Developer seeks subsidized housing funds

An application to construct subsidiz- division. ed housing in Novi has been submitted by the developers of the Timberlea Courts Apartments.

Singh Associates, developers of the apartment complex, have applied for some $6,378 million from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) under its Government National Mortgage Assistance program.

The application is tied to an application for rent subsidies under HUD's Section 8 Housing Assistance Program. The Timberlea Courts Apartments are to be located on a 17.75 acre parcel behind the Meadowbrook Glens sub-

The development, which already has received site plan approval, will contain a total of 157 units as well as a swimming pool, tennis courts and a clubhouse.

Under the Government National Mortgage Assistance program, developers can obtain funds at a guaranteed interest rate of 7½ percent. The Section 8 program provides rent subsidies to low-income families for 20 percent of the dwelling units in a specific development. A total of 31 units would be designated for subsidized housing in the Timberlea proved and funded. "Lower income families" are defined as families with incomes 80 percent of the area median income or less.

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), which comments on all applications, told HUD last week that the Novi project is "not inconsistent with its regional housing plan." The application now will be forwarded to HUD officials who will determine if the application will be approved for funding.

Mark Habel of the HUD office in Detroit confirmed that the Timberlea Courts application has been received and is one of 15 applications still under consideration. A total of 61 applications were received.

Habel added, however, that the Governmental National Mortgage Assistance program has been suspended by Congress and no funds are presently available.

The mortgage program and the rent subsidy programs are two separate programs," said Habel. "The fact that this developer requires a suspended program to accomplish his project is a disadvantage to the developer.'

Habel also said the current "soft con- still under consideration despite those dition" of the housing market in southeastern Michigan may be a point against the project.

"The inability to market a development has caused us to reject a number of applications," said the HUD representative. "We can provide Section 8 subsidies for 20 percent of the units, but the other 80 percent is at risk. There's currently a low fill-up rate for new developments in southeastern Michigan and that's an important consideration.

"We can't defy the market." Habel said the application is one of 15 factors, however. He said Singh Associates is a "quality developer" which has a good track record with HUD.

"It's a good location in terms of accessibility to transportation and funding, so we're holding the application for a thorough analysis," he said.

"The mortgage assistance program has been suspended at the present time, but you never know when funds will be available in the future."

Habel added that HUD will announce its decision within the next 60-90 days."

Shades of punk

Something funky is coming to Faith Community Presbyterian Church Friday night (May 1). Sixteen Rhythmettes, five of whom are pictured above, will do a punk rock dance routine during the church's first variety show, slated to begin at 8 p.m. The mysterious ladies will be joined by other wild acts, in-cluding a marimba player, some bands and a chorus line finale by the Darling Dozen, a group of men planning to kick up their heels at the show. Tickets are $2 each, $1.50 for youngsters 12-18 and $1 for children under 12. Posing above (from left) are heartbreakers Julie Shingler, Kim Large, Diane Drew, Theresa Corbett and Barb Hofgartner. ## New Chevy dealership • bucks economic trends

Marty Feldman is one individual who isn't fazed by the current plight of the American auto industry.

In fact, the 40-year old West Bloomfield resident is downright enthusiastic about the future of the auto industry as evidenced by the fact that he presided over groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Marty Feldman Chevrolet dealership on Grand River Avenue in Novi last week.

Why would anyone lay out the capital necessary to open a new auto dealership during these troubled economic times when the industry's financial problems have been front page news for the last two years?

"If I believed the auto industry were going to continue to suffer like it has over the past several years, I would be taking a risk," said Feldman recently. "But I'm convinced we're going to break out of the slump, and we're going to break out of it soon.

"There's a lot of scrappage out there on the roads, and it's getting to the point where people are going to have to start buying new cars again."

There are other reasons why Feldman is optimistic about the future of the domestic auto industry in general and his new Novi dealership in particular. And not the least of those • reasons is his faith in General Motors.

"G.M. is investing $41 billion in new product development over the next five years and that's going to make a big difference," he said.

"This September (at approximately the same time his dealership is scheduled to open), G.M. is going to introduce a whole new product line that will include a diesel Chevette, diesel Monte Carlo, diesel Caprice and a whole series of diesel trucks with new and improved diesel engines. "The other domestic auto makers aren't in a position to earmark $41 billion for product development like G.M. has and I think you're going to see some pretty startling developments in the field of automotive research."

Feldman also thinks the Reagan administration is dedicated to helping domestic auto makers get back on their feet.

He feels a quota on Japanese imports is a real possibility, and that the American consumer has a heightened awareness of the benefits associated with "buying American.

"In the short time he's been in office, the president has already had some major changes to benefit the auto industry," said Feldman.

"I can see a lot of factors coming together that bode well for the auto industry over the next five years, and we think our timing is good and our location is good.

"Novi is one of the strongest and fastest-growing communities in Michigan."

with city's engineers

By KATHY JENNINGS

In a corporate realignment which took effect April 18, Harry D. Mosher, president of Mosher-Kapelczak, Inc., is no longer with the firm which has served as Novi's consulting engineers for three years.

The city received formal notification of the split between Mosher and partners Raymond L. Cousineau and Joseph C. Kapelczak last week.

In light of the corporate realignment. the city has been evaluating the services of the company, according to City Manager Edward Kriewall.

"There has been no decrease in the level of services. They are delivering engineering on all fronts on a timely basis and there seems to be no problems in retaining the company as consulting engineers," Kriewall said.

"This is simply a corporate realignment and it appears they intend to service our account as it has been served," Kriewall said. "Schedules are being met based on prior commitments and new projects are being conceived and implemented in a timely manner. It's son, and then with his own company. business as usual."

The formal notice of the corporate restructuring stated that Mosher would no longer be with the company. Further, the notice said: "We want to assure you and your community, as a valued client, that the corporation is looking forward to our continued working relationship in the pursuit of more efficiently servicing your engineering needs.

"In the very near future our offices will be contacting you to discuss your present and future engineering concerns along with any other items of interest to your community.'

Corporate officials declined comment on the reason behind the ouster of Mosher.

When contacted at his home, Mosher said he had been advised by his attorney not to comment on the matter.

"I'm really sorry about all of this. I've worked very hard in Novi and with the people of Novi and I'm sorry all this is happening," Mosher said.

Mosher has served as the city's consulting engineer for approximately seven years, first as the representative of the Pontiac-based consulting engineering firm of Johnson & Ander-Mosher handled Novi projects for

The city clerk, who also is Blood Drive Coordinator for the Red Cross, is looking for Novi residents willing to donate blood tomorrow (Thursday) from 2-8 p.m. at the Holy Family Catholic Church on Meadowbrook Road.

Stipp noted that the Red Cross is in particular need of blood because the usual donations from automobile companies have dropped along with the layoffs in the industry.

"Because the auto companies are down they're taking in less blood," Stipp explained.

For this blood drive 180 donors are Novi City Clerk Gerry Stipp has been Seventeen year olds can give blood with the consent of a parent or guardian. Donors over 65 need the written permission of their doctor.

The donation takes about 10 minutes, and approximately 50 minutes is needed for registration, medical history, blood pressure and other simple tests. All work is done by a registered nurse. For those who can't make it to the Novi Community Drive a second opportunity to give blood is planned by Novi High School students next Wednesday (May 6).

The student government is sponsoring the drive which will be held in the high school from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. While it is primarily aimed at high school students and personnel, community residents also are invited to donate.

"We've had pretty good success with it in the past. The students are receptive and it's just something we think is worth doing," said advisor Norman Norgren.

Those who wish to give blood at Novi High School should register by calling Norgren at 349-5155. Walk-ins also are welcomed.

Lone candidate declares intention to run

BY KATHY JENNINGS

With three weeks left before the first day that nominating petitions can be filed, the candidates for the Novi City Council race are still in question.

With three four-year terms expiring this year, there are plenty of rumored candidates, but few who could be confirmed by The News.

To date only incumbent Patricia Karevich has announced intentions to seek re-election.

Karevich is circulating nominating petitions, seeking the 100 signatures needed to have her name placed on the ballot.

She is seeking election to her second full term in office. Karevich has served on the council for six years and as mayor pro-tem for the past year. She was elected in 1975 to fill an unexpired term for two years and reelected to a four-year position in 1977.

"I feel I can listen to people and carry their views across the council table. I still have time for people and helping them through their problems in dealing with city hall. I feel I still represent the people and will continue to fight against too much government," Karevich said in announcing her candidacy.

Council Members Guy Smith and Ronald Watson whose terms also expire this year say they are undecided whether or not they will run.

"I'm not committed one way or the other at this point," Smith said. "I have to check my office requirements before reaching a decision." Watson also said his decision is "really up in the air."

"Several things have to be assessed before I go one way or the other," Watson said.

Nominating petitions have been pull-ed for Michel Duchesneau, who was a council candidate in the 1979 race.

But when contacted about the election, Duchesneau said those petitions had been taken out for him, but he has no intentions to run.

"Other people have taken out petitions for me, but I am not running," Duchesneau said.

Petitions also had been taken out by Tom Roth, a former Novi Township Trustee.

However, Roth said that upon further consideration he has decided not to circulate the nominating petitions.

"I was a trustee in Novi Township and would have liked to get back into it, but after talking it over with my wife I've decided not to run," Roth said. John Balagna, chairman of the parks and recreation commission and an active member of the Novi Jaycees, has long been rumored to be interested in running for the council.

He said he does not intend to take out nominating petitions, however. "Someone started that rumor about me a long time ago. It's just not true. I'm not running," Balagna said.

Another potential candidate who has denied rumors that he will be a candidate is Paul Mastrangel. The planning board member said there is "absolutely no truth to the rumor" that he is runing for election. Paul Potter, a member of the zoning board of appeals, also said he is not run-

Three Commerce Township officials were lauded by state lawmakers for their initiative in requesting a state Attorney General's opinion on Proposal A, a tax relief question scheduled to come before voters in the May 19 election.

tion, water accumulates around the culde-sac and on adjacent properties. Much of the drainage dilemma ties to a drainage cut that would remove water to the nearly dry swamp called Watkins Pond just north of Mud Lake. Dornan claimed that currently too much water is backing up into Mud Lake, making it much larger than area maps represent it. In addition, the swamp, which appears relatively "wet" on the same maps, is nearly dry upon actual site inspection.

Ambulance asks city approval

Novi Ambulance is once again seeking permission from the Walled Lake City Council to handle emergency calls in the southern portion of the city. But some Walled Lake council members are unhappy with both Novi Ambulance's approach and the role council should play in endorsing private business. Sharon Getz of Novi Ambulance told council members last Tuesday that she had repeatedly attempted to get on the council's agenda for the meeting but was dissatisfied with the response received from City Manager J. Michael Dornan. Getz requested an apology from Dornan for his alleged mishandling of placing her on council's agenda. Getz was forced to , respond to council during the "audience participation" segment of the meeting. The ambulance representative said she believed she was following proper channels in being placed on the council's agenda. Council members were somewhat aghast at Getz's reaction and suggested

Getz later apologized for her comments. Late last summer. Novi Ambulance also approached the city with a request to handle emergency service operation within Walled Lake limits on a permanent basis.

Novi Ambulance President John Early told the council in September that a mutual aid agreement between Fleet, Novi Ambulance and another firm allowed each of the three companies to operate in the Walled Lake area. But for the time being, Novi Ambulance remains purely in a backup role.

As We See It

Safety study needed before not after fact

How safe is Commerce Township?

Over the past several weeks. we have attempted to find out that answer. We say hesitantly that the findings were startling.

The hesitancy is based on our knowledge that many figures were supplied by Sergeant Mark Goodrich and the county sheriffs office, both eager to upgrade the township force. Still, we feel that juntil given better reason to believe otherwise — these figures were accurate.

The most obvious question we must ask after all of the crime and personnel figures released is: Are people in the township displeased with their police ser-

Crime problems are not an issue that is normally dealt with on a group level. There is no PTA or historical society-type of precedent set to bring crime victims together.

Isolated within the township. people who have been accosted and had their homes broken into may feel alone in facing their problems. We think this is the most startling finding of the entire study — that people have not raised their voices and demanded better protection.

We hesitate to believe that the township residents and the board will only take a stronger stand once the majority of residents have been victimized and vote in favor of more police based on past experience. But unifortunately, that's exactly what Commerce trustees appear ready to do.

Should the past pattern of performance by trustees remain consistent, a reactionary rather than an active measure to assure safety will be what residents are dealt.

"Low millage."

That is the answer one gets whenever discussions on services erupt in the township.

While Commerce continues to brag about one of the lowest millages in the world -1.22 - it lists few services for its people. And some people both in the township and outside are rightfully cautious and afraid that soon the walls will come tumbling down.

How long can Commerce get away without adding to its services? And how long will the trustees ignore their ability to levy up to 5 mills to save themselves politically?

Should the challenge loom as some apparent political suicide in some officials views, we would propose formation of a study group within the township to perform a needs assessment and suggest action to the board.

Still, we ultimately believe the trustees should enact an indepth review of their own and cease their hiding behind solely the wishes of the voters at that particular time. If nothing else. American politics has demonstrated that one outstanding incident can become the impetus to cause a complete turnaround in voter opinion. We urge the township officials to act responsibly and investigate the safety of Commerce and possible need for added police.

Thus far, Commerce trustees have failed to address the subject seriously. They have neglected to state their own opinions as government leaders and are basing their decisions solely on public opinion.

Leadership doesn't mean following up with action after the fact. Leadership means leading.

"Complete systems failure..."

"...Clicked into our Watergate mode ... " ...Janet Cooke "was consumed by blind and raw ambition..." ... A breakdown in "quality control...editing."

Those are the Washington Post's explanations for how it managed to publish, without question, a completely fabricated story, then win a Pulitzer for it. Translated from the computer-speak, it all comes down to a whole bunch of editors and reporters failing to do their jobs. In the wake of that, all newspapers are re-evaluating their operating methods. In the process, I hope we have the guts to change a system that isn't in the policy manuals, but had just as much to do with the Post's failure as did the neglected safeguards. Given that reporter Janet Cooke was moved to create "Jimmy's World," a non-existent one for a fictional 8year-old heroin addict, by her ambition, one must ask a simple question: What did she hunger for so mightily?

A Pulitzer? Certainly, eventually. Advancement to the Post's Metro desk? Of course. Those are the traditional ambitions of someone in the newspaper business. That is what gives it a reputation for cut-throat competition and high pressure. It never produced a fake Pultizer-winner before.

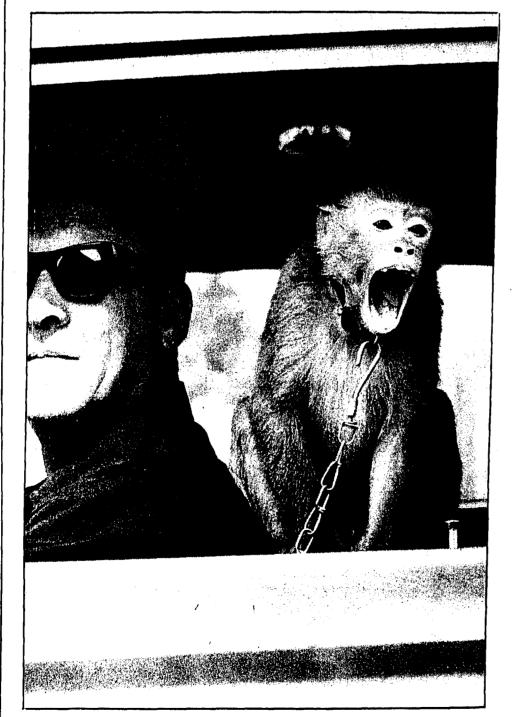

There is irony in finding out that Cooke's story was her ticket to advance to the section of the Washington Post under the direction of Bob Woodward.

It was Woodward and his colleague Carl Bernstein who rode reporting from the shadows to the bright lights. Once scorned as a repository of ambulance chasers and shabby characters, then a mildly respected occupation, news reporting suddenly was bigger than life - raw material for movies and books even better than spy thrillers because they were true.

Woodward and Bernstein make good heroes - for reporters. Nothing wrong there. It goes wrong when we start telling everyone else to admire the reporter, too. That's self-serving hogwash. It feeds the ambitions of Janet Cookes. In accepting Hollywood's images we endorse Hollywood ethics - anything to hit the big time. Reporters who believe it don't really want to be Woodward and Bernstein. They want to be Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman. Janet Cooke was on the wrong coast.

Your letters welcome

This newspaper welcomes Letters to the Editor. We ask, however, that they be limited to 500 words and that they contain the signature, address and telephone number of the writer. Deadline for submission is noon Monday. Names will be withheld upon request. We reserve the right to edit letters for brevity, clarity and libel.

Paying campaign costs?

While it has been the practice of Commerce's board to act only with the vote-approved support of the people, the township has proven through its actions against Proposal A that it can act independently.

The wording that appears on the Homestead Exemption Affidavits clearly spells out a positive form of reinforcement for taxpayers seeking a reduction in assessments. And we support this opposition to the affidavits in their current form.

Ideally, if the affidavits were issued following the May 19 election there would be nothing extraordinary about them. In fact, if they were issued following the election there would be no need to include such disclaimers - which not-so-subliminally suggest a vote for Proposal A is a vote for lower taxation.

While many of Commerce's officials openly express their disdain for the tax relief package the governor has presented, their actions exceed their intentions. Voters must retain their freedom of choice without governmental inducement prior to the deciding of an issue.

And beyond all of the rumblings from the state that deadlines must be met, Public Act 6 of 1981 spells out the answer: Local governments will be given added time to handle summer tax collections if Proposal A passes.

So why the need for early mailings?

The state continues to claim failure to meet May 22 deadlines will mean failure to accommodate summer tax collections.

Clearly, municipalities should be prepared to handle such mailings to their residents. It saves time and allows those nearby homeowners a local office to direct their questions. But the inclusion of promotional lines on such an affidavit rubs up too close to campaign literature.

If the people of the state of Michigan are to decide the fate of Proposal A, they should not be asked to finance support for the passage of it involuntarily.

Not all voters will go in and pull the "yes" levers on May 19. To those that vote against Proposal A, we owe the ability to freely cast a "no" ballot without forcibly financing the opposing view.

And to all who enter the voting booth, we owe the highest standards that American freedoms were based upon - a choice that is neither tampered with nor pre-determined by the very government that will enforce the issue.

. . . A page for your expressions and ours

The image sent flocks of starry-eyed people to journalism school. Many, most in fact, are fine additions to the profession. Newspapering has been enriched enormously — more people means a stronger labor pool.

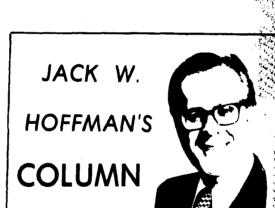

But within that flock of good reporters there are others, just as talented, just as competitive, just as well-trained. But they missed the point. They do it not for love of the business, not to serve the public or feel useful, not to try to change anything, but for personal glory. They don't really want to write for newspapers. They want to be written about in newspapers. Reporters too often are allowed to become bigger than the events they cover. That is wrong. It has nothing to do with news. It has little to do with reality. The problem is most-often seen in television news, where the parallel is more striking, but what I'm talking about goes on in the newspaper business, too, more and more as we try to compete for people's attention. It's Hollywood's star system, and we can and should be rid of

Because celebrity means media coverage. And media coverage of its own people is little more than public masturbation. The press has been on an immense ego trip for nearly a decade. We all love that "Lou Grant" image, we bask in the respect that shows in the eyes of strangers when we say, "I'm a reporter."

Three things bother me about the state tax proposal that will appear on the May 19

First, it's as complicated as my federal income tax form. In fact it's so unclear that angry Commerce Township officials are demanding interpretations by the state attorney general.

What's more, if it is passed the taxpayer benefits only if he files a affidavit with the state.

Second, the highly promoted tax cut is suspect to say the least. I'm reminded of the pirate who tells his prisoner he has carved a magnificent wooden peg for him and then adds, "Now I must hack off one of your legs so you can wear it."

Third, and this is the one that really bothers me, the proposal is strongly opposed by the Michigan Education Association and others of similar ilk.

On the one hand I'm afraid the proposal isn't much of a tax cut and yet, on the other hand, if the teachers' union opposes it maybe there is a savings in it for us. Any time the MEA pumps money into a tax campaign you can be pretty sure the motive isn't to protect taxpayers' pocketbooks.

Two things can be said in its favor: it's the best state proposal on the ballot ... and it's probably the best we can ever expect to be authored by state government.

Although I haven't made up my mind yet, I'm inclined to go along with it temporarily until something better comes along. But hoping for something better down the pike may be wishful thinking. My gut feeling is that if it's approved the increased sales tax will be here to stay.

So like a lot of folks I'm still weighing my options, certain only that (1) if I vote "yes" it won't be because I think the proposal is the salvation its proponents claim it is, and (2) if I vote "no" it won't be because I share the concern of the teachers' union.

Industrial sub breaks ground

Groundbreaking ceremonies for Novi's third industrial park were held last week. The Ten-Novi Industrial Park is slated for development on a 16-acre parcel near the northeast corner of Ten Mile and Novi Road.

William Ditzhazy, owner and developer of the park, said installation of utilities will begin this week and the first lots should be ready for development by June 1. According to Ditzhazy's tentative timetable, the first buildings should be ready for occupancy as early as September of this year. "I'm a firm believer in the Bernard Barouch theory — the time to build is when times are bad," said Ditzhazy, who is owner of Ditzhazy, Associates, Inc., a general contracting firm based in Livonia. "Not only are construction prices lower when the economy is lagging, but you also can get better contractors - forward-looking people who can see an improved economy around the corner. "I also feel that at this juncture in time the Michigan economy has just got to be turning around," he continued. "I feel the state government will be making some additional reforms in its tax tion, etc." The Ten-Novi Industrial Park contains 17 parcels, but Ditzhazy said there will be fewer than 17 individual buildings because several of the lots will be combined.

For example, the four largest lots in the industrial subdivision will be combined to permit construction of two "condominium-type" light industrial buildings.

Ditzhazy said the "condominium-type" buildings are utilized frequently in industrial subdivisions in California, Texas and Arizona because it is cheaper to construct one large building with several tenants than several smaller buildings with individual tenants.

Construction of two 28,000 square-foot industrial buildings on the four large lots is scheduled to begin in June. The buildings will be available for lease in September, Ditzhazy said. Construction of two additional 14,000 square-foot buildings is tentatively slated to begin shortly thereafter, he added.

Ditzhazy estimated that the park under full development will employ approximately 170 people and have a total value of between $9-10 million.

Soft music and candlelight. Breathing perfumed air while the moon shines silvery outside the walls of the decorated ballroom. Corsages crushed between dancing bodies, swaying together, twirling together, lingering near after the throbbin music winds down. Silky dresses and stiff, pressed suits and tuxedos. Familiarity blends with the nysterious newness of friends and acou wrapped in unusual clothing. Tightening hearts, innocence and intrigue - and romance, romance, romance

It's going to be perfect, the night of the senior prom. The night that comes just once in a lifetime and is recorded for posterity on film by so many cameras. Smile, smell the carefully matched flowers and say cheese. Flash! Pop! Oh, just one more picture. Then — finally — out the door and into the clean car, borrowed and washed for the occasion. Driving through the dusk, small talking somewhat hazily while the mind tries to file away every ounce of the evening, and finally arriving — un-fashionably on time — at The Prom.

They'll all be there of course. Not just the seniors. not just the class couple, not just the incrowd. Everyone. All looking clean-scrubbed and carefully polished, all waltzing on tiptoes and barely breathing as they break into the big time with this all-important, very grown up dance, the prom. Look, there's the captain of the football team, looking big and brawny as ever with his favorite cheerleader on his arm. No pleated skirt and letter sweater for her tonight: she looks almost like someone you'd want to know, more sensitive and real than she's ever appeared at school. Over there's the class president - oh, and look at her date! He's the guy who hangs out in the library all the time; didn't think he'd ever come off his bookshelf, but there he is out dancing. Can you believe it? There's the school tough girl. She had her hair done and she's all dolled up in one of those Scarlett O'Hara-type dresses, somehow looking strangely vulnerable. Of course she came with her tough-guy boyfriend, but even he looks handsome tonight. And, he's not a bad dancer, either.

And all these other kids - nice people but the kind that just don't seem to run with any particular crowd. They're all here, with starry eyes watching as they absorb the feel of the night.

But that's the way the prom is. If not the great equalizer, certainly something similar. Everyone is breaking new ground, finding the hidden stranger within themselves as the anticipation of the prom finally breaks with the arrival of the night

Coffee? Yes, please. (How very grown up!) The waiters return with their trays, whisk away the smeared dishes, hoist up their load and vanish. The music resumes and the dancing begins in earnest. Aiready over

But here you are ... and here's your date. Dancing together, managing to avoid stepping on toes, and so far you haven't even bumped into another pair. It seems to be getting easier and so you relax ust a little bit.

Suddenly, all the other people in the room, all the people you see every day in school, all the people you'll see Monday morning on the school bus or after the first bell, suddenly all fall away. Voices and music become a dull roar in your ears while your try to penetrate and reach down into your escort's mind.

You wonder what your date is thinking, you wonder if he's feeling the intensity of the evening as much as you are, you wonder if you'll ever know what he's thinking about right now — this moment, this night, this prom.

But you realize you won't be able to reach that depth of understanding tonight, simply because it is prom night. There's no time for complexity, only for measuring and logging every possible memory. And you know that feelings like what you're feeling now — what you've been preparing to feel for weeks and weeks — just can't translate into words, it's something that stays locked inside, although that pounding heart beating on the inside of your chest tells you the emotions are trying to get out.

No time, no time. It's nearing midnight and the band is getting ready for the last song of the night - the one song anyone with an ounce of romance has to dance to. You do. And just when you're praying the music will never end, it does, and the band says, "Thank you. Have a nice night," and begins packing up.

So you leave the dance floor, but very slowly, wander back to your table where people are milling around, dreading to walk out the door and put an end to the evening.

Finally, there's just nothing else to be done; you have to leave. And on the way home you think about it, already remembering the details.

There's no in-between at the prom. Either all the fragments, all the seconds of the night will mesh together beautifully or it will all be wrong. It'll never be remembered as anything other than "(sigh) It was perfect" or "(sigh) It wasn't perfect."

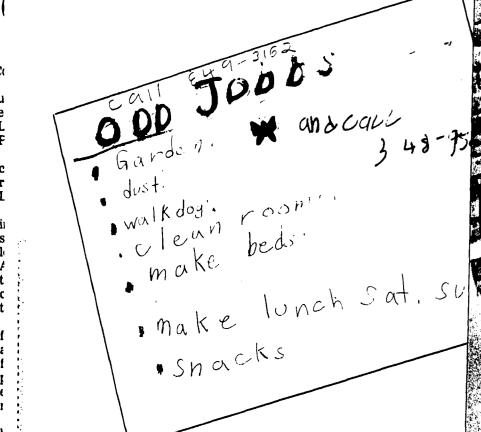

But you know the night of your prom, it's going to be right, absolutely right, perfect. And, of course it will be. And, of course it was.

Dave Sherwood, Mark Wagner and Kyle Chura were responsible for negating Northville's strength in the distance events. Sherwood (4:50) and Wagner (4:51.1) finished two-three in the mile, while Chura broke up a Northville sweep in the two mile by finishing second with a time of 10:30. Cindy Spear started with two wins

Spear takes two firsts, but Novi girls succumb

Wanted: Females attending Novi High School to compete on the girls' track team. Applicants must be hard-working individuals who are willing to perform

Such is the call for help by Novi Girls' Track Coach Laurie Stasiak. The young Wildcat coach watched her team fall victim to the numbers game again Thursday, as the locals were totally "outmanned" and out-talented in their 100-23

Once again exhausted from competing in a number of activities, Novi was no match for the perennially strong Bulldogs. Only a couple of first-place efforts by the Wildcats' Cindy Spear brightened the day. "They didn't give up, I'll say that," Stasiak commented of her troops after their Kensington Valley Conference record slipped to 0-2. "We knew Brighton would be tough; we were outnumbered about 60 to 10. But the girls were spirited, and they tried their hardest. "That's all I ask. And when you have only 10 people, you can't ask much."

Stasiak certainly couldn't have asked for more from Spear, a transfer who was a state class runner at Petoskey last year. The senior, performing for the first time ever for the Wildcats, turned in respective times of 13.6 and 29.1 in winning the 100 and 200-meter dashes. Even more impressive is the fact that Spear had previously been on the shelf with tendonitis in her knees.

Also impressive were the showings of Deanna Huotari and Amy Traynor, each of whom picked up four points apiece with a second and third-place finish. Huotari stopped the timer at 6:11.3 in the 1600-meter (mile) run to achieve runner-up status, then added a third-place 13:47.9 in the two-mile. Traynor captured second in the 200-meter low hurdles (34.6) and third in the 100-meter Novi's other second-place effort came from Krista Borsvold, who clocked in at 2:43.6 in the 800-meter run. The Wildcats' remaining point-getters were Jenny Christman (26-3 in the shot put) and Molly MacEachern (1:08.4 in the 400-

Novi tennis team gains revenge by blanking Chelsea

Don't try telling the Novi tennis team that one match is essentially the same as the next. The Wildcats, who had been convincingly defeated in three consecutive 6-1 defeats the previous week, were an entirely different team against Chelsea last Tuesday. The result? Novi 7, he Bulldogs 0. "We really needed this one after what had been nappening," Wildcat Coach Dave Haywood said after his charges notched their second win of the spring. "Chelsea only has two or three players returning from last year's team, but we felt like we played well." Sparking the whitewashing of the Bulldogs was Mike Rice, Novi's number one singles player who won in his first match of the year. The senior, who had sustained a broken arm in an automobile accident a few months ago, breezed to a pair of 6-1 deci-

Rice's return pushed the other Wildcat netters down a notch in Haywood's lineup, and the advantages of the strengthened lineup were obvious. Filino Samson scored an easy 6-0, 6-1 triumph at second singles; number three man Dean Marshall prevailed, 6-4 and 6-1; and Greg McComas rode to a -1, 6-0 win at fourth singles.

In fact, only the first doubles team of Mike Fritz and Dave Ruttan (6-4, 3-6, 6-1) were forced to go three sets. Jim Lunden and Mike McKay posted a 7-6. 6-2 win at second doubles, while the third doubles tandem of Rusty Benoit and Eric Henderson had it the easiest (6-0, 6-0).

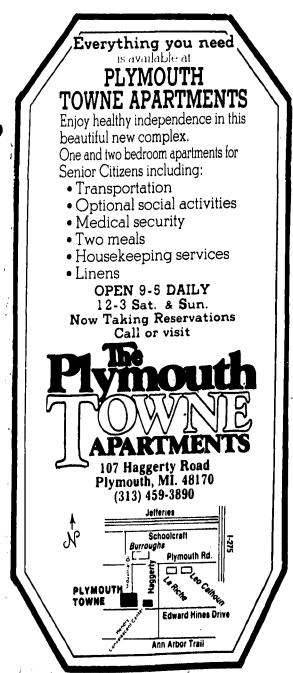

"That's basically going to be our lineup," Haywood said after the win. "We've been looking to go with a set lineup all spring...maybe, though, 'll have to make some doubles adjustments yet." That final comment was prompted by Novi's 4-3 loss at Ann Arbor Greenhills Thursday, as the Wildcats' second and third doubles teams came up empty. The match, which stood 3-3 when Henderson and Benoit took to the courts, went to Greenhills when that pair fell to a three-set defeat. Fritz and Ruttan was the only Novi doubles duo to win, capturing a 6-4, 6-1 verdict. Rice (7-5, 6-1) and McComas (6-4, 6-3) also came out on top in singles play.

Haywood, who praised Rice, McComas, Fritz and Ruttan for winning twice last week, is hoping for his team's first Kensington Valley Conference victory in four tries when Novi travels to Hartland today (Wednesday). The 'Cats then meet their second straight KVC foe at Brighton Thursday.

Sign-up deadline nears for league

Boys and girls in the Walled Lake area are reminded that the final sign-up for the Walled Lake Little League's junior (aged 13), senior (ages 14-15) and big league (ages 16-18) divisions will be held tomorrow (Thursday) from 7-9 p.m. at the Richardson Community Center. The center is located at 1485 Oakley Park Road, opposite Walled Lake Central High School.

This is the last chance for area teens to play in this year's league. All players who sign up will be assigned to teams by means of a player tryout. For further information, please contact Chuck Bonar at 624-1132.

lingo really means Believe it or not, some people out there don't think that baseball is

What that baseball

the greatest thing to come along since sliced bread. The disbelievers claim that too much is made of what is essentially a game, that other facets of life should be assigned a higher priority. Besides, many skeptics contend, the sport is impossible to understand. That's the argument that's most annoying; sometimes it seems as if those people don't really want to grasp what's going on. What could be more simple than a game where the object is to hit the ball and safely advance as many bases as possible? After all, you've doubtless seen ballplayers try to articulate on television. With most of them, that amounts to a spit here, a grunt there and a quick scratch who knows where. If they can figure out this little boy's game, where does that leave you? The object of the non-baseball fan's confusion is easy to determine, of course. They try to read an account of a ballgame in the newspaper or listen to a sportscaster talk about baseball -- usually in language so technical or slang that it almost qualifies as foreign — and hang it up right there. That's perfectly understandable, too.

Therefore, merely as an act of benevolence and nothing else, the time is ripe to offer translations for what at times seems to be an unending flow of sports jargon. This paragraph also serves as a warning to REID CREAGER quit reading while you're ahead.

Suicide squeeze — No, it's not when a batter tries to bunt for a hit with a runner barreling in from third base. It's what happens when you're a sportswriter or a sportscaster who has indulged in too many hot dogs and beers, and you can't get your pants zipped in the morning, Twinbill - This at first glance seems to translate to doubleheader, but it actually describes what you're left holding when your dinner companion decides that she'd rather go home with someone else than spend a dutch treat date with you.

Hot corner — The old term for third base? Nah. It's the name for the intersection downtown that attracts some of the seedier clientele. Clean-up position — Some think it means the fourth spot in the batting order; others visualize it as the people who sweep the stadium after the game. In reality, though, this is a term that can be used in all sports. It's simply the position a person occupies when he or she bets heavily against any Detroit team.

Seventh-inning stretch — Sorry, but this doesn't refer to the time in the ballgame when the fans stand and limber up their muscles. It refers to when you get bored enough with the game to gamble with the old "pretend to stretch and then put your arm around her" trick. Intentional walk - Of course it's not the deliberate throwing of four pitches away from the strike zone. It's what you take when the old "pretend to stretch and then put your arm around her" trick results in a slap in the face.

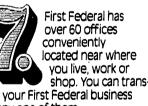

Grand slam — A home run with the bases loaded? Wrong. It's what you give a guy who gets overly friendly in the mens' room. Baltimore chop — If you think this is a ball that's sharply hit with a downward swing, you're wrong one final time. It's what you give people who write columns like this one.
