Planners recommend variance to resolve County Cousin dispute

Another solution to the long-standing problems in the County Cousin Mobile Home Park may be in the offing.

The Novi Planning Board voted last week to send the plan to the zoning board for a variance. The plan would allow the park to be used for residential purposes.

Office proposal vetoed

Council rejects rezoning request for Novi Road

Despite an impassioned speech and obvious citizen pressure, the Novi City Council October 16 rejected a request to rezone 15 acres of land on Novi Road south of Ten Mile Road from R-4 (single family residential) to OS-1 (office service district).

The man seeking the rezoning of the property was Novi Attorney Carl MacPherson who had hoped to construct law offices on the property.

Voting against the rezoning were council members James Shaw, Robert Schmid, Ronald Watson and Martha Ivey. Casting the lone vote in favor of the rezoning was Mayor Romaine Roethel. Absent were Guy Smith and Pat Karovich.

MacPherson told members of the council that the city was lacking adequate office space and added that the rezoning would increase the tax base for the community.

The attorney found support from several members of the audience with interest in property near the land proposed for the rezoning. Several people mentioned that the land along Novi Road was already dominated by commercial and industrial uses and the land no longer can be marketed as residential property.

Board views attendance policy

Responding to a complaint from the parents of a high school student who has been playing hooky, the Novi School Board October 19 directed the administration to prepare a report detailing how attendance is enforced in the system.

The report will be presented at the November 2 board meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. James Murray appeared before the board to question its policy concerning enforcing attendance to classes. Mrs. Pam Murray said she had attended a parent-teacher conference and discovered her son had skipped one class on six occasions.

"My feeling is I don't think anyone is keeping track of what the kids are doing," Mrs. Murray said. "I think the kids have the run of the school."

Mrs. Murray said she had talked both with Superintendent Gerald Kratz and Acting Novi High School Principal Bob Youngberg about the situation prior to the meeting.

Schools ready for snow closings

Although the October air has so far been warm enough to keep thoughts of blizzards far away from most people, Novi school officials are already preparing for the onslaught of the wicked white stuff.

Novi school administrators faced the wrath of hundreds of distraught parents and teachers last winter after school was opened one day in late January at the start of a terrible blizzard.

School officials called off school at 7:45 a.m. — after most of the teachers and students were already battling through the snow drifts to get to classes.

Novi was the only school in the immediate area which chose to open. A cooperative agreement with five neighboring districts was instituted last year. All five kept the children home during the blizzard.

"I'll tell you this," Superintendent Gerald Kratz said at the October 19 school board meeting, "if five schools close, we're not going to be the only one open. That's for sure."

In a report presented to the board, Kratz noted the district usually faces several days of school closings due to inclement weather.

"On those days, many schools in the affected areas are virtually swamped with telephone calls from concerned parents and students inquiring whether or not their particular schools will be conducting classes as usual," Kratz stated in the report.

"To help alleviate this problem, the administration has made special arrangements with selected local radio stations to provide weather-related status reports to the public. When severe weather occurs which affects normal operation of school buses and program information will be given over the following metropolitan radio stations: WJR, WXYZ, CKLW and WJL.

"Individual calls will continue to be taken in case of a closing, however, word from the radio station would be an accurate description of the situation."

Kratz added the school closing information may be given over WOV-FM, the high school station, if arrangements can be worked out.

Before school is closed, the Oakland County Road Commission, the state police and the Novi police are called in to gain more knowledge of road conditions, Kratz reported.

In addition, administrators drive through the district to check the roads.

After all this information is gathered, the school administrator formulates a recommendation of school operations, informs the school board president and notifies the above-mentioned radio stations through the LEO's and the Novi police network.

Kratz added that "We'll make the best decision available with the best information available. That's really all we can do."

"Hopefully, we'll have warm weather."

Method of school financing to give parents of school-age children credit for whatever school they desire their children to attend.

Opponents of the measure claim that the voucher plan is nothing more than a veiled attempt to reinstate parochialism. Proponents contend the plan would encourage competition between schools and raise the quality of instruction.

The Tish plan calls for the halving of property taxation throughout the state with most of the funding to be made up by increased income taxes.

Many school officials argue that the Tish plan will increase state power over the financing of schools and therefore erode the local control over the schools.

The Headlee plan is the most conservative of the tax proposals, calling for the rate of tax growth to be limited to the rate of inflation throughout the state.

In the board discussion on the proposals, Trustee Robert Schram, who pushed for a board stand at the earlier meeting, reaffirmed his position at last Thursday's meeting.

Schram said it was proper for the board to take a stance on the proposals. He said the citizenry opposed the three plans more as they became more aware of what the proposals would actually do.

Schram added the Headlee proposal, while not too damaging to municipalities and school districts, would be fairly harmful in Novi since the rate of growth in Novi far exceeds the state average. So if Novi grew at a rate of 13 percent and the state rose at five percent, Novi would have its taxes slashed by five percent under the Headlee plan.

Treasurer Joel Colliau said he agreed with Schram and said he thought it was the responsibility of the board to inform the citizens of Novi as to their opinions on the tax plans.

Colliau said passage of the Tish and voucher plans would have an immediate effect on the schools, while the Headlee effect is debatable. He echoed Schram's comment, however, that the Headlee plan would likely have a greater effect on a growing area such as Novi.

President Waldenmeyer commented that it was very hard to tell someone how to vote, but that as a board member she had the responsibility to do so.

Superintendent Gerald Kratz said the number of students skipping class would likely be reduced significantly if a sticker were required for all students driving to school.

Kratz said two weeks ago a policy began in which school officials began policing the parking lot during the noon hour. About 35 students were turned back, he said.

Student Board Member Gerald Garcia commented he saw no reason why students with excuses from their parents could not be allowed to leave the campus during their lunch hours.

Superintendent Kratz questioned whether students would be able to drive to a fast food restaurant, stand in line, eat their meals and get back to campus in the half-hour allotted them for lunch.

Kratz said several districts in the metropolitan area charged students for the right to drive to school and park in the parking lot, but added that the move might be "too radical" for the Novi schools at the present time.

Tom Dale, a teacher at Novi High School, said the attendance policy at the high school varied from teacher to teacher.

"Some say with 15 (absences) you fail, some say with 17 you fail," he commented.

Dale added he thought it should be a policy of the entire school and not of the individual teachers.

Mr. Murray said there were 36 open doors at the high school during the day and asked whether some of those doors might be locked to further reduce the possibility of students sneaking out.

Kratz responded the doors were open as escape routes in case of fire and he would not like to see them closed.

High school officials will report back to the board on the progress of anti-skipping measures at the November 2 meeting.

Bundo trial postponed by court

Camelot Inn owner Ben Bundo's jury trial on charges that he violated the Bundo building code ordinance has been postponed by the 52nd District Court.

According to Court Administrator Virginia Perry, the trial, which was scheduled to begin last Thursday, was adjourned because of the court's heavy docket. While the next jury term is slated to start November 20, Mrs. Perry said a new trial date has not been set for Bundo.

The controversial bar owner was cited by city officials late last year after he converted the former Maple Lanes bowling establishment into a disco bar without obtaining site plan approval. He also allegedly blacktopped the parking lot to the Camelot, which is in the same building as the Shadow Fox disco, without obtaining the required permits.

Bundo has requested a jury trial on the ordinance violation counts and has continued to operate the disco pending the court date.

Meanwhile, four members of the Walled Lake Area Ministerial Association appeared before the city council last week to express their concerns that Bundo has been able to continue his operation despite the issuance of the ordinance violations.

"We're doing everything legally possible to clean it up," City Attorney Paul Ribeau told the ministers.

The Reverend Leslie F. Harding, pastor of Saint Anne's Episcopal Church and president of the association, described Bundo's defiance of the ordinance as a "blot on the city" and said the ministers decided to raise several questions for the council's consideration because "it looks like nothing has been done by the city."

Mr. Harding said that, while he and several other ministers knew of the city's efforts to make Bundo comply with the ordinances, many people only read or hear of the Camelot's nude entertainment.

The association wanted to give the council an opportunity to report on the status of the legal action against Bundo, Mr. Harding explained, and to "crystallize the whole situation."

The ministers said they weren't going to raise moral issues in the Camelot case, but would confine their comments to the legal issues involved. Copies of the letter that was sent to the council also were mailed to District Judges Martin Boyle and Gene Schreier, Mr. Harding said.

While the city has cited Bundo for the alleged building code violations, the Michigan Liquor Control Commission (LCC) has revoked the liquor license for the Camelot Inn after finding that Bundo violated state rules that prohibit total nude entertainment in establishments with Class C permits.

However, Bundo recently entered into an agreement with the state attorney general's office to continue operation of the Camelot, pending an appeal of a court ruling on the constitutionality of the LCC rules, although the dancers will no longer perform bottomless.

The bar owner is appealing a ruling handed down in June by Oakland Circuit Judge Richard D. Kuhn, who found that the LCC regulations are constitutional.

Bibeau told the ministers last week that he expects the case to go all the way to the Michigan Supreme Court after the appellate court makes a decision.

Gamma plan criticized

An angry group of residents from the Tri-A Subdivision filled city hall Monday to register their complaints about the proposed Gamma Street entrance to the Walled Lake Commons Kmart development.

Specifically, the residents attended the special joint meeting of the Walled Lake City Council and Plan Commission to protest a proposal to widen Gamma Street to four lanes from Maple Road to the entrance of the shopping center.

And even though the meeting was held to discuss the extension of Gamma to four lanes, the residents expressed numerous other concerns about the proposed Walled Lake Commons Kmart development, including concerns with the safety of children who must cross Pontiac Trail to attend Walled Lake Junior High School.

Although the meeting lasted more than 3½ hours, it is uncertain as to just what was accomplished outside of an increased understanding of the problems associated with the development and the citizens' concerns.

Walled Lake Commons has already received site plan approval from the plan commission and the city council was scheduled to take action on the proposed "project plan" in conjunction with an application for funding through the city's Economic Development Corporation at a public hearing yesterday (Tuesday).

The special meeting on Monday was set up after Councilwoman Heather Hill, a resident of the Tri-A Subdivision, had protested the manner in which the decision to extend Gamma Street to four lanes had been reached.

Although she stated that she still opposes the extension of Gamma to four lanes, Ms. Hill stated at Monday's meeting that there had been a "grave misunderstanding" as to the reasons behind the decision to make it a four-lane road.

She stated that she had initially believed the road was being widened solely to accommodate Walled Lake Commons, but had subsequently learned that Kmart Developer Stuart Frankel was only putting in one of the two additional lanes. The other lane (on the east side of Gamma) is being constructed by First Federal Savings and Loan.

Ms. Hill added that she has learned that Frankel was asked by city officials to put in another lane on the west side of Gamma after the savings and loan in-

Auditors say Scott broke city charter

By DAVID RAY

James L. Scott, who resigned from the Walled Lake City Council on October 6, violated the city charter by failing to pay some $2,284 in sewer tap, sewer debt and permit fees, according to the city's auditors.

In an October 17 letter to the council, the auditors — Derderian, Kann, Seyferth and Salovey — said Scott acknowledged the debt on September 16, 1977 "by signing a promise to pay $200 per quarter until the indebtedness was fully paid."

The promise, however, did not provide for interest payments on the debt, the auditors added.

"During the course of our audit for the year ended June 30, 1978, we noted that only two such payments were made (after September 1977)," the auditors said. "On September 7, 1978, the city clerk and Mr. Scott signed a 'sewer costs agreement' requiring quarterly payment (on an unspecified balance)."

City Clerk Ruby Lewandowski said yesterday that she did not enter into an agreement with Scott, but admitted she signed the document as a witness.

Citing a section of the city charter that disqualifies persons who are in default to the city from holding any elective or appointive office, the auditors said the council as a matter of policy "should be advised by management if any elective or appointive city official becomes in default" so the council can give the official 30 days' notice to eliminate or contest the debt.

The auditors recommended that the council should review the "documentation and circumstances" of Scott's case to "determine what action, if any, should be taken at this time."

Mayor Gaspare LaMarca said Monday night that he plans to ask the council to investigate the incident.

The mayor said he was unaware of Scott's debts to the city until he was informed of the matter by another council member two weeks ago.

City Manager Peter Parker was not informed of the situation until last September 11.

The manager said yesterday that he met with Gaspare last week and learned of the default matter and also informed his department heads later that week that "everyone must be treated equally" on debts to the city.

Parker said he met with Frank Salovey of the auditing firm twice last month and was told at one session that the auditors might have to mention Scott's charter violation in their annual report to the council.

"I think it was a very honest error of omission on Scott's part," said Parker, adding that he doesn't believe the default matter was a factor in the councilman's resignation.

Rumors of the charter violation surfaced about a week before Scott's resignation, but other city hall sources agreed with Parker that the auditors' report had nothing to do with the resignation.

The News has been unable to reach Scott for further comment.

In his letter of resignation, Scott said he was quitting the council because he planned to move to a home he has built in northern Michigan. The resignation was accepted by the council last week — although the auditors' comments were not mentioned — and LaMarca said later that he would set a deadline at the November 6 council meeting for prospective applicants to express an interest in the vacancy.

Under the charter, the council has 60 days in which to appoint a replacement by a majority vote. If the appointment cannot be made, a special election may be called to fill the post until the November 1979 election when Scott's term expires.

According to city Building Inspector Earl Gaspie, Scott received site plan approval and obtained the necessary permits to convert his home, located at 1458 Decker Road, from single-family to multiple-family residential.

The failure of the then councilman to pay the sewer debt, sewer tap and permit fees was "an oversight on his sewer billing," the inspector added.

City hall sources say Scott first became aware of the unpaid fees last year when he complained about a high water bill.

Sources say the auditors, when they became aware of the charter violation this year, expressed concern that the council had never approved the agreement to pay off the debt and that no interest was being charged.

Scott, 41, was elected to a two-year council term in November 1973 and was re-elected to a four-year term in

Developer buys Foster Farm

The 126-year-old Foster Farm in Walled Lake has been sold to a Birmingham developer.

The developer, Clarence Bornstein, confirmed last week that he recently purchased the 55-acre farm, located at 899 North Pontiac Trail just south of Commerce Road, but declined to discuss his plans for the site until he meets with city officials.

Bornstein said, however, that he intends to "respect the integrity of the original farm," adding that the buildings on the property will be left as they are or possibly upgraded within the "confines of its original character."

The property is now zoned for general commercial (C-1) and multiple-family residential (RM-1).

Wolverine Lake Village officials already have met with Bornstein to discuss the possible impacts of his proposed use of the property on Wolverine Lake, which is north of the Foster Farm, said Village Council President John McLellan.

According to the Commerce Area Historical Society, the Italianate-style dwelling was completed in 1852 and has been the home of Henry Banks, an early Walled Lake resident, and Dr. Sarah Banks, the first woman graduate of the University of Michigan Medical School.

The home was believed to have been used by the Underground Railroad, which helped slaves escape to freedom prior to the Civil War.

Mr. and Mrs. Louil J. Foster are the current residents of the farm.

Meanwhile, Mayor Gaspare LaMarca last week informed the city council that the owner of a 40-acre parcel south of the Foster Farm has proposed the construction of a 136-unit mobile home park.

The mayor said, however, that city officials expressed concern that a mobile home park in the area would add to traffic problems and could tax the capacity of city water and sewer facilities.

The proposed mobile home park would have access from Pontiac Trail, just north of the Grand Trunk Western Railroad tracks. The 40-acre site extends westward along the railroad tracks and is bounded on the west by the Walled Lake Schools' bus garage and on the north by Mud Lake, the Foster Farm and residential property on Spring Park Street.

Since the land is now zoned for light industrial (I-1) use, owner Forrest Hubbel would have to apply to city officials to have the 25 acres of the site rezoned to mobile home use, LaMarca noted.

The only land in Walled Lake now zoned for mobile home use is a 16.5-acre parcel north of Hubbel's property in the northwest corner of the city.

While 25 acres would be used for the mobile home park, the remaining 15 acres closest to Pontiac Trail would retain the industrial zoning.

Seek state approval

Huron Valley hearing nears end

Final oral arguments will be heard next Tuesday in Huron Valley Hospital's administrative appeal of a Michigan Department of Public Health (MDPH) disapproval of a certificate of need for the proposed 153-bed Commerce facility.

According to James Foresman, an attorney representing the Milford-based hospital, hearing officer Donald LaDue has indicated that it will take him about 15 days after the October 31 session to prepare an advisory report on whether the department's disapproval should be upheld.

A final decision on the appeal for the certificate of need will be made by the nine-member State Health Facilities Commission, he added.

The Huron Valley group, which was formed in December 1975 to build a full-service hospital on a 31-acre site near Sleeth and Benstein roads in Commerce, also has an appeal pending before the State Court of Appeals on a bid to reinstate an injunction that prohibited the MDPH from issuing certificates of need for other proposed health care facilities in west Oakland, Foresman said.

No date has been set for the appellate court hearing, he added.

The state health department in July 1977 denied Huron Valley's application for a certificate to build the hospital, citing a plan that showed a full-service facility was not needed in west Oakland.

The hospital group filed suit last February against the MDPH in Oakland County Circuit Court and obtained an injunction from Circuit Judge Francis X. O'Brien that barred the department from issuing certificates of need for other west Oakland facilities.

O'Brien dissolved the injunction in August after attorneys for Pontiac General Hospital — which plans to build a new main hospital in Pontiac and an ambulatory care center in Waterford Township — successfully argued that the delays in obtaining approval of the PGH plans threatened the existence of the city-owned facility.

Following O'Brien's action in August, the MDPH issued a certificate of need to Pontiac General for its proposed new main hospital. Meanwhile, PGH has attempted to obtain land near the Oakland-Pontiac Airport for the ambulatory center.

Rezoning hearings set

Walled Lake and Commerce Township planning officials have scheduled public hearings on a request to rezone some 10 acres on West Maple Road from single-family residential to light industrial for a landscape nursery.

The city plan commission has scheduled the hearing for November 28, while township planners have set the hearing for the property in Commerce for December 18.

The rezoning was requested by Raymond McMullen, who has a binding purchase agreement to buy 10 of the 15 acres now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Brewer.

A portion of the remaining five acres on the west end of the parcel will be sold to an adjacent property owner to prevent the creation of a landlocked parcel, the Brewers' attorney told the commerce planners Monday night.

The unusual rezoning request involves 550 feet of frontage on West Maple in Walled Lake. The portion of the parcel in the city is only 200 feet deep, but provides access to the remaining 800-foot depth in the township.

McMullen's proposed nursery also would include the storage of landscaping equipment which prompted the rezoning request.

FAA investigates Wixom plane crash

Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) officials are continuing their investigation into the cause of a small plane crash in Wixom Saturday afternoon that claimed two lives.

The 1940 vintage French Stampe Bi-plane crashed in a small semi-wooded clearing just shy of the east-west runway at Spencer's Field. The pilot, Dr. Marvin Forrest, 56, of Franklin Village, died later at Botsford Hospital. The passenger Dawn Cortney of Plymouth, was declared dead on arrival at the same facility. She was Dr. Forrest's sister-in-law.

Eyewitnesses to the crash claimed they could not hear the engine or the sound of impact when the plane went down. There was no explosion even though gas remained in the tank of the wood and linen constructed two-winged plane.

The crash site was scoured for clues by the FAA team Sunday. Investigators refused to comment on the probable cause of the accident. A helicopter engaged in construction work at the nearby Ford Motor Assembly Plant removed the wreckage from the crash site to the hangar area at the airfield Sunday afternoon. Officials then set about the job of tearing down the engine and instrument panel in search for further clues.

A spokesman for the FAA from Willow Run Airport said all the information gathered would be forwarded to the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) in Chicago for final determination as to the cause. "All we do is collect and supply the facts. The NTSB will make the final determination," he commented.

Rescue workers from the Wixom Fire Department led by John Jerome said they found Forrest conscious but unable to talk when they arrived at the scene. He reportedly went into cardiac arrest en route to the hospital. Mrs. Cortney, whose husband was at the airport at the time of the accident, was unconscious at the scene, trapped between the engine of the plane and her seat.

The plane, headed in a southeasterly direction at the time of the crash, appeared to have hit the soft ground at a 40 degree angle. The fuselage broke at the cockpit area with the remainder of the plane settling to the ground. The propeller, although pushed into the ground nearly a foot on impact, was not

Alternatives studied Officials meet on 275 review

A month after suggesting that two federal agencies should review the alternatives to the cancelled M-275 freeway project, State Highway Commission Chairperson Peter B. Fletcher was scheduled to meet today with John Woodford, director of the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation, and David Merchant, the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) chief in Michigan, to discuss how the trunkline plans should be presented to the U.S. Department of the Interior and the FHWA.

Although Fletcher said a month ago that Merchant had offered his assistance to expedite the review, Woodford said Monday that today's session — following the regular monthly meeting of the four-member highway commission — would lay the ground work for the federal review.

At last month's commission meeting, the state highway panel discussed the federal agencies which of the alternatives would meet federal guidelines for funding and to ensure that environmental factors are considered. The alternatives still under study include:

—the McConnell plan, proposed by Oakland County Commissioner Robert A. McConnell (R-Farmington Hills), for a parkway along Haggerty Road, from I-66 to about Pontiac Trail, that would follow the original freeway alignment to M-59;

—the Citizens in Opposition plan that calls for a scenic drive from 12 Mile Road north along the Haggerty-Union Lake-Wixom Lake roads corridor to M-59, with a connecting boulevard along 14 Mile from Northwestern Highway to Haggerty;

—the original freeway, from I-96 to I-75 near Holly;

—a new corridor east of Orchard Lake Road, or —the so-called "no build" or "do nothing" approach.

Fletcher has said that the "no build" alternative should be eliminated. He also has opined that the original freeway should be used only as a comparison to the other alternatives, although the highway commission chairperson has not commented on the proposal for a new corridor east of Orchard Lake Road.

In referring the alternative study to the federal agencies, commission members last month noted that the Interior Department had raised objections to the original freeway plans.

The FHWA, however, had approved the advanced acquisition of several parcels of land that would have been used for the M-275 right-of-way.

Woodford said it was unlikely that the commission would discuss the east Oakland trunkline at today's meeting, while Fletcher has said he is hopeful of the alternatives in time for the state panel to have those reports by the November commission meeting.

Meanwhile, McConnell has asked U.S. Representative William S. Broomfield (R-Birmingham) and U.S. Senators Donald Riegle and Robert Griffin for their support to expedite the federal agencies' review of the alternatives.

Broomfield replied that he has asked Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus and Karl Bowers, acting administrator of the FHWA, to expedite their reviews "so as to help bring this issue to a timely and necessary conclusion."

The alternatives study also is expected to be presented to the Michigan Environmental Review Board (MERB) for a recommendation.

Commerce planners question need for tax break

Business owners who request a property tax reduction in order to build or expand industrial facilities should prove that they need the tax break, Commerce Township planning officials said last week.

The planning commission had been asked by the township board whether a request for a 50-percent property tax break should be approved for Dedees Industries, 1060 W. West Maple Road. The company wants to build a 7,240-square-foot warehouse addition to its existing building. The tax break would be applied only to the addition.

Township officials, however, are concerned that approval of an exemption certificate for the firm will encourage other businesses to request a similar tax reduction.

In the past, the township has neither encouraged nor discouraged industrial development, Supervisor Robert Long told the planners. Approval of the request from Dedees would encourage industrial growth, he added, and asked the commission if that is what they want to do.

Commission Chairperson Lynn Gouge said Commerce is not hunting for industrial development, based on the number of site plans and plats that have been presented to the planners.

Commissioner Edward Holmes, a township trustee, agreed that Commerce is attracting industry and noted that the state law that provides for the tax break was intended to help cities keep or attract businesses to create new jobs.

Several officials also pointed out that industrial development may not place a burden on municipal services, although it could spur other kinds of growth.

If no more jobs are created by the new or expanded business, the new employees might move to Commerce and the development of new residential areas could lead to higher municipal service costs, said Assessor E. Wynn Berry. The partial increase in taxes for the new industry would have to be compared to the possible higher service costs resulting from related development, he added.

Planning Consultant Steve Lehoczy said that Avon Township took advantage of the industrial development law to encourage a long-time business to build a research facility, but later decided not to approve additional tax break requests.

The consultant suggested that the township might consider a policy of considering approval of exemption certificates for businesses that seek to expand or rebuild their township facilities to provide employment for Commerce residents as long as the owners could prove that they would face a hardship without the tax break.

Commissioner George Allard questioned what would constitute a hardship. He noted that technology costs are expensive and added that some companies may have to expand or enlarge their facilities to stay in business.

Lehoczy and Commissioner Robert McGee, the township clerk, also noted that it would be difficult to deny requests for the exemption certificate after the township approves one. Berry noted, however, that the law only allows a unit of government to grant tax reductions up to five percent of its total state equalized valuation.

McGee added that there are some indications that the Headlee tax limitation constitutional amendment, if it is approved, could pose a "barrier to economic development" by requiring voter approval of an exemption certificate.

He also said that, in addition to encouraging industrial development, the planners should consider whether the existing master plan or the proposed update provide for too much industrial land.

Commission members directed Lehoczy to study the pros and cons of the tax break law and come up with a recommendation. Dedees manufactures paint blending equipment and golf course aerators. The firm has been in business in Commerce since 1966 and has built three additions to increase its facility to 23,000 square feet.

John Dedees, vice-president of the firm, said increased demand for the aerators prompted the request for the tax break.

The commission last week approved a site plan for the warehouse, and township officials noted that the exemption certificate may be approved up to a year after the addition is built. Before the company may apply for the certificate, the board must hold a public hearing and approve an industrial development district.

Another hearing must be held before the township recommends approval of the certificate to the state tax commission and the Michigan Department of Commerce which also must okay the tax break.

Once the development district is created, however, the company could appeal the township's denial of the certificate to the state agencies.

Pool, clubhouse sliced from Novi townhouses

Developers of the Twelve Oaks Townhouses have decided to eliminate plans for the construction of a clubhouse and swimming pool.

And the Novi Planning Board has directed the developers to remove the proposed amenities from their site plans.

Gary Grewal of Singh Associates appeared before the planning board last week to request revised site plan approval with the elimination of the clubhouse and swimming pool.

Grewal told the planners that Singh Associates had purchased an approved site plan which included the amenities, but had decided that the size of the development did not make it feasible to add the clubhouse and swimming pool.

The Twelve Oaks Townhouse Apartments are located on 8.6 acres of land on the west side of Haggerty Road between Nine and Ten Mile Roads. The project is immediately south of the Stonehenge Condominiums.

City Planning Consultant Charles Cairns of Villac-Leman reported that elimination of the clubhouse and swimming pool would not impair the integrity of the site plan.

Members of the planning board expressed concern, however, that some of the townhouses might already have been rented under the assumption that the development would eventually include the clubhouse and swimming pool.

Planning Board Chairman John Roethel questioned Grewal as to whether residents of the units had signed leases under false impressions.

Grewal reported that prospective tenants are informed that the clubhouse and swimming pool have been eliminated from the development. He admitted, however, that the clubhouse and swimming pool are included on the site plan which is located in the sales office.

The planners subsequently voted unanimously to grant revised site plan approval with the elimination of the amenities.

Beautification drive begins

Walled Lake Mayor Gaspare La Marca (left) and Beautification Commission Chairperson Ardy Mercer (right) handle official shovel duties Saturday as various Walled Lake residents participated in the planting of 17 new trees in front of the Maple Plaza as the first step in a city beautification program. The owner of the Maple Plaza donated funds to the beautification panel to buy the first trees, while the Oakland County Planning Division came up with an artist's sketch of the plan. Participating in the ceremonies (above) were representatives of Walled Lake city government, the Beautification Commission, the Walled Lake Rotary Club, and Michigan Bell Telephone Company.

Bank asks rezoning for branch office

A public hearing has been scheduled by the Commerce Township Planning Commission for November 20 on a request from Michigan National Bank to rezone a 1.45-acre parcel located on the southwest corner of Haggerty and West Maple roads from local business to office use.

The bank intends to build a branch office on the site, according to Clerk Robert McGee, a member of the commission.

He added, however, that Michigan National officials have indicated that they may change the rezoning request from office to community business use because the proposed zoning ordinance update provides for banks in the community business district.

Several commission members noted that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers recently assumed jurisdiction over permit requirements for the property around the bank's parcel which is part of a black spruce bog. Under the Army's order, additional permits will be required for filling or changing drainage in the area.

Planning Consultant Steve Lehoczy will review the request and make a recommendation before the commission's public hearing.

The Oakland County Planning Division also will review the rezoning request before it is submitted to the township board for a final decision.

Planners ask variance

 sent owners terminate their residency, according to Smith's motion.

Romanow submitted an amendment which would permit Button to rent out the lots after the present residents leave the sites, but the amendment died for lack of support.

The planners subsequently voted 5-0 to approve the original motion and send the matter to the ZBA with a recommendation for a variance.

Romanow abstained from voting, stating that his vote would be misinterpreted regardless of how he voted. Romanow also noted, however, that the ZBA can do anything it wants to when the matter comes before them and would not necessarily be obliged to accept the recommendation of the planning board.

Commerce sets hearing on budget for Tuesday

The Commerce township board will hold a public hearing next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. on a proposed budget for the 1979 fiscal year.

For Commerce, which incorporated as a charter township in September, the spending plan will be its first January to December budget. General law townships operate on an April to March fiscal year and must present a proposed budget to residents at the annual meeting each spring.

According to Supervisor Robert Long, the budget is still in its preliminary stages of preparation. The supervisor declined to estimate what the final spending figure might be until the board completes its review of anticipated revenues and expenditures.

Board members have met twice already to discuss the spending plan and last night held a public hearing for citizen input on possible uses for some $24,000 in federal revenue sharing funds that the township is expected to receive.

A second hearing on the revenue sharing allocation will be held next Wednesday before the budget hearing.

Unless Commerce residents propose other uses for the federal funds, Long said the board probably would earmark the monies for public safety -- police and fire protection -- as it has done in recent years.

Long noted that the transition from general law to charter township status will make it difficult for the board to come up with accurate predictions for 1979 spending.

"It will be hard to get comparisons (of current actual expenditures)," he added.

In addition, the township will have to rely on guestimates on the cost of operating the new community center and on its cost of contracting with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department for police protection, Long said.

The community center, which is still under construction, was scheduled to be completed last summer, but the general contractor apparently has gone out of business, leaving several thousand dollars in unpaid bills and a facility that is still a month or two away from completion.

And, since the Oakland County Board of Commissioners each year sets the contract rate for deputy services, the township won't know how much to allocate for police protection until the county budget is adopted.

In recent years, the county board has reduced its subsidy to pay for police protection in the 10 townships that contract for the service. Last year, the commissioners indicated that they would completely eliminate the subsidy in the 1979 budget. At present, the townships are paying almost $30,000 for each deputy assigned to the patrol units. Commerce contracts with the county for six deputies.

The current budget called for revenues and expenditures of $1,275,000, although that spending plan originally was expected to run through next March 31.

Community center work still stalled in township

Commerce Township officials still are having problems in getting approval from a bonding company to complete the construction of the community center in Richardson Park.

Township board members last week authorized the three full time elected officials to negotiate a settlement with the bonding company, International Fidelity Insurance, for completion of the $182,000 facility, but Supervisor Robert Long said Monday that he has been unable to reach the firm's claims director.

Long said township officials have estimated that it will cost $55,000 to $59,000 to complete work on the center and pay sub-contractors and lumber and building supply companies for labor and materials that were not paid by the general contractor, Lakewood Construction Company, which apparently has gone out of business.

International Fidelity issued a performance bond to Lakewood for the community center project which was started in September 1977. The construction was supposed to have been completed this spring.

However, township officials ran into a number of problems, including Lakewood's failure to meet the deadline for completion; failure to pay sub-contractors and building supply companies for labor and materials; and failure to respond to inquiries about the lack of progress.

After Long was unable to contact construction company officials, the board voted to terminate the contract and attempt to work with the bonding company to complete the facility.

The supervisor has estimated it will take several weeks to finish the center once the work begins again. All of the sub-contractors have agreed to complete their work on the facility, he added.

No work has been done on the center since late July when township officials became aware of the problems with Lakewood, although Long said Monday that a leak in the skylight would be fixed as soon as possible.

Novi planners approve industrial building

Construction of a 40,000 square foot industrial building on 10 Mile Road in Novi is slated to get underway this fall. Final site plan approval for the proposed Progressive Tool and Industries Company building was granted by the Novi Planning Board at last week's session.

The building will be constructed on 17.7 acres of land on the south side of 10 Mile, immediately west of the C & O Railroad tracks. The industrial building of 40,000 square feet is 40 feet high and will be located between the railroad tracks and the Novi 26 Apartments.

The site plan anticipates a total of 40 employees. Progressive Tool and Industries Company is involved in the manufacture of special machinery for the automotive industry, according to a company spokesman.

Planners had tabled action on the site plan earlier this fall pending completion of engineering details.

City Planning Consultant Charles Cairns of Villan-Leman told the planners last week that the revised final site plan meets the minimum requirements of the city's zoning ordinance in terms of setback and off-street parking requirements.

Cairns noted that the previous site plan had graphically indicated landscaping treatment around the retention pond at the front of the property which was not presented on the most recent site plan.

Cairns advised the planners to be satisfied that the landscaping will be carried out as originally proposed.

City Engineer Harry Mosher said the site plan represented perhaps the second time in four years that a developer's engineers had taken the time to read the city standards from start to finish.

Mosher said the site plan was "probably the finest engineering plan we've ever seen."

Novi teachers to pursue arbitration of grievance

The Novi Education Association will take to arbitration a grievance against the Novi school administration and board for changing the schedules of some teachers.

The board May 21 took action to add another bus run and thus change some of the teachers' schedules by as much as 45 minutes. None of the teachers' schedules has been lengthened, according to Superintendent Gerald Kratz, only changed.

The teachers contend the action by the board represents a violation of the master agreement between the teachers and the administration.

Rosalind Puertes of the Novi Education Association (NEA) has stated the contract defines teaching hours and specifies what hours constitute the instructional day. She said only minor deviations of five to ten minutes have occurred since 1971.

Mrs. Puertes also noted the contract calls for any changes in the contract to be reached with the consent of both parties.

Both Kratz and the school board have rejected the NEA request to reverse its position. Handling the case for the NEA will be Uni-Serv Director John Saltzgeber.

damaged causing onlookers to claim the engine was not running at the time of impact.

Eric Schjolin, visiting at the George Spencer home which abuts the field and offers a clear view of the area, had been watching the flights of three biplanes that had been in the air during the afternoon.

Schjolin said he took particular interest in the World War II models and commented to others in the house that it appeared the Stampe was heading in.

Mrs. Pat Spencer joined Schjolin in his watch as he called, "He's going down." Mrs. Spencer reported that when she first viewed the plane it appeared in level flight. "It banked at least twice, losing altitude each time it banked," she said. "Then, on the third bank, it disappeared from view."

Assuming the plane had gone down, Wixom Fire Chief George Spencer said he immediately called for the rescue truck before setting out into the back fields.

Schjolin, his son Bruce, and Spencer's son George were the first to locate the small aircraft in the clearing south of the runway. According to Spencer, Dr. Forrest had hanged his planes at Spencer field "for about eight years."

"He definitely knew the area," said Spencer.

The airship is surrounded by large stretches of open fields suitable for emergency landings. The crash site was decidedly smaller than the others and was also rimmed with trees and brush.

A so-called fan of antique planes, Dr. Forrest had been flying another biplane in formation with two others of the same vintage earlier Saturday afternoon. Two left the area, Forrest landed, switched planes to the Stampe and took off with Mrs. Courtney.

Spencer, whose knowledge of planes goes back many years, said the plane could remain aloft at 35 miles per hour. He estimated the plane's total weight at just under 1,200 pounds and said it was "much like a sail plane with a propeller."

"It's glide ratio is terrific — even with lost power it could easily glide in for a landing," said Spencer.

Mayor Spencer, herself a licensed pilot, said Forrest could have even set the plane down in the tops of the trees if necessary. "And even if the engine stalled, he could have made the field with no problem," she observed.

Forrest had suffered several mishaps with his planes over the years. The latest incident occurred in early September when he was forced to make an emergency landing in West Bloomfield. According to police, Forrest put down in a field at the busy intersection of 14 Mile and Farmington Road. West Bloomfield Police reports indicate Forrest claimed engine failure for the incident.

Nicked wings and other incidents described at Spencer Field as "fender benders" marked the 56 year old dentist's hobby with fixed-wing aircraft. The last with Stampe 671SV proved fatal.

County traffic deaths up

Traffic deaths in Oakland County are adding up at a faster rate than they did last year and a major reason may be the increase in the volume of vehicles traveling South on Michigan roads.

There was a leveling off in fatal accidents in August, however, according to statistics released by the Traffic Improvement Association

(TIA) of Oakland County. Oakland's 1978 fatality rate through August is 109, about 13.5 percent higher than the 96 recorded for the same period last year, according to TIA Managing Director Bruce Madsen.

"But the 14 deaths here in August are to less than last year and well under the 20.3 average for the three preceding Augusts," he said.

"Another point to look at in comparing yearly statistics is that last year's death rate was the lowest in Oakland County in 15 years."

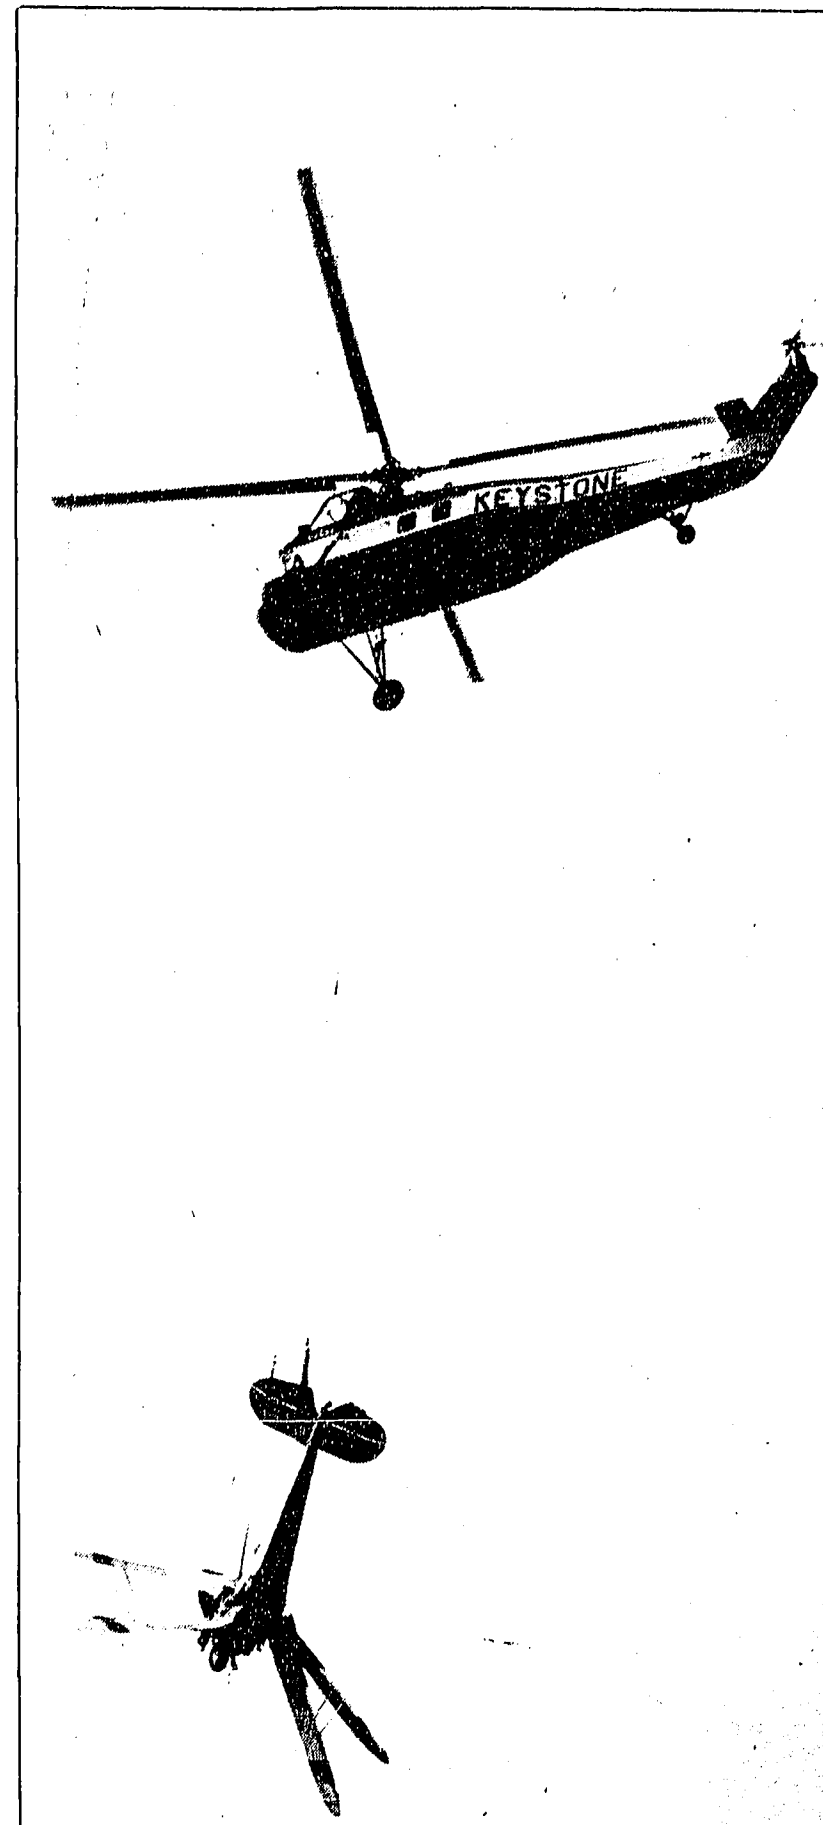

There has been at least a seven percent increase in the volume of traffic on Southeastern Michigan roads so far this year, according to District Traffic Engineer Paul Riley of the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation. He said that three quarter figures to be tabulated through September will probably show an even greater increase.

"The traffic trend through June in our section of the state is up 6.7 percent and up 6.9 percent over the first six months of the year," said Riley.

"Although figures through the summer aren't yet available, I tend to think the trend for more traffic has continued through the busy summer months of July and August," he continued. "The weather's been perfect and I hear it's been the year for tourism in the State of Michigan."

"The state as a whole showed only 2.8 percent increase in traffic for the first six months of the year," Riley added. "So you can see this area is running well ahead of the statewide trend."

The state fatality total for the year to date shows less than a half percent increase over last year.

Airlift

An industrial helicopter transports the remains of a Stampe biplane in which two people died when it crashed near Spencer Field in Wixom Saturday afternoon. The helicopter airlifted the wreckage to the airfield where Federal Aviation Administration officials shifted through the pieces in an attempt to pinpoint the cause of the air tragedy.

Sherwood plat plan approved

A tentative preliminary plat for the proposed 40-lot Sherwood Acres Subdivision has been conditionally approved by the Commerce Township board.

was made subject to review and a recommendation for approval from Johnson and Anderson, the township's consulting engineers. The engineers will check the plat for compliance with the township's subdivision control ordinance and the state plat act.

Located north of Sleeth Road and east of Marcello Drive near Lake Sherwood, the 50-acre site will be developed by the SRPG Group, according to Clerk Robert McDev. The property is zoned R-1-A for single-family residential development, the clerk added.

Road budget to be aired

The proposed budget and construction program for 1979 will be aired at a public hearing of the Board of Oakland County Road Commissioners on Wednesday, November 15.

Board Chairman John R. Gnaul said the hearing will be held in the Bloomfield Township Hall at 42000 Telegraph Road at 7:30 p.m.

Gnaul stated further the budget and construction program proposals are now being prepared and will be available prior to the hearing date.

November, 1975. He served on the city's Parks and Recreation Commission before winning the council seat.

The former councilman also has had problems with the city on a landfill near his home and because he built a stockade fence on his property without obtaining a variance from the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA).

Scott has said that the city should fill the swampy area near his property, which was used as a storm water retention pond for the A-O Subdivision, but city officials have maintained that they aren't responsible for the so-called Payson landfill.

The landfill issue has been discussed at several council meetings over the past 1 1/2 years. In June, the ZBA failed to approve a variance for Scott's fence. Several board members complained that the fence was erected before the variance was requested.

Scott then blasted the board members who voted against the variance, saying they opposed his request because he was a council member.

An appeal of the variance denial has been filed with the board, but some of the members or Scott have been absent from subsequent meetings and the appeal has not been heard.

Explain rehab checks

It was incorrectly reported last week that the five-member Wixom Housing Commission will visit the home of a rehabilitation grant applicant. According to Rehabilitation Director Dan Rooney, the entire five-member panel will not visit the applicant's home. The home will be visited by Rooney, the building inspector, and the contractor.

"In our effort to keep the applicant confidential," said Rooney, "we will have just the contractor, building inspector, and myself visit the applicant's home. The Housing Commission will approve or disapprove the application based on our recommendations."

Rooney reinforced the idea that all applications will remain confidential and be referred to by case number only. For more information on the Wixom Housing Rehabilitation Program, contact Rooney at 624-4557.

Residents don't like Gamma plan

situation had received permission to add a lane on the eastern side of the road.

Key to the residents' complaints is the belief that the widening of Gamma will make it a major entrance to the Kmart development. They argued that there are already many traffic problems in Gamma and that construction of the Wall Lake Commons Kmart development would only compound the situation.

One resident, Frank Beck, proposed that Gamma Street be made a service drive in order to eliminate a major increase in traffic on the artery which is the only existing access into the Tri-A Subdivision.

Other residents proposed the elimination of the Gamma Street entrance to the shopping center and suggested that another entrance could be placed at the south end of the development.

Frankel stated that he was opposed to any proposal to prohibit him from using Gamma Street as an entrance to the shopping center.

"It's a commercial street, not a residential street, and I have a legal right to use it," he stated. "I would have to take reciprocal action if there were any attempts to prohibit me from using that street."

"People have suggested that I enter the shopping center from the south, but there's no way I can put the entrance to the Kmart half a mile away and hope to retail my merchandise," he continued.

"Somebody will probably tell me to bring the people in by helicopter and show me where I can put the helicopter on my site plan."

"I have a $3 million investment and I've got to have that entrance on Gamma Street," stated Frankel.

Al Klases, a professional traffic engineer hired by Frankel to assist in planning traffic movement, told the residents that an estimated 20 percent of the traffic into Kmart would use the Gamma Street entrance.

"The rest of the traffic would enter the development from Pontiac," he stated. The report appears to conflict with Frankel's comments to the planning board recently when he stated that it is hoped that Gamma Street would become the major entrance to the shopping center.

Traffic engineers from the Oakland County Road Commission and the firm of Goodell-Grievens told the residents that the installation of a traffic light at the Maple-Gamma intersection and the widening of Gamma would reduce traffic congestion, however.

City Attorney Richard Poehlman told the residents that the city could not deny Frankel the use of Gamma Street any more than it could deny them the use of the road.

"If we were to deny him use of Gamma Street it would be paramount to confiscation of his property," stated the attorney.

In response to a question from Councilman Thomas Brookover, Poehlman also stated that the city could not prevent Frankel from using the property for his proposed commercial development. The attorney stated that Frankel is entitled by law to use the site as long as he meets the city's ordinances and building codes.

Frankel told the residents that he had nothing to do with the installation of another lane on the east side of Gamma and that he had agreed to add a lane to the west side of the street at the request of the city.

"I really feel as if I've bent over backwards to do everything I can to keep everybody happy," he said. "I feel that I was being something of a good Samaritan by agreeing to put in that additional lane on Gamma at my own expense."

The council appeared sympathetic to citizen concerns with the safety of children who must cross Pontiac Trail to attend Wall Lake Junior High. Councilmen William Staman and Brookover both stated that they would be willing to appropriate funds to hire a crossing guard to assist the students.

Plan Commissioner Phillip Rundell reacted angrily to implications that the commission was more concerned with the rights of the developer than the rights of the citizen.

"You slam us down on the ground and you kick us," he told the residents. "But we've worked very hard to look out for your interests. We've tried very hard to get the things you wanted. It may not be exactly what you want, but it hasn't been because we didn't try."

Mayor Gaspare LaMarca told the residents that their concerns would be noted and studied. "Traffic is our number one problem in this city," he said. "We have to build more roads to solve this congestion. But we must have unity if we're going to work out our problems."

Novi Mayor Romaine Roethel has urged voters to support Proposal M which will appear on the statewide ballot in the November 7 general election.

Proposal M will allocate at least 10 percent of gas and vehicle license taxes for municipal street, county road, and state highway maintenance and improvement.

Mrs. Roethel said that Proposal M "will guarantee a fair allocation of road user taxes to help meet road, street, and bridge needs."

"It will also provide a sound basis for financing other forms of comprehensive transportation in all areas of the state," she continued.

Comprehensive transportation services include the state's railroad network, municipal bus systems, and public transportation such as dial-a-ride service for senior citizens and handicapped persons, airports, water ports, and ferries.

Proposal M allows the State Legislature to allocate up to 10 percent of road user taxes and the state's share of the sales tax on cars, tires, and automotive parts for comprehensive transportation purposes.

Mrs. Roethel noted that it would not change the allocation of the school aid and local government shares of the sales tax, however.

She said the sales tax through state revenue sharing. Proposal M only affects the present state share of the sales tax.

"If Proposal M is not approved by the voters on November 7, the Legislature could divert all of the highway user tax revenue away from meeting road and street aid," stated the Novi mayor. "If that were to happen, our streets would be in even worse shape. Our only alternative would be to increase local property taxes to help meet our street maintenance needs."

"Voter approval of Proposal M will guarantee that we will continue to get our fair share of the state gasoline and vehicle taxes for our street program," she continued. "Proposal M is good for Michigan's road and street programs and for public transportation programs also."

should be in full bloom next spring as a result of the efforts of several Novi Girl Scouts this past Saturday.

Over 100 girls from Novi's Brownie, Junior, Cadet, and Senior Scout groups planted 300 flower bulbs in Novi's Brookfarm, Powers, and Spirit of '76 Parks. The bulbs, all tulips and crocuses, are expected to bloom next spring.

Earlier this year the same group of Girl Scouts maintained the city's softball fields for a girls tournament.

"These girls have done a lot for the city of Novi and I think they should get some recognition," said Park and Recreation Department Director Barry Smink.

Fessler, Giese square off in state rep campaign

Fessler

State Representative Richard Fessler says he will run for reelection on his record.

"I like the job and I think I'm doing it well," said the West Bloomfield resident. "I'm already doing the things that she's telling the people she's going to do. I'm doing them now and I'll continue to do them."

Fessler cites a long list of examples of his responsiveness to the people in the district.

He maintains that he is the first 24th District State Representative to attend the budget sessions of the Oakland County Road Commission and make recommendations for improvements in the construction program.

He says he was instrumental in adding key wording to House Bill 4030 which protected the interests of both Wolverine Lake Village and Commerce Township.

He responded to the concerns of Commerce Township residents when there was talk of putting a prison within their community. "There is no more talk of putting a prison in Commerce Township," he notes.

And he says he has responded to the interests of Novi, Wixom, Milford and numerous other communities which have suffered from demolitions. He was instrumental in bringing state officials into these communities to study the problems and he was instrumental in bringing about the formation of a committee to investigate the status of rail safety in the state.

Fessler also states that he has worked with South Lyon officials to get funds for the expansion of their wastewater treatment plant, Milford residents to bring about the establishment of horse trails in the Proud Lake Recreation Area, and Wolverine Lake Village officials to secure funds for lake improvements.

"I don't think I can be faulted on my record of being responsive to the needs of the people in the 24th District," he states.

On key ballot proposals, Fessler expressed the following views:

Constitutional Convention: Fessler is opposed to the calling of a constitutional convention. He says the present constitution is a viable instrument which does not need to be changed. He also questions the cost of a constitutional convention in light of his belief that the existing document is serving

Giese

Government can be more effective. That's the keynote in the campaign of Democrat Elizabeth Giese of Milford in her battle to unseat Incumbent Republican Richard Fessler of West Bloomfield in the race for State Representative from the 24th District.

"Many legislators think their job is totally one of writing legislation and listening to their constituents," she stated.

And while she believes that both are worthwhile endeavors, she also maintains that a legislator must do more. "A good legislator," she states, "must get results in Lansing."

If successful in her campaign to defeat Fessler, she says she would do things differently.

"We need more legislators concentrating on making the system work for us," she argues. "Legislators must use the new Administrative Procedures Act to evaluate the rules that state agencies are coming out with. This important new watchdog function must be emphasized and developed."

Mrs. Giese brings an impressive array of credentials to her fight for the 24th District seat in the State House of Representatives.

She is a member of the Democratic State Central Committee and has served two years as spokesperson for the Michigan Democratic Women's Caucus. She has also served two years as a board member of Michigan's ERAmerica coalition and has recently completed a one-year term on the State Board of Education Advisory Council on Teacher Training and Professional Development.

A graduate of the University of Michigan with a BA Degree in Education, she is a former school teacher.

In spite of her work with the Democratic Party, she objects strongly to being labelled a "party insider." Instead she prefers to call herself a reformer and an activist for political reform and women's rights.

She does not apologize for her active role in the Democratic Party, however. In fact, she has enlisted the aid of several key Democrats, including United States Representative William Brodhead, State Senate Candidate Douglas Ross, and State Representtative Joseph Forbes to assist her in her campaign.

In addition, House Speaker Bobby D. Crim has reported that it is "highly probable" that Mrs. Giese will be appointed to the Influential House Conservation, Environment and Recreation Committee (elected in November).

Mrs. Giese maintains that her involvement in the Democratic Party will be a major asset in the event that she is able to unseat Fessler.

Pointing to Crim's statement about probable appointment to the Conservation Committee, she states that a member of the majority party can be much more effective in Lansing.

She notes that Fessler introduced some 43 pieces of legislation during the past session, but that only two of those bills made it through the legislative process.

She adds that a poll conducted by a metropolitan Detroit newspaper rated Fessler 99th out of the 110 state representatives in Lansing.

"Even if you don't accept the idea that he rates 99 out of 110, you still get the idea that he isn't in the top half of legislators and I believe that I can do a great deal more to represent the people in the 24th District," she states.

Mrs. Giese maintains that Fessler has a "black list" of "recovered" legislators. "It's a very unpredictable record," she says. "It's very difficult to find a consistent thread of philosophy in his voting record."

There have been a number of issues on which he has been both for and against it," she adds.

She also gives Fessler low grades for his performance on political reform, although she admits that it is difficult to advocate political reform in any way," she says.

Headline Tax Limitation: She says she could "live with it," but does not favor it. "It's not property tax reform and should not be perceived as property tax reform," she says.

Tisch Proposal: "Tisch is an effort to meet the problems with property taxes, but really hasn't dealt effectively with those concerns," she said. "I think it will result in a tax shift instead of a tax reduction and will hurt more people than it will benefit."

Voucher Proposal: She opposed the Voucher Proposal on the basis of possible constitutional questions, i.e. can the state support private religious educational systems. She says there are just too many questions about its effects to merit support, including the question of whether students would be permitted to cross school district boundaries.

The bottom line, she maintains, "is getting our money's worth out of government."

A proposed ordinance that would require Walled Lake property owners to remove snow, ice and other obstructions from sidewalks was introduced and approved on first reading last week by the city council.

Second reading and adoption of the measure is expected at the council's November 6 session.

Before the council gave its initial okay to the proposed ordinance, however, several changes were made to eliminate potential problems. One revision deleted references to maintaining sidewalks and bike paths, while another specified that only paved sidewalks or paths must be cleared.

Council members objected to requiring property owners to maintain the bike paths which were installed by the city under federal community development block grant funding. Some of the officials also felt there should be a distinction between paved walkways and safety paths as opposed to gravel paths or paths created by pedestrian use.

Under the measure, property owners would be given 24 hours to clear the walks.

City Attorney Paul Bibeau said he doubted that criminal charges would be filed against those who violated the law, if it is passed. Although the ordinance would carry a maximum fine of $500, Bibeau said the city probably would enforce the measure by cleaning sidewalks that are neglected by the property owner and assessing the cost of the service on the owner's tax bill.

A move to table the proposed ordinance was defeated after Councilman Walter Lewandowski, who suggested the measure, noted that it could not take effect until mid-December, if action was delayed.

Meanwhile, a proposed ordinance that would have required the installation of smoke detectors in all single-family and multiple residential units and motels and hotels was referred back to Bibeau for revision.

Councilman Thomas Brookover said the measure, as presented to the council, would have been unenforceable. He suggested that the law should require smoke detectors in new construction and commercial and multiple complexes.

Should the legal drinking age be raised to 21?

D If Proposal D on the November ballot passes, Michigan, which led the nation into Prohibition nearly 60 years ago, will once again have a legal drinking age of 21.

The proposed amendment to the Michigan Constitution would raise the state's legal purchase and consumption of alcoholic beverage from the present 18 years to 21 years, just six years after the Michigan Legislature had passed the Age of Majority Statute. Under the statutes, 18 year olds acquired the rights of adults. Those favoring the proposal point to statistics related to driving and school discipline problems to support their position.

Fatal accidents related to alcohol increased 132 percent in the 18 to 20 year old age bracket from 1972 and 1976, according to data released in 1977 by the Michigan State Police. The data further shows a 217 percent increase in accidents involving personal injury and property damage related to alcohol during the same period.

The number of 18 to 20 year old drivers during the five-year period increased by nine percent. Proponents also quote statistics showing that alcohol related fatal crashes went up 14 percent for drivers in the 21 and older age group from 1972-76.

Opponents of the proposal claim, however, that there are gaps in the statistical data. They cite statistics from the Secretary of State that indicate that the accident rate for persons under 21 is not significantly different than for those over 21.

Further, they state that the involvement of alcohol in accidents among young adults is roughly the same as that for older drivers, ranging in the 10 to 12 percent per 100 accidents for all age groups.

Hoping to solve the problem of 18-year-old high school students being able to purchase liquor and bringing it to school or furnishing it to minors, the Michigan Legislature acted earlier this year to raise the legal age to 19. Public Act 92 and 94 takes effect December 3 of this year raising the drinking age for a three-year experimental period.

While high school administrators feel this may improve the school discipline problems where they are related to alcohol, they still favor passage of Proposal D.

The Michigan Council on Alcohol Problems (MICAP) reports that 80 percent of the high school principals responding to a recent survey favored increasing the legal age to 21. The response rate was 88 percent of those contacted.

Proponents also claim that available data shows an increase in the number of teens and young adults entering treatment programs for alcohol related problems.

Among those opposing raising the drinking age are The Michigan Licensed Beverage Association, the Distilled Spirits Council of the US (DISCUS) and the Three O'Clock Lobby, an organization of young people who lobby for issues affecting youth.

They cry "discrimination" against young people considering that according to law, 18 year olds have reached the age of majority in other areas such as voting, purchasing property and credit. Denying the right to drink violates equal treatment under the law, Proposal D opponents say.

These groups take the stand that if the present law were enforced, the problem of drunk driving and school drinking would be adequately addressed. They say this is especially true in view of the passage of Public Acts 92 and 94 raising the drinking age to 19.

The decrease in the birth rate causes some observers to feel that as today's 18 to 20 year olds grow older, the younger generation will make up a smaller proportion of society and the significance of their statistics will tend to decrease.

Should state use savings and loan associations?

C Proposal C, placed on the November 7 ballot by the state legislature, will amend the Michigan constitution to permit the deposit of state funds in savings and loan associations and credit unions as well as in banks.

Presently, under the constitution, only commercial banks are allowed to serve as depositories for state funds.

Savings and loans associations and credit unions are prohibited.

Public officials will have more options as to the deposit and investment of public funds, supporters of the amendment argue.

It is also argued that since credit unions and savings and loan associations are able to offer a higher rate of interest over commercial banks, investments will yield high returns for the state.

Also, the increased competition among the financial institutions may result in higher interest yields for all local units of government, supporters say.

Proponents also point out that the proposed amendment would give savings and loan and credit unions the same opportunity to serve as recipients of state fund deposits currently only afforded to commercial banks.

They also say that passage of Proposal C will increase the availability of mortgage loans for Michigan homeowners by expanding the financial base of savings and loan associations.

On the other side, opponents say that passage of the proposal would put commercial banks at a competitive disadvantage since as a result of state and federal laws, savings and loan associations and credit unions are able to offer higher interest rates on deposits.

They also say that passage of the proposal would be an added cost to the state since the Department of Treasury would have to add more staff to monitor the savings and loan associations and credit unions.

State funds represent short-term funds while savings and loan associations are required by law to have 82 percent of their investments in long-term home mortgages, opponents point out. Therefore, an incompatibility between the funds exists, they say.

Opponents also point out that if all financial institutions are able to receive state fund deposits, then all financial institutions should be treated equally in respect to reserve requirements, interest rates and taxing rates.

At present, commercial banks must have a 12 to 14 percent reserve, savings and loan associations seven percent and credit unions from zero to 20 percent.

Credit unions are exempt from federal taxation and the state single business tax. Commercial banks and savings and loan associations pay both federal and state taxes.

Commerce planners okay industrial plans

Site plans for portions of two industrial parks were approved last week by the Commerce Township Planning Commission.

Commission members unanimously approved plans for three lots in the Hagerty Road Industrial Park at the request of Frank Marotta of Builders of Michigan, Incorporated.

Planning Consultant Steve Lehoczy said the plans met all ordinance requirements and added that the final plan for the 24-lot, 20-acre industrial park is scheduled to go to the township board for approval.

The consultant noted a possible legal problem with development of two of the lots, but said Marotta could lease the sites without violating the state plat act as long as the adjacent property is not sold.

Also approved was a site plan for a building in the Northland Industrial Park located on the southwest corner of Hagerty and Richardson roads, at the request of Nalco Corporation, which is affiliated with the National Lumber Company.

The approval was made subject to revision of the plan to incorporate several suggestions recommended by Johnson and Anderson, the township's consulting engineers.

A representative of Nalco told the commission that the building will have a maximum of six tenants and probably would be used for small machine shops or warehouses.

Senator Griffin: A Leader Mr. Levin: A Misleader

CBS network newscaster, Jed Duvall, said recently, "Griffin is considered one of the Senate's hard-working members, one of its best parliamentarians..." ("Capitol Cloakroom," Aug. 20, 1978.)

U.S. Senator Griffin is one of the ablest and most effective Senators in Washington. That isn't just a statement, it's the opinion of everyone who really knows the Senate.

Voting attendance is only one of many factors to be weighed in judging a Senator. However, in this department, too, Senator Griffin stands well above the average.

Whether you compare worst years, or best years—or overall career averages—Senator Griffin's voting attendance record is better than most Senators whom Mr. Levin would hold up as models of vigor and effectiveness.

Here's how we stand on nine proposals

Yes on E, No on J,H

No less than a mind-boggling 11 state proposals will appear on the upcoming general election ballot, but three, all of them tax proposals, will be getting most of the attention November 7.

The three, of course, are the Headlee (E on the ballot), Tisch (J) and tuition voucher (H). We support the so-called Headlee amendment to the Michigan Constitution as a realistic means of sending a needed message to the state legislature.

Proposals J and H are, in our estimation, tax shift, rather than tax relief, proposals. Both of them promise drastic reductions in property taxes, but the prospect is that the burden will be shifted to state taxes, such as the single business, user, gas and state income taxes.

One Michigan State University evaluation of the consequences of the various proposals maintains that the Tisch proposal will lead to higher taxes for middle income people, a frightening prospect, and little, if any, relief for senior citizens. Proposal H is freighted with the constitutional question of separation of church and state, in addition to the threat of school funding upheaval, which, in turn, would threaten the very existence of the public school system.

Proposal E (Headlee) offers realistic solutions to rising property taxes and state spending. Proposal E would put a cap on state spending by tying it to personal income (what you and I earn) and limit property assessment increases by tying them to increase in the Consumer Price Index.

Some observers might contend that proposal E is too soft. But if you consider that state spending over the past 10 years has almost doubled personal income, the proposal has significant punch.

Vote YES on Proposal E, NO on Proposals J and H.

No on A

The fact that the Constitutional Convention proposal will appear on the November 7 ballot does not reflect a public clamor for change nor does it signal widespread citizen concern as do, for example, the tax proposals appearing on the ballot. It appears on the ballot only because the present constitution requires its placement there this year.

Wisely, perhaps, the present constitution's writers provided that the constitutional convention (Con Con) matter be placed on the ballot "in 1978 and in each 16th year thereafter." The automatic review was seen as a safety valve.

Now, however, nearly 16 years later, the 1963 Michigan Constitution remains a viable document, thus obviating the necessity of a general rewriting. Parts of the constitution may not please everyone today any more than they pleased all of the voters when the constitution was approved, but overall it has been and continues to be a good constitution.

The estimated $10 million cost of a general rewriting of a basically good document, especially now in the face of the public's demand for frugality, reinforces our opposition to Proposal A.

Voters should remember, too, that a constitutional convention could destroy their decisions made on other proposals appearing on the ballot. For example, should voters of Michigan approve the Headlee tax limitation proposal (E) by the predicted wide margin, their decision could be erased by delegates drafting the new constitution.

Vote NO on Proposal A.

Yes on B

Proposal B — the so-called "Good Time" Proposal — has grown out of public concern with the crime rate.

Usual sentencing procedures in the state involve both a minimum and maximum sentence. However, convicts may be released at the discretion of the Parole Board before serving their minimum sentence under a formula that includes "time off for good behavior" in prison. The theory behind the formula is that it provides incentive for rehabilitation by those who seek to shorten their prison terms.

Proposal B would prohibit the Parole Board from granting parole to individuals convicted of certain crimes of violence until they have served the minimum sentence prescribed by the court.

The incidence of crime in our society is a matter of concern. Further, the incidence of crimes committed by repeat offenders provides ample testimony to the fact that our present system is not working well enough. New approaches, such as Proposal B, appear justified.

Voters should be aware, however, that approval of Proposal B is likely to lead to additional financial burdens. The Department of Corrections has estimated that elimination of the "good time" provision would cost an additional $23 million annually for care and control of inmates. In addition, it is estimated that an increase in prison population brought about from elimination of "good time" paroles would require some $193 million in construction of new correctional facilities.

Nevertheless, the problem of crime in our society would seem to dictate new approaches in the correctional system.

Vote YES on Proposal B.

Yes on C

Proposal C would permit the deposit of state funds in savings and loan associations and federally chartered credit unions. Presently, state funds generated from personal income taxes, property and sales taxes and federal grants money can only be deposited in banks organized under the national or state banking laws.

We seek no risk in opening up the competition for state deposits. The savings and loan association and credit union accounts are insured. And there's the positive factor that public funds might receive a higher interest rate.

Vote YES on Proposal C.

No on D

Proposal D, which would raise the legal drinking age in Michigan from 18 to 21, has gained wide support in the public opinion polls, but we believe it represents overkill and will prove virtually impossible to enforce.

If Proposal D passes, young people — who are treated by law as adults in all other areas, many of whom support themselves or have families to support — will be denied the opportunity to drink legally.

The measure will prove extremely unpopular among young adults and could present many enforcement problems.

But the most important factor why Proposal D should be defeated is that the state legislature already has passed a law, to take effect December 3, that raises the drinking age from 18 to 19.

The law is designed to reduce alcohol-related problems in the schools and on the highways. It represents a more sensible approach to a very real problem — alcohol abuse among high school students.

School administrators and teachers will tell you that the present drinking age of 18 causes many problems because it provides easy access of alcohol for the younger, underaged students.

But the state legislature's law, raising the age to 19, attempts to remove the alcohol problem from the schools. It deserves a chance to succeed.

Vote NO on Proposal D.

Yes on K

Although placed on the ballot by the Michigan Legislature, Proposal K has grown out of citizen concerns with crime.

Most exciting football game?

COLLEGE . . .

College football IS more exciting than pro ball. That, it seemed, is an easy premise to defend. But that was before the day the Spartans methodically dissected the Wolverine defense, removed them from the ranks of the undefeated and deflated many an avid Wolverine fan.

In the beginning, all of the ingredients for excitement were there — the brisk fall day, the beautiful colors, the old grads noisily reminiscing past contests and nervously questioning their team's chances in the game that would soon add one more chapter to the rich tradition, the exuberant hordes of students filled with confidence, Bo's boys would prevail or Roger's charges would pull the impossible, the talk of the spirited invasion of the Michigan campus by the MSU band and student body, the spirited, bouncy, youthful cheerleaders adding their appealing contribution, the magnificent bands.

And then the teams — both led by fine coaches, pre-game warmups revealed that enthusiasm of youth and the high intensity bred by 70 plus years of tradition.

The game itself was a masterpiece for . . . Michigan State.

Ah, well, this is the week of homecoming. Minnesota is the team. They are the ones who provided the deflating puncture last year — another contest rich with tradition. A chance to make amends, the excitement begins to build.

Proposal K would grant the courts the authority to deny bail under certain circumstances involving violent crimes.

Under the present law, all persons except those accused of murder or treason are entitled to be released on bail until the trial occurs.

If Proposal K is approved, the courts would be permitted to deny bail to anyone accused of: (a) murder, treason, armed robbery, criminal sexual assault in the first degree, or kidnapping for extortion; and (b) a felony involving an act or threat of violence if the person has been convicted of two crimes involving violence within the previous 15 years or is on bail, parole, or probation for such a crime.

Proposal K also provides that trial must be commenced within 90 days after denial of bail. If the trial is not started within that period, bail must be set.

Although we have problems with the section of this proposal which permits denial of bail to a person charged even for the first time with armed robbery, first degree criminal sexual conduct, murder, or kidnapping with the intent to extort money, we would recommend approval.

The key to our endorsement is that judges are permitted to deny bail, not required to deny bail, under certain circumstances. Approval of Proposal K would merely add to the discretionary powers of the court.

Yes on R

The final proposal on the November ballot — Proposal R — has potentially important ramifications on the future of the state's economy.

Proposal R authorizes the creation of a Railroad Development Authority which could issue bonds and make low-interest loans to railroads for rail improvements in Michigan.

Railroad lines in the state have been deteriorating for years. Needed improvements have not been implemented because of the general financial status of the rail carriers. Railroad management has been reluctant to borrow money for capital improvements at interest rates of 9-11 percent when few carriers are realizing a yield of five percent on their net investments.

The ability of the railroads to function efficiently is important to the state's economy. As the energy shortage becomes more acute in the years ahead, industry will become more and more dependent on the railroads to bring new materials and transport products.

Approval of Proposal R will respond to the need of rail improvements by creating a Railroad Development Authority which can make loans to railroads for redevelopment projects in the interest of national defense or state industries.

The Casino: Dorsey to Fabian

casino," recalls Elmer Tolettene, now a supervisor in a tool and die factory in Deckerville. "There were more than 4,000 people there and I remember we had to turn more than 2,000 people away."

With such big-name talent appearing, the Walled Lake Casino became the place to go in the Detroit area.

"When the place was really cleaned up and going, half of Grosse Pointe would turn out," Yerkes says.

Perhaps because of the no-liquor policy, few, if any, problems of disorderly conduct were encountered by police during the years the Tolettene brothers were in charge.

Elmer Tolettene says the best years were right after the Second World War.

"That's when everybody came out of the service," he recalls. "The big bands were really booming."

But in the late 50's, the big band business began to drop. In 1960, the brothers decided to close up the dance hall.

In 1961, the casino was sold to O. J. Kraemer of Union Lake. Kraemer tried in vain to keep the sound of the big bands blasting out, but, like the Tolettene brothers, found it an uphill battle.

"I renovated it, put heat into it, redecorated it and I tried to bring the big band era back. I thought the bands could make a comeback, but television kept the people home."

Kraemer finally gave in to the times and converted the casino into a teenage rock and roll palace.

Although many of the oldtimers looked on such a transformation as a betrayal of sorts, the casino did enjoy several years in the early 60's catering to the younger set.

Department, remembers going to the casino to see famous — or soon to be famous — entertainers such as Dionne Warwick, Little Stevie Wonder, Chuck Berry, Fabian and Del Shannon.

Sutton recalls wearing pegged pants, points, (pointed shoes) and greased back hair when he made the scene at the casino.

"The building was filled just about every night," he says. Although no liquor was served, Sutton admits the crowd did sneak a goodly amount inside and trouble was more than uncommon.

Novi Police Chief Lee BeGole says he posted about 30 special officers at the casino every weekend, but sometimes even that number was unable to cope with the crowds.

"I remember when Fabian arrived," BeGole says. "I'd put 12 officers in the front of the entranceway. Well, those kids swept past those officers like they weren't even there."

"We got Fabian in by way of the back door, but let me tell you, that Fabian disappointed me. He was pantomiming. He wasn't singing his songs."

But Sutton, and about 3,000 other teenagers on hand, didn't notice or seem to mind that the singer was lip-synching his songs. A local group, The Barons, was playing on Christmas Night of 1965 when the casino burned to the ground shortly after closing time. Firefighters from seven area departments responded to the scene, but not soon enough to save the building. Two explanations have been offered as to the cause of the fire: either a careless smoker dropped a cigarette or a rusted out fuel line to an overhead heater ignited the blaze.

Either way, the fire ended the 48-year reign of the Walled Lake Casino. No longer would the sounds of Lawrence Welk or the Dorsey brothers or Fabian ring out along the shores of Walled Lake. The casino was left just a memory of glories past.

Firm submits proposal

Wixom eyes development of park

The City of Wixom has received a request from the firm of Anderson, Lesniak, & Associates Incorporated to begin development of the 46-acre North Wixom Park.

The company, a landscape architecture and community planning firm, addressed a letter to Wixom Mayor Assistant Steve Bonczek regarding the proposed development. In the letter, company representative John J. Lesniak roughly defined the scope of services involved in the company's master plan. According to Lesniak, the development of North Wixom Park will include a site analysis, a review of the present program development, alternative developments, and a general land use master plan.

Lesniak has already viewed the North Wixom Park site and will discuss his findings at the Wixom Parks and Recreation meeting of November 1. At that time Lesniak will make a presentation to the Parks and Recreation Department using slides, drawings and boards to illustrate his proposal.

Although in the initial stages, Lesniak estimated a fee range of $2,000 to $2,500 to provide a comprehensive master plan which will be in sufficient detail to act as a guide for construction drawings.

The City of Wixom currently has almost $200,000 in Community Development Block Grant Funds for the development of a city park, and has budgeted almost $150,000 of the total for first year work on the North Wixom Park.

Although a major park pavilion project has been scrapped, the city currently has monies allotted for electricity, toilets, well water, an open pavilion, a rustic building, a baseball diamond, tot lot, and tennis courts.

The Anderson, Lesniak & Associates Incorporated firm will ask the city for approval to develop the park at a future city council meeting.

Man eludes Wixom dragnet; captured in Waterford

In Wixom

An uproar in Wixom Wednesday afternoon created by a man wanted on two warrants from Florida ended with his arrest by Waterford Township Police.

Roger Atwood, an off-and-on resident of the Indian Lodge Apartments on Pontiac Trail, allegedly resisted Wixom Police officers who attempted to serve the warrants by leaping from a second story window.

Rumors that quickly spread through the surrounding area implied that Atwood was wanted for murder. Warrants obtained from the Lee County, Florida Sheriff's Department indicated Atwood was wanted on charges of grand theft and burglary.

Wixom Police were reportedly alerted of Atwood's presence in the city by his girlfriend, Mary Lee Carr, from the Indian Lodge address. She claimed she had received phone calls from Florida and Warren Police seeking his whereabouts.

Atwood managed to elude a police blockade that included an Oakland County Sheriff's helicopter, a trucking company's truck, and a police officer on foot who combed the wooded fields adjoining the apartment complex. Atwood was arrested Wednesday night in a Waterford restaurant following a tip to Wixom Police.

He is currently lodged in the Oakland County Jail pending extradition proceedings.

Surgery was required by Carl Silvers, Jr. of Howell following a Monday morning two-car collision at the Wixom overpass and I-96 eastbound exit ramp.

Silvers, 19, was reportedly struck broadside and pushed into the guardrail by a car driven by Russell Burden, 24, of Wixom. Silvers was transported by ambulance to Botsford Hospital for treatment of his injuries and subsequent surgery.

Police reports indicate the Silvers vehicle was turning left onto South Wixom Road from the exit ramp, pulling in front of the oncoming Burden vehicle. Burden's view of the total roadway, police theorize, was possibly blocked by a semi truck and trailer in the right lane of the double lane highway.

Burden, uninjured, was cited by police for driving with a revoked license.

A 1978 four-wheel drive pickup truck valued at $6,100 was taken from the employees' parking lot at the Ford Motor Company last Wednesday night. The stolen vehicle was locked, according to its owner.

A yellow and black Suzuki dirt cycle was taken from the rear of a residence on Twelve Mile Road last week. Police have yet to locate the bike which is presumed stolen.

A 15-year-old, 200-pound boy gave Novi police a hard time when they tried to subdue him as they tried to subdue the reportedly berserk youth and take him into custody. The trouble started when Officer Ron Roy spotted the Novi youth reportedly sprawled on the sidewalk in front of the Kentucky Fried Chicken Restaurant in the Novi Plaza drinking beer from a one-quart beer bottle.

Roy asked the youth what he was doing and the youth responded with a string of obscenities, police said. Roy said the boy got up in such a way as to suggest a fight so the officer pinned him down and called for assistance.

The boy then reportedly tried to hit Roy with the bottle.

Two officers soon joined Roy and struggled with the boy for several minutes before handcuffs could be placed on him.

Officer Charlie Brown suffered an abrasion to his left hand in the scuffle, while the youth was taken to Botsford Hospital with multiple contusions and a cut apparently caused by the shattered beer bottle.

The boy will be petitioned into juvenile court on charges of consuming alcohol in public and felonious assault. Police reported the youth spent time this past summer at Hawthorn Center, a psychiatric center in Northville Township.

A 37-year-old Novi woman has either lost or misplaced a diamond valued $1,000.

The woman, living along the 22000 section of Cranbrook, told police October 21 she could not find her ring which had eight rubies and seven diamonds.

A resident of the Beachwalk apartment complex, the site of at least two sexual assaults, reported to police someone has been tampering with the window of his apartment.

The resident said that the screen was removed from the window of the master bedroom and that the window to the second bedroom had been cracked.

Police have received several calls from residents of the complex about prowlers in recent months. Two women in two separate incidents have told police a man entered their apartments and sexually assaulted them.

Developer scores Novi planners

Concerns that a parcel in the Novex One Industrial Subdivision may be split into four individual lots led the Novi Planning Board to table action last week on a request for site plan approval of a proposed industrial building.

The action prompted an angry response from Richard Oliver of the Avante Construction Company who charged that city officials are "jeopardizing what I'm trying to do."

"I've tried to do what I've been asked to do, but you people keep changing things on me," said Oliver. "I'm beginning to get really frustrated."

"If everybody wants to fight me on this, I'll come back in here and do what I've already done on the west side of the parcel on the east side of the parcel," he continued. "I'll fight you all the way even if it takes me 10 years. This is ridiculous."

Oliver has already received approval for the construction of two industrial buildings on the west side of the 2.2 acre parcel located at the northeast corner of Heslip Drive on the Novex One Industrial Subdivision off Nine Mile. That approval was termed "a mistake" by planning board officials who added that it wouldn't happen again.

Oliver is now seeking site plan approval for a third industrial building on the east side of the parcel and has tentative plans for another industrial building on the east side of the parcel.

City planning officials are concerned that the 2.2 acre parcel will ultimately be split into four individual lots and that the existing buildings could become non-conforming.

City Planning Consultant Charles Cairns of Vilcan-Leman told the planners that he was concerned with administering the standards of the city's zoning ordinance in light of the apparent intent to split the parcel into four pieces.

"There could be four parcels if they decided to split the lot and none of them would meet the requirements of the ordinance," explained Cairns. "Each building should be approved so that it would be able to stand on its own merits in the event the parcel is ever split."

Oliver denied that there were any plans to split the lot.

City Engineer Harry Mosher also expressed concern with the possibility that the lot would be split at some time in the future. He told the planners that he would not recommend approval of the site plan.

"We can see all kinds of future problems involving utilities on that lot," Mosher told the planners. "We reviewed the site plan on the basis of one building on one-quarter of a lot. We just don't believe that the rest of that parcel will remain vacant."

Planner Edward Dobek suggested that the city's newly-adopted Lot Splitting Ordinance may prohibit the lot from being split into four parcels. He also maintained that the city's zoning ordinance prohibits more than one building per lot.

The planners subsequently voted to table action on the request for site plan approval until they obtain a legal opinion as to how many buildings may be constructed on the 2.2 acre parcel and how many times the parcel could be split under the new Lot Splitting Ordinance.

These legal opinions are expected to be submitted at the November 1 meeting when the site plan will be reviewed again.

Oliver reported that he had an agreement with Ameri-Coffee for use of the proposed building, but that the agreement was slated to terminate before the November 1 meeting.

Meeting date changed

The Walled Lake City Council has changed the date of its first regular meeting in November because of the general election. Council members last week voted to meet on Monday, November 6, at 7 p.m., a day ahead of its regular meeting date. Clerk Ruby Lewandowski suggested the change because the council chambers is used for the election counting board.

Three harriers earn conference honors

Viking runners claim Inter-Lakes title

By AL SCHULTZ

No doubt about it, the Walled Lake Central cross-country team is the best in the Inter-Lakes Conference.

The Viking runners demonstrated that fact conclusively last week as they breezed to their first Inter-Lakes Conference championship in 12 years at the Oakland Community College course.

led by a trio of all-conference runners, the Vikings easily outran runner-up Farmington in what was supposed to be a real dog-fight of a race. But Kevin Atkinson, Bob Slais, and Jim Owens grabbed three of the top five spots in the 5.2-mile field, and when Randy Piotrowski finished ninth, Farmington was finished.

For the record, the final scores were Walled Lake Central 36, Farmington 54, Livonia Stevenson 61, and Lakeland 64, with Waterford and Pontiac Northern each over the 100 mark.

But running their best collective meet ever, Harry Edgington's Vikings just couldn't be caught.

Central's Kevin Atkinson and Bob Slais each battled Farmington's John Murphy for the lead spot the entire race, and although Murphy was the eventual winner, the Vikings grabbed the early lead with a two-three finish. Central's Jim Owens fought his way from tenth place all the way up to fifth place, earning an all-conference position and sending Farmington deeper into the hole.

Adding Randy Piotrowski's ninth place finish, the Vikings placed four runners below the 17-minute mark. Atkinson ran an excellent 16:12, Slais finished in 16:25, Owens ran a 16:30, and Piotrowski crossed the line in 16:44. Central's fifth finisher, Larry Turner, was the difference between a Viking win and a Viking massacre. Turner was the 17th runner across the finish line, running a superb race in 17:20.

Chris Harrington, Central's sixth runner, competed in the conference meet on a bad foot. Still, the other team members picked up the slack, as Harrington, the schools only all-county runner, finished 29th in 18:16.

The seventh Viking was Ken Arteaga, a sophomore runner who alternated between the jayvee and varsity squads this fall. Arteaga finished on Harrington's heels for a 30th place time of 18:17.

The strong Viking conference victory fulfilled a year long dream for Central Coach Harry Edgington.

"I had been waiting all year for this season," said the coach. "I knew these boys should be conference champs and I said it all along. You don't know how happy we are to get it."

Edgington was especially pleased that the Viking runners easily beat Farmington without the scoring of standout senior Chris Harrington. One week earlier, the Vikings ran against Farmington in a dual meet without Harrington and lost. This time, Harrington was in the Viking line-up, but a big question mark just the same. Running on a bad foot, the all-Oakland County runner placed a respectable 29th, but it was the pleasant surprise of Larry Turner which produced the championship.

"Larry ran one heck of a meet," said Edgington. "All the boys did. We'd tell them to catch two runners and they went out and caught two runners. I can't say enough about this team. It's the best I've ever coached."

Edgington has been at the Viking helm for 10 seasons, and although he's finished second in the Inter-Lakes Conference twice, he's never been the league champion. The last time the Vikings won the cross-country championship was 1967, two years before Edgington took over the reins.

"Farmington and Stevenson have won it all the years since then," said the coach, "but this time I said from the beginning that it was going to be our year."

You were right Harry, no doubt about it.

Western topples Canton

By AL SCHULTZ

Those Phase Two tee-shirts are working wonders for the Walled Lake Western football team.

Ever since the Warriors lost to Northville in overtime more than two weeks ago, the Walled Lake gridders have been wearing the patented tee-shirts beneath their uniforms.

And for the second consecutive week the tee-shirts - and the Warriors - have come up with a win. This time it was Plymouth Canton that fell victim to the new Western surge, as the Warriors jumped the Chiefs, 25-6, in a homecoming game.

"We're very happy with what we saw out there," said Western Coach Apap. "Our defense played a helluva game and the kids are starting to think football."

Nothing could be closer to the truth. For the record, the Warriors rambled 77 yards against Canton in the first quarter, Ed Kirk, said Apap. "He noticed that their (Canton) linebackers were jamming us and thought that play would work against them."

But it was Apap who called the fake kick conversion attempt that resulted in two points. In that one, holder Rob King took the snap, rolled out, and found Johnny Meyer alone in the end zone. What looked like a scoreless ballgame with the Warriors backed up on their own three yard line was suddenly an 8-0 game.

The Western defense held Canton on the next series and the Warrior offense clicked back into gear. A 45-yard flea flicker pass from Mike Bryant to Andy Koch put the locals in business on the Canton four. But a holding penalty pushed Western back, and the Warriors had to settle for a 31-yard Koch field goal.

Western added another touchdown in the third quarter as a group of Warriors blocked a Canton punt, and Mike Draheim recovered on the Chief one-yard line. Quarterback Mike Bryant called his own number on a sneak for the score.

"We gave the blocked punt to tackle John Gerbensky," said Apap, "but there were some other guys in there. Draheim, Bryant and Joe Burke were all over that guy."

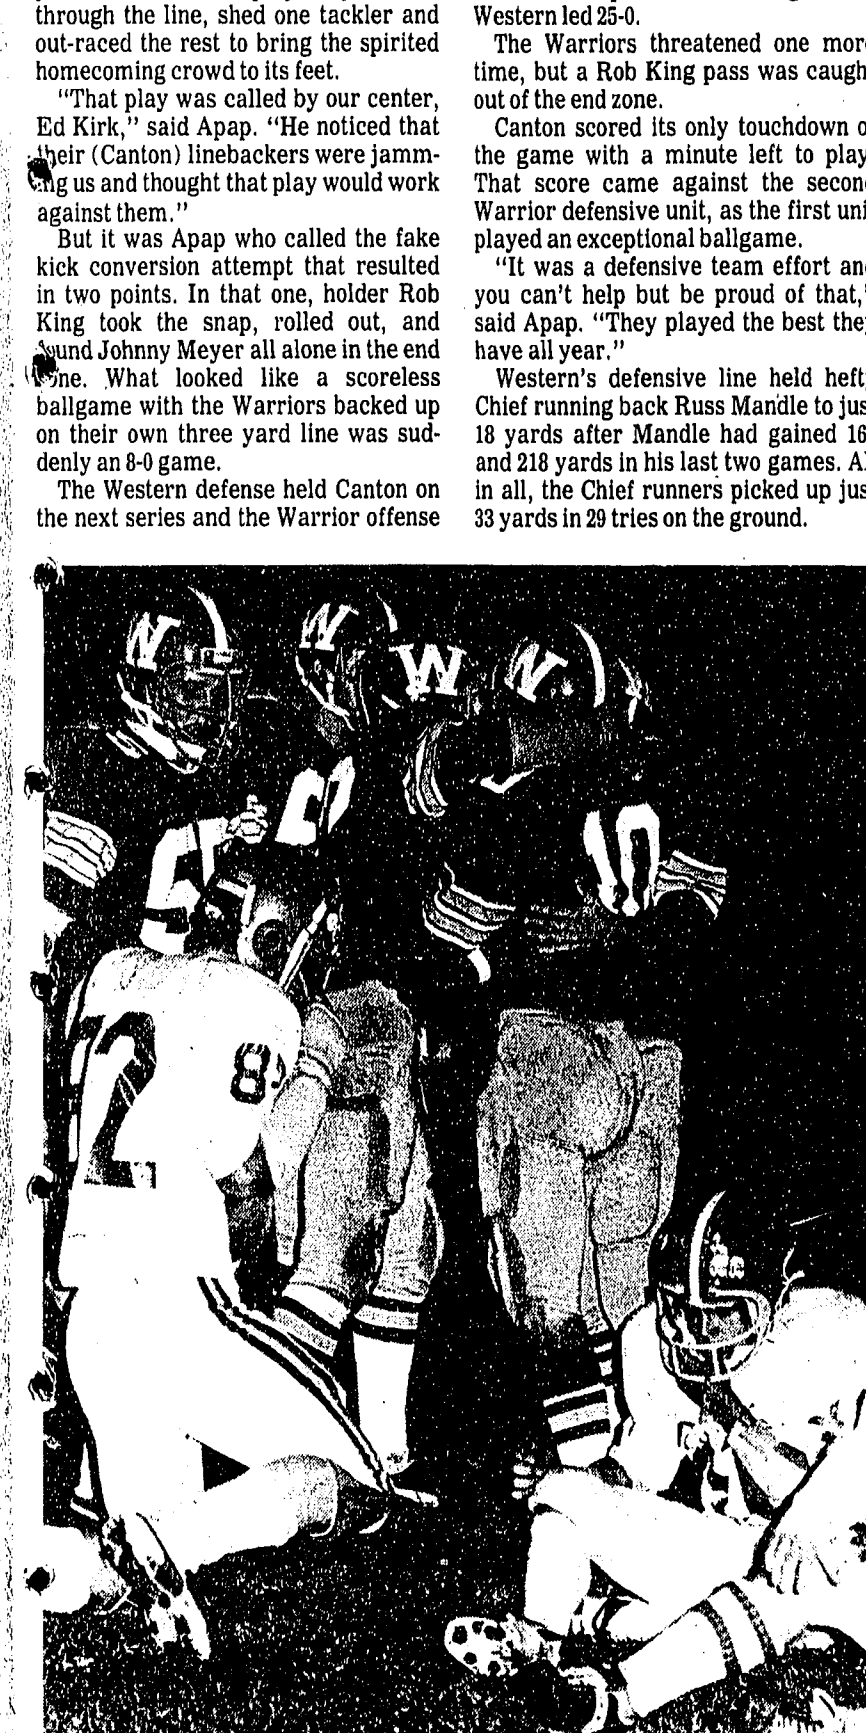

Western got the ball for its last score on a pass interception by Andy Koch. On that march, the Warriors drove 57 yards in eight plays for the touchdown. Mike Draheim ripped off a couple of long runs in that drive, but it was Johnny Meyer who went the final ten yards on a pitchout from Bryant. Like the quarterback sneak earlier in the game, Bryant made the touchdown call. Kicker Andy Koch booted his second extra point of the night and Western led 25-0.

The Warriors threatened one more time, but a Rob King pass was caught out of the end zone.

Canton scored its only touchdown of the game with a minute left to play. That score came against the second Warrior defensive unit, as the first unit played an exceptional ballgame.

"It was a defensive team effort and you can't help but be proud of that," said Apap. "They played the best they have all year."

Western's defensive line held hefty Chief running back Russ Mandie to just 18 yards after Mandie had gained 183 and 218 yards in his last two games. All in all, the Chief runners picked up just 33 yards in 29 tries on the ground.

Stevenson too much for lady Viking netters

When the tennis season began last month, Walled Lake Central Coach John Shadford knew his 1978 crop of girls didn't have much of a chance to stop powerhouse Livonia Stevenson. But he did hope his netters were strong enough to handle the rest of the league.

And that's what they did, as the Vikings finished second in the Inter-Lakes tennis meet last week, fulfilling Shadford's season goal.

"To tell you the truth I didn't really know if we were strong enough to get second place, but the girls went out and did the job," said the coach. "We're just tickled to get it."

Central finished the season with a 7-3 league record, just one win ahead of Lakeland at 6-4. And it was Lakeland that worried Shadford most in the conference meet.

The Vikings stopped Lakeland in the semi-finals and put six girls into the finals against Stevenson opponents. Felicia Lambert at second singles and Lizanne Cooper at fourth singles knocked off Lakeland opponents to advance to the finals.

And two of the three Viking doubles teams also advanced to the finals. Sue Bem and Sarah Rebitzke stroked their way into the finals at first doubles, and Brooks Pitts and Pam Smith advanced to the finals at third doubles.

Although the Vikings had four chances to take away a point from the powerful Stevenson contingent, they came up empty-handed as the Spartans prevailed.

Nevertheless, Central came up with a total of eight points which was good enough to top Lakeland for second place in the final standings.

"It was a good season," remarked Shadford.

Novi gridders come up short, 8-7

Novi played its heart out in its final home football game of the season last Friday.

But, like so many other times this season, the Wildcats came up just short when they needed something.

Attempting to play the role of spoiler for the second straight week, Novi just missed pulling a major upset when long distance kicker Magnus Andersson's 36-yard field goal with 15 seconds remaining sailed wide to the left, sending the Wildcats to an 8-7 defeat at the hands of defending Southeast Conference champ South Lyon.

That set up a showdown between South Lyon and Saline for the SEC title this Friday in South Lyon. The two are tied for first place with 5-1 league records.

It also marked the second straight week the Wildcats have given an SEC co-leader fits (last week they upset Milan, 35-29, costing the Big Reds a share of this year's crown) and the third time this season they've suffered a one-point defeat.

The game as a whole was about as evenly matched as you can get. Novi outgained its SEC rivals in total yardage, 223-222 (which, incidentally, marks the sixth time in seven games this fall that the Wildcats have out-yarded their opponents) while controlling the ball for almost exactly as much time as South Lyon. Each team also had four punts and two kickoffs.

What proved to be the winning drive of the bulgame came late in the third quarter. Trailing 7-0, South Lyon marched 63 yards in nine plays for a touchdown, then added the two-point conversion that proved the difference between victory and defeat.

Randy Lewis, the Lions' outstanding option quarterback, carried the ball 53 yards on four option keepers during that drive, including a 10-yard touchdown run around the left side with 30 seconds left in the quarter.

Twice during the game, though, the Wildcats got inside the 15-yard line without scoring, and that undoubtedly cost them a victory.

On their first possession of the contest the local gridders drove from their own 47 to the South Lyon 9 in eight plays before a fumble turned the ball over.

The one that really hurt, though, came in the fourth quarter.

After keeping the Lions pinned inside their own 10 following a 41-yard punt by Pisha to the six-yard line, Novi took a short South Lyon punt at the 25 with just under three minutes left in the game.

Two plays later Crosslin took a pitch-out and rammed seven yards for a first down at the Lion 13, setting up a definite field goal possibility.

The Wildcats lost six yards in the next three plays, though, forcing Andersson, who booted a record-setting 41-yard field goal earlier this season, to attempt one from 36 yards out. His kick was of the long, high, end-over-end variety, but it sailed about four feet to the left.

The loss overshadowed an otherwise exceptional defensive effort by the Wildcats. South Lyon, which had been averaging over three touchdowns per game going into Friday's contest, penetrated Novi's 40-yard line just twice—once on the scoring drive and once in the second quarter when the Wildcats stopped them on downs at the 20.

Leading the defense was Dave Pisha, who had eight tackles and plugged up the left side of Novi's line, plus cornerbacks Dan Fulcher and Arbour, linemen Bob McAllister, and defensive back John DuBois.

Offensively Novi picked up 153 of its 223 total yards on the ground, with Crosslin gaining 65 yards on 14 carries and Arbour adding 48 yards in 15 attempts.

Laverty went part of the first half and all of the second at quarterback, completing three of 10 pass attempts for 57 yards.

The Wildcats, now 2-5 overall in the league this fall, close out their SEC season this Friday at Dexter, where they'll encounter more than just high school football spirit. The University of Wisconsin's Big Ten game at Michigan State on Saturday, will be performed at halftime for the Novi-Dexter contest.

Dexter residents will be putting up bank money for the night, and in return the band has agreed to give the local high school fans a special treat. The Dreadnaughts need all the help they can get. They're 0-7 this season, including three straight shutout losses.

Novi's lone touchdown drive came just prior to South Lyon's march. After the two teams had exchanged punts to start the second half, the Wildcats took over at their 20-yard line. From there they drove 80 yards in only seven plays, scoring on an 11-yard pass completion from quarterback Jeff Laverty to tight end Dave Pisha with 4:30 remaining in the third quarter. Andersson booted the extra point, giving Novi its short-lived 7-0 advantage.

One mistake claims prize in grid poll

Scott Spencer of 456 Orchard Drive, Northville, was the first-place winner in last week's football contest by virtue of a single error.

He was the only person to guess correctly 15 of the 16 games listed last week—including Texas' upset win over Arkansas and Detroit's victory over San Diego.

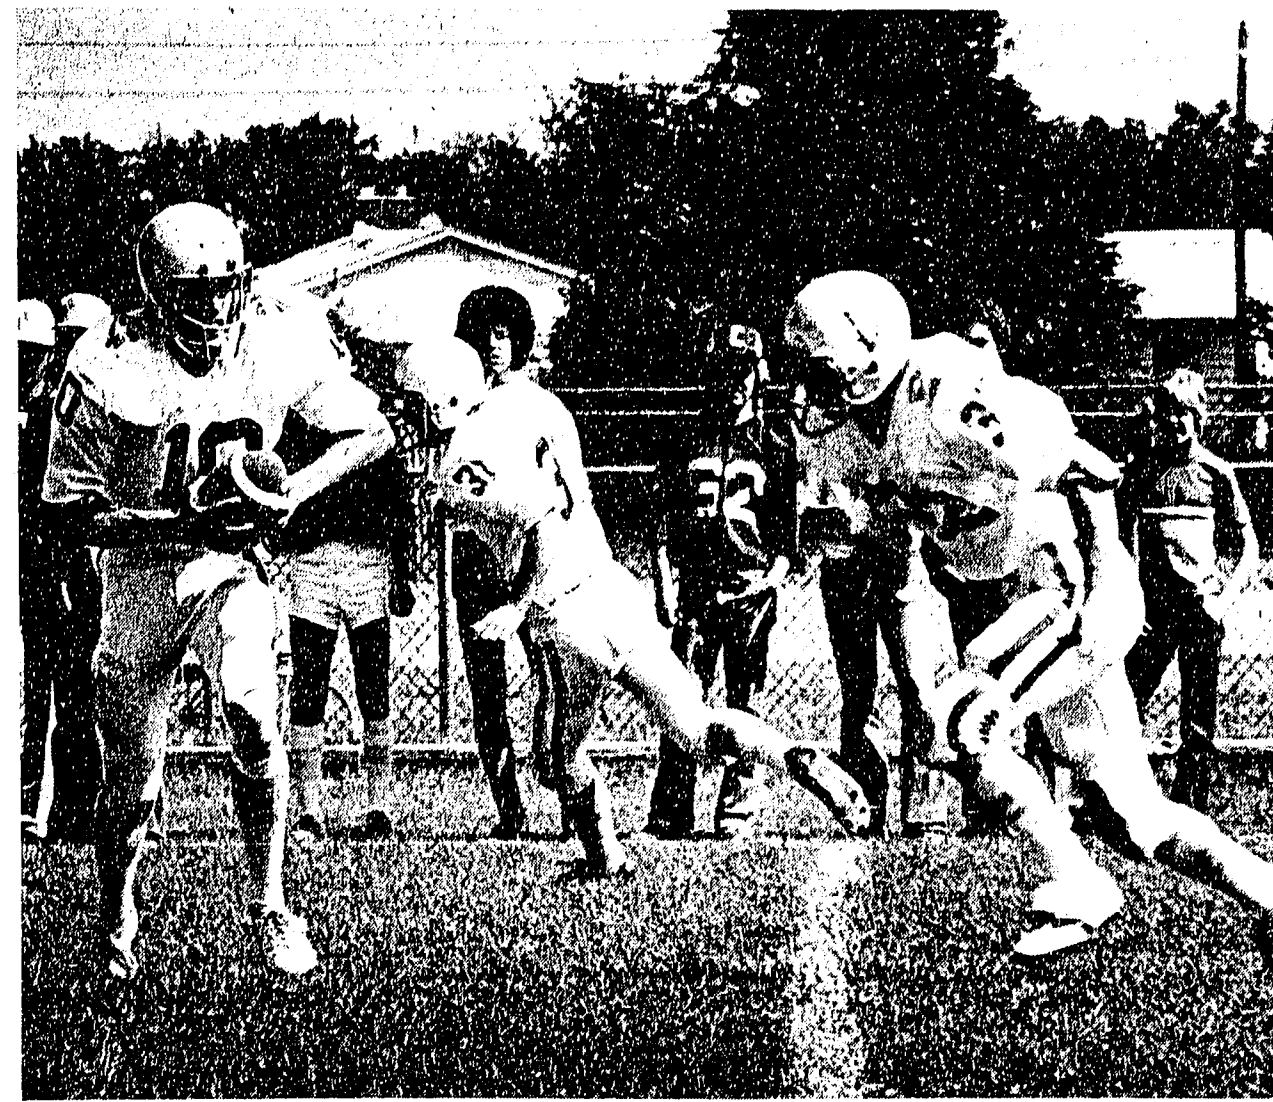

Taking second and third places were other Northville residents—Chris Cole of 263 Debra and Jeff Anderson of 1094 Grace Court.

Both had entries containing two errors. Cole took second because of his closer guess of Texas' winning score over Arkansas. He was just four points off the score. Anderson was eight points off.

Four other contestants also had two mistakes, but their guessed scores were not as close. They were: Mickey O'Leary of Westland, Pat Hansen of Walled Lake, and Todd Elis and Mike Matton of Northville.

Thirteen contestants submitted entries containing three errors. They were: Ron Pote, Rick Balek, Dave Hooten, Mike Pohlad, Bruce Martin, Anne White, Doug Eaker, Judy Rowe, Jeff Stuart, Carmon White, Dumont Jackson, Steve Afoldy, and Art Thompson.

Fourteen contestants had four wrong, 19 had five mistakes, 16 had six errors, and all of the others had seven or more mistakes.

Vikings smash Falcons

By AL SCHULTZ

Walled Lake Central converted nine third down situations and played ball control offense late in the game last Saturday to hand Farmington a 14-7 defeat in the Falcons homecoming game.

The victory was the third straight for the resurgent Vikings and lifted them into third place in the final Inter-Lakes Conference standings.

"We wanted that one," said Viking Coach Dick Woodward. "We've turned things around now and we're headed for a winning season."

Woodward has certainly gotten his Vikings headed that way with three consecutive wins after opening with four straight losses. But it was the Farmington game which was important to hold the string together, as the Vikings came from behind and then hung on to win.

Central threatened early in the game when the Vikings recovered a Farmington fumble on the Falcon 38-yard line. Seven plays brought the Vikings to the Farmington 13, but quarterback Jeff Detwiler's second down pass was deflected and intercepted by Farmington.

Central got the ball back at their own 47 following a Farmington punt and three running plays brought the ball to the Falcon 30. On first down, Detwiler lofted a long pass to end Don Christensen for an apparent touchdown. But the Vikings were guilty of holding and the Falcons were flagged for unsportsmanlike conduct, and the offsetting penalties nullified the touchdown call.

The Vikings finally did pay their debt in the second quarter when linebacker Greg Miller picked off a Falcon pass to start a 46-yard scoring drive. Big plays in the drive included a couple of big passes by Detwiler. The senior field general fired a 28-yard bullet to Don Sheldon on a second-and-ten play, and then tossed a ten-yard completion to Don Christensen on a third-and-seven.

Sophomore scatback Chuck Ginstler dove in for the game's first touchdown from one yard out.

Kicker Mike Burke's extra point try against a stiff wind sailed just wide of the upright and Central led 6-0.

The Viking lead didn't last long, however, as the Falcons brought the ensuing kickoff back to their own 30 and then marched 70 yards to tie the game. The Falcons were aided on that drive by two 15-yard penalties against Central for facemasking and a late hit. Parlington tallied its touchdown with just under four minutes left in the half on a four-yard run. With the extra point kick backed by the wind, Farmington led 7-6 as the homecoming festivities began at halftime.

Central received the second half kickoff and moved 66 yards on the ground in six plays to score the lead and eventual winning touchdown. Halfback Chuck Ginstler broke off gains of six, 11 and 25 yards before a facemasking penalty moved the ball to the Falcon 13-yard line. From there it was Greg Miller through the middle for seven yards, and Jeff Detwiler rolling six yards for the score. Ginstler then bulled ahead for the two-point conversion for a 14-7 Central lead.

"We knew we had to come right back and score on that first series in the second half," said Viking coach Dick Woodward. "That was the key. We had to get right back at them."

With the Vikings offense putting up a 14-lead, it was up to the Viking defense to hold it. And on the second Farmington play, the Falcon ballcarrier coughed up the football into the lap of Viking Curt Burnstein.

Detwiler drove the troops down to the Falcon 33, but a major penalty put the Vikings out of range.

The two teams battled around midfield until midway through the fourth quarter, but with 7:18 left in the game, the Vikings recovered their third fumble of the game at the Central 46. It was there that the Vikings put on their most awesome ball control display this season. With the exception of three plays, the Vikings converted three third down situations and ran off better than seven minutes of the period.

In their first possession of the last seven minutes, quarterback Jeff Detwiler was shaken up, leaving reserve quarterback Curt Burnstein faced with a third-and-13 situation at the Viking 43. Burnstein coolly took the shotgun snap and tossed an 18-yard aerial to Greg Miller.

The Viking drive stalled on a fourth-and-one play at the Farmington 30, but Central got the ball back just three plays later.

With more than three and a half minutes left on the clock, the Vikings moved the ball to their own 33 to beyond the Falcon 20. In that series, Jeff Detwiler scampered 15 yards on a third-and-nine, and Chuck Ginstler squirmed for four yards on a third-and-three. The Central golfers third

Walled Lake Central junior Rick Saries earned a spot on the All-Inter-Lakes golf team in leading the Vikings to a third place finish in the league meet last week.

Saries' 18-hole total of 78 strokes was good for the runner-up medalist honors on the Brae Burn course, and was one of only three scores to break the 80 mark.

"Rick has done a real nice job for us all season," said Viking Golf Coach Jerry Chapple. "He's been especially strong late in the season. That's a real honor to be runner-up in this conference."

As a team, the Vikings' 418 total placed behind Farmington's 409 and Waterford's 411, but ahead of Lakeland, Northern, and Stevenson.

"That's an upset," said Chapple of Farmington's league win. "We beat Farmington easily in both dual matches this year, and they were only 4-6 in conference meets." Although Farmington captured the league meet, it finished in a tie with the Vikings for second place overall. In Inter-Lakes golf competition, dual meets count half and the conference meet counts half. Waterford was the league's overall champion, followed by Central and Farmington, Lakeland, Northern, and Stevenson.

"I thought we did well overall," said Chapple. "But I thought we'd win a few more dual meets than we did. We were surprised a lot this year."

Individually in the conference meet, senior Brian Norris closed out his season with an 82 while former all-conference golfer Jamie Younggren shot an 84. Buddy Green and Greg Boone rounded out the five man team with an 85 and 89 respectively.

Central was 6-4 in conference dual meets this season.

Ladycat cagers bump Northville and Milan

The Ladycats may not be bowling over their opponents, but they're rolling right along on their way to another winning basketball season.

Night girls' defending champs of the Southeast Conference, needed a big third quarter surge to down non-league foe Northville, 39-31, last Monday, then played tight all the way in edging past Milan three days later, 40-41.

On Monday they struggled out to an 8-7 first quarter lead against Northville, but by halftime the score was 16-12 in favor of the Mustangs.

That's when Novi caught fire. The Ladycats bounced back and outscored Northville 14-4 in the third quarter, and then they clinched victory.

"That wasn't one of our better performances," Coach Chris Hamilton acknowledged. "It wasn't that we were all that badly. We just couldn't basket in the second quarter. We had so many dog shots and puppy shots I was ready to scream."

The Ladycats only shot 31 percent from the floor in the game. They were led by senior forward Heather Barr, who netted 11 points and grabbed nine rebounds. Annie Robinson added eight points and Polly Sinclair six.

Northville, with only one victory in 11 games this fall, got a particularly bad defeat from forward Karen Gox, who tallied 18 points to top all scorers and grabbed 18 rebounds to boot.

On Thursday Novi took a commanding 21-13 halftime lead, but then had to struggle to beat Milan in the second half.

This time the Ladycats were led by Sue Beall, who pushed through 17 points and added nine rebounds. Other high scorers for the local squad were Tracy Sobkow with 11 points and Sinclair with seven.

Top rebounders were Robinson and Barr with 10 apiece.

Their victory over Milan left the Ladycats 4-1 in SEC competition, with games scheduled this week against South Lyon and Dexter.

Those two could prove to be a turning point in Novi's season. South Lyon, who played Hamilton's club yesterday, had lost only twice in SEC play going into last night's contest.

Dexter, who comes to Novi tomorrow night, has lost only once.

Viking girls lose 53-50 to Farmington

With the leading lady sitting backstage, the supporting cast was not enough to make the show a success.

Although that would seem a logical explanation for Walled Lake Central's disappointing 53-50 girls' basketball loss to Farmington last week, it isn't so according to Coach Ken Butler.

"I did a bad job of coaching," said Butler. "I wasn't in the game all the time and I think the blame for that loss rests on me."

Although Butler says he can be blamed for a poor coaching job, he certainly can't be blamed for a bad shooting percentage. With senior sharpshooter Patti Limb on the bench with an ankle injury, Butler's brigade managed to mesh only 22 of 74 shots from the field for a shockingly low 30 percent.

Limb, an All-Interlakes player averaging about 25 points a game, injured her ankle in practice last Monday and will probably not play until November. Still, Butler maintained that her absence from the lineup had nothing to do with the Vikings' first league loss of the season.

"I didn't know if the girls would have trouble without Patti or not," said Butler. "They shouldn't have. Farmington is not a good ballclub, but I think we were a little impatient. Still, I think it would have been a completely different ballgame if we had shot better at the start."

The Viking girls fell behind early when they could have made a shambles of Farmington as they missed seven uncontested layups in the opening minutes of the game.

"I can take the blame for the loss, but I can't take any blame for those missed layups. Seven of them, can you imagine that? Maybe we'll have to shoot layups for a while practice session in order to make some of them," said Butler. Central trailed all the way in the ballgame, but Farmington could never put the game out of reach. The Falcons led by nine near the end of the third quarter but that lead was cut to one at 47-46 midway through the final frame.

Although the Central team did not perform as crisply without Patti Limb in the lineup, Butler did cite a couple of Vikings for their strong play. Krista Graham, the Vikings' playmaking guard, picked up some of the slack left by the injured Limb by connecting for 25 points. The senior guard's career high was added by the meshing of 12 of the Vikings' 14 third quarter points.

Senior forward Julie Kunze also played an outstanding game, according to her coach. Kunze scored 16 points and hauled down 13 rebounds to spark a sputtering Viking attack.

Four in a row for Novi runners

Novi's surprisingly improved cross-country runners did something no other Wildcat team before them has ever done.

They won their third and fourth SEC dual meets of the season.

Led by Jeff Johnston, the Wildcats roared to an 18-0 victory in the final SEC dual meet at Dexter Thursday, clinching the team's first winning record in league competition.

Combined with a 16-13 win over South Lyon earlier in the week, that gave Novi a 4-3 record going into this afternoon's SEC meet at Inverness Golf Course near Chelsea. Even more amazing, all four of those victories came after the Wildcats had lost their first three.

"This is the most exceptional year we've had here by far," a happy Coach Norm Norgren said after his team's latest success. "I'm happier than a pig in slop right now."

"These kids have really worked to make something of themselves this season. It's showing by our winning record, and the enthusiasm that comes with it (a winning record) is just being magnified by the kids."

Norgren certainly has good reason to be throwing so much praise around. His team has never finished higher than sixth in the final SEC standings, and yet he's seriously thinking about a second-place finish behind Brighton—the second-ranked Class A team in the state—at today's league meet.

"I really think we have a shot at it," he said. "Our goal is to take our pack and throw it in front of Chelsea and Saline (two of the three league teams that beat Novi in dual meets this fall). I think the kids are kind of excited about it."

The "pack" he's talking about is Novi's second through sixth runners, who've been trading off positions throughout the season. And that's the healthiest thing for them, Norgren figures.

"They're taking great pride in it (the pack)," he said. "They seem to be fighting off any other runners who try to break into it."

The value of the pack was particularly evident last week. Novi finished 1-2-3-4-6-7 against South Lyon and 1-2-3-5-7-8 against Dexter.

Leading the way, as usual, was Johnston, who's rapidly recovering from a severe cold that sidelined him earlier in the season. Johnston won the South Lyon meet in 17:02 and the Dexter race in 17:10.

Following him in order against South Lyon were Chris Giorgio (second in 17:32), Glen Caudell (third in 17:46), Todd Spielman (fourth in 17:48), Brian Jordan (sixth in 18:19), and Louie Balogh (seventh in 18:43).

In the Dexter meet Johnston was followed by Caudell (second in 17:45), Spielman (third in 17:46), Giorgio (fifth in 17:55), Jordan (seventh in 18:15), and Balogh (eighth in 18:37).

Colts varsity set

The Northville-Novu Colts, starting early on a long touchdown pass and capitalizing on a pair of fumbles later in the game, celebrated their 10th anniversary homecoming with a 19-6 varsity triumph over the Westland Rockets last Saturday night.

The junior varsity Colts also won, 13-7, while the freshmen suffered a 13-0 setback.

Quarterback Eric Deline hits Chris Wagner with a 30-yard scoring pass and a 37-yard drive, and Dave Chickowski ran in the extra point to give the Colts a quick 7-0 lead.

Moments later, after Mike Weber recovered a Westland fumble at the Rocket 24, Ray McDonough scored from 10 yards out to make it 13-0.

The Colts increased their lead to 19 early in the second half. This time Ted Sledz scooped up a Westland fumble and returned it to the Rocket 28. Four plays later, Chickowski scored the local squad's third touchdown of the evening.

The Colts' junior varsity squad remained unbeaten in seven games this fall with a 13-7 victory over Westland.

Defensive lineman Dave Andala scored the winners' first touchdown on a 35-yard run after scooping up a blocked punt. Steve Smith then ran in for the extra point.

Smith scored the Colts' other touchdown on a four-yard run behind the blocking of John Klakkinga, Dave Trumbull and Greg Ryba.

The Jayvee defensive, getting strong efforts from John Quinn, Doug Hartman and Jeff Tomaneck, kept the Rockets scoreless until the final minute of play. The Jayvees are now 6-0 this season.

The club is open to youths from ages six to age 17. Anyone interested in joining the club should contact Patti Smith at 624-0202. The group practices Monday, Thursday, and Friday 6:30 p.m.

The club is open to youths from ages six to age 17. Anyone interested in joining the club should contact Patti Smith at 624-0202. The group practices Monday, Thursday, and Friday 6:30 p.m.

Silverdome game set

The Walled Lake Beavers and Union Lake Hawks will follow in the footsteps of their heroes next month when they battle two Lakeland teams in the Pontiac Silverdome.

The four Suburban Midget Football Conference teams will battle in the all day affair in the Detroit Lions' den beginning at 11 a.m. on Sunday, November 26. Tickets for the gala afternoon are priced at $2 each and will include parking in addition to the freshman, Jayvee, and varsity games.

"This will be a good experience for the kids," said Walled Lake Beaver Representative Tom Crillo. "Every young football player in Michigan wants to play a game in the Silverdome."

For information on obtaining tickets to the Silverdome games, contact Crillo at 624-5603.

Novi golfers near top

Novi capped its most successful golf season ever last week with a third-place finish in the Southwest Conference meet at Salem Hills Golf Club.

That left the Wildcats in a tie with defending champion Saline in this year's final league standings. They had finished the dual meet portion of their schedule in second place while Saline had finished third.

"I was sort of hoping we might take a first or second at the SEC meet," Coach Tim Falls said, "but, heck, I'm more than pleased with what's happened this season. We've never been close to finishing this high before."

In last week's four-man, 18-hole league tournament Novi compiled 344 total points and finished behind Brighton (337) and Saline (341). Brighton also wound up first overall in the final league standings.

Behind Novi came Milan (346), Chelsea (353), South Lyon (375), Ypsilanti-Lincoln (394), and Dexter (418).

Novi's top four golfers in the meet were Phil McCarty, who shot an 81, Dave Boehmer (82), Crail Iseli (87), and Kevin Klemet (94).

McCarty's effort placed him fifth overall in the individual standings, leaving him just one short of making the All-SEC team, while Boehmer finished in a tie for sixth.

Warrior tankers involved in tie

Gail Cotter does not like tie contests. Just ask the Walled Lake Western swimming coach how she feels about the 86-86 tie her swimmers had with Plymouth Canton last week and she'll tell you.

"I hope I never have another one as long as I coach," she said. "You never know if you're the better team."

Although disappointed with the tie, Cotter noted that several Warrior swimmers had outstanding performances in the Canton meet. Judy Yuhn, Sue Baker, Anne Artlip, Becky Schnelz, and Tammi Mihalfield all pulled through with their best times of the season, leading Cotter to hope that the Warriors will beat Canton the second time around.

"I think we'll get them when they come over to our pool," said Cotter. "The girls are really swimming well."

Western managed only three firsts against Canton, including diver Tammy Mihalfield's 173.4 points on the boards. Anne Artlip captured the 200-yard individual medley with a 2:36, and the relay team of Cindy Holland, Sue Baker, Michelle Kumm, and Anne Artlip bettered their winning 400 freestyle time by four seconds.

Sue Baker and Tami Bliss each took a pair of second places in the meet. Baker took second in the 200 and 500 freestyles and Bliss finished second in the 100 freestyle and breaststroke.

Other Warrior second places were registered by Michelle Kumm in diving, Cindy Holland in the butterfly, and Anne Artlip in the backstroke.

Earlier in the week the Warriors set a school record in the butterfly relay in finishing fourth in the Farmington Grubbs. Cindy Holland, Margaret Grubb, Judy Yuhn, and Janet Zuber swam the 200 yards in a quick 2:11.

"We did better overall than I thought we would," said Cotter of the team's fourth place finish. "We beat Stevenson and North Farmington and they're usually pretty strong."

Western's diving duo of Michelle Kumm and Tammy Mihalfield took a second place in the relay meet, and the breaststroke team of Tami Bliss, Tammy Mihalfield, Katie Kumm, and Sue Baker finished third.

The Warriors will swim at perennial powerhouse Northville tomorrow night at 7 p.m. Most likely the score after that one will not be tied, but Coach Cotter would be more than happy if it were.

Jack Lewis named new Huron hockey coach

Jack Lewis has taken a big step towards realizing what he terms a "lifetime ambition."

Lewis, who was born, raised and still lives in Walled Lake, has been named head coach of Eastern Michigan University's hockey team. And that's been something he's looked forward to for quite a while.

"Being involved with hockey has been my life's ambition," the 26 year old local resident says, recalling his days as a player. In fact there was a time, he adds, when he seriously thought about playing in the pros.

Lewis, a 1970 graduate of Walled Lake Western High School, has been hockey-orientated since he first learned to play the game as a six year old on Walled Lake.

During his younger days he played midget and Junior B hockey in Detroit area leagues before moving up to Junior competition while stationed with the Marines in San Diego in the early '70s.

All the while he entertained hopes of making it to the pros someday, but about 1973 the reality of just how difficult that would be hit him. That's when he joined the Michigan Patriots, a Senior A team in Canada's Ontario Continental League.

"That was probably the best competition I've ever played against," Lewis recalled, noting that several of his old teammates are now playing for the Redford Stars, a national championship amateur team that's just a notch below the pros.

His experience with the Patriots also persuaded Lewis to forsake his dreams of turning professional and pursue another road.

In 1974 he started school at Oakland Community College, where he acted as player-coach for the hockey team his first year and then simply coached the following two.

During that time he also got to know a man named Alwood Kurth, who was coaching a team that was just getting underway at Eastern Michigan.

Kurth was one of the three founders of Eastern's hockey squad, and the man who first contacted Lewis about coaching on September 18, the day before practice officially started.

While Eastern's squad is not actually sponsored by the university, and thus isn't considered a varsity sport there, it competes in a league called the Mid-Central Collegiate Hockey Association, which includes teams from Kent State, Miami (Ohio) and Cincinnati Universities as well as Michigan State's junior varsity squad and the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

The Ypsilanti club will play about a 30-game schedule, including about 15 non-league contests against the likes of Pittsburgh, Ohio State and Bowling Green.

"We don't have a lot of experience," Lewis says, noting that his top player is junior center Tim Juntilla, "but I think we're going to be okay. We may not win a championship, but we're not going to get blown out of our games."

Eastern, now in only its third year of competition, finished third in its six-team league last year under Coach Dave Roestek.

Ann Landino improved her diving by twenty points last week

Jill Perkins broke her own Central breaststroke record twice last week

Perkins leads Viking swimmers' improvement

Senior swimmer Jill Perkins broke her own school record in the breaststroke twice and the Vikings improved in nearly every event, but it still wasn't enough to stop Clarenceville or Canton in a pair of dual meets last week.

Jill Perkins did just that last week, beating her own record of 1:18.2 in the breaststroke with a 1:17.9 and a 1:16.7. Both performances earned her first place finishes in the respective dual meets. The swift senior also swam her personal best in the butterfly with a 1:17.0.

"We're still losing," said the coach, "but we're getting faster as the season progresses. We're improving all over the place."

And what better way to get an improving season off the ground than to have a senior school record holder break her own record twice?

Both performances earned her first place finishes in the respective dual meets. The swift senior also swam her personal best in the butterfly with a 1:17.0.

In addition to Perkins, several other Viking swimmers had their top performances of the season, including diver Ann Landino. The freshman springboarder amassed a personal high of 153.3 points against Canton and then topped that with a 170.45 point performance against Clarenceville. In the Canton meet she placed second, but took the top spot against Clarenceville.

Senior Donna Glennie swam her quickest time this season in the 200 freestyle against Clarenceville with a 2:28.8, and added a first place 1:05.7 in the 100 freestyle against Canton. Sophomore Kathy Costello won the 100 freestyle against Clarenceville with her best performance at 1:05.5.

Viking relay teams accounted for two first places in the dual meets last week with the 400 freestyle team of Kathy Costello, Sherri Trout, Meg Costello, and Donna Glennie beating Clarenceville in 4:33.2, and Joann Polesnak, Bob Karver, Jill Perkins, and Kathy Costello teaming up for a medley relay win against Canton in 2:18.6.

"We're all looking forward to the league meet," said Auten. "I think by that time we'll be real competitive and surprise a few teams."

The Viking swimmers host North Farmington tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon.

DAVE PISHA

Dave Pisha is what you'd call an all-around football player. He's a tight end, he's a defensive lineman, he's Novi's punter, and he even played quarterback for a couple of games at the start of the season. Last Friday, though, he had perhaps his best game of all in the Wildcats' tough 8-7 loss to South Lyon. The senior co-captain caught an 11-yard pass for Novi's only touchdown, was in on eight tackles, and kept the Lions pinned deep in their own territory late in the game on a punt to the six-yard line. He also had a 50-yarder called back because of a penalty.

POLLY SINCLAIR

Polly Sinclair's biggest attribute to the Ladycat basketball team is her coach, is her leadership. Sinclair also began showing some impressive shooting and defensive ability last week. The senior guard, who scored only 10 points in her first seven games combined this season, erupted for 13 in a pair of Novi victories over Northville and Milan. She scored six against Northville and seven against Milan.

Western golfers fourth

For the second consecutive year Randy Dixon earned all-league honors in leading the Walled Lake Western golf team to a fourth place finish in the Western Six Conference meet held last week.

Dixon fired a 38-36 — 74 total to earn medalist honors in the six team meet at Hartland/Glens golf course in Hartland Township. The all-Western Six accomplishment capped a successful season for the junior linkster, which included tying the school record earlier in the season and a third place individual showing in the regional meet.

"Randy has got to be one of the top golfers in the county and it's a real pleasure to see him come into his own," said Warrior Coach John Fundakian.

Dixon's 74 stroke total paced the Warriors to an overall fourth place finish in the meet. Western totaled 424 strokes as a five member team, finishing far behind first place Northville's 402 total. Actually only four strokes separated the first three places in the league meet with runner-up Mott totaling 405 strokes, and third place Harrison totaling 406.

Western's 424 total was ten strokes better than fifth place Churchill's 434, and 14 strokes ahead of sixth place Canton.

Individually, Scot Kish was the second lowest Warrior with an 18-hole total of 83. Mark Zachary shot an 85; Wade Lorang carded a 90; and Tim Gill brought in a 91.

"I look at it as a successful season," said Fundakian. "Our young kids came along and continued to improve. We only had one senior this year (Zachary), so we've got a lot of youth and should be a solid club next season. The kids are really eager for it."

Canton too much for Western 5

Walled Lake Western basketball coach Tom Szocinski was not looking forward to this past week. He said it at the beginning of the season, in the middle of the season, and he'll probably say it again at the end of the season.

He does not look forward to having his Warriors play Plymouth Canton. Never has, never will. They're just too tough. And by last Thursday's 74-45 score, he's got a point.

"I was hoping for a snowout," said Szocinski. "I know that's a lot to expect, but that would've been the nicest thing to happen to us."

Although Western was never really in the Canton game, Szocinski is the first to admit that things could've been worse.

"Last year they beat us by 68 points in one game and over 50 points in the other," he said.

Still, things also could've been better. "I think we also could've been better against them overall," said the coach, "but if we could have made more free throws it would have been much closer."

The Warriors ladies hit on only nine of 32 free throw attempts, missing the front end of many one-and-one situations. At halftime the Warriors trailed by 17 points, and they had missed 14 free throws.

"We shot free throws about as poorly as we ever have," said the coach, "but our percentage from the floor wasn't too bad."

The Warriors hit 49 percent from the floor, sparked by senior Connie Murphy's eight for 17 performance. Murphy led all scorers in the game with 20 points and she also grabbed 13 rebounds along the way.

"Connie played just a super game," said Szocinski. "She had four fouls, but I wasn't going to pull her. I think she might even play a better game when she's in foul trouble."

Western's Janet Wilson was the only other Warrior in double figures on the evening, connecting for 15 points.

In a non-league contest last week, the Warriors fell to Livonia Stevenson, 70-45. Stevenson rushed out to a 20-8 first quarter lead and built it from there.

Western, now 4-8 overall and 2-3 in the league, hosts Livonia Churchill tomorrow (Thursday) night.

By JAMES CNOCKAERT

Halloween. There is probably no folk holiday which has taken a stronger hold of the popular imagination than that one which falls on the last day of the month of October.

The celebrations of "All Hallow's Eve" have undergone transformations through centuries of observance. What was originally an autumn festival has now become an eerie night of ghostly and merry revelry when spirits, witches and goblins roam the earth.

Observance of the day began in the Celtic regions of Great Britain several hundred years before the birth of Christ. Halloween was actually considered the last day of the old year, coming at the end of the summer.

As an autumn festival, Halloween served two purposes. It was a time of grief for the decline in the sun's glory (and with it bringing the coming of winter), as well as being a harvest festival of thanksgiving to thank the sun (god) for having ripened the grain and fruit.

Even at that time, the day held sinister connotations. The Celts believed spirits, mostly evil, were abroad in the world on that night. They built great bonfires to ward off these spirits.

The people's fears were fostered by their priests, the Druids, who taught that on the last night of the year, the souls of dead gathered together the souls of all who had died in the passing year and had been condemned to live in the bodies of animals to decree what forms they should inhabit the next 12 months.

It is from this belief the symbol of the black cat was first connected with Halloween. Cats were dreaded by the people because it was thought human beings had been changed to that form by evil means. In fact, cats were so feared by the peasant population the priests used them to guard treasure.

With the coming of Christianity, the autumn festival of the Druids became a sort of religious observance — the vigil of All Saints' Day (November 1). But even then, the superstitions of the common people kept alive the old spirit of the day.

One such superstition deals with the jack-o'-lantern, another popular symbol of Halloween. According to legend, a stingy man named Jack was, for his inhospitality, barred from all hope of heaven. And because of his practical jokes on the devil, was also locked out of hell. Until Judgement Day, he was condemned to walk the earth with a lantern to light his way.

In early Scotland, children made bogies (jack-o'-lanterns) of themselves on that night. From the harvest, youngsters saved the biggest turnip they could find. The turnip was hollowed out and carved into the likeness of a fearsome face, with teeth and forehead blacked, and lighted by a candle fastened inside.

Carving a pumpkin into a jack-o'-lantern is a custom of this country. The pumpkin was simply a symbol of the harvest. Children carried on the old tradition substituting a different kind of plant.

For a fearless person anxious to meet ghosts, goblins and witches on Halloween, the place to be was at a crossroads. It was said people could witness happenings, such as funerals, three weeks before they really occurred.

However, meeting one of these unearthly creatures could mean death or bodily harm for the person who was unprepared. According to one superstition, if a person wished to see a witch or goblin, he must first put on his clothes "wrong side out, and creep backwards to a crossroads." In this way, the mortal was to protect himself.

Witches were first heard of in the Middle Ages, and, almost always, they were thought to be women. This was because, in earlier times, women were the priests and the ones who concocted potions for healing.

So it was easy to "imagine that women experimented with poisons and herbs of magic power under the guidance of the now evil gods."

In her Book of Hallowe'en, Regina Kelley gave a detailed account of what a person might find at a crossroads on Halloween night.

"If witches were so directed, they must go on occasion to consult with their masters. The idea arose of a Witches' Sabbath, when women were enabled by evil means to fly away and adore in secret the gods from whom the rest of the world had turned away."

By the 15th century, Satan, taking the place of gods, assumed control of these evil creatures. Witches wrote their names in his book and were carried away by him for their revels at night.

"At crossroad meeting places all over Europe, witches, complete with an accompaniment of other supernatural beings, met to revel, prophesy the future, and boil broth for evil feasts in black kettles."

Not surprisingly, on such a night when so many unearthly beings roamed the world, customs arose whereby people attempted to gain prophesies regarding their future.

For example, hickory nuts on a smoldering fire was one method of determining the future. If a nut blazed brightly, then prosperity was denoted. But if the nut popped, or smoldered and turned black, then misfortune was foreseen.

Bobbing for apples was originally used as a way to predict a man's prospective love life. A contestant, desirous of having his love returned, would kneel with his hands behind his back and attempt to seize a stemless apple floating in the tub of water with his teeth.

If the man was successful in biting hold of an apple, then his love affair was destined to end happily.

Girls, on the other hand, tended to suit the holiday to their own romantic inclinations. And while there were numerous ways of determining who one's future husband would be, two rather weird examples illustrate the point.

In one instance, a girl should leave a glass of water with a silver of silver in it next to her bed before retiring on Halloween night. Before falling asleep, she must then say, "Husband mine that is to be, come this night and rescue me."

During her sleep that night, she will dream of falling off a bridge into the water, and of being saved at the last minute by the spirit of her future husband.

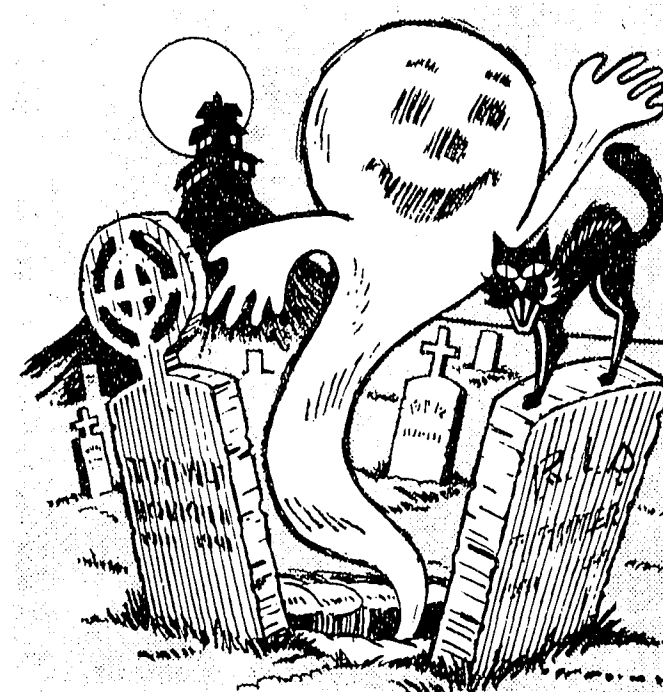

In a second test, a girl should throw a ball of blue yarn out of a window while holding on to one end of the string. She then would the yarn over her hand from left to right while saying the Creed backwards.

When the girl has nearly finished, she expects the yarn would be held (though legend doesn't make clear by whom, or what). She would then ask, "Who holds?" and the wind would sigh her sweetheart's name in the window.

The modern practice of collecting treats door to door traces its roots to Wales. Children would go from house to house singing for "an apple or a pear, a plum or a cherry, or any good thing to make us merry." It was a time when charity was given freely to the poor.

Halloween, as we know it today, differs from its counterpart in history. But as one can see, many of the customs we know today were very much a part of the holiday long ago.

November's time for fun

November is the month when Jack Frost does some serious nipping at noses, turkeys get nervous and Santa Claus arrives in grand style to open the holiday season, according to the Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce.

Hudson's Thanksgiving Day Parade has become a tradition not only to Michiganders, but also to millions of television viewers across the country.

Vikings dump Falcons

Vikings subsequently ran Farmington out of time outs and a homecoming win.

"It was a good game for us," said Woodworth. "Our defense played especially well and our offense kept things going with those third down conversions."

Indeed, Woodworth's offense amassed 181 yards on the ground and 41 through the air, while his defense recovered three Falcon fumbles and permitted the opposition to cross midfield just once.

Central, now 3-4 overall and 3-2 in the Inter-Lakes conference, tackles West Bloomfield at the Laker field next Friday night. The Vikings then host Walled Lake Western in their annual showdown the following weekend.

LIKE NAMES have caused some confusion regarding two area beauty establishments. Mane Objective, Incorporated, is an established beauty shop and is located at 1059 Novi Road near Eight Mile. Ronald Krueck and Russell Spaulding have been operating the salon at that location for four years. The shop is pictured above.

A new beauty shop, Mane Headquarters, recently opened on Center Street in downtown Northville, has no connection with the other shop. It opened in a newly remodeled building, pictured below, and last week was erroneously identified in the story in Business Briefs as being the Mane Objective. The error is regretted.

THE HOT SPOT, which recently celebrated its grand opening at 9854 East Grand River, Brighton, offers more than 20 different models of wood burning stoves and energy converters. The shop also offers accessories, fireplace fans and everything needed to install these popular alternatives to high home heating bills.

"If we don't have it, we can get it," says co-owner Yvonne Schaffner of the Hot Spot. "We're still researching the field — over 1,100 types of wood stoves are manufactured. We get new products in every week."

Three long-time Brighton residents, Gloria Burns and Carol Mendler along with Ms. Schaffner are partners in the new business, something they felt Livingston County needed because of their concern over "atrocious" energy bills.

Many of the stoves are air tight and some include forced air fans. Some models, such as the Johnson, Heat Master and Volcano can serve as energy converters. These are attached to an existing furnace so that the same duct work can be used to heat your home.

The new shop, which is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Fridays, and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays, will offer free advice and assistance on the proper chimney and pipework, with the purchase of a stove.

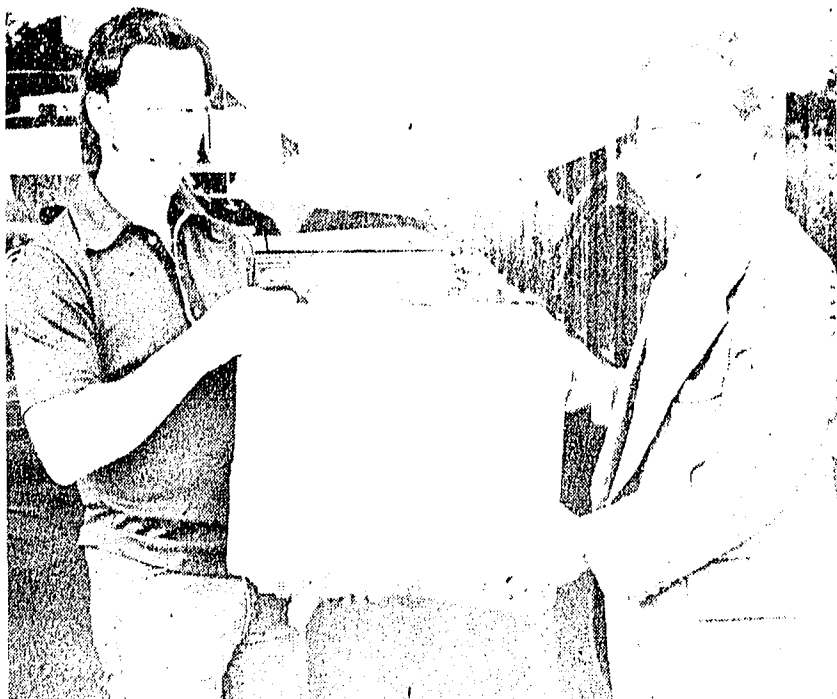

Installation service can also be arranged in a matter of weeks, on most models.

Since joining the WWOBBR in 1967, he has headed or served on numerous standing committees and was secretary and vice-president before being elected by members as 1978 president. He also is currently chairman of the Metropolitan Detroit Council of Realtors.

Among numerous professional achievements cited in the award announcement was his being among the first in the nation to win designation as a Certified Residential Specialist by the Realtors National Marketing Institute. Jakubowski is a member of the Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce in Novi where he has been an active sponsor of youth and adult recreational activities. In 1977, his work to aid the governmental education of local high school students brought him an Outstanding Citizen Award from the state.

An alumnus of Wayne State University, Jakubowski has taught real estate at Madonna College and Royal Oak High School.

SEIGLE FORD, INC. at 20801 Pontiac Trail, South Lyon is celebrating its grand opening. In conjunction with the opening celebration, Gerald Westphal of South Lyon won a new Admiral television which was presented by owner Bob Seigle.

The dealership, formerly known as Mark Ford Sales, occupies a 15,000-square-foot complex built in 1970.

The large showroom and extensive service facilities are "the showcase of the dealership," according to Seigle. The service department includes 20 stalls equipped with six hoists.

Additional sales and mechanical personnel have joined the new dealership. In addition, a new body shop and used car lot will broaden the services available at Seigle Ford.

Seigle, a native of Detroit, operated a used car dealership in that city for 22 years before moving to South Lyon. He is married and has three children.

Congressman Carl Pursell and Senator Javits agree on compromise

'Gifted' receive Pursell's aid

In the late night hours of a conference on the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, a new beginning was launched for the pursuit of excellence in American education.

With Congressman Carl D. Pursell (R-MI) and Senator Jacob Javits (R-NY), leading the way education will experience a new, concerted emphasis on developing programs for those students who need a greater challenge in their studies.

This new emphasis, Pursell said, means the full potential of American students can be developed, and the entire country will benefit from the advancement of their knowledge.

"Without an acceleration of excellence in education," Pursell stated, "we are leaving our greatest resource untapped."

The vehicle for this new direction in education is the program for gifted and talented children within the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA).

The program will be free-standing within the Office of Education, with 75 percent of the appropriated funds going to State Educational Agencies — 90 percent of which must be passed through to the Local Educational Agencies for project grants. The remaining 25 percent of the funds will be used for research, evaluation, a clearinghouse, and additional funds for model and demonstration projects throughout the country.

In addition, a provision for the economically disadvantaged child — inspired by Congressman Shirley Chisholm (D-NY) — is included in the program. Fifty percent of all local educational agency projects must include a component for the disadvantaged gifted and talented child.

Geake faults legislature

State Senator Bob Geake (R-Northville) has charged that both employees and employers in our state are being shortchanged by the legislature's failure to take action needed to improve Michigan's economic climate.

"What the workers and businessmen of our state are getting too much of from the legislature these days are promises — and no action," Geake asserted.

He said the legislature, which is "dominated by lawmakers who are willing to listen only to large labor group representatives," is largely responsible for the less than adequate growth of our state's economic climate in recent years.

This year's "turkey day" extravaganza (November 23), will include a giant 120 foot bag, a hoodoon on wheels, bands, balloons, clowns and the prize winning float designed by a Detroit school child. The climax of the procession is, of course, the arrival of Mr. S. Claus in all his magical glory.

Once Santa is on the scene, enchanting things begin to happen. An annual favorite, for children in age and children at heart, is a visit to Fantasyland, opening November 25, and continuing through December 24, at Kennedy Memorial Center, Lincoln Park. This old fashioned Christmas display features a street of toy and candy shops, a mouse factory and a peek inside the elves' workshop. Santa will be there too taking Christmas orders and a pre-Christmas gift for good girls and boys.

Adults with a bewildering Christmas list will have the opportunity to shop for original gifts by Michigan artists at the Holly Mart, November 3-4, in Battle Creek.

The Folk Arts Fair, November 3-5, Flint will feature items from the markets of the world. For those interested in gifts that have withstood the test of time, the Antiques Market & Sale at Fairlane Manor, Dearborn, November 3-11, and the Holiday Antique Show, East 8 Mile Army, Detroit, November 15-19, will provide an excellent shopping ground.

Meadowbrook Hall at Rochester will be open for tours November 29 - December 3 offering visitors a delightful holiday experience. The 100 rooms of the magnificent English Tudor mansion will be exquisitely decorated for the season.

Cranbrook House, Bloomfield Hills, will feature "Holiday Tables and Tea" November 18-20.

Fessler opposes new Con Con

State Representative Richard Fessler (R-West Bloomfield) has urged residents of the 24th District to vote "No" on the question of calling a Constitutional Convention.

"It seems to me that they are simply talking out of both sides of their mouths," Geake charged. "Not that I believe you must sacrifice the needs of employees to meet the needs of our employers. On the contrary, I think the needs of employers and employees are entirely compatible. Creating a favorable business climate means creating a favorable job climate."

Kadish fights 'no fault' law

Paul Kadish, Democratic Nominee for State Senate in the 14th Senatorial District is placing major emphasis on his petition drive to reform Michigan's No Fault Auto Insurance Law.

Speaking at the Disabled American Veterans Chapter No. 1113 in Redford Township, Kadish received a roaring applause when he announced his continuing effort to press the Legislature of the State of Michigan, "To live up to their responsibility to help resolve the inequities in the No Fault Insurance Law."

Several weeks ago, Kadish, who hopes to represent Redford Township, Livonia, Plymouth and Northville Cities and Townships and the northeast portion of Westland in the State Senate, announced a petition drive to amend the property damage portion of the law and return it to the old liability system so that "the innocent victim of a traffic accident won't continue to be ripped off."

Kadish insists that to properly protect the safe drivers on our roads from having to pay to fix their own cars or from having their own insurance rates go up due to accidents that were the fault of other people, the law should be amended.

Kadish also received strong approval from the audience of over 40 Disabled American Veterans of the Second World War and the Korean War when he suggested that, "Drivers who break the law by driving without the minimum required insurance should be penalized by having their property license revoked and license plates picked up until they can show proof of insurance."

The Michigan Municipal League is asking voters to reject Proposals E and J, which will appear on the November 7 General Election ballot. League president George D. Goodman, mayor of Ypsilanti, warns that passage of these proposals would have a drastic effect on all municipalities in the state.

"Almost certainly Proposal E would increase the cost of local government because if its adverse effect on municipal bonds. It would be impossible to obtain the lower interest rates available from 'full faith and credit' bonds without local voter approval. Contract bonds with the county's full faith and credit would be severely impeded because voter approval would be required both countywide and by the local unit voters, a cumbersome, expensive and unlikely procedure," he warned.

The mayor indicated that Proposal J (the so-called Tish proposal) would have an even more adverse effect. "Local government would experience an unrecoverable loss of its capacity to respond to public needs," he predicted.

He noted that the passage of either Proposal E or J will result in the loss of federal revenue sharing funds.

"The property tax situations in Michigan and in California, where a similar proposition was approved by voters this spring, are not similar. Michigan already has a state-financed 'circuit-breaker' property tax relief program," Mayor Goodman said.

"The Michigan Municipal League is asking that an expanded and improved state-financed circuit-breaker system to protect homeowners and renters with low and fixed incomes from excessive property tax burdens be enacted by the State Legislature," the mayor stated.

He noted that at the League's annual convention members voted to oppose both Proposals E and J and proposed instead a tax reform and relief program with eight elements, including the expanded circuit-breaker system. The program also asks for a direct reduction in property tax by replacing a major portion of the school property tax with either a local income tax option or increased state funding of school operating costs.

The Michigan Municipal League, organized in 1899, has a membership of 472 cities and villages throughout Michigan and is dedicated to the improvement of municipal government through cooperative effort.

AAUW takes proposal stand

Local Northville-Novi members of the American Association of University Women have approved the Michigan AAUW's position on ballot proposals concerning various forms of tax limitation.

Karen Strong, legislative chairperson for the Northville-Novi branch, points out that the AAUW is the oldest and largest national women's organization in the United States, having been founded in 1882.

"With over 190,000 members its position on state and national issues has impact," she adds.

The Michigan Division of the AAUW opposed the Voucher Proposal, she states, explaining that "it sees this proposal as placing before the voters a combination of two basic questions: the extension of state aid to private and parochial schools and the elimination of property taxes as a revenue source. The major problems would lie with the public schools."

Even if children continue to attend their current schools, the AAUW feels, the voucher amount probably would not permit most Michigan school districts to continue their present program in $1-20. In some districts the voucher amount may provide only half the revenue needed.

The Michigan AAUW announces that it opposes the Tish amendment which would make changes in the Michigan Constitution by cutting property taxes, limiting assessment increases and prohibiting a graduated income tax.

AAUW, Mrs. Strong says, "concludes that while cutting taxes on one hand, it virtually guarantees that significant numbers of people ultimately will face tax increases on the other. This result will be achieved with much chaos at best and significant disruptions of local services at worst."

The Michigan AAUW, she adds, has yet taken no position on the Headlee Tax Limitation amendment.

It concludes, however, that tax limitation ignores the most fundamental reason for the growth of government — public demand for increased services, such as more qualified teachers, better school facilities and road repair. Tax limitation overlooks the need for tax reform in Michigan. The tax burden here is not extreme, but the distribution of this burden, says the AAUW, is another question.

Tax limitation proposes to limit growth at the expense of "some very real human needs," the AAUW declares, concluding, "Our challenge is not to limit growth, but to grow responsibly in an age of limits."

House Speaker backs Giese

House Speaker Bobby D. Crim said today it is "highly probable" that 24th district House candidate Elizabeth Giese will be appointed to the House Conservation, Environment and Recreation committee if elected.

"I've known Liz Giese for many years and am impressed with her deep understanding of environmental issues," said Crim.

"Because of her knowledge and because of her concern for the special environmental issues facing suburban and urban areas it's a 90 percent certainty I will appoint her to the committee."

"The issues that come before the Committee on Conservation, Environment and Recreation are of special significance to western Oakland county. This is the area that faces the most critical environmental decisions, and the area with the most pressing needs for recreational facilities."

"I have discussed Liz Giese's potential contribution to this committee with chairman Thomas Anderson (D-Southgate). He and I concur that Liz Giese would be an outstanding addition to the committee."

Newly elected Democratic members of the House will select the Speaker following the November 7th general election. Crim is supposed for reelection as state representative in the 82nd district, and no other legislator has indicated a desire to challenge him for the Speaker's post.

All House committees are then appointed by the Speaker.

Reception fetes Gene Schnelz

The Committee to Elect Gene Schnelz to Circuit Court Judge is having a reception in his honor at the UAW Hall on Wixom Road across from the Wixom Ford Plant on Sunday, October 29, from 3-6 p.m.

Judge Schnelz, presently district judge for the 52nd District Court, is a candidate for the Oakland County Circuit Court. He has been rated "Number One" by the Civic Searchlight and the Oakland County Bar Association poll. Tickets are $10 per person and can be purchased at the door or from the committee.

Tax forum slated

An Election Information Forum featuring an informed speaker on effects of proposals E, H, and J tax amendments will be scheduled for Wednesday, November 1 at 7:30 p.m. at South Lyon Centennial Middle School.

The forum is open to all interested voters in the surrounding area, particularly those residing in Brighton, Northville, Walled Lake and Novi.

William Lobenzner, associate executive director of Legal Legislative Affairs of the Michigan Association of School Boards will speak on the Headlee (E) tax limitation proposal, the voucher proposal (H), and the Tish (J) property tax limitation proposal. He will explain how passage of each would effect school funding.

The forum is sponsored by the South Lyon Community Schools in conjunction with its parent association units.

The public is invited to attend and refreshments will be served.

The Centennial School is located at 61000 Nine Mile Road, one-quarter mile west of Pontiac Trail.

Haunted houses become part of Halloween fun

By NANCY DINGELDEY

Given a good sound track, strobe lights, fluorescence paint and the dark of night, even the barest of rooms can become a chamber of horrors.

The annual arrival of Halloween brings out a rash of ghouls and ghosties, dungeons, half-buried corpses in cemeteries, collapsing ceilings, futuristic monsters and the golden "oldies," Dracula, werewolves, and vampires, all contained in local Jaycee haunted houses.

Planning begins weeks in advance with Jaycee chapters later hauling out boards, nails, black plastic, and buckets of fluorescent paint to create chambers of horror designed to give even the most stout hearted a chill.

The man hours necessary in creating a haunted house are many, almost uncountable. Even more man hours are spent being the "human things" in the haunted houses, castles or even space ships. Donning gruesome face masks and tattered clothing, the workers change roles and become the scariers. Electronic sound devices, complex lighting, mazes, realistic cobwebs, and cold, slimy "things" add to the chilling trips through the haunted houses. An unexpected pat on the shoulder can send an adult into "shock," a child into near hysteria. But still the people come, year after year, for the sheer delight of being "scared stiff."

In past years, the Jaycees report some of their ghouls have been mauled by the public causing them to have a very large first aid box close at hand. Novi Jaycee President Brad Mather remembers being bitten in the leg, enough to draw blood, by a very small child. He was playing a werewolf at the time. The Walled Lake chapter reported a lost contact lens as their only mishap.

There are occasional accidental pokes from the public, but those incidents are usually kept to a minimum. Smart alecks and trouble makers are ignored, say the Jaycees. Vandalism can create problems too, they report, but steps are taken each year to minimize them. Jaycee chapters also design their houses to protect the monsters and keep repair time to a minimum.

Even though the work time can become monumental, the Jaycees claim it is fun. Throwing their "all" in to the project, the young men can easily get wrapped up in their work, with enthusiasm and imaginations running rampant.

The haunted house syndrome has grown so large that the Michigan Jaycees have compiled books of ideas and masks and make-up to make each rendition better than the one before. Prizes are even awarded by the state organization to those chapters presenting the best haunted houses.

Add the man hours together with imagination and location, the net result can be thousands of dollars for a local chapter. Given that great location and a "dynamite" house, Jaycees report a group in a large community can earn upwards of $50,000. Last year's figures indicate the Novi Jaycees raked in $13,000 from their efforts. The greatest portion of those proceeds are pumped right back into the community through a variety of projects.

Although smaller chapters may make less money, haunted houses remain a prime source of fund raising for them also.

For the general public, the small admission price of one dollar or so nets a hair-raising, spine-tingling, perhaps even frightening evening. But, it's a fun experience that has become as much a tradition of Halloween as trick or treating.

Walled Lake Jaycees promise thrills

Here's lineup of events

The Novi, Walled Lake, Union Lake, Northville, and Milford Jaycees have put together "haunted houses" to thrill and chill youngsters this Halloween season.

And there are several other Halloween activities planned in and around the Lakes Area this fall.

County slates clinics for flu vaccinations

A series of flu clinics for people over 55 years old and people over 26 with diabetes, heart, lung, or kidney diseases is being conducted by the Oakland County Division of Health.

The flu shots are available at the two Health Division offices Monday through Friday from 8:30-11 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. The Health Division offices are located at 2725 Greenfield Road in Southfield and 1200 North Telegraph Road in Pontiac.

Influenza occurs in the United States each year and efforts to prevent or control influenza are usually aimed at protecting those at the greatest risk of becoming seriously ill or dying.

Repeated observations during influenza epidemics have indicated that deaths occur primarily among chronically ill adults and in older persons, especially those over 65. These "high risk" persons should be vaccinated annually regardless of the amount of flu in their geographic areas.

This year a trivalent vaccine that protects against A-Texas, A-Russian, and B-Hong Kong virus strains is being given.

As with any drug, the possibility of reactions exists. In some instances people receiving flu vaccine have had allergic reactions. People with known allergy to eggs should receive the vaccine only under special medical supervision. People with fever should delay getting vaccinated until the fever is gone.

The program is being sponsored by the Oakland County Health Division and is not part of a state or national effort. There is no charge for the immunization, but a donation may be given at the site.

A voluntary consent form has been prepared. Interested individuals will have an opportunity to ask questions before signing it. For additional information contact your local senior citizen center or the Oakland County Health Division at 424-7000 or 858-1280.

Local students receive honors

Four Walled Lake Central High School students have been named finalists in the National Merit Scholarship competition along with a former Central High School student who is now enrolled at the University of Michigan.

The four Central students who are finalists in the prestigious academic competition are Russell Marsh, Brian Norris, Eric Paine and Steven Pretty. The other finalist from Central is Robert Greenberg.

In addition, six other local students received Commended Student recognition in the scholastic competition between high school students throughout the nation.

Receiving Commended Student recognition were Robert Andrews, Craig Gauld and Herbert Riedel from Walled Lake Central; Deborah Schamber and Deborah Wright from Novi High School; and Suzanne Cook of Walled Lake Western High School.

A student must place in the top one-half percent of some one million students throughout the country who take a series of Scholastic Aptitude Tests during their junior year to be designated a National Merit Scholarship finalist. There are only 15,000 students from across the United States who qualify as National Merit Scholarship finalists.

A variety of college scholarships in varying amounts are offered or awarded to the finalists. Commended Student recognition is given to students who finish in the top five percent of the scholastic competition. Although Commended Students score slightly lower than the finalists, National Merit Scholarship Competition spokesmen point out that they demonstrate exceptional academic promise.

It is also believed that the program and recognition encourage the students to pursue educational plans.

The five National Merit Scholarship finalists from Walled Lake Central all plan to pursue their education in colleges and universities.

One of the five—Robert Greenberg—graduated from Central in three years and is already enrolled in the Liberal Arts program with an emphasis on engineering at the University of Michigan. Son of Mrs. Phyllis Greenberg and the late Mr. Greenberg, he participated in the National Honor Society and the ski club at Central.

Marsh plans to enter the pre-law program at the University of Michigan after graduation from Central. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Marsh of Lakeshore Drive in Orchard Lake. He is a member of the Senior Executive Board and plays trumpet in the school concert band. He is also a member of the varsity football and baseball teams.

Norris plans to major in architecture at the University of Michigan when he completes his studies at Central. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Norris of Union Lake. Extremely active in school activities, Norris is president of the Student Council and sits on the Executive Board of the National Honor Society. He is also vice-president of the German Exchange Club. Norris also plays on the varsity golf, baseball, and basketball teams and is drum major with the high school marching band.

Paine plans to major in English at Princeton after graduation from high school. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Paine of Williams Lake Road in Union Lake. He is active in the Model United Nations Club, the German Exchange Club, and the National Honor Society. He is also a member of the cross-country and tennis teams at Central.

Pretty plans to pursue studies in biochemistry and micro-biology at Cornell after graduation from Central. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sescovic of Union Lake.

He spent the past summer at the National Science Foundation program at Carson-Newman College in Tennessee. He is a member of the Model United Nations and German Exchange Clubs in addition to carrying a part-time job in a pharmacy.

By the Way

With Nancy Dingeldey

Gwen Blum of Hill and Dale Subdivision could possibly be spending her time, right at this very moment, musing over old adages. Good ones to ponder might well be "one good turn deserves another," or better still, "a friend in need is a friend indeed."

You might say Gwen became a smiling "welcome wagon" lady as she knocked on Dee Boardman's door last week. She had trotted across the street to offer her help to the "we're getting ready to move in" Boardman's.

"What a kind person," you might think. But, we must tell you that Gwen and Dee have known each other for years as neighbors. The Boardman's were simply moving two or three doors down Alton Circle into a different house.

But Gwen knew that Dee was shampooing the carpeting and washing windows — literally getting the house ship-shape for the final magic moment of placing furniture in the barren rooms.

And Gwen wanted to offer her help — make the job easier for Dee — keep her company.

Welcoming the addition of another set of hand, Dee immediately put "good old Gwen" to work in an upstairs bedroom with the carpet shampooer. Completing what she thought was a super good job, Gwen stepped back to admire her efforts.

Tipping backwards over the soapy cleaner, "good old Gwen" wound up flat on her back. Dee, hearing the crash, came bounding up the stairs, and found her flattened friend.

Checking for broken bones, Gwen claimed she was simply shaken but all in one piece. Dee said later she was scared to death that her helper had either broken a hip or worse still, her back.

Scrambling to her feet, Gwen claimed she was none the worse for wear but "took her bucket and went home." Later phone calls to Gwen brought repeated remarks that "everything is fine — just a couple of bruises," with jokes about "old war horses" and the like exchanged.

Crawling out of bed the next morning, Gwen found her body "a little stiff" but "okay." However, she did notice her elbow was quite sore.

Further conversation with her concerned neighbor convinced Gwen to have the elbow examined. X-rays revealed that Gwen certainly was not in one piece. She had broken the bone in her arm just shy of the elbow joint.

Trussed up in the plaster and gauze designed to heal broken bones, the still laughing and smiling Gwen returned home. "See what I get for being a good neighbor," she grinned, nodding at Dee.

Well Dee admitted feeling terrible about the whole thing and vowed to help Gwen anyway she could. After all, it is the neighborly thing to do.

But Dee didn't think about all the things mothers do while in their homes. Hardly allowing a simple broken bone to interfere, Gwen went about her chores. But turning a sock inside out proved to be her undoing.

Really unable to move her fingers on the broken arm, Gwen slipped the good hand into the sock, not realizing it was not going to be an easy thing to remove her hand without the aid of her fingers.

"Well," she frowned, "it was the stupidest situation to be in. I couldn't get my hand out. I tried dialing Dee on the touch tone telephone — couldn't do it. Tried catching the cuff on the door knob but the elastic was too tight. I really went round and round."

Opening a door also proved an impossibility. "Good old Gwen" couldn't get a grip on the knob with the sock on her hand. "I couldn't yell out the window, they were all closed — I mean it got frustrating."

But, another adage entered the picture — that is, "necessity is the mother of invention." Gwen scouted the house and finally found a hook handle. Doing the shimmy and the shake, she finally managed to free herself of her self-imposed handcuff.

Precautions protect home against Halloween damage

Local homeowners are advised to take early steps to remove temptation from Halloween pranks.

Much of the mischief associated with the traditional observance often comes on the night before Halloween, according to the Western Wayne County Board of Realtors.

Such attacks on homes and property might be even more evident this year with a weekend coming so close before the Tuesday night treat-seekers.

They suggest that homeowners fully utilize available outdoor lighting including porches, garages, carports and patios as soon as dusk settles in. Using indoor lights to show the household is awake is also a good idea.

Yards should be cleared of all items that might be "borrowed" or vandalized, including lawn mowers, hoses, garden tools and equipment, barbecues, bicycles, outdoor furniture and garbage cans.

If possible, put cars in a locked garage or place them as far from the street as possible. Lock shed and other outdoor storage facilities. If fence gates are the lift-off type, a chain and a padlock might be needed as a safeguard.

Homes adorned with some type of Halloween decoration seem to enjoy fewer visits from pranks. Youngsters may regard this as an indication that the household has joined in the Halloween spirit.

While most Halloween tricking is relatively harmless, some of the more malicious acts can be costly to homeowners. The one way to discourage vandals throughout the year is to maintain property in good condition so that it never becomes an inviting target for hoodlums.

The Realtors also advise having concerned adults accompany children on their trick or treats rounds. The adults can protect the youngster from possible harm as well as discourage peer pressure to join in tricks against neighbors.

Malicious acts against Halloween "beggars" have increased in recent years so children should be instructed not to sample collected fruit or candy until it has been carefully examined by an adult in the home.

Clinic assists families

A program designed to provide professional support for the family of an alcoholic or drug abuser is now being offered by Providence Hospital's Department of Substance Abuse.

It is specifically designed to help families create a home environment which will motivate the alcoholic or drug abuser into treatment.

The program is comprised of three components.

First, each family meets with an assigned therapist for evaluation and assessment. At this time the therapist works with the family to ascertain the specifics of the problem. Full attempts are then made to understand the family as a dynamic system integrally contributing to the substance abuse problem.

After the initial phase, the family enters a basic education phase. Information on alcoholism and drug abuse is provided in an effort to dispel the social mythology that obstructs many persons from reaching treatment. A series of ten lectures, discussions are presented with the opportunity for each family to explore the application to their particular circumstance.

A final assessment is completed prior to the family implementing progress in the home.

Further information may be obtained by contacting the Department of Substance Abuse at Providence Hospital at 424-3116.

The new Interact Club at Novi High School received its charter from the Novi Rotary Club at a special Charter Night Dinner last week. Rotary President Joe Hamilton (front) is shown presenting the charter to Interact President Mark Ortwine in the picture above. Standing next to Ortwine in the front row is Interact Director Debi Place. Also present at Charter Night formalities (second row, left to right) were Interact Director

Scott Jones, Interact Secretary Melanie Miller, District Governor Aide Leo Harwood, Assistant District Governor A. P. Marshall, and Novi Rotary Secretary Dave Morse. Interact is the high school division of Rotary International and emphasizes community service as well as international understanding.

Interact Club receives charter

The new Interact Club at Novi High School received its official charter at a special Charter Night Dinner in the High School Commons last week.

Interact is the special high school division of Rotary Club International and is open to all high school students in grades 9-12.

"We're totally excited about the new club," commented Novi Rotary Secretary Dave Morse, one of the instrumental individuals behind the formation of the new club.

"It makes us feel very proud that we've been able to create something in the community which will be of value to the young people and to the entire community."

Interact will have the same goals and objectives as the Rotary Club — to promote humanitarian programs in the community and throughout the world.

The club will operate as an extra-curricular activity in the high school and is subject to all school policies and regulations.

"The club will provide the many fine young people here in Novi with an opportunity to channel their energy and idealism into constructive purposes," commented Morse. "It will also create patterns of thought and action which will be translated into good citizenship and community leadership in the years ahead."

Mark Ortwine has been elected charter president of Novi Interact. Other charter officers include Vice-president Kathy Baergen, Secretary Shannon Gronowski, and Treasurer Melanie Miller. Scott Jones, Debbie MacKay and Debi Place serve as directors of the club.

Among the dignitaries present at the Charter Dinner last week were Rotary District Governor Ted Woodley, former Rotary District Governor and Youth Activity Director A. P. Marshall, District Governor's Aide Leo Harwood, and Dr. Rachel Andresen, founder and past head of Youth for Understanding.

Also present were the officers of the Novi Rotary Club, including President Joe Hamilton and Secretary Dave Morse.

Novi Interact will be guided through its first year of operations by a group of Rotarians who form the Interact Committee. Members of the committee include Don Heinrich, John McLean, Pat Best, Pete and Vicki Romanow, and The Reverend Karl Zeigler. High School Principal Dr. Helen Ditzhazy was instrumental in the founding of the group, and Norman Norgren will serve as faculty advisor.

In addition to the organization's officers, charter members include Lisa Anthony, Kathy Bosco, Cindi Borsvold,

If You Don't Remember PROHIBITION, Ask Someone Who Does.

Ask about bootleggers, bathtub gin, and a generation of Americans who learned disrespect for the law. Ask them well the "Noble Experiment" worked — and how a minority can impose their standards on the majority.

Because "Prohibition" is the exact intent of Proposal D on the November ballot! What else can you call a proposal which immediately takes away the right to drink from a half-million young adults? Which drives them out of licensed and supervised establishments...and into cars and parking lots. Before you vote, look at some simple facts:

FACT: Young Adults Are NOT Involved in An Unusual Number of Accidents! Actually, according to official Michigan statistics taken from the State Police "Michigan Traffic Accident Facts," the percentage of 18- and 19-year-old drivers involved in automobile accidents has decreased significantly since 1966! Secretary of State Richard Austin has stated that there is no basis in traffic statistics for raising the drinking age!

FACT: The Drinking Age Has Already Been Raised To 19! Effective December 3, 1978, a new law makes it illegal for anyone under the age of 19 to buy or consume alcoholic beverages...thus preventing legal drinking by high-school-age youths. Let's give this new law a chance.

FACT: Young Adults Are Responsible! Certainly, no one becomes an adult overnight, but 19- and 20-year-old adults are out of school, holding down good jobs, marrying and starting families, voting, and serving in the armed forces. They are adults in every legal sense. Recognizing this, 80% of our states have drinking ages under 21. Yet Proposal D would strip them of a very basic right. Proposal D is PROHIBITION, pure and simple.

PROHIBITION WAS WRONG THE FIRST TIME...AND IT'S STILL WRONG!

'Trial by Jury'

"Learned Judge," as played by Kerry Olin, makes a point in a scene from the Walled Lake Central Music Department's presentation of "Trial by Jury," the Gilbert and Sullivan comedy-farce. The musical satire pokes fun at the judicial system of England through a story line of a suit for breach of promise of marriage against a wayward Don Juan. The entire courtroom becomes involved in an entanglement of emotions in favor of Angelina, played by Darlene Durrwachter, and against Edwin, played by Andy Riker. The musical will be presented in the Walled Lake Western Auditorium this Thursday (October 26) and Saturday (October 28) at 8 p.m. Tickets are priced at $1.50 and will be available at the box office or from Central's music students.

Other lead roles are Bob Shuman as Angelina's attorney, Dean Gleason as the courtroom usher, and Regan Hall as the foreman of the jury.

Halloween superstitions

A program entitled "Halloween — Season of Superstitions" will be presented at the Kensington Metropark Nature Center on Wednesday, October 25, at 7 p.m.

Witches' tales, monster myths, and superstitions are especially prevalent during the Halloween season. What are some of these legends and superstitions, and how did they get started?

These questions will be examined using slides and a walk along the trail during this 90-minute program.

This program is not for the faint of heart or unescorted children.

There will be a charge of $1 per person. Advance registration is required. For more information or registration contact the Nature Center at 685-1551.

After a record-breaking turnout at their last meeting, VOICE officials are hoping for another sizable turnout at their next meeting in the Village Oaks Elementary School Library on Thursday, October 26, at 8 p.m.

Representatives of the League of Women Voters will be present to answer questions about the tax proposals on the ballot in the November 7 election.

VOICE meetings are open to parents with children in any school in the Novi School District.

Co-op Nursery

Upcoming plans will be discussed at the next meeting of the Novi Co-op Nursery at the home of Elaine Wroe on Thursday, October 26, at 8 p.m.

The Co-op Nursery has set December 7 as the date of the drawing for their raffle. Any member of this organization may be contacted for raffle tickets.

There is one opening in the school for a four year old student. Anyone interested may contact Ruth Alexander at 348-1037 or Membership Chairman Elaine Gutierrez at 348-1443.

Community Band

Band members have welcomed the return of first trumpet player Irv Kalb after a five-week absence due to surgery.

More musicians are still needed, particularly in the flute, clarinet, and trumpet sections. The band practices every Tuesday at 7:15 p.m.

The band will be performing at Twelve Oaks Mall during the holiday season. Band members—Ron Salow and Guy Smith—performed with the Michigan State Alumni Band last week.

North Novi Association

Plans have been made for an all-community Halloween Party at the Lakeshore Park Community Building on Tuesday, October 30.

The only admission charge is a bag of candy.

Refreshments will be provided by the association which asks that anyone planning to attend call Pat Kern at 624-2311. There will be prizes for the best costume as well as movies for the children.

Welcome Wagon

The Wine and Cheese Tasting Party slated for Friday, October 27, has been cancelled and replaced with a couples group which goes out to dinner once a month. The couples group will have dinner at the Roman Terrace on October 27 at 8 p.m.

Another new group is the women's poker club. Interested individuals should call 349-6764 for more information.

The "Going Out to Lunch" group will go to the new China Fair Restaurant in Northville on Wednesday, November 1, at 1 p.m. Call Doris Baldwin at 349-5329 for more information or reservations.

All working women in Novi are inited to attend the meeting and learn more about this organization. They are anxious to register new members to assist with the community projects which are underway. Call Shirley Pearl at 348-9018 for reservations to the dinner meeting and more information about the BPW.

Winter hours are now in effect and the library will be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

The Friends of the Library will be showing free movies every Saturday at 10:30 a.m. for preschoolers through second graders. Films to be shown on Saturday, October 28, include "Anatol," "A Kitten for Kim," "Most Marvelous Cat," and "Cuckoo Clock the Wonder Cuckoo." Additional information is available from the library at 349-0720.

Band Boosters

A free concert entitled "Bandarama" will be presented in the Novi High School Auditorium on Wednesday, November 8. The Jazz, Marching and Symphony bands are included in the program. Those who attend will be able to purchase records made by the Novi bands at that concert.

Tickets are available for the performance of the Central Michigan University Band on Saturday, November 11. Tickets are priced at $2 for adults and $1 for children.

The Band Boosters will kick off their 1978 citrus fruit sale under the direction of Ken Baker on Wednesday, November 8.

Novi Jaycees

The next general membership meeting will be held at the Farmington Holiday Inn on Tuesday, November 7.

While the Jaycees are presently busy with their Haunted House project, they have several other projects in the works as well. These include the sale of home fire extinguishers, Project Redball, and the Wives Appreciation Night in November.

The Jaycees would also like to congratulate the Jaycettes on their 11th anniversary.

Novi Jaycettes

Several Jaycettes took a group of young adults from Northville State Hospital for a visit to the Franklin Cider Mill recently.

The Jaycettes are assisting the Jaycees with their Haunted House activities, but are also working hard on their own Family Halloween Party on Saturday, October 28, in the old Novi Elementary School at 11 a.m.

Scott Johnson willingly offered to "sit" for Walled Lake Area Jaycee Auxiliary members as Colleen Schilinski (above) daubed, smeared, and sketched his face in preparation for the annual "Paint-A-Face For Safety" campaign. Aided by the Stage One Productions theatrical group, the auxiliary will again paint faces for Halloween trick or treaters on the haunting good day from 1 to 6 p.m. Removing face masks and bulky disguises, the Paint-A-Face program allows children to see and breath with ease during their nighttime rounds. For $1.25, kids can choose their favorite "face" — The Hulk, Kiss, Spider Man, witches, clowns, vampires — "anything within reason." Claiming painted faces are more fun on Halloween, the theatre make-up used is easily removed with cold cream for a shiny-clean face for school. The "Paint-A-Face" shop will be set up Tuesday at the Walled Lake Fire Hall located behind the city offices on West Maple Road.

Friend of Court system successful

The Oakland County Friend of the Court's appointment system has successfully completed its six-month probationary period.

That's the report from John J. Houghton, Oakland County Friend of the Court.

"Without going into the actual mechanics and details required to set up the program, it can be reported that the new system has not neglected those who have come into the office without previously having made an appointment," he added.

Houghton stated that the attorneys, technical support clerks, and the receptionists have cooperated to make the system work and deserve much of the credit.

Approximately 64 percent of all interviews with staff attorneys have been by appointment since the new program went into effect March 31.

Houghton said there were no reports of individuals coming into the office and being unable to see an attorney if a pre-arranged appointment had been scheduled.

Small objects pose threat

Inhaling small objects into the windpipe and the lungs is the most common cause of accidental death in the home for children under six, according to the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan.

Almost everything young children get their hands on ends up in their mouths or up the nose. Whether they pick up a pin, a button, a peanut, or a tiny toy. From their mouth or nose, the object can slip down the throat and get into the windpipe. If it goes into the lungs, the object can block a breathing passage and cause permanent damage.

To prevent these tragic mishaps — which are completely preventable — the American Lung Association is conducting a nationwide campaign to alert everyone who takes care of children, including older brothers and sisters. This is the message — be sure to keep small objects out of the reach of very young children.

According to the Association, swallowing the "wrong way" is a real hazard for children as well as adults.

To find out more about preventing lung trouble and about the campaign to keep youngsters from inhaling objects into their lungs, call the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan at 961-1607. The association is supported by Christmas Seal contributions.

TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

City council opposes three ballot tax proposals

On three separate votes, the Novi City Council October 30 passed resolutions stating its opposition to the three tax proposals on the November 7 ballot.

None of the votes were unanimous, however. The council voted 5 to 2 to oppose the voucher plan, 6 to 1 to reject the Tisch Amendment and 5 to 2 against the Headlee Plan.

Council Member Guy Smith voted against all three resolutions to oppose the tax proposals, stating that the city had already fulfilled its obligation to inform the voters of possible ramifications of the reform measures. Smith said he had no reason why the council should take a stand on the issues.

Responding to Smith, Council Member Jim Shaw said he thought the council had an obligation as leaders in the community to inform the voters of the way it felt the proposals would impact the city.

The council first discussed the Voucher plan, which would present parents with a set amount of credit to be used in whatever school system they desire to send their children.

Opponents of the measure cry that the proposal is nothing more than a thinly disguised revival of parochial and that it would increase taxes and destroy public schools.

Proponents of the Voucher plan say that it will increase competition between school systems and thereby improve the quality of education in the state.

Shaw said many people would suggest the proposal would have little effect on the city government and therefore should not be considered by the council, but he added he did not believe that to be the case.

"One of the key points of the viability of a city is its school district," Shaw said. "Proposition H (the Voucher plan) leaves a serious question of what is going to happen."

Shaw said the proposal would have a chaotic impact on the educational system and might also cause a wholesale change in the financial situation of the schools and the city.

Council Member Ron Watson said he questioned whether the Voucher plan really had a direct effect on the city or not. He said the proposal would likely have some effect on the city, but whether that effect was great enough to warrant a council stand was another matter.

Shaw made the motion to accept the resolution opposing the Voucher plan, with Council Member Martha Hoyer seconding. Supporting the motion were Shaw, Hoyer, Bob Schmidt, Pat Karovich and Romaine Roethel. Casting dissenting votes were Watson and Smith.

On the Tisch Amendment, or Proposal J, the council approved the resolution rejecting the measure with little discussion.

The Tisch amendment proposes to slash property taxes in half, with funding to be made up by increasing income taxes.

The resolution passed by council stated "local government could experience an unrecoverable loss and continuously declining local capacity to respond to local needs, and indeed will be confronted with a choice of either making sharp cuts in essential local public services now financed by the local property tax."

Mrs. Hoyer made the motion to approve the resolution rejecting the measure, with Mrs. Karovich seconding. Voting for the measure were Mrs. Hoyer, Mrs. Karovich, Mrs. Roethel, Schmidt, Watson and Shaw. Opposed was Smith.

Schmidt began the discussion on the Headlee measure, saying he would vote against the resolution opposing the measure because he thought it was a step in the right direction. Headlee would limit the increase in state revenues to the amount of the cost of living rise.

"I will vote no because the citizens of Novi are looking for tax relief," Schmidt said.

Schmidt noted that Assistant City Manager Alex Allie had said that the city could live with the Headlee proposal.

Mrs. Roethel commented the effects of Headlee could be "devastating" on a growing city like Novi with its low tax rate of 6.5 mills.

Also speaking against Headlee was Shaw, who said he found it "almost ludicrous" that a group of citizens would propose such a measure without actually knowing what it would do. He said nobody knows what the measure will actually do and that it was just "a mass of confusion."

The motion to accept the resolution opposing Headlee was made by Shaw, with Mrs. Hoyer seconding. Voting for the resolution were Shaw, Mrs. Hoyer, Watson, Mrs. Karovich and Mrs. Roethel. Opposed were Schmidt and Smith.

Showman

Novi's Marching Band under the direction of Craig Strain has entertained crowds during halftime of Wildcat football games with a combination of musicianship and showmanship. Terry Smith, who plays the contra-bugle, provides ample proof of the showmanship aspect of the band's performances as he gives his all during a recent halftime show. The Marching Band will join forces with the Novi High School Jazz Band and Symphony Band when they present a special performance entitled "Bandarama" in Furst Auditorium next Wednesday, November 8. The public is invited to attend the free concert which gets underway at 7:30 p.m.

Novi Township voters go to polls to elect four to seats on board

Although both contested races may be meaningless by the time of the vote, Novi Township residents are still set to go to the polls Tuesday (November 7) to elect four members to the township board.

The election is clouded by the proposed annexation of seven parcels of Novi Township, including the portion including Chateau Estates Mobile Home Park. The annexation was originally slated to become effective October 1, but a court appeal has delayed the action.

City of Novi attorneys are working hard to overturn the appeal and begin the procedures of annexing the township, however, which would make all the races on the ballot uncontested. Even if the appeal is not disposed of by the time of the election, most observers feel it will be overruled by the court shortly after the election.

In the clerk's race, Chateau Estates resident Ginger Snider, a Republican, faces Brookland Farms resident Robert Mohr, a Democrat.

For treasurer, Brookland Farms resident Don Hackmann, a Republican, faces Chateau Estates resident Mike Duchesneau, a Democrat.

In the lone trustee vacancy, Chateau Estates resident Jeff Portko, a Republican, is unopposed. Brookland Farms Republican Leo Kalota is also unopposed in the race for supervisor.

Chateau Estates resident Township Trustee Tom Roth is not up for election this year, with two years remaining on his four-year term.

According to Howard Altman, director of elections for Oakland County, a special election may be necessary if the annexation goes through.

If three of the members of the township board belong to the remaining parcel of Novi Township, Brookland Farms, then they will constitute a quorum and can appoint persons to fill the vacancies caused by the annexation.

If the quorum should fall to make appointments within 45 days, however, a special election will be held anyway.

Another group of citizens has taken the City of Novi to court over its struggling road paving program, but this time the citizens face an uphill battle.

A group of residents living in a special assessment district which includes Meadowbrook Road from Eight to Nine Mile roads and Nine Mile Road from Emmishore Drive to Hagerty Road have filed suit in Oakland County Circuit Court challenging the fees charged for the paving of roads.

The residents are charged $10 per front foot to help defray the costs of paving the roads in front of their property.

The city is currently involved in two other lawsuits regarding the special assessment procedure, one with residents along Taft Road from Ten Mile Road to Grand River Avenue and another with residents along Nine Mile Road from Novi Road to Taft Road.

All three suits charge that the residents receive no special benefit from the paving of the roads and maintain that no special assessment should be levied.

At present, the three special assessment challenges rest in three separate jurisdictions. The Nine Mile-Meadowbrook case will be heard soon in Oakland County Circuit Court, the Nine Mile from Novi to Taft Road case is before the State Tax Tribunal, and the Taft Road from Ten Mile to Grand River case is currently awaiting a decision in the Court of Appeals.

The latest challenge, involving the residents along Nine Mile and Meadowbrook roads, will likely be thrown out of circuit court and be placed in the appeals court, according to Carl MacPherson, the attorney for the plaintiffs.

MacPherson says he would have placed the matter before the tax tribunal, but he could not file the matter within the 30 days required of city council's approval of the assessment roll because he was not authorized to take action until after that period.

MacPherson says after the expected dismissal of the case in circuit court, he will bring the matter before the appeals court. The attorney, says the 30 days limitation is unreasonable.

MacPherson is hopeful the matter can be brought to and resolved at the tax tribunal. Like Ed Draugelis, the Plymouth attorney handling the other two special assessment cases, MacPherson feels strongly that the paving of the roads presents no special benefits to the residents, but instead to the city at large.

The special assessments cover only 20 percent of the paving costs, with the other 80 percent funded by a special bond program approved by city voters in 1975. The special assessments account for approximately $1.8 million of the $6.6 million to be used for the program.

The road program was originally slated to pave some 10.8 miles of road, but rising costs and difficulty in obtaining right-of-ways have sliced about five miles from the initial plans.

City Attorney David Fried contends that the paving of a road in front of a person's property does constitute a special benefit in that there is less dirt, mud and noise; safer entrances and exits; better access for fire and police vehicles; and a smoother road.
