Why Novi? Local historians have lots of answers

By REID CREAGER

Something pleasant-sounding like "Oakview" or "Oakville" would have done just fine. And "West Farmington" in't a bad name, although East South Lyon would have been a bit much.

But why "Novi?"

In case you've ever wondered, it's not just another four-letter word. Local sources indicate that the naming of the city was a subject of considerable debate before the current label was approved, and accounts even conflict as to the origin of the name.

would have come to be. In "The Book of Hoffman, author of "Northville...The Oakland County," Jeanne Federspill writes that a man with a curious name of his own — Erastus Ingersoll became the first white settler here in the spring of 1825.

Ms. Federspill reports that this area was then a part of Bloomfield Township, one of two townships in Oakland County at the time. Two years later, however, the county was divided into five townships. The area later known as Novi then became part of Farmington Township and was dubbed West Farmington, according to Ms. Federspill.

But without the developments that developments that area's early history is reported by Jack

First 100 Years." Hoffman reports that the first township meeting was held at the home of Robert Wixom, who bore the name that was selected to represent the community just northwest of here.

At any rate, most sources agree that the township inhabitants assembled in 1830 to choose a name for the West Farmington territory, at the same time initiating the process of separating the area from the jurisdiction of Farmington. Ms. Federspill reports that Dr. J.C. Emery — the area's second postmaster - proposed the name

'Ms. Federspill reports that, according to Dr. Emery, "Novi" sounded connection with naming this locale end-called "Novi" before the tollgate was not yet commonplace." What Mrs. Emery didn't know when she thought of the name, however, was the fact that Novi in Latin translates to "was known," "unknown" or "forgotten."

Some settlers opposed to the name pointed that out. According to Hoffman, some proposed that the area instead be called "Republic" or "Beulah". But some settlers were apparently tired of long names, and "Novi" was adopted by state authorities. Two years later, the Township of Novi was detached 'Novi" at the suggestion of his wife, from Farmington and the area had its own identity.

However, though the argument in tualized. In a recent Novi directory published by the Novi Jaycees, it's written that some 100 years ago Novi had or was - a toll road. This account explains that every town had tollgates which were numbered.

The story goes on to say that Novi was numbered Tollgate No. VI in Roman numerals. Years later, the citizens combined the abbreviation for designation for "six" to come up with "Novi."

However, Ms. Federspill writes that theory, claiming that the township was Michigan" and been done with it.

A more viable possibility to how the word "Novi" was concep- as to the origin of the name, she says, stems from surveyors who referred to this township as "number six" while planning for the area — a variation of the other Roman numeral theme.

Hoffman appears to agree with the latter theory, saying that "most reliable historical sources" agree with that account.

Although it remains uncertain as to what's absolutely true about the origins "number" and the Roman numeral of the city's name, one thing's for sure: if ol' Erastus Ingersoll had known what debate would follow regarding the official label for this place, he'd probably early residents discount the tollgate have dubbed the area "Ingersoll,

Graduation '80

Christal Comilla lets out a shriek of joy after receiving her diploma during Novi High School commencement exercises last week. Christal was just one of 212 graduates in Novi's "Class of 1980" who received diplomas from Principal Robert Youngberg and Assistant Principal Milan Obrenovich in exercises on the high school athletic field. Last week's ceremonies were the last not only for the graduating seniors but also for Superintendent Gerald Kratz who is leaving the district at the end of the school year to become superintendent of the Jackson Intermediate District. Voters elect Milam, Miller

Incumbent Ron Milam was returned who was elected to a two year term in to office and Norman Miller narrowly 1973. He subsequently moved from the beat out challenger Kathleen Mutch in a tight race for the Novi Board of Education Monday.

Newcomer William Neuser placed a distant fourth. Just over 400 persons turned out for the race which saw Milam net 246 votes, while Miller garnered 204 of the ballots. Mutch received 189 votes. There were 70 votes cast for Neuser. In the results of the Oakland County Community College election Novi voters favored Richard Pappas, Margaret McTavish, and Nancy VanGilder. They also rejected the community college millage transfer proposition by a 144 to 131 margin.

Unofficial results from the total OCC district showed the top vote-getters were David Hackett (14,051), Mac-Tavish (12,759) and Pappas (12,519). defeated 32,385 to 20,823.

district and until this time did not seek re-election.

Regarding his victory, Milam said he wanted to thank the community for its support of the school district and for taking a close look at all the candidates.

"I'm pleased that all the candidates generated a large amount of discussion and the votes show that all candidates were given consideration by the voters. It's good for the school district to have that kind of race," Milam said. He indicated he believed the election results show the voters are satisfied with the direction of the school board and want it to continue.

Milam said one of his immediate goals will be to make sure the new superintendent gets off to a good start and develops a good working relationto say that upcoming financial decisions also will be difficult. School board resumes superintendent search

Two candidates for the position of superintendent of Kelloggsville superintendent of Novi Schools who Schools, on Tuesday and Dr. Robert went through a second round of interviews last weekend apparently impressed school board members, according to Board President Ron Milam.

The interview process for the superintendent's position has entered the final stages. Board members originally interviewed 10 candidates who had been chosed from a field of 83 applicants for the post. Board members whittled the 10-man field down to four finalists who are now undergoing a second round of interviews.

Board members interviewed Dr. Phillip Burgess, assistant superintendent of Huron Valley Schools, over dinner Friday. They also talked to Dr. William Barr, assistant superintendent of the Novi Schools, at lunch Saturday.

Milam reported the sessions were rather "free form" with board members asking more detailed questions regarding comments made by the candidates during their first interview.

Burgess was asked to expand upon his concepts regarding the community/school relationship and Barr was questioned on his ideas on individualized education.

(During the first round of interviews Burgess indicated he was excited about the community support shown for the Novi schools and would like to build on the relationship.

(Barr told the school board in the first round of interviews that he was interested in looking at a different educational delivery system especially for the elementary grades.)

Board members tried to probe the philosophies and learn as much as possible about the candidates in the dinner sessions, according to Milam. He said both candidates "improved their situations relative to themselves" as a result of their second interviews.

"Both candidates did a fine job and the school board was happy to have the opportunity to interview the candidates in more depth," Milam said.

The dinner sessions also give the board members a chance to meet the candidates' wives.

Second interviews were scheduled to continue with Dr. Jon Reynolds, Piwko, superintendent of Napoleon Schools, at 7 p.m. tonight (Wednesday).

All meetings have been open to the public, although Milam noted that only two residents have attended the sessions. Tonight's interview will be at the Saratoga Trunk, 42050 Grand River Avenue.

Citizens have been invited to attend whether or not they participate in the dinner. Dinner reservations may be made through the school district office. Those who attend the sessions must pay for their own dinner, however.

The school board is expected to make formal announcement of its decision regarding the new superintendent of schools at its June 19 regular board meeting.

The new superintendent will replace Gerald Kratz who is leaving the post after eight years to accept the position of superintendent of the Jackson Intermediate School District.

Local students 'hang' Gloucester mouse

There was a very important "hanging" at Maple School last week. There was no protest connected with the hanging. It wasn't an effigy. teacher, administrator, not even the worst kid in school that was hung. What was hung was a very large latch-hooked rug, currently ranked the pride and joy of the school, and certainly the center of attention. And, according to Media Center coordinator Jo Kirk, almost every finger in school, right down to the custodian, was "in the pie" at one time or another.

The rug, Mrs. Kirk said, was inspired by a performance of segments of Beatrix Potter stories staged by the Detroit Youth Theatre last fall. Mrs. Kirk reported "a big run" on Potter books in the media center. Interest in the famous "Peter Rabbit" and friends series spread through the elementary students and soon thereafter came the idea of enlarging that interest. Mrs. Kirk suggested hooking the wall hanging. The idea was greeted favorably by school principal Spencer Rush. The school PTO picked-up the idea and offered to pay for the materials.

The children chose to do a Potter picture found in "The Tailor of Gloucester." Mrs. Kirk added the children felt it was appropo since the picture they chose featured a mouse perched atop a mushroom, throughly engrossed in reading a book.

The picture was enlarged and colored and then transferred to a canvas backing. Yarns were purchased to match the chosen colors as closely as possible. And then it was up to Mrs. Kirk to teach "at least 300 kids" how to

To facilitate hooking time, each class in the school was assigned a certain hour during the week to visit the media center. "It has been a real project since Easter," claimed Mrs. Kirk. "Even the little kindergarteners got their licks in on the hanging and strangely enough, the boys were the ones that really attacked the project with vigor. They worked like little trojans."

The hanging features a white background with the pattern formed using yarns in bright pink, shades of green, beige and browns. The completed project has been hung in the glass enclosed media center making it visible to all

The project, said Mrs. Kirk, was full-school in scope. "Anytime anyone students, teachers, the secretary, the custodian — had a minute, they would stop by the center, pick up some yarn and hook as long as they could." The frame for the hanging was made by the school custodian. A reception, complete with punch and cookies, was held after the school hanging. Social chatter among the schoolkids at the reception included talk about producing another hanging next fall.

Greenaway mudslides' continue

The Wolverine Lake Village Council is scheduled to discuss recent Greenaway Drain "mudslides" at its regular session tonight (Wednesday) following two more alleged incidents of sludge flow Friday

Council discussed the drain conditions at a special meeting last Wednesday and okayed Village Attorney Thomas Connelly's request to meet with Walled Lake Attorney Richard Poehlman on the situation. The matter was tabled after several possible courses of action were discussed following the disclosure that sedimentation was flowing down the drain last Tuesday. The village contends that the drain is a major source of pollution to Wolverine Lake. Among the options council mentioned was a village request of Walled Lake and Wolverine Lake Building Inspector Earl Glaspie that a stoppage of

"We've been going through this for God knows how long," McLellan said. "We went through it last fall and nothing came of it...we just can't put up

The village president told council that, in addition to Glaspie, he had contacted 25th District Oakland County Commissioner G. William Caddell and Walled Lake Mayor Gaspare LaMarca upon hearing of the drain situation last Tuesday. Caddell, who was present last Wednesday, said he had talked to Deputy Drain Commissioner and Chief Engineer James Pemberton.

The village's county representative disclosed that Pemberton said someone would investigate the situation and report on the drain developments. Caddell also related to council that he had encouraged Pemberton to get in touch with Village Administrator Bill O'Brien about the situation. Caddell commented that "we need something if that's necessary.

Novi post office exempt from city zoning ordinance

The new U.S. Post Office in Novi is not in compliance with the city's zoning ordinance. But there's not much the city can do about it.

That was the word from City Planning Consultant Charles Cairns after plans for the new 7,515 square foot post office were presented to the Novi Planning Board last week.

The new post office, which will replace the existing post office on Grand River, is to be constructed on a two acre parcel on the west side of Novi Road between the C&O railroad tracks and

The parcel formerly was occupied by the Zukin Catering Service Building which has been demolished to accommodate construction of the

The federal government's plans for construction of the post office were criticized by Planner Peter Romanow who suggested that the U.S. Postal Service has been somewhat less than efficient.

"They (the postal service) purchased a building (Zukin Catering), let it stand vacant for years while they rented another building, and then tore down the original building in order to construct another one," commented Romanow.

"It doesn't make me feel confident that my tax dollars are being used efficiently.' In reviewing the site plan, Cairns reported that it does not meet the applicable requirements of the city's zoning ordinance in that the plan proposes

In addition to his concerns about the front-yard parking. Cairns also noted that several large trees are to be removed from the site and said he'd like to see a planting plan showing the location of new trees to be planted within the designated lawn

Al Riebe, a partner in the firm of Lane, Reibe and Weiland, Architects — the firm which has been contracted by the U.S. Postal Service to construct the new post office — responded that he was unaware of any plans to landscape the site other

Cairns also suggested that consideration be given to locating the entryway to the post office along the site's north boundary line. "In this manner, vehicles entering the site would be able to drive down the principal service drive directly to the north side or rear of the building," said Cairns. "Ingress, egress would not conflict with parked cars near the entrance."

The planners suggested that Lane, Reibe, and Weiland attempt to incorporate the suggestions made by Cairns into their site plan, but — due to the Supremacy Clause and their lack of jurisdiction over the site — subsequently voted unanimously to grant preliminary site plan approval.

Bakers create nutritious delights for Novi students

By KATHY JENNINGS

Cinnamon — the aroma greets the nose as you enter the door. By the smell it could be grandma's kitchen, but this is the Novi Schools' central bakery at Novi High School, soon to be moved to Middle

Two to three times each week the bakers for the Novi Schools whip up enough treats for each of the six school buildings in the district. At other times the bakers are kept busy stirring up confections for the high school.

Food Services Director Pat Hill reports that baking for an entire school district means there are 1,300 cookies in a typical batch. It takes the same number of dinner rolls for the lunch hour, and the quantity of the favorite - cinnamon rolls - will

(One whiff of the cinnamon rolls brings the high schoolers to the kitchen clamoring for a treat, according to the bakers). At Novi High School they will go through 10 dozen hamburger buns daily, and it is not uncommon for the bakery to turn out 90 loaves of garlic bread when the bakers serve the whole district. Then there is the apple crisp, banana cake and fruit cocktail bar for dessert. And sunshine bars, chocolate cake, chocolate brownies and cookies which are added to meals as "bonuses." Hill explains that students often are more apt to buy a meal from the school if an interesting dessert bakers still are trying to master the proper technique for those. Hill explains there are no pans made especially for hot dog buns and it is difficult to shape the buns uniformly. Students are not very receptive to misshapen hot dog buns, she said. About the only baked good served, which is not from the school's kitchen, is bread. Hill said that baking bread is time consuming and mechanical bread slicers are very expensive. "For the volume of bread we need it just isn't worth it for our bakers to make it. We don't use that many sandwiches and the daily bread requirement set by the government can be met in other ways,"

To make sure the baked goods are ready for students at lunch time the bakers begin at 7:30 each morning. Theresa Betley, and Edith Lehr bake for six hours each day and often are assisted by part time employee Centa Bailo.

They're all avid bakers at home and they have learned about their trade through baking classes offered by the Oakland Schools where correct baking procedures, recipe costing, dealing with volumes and standardization of baked goods are

As they begin mixing ingredients for the day they often will be using ingredients they have weighed out the day before, since baking in large volumes necessitates preparation. Batter is stirred in a 60 quart bowl which stands about three feet high. Other special equipment used by the bakers includes a proofer. This is a special case where items which need to rise are placed. Inside the proofer the temperature is regulated so that the baked weekend for consumption Monday. Beside their daily duties the bakers also experiment with new recipies or try to improve old Novi's bakers have been working diligently to improve the nutritional value of their products. Pizza dough is a mixture of whole wheat and white flour. The amount of icings on cakes and cookies has been reduced. Dry milk has been substituted for sugar in some cookie recepies. In other recipes the cooks have found sugar can simply be left out. "We've been working to meet the governments dietary goals so we've cut a lot of sugar out of our

Other school districts also share recipies they have found that students enjoy, the cooks report. The school board recently approved expanding the bakery operation which has outgrown facilities in the high school. Equipment will be moved from the high school to the new quarters in the middle school. Hill anticipates the bakery will be in full operation when school starts next fall.

Day care center names Novi site on Meadowbrook

Plans for the construction of a Children's World Day Care Center on Meadowbrook Road between Ten Mile and Grand River have been presented to the Novi Planning Board.

The 5.005 square foot day care center is proposed for construction on a .89 acre parcel on the east side of Meadowbrook Road, north of the Meadowbrook Manor Convalescent Home. There is one vacant parcel between Meadowbrook Manor and the proposed day care center.

Children's World Representative Richard Samuels told the planners that his firm is the second largest day care center firm in the nation. Children's World has existing day care centers in the metropolitan Detroit area in Canton, Dearborn, Farmington Hills, Ferndale, Garden City, Redford, Rochester, Romulus, Roseville, St. Clair Shores and Southfield. The firm's regional headquarters are located on Shiawasee in Farmington Hills. . The firm offers educational day care, pre-school programs, before-and-after school care, a toddler program, summer day camp and private Samuels said that the centers are geared for 2-6 vear olds and most centers are opened year-round from 6:45 a.m. to 6 p.m. The proposed Novi facility is designed to accommodate a total of 103 children.

"It will resemble a nice, large house," com-

City Planning Consultant Charles Cairns raised questions about off-street parking requirements and the amount of outdoor play area when the site plan was reviewed at the planners' May 21 session. He noted that the city's zoning ordinance requires 150 square feet of outdoor play area for each child. "The site contains approximately 15.000 square feet of outdoor play area per child and will permit a total of 103 children," said Cairns, adding that additional play area would have to be provided if more than 103 students were proposed at the Cairns also noted that the site plan meets the offstreet parking requirements of the zoning ordinance as long as no more than 12 employees are proposed at the facility.

Samuels responded that approximately 100 children will be accommodated at the center and plans call for only nine to 10 employees, thus meeting the requirements of the city's zoning or-

The planning board subsequently voted unanimously to grant tentative site plan approval and direct the site plan sub-committee to grant Construction of the proposed Children's World Day Care Center is expected to begin this year.

City eyes station

Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall has suggested that the city may have to condemn and acquire the Boron service station on Novi Road near Thirteen Mile in order to provide temporary fire protection services while the new Thirteen Mile fire station is under construction. The existing Thirteen Mile fire station is slated to the torn down and replaced with a new structure funder the terms of a $1 million Fire Bond Proposal approved by voters last November.

City officials had proposed earlier this year that the city lease the Boron service station on Novi Road near Thirteen Mile as an interim station for Tire equipment while the new station is under con-

But Kriewall told the city council last week that Boron officials have said they have no intention of letting the city use the vacated service station as an interim fire station.

Since that time, the city has learned that it must acquire additional right-of-way along Novi Road to provide for signalization of the Novi Road/Thirteen Mile intersection, Kriewall told the council. "We've notified Boron officials that the city

Cost of the new Thirteen Mile fire station has been pegged at approximately $240,000. The city council last week authorized city officials to advertise for bids for construction of the station. According to the timetable submitted by Kriewall, bids will be awarded August 1 and construction will begin August 7. The manager's estimated timetable also proposes completion of the Thirteen Mile fire station by March 1, 1981.

Walled Lake board must pull together tempted to portray the victories of Mario G. Tozzi and Robert E. Cooper in the Walled Lake school board election Monday as having greater import than they truly

This year's race for two vacancies on the Walled Lake Board of Education was particulary interesting due to its potential ramifications on board composition. Outside of Cooper, the incumbent, and David M. Roddy, a newcomer to board circles, the race appeared to narrow down to a battle between Tozzi and Patricia

It was unfortunate — but probably true — that the race between Tozzi and Jackman was defined more in terms of what each candidate represented than his/her particular attributes as an individual candidate.

Tozzi, on the one hand, represented the more traditional faction in the sometimes circus atmosphere which has surrounded the school board in recent years. Jackman, on the other hand, was representative of the faction which has been highly critical of board and administrative policies.

The race between those two was hard-fought. Both candidates have reported spending significant amounts of money in advertising, flyers and posters in an attempt to be elected to the school board.

When the final results were tabulated, Tozzi and Cooper were the winners. Jackman was third. There was great rejoicing among their supporters — a victory at last for the "side" which campaigned unsuccessfully for additional sions last year.

We have no quarrel whatsoever with the election of Tozzi and Cooper. In fact, we endorsed both candidates in this year's race.

At the same time, we suggest that it would be a mistake to construe Monday's results as a mandate for one particular faction over

We stated in our endorsements last week that there is considerable merit to Jackman's candidacy. Although we did not support her over Tozzi and Cooper, we were not unsympathetic with the substance of her candidacy.

A case in point is Superintendent Don Sheldon's apparent refusal to provide board members with information regarding a proposed restructuring of administrative responsibilities for the 1981-82 school year prior to June 30 of this year. The June 30 deadline is important because administrative contracts are automatically renew-

In other words, the board's ability to act on a restructuring of the administrative hierarchy is severely limited after the contracts are automatically extended. Although the restructuring reportedly has been under study for the last two months, Sheldon told board members Monday that it will probably not be ready for board review prior to June 30.

And there are other examples. We would hope that board members and administrators take a long hard look at their respective roles in the weeks ahead. We would hope that board members who have been critical of the administration take another look at their positions to determine where their beliefs bear modification. We would hope that board members supportive of administration likewise examine their positions to

Backed in a corner

The Walled Lake City Council took the first step toward seeking expansion of the Novi-Walled Lake wastewater treatment plant last week by requesting information from the Oakland County Department of Public Works (DPW) on the need for putting a third retention tank into operation.

The plant now operates near capacity. The demand for service sometimes pushes beyond the 1.4-million-gallon-per-day design level, but City Manager Peter Parker noted that the capacity can be exceeded without causing serious problems if conditions are

A majority of the council members said in January that they would prefer to expand the existing tertiary — three stage — sewer treatment plant instead of participating in the so-called super sewer regional system that will be served by a two-stage treatment process. In addition to a better level of treatment from the existing plant, they noted the local control of the Novi-Walled Lake facility and the high estimated cost of the new regional system.

We disagreed with the council's decision in January, not because we favor super sewer but because the vote to drop out of the planning for the regional system has backed the city into a corner.

It appears to us that it is doubtful that state or federal officials will approve the expansion of a sewer plant in an area that is being the study they opposed.

Even if Novi is served by super sewer, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has suggested that only the southern half of the city should be included in the regional system or the Middle Rouge system while the northern area may still be served by the existing Novi-Walled Lake plant.

The information requested last week by the Walled Lake council probably won't be available until the super sewer studies, which the city decided not to participate in, are completed. Those studies won't be completed until October 1981 at the earliest, and then it probably will take time for federal officials to decide which sewer system should serve specific communities.

By dropping out of super sewer almost six months ago, the council severely limited the city's options on meeting the demand for sewer service in the near future. It is too late for council members to change their minds about the regional

We hope the four council members who voted to drop out of super sewer don't become impatient while waiting for the results of

"We know there are some 160,000 persons in our listening area who could benefit from this service," says the station's only full-time paid staffer, Sandra Rubenstein, who spoke to a local Kiwanis club Monday night. "But we have only about 700 listeners.'

Staffed and financed mostly by volunteers and contributions, the station provides day-long programming for the han-dicapped, including the reading of entire newspapers and major magazines, reading of advertisements, reading of books, children shows, public service announcements, special theatrical presentations, etc., all of which is done by volunteers.

Cost of the service is only $20 a year to cover the rental of a special radio receiver placed in the home or place of residence of the listener. It is provided free, however, in cases where a person has insufficient funds.

Although the service has been offered now for three years, the number of listeners is growing slower than hoped — even though the only similar service in Michigan is in East Lansing. The East Lansing radio signal, however, does not reach into this area.

. Visiting bobby explains why police don't really need guns

Imagine a policeman without a gun. Ridiculous. Unthinkable.

Ridiculous. Unthinkable.
Yet in England it is the norm.
"No police officer carries a gun in our country," Uniform Police Inspector Gary Banks said during his recent stay in Northville. "Only a certain number of officers are trained in the use of firearms and they are called in only when guns are used by criminals.
"The trained officers carry pistols and pump-action shotguns and usually have pump-action shotguns and usually have no difficulty resolving the problem."

While attending Kent University in England a few years ago Banks met three American students, one of whom is the girlfriend of Northville resident Fred Godwin, a Washtenaw County Sheriff's Deputy. Godwin visited Banks in Luton a year ago February and invited the British inspector to visit him here.

Inspector Banks emphasizes a point

Youth

Too young to vote, too young to drink, Too young to tell folk what they really think. Who ever listens to youth today, Who cares if they ever have something to say? We know better, the old ones say, We never did all this in our day. Spea when you're spoken to,

Do as you're told, Don't do as we do, do as we say, And jump to it when we give the OK.

To question, discuss and argue with Dad. Too soon they'll be older and settled to life, With jobs and houses, a car and a wife.

Remember your past— Didn't it all go by so fast?

After riding with a Detroit police of-ficer last week Banks said he saw only minor differences between police work here and at home.

"I think there are similarities in policing wherever you go, "he said. "You have pretty much the same problems "I think the great quantity of guns in this country is the major reason for more shootings, "he continued. "But people can get quite nasty where I live, too."

A law enforcement officer in Luton, Bedfordshire for 11 years, the 29-year-old Banks has held every position from cadet to inspector and feels, at least in England, there is no need for police to tote firearms. "I think it puts an added pressure on a police officer," he told Northville Police Chief Rodney Cannon last week. "It is a liability.

"To own a pistol or a rifle British citizens must have a very good reason," he explained. "There is a fairly thorough investigation before a permit is issued.

"There just aren't that many gun around."

In addition to the specially trained of-ficers, British police sometimes call on the Special Air Services (SAS) to assist in particularly violent situations.

"They are the best, "Banks praised.
"They are trained killers. They were the ones who recently executed the successful rescue of hostages at the Iranian Embassy in London.'

Another difference between British and American police work can be seen in the structure of law enforcement. Banks pointed out.

'The comparative fragmentation o police departments here is amazing, "he said. "We have one system of police.
All (pay) scales are the same throughout the country.

And the gas prices, he said, are double what Americans pay.

Not only for the 'low' gas prices,
Banks said he would like to visit The States again.

"You can see a lot in two weeks, but you can't really learn much in that amount of time, "he said.

gardener can get apple green, dark green, bronze-red, frilled and fringed varieties. Packets of lettuce seeds are filled generously. Plant only one-quarter to one-half packet at a time, at two-week intervals. An average family can eat only as much leaf lettuce as can be grown on about six square feet of bed. Experienced gardeners "force" spring lettuce to mature early by sheltering it under tunnels or hoods of clear plastic sheeting. The canopy concentrates the sun's heat and protects lettuce from snap frosts.
