season, gardeners may harvest up to one-third of the established perennial," adding that the word "established" means at least in its second year of growing.

Although gardeners are anxious to gather the herbs for cooking or fragrant potpourris, pruning during the first year of growth should be done lightly. The trained naturalist cautioned that it is more important to have a strong plant next year than none at all.

Pointing to a vigorous, growing supply of all manner of herbs in the garden, Jean discussed the use of fertilizers. She commented that some herb growers refuse to use fertilizers saying herbs grown without it are stronger and more pungent. "True," says Jean, "but I would rather use one more leaf and have a strong plant for wintering.

The August 15 harvest date refers only to perennial plants, not annuals. Those herbs can be gathered at any time. Jean also suggested gardeners gather the seeds produced by their own annual plants for replanting the following spring.

Of the many herbs that can withstand the winter, there are several that must be taken into the house for wintering. Those include rosemary, rose geranium, French lavender, and lemon verbena.

Seed herbs, such as carraway, must grow one year in order to produce seed. A biennial, seeds planted this year will be ready for harvest next year. Brown when mature, carraway may be harvested whenever the plant reaches that state.

When harvesting herbs, Jean suggested the gardener tag the various bunches immediately. Pointing to the fact that many herbs look alike when dried, even the most knowledgeable herbist can make a mistake in identification.

After harvesting, the herbs should be immersed, or dunked, in fresh water to remove dust and dirt particles as well as garden "critters." Gentle shaking will remove the excess water.

Gathered in bundles while still fresh, the herbs are tied or banded together and hung upside down for drying. Cooking herbs should be secured inside brown paper bags, never plastic, to protect them from light and dust.

For a decorative effect, tie the bunched herbs with velvet ribbon and hang them from beams, walls, or curtain rods. Adding more of a colorful touch than long-lasting aroma, the herbs will collect dust over a period of time making them useless for cooking.

A perfect place for drying herbs is an attic or closet that has a circulation of air, yet is relatively dark. Herbs, Jean says, will hold their "green" better if dried out of direct light.

"Never, never, choose a basement for drying herbs," she commented, "because that area is usually far too damp, causing them to mold."

After the herbs are thoroughly dry, strip them from their branches and store in tightly capped jars. A dark colored jar is best, but a clear jar can be used if it is stored in a cupboard.

Herbs may also be oven dried, a method that allows crumbly-dry results in five minutes time. "But, watch them like a hawk," she cautioned, "because the herbs can burn very quickly."

If using the oven method, herbs should be laid out on racks in a 150 degree oven.

Herbs, such as chives, tarragon, and mint may be first clipped to size with scissors and frozen for later use. If preferred, they may also be dried as other herbs, with the exception of chives.

Chives should not be bundled together. Rather, they should be laid flat on trays or screens with the top of a refrigerator named as a good place for drying. Mrs. Riggs added that, because of the moisture contained in the herb, drying time is very extended.

The blossoms of the chive may be gathered and used to produce pink chive vinegar. Or those same blooms may be dried for use in bouquets.

After the herbs are dried, they can be mixed together to produce special seasonings for culinary masterpieces. One such combination rated as "superb" for soups or stews, is the mixture of one herb from the onion family, one from the parsley family and one from mint. "Mint," in this case, refers to winter or summer savory. Jean further pointed out that any herb with a square stem is classified in the mint family.

Dishes may be served with a continental flair by choosing herbs "of the country." To add a French accent, cooks should season with tarragon, chervil and shallots (big chives). A German dish will call for anise, carraway and onion. No Italian dish would be complete without basil, oregano, garlic, and mint (remember savory).

A plain dish can take on a Greek air by adding lemon, mint and cinnamon, while Oriental would require coriander, sesame, and chives.

Those wishing to reduce their sodium (salt) intake can also look to herbs to create a salt substitute:

Mix together: One tablespoon basil; one teaspoon each of celery seed, savory, and sage; adding if desired, one teaspoon each of thyme and marjoram.

Of the herbs highlighted in the kitchen herb workshop, apple mint was said to blend with anything. Savory is regarded as a "great" herb for seasoning vegetables. It should be used sparingly and may be added to stews, gravies, fish, egg dishes and meatballs.

Sage is another potent herb used in stuffing, sausage, eggplant, with tomatoes, pork and veal. English thyme is a delightful addition to soups, stews, with pork and veal, in stuffing, gravies and sauces.

French tarragon, again used sparingly because of its potency, can be added for new taste dimensions in beets, spinach, salad dressings, fish dishes, mushrooms, and to spark vinegar.

"And if you really want to be 'different,' laughed the herb lady, "try serving a crysanthemum salad. It's truly delicious."

Chrysanthemum Salad

Any combination of salad greens
One yellow or white globe (football) chrysanthemum
1 tablespoon sugar
½ cup tarragon vinegar
2/3 cup olive oil
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
1 teaspoon dried marjoram
1 teaspoon dried tarragon
½ teaspoon salt

Buy a chrysanthemum from the florist. Rinse well in running water, shake dry and pull off petals all at once. Spread on paper towels and partly dry. Put petals in small plastic bag, sprinkle with sugar and shake gently. Refrigerate. Combine oil, vinegar, herbs, and seasoning and whip hard until thick. Put over greens, add chrysanthemum petals, and toss. For a more definite flavor, add herbs, preferably fresh, to the greens. Any flowers (blue violets, rose petals, garden chrysanthemums, nasturtiums) can be substituted in season.

'Circus in miniature' scheduled at 12 Oaks

"Ladies and gentlemen and children of all ages." That familiar call will be heard over and over again when the Circus in Miniature arrives at the Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi for a four-day engagement from Monday, August 7, through Thursday, August 10.

The Circus in Miniature is an authentic one-quarter inch replica of the circus of the past. All pieces are antique and date back to the 1920's.

The entire collection of handmade wagons and hand-painted figures was accumulated by Glenn Rees of Indiana over the past 49 years. The circus menagerie, sideshows, and dressing and cooking tents were all handmade by his wife.

Included in this circus city is the complete unit of 100 different types of wagons, trains, animal cages, circus performers, roustabouts, ticket takers, barkers, moms, dads, children, grandmothers, and grandfathers. If you look hard, you'll see the kids sneaking under the tents, the cotton candy man, the bug salesman, seals, snakes, hippos, zebras, lions, elephants, a blacksmith, cook, and much more.

Anything you could find in the circuses of the '20's and '30's is present in miniature.

The Circus in Miniature is free to the visitors of Twelve Oaks Mall from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Band recognition

Thanks to the Novi Jaycees, the Novi Community Band will not suffer from lack of recognition at their future concert appearances. The Jaycees have donated a stylish banner to the group of musicians who will display it at their upcoming appearances in Livonia, Farmington, and throughout the area. Holding up the banner (above, left to right) are Jaycee President Brad Mathers, Community Band Director Guy Smith, and Jaycee Administrative Vice-president Terry Roberts.

Members of the band are seated behind the banner. Residents throughout the area are invited to offer their musical skills to the community band. Although the band includes some accomplished musicians, other band members participate merely to polish up on the skills they developed and enjoyed during high school and college. Anyone interested in learning more about the band may contact Director Smith at 349-7055.

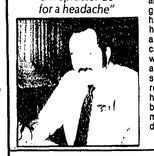
CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL BIO MECHANICS
IS WHOLE LIFE — A dynamic spine is where nerve interference has been removed by adjusting misaligned vertebrae — leading to normal nerve transmission to the affected organs and tissues: Thus the body is in a state of equilibrium and harmony with the internal and external environment.

DR. REIERSON SEARCHING FOR THE PROBLEM THROUGH X-RAY
PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE CARE:
An exercise program to rehabilitate weak muscles (through specific analysis) to strengthen the specific spinal muscleature thus aiding in stability to chronic areas of misalignment.
LATEST DEVELOPMENT IN CHIROPRACTIC SCIENCE
Regular scientific chiropractic health care can assure of the best chances for continuing good health and radiant happiness.
Gunter from Warren
"What can a Chiropractor do for a headache"


My name is Gunter, and this is my experience with Dr. Albert Reierson, D.C. While this would help, but it still hung on. I was even having trouble looking out at the bright sunlight outside. After about an hour with no relief, my friend Ann suggested her daughter Denise drive me to Dr. Al's house. I told her I didn't have a backache, but a headache. She just urged Denise to take me anyway, so I went along with her thinking, "What can a Chiropractor do for a headache?" Well, when we got there, he proceeded to examine me, and found out I had what he then called "a cranial subluxation." I might add he also told me that the rest of my spine was in quite good shape. Anyway, he adjusted my cranials and I couldn't believe it, but before getting up from the examining table, my headache was gone. I might add that this condition has not occurred since then.

Ron of West Bloomfield
"Lower Back Pain"
For the past six years, I have been to a number of doctors seeking relief for my low back pain. My problem was not getting better. After Dr. Reierson analyzed my x-rays and showed me how to rehabilitate my muscles, my lower back pain began to feel stronger. Last week for the first time in three years I played thirty-six holes of golf.

Here's what to do with zucchini

Gardens are again beginning to produce their crops, leading family chefs to seek new ways of serving the abundant fruits of their labor.

Often planted, sometimes overly so, are the many varieties of squash. Their prolific growth has caused some gardeners to comment, "you couldn't beat them to death with a broom."

The abundance of the squash crop has also lead to the creation of many ways in which to serve the budget-stretching vegetable.

Here are just a few:

ZUCCHINI CASSEROLE

2-3 medium zucchini, slided thin
2 medium onions, sliced thin

Fry ½ pound bacon crisp. Drain off most of the drippings. Put zucchini and onions in skillet. Cook until clear. Crumble bacon. Arrange zucchini, cheddar cheese (as much as you want — diced) and bacon in layers in casserole. Beat two eggs in a small amount of milk. Pour over zucchini mixture.

Bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

ZUCCHINI RELISH

10 cups peeled zucchini (ground)
4 cups ground onions
5 tablespoons salt

Combine and let stand overnight. Drain and rinse 3-4 times in cold water.

Combine with the following ingredients and cook 30 minutes:

2½ cups vinegar
2½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon each nutmeg, dry mustard, turmeric
2 teaspoons celery seed
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 red and 1 green pepper, chopped fine

Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

ZUCCHINI BEEF SKILLET

1 pound ground beef
1 cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1½ teaspoon salt
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon chili powder
2 large tomatoes, peeled and chopped
5 cups zucchini, sliced thin
1¼ cup fresh or frozen corn
2 tablespoons chopped pimento
¼ cup chopped parsley (optional)

Saute beef, onions, green pepper and garlic in 12-inch skillet until well browned. Add remaining vegetables. Cover and simmer 10-15 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Serves six.

A fine way to serve leftover ham or beef is just another means of combining zucchini into a taste treat:

COPENHAGEN CASSEROLE

4 medium zucchini
Boiling salted water
5 cherry tomatoes, halved
1 cup diced cooked ham or beef
¼ cup butter or oleo
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
salt, pepper
1 cup shredded cheese (sharp or mild as preferred)
1 egg yolk
Dash cayenne pepper
chopped parsley (optional) for garnish

Trim zucchini and drop whole into salted boiling water. Cook for five minutes. Drain. Slice ¼ inch thick. Arrange zucchini, meat, and tomatoes in a greased shallow baking dish. Melt 2 tablespoons butter or oleo and drizzle over vegetables.

Bake in preheated 400-degree oven for 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, melt remaining butter in medium-sized sauce pan. Blend in flour to smooth paste. Gradually add milk stirring constantly. Cook over medium heat until mixture thickens, about five minutes. Add salt and pepper to taste, and cheese. Heat just to boiling, stirring constantly.

Spoon a small amount of sauce into egg yolk. Then pour back into rest of sauce, heating just to boiling, and stirring well. Add cayenne and remove from heat. Spoon over zucchini casserole and serve. Serves four.

Note: Egg yolk should be beaten with a fork before the sauce is added.

"Past Uses of Plants" is the title of a program to be given at the Kensington Metropark Nature Center on Sunday, August 6, at 9 a.m.

Early settlers and Indians relied directly on local plants for medicine, food, and building materials. Today, however, few people collect plants for these uses. This program will examine the past uses of different plants from Aspen trees being used for bread to jewelweed being used for poison ivy rash.

The program is open to individuals and families by advance registration.

For information or registration contact the Nature Center at 685-1561.

A morning nature cruise aboard the Island Queen excursion boat at Kensington Metropark has been slated for Saturday, August 5, at 10 a.m.

Naturalist Bob Hotaling will be on board to point out features of interest seen from the deck of the boat. He will discuss park history, wildlife found in and around the lake, and the geology of the area.

The boat will leave from the Boat Rental Building. There is a charge of $1 per person and advance registration is required.

For information or registration contact the Kensington Nature Center at 685-1561.

A special program entitled "The World of Fossils" will be presented at the Kensington Metropark Nature Center on Saturday, August 12, at 8:30 a.m.

Explore the world of ancient animals by attending a program led by Naturalist Bob Hotaling. Learn what fossils are and what we can learn from them. Included will be a trip to the gravel pit to collect fossils left there by the glacier.

Wear sturdy shoes and bring collecting bags. Meet at the Nature Center for this two-hour program. Registration is required. For more information or registration contact the Nature Center at 685-1561.

An evening "Nature Cycle" will be held at Kensington Metropark on Monday, August 14, at 6:30 p.m.

Beautiful vistas, wildflowers, and waterlife are easily observed along the bike trails at Kensington Metropark. Bring your bike and join Naturalist Dave Mollanen for a different look at some of Kensington's interesting natural features.

Advance registration is required for this two-hour, 10-mile tour.

CAN FUNERAL DECISIONS BE MADE WISELY UNDER STRESS?

Not always—which is why we recommend planning your own funeral.

Caught up in grief and stress, some people may be emotionally unable to cope with making funeral arrangements effectively. They may be tempted to proceed with more costly arrangements than they should.

It should be noted that the psychological value of the funeral has no relationship to its costs. Planning such arrangements may eliminate the possibility of such over-spending.

Planning can be accomplished in advance of need, in an atmosphere uncharged with the emotionally distressing circumstances of bereavement.

For details of planning funerals, call us—or stop by for literature.

ORDER FOR HEARING ON PETITION

At a session of said Court held in the Courthouse Tower, in the City of Pontiac, in the County of Oakland, State of Michigan on July 14, 1978.

PRESENT: HON. FRANCIS X. O'BRIEN, Circuit Judge

The above matter having come before this Court upon the filing of a petition by the City of Novi regarding the laying out, establishing and paving of Nine Mile Road, in and through the City of Novi, Oakland County, Michigan, as more particularly described in said petition, stating that the private property described therein is necessary for a hearing thereon to determine the date upon which the petitioner may take possession of such private property and the date for the impaneling of a jury to determine the just compensation for the taking of such property, now,

On Motion of LAMPERT, FRIED & LEVITT, P.C., Attorneys,

IT IS ORDERED that the description of the property and names of the parties in interest as set forth in the petition filed in this cause are incorporated by reference as part of this Order and that personal service of both Order and Petition shall be made upon each party in interest in accordance with the provisions of Act 295 of the Public Acts of 1966.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that where personal service cannot be made in accordance with the provisions of Act 295 of the Public Acts of 1966, a copy of this Order including a copy of the description of the property and parties in interest contained in the Petition be published in the Novi News, a newspaper published and circulated in this county, at least once in each week for three successive weeks prior to the date of the hearing as hereinafter set forth.

3. To enter an order for payment of the estimated just compensation placed on deposit with the treasurer of the County of Oakland;

4. To set a date certain for impaneling of a jury and trial as to the parcel on which compensation is being contested.

2. On the day fixed for the hearing, enter an order fixing a definite date upon which the parties interested in the real estate described in this cause shall relinquish physical possession thereof to the petitioner, the City of Novi.

Looking for that perfect gift to send home with out-of-town guests?

The Friends of the Novi Library have a suggestion for you — a box of specially printed stationery notes which contain a picture of the new Novi library. The stationery can be ordered by calling 349-0720.

The Friends of the Library are continuing to offer free movie shows for youngsters every Friday at 10:30 a.m. Project Chairman Peg Junker reports that the films last approximately 45 minutes to an hour.

Youngsters familiar with the adventures of Pippi Longstocking will enjoy the film entitled "Pippi Goes on Board" this Friday (August 5).

The Friends encourage residents to take advantage of the library facilities during the summer. They are also collecting used books at the library for their used book sale in the fall. If you have any old books you no longer want, the Friends would be happy to take them off your hands.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. John Richter of Taft Road attended the Threshers Reunion near Mason recently. There were 24 steam-driven threshing engines which performed a variety of functions including threshing grain, making shingles, and sawing logs. Other engines were used to demonstrate methods of grinding cornmeal and making wheat flour. People from several states attended the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rogers of Wichita, Kansas, are visiting Mrs. Mabel Ash of Garfield Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Stewart of 13 Mile were pleasantly surprised at a 25th wedding anniversary party on Sunday. Approximately 80 friends and relatives were invited by their daughter Peggy to help them mark the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart repeated their marriage vows as given by Pastor Tom Martin of the Orchard Hills Baptist Church during the afternoon.

Bill Gregory of Charlotte Street has returned home after a three-week illness at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Randy Thomas have announced the birth of a daughter. Jennifer Tiffany was born July 21 at St. Mary Hospital. She weighed seven pounds, eight ounces on arrival. She joins a brother, Mark, at home. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Dan Thomas of Nine Mile and Mrs. Irene Jobe of Country Cousins Mobile Home Park.

VFW Post 1519

Al Griffin and Harry Urton were the top sellers during the Buddy Poppy Day campaign. Top salespersons for the Auxiliary were Charity Slater and Winnie Dunham.

The Post has added four new members recently and is planning a fund-raising drive in the near future for the proposed new post home.

Hospital Chairman Winnie Dunham needs some volunteer help on the first Monday of each month. Contact her at 937-0769.

There will be an Auxiliary picnic on the post grounds on Wednesday, August 16. The post is continuing their bingo games at the Novi Community Center throughout the summer. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Novi Jaycees

Chairman Joe Balagna reported a successful trip to the Tiger ballgame with the senior citizens. The Jaycees and Jaycee Auxilliary are co-sponsoring Roberta Wilks as the area representative in the State Junior Miss competition.

Coming up on Saturday, August 19, is a Bicycle Safety Check and Identification program sponsored by the Jaycees and the Novi Police Department. They will be checking bikes for safety. Special reflectorized stickers will be given to bicycles which pass the safety test. There will also be an obstacle course with prizes for the winners.

Chairman Ed Leininger said that the Jaycees and police will encourage youngsters to place an identification number on their bikes with an engraving tool to help prevent bike theft.

Several Jaycees will be attending State Board meetings in Marquette on August 11-12.

Community Band

The band played at the Olde Orchard picnic recently and was treated to a potluck dinner after their performance. They are slated to play at an "Under the Stars" concert sponsored by the Farmington Parks and Recreation Department.

The band has received a banner which identifies the group from the Novi Jaycees.

Athletic Boosters

There will be a general meeting on Monday, August 14, in the Village Oaks Clubhouse at 7:30 p.m.

This group is continuing to meet through the summer, and officers are planning fall activities. They would like to have new members who can assist them in carrying out their plans to raise money for school athletic programs.

If you are new in the area and have children in the athletic program, contact Donna Pokelsak at 474-3742 for additional information.

Senior Citizens

This active group had to cancel its regular potluck dinner on Wednesday because they did not return from their trip to the Chesaning Showboat until 2:30 a.m. The next potluck dinner is slated for September 13.

Two new members, Mr. and Mrs. Staub, have joined the group.

Approximately 48 seniors were the guests of the Novi Jaycees at the Tiger ballgame last week. The seniors enjoy this event and look forward to it every summer.

Tentative plans are being made for a ride on the Island Queen excursion boat at Kensington on Wedesday, August 23. The group will leave the Novi Community Building at 10 a.m. Call Gordon Wilcox at 349-9034 or Helen Trahan at 349-0280 prior to August 9 for more information.

Novi BPW

A picnic supper and pool party has been slated for Thursday, August 3. Informal plans for next year's activities will be discussed and a new meeting location will be determined. Agnes Johnson attended the national BPW Convention in Puerto Rico and will give a report on August 3.

The group is anxious to contact other business and professional women in the area who might be interested in the goals of the organization. Women who are gainfully employed are eligible for membership. Any questions regarding the organization should be directed to President Ruth George at 476-8834 or Helen Stabler at 349-2383.

American Legion Post 19

Ray Tobias was elected Post Commander at the last meeting. Other new officers include First Vice-commander Bob Pohlman, Adjutant Norm Scholtet, and Second Vice-commander and Service Officer Leon Blackburn. Ted Robinson is Sergeant-at-Arms, Bob Brown is Finance Officer, and Ken Bell is Historian.

The Post picnic is slated for Wednesday, August 23, at Lakeshore Park.

All eligible veterans in the area are urged to contact Commander Ray Tobias at 349-5455 for more information about the organization.

Those Wixom saucers aren't 'unidentified'

Identified flying saucers whizzed through the air as Wixom youngsters gathered Friday morning at City Hall for a flying saucer contest. Flipping their saucers, some 60 youngsters joined in games of skill and fun sponsored jointly by the Parks and Recreation Commission and the Wixom Library. The Parks and Recreation program, held each morning, has drawn the lively group of kids for arts and crafts and games, while the library has sparked their reading interest with the summer "Book Trek" reading program.

Keeping food stored properly important for health, budget

Knowing how to store food properly and how long it will keep means less food dollars wasted, says Oakland County Home Economist Lois Wieleke.

Canned foods do have a long shelf life, but don't neglect them for several years and suddenly decide to use them. Try not to keep canned foods over one year. Canned fruit juices should not be kept over nine months.

Bulging cans indicate that the product is spoiled and should be thrown away.

Do not buy cans with dents on the side seam of the can itself or on rim seam on top or bottom of the can. Check carefully for leakage. Throw leaky cans away.

Check for leakage of rusty cans. The rust may have penetrated the can.
