Novi's distinguished citizen whips up a batch of cookies

Michigan Volunteer Leader

Governor cites Cindy Hoops

"They're for the band concert tonight," said Cindy Hoops, pulling a tray of oatmeal cookies from the oven in the kitchen of her Village Oaks home. "My daughter asked me to bake cookies for the band concert and I didn't have anything else to do so I said I

She pulled a tray from the cupboard, loaded it with a dozen cookies and gave it to The News' photographer to carry back to the people at the office.

It was business as usual for Cindy Hoops — always

When she volunteered to bake cookies for her daughter's band concert, it wasn't because she "didn't have anything else to do" that day. It was because she "didn't have anything else to do" that day between noon

The rest of the day was pretty much taken up with a host of volunteer activities that carry her all the way from Pontiac to Ann Arbor — with numerous stops in between. Mrs. Hoops' contributions to her community and state were recognized recently by Governor William Milliken who named her as one of the recipients of the Volunteer Leadership Award. The award is presented annually to 10 citizens across the state who are selected on the basis of outstanding service to their communities in a strictly volunteer capacity.

She was nominated for the honor by the Novi Michigan Week Committee. Specifically, Mrs. Hoops was cited for her efforts in promoting cultural activities and bringing a sampling of cultural activities into Novi and its neighboring com-Within Novi, she was a founder of the Novi Choralaires and the Novi Foundation for the Performing Arts which regularly awards summer camp scholarship to talented young students in the arts.

Through her association with the Foundation, she has been instrumental in bringing to Novi such groups as the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, The Hogue Youth Symphony Orchestra from the Netherlands, the Wilhelmshaven Youth Chamber Orchestra from West Germany and the Youth Band of Rauma from Finland.

Her efforts in promoting cultural activities have not been limited to Novi, however. She serves on the board of directors of the Livonia Youth Symphony, is publicity chairperson of the Oakland Youth Symphony and is publicity chairperson and an officer of the Michigan Youth Symphony at the University of Michigan in Ann Ar-

She also is a registered nurse and volunteers her time regularly to work at the United Foundation's Health-oramas or serve as a first-aid instructor at the schools.

She's also a member of the Friends of the Novi Library and a member of the Founders Society at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Her involvement in these activities is not limited to being a figurehead, either.

When she starts a project, she sees it through from start to finish. For example, when she organized a chamber music concert with members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in Novi a couple of years ago, she not only made all the arrangements, she also handled the publicity, sold tickets at the door, baked cookies for an after-glow and even transported some of the instruments in the back of the family van.

The next morning, she reloaded the van and carted the instruments to the site of the next concert.

Typically, she was surprised — and a little bewildered - to learn that she had been selected by the governor as one of Michigan's top ten volunteer leaders in 1981. "I don't believe it," she said. "There've got to be lots of people who do more than I do. I really don't do that much.

"I just try to keep busy and live a complete life." "Maybe that's why I don't think I deserve this award. All we do is stay busy.

"How can you get an award for staying busy?" She pulled another tray of cookies from the oven and headed out the door for her 3:30 p.m. appointment - helping the middle school band get ready for its concert that evening. At 4:30 p.m. she had to take another son to his bassoon lesson.

And coming up at 7:30 p.m. was, of course, the middle school concert - complete with homemade oatmeal cookies, compliments of Cindy Hoops.

Memorial parade features bands

This year's parade will begin at 10 a.m. in front of the Goat Farm Tavern and proceed down Novi Road to the Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens at Twelve Mile.

The Novi high school and middle school bands will provide the marching

Plans now call for the parade to include at least three floats, although the Jaycees say it's not too late for additional entrants.

Mrs. Michigan, Sally Peters, will be on hand and there also will be cars from the 50s and 60s era traveling along the parade route, according to Jaycee Terry Roberts.

Also participating in the parade to honor those individuals who have served their country in the Armed Services will be the Novi VFW Post, Novi American Legion, American Legion Auxiliary and the Blue Star Mothers.

Prizes will be awarded for the best decorated float and the best decorated bike. The theme for this year's parade is 'The Year of the Space Shuttle.'

All participants will receive free ice cream at Gala Days following the parade. Free merry-go-round rides also will be offered for youngsters who participate in the parade. Novi Gala Days coincides with Memorial Day weekend this year. Gala Days will be held at Ella Mae Power Park on Ten Mile.

Any groups or individuals interested in participating in the parade should call Ray Brown at 349-7148 or the Novi Jaycees hotline at 348-NOVI.

Council incumbents to run for re-election

By KATHY JENNINGS

The shape of this year's Novi City Council race is becoming clearer as the deadline for filing nominating petitions approaches.

Three four-year terms on the council are up for grabs this year, and with Mayor Romaine Roethel bowing out to serve as national president of the American Legion Auxiliary the twoyear mayoral seat also will be vacant.

Incumbent council members, who initially indicated they were unsure as to whether they would seek re-election, have now announced intentions to run.

Nominating petitions for Council Member Guy Smith were taken out last week. Smith confirmed Monday he intends to seek re-election. He said he now believes he will have enough time to handle the responsibilities of the city council, a concern which initially delayed his decision to enter the race.

"I'm looking forward to an exciting, interesting and exciting campaign,' Smith said. "I think there are issues out there that will be elaborated on as the campaign goes on." He also noted that he has had a number of inquiries regarding his candidacy and those he has talked to have agreed with his "bottom line approach to local problems" so he has decided to proceed with his can-

Smith was first elected to the council in 1977. He is seeking election to his second four-year term.

Council Member Ronald Watson took out nominating petitions Tuesday. Watson said he now has resolved those questions which originally left him undecided about whether to seek reelection. "It's a serious decision to make a committment for another four years," Watson said..

He went on to explain that in weighing whether to run again a person considers what he has accomplished and tasks that remain unfinished.

"I'm anxious to get on with some of that work. I think my contribution has been significant and as members of the council have worked together the efforts we have put in have brought us a long way toward establishing a policy of careful, prudent and responsible growth. I'd like to continue attempting to develop that policy," Watson said.

He explained the city has the advantage of being a desirable community and the council has used that advantage to seek higher quality development. Ordinances, resolutions, policies and the way the council has conducted itself at the table are among the "imaginative and progressive" ways the council has sought higher quality development, Watson said.

Watson is seeking his second fouryear term on the Novi City Council. Incumbent Council Member Patricia Karevich announced in April that she intends to run for reelection.

Meanwhile, in the mayor's race, two candidates have filed their nominating petitions.

Martha Hoyer and John Roethel both turned in petitions Monday — the first day the nominating petitions were accepted by the city clerk. Hoyer has been a council member for the past six years. She served on the planning board for two years and was elected to a three-month council term in a special election in 1975. She has since been elected to two four-year terms. Roethel has served as a member of the Novi Planning Board and the Zoning Board of Appeals. He was appointed to the plan board in 1971 and served until 1976 when he accepted an appointment to the appeals board. He rejoined the planning board in 1978. Roethel has been chairman six of the nine years he has served on the planning board. Robert Schmid also has indicated an interest in running for mayor. Schmid was first elected to the council in 1975 and was re-elected to a four-year term

Those still wishing to file nominating petitions for election have until June 5: Prospective candidates must have 100 valid signatures to have their names placed on the ballot. Candidates also can have their names placed on the City sets public hearing on revised sign ordinance to offer their opinions on proposed revisions to the Novi sign ordinance at a public hearing Wednesday, March 27, in the Novi Public Library at 8 p.m.

The council is trying to determine whether any problem areas in the sign ordinance have been overlooked as the document was redrafted.

Proposed revisions do not substantially ease the city's current standards, instead they primarily resolve conflicting portions of the ordinance. The ordinance also has been rewritten in an attempt to make it easier to read.

One of the more drastic changes in the proposed revisions is that pole signs which currently can be up to 30-feet tall would be limited to five feet in height. However, the size of those signs has been increased from 100 square feet to 200 square feet under the proposed revi-

Other proposed changes include: • business center signs can display the name of the center, but not individual stores. Further, the signs would be allowed only where at least four stores are grouped together;

business community have been asked — center will be allowed one wall sign and — isting—businesses—would have—to—be an identification sign on its rear en-

 "sold" markers would be allowed on real estate signs; • signs for items or services sold seasonally, such as home-grown produce, would be allowed in-season: • temporary signs would be allowed for current promotions if they are not illuminated: • permits would be required in order to post a sign announcing community events such as school activities; and, • members of the planning board would be responsible for reviewing signs at site plan approval.

One requirement of the city's sign ordinance which has prompted many requests for variances has been the requirement that wall signs be limited to 24-square feet. It has been recommended that there be no change in that requirement.

New commercial and industrial businesses within the community would have to conform with the requirements following its adoption if the council

Residents and members of the each store or business within a decides to go that route. Signs of exbrought into conformance as they alter

Work on revisions to the sign ordinance has been ongoing for more than a year. Members of the city's ordinance review committee have seen five drafts of the proposal.

Council members also are expected to field questions regarding the proposed "Criteria Ordinance."

Under provisions of the proposed ordinance, the council would have the authority to apply different criteria to developers requesting "special privileges" than developers seeking routine site plan approvals. "Special privileges" are defined as such things as a liquor license, liquor license transfer, economic development financing and industrial revenue bonds. General aesthetics, green belt plans, the quality of building materials and the manner in which a development harmonizes with surrounding land uses would be some of the "criteria" considered by the council as it reviews applications for "special privileges."

Further assessment appeals filed, but work proceeds in Section 15

Work is moving ahead on the construction of streets, water mains and storm sewers in Section 15 despite the fact that eight of 21 assessments in the area have been appealed to the Michigan Tax Tribunal.

Section 15 is located on the west side of Novi Road in the regional center area across from Twelve Oaks Mall.

The Ford Motor Company, which owns the Lincoln Mercury dealership; Art Van Furniture; William Bowman and three other property owners have joined the Dixon Road Group and Novi 12 Associates in appealling their special assessments to the tribunal. The Dixon Road Group and Novi-12 Associates announced in April that they were asking the tax tribunal to reverse the city's determination that utilities are needed in Section 15.

Depending on the outcome of the appeals, Novi hopes to sell an estimated $7 million worth of bonds which property owners in Section 15 would pay off through special assessments over the next 15 years. The bond payments carry an 8 percent interest rate.

It is estimated that construction costs will run approximately $6.2 million -$4.4 million for roads, $1.3 million for storm sewers and nearly $500,000 for the water system.

The appeal to the tax tribunal will not slow the project until it comes time to sell the bonds, according to City Manager Edward Kriewall.

He said the city already has gone out to bid on the massive public improvement project and bids are due June 4. Appraisal of the property is now proceeding. The city must purchase rightof-way and easements in order to proceed with the construction of streets, water mains and storm sewers.

"We're proceeding as though this were still a 'go' project," Kriewall said. He noted that once the bids have been submitted, the bonding resolution will be adjusted to reflect the construction costs, right-of-way costs and legal expenses involved in the project.

The bonding resolution will then be forwarded to the state finance commis-

Kriewall said he expects approximately a three to four month delay at that point. A complete application before the state finance commission cannot be filed until the issues before the state tax tribunal are resolved, he explained.

"Until this all goes though the tax tribunal, we can't get the bond sale approved by the finance commission," said the city manager.

Like mother, like sister The name "Yuhn" has almost become synonymous with Walled Lake Western girls' track over the past several years. Well, don't let it slip too far from memory because nine-year-old Colleen looks ready to take older sister Judy's place in a few years. Colleen (above left) captured the fourth grade one mile run in a special race at the Stafford Relays May 9. Walled Lake raises budget, lowers taxes

Walled Lake's City Council unanimously approved the 1981-82 fiscal year budget and in the process increased its operating budget while dropping the millage rate.

Council members gave their approval to a $3.05-million budget, an increase from the $2.6-million 1980-81 budget. But at the same time, city officials dropped the operating millage from 19.414 mills to 17.556. The total adopted city tax rate means residents will pay about $17.55 for each $1,000 of state equalized value (SEV) on their property. The millage rate equates to the lowest since Walled

Tuesday morning CURB went to the polls, both to vote and to influence voters. Co-organizer Paulette McKesson kept the tempo going with another apearance in Lansing yesterday afternoon. This time, she spoke to a group for Emil Jordan, another anti-tax protester from Nashville. But whatever the outcome of Proposal A, McKesson said that CURB would continue its fight.

seeking to recall Senator Douglas Ross (D-15th District), according to secretary of the recall group Ann Tomczyk. With voters flocking to the polls to determine the fate of Proposal A throughout the Oakland County area, members of the Committee to Recall Senator Ross positioned themselves at voting areas looking for signatures to bolster their cause and force the freshman senator from office. Tomczyk verified Monday that Tuesday's elecrange," Tomczyk observed Monday of the election day drive. "We also feel Proposal A has to go down. If it fails, then we have not as good a stand." Tomczyk further indicated that approval of Proposal A in Ross' district would prove that he was in fact representing his constituents by supporting the tax reform package. Much of the recall committee's basis for seeking to recall Ross has balanced upon the senator's endorsement of Proposal A, after earlier telling a large rally he would

Passage of Proposal A could spell the end of the line for the recall drive. Tomczyk confirmed regarding termination of the recall attempt that "we certainly have given it consideration." But she added that "a substantial number of signatures" even with approval of Proposal A in Ross' district could keep the drive alive.

"I think the two go together," Tomczyk predicted the correlation she expected between signatures and the fate of Proposal A. Tomczyk admitted that the group has had a difficult time recording the precise number of signatures already collected. The petitions are being handed on from one person to another creating a chain — and along with it some confusion about where the petitions are and who should submit the numbers already attained.

To date, Tomczyk could only signatures, those sitting in her home collected by she and her husband Robert, who heads the com-six months ago.

Commerce Clerk Robert McGee noted Monday that Huron Valley Schools understood the board's decision not to take official action regarding the request unless further pressed by the school district. In April, Commerce Supervisor

Robert Long observed that the Walled Lake Consolidated School District made a similar request of the township and was denied. "Walled Lake did request this in November," Long said. "It was turned down by a large majority." Over 64 percent of those voting in the November general election let their view of split school tax collection be known. By a 4,710 to 2,595, margin, township voters soundly defeated the proposal.

The question asked by Commerce was general enough to apply to the Huron Valley Schools as well: "Shall to the school districts is that it would eliminate the need to borrow money the charter township of Commerce, if and thereby eliminate the corresponrequested by a school district, collect ding interest payments.

School officials last year claimed the problem with the current system of tax collection is that the school year begins in July and that 80 percent of the funding needed to operate the district doesn't even begin rolling in until January. In Walled Lake, the schools borrow money to meet expenses during the first half of each school year. For example, during the present school year, the district had to borrow $6.5 million in anticipation of property tax revenues and interest payments on the loan were approximated at $250,000.

Through the eyes of a mayor who has seen his community grow over the past 22 years, the City of Novi is developing along the right track. Mayor Leonard Haggerty of Roseville was honorary mayor in Novi Monday during mayor's exchange day - the kickoff event for Michigan

And as far as Haggerty is concerned Novi is "doing everything right.' "Your mayor and city council are doing an excellent job for the citizens of Novi, you have a top notch city manager and your planning commission is doing a tremendous job," Haggerty said. He noted that during his 22 years on the Roseville city council he has seen his community go through many of the same things Novi is now experiencing. "We've had our paving programs, and put in sidewalks and sewers. Roseville is 90 to 95 percent developed. We've made mistakes that they're not making here. It looks like Novi is on the right road," Haggerty said. He said one particular area the taxpayers of Novi should appreciate is the savings they realize because of the city's volunteer fire department. "We have a fulltime fire department and it's a tremendous drain on the taxpayers. A volunteer department saves so many thousands of dollars and they're are so dedicated that the community gets good coverage," Haggerty said.

He also approved of the manner in which the city is being developed. Haggerty praised plans to revise the city's sign ordinance and the manner in which the city has been zoned for specific land uses.

"Certain parts of the city have been set aside for heavy commercial and light industrial development. Those businesses will provide the tax base to support the residential areas and they aren't located where they interfere with the homeowners who want a residential area.'

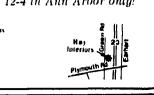

For Haggerty, who formerly only knew of Novi as an exit sign on I-96, it was a surprise to find a 'charming community." He also was impressed with the city's potential.

"You have 32 square miles and so much undeveloped land. It's exciting — there really is so much to be done here," Haggerty said. laggerty was accompanied by Roseville Council Members Richard De Klerk and Mary Matuja as

Novi planners near answer to industrial use dilemma

Novi's Planning Board is hopeful that it has come up with a tentative solution to the problems associated with implementing its master plan along the Grand River/I-96 industrial corridor. In essence, the proposed solution involves implementing the master plan by rezoning industrial property from 1-2 (general industrial) to 1-1 (light industrial) and amending the zoning ordinance to permit outside storage in the I-1 districts. The proposed solution was outlined by Planning Board Chairman Donald Gleason at a special study session Monday. The planners are stated to discuss Gleason's proposal further at their meeting tonight (Wednesday) in the Novi Public Library at 7:30

Novi planners are in the midst of a series of public hearings to consider the rezoning of industrial property in the Grand River/I-96 corridor to bring it into conformance with the new master plan which was adopted in December. One of the major changes in the new master plan is an attempt to reorient the city's industrial property from a general (I-2) to a light (I-1) configura-The rationale behind the reorientation is that Novi currently has an imbalance of general industrial zoning. Specifically, some 1,300 acres of the city's 2,100 acres of industrial property is currently zoned I-2. City Planning Consultant Charles Cairns has said that most suburban communities feel the orientation should be reversed with light industrial property exceeding the amount of general A second objective in the proposed reorientation is to "clean up" the city's appearance by eliminating outdoor storage in the high visibility areas along Grand River and the I-96 expressway. Outside storage is permitted in the 1-2 districts and prohibited under the I-1 classification. Efforts to implement the reorientation of industrial property as proposed in the master plan have met strong resistance from existing in-

Their objections basically have been twofold. First, they maintain that outside storage is essential to their operations and the loss of outside storage privileges will force them to move from the

An additional objection is that changing their zoning designations from I-2 to I-1 will make them non-conforming uses (uses not in compliance with the zoning ordinance) and therefore prevent them from expanding since it is illegal to expand a non-

Several industrial property owners have threatened to initiate legal action against the city if the proposed rezonings are approved. The planners have been attempting to develop a solution that will permit them to implement the master plan by rezoning the Grand River/I-96 corridor to a light industrial orientation, while, at the same time, permitting existing businesses to continue their operations. Although the planners have looked at a series of proposed solutions which range all the way from proceeding with the rezonings to terminating any rezoning action which will affect an existing use, the proposal set forth by Gleason on Monday appears to have the most support at the present time. Specifically, Gleason has proposed a two-part solution to the problem: (1) revise the zoning ordinance to permit outside storage in the I-1 district. and, (2) rezone all the property to the I-1 classifica-

A key to Gleason's proposal is the development of tough new screening requirements for outdoor storage in the I-1 district.

Gleason said that industrial uses which presently exist would be permitted to continue as conforming uses as long as they meet the screening requirements spelled out in the present I-2 ordinance. All new uses, however, would have to comply with "tough, new screening requirements" which will be developed for outside storage in the I-1

According to Gleason's proposal, the new screening requirements would be so extensive that they would be "almost opaque." "I would like to see new screening requirements which are so extensive that new businesses would apply for them only when outside storage is ab-

Alternatives seen for road paving

Walled Lake's City Council was to be offered two alternatives for upgrading East Walled Lake Drive at its meeting last night, after our press time. Estimates were prepared by Johnson & Anderson, city engineers, for improving East Walled Lake Drive between Ferland and Fourteen Mile. The two alternatives scheduled to be offered to council were: (a) widen East Walled Lake Drive and place a bituminous wearing course for $140,000 or (b) merely placing a bituminous wearing course over the existing width at a $100,000 price tag.

The city engineers recommended to council in a two-page letter that "in its deliberation of the subiect improvements, consider widening the surfacing a minor amount (approximately 4 feet). This additional width will be effective in reducing damage to the outer areas of the pavement and an improvement to existing traffic problems."

Both alternatives include minor shoulder work and striping of the centerline. Johnson & Anderson noted that the improvements along approximately 3,350 feet of the drive "do not consider any substantial amount of storm drainage correction along the

The grant would operate on a 75/25 split with the city picking up the lesser amount, according to a past report by Mayor Gaspare LaMarca. Walled Lake would extract $40,000 from its $122,000 road fund to cover its end of the $160,000 grant.

A side benefit to the proposal, Gleason continued, is that existing uses would have to make certain that they are meeting the present screening reuirements for the I-2 district. Any existing industry which does not meet the existing screening requirements would be considered a "nonconforming" use. City Attorney David Fried pointed out that the requirement would do no more than force compliance with existing standards. How well Gleason's proposal will be received by the existing industrial residents remains to be seen. The planners, meanwhile, are hopeful that they have made progress in their efforts to implement the master plan (by rezoning the Grand River/I-96 corridor to light industrial) with a minimal amount of damage to existing businesses.

As We See It

City-wide financing for city-wide system

om's city council has taken weeks and months ahead. The positive action to implement a city-wide water system.

The council last week voted 5-1 to direct the city engineers to prepare a cost estimate for a study to develop a city-wide water system. If the cost estimate is deemed reasonable, the council is expected to authorize the engineers to proceed with the project.

Council Member Dennis Andrews deserves a good share of the credit for perceiving the problems confronting the city if the water system is not improved and forcing some positive action.

Despite warnings about the inadequacy of the present system from the State Department of Health, Oakland County Department of Public Works and Wixom Fire Chief George Spencer, the council had appeared somewhat reluctant to tackle the problem until Andrews outlined the potential ramifications at last week's

The council's apparent reluctance to face the problem directly before last week is somewhat understandable.

There is no question that the city is about to embark on a capital improvement program of considerable expense. The prospect of asking taxpayers to finance the improvements when their current water supply needs are generally being met adetely and the economic climate is unfavorable is not an attractive proposition — particularly during an election year.

Nevertheless, the council has perceived its responsibilities and stepped forward to meet them.

The truth of the matter is that the difficult decisions still lie ahead. Specifically, the critical question involves how the capital improvement program will be

It's a question which will be the subject of considerable — and

After several delays, Wix- probably heated — debate in the debate appears likely to narrow down to a choice between special assessments versus an ad

Unfortunately, there are valid arguments on both sides of the issue. Proponents of the special assessment method argue that residents should only be asked to pay when they receive a direct benefit from the project.

Proponents of the ad valorem method take a different view that everyone ultimately will benefit from the development of the water system and the economic impact on any one individual should be minimized by spreading the cost at any one time over as many people as

In other words, I'll help you pay for your water main now and you'll help me pay for my water

Although the arguments of the special assessment proponents are valid, we believe the city would be further ahead by establishing the ad valorem precedent for implementing the city-wide water system.

The ad valorem approach to funding public improvements has been utilized successfully in virtually all surrounding communities, including Novi and Commerce Township.

As Council Member William Wyllie stated: "There is no method of funding the improvements which is totally fair to everyone at all times."

We concur with his suggestion that the best way to approach the financing of the proposed project is to spread the cost over the entire city so that the impact to each individual citizen can be minimized. As the city continues to grow, the cost hopefully will be further reduced in the future as the cost of additional improvements are spread over a larger number of people.

Mounting evidence

It was bound to happen sooner or later - Wixom has asked to be included in the facilities planning for the Huron Valley wastewater treatment system or, as it is popularly known, super

Mayor Lillian Spencer submitted the request to the Wayne County DPW, which is coordinating the feasibility study, on the advice of City Engineer James Hubbell of the firm of Hubbell, Roth and Clark, Inc.

Mayor Spencer made the request after Hubbell determined that joining the Huron Valley system is the most cost-effective means of dealing with the city's existing sewage treatment pro-

To refresh your memory, the so-called "northern" tier of communities — Northville, Northville Township, Novi, Walled Lake and Commerce Township — were included in the original super sewer planning up until 1978 when the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency decided that they should be deleted from the area to be served by the regional sewer

Wayne County and local officials objected strongly to the EPA recommendation and eventually forged a compromise which permitted the Wayne County DPW to re-study the advisability of adding the northern communities to the regional system. That study, which was authorized in 1980, is expected to be finished by November 1 of this

Although it may be hazardous to make any predictions as to what the EPA will do this time around, we remain convinced of the wisdom of extending the Huron Valley System to the northern communities.

While the new study is taking place, Wixom as well as the Ford Motor Company's Wixom Assembly Plant and the Village of Milford have been ordered by the Michigan DNR to make substantial improvements to their wastewater treatment facilities because of a serious eutrophication problem which is threatening Kent Lake — perhaps the largest recreational facility in southeast Michigan.

At the same time, Novi officials have been cautioned by the county health department of potential pollution problems associated with septic tanks failures in several subdivisions on the city's west side.

The Huron Valley System remains today as the most costeffective solution to the problems being experienced by Wixom, Novi and numerous other communities. Sadly, the same was true three years ago when the EPA decided that the northern communities should be excluded from the regional sewer system. There's nothing that can be done about the loss of three years' time. Hopefully, the EPA will heed the increasing problems which have surfaced since their ill-fated recommendation in 1978 and not make the same mistake this time around.

After the fact

By PHIL JEROME

Jack Hoffman Sliger Home Newspapers

Dear Jack: As you are well aware, you have been my boss for the past 10 years now and I confess that I enjoy working for you — always have and sincerely hope that the arrangement will continue for many years to come. However, a situation has come to my attention recently that I wish you would take steps to correct even though you may not particularly like what I have to

It seems that some of those Northville officials to the south are attempting to "steal" some of our prime developments.

Okay, I'll admit that "steal" might not be the correct word. After all, Novi is Novi and Northville is Northville and there really isn't any way those folks down there in Northville can take away our tax base as long as it is constructed up here in Novi. What I'm talking about is this: Kathy Jennings reports rumors that "officials to the south" are attempting to extend their zip codes across Eight Mile into our Novi territory. Of course, there's no real advantage to them by doing that, but I can understand why they might try it.

Our Echo Valley subdivision, which is a pretty nice sub, already has a Northville zip code even though there's no doubt about the fact that it's located in Novi. And now, according to the rumors, "officials to the south" are trying to extend their zip code over onto the Orchard Hill Place Office Park development on the northwest corner of Eight Mile and Haggerty Road.

Why would they try to do such a thing if there's no advantage to them in terms of tax base and no disadvantage to them in terms of maintenance respon-The answer is simple. By fiddling with the zip codes, they're trying to upgrade their image by making it appear that some of our spanking new, high-class office development in Novi is really a part of Northville. This isn't the first time this kind of thing has happened. Take our Echo Valley, Brookland Farms, Connemara Hills and North Hills Estates subdivisions as examples.

I sat quietly while that mayor down in Northville, I think his name is Paul Vernon, attended our planning board and city council meetings to speak out against a proposed convenience commercial shopping center in Novi at the curve on Eight Mile near Griswold Road. I thought Mr. Vernon made some good points and, basically, I agreed with him. We want to be good neighbors up here in Novi and if a convenience shopping center within one mile of their lovely downtown area jeopardizes the viability of a well-established central business district, I think we ought to cooperate.

The thing that disturbed me about Vernon's beautiful speeches was that — at least according to the rumors he was attempting to convince the developers of that convenience center to locate in Northville at the same time he was telling everyone in Novi that they shouldn't be at the Eight Mile/Griswold Road location.

In conclusion, let me reiterate that these are only rumors. I mention them only because such things have happened before and I can see the very real possibility that they could be happening again. If you can check them out and report back, I would be most grateful. If there's any truth to them, I also would be most grateful if you could exert any influence you might have with the responsible parties to make them cease and desist. I see nothing wrong with attempts by "officials to the south" to upgrade their image by making it appear that part of Novi is a part of Northville by manipulating the zip codes. The only thing is that it's about time those officials realize they should attempt to establish their own identity instead of taking credit for what we're doing up

> I remain (hopefully). You're obedient employee, G. Philip Jerome

Budding time

Union officials are calling it a PR move. And perhaps it is. But the proposal by the Howell school board to open all future school labor negotiations to the public is a good one.

"Fish bowl negotiations," which have worked remarkably well in Florida for years, should be incorporated in school districts throughout Michigan.

Three years ago a resolution backing open negotiations was defeated by a single vote of the Michigan Association of School Boards. That resolution, had it been enacted into law by the legislature, would have permitted open negotations if one party — either the school board or the union — requested it.

Presently, both parties must agree to open negotiations. Thus, in Howell's case, if the union rejects the concept (as probably will happen) it cannot be implemented.

Unlike negotiations in the private sector, where the public must be content with the decision of management and labor, the public - which supplies the money negotiators are spending — does not have a choice of buying elsewhere if it is dissatisfied with settlements in the public sector.

In Northville where the concept was rejected by a 4-3 vote of the school board in 1978, the chief negotiator for the board contended the district had secured "good settlements" in private and that open negotiations would have served no good purpose. Perhaps they were "good settlements," but the public the employer - will never know for sure because the costly contracts were hammered Especially grating to us was his observation that the public, if present at negotiations. might "misinterpret" the various strategies, role playing and bluffing that marks collective bargaining. It's another way of saying the public is not intelligent enough to understand the intricacies of bargaining. It's a posture taken by far too many selfimportant public officials. We happen to believe the public is equipped with the same brain matter as administrators...or union 56405 Grand River New Hudson representatives.

Wolverine Lake sailor puts dream-boat in water at last

For four years he's been working on his boat: limbing up and down ladders propped against the 26-foot craft armed with tools, engine parts and beer cans. He built his own boiler tank, recreated teamboat is afloat, you can be certain it's not going to spend the better part of the summer tied up at Ed and Rita Klavitter's dock. He stokes up the engine whenever he can and hugs around Wolverine Lake in his steamboat like a natural sailor. Hadden, a cheerful captain, has dready toured the lake seven or eight times. Conversing about what is certainly Wolverine Lake's only turn-of-the-century steamboat, Hadden talks a mean machinist's language about all the engine parts, torque and pitch of the propeller — touches he knows about after installing everything in his boat. The Wolverine Lake Village resident also owns a machine shop on Haggerty

The 12-horsepower engine Hadden placed in the boat runs on "drain oil," the stuff you let out of your car when changing the oil. It is, says Hadden, a cheap source of fuel and filling his steamengine's fuel tank with it is a great way to get rid of The engine — an impressive piece of machinery with valves, handles and glass guages — is "interesting to watch," according to Hadden. All the more so after four years of poking around with it, he admits. Despite it's solid construction, Hadden's steamboat is not much on speed. It's more of a leisure for the engine to build up enough steam to get the boat running.

But Hadden doesn't care about speed. "It's not the kind of boat you can just turn a key and go for a ride with," he admits. "You've got to watch the steam, you've got to watch the guages.
"It's not fast, but it's a lot of fun. At least I can miles) an hour. And it takes at least half an hour

Hadden, a member of an antique engine-lovers club, found the hull of the boat several years ago in somebody's yard in Canada. After spotting it "in the corner of my eye," Hadden approached the

Smokestack detail

It was probably the best deal he got on the steamover the past few years on the boat, and suggests it's probably a good thing he doesn't. Says he: "If I'd started keeping receipts, I'd have given up a long time ago. I've got piles of stuff I've taken out engine he decided was too big for the small around the turn of the century and says he has tried o maintain that atmosphere as he rebuilt the boat. Some things, however, he decided had to be more modern than the original boat would have used. All his lights, for instance are electrically operated, ather than running on kerosene or oil. Hadden decided historical authenticity wasn't worth the risk of setting the boat on fire due to an accident

The bilge pump, which spits extra water out of the boat's belly, also is electrically operated. simple concept: the fuel is lit and while burning it heats up the water, which is stored in a pine boile ladden built. When the water is hot enough to turn to steam, the pressure from the hot water forces a piston to turn the boat's propeller, which sends the A bit of excess steam is let off every time Hadden toots the steam whistle that sits next to the boat's mokestack, which Hadden has adorned with a cartoon of Popeye and his slogan, ''I am wat I am.'' Hadden picked up the engine from ''a guy who is even wierder than I am." Although it was covered with rust when he got it, there wasn't a speck of rust inside the engine and it cleaned up beautifully Hadden says. It was once used to power a Stanley

The captain is obviously proud of his handiwork. The ship's engine is built 'probably at least five times better than it has to be," he says. But, it sounds like it's worth it to construct the iteam engine with extra care. "Oh, every now and then people blow themselves up with these things," he states off-handedly. "That's why the Coast Guard watches them so carefully." It's also a reason why Hadden can't charge for rides, which he'll give to almost anyone who asks. But that doesn't make much difference to him. After all, fuel's cheap, there's a lot of lake to cover yet this summer and the boat's barely gotten And after waiting four years to get his boat in the water, Hadden has all the time in the world to operate his steamboat. The ride may not be fast, but the joy lasts a long time.

Q. Can some types of food cause decay?

A. Sugar contained in some foods is a primary cause of tooth decay, but the combination of sugar and plaque is deadly. Plaque plus sugar equals acid which eats away at tooth enamel. The first twenty minutes after eating surgary food is when the greatest damage occurs, and the longer the sugar remains in the mouth the more likely decay. Some of the worst offenders are candy. cookies, ice cream, jams, and soft drinks. Good substitutes are, cheese, nuts, sunflower seeds, and fruit juices.

Learning

with care

A love of babies might come naturally but knowing how to handle emergencies as a babysitter doesn't. That's why the Novi Jaycee Auxiliary and Novi Community Education Department put together a babysitting clinic to help area girls learn what to do when they're responsible for younger children. Recently, Bill Conn (far left) of the Novi Fire Department talked about emergencies to girls in the class. Listening carefully is Alicia Hahn, flanked by Sandy Hersh (left) and Jessie Klix (right). Police Chief Lee BeGole also was on hand to talk to the girls. (Photos by Steve Fecht)

Five years ago, low tar MERIT sparked a whole new era in smoking by delivering taste way out of proportion to tar.

Until MERIT, no low tar cigarette had been able to prove it could match the taste of higher tar brands.

Millions Endorse MERIT Taste

Switching studies confirm it. 90% of smokers switching to MERIT are coming directly from higher tar cigarettes.

Fact: Since its introduction, MERIT has gained more smokers than any other low tar brand!

Land of the artists

The drive between Saugatuck, a charming turn of the century resort with a great beach, and Rockford, home of the world famous line of Hush Pupples shoes on the Rogue River, isn't much more than an hour, but an increasing number of vacationers are making the trip to Michigan's meccas for aspiring and master craftsmen and artists. Saugatuck was first settled in 1830 as a small trading post and began developing into a resort community in 1870. Within 30 years the artists and their models began to "summer" there because "of the wonderful environment for the artist," according to one early visitor.

In 1906, John C. Johansen of the Chicago Art Institute set up the first art school in Saugatuck. He was later joined by others who bought an old hotel out at Ox-Bow Lagoon and established the Ox-Bow Summer School of Painting. Ox-Bow still exists, and teaches the same fresh approach to art brought to the area by its Chicago Institute best known for his Grand Canyon canvases, and his wife, Cristina, whose floral paintings are popular throughout the United States. Other painters come from studios in other states to rest and paint in the summer, many opening summertime galleries.

Today, many artists are permanent residents. and artists of all kinds abound in the summer. There are four arts and crafts shows and one juried show each summer, for artists and craftsmen from all over the country

Whereas the arts in Saugatuck "just growed" like topsy, the arts and crafts movement in Rockford is largely the development of a group of art-minded, public spirited citizens who know a good thing when

The Rockford Area Arts Commission was the result of a cooperative effort of the school district and the community to put on an arts festival in 1975. When the festival was a blg success, the group decided that the burgeon ing interest in the arts should be expanded into an agency for the arts within the community. With the help of the National Endowment for the Arts, and the Michigan Council for the Arts, a group of hardworking Rockford residents brought Squires Street Square into reality, a community of arts and crafts people in a restored village of century-old buildings.

industry's first 1982 models. "The EXP and LN7 — the lowest-priced two-seat sporty cars available to American buyers - are so well-equipped that they will be offered in only one series and with a very short list of available optional equipment," said Philip E. Benton, Jr., vice president of Sales Operations for the Ford Motor Company.

Business

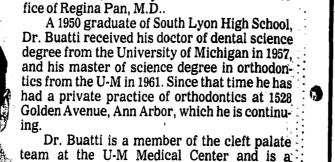

Standard equipment on both cars includes power brakes, full instrumentation, rack-and-pinion steering, fully independent rear suspension, an AM radio, an electric rear-window defroster, interval windshield wipers, reclining bucket seats and halogen headlamps. Benton said the higher-priced LN7 will have a unique bubbleback third door and additional standard equipment including low-back bucket seats, wider bodyside moldings, smoked taillamps, an electric liftgate release, a digital clock and dual outside mirrors.

"Introduction of the EXP and LN7 assures continuation of showroom traffic and excitement being generated now by extension of 10 percent rebates on selected car lines and special value promotions that run through the balance of the model year," said Benton. "These are California kinds of cars — highly-styled two-seaters."

the first affordable two-seaters ever offered to American buyers. "Their prices put them in the heart of the price spectrum and n. ake them very competitive with sporty cars such as the Toyota Ceilea, Honda Prelude and Datson 200SX. Since these three Japanese cars alone account for 20 percent of the small specialty segment, you can see the EXP and LN7 will be key weapons in our fight to roll back imports and get the domestic industry rolling again."

Benton said the EXP and LN7 - Ford's first two-seaters since the classic 1955-57 Thunderbirds are aimed at the singles, youth and womens markets. He pointed out that one-third of all new car buyers are single, both young and old; better than four out of 10 Americans are under 35 years old and have increasing economic clout; and women — who make up 42 percent of the workforce — buy 40 percent of all new cars.

They're calling it the "K mart of the Eighties." What it is is a new approach to merchandising that the folks who brought you the Blue Light specials hope will help them capture a larger share of the retail dollar during the next decade. The "new look" was on display when the new

89,842 square foot K mart store on West Oaks Drive in Novi was opened May 14. The Novi store, according to K mart officials, is one of the first in the central United States to incorporate the company's new approach to merchandising and interior design in the 1980s. Michael Wellman, director of planning and research, said the new approach was developed after K mart officials asked themselves if their approach was "rough around the edges — are we in tune with the 80s?

"We decided that our basic philosophy of quality merchandise at lower prices was not out of date, but that we had to do something to improve our appearance and upgrade our image," he said. "We've captured a customer who initially was interested primarily in value. Now, as the income levels of our basic customer continue to rise, we want to keep him as a customer by offering him the type of merchandise which he now is able to af-

Added Robert E. Dewar, chairman of the executive and finance committees: "We wanted our customers to expand their K mart market baskets to include more goods. An additional factor in K mart's decision to update its approach to merchandising relates to the significant growth the nation's second leading retailer has achieved over the past decade.

REAL ESTATE ONE. Incorporated, sales associates received more than $360,000 in bonuses for the sales volume they generated in in 1980. They are pictured as they were honored at a recent annual awards banquet the company held at the Detroit Plaza Hotel, attended by more than 800 Real Estate One sales associates, managers and their spouses. Also on hand were the sales associates from the company's Central Florida, Greater Kansas City and Metro St. Louis operations who were responsible for the highest 1980 sales volume for their respective operations. Real Estate One previously reported a sales

In addition to its company-owned resiential real estate and training operations in the Midwest and South, the company has commercial, investment and insurance subsidiaries and a franchise network located throughout GRASS GUARD Corporation of Brighton has just developed and is now marketing its new lawn care product, Grass Guard. Grass Guard lines the bottom of a fence, eliminating backbreaking trimming while beautifying the lawn. In addition, according to Patrick McHugh, "it helps prevent small animals from digging and crawling under your fence, and requires no special tools for installation.'

Made of urable, resiliant polyethylene, it sells for approximately $1 a linear foot, and is available at local hardware stores and lawn care supply outlets. It comes in grass green, which blends easily with the Questions? Write to Attorney Larry Korn, c/o Sliger-Livingston Publicathville, Michigan 48167. Questions will be answered on a space-available basis.

Q. I have a tenant who never pays his ent on time. How can I make him pay

A. Go to the district court in which our tenant resides and obtain a 30 day notice to terminate tenancy. Personally hand this 30 day notice to your tenant. I that is inconvenient, mail the notice to terminate tenancy by first class mail. Tell your tenant that you will give him one more opportunity to pay the rent on the day that the rent is due. Then next time he is late, file a new 30 day notice to terminate tenancy, and this time start suit for restitution of premises. You cannot collect any rent during this

On the 31st day after the notice was served, go to the district court and obain a complaint for restitution of premises and a summons. Pay the filing fee. The court clerk will give you a court date. Appear in court on that date and tell the judge that you want your property restored back to your possession. The judge will then give the tenant 10 days to vacate or appeal.

Q. I was a student at college at only 19 years of age. I attempted to pet with a girl who said no when I thought she meant yes. She filed a complaint with the police department. It was a very embarrassing experience, and I was found guilty of assault and battery.

I am now married, have a family and have a good job. The arrest and conviction bothers me and is very embarrassing because I have to state that I was arrested and convicted when making applications for employment and/or promotions. I am not a rapist. I am not even a great lover. I was just a poor salesman. Is there any way that I can wipe out this blot on my otherwise good record and reputation?

A. Yes. Retain an attorney to file a motion for a new trial. In a situation such as yours where you were only 19 and found guilty of a misdemeanor, the Michigan statute provides that when review of your record is made, the convicting judge may grant you a new trial and dismiss the complaint, if you have had a good record without any convictions from the date that you were found

Q. I was married to my husband three weeks ago. Two weeks after we were married, I discovered that he was a paranoid schizophrenic personality. He had been hospitalized at the Veterans Administration several times previous to his recent commitment. Can this

A. A marriage in Michigan may be annulled on the grounds of fraud or concealment of a physical disability. See an attorney immediately. Since you now have knowledge of the fraud or physical disability, you must not cohabit with your husband any longer. By cohabiting with him, you may waive your right to an annulment of your mar-

I cry for those who cannot see The beauty of a growing tree, Or see the dew drops sparkling bright In the first glow of morning light, Or see the sun as it hangs high In the deep blue of the sky. For these I cry.

I cry for those who cannot hear The bird songs falling sweet and clear, Or hear the laughter of a child A mother's voice so loving, mild Or hear the murmur of a brook Meandering through a shady nook. For these I cry.

I cry for those who cannot feel A lover's arms around them steal, Or feel the warmth of friendships true The strength that comes from friendships too. Or feel the satisfaction of A long and strong enduring love. For these I cry.

I cry for those who cannot sense A human life's preciousness Or see the need of loving care For human beings everywhere, Or sense the gifts that we must give That others too may also live. For these I cry.

I cry for those whose eyes are closed By blindness that is self imposed, For those whose ears are unaware Of nature's music everywhere, For those whose own self interest Defeats the act of friendliness, For those who cannot sacrifice That all God's creatures might have life. For these especially I cry.

"Of course, my dear, of course He has!" And the bands that bound my heart and the weight lifted.

the sun came out, and,

God — give us the faith of a child to guide us!

The years marched by the shrouds of grief and sorrow And the child of my child came to me and took my rough hand in her sweet baby's hand and smiled up at me with childish faith and love and lifted,

Father

I had you only a short time God took you from me when I was nine

In my eyes you were everything good I loved you as much as anyone could I at least had a taste of a "Father's Love"

Before you were reclaimed from God above You were my friend and playmate Oh Daddy you were great!

You would put me upon your knee Or took me to the park to swing and slide

Oh how often I dream back in time To the years before I was nine You were my "Big Protector"

You were also my learning instructor You taught me to be strong You taught me right from wrong

One thing you neglected to do That was how to say "Good Bye" to you I would give up everything in the world Just to hear you call me "your little girl"

The day will come — I must patiently wait When we will meet again at Heaven's Gate.

NOVI-WALLED LAKE NEWS

Burke, Buttazzoni are regional champions

Western finishes eighth

When you're good enough to be a regional champion, it's never a fluke. But just in case anyone's skeptical of the track talents of Walled Lake Western's Angelo Buttazzoni and Paul Burke, Warrior Coach John Fundukian has some cold hard facts to jar you back to reality.

Specifically, Buttazzoni hurled the shot put 53 feet, 914 inches to easily top the 16-team Class A regional field Saturday. Teammate Burke long-jumped 22-7, taking a regional title and breaking his own school record by two feet, three in-

"These are just two outstanding athletes," Fundukian noted after his team had finished eighth with 22 points. "Angelo won easily — the next closest person was at 49-11 — and it wasn't just on one good put, either. He went over 52 feet

As for Burke, "Funk" observed that his senior jumping ace "was in the same range" on three jumps. Burke was also in on the locals' other placing effort, combining with Jim Latimer, Bruce Martin and Chuck Brown for a fifth-place 440-yard relay finish of 44.94. Western, which also received a strong 10:11 time by freshman Kyle Chura in the 3200-meter run, nonetheless finished far behind meet winner Ann Arbor Huron (103½ points). Ann Arbor Pioneer's 79 points were good for second place, while Plymouth Salem was third with 62. Assuming that the regional field was impressed with Western's team Saturday - particularly with Burke and Buttazzoni - Livonia Churchill must have been in awe after Buttazzoni was in on four firsts and Burke three during a Western Six Conference clash three days earlier. That superb effort couldn't push the hometowners over the top, however, as the Chargers displayed superior depth in a 72-60 dual meet victory.

Most noteworthy was the fact that Buttazzoni managed to be a part of wins in two field events and two running activities, showcasing a rare combination of strength and speed. Western's senior athlete extraordinnaire took the shot put and discus with respective throws of 52-5 and 142-4, and captured the 440-yard dash in 54.6 seconds. Buttazzoni also teamed with Martin, Brown and Mike O'Brien to grab the 880 relay in 1:36.7. Meanwhile, Burke copped individual wins in the 100-yard dash (10.34, just edging out teammate Latimer at 10.35) and the long jump (20-21/2). He also conributed to a winning 440 relay effort of 45.8 that included Latimer, Martin and Also prevailing against the perennial W-6 mainstays was Chura, who finished the two-mile in 10:31.48. Aldo Buttazzoni (5-10 high jump) and Paul Imms (16.4 in the 120-yard high hurdles) took seconds. "We did a good job," Fundukian opined despite the fact that his team dropped its third dual meet of the year against six wins. "On paper, they (the Chargers) were probably predictably 10 or 20 points better. "We had 55 points already with three events still left. But we just couldn't do t (get past 66 points, which guarantees a win)." Despite the conference setback, Western still has an opportunity to get evenge when it travels to the league meet — at Churchill, ironically — Monday. Dual meet records within the conference don't count toward the final W-6

Late-inning dramatics highlight Novi twinbill sweep

If the Novi baseball team falls short in its quest for the 1981 Kensington Valley Conference baseball title, no one will be able to second-guess Wildcat Coach Bob Weinburger for playing things to close to the vest. Just ask the Pinckney

Novi wrote the Pirates' KVC obituary last Tuesday with a 6-5, 2-1 sweep, and in each instance the visiting team was sabotaged by Novi subterfuge. Gary Phillips squeezed home the winning run in the eighth inning of the opener, while Jim Chickowski stole home with two outs in the bottom of the seventh to decide

However, as is often the case with close ballgames, they usually even out And sadly, that proved true Saturday when Novi picked the most inopportune time — the eighth inning of a state tournament game — to collapse defensively in a 7-6 loss to Fenton.

Even more frustarting was the fact that the Wildcats had every chance to put the game on ice long before the ill-fated eighth. Novi stole seven bases, received six walks, collected eight hits and benefitted from five errors, but had to rally After Weinburger's charges had accomplished exactly that by tying the score

But back to the late-inning heroics against Pinckney. In game one, with the score tied at 5-5, Mike Sarkissian led off the eighth inning with a double. After Weber sacrificed him to third, Phillips followed with the squeeze that eased the Pirates off the plank.

Phillips' clutch tap made a winner of Bryan Armstrong (1-2), who hurled 4 2-3 strong innings in relief of — ironically Phillips himself. The junior allowed

Novi lacked such offense in game two — managing only one hit — but pulled out the win as Weinburger and Chickowski teamed to outfox Pinckney pitcher Scott Eno. The Wildcat senior had reached base after forcing starter and winner Pete Gavalis, who had reached base on an error. Chickowski then stole second and advanced to third on a ground out, setting up the dramatic climax. "Chickowski looked over at me when he got to third, and I said (to myself), 'We might as well give it a try,'" the Novi skipper said. "As long as he wanted to give it a shot, I was game.' Chickowski, who had been studying Eno's motion all day, then took off as the pitcher took a long time to deliver the ball. And it wasn't even close at the plate. The two clubs had traded single runs earlier, as Novi opened the scoring in the first inning on an RBI single by Paul Deline — the team's only hit.

Shell, Cooper felled as Hawks pound Western

The time-worn adage that "Nothing lasts forever" finally came to pass last week for Randy Shell and Greg Cooper.

The Walled Lake Western second doubles team, which had previously been unbeaten in six meets, finally met their match last Wednesday as the Warriors dropped their second 7-0 decision of the season to Western Six Conference champion Farmington Harrison. Only singles ace Mike Sacco and the first doubles duo of Gary Waymire and Jeff Dine had any kind of success against the

"They're just a tremendous team," Western Coach Noah Gregory said of the Hawks. "It's no wonder they're state-bound, along with Cranbrook. We just couldn't touch them." The Warriors had a similarly difficult time of it Saturday in the Class A regionals, as only Waymire and Dine made it to the finals. They dropped a 6-1, 6-1 decision to Rochester to end any title hopes.

"Although we didn't come away with any regional champions, we played very well," Gregory summarized of the 15-team competition. "We were fifth, and that's not bad when you consider the number of quality players and teams Western, which saw a home date with Waterford Mott washed away by rain Thursday, was slated to take on conference foe Livonia Churchill Monday, after want to sit around and unwind after a hard day or week—they want action. One person who isn't longing for action on Friday nights, even though he spends hours looking for it, is Rich Ziegler. A Wixom policeman, Ziegler frequently patrols the streets, subdivisions and parks of the small municipality on

Most of the time, not much happens on Friday nights on the beat. In fact sometimes nothing happens at all. No burglaries. No hold-ups. No assaults. No thefts. No family fights. No speeders. No train violations. Nothing.

Of course, that's really good news. Ziegler is quick to point out that nobody-the Wixom Police Department included-wants Wixom to be swarming with robbers, drunk drivers and other problems on Fridays or any other night of the week. After all, most Wixom policemen live in Wixom themselves: hey like to go home to a safe place, too. Actually, it's rare that Wixom is so quiet that nothing at all happens. But it can be boring to work late on Fridays. Time drags slowly some nights when there are two officers simultaneously patrolling different parts of the city, both scanning very quiet streets.

And believe it or not, the midnight shift usually turns up even less. Says Ziegler: "If you think this is dull, midnights are terribly dull.'

Ziegler is a man who spent seven years as a Detroit cop, a man who was trained as a police cadet during the 1967 riots, a man who has seen more action in those few years than most people see in a lifetime. So how does a man like that adjust to cruising around Wixom all night looking for offenders and turning up...nothing?

"It took me quite a while to adjust to the slower pace of life when I first came out here," Ziegler admits

"But police work, it seems to me, is a eflection of the community you're workng in." he explains. "People out here don't want and don't require the type of protection they do in Detroit. The enronment you are working in does affect

The pace is certainly slower in Wixom han in Detroit and that is as it should

THE REAL PROPERTY OF THE PARTY OF THE PARTY

Those are the sentiments of be, Ziegler says. In fact, he notes that just about everybody in the only one homicide, which stemmed from a family fight, has taken place in Wixom two armed hold-ups in that time. When he worked in Detroit as a cop, he says, there were usually two or three such incidents every night But Ziegler has found that he doesn't really miss all of that. He doesn't miss the brutality or the escalating string of crimes, many of which were never solved. Here he does a lot of follow-up work

RICH ZIEGLER

Text by Karen Rice. Photographs by on individual cases himself, something only detectives handle at larger stations. In Wixom, there aren't enough detectives to absorb all the follow-up work that needs to be done

Since coming to Wixom, Ziegler has chosen to put his efforts into educating citizens and preventing crime when he can. A sensitive man in his mid-30s. Ziegler is the entire Wixom crime ning shift, Ziegler spends time planning prevent theft, rape and other violent crimes. He talks to elementary school students about being aware of strangers and counsels them on refusing rides and candy from people they don't know. He frequently finds himself talking to people filing complaints against tough children and runaway teenagers.

He has gotten to know many of the area residents; he is also familiar with local trouble-makers. His three children attend school in the city and he knows most Wixom merchants.

Ziegler likes Wixom, but admits he misses working the streets with a part ner, something that helped make the slow hours interesting and the hection times more bearable

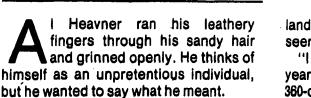

There is a lot of stress involved in be ing a policeman, something that's no always easy to shrug off at the end of the day. Being the bad guy who pulls over drivers and issues tickets, or being the person who always responds to pro blems puts police in a delicate situation says Ziegler. He feels the way mos policemen learn to cope with potentially dangerous situations and tense moments is by disassociating their per sonal views from their professional responses. That also helps keep some objectivity when Ziegler needs to repri mand careless drivers who turn out to be neighbors or acquaintences Such psychological discipline isn always necessary. One Friday night i Wixom, for example, Ziegler cited a driver for speeding, gave out a defective equipment ticket to a driver whose muf fler fell off on a busy road, helped some teenagers get their car out of a ditch and answered a call from a mother upset about local youngsters bullying her

Those types of runs don't presen many psychological dilemmas for experienced officers like Ziegler, but they are representative of what late nigh cruising turns up

Working in a small town like Wixom i volves far more than being a hard-nosed cop says Ziegler. He can't just sit in sheltered spots waiting for speeding drivers to set off his radar. As a police of ficer he needs to be alert concerned and ready for action at any time Even late on Friday nights

Heavner at home outdoors

"If I could survive without a roof over my head, I would. If it's outdoors I love it," he said, his eyes obviously concen-

Heavner, 35, stands at just five feet, seven inches and weighs 140 pounds, but he's tall in individualism and adventurism. He's the kind of person who might pass a mountain peak and decide on the spur of the moment to climb it. Though he lives and works in Milford, his home is all of nature, and someday Heavner would like to "find a woman who is as crazy as I am" and move to 40 acres in the wilderness in northern Michigan and live off the land.

Through most of the summer and until the snow disappears in early spring, Heavner manages a canoe and crosscountry ski business southeast of Milford on the Huron River.

Text by Kurt Madden. Photograph by Steve Fecht.

But when the season is over, Heavner climbs on his motorcycle and disappears for weeks at a time. He might be headed for the most primitive regions of northern Canada, or he might be on his way to his favorite oasis in nature—the Adirondacks, a mountain range in the Appalachians in northeastern New York

Heavner does whatever it takes to disappear in the wilderness. He owns three motorcycles, he's an ardent mountain climber and he has an enormous appetite for backpacking.

"I go to the Adirondacks in up-state New York because they are far more accessible than the Rockies and because there isn't the problem with breathing that you have at higher elevations," he

"I also prefer the Adirondacks to the Smokey Mountains in Tennessee and North Carolina because the Smokies are too commercialized and too accessible to people," he went on.

Heavner and his 10-year-old mutt "Princess" have traveled throughout the United States. Together they have crossed creeks, hiked through craggy mountain passes, siept under the moonlight and viewed eagles, raccoons, bears and

There is a sublime sensation to be literally out of touch with what the average man sees as civilization, Heavner insists. And he thinks that motorcycling is the only way to travel in lands where few motorized vehicles are

"I think I put on about 20,000 miles per year on my motorcycles. It gives you a 360-degree perspective on what you see...it's the only way to travel as far as I'm concerned, especially in the lands that I travel in." he said.

Heavner's love of outdoors was inspired by his father and mother. "They endured a lot together out in the wilderness. They could both be bonetired, cold and wet and yet they would find something nice to say about the situation...they truly loved to be outdoors." Heavner said.

"My father is in his 70s, but he still hikes a lot and he rides a bicycle every day in the morning," he added.

Heavner's stories about the wilderness reflect the deep, almost romantic and sometimes poetic attachment he nurtures for the out-of-doors and for the rugged individualism needed for survival in the wilderness.

Heavner recalls stopping temporarily along side a Canadian road one cold morning and seeing what he described as an "old, old man. He was blind, and he was being guided by two big Huskie dogs. He was rough and his language was rough, but I instantly liked him. He had been living by himself for a long time with no telephone, electricity or plumbing, and he seemed to be totally independent."

Heavner was traveling with his father in his father's camper in Arizona and saw a obelisk-like peak standing on the

"I told my Dad that I just had to climb that peak. He argued that there wasn't time, but I insisted. I took me about two hours, but I climbed to the top. I found a metal canister, and in the canister was a notebook and a pencil. A message was in the canister. It said that whoever climbed the mountain should put their names on the notebook and describe their thoughts.

"I wrote that I loved what I was seeing, but the experience was lonely because I wasn't sharing it with someone else.

"A couple of months later I received a letter from a girl who had climbed the mountain. She said she could understand what I was feeling...of course, I wrote her back right away, and we corresponded for a while, but I have never gotten back out to Arizona, and we never did meet each other."

Heavner is a great lover of nature, and he strongly believes man is slowly polluting nature until future generations will not even recognize what it means to be in the wilderness.

"Man is definitely infringing on nature." Heavner lamented. "I strongly

Couple collaborates on oldtime car

When some advertising writer laboring in the early '20s for Willys-Overland Corporation of Toledo, Ohio coined that phrase for the motive force within the Willys-Knight automobile, he probably didn't really expect a 1923 version of the car to be puttering around Michigan in 1981.

And it probably wouldn't have happened if not for the efforts of Bill and Linda McMillan of 450 Griswold in Northville. When the McMillans went looking for an old car as a hobby, they passed by the pristine Packards, clean Cadillacs and dazzling Duesenbergs and opted instead, not without prompting by their bankbook, to get the Willys.

Three of them in all. The blue 1923 Willys-Knight Touring Car they have had for six years followed a 1927 version they restored and sold and was followed by a 1928 four-door sedan that's in rough shape in the garage. A touring car has a soft-top.

One gets the impression soon after arriving at the McMillans' tidy brick ranch that car collecting is a joint venture. Bill and Linda McMillan are both listed under the line for "owner" in the placards the cars wear at car shows-unusual in a male-dominated hobby.

One dream of the old car hobbyist is to own an automobile which is restored to the state it was in when new, or nearly so. There is plenty of work left before either of the McMillans' flapper-era Willys can be said to meet that standard, but that also means plenty to enjoy while doing the work.

What remains to be done?

"Well, it (the touring car) needs a new top-the one on there now was put on about 30 years ago," Bill notes. "And it really needs new paint. We've been driving it so much."

In fact, Bill is ready to tear the '23 down to the frame and do it up proper.

The more mechanical aspects of restoring the cars are Bill's ballwick, Linda got into the act on the 1927 car's restoration, but has not yet been involved with the touring car work.

"When we stripped the first one down helped out and did the wheels and things like that," Linda says, "but I haven't done much to this one."

Text and photographs by Kevin Wilson.

Linda's smaller contribution to the touring car is readily explained. Caring for cars has taken a backseat to caring for children in the past six years. The McMillans have one girl and two boys-Jennifer, 9; Billy, 5; and Brian, 3. Besides, Linda has taken up collecting clothes and other items from the '20's, solely as a result of the old car hobby.

The wood spoke wheels Linda worked on, seemingly a minor part of restoration, are actually one of the most tedious jobs involved.

"You have to first of all strip off all the layers of paint put on by all the previous owners to get down to the natural finish," Bill explains. "That means using paint removers, and scraping and filling and sanding. You get into a lot of wood-

"And you have to make sure they're not warped any. If they are warped, you have to make what I call a steam box. steam the entire wheel, then press it between heavy weights for a week or Three of the wheels have had to be steamed straight so far, Bill says. Bill, who works for Realtron, a Redford computer firm, does much of the work on the car in his spare time, which is not terribly plentiful right now. He teaches a class in computer science at Marygrove College some nights. Other evenings are occupied with his own continuing

Many of the growing number of car collectors have experts do the work of erasing the wear and tear accumulated in over 50 years, but the McMillans take pride in doing the work themselves while keeping costs within reason.

Despite the advertising claim, Bill McMillan had to rebuild the engine "you will never wear out." To be fair, it wasn't guy in New York by the name of Earl Stidworn out, just badly in need of repair and worthy, who was a Willys-Overland fac-besides, the claim wasn't made until 1925 and it was the 1923 engine Bill had to

When he started tearing down the engine, he found it not difficult, but different from the more modern designs. The Knight part of the Willys-Knight name came from Charles Y. Knight, an English inventor who patented a sleevevalve engine design in 1908.

The Knight engine did away with the then-fragile system of camshaft, springs and valves in favor of two sleeves that slide between the piston and cylinder wall in such a way as to let in gasoline and expel exhaust.

But such engines have not been in vogue for nearly 50 years. Bill had to seek some expert advice to do the engine work himself. "What I did was, I got in touch with a tory trained mechanic back when, and he pointed out some of the finer points in assembly and disassembly for me," he explains.

Its silent operation and relative reliability led Willys-Overland to use Knight engines in its middle-priced Willys car (around $1,500 for the bottomline sedan in 1928 and, get this good-olddays believers, about the same for the top-line tourer five years earlier).

Many Knight engines burn more oil than standard ones, Bill says, but Stidworthy taught him a few tricks that keep his four-cylinder from blowing blue smoke, and it also is one of the quietest old car engines you're likely to find.

The rebuilt engine shows off its smooth running about twice a month during good weather and not just around the block either. The old Willys travels to car shows in Lansing, Howell and all around the Detroit area under its own power.

All that driving is the primary reason the touring car needs new paint, but the McMillans firmly believe saving an old car should include driving it around. Maintaining a museum-like "hands off" attitude would mean you might as well collect paintings or sculpture, they say.

They drove it to Dayton, Ohio once, on back roads; the trip took 131/2 hours oneway. Bill said he likes to get up early on a Sunday to get the papers and drive through downtown Northville. The older buildings and absence of modern cars sends him into historic revery.

The annual antique car show at Greenfield Village has become a regular event for the McMillans—the entire family dresses in 1920s clothes and makes a day of the show. Bill says he trailers the Willys to Dearborn lately because by the end of a full day, driving it home in the dark is not much fun.

Bill was the spark to create the Northville Antique Car Club a few years back, when he owned two of the cars the 10 founders had. Membership is now over 40 and a show/swap meet last summer drew nearly 150 cars to Northville

While many have flocked to car collecting as an investment, Bill says he is a hobbyist first, and doesn't really keep track of that aspect. Investors want perfect examples of classic marques. Hobbyists want interesting cars they can enjoy working on, studying and driving,

When your eyes aren't on the bottom line all the time, collecting can be satisfying outside the realm of the glamor names and cheaper to boot. And since much of the fun is in learning the history of automobiles, Bill notes, the less visible Willys and Overlands have just as much to offer.

There is a clique of early Willys afficiandos, who, Bill says, are a subgroup of collectors interested in the patented Knight sleeve-valve engine. Knight's name was appended to dozens of automobiles as part of patent agreements with as many companies. There were Handley-Knights, Russell-Knights, Stearns-Knights and others. Even Daimler, Mercedes, Nash and Hudson were to use the engine.

But Willys-Overland was the company to produce the most Knight-engined cars, which gives the car a sort of historical interest that overcomes the otherwise ordinary aspects. Styling, such as it was, of the 1923 car was fairly standard for its day, while the 1928 sedan speaks of a simpler time. It's a long way from computers back to a 1923 Willys-Knight. It's a good outlet."

"I like them," Linda adds. "They have charm that today's cars don't have. We all enjoy them."

They don't speak it, but when the McMillans' refer to a simpler time, there is something implied about family and community. With a Willys-Knight in the garage, plenty of places to go and friendly people to meet along the way, they have more than just an engine that will never wear out.

hours later, you're at a standstill on I-75 in a line of traffic waiting for the drawbridge at Zilwaukee to lower after a tall-masted sailboat glides by.

Local motorists who have fumed as they waited for pleasure craft and freighters to pass during the last 18 years can take heart—some of their skilled neighbors are working on the solu-

During the coming 28 months motorists still may find themselves in a line of cars halted as the Zilwaukee Bridge opens for a passing ship. But the demise of the state's major traffic bottleneck is in sight—a high-rise bridge is on the way.

Its construction is an international joint venture of a local firm, the Walter Toebe Construction Company of Wixom, and the Stevin Construction Company of The

When completed, it will be the world's largest precast concrete segmental bridge.

Building the soaring structure with precast concrete segments made on the site may not be typical construction in this country, but it has been done widely in Europe since World War II, explains Burton Stover of Northville, one of the four officer-owners of the Wixom company. His son Tom of Brighton is the firm's project manager on the site. Bill Curtis of Howell is joint venture project

The substructure work, the footings and piers, is being done by the Toebe company as part of a joint-bid contract of almost $77 million with the Dutch firm.

Concrete segments—1,656 of them weighing from 85 to 180 tons will make up the parallel bridge spans. A huge gantry crane 215 feet long with a 120-ton girder was constructed to move the segments.

These segments, Stover explains, will The contract from the Michigan be placed side by side like a loaf of bread Department of Transportation was and held together by epoxy and postawarded in October, 1979. could take the total cost over the $76.8 million bid. It was only with this provision that it would have been possible to bid the giant undertaking, Stover observes.

Plans to replace the bridge that at times has had traffic backed up as far as 20-30 miles have been talked about since 1967, but costs and discussion on what type of bridge to be built caused delays, Stover explains.

A voluntary program begun in 1970 has regulated demands for openings during peak travel periods and cut down on tieups such as the 1968 Labor Day jam, when traffic was stopped for four hours with lines stretching 56 miles.

Stover says work is progressing on schedule with completion slated for November, 1983.

He explains that the new bridge is to have two separate roadways side by side, not attached, with the northbound 8,066 feet long and southbound, 8,090. Part of the reason for the long span, he adds, is the requirement that grade increase be no more than three percent because of Michigan winter snow and

"No two are exactly alike," Stover continues, explaining the concrete castings created and cured in the building Stevin built on the site for the purpose. His company is handling the substructure portion of the project with Stevin precasting and erecting the segments.

The Toebe firm then will place the special latex surfacing on the bridge. "They've set up a beautiful plant," Stover comments as he tells how the segments are cast and steam-cured at high temperatures on the site. Stover's present company was formed in 1975. Previously, he had purchased the Walter Toebe Construction Company, a long-established firm with a fine reputation; so the name has been kept.

chie Noon. The 63-year-old Milford resident moves with a swiftness that belies his wheels and two backflips." Noon exage when he hits the roads and parklands around the area for his daily 6 a.m. training runs. Running at 6 a.m. opens up afternoons and evenings for the busy religious leader. He carries a full meeting schedule as a director of health care chaplains for the Roman Catholic Archdiocese and a Deacon at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Milford.

Noon, who has six children and 16 grandchildren, is no weekend jogger. Those morning runs often cover 10-12 miles, as he trains for the approximately 10 long-distance races in which he competes during the year.

The capper for his running season is the Detroit Free Press International Marathon, held in October. Noon's goal? To bring down by 12 minutes his personal best time of three hours, 41 minutes for the 26-mile, 385-yard distance.

A time under 3:30 would allow him to reach the summit of the running mountain—qualification for the worldreknowned Boston Marathon.

He needs to cut about 30 seconds per mile off his present pace to reach that goal. And he makes it clear that if he succeeds, there will be at least one more Milford-area runner at the start of the Boston race next April.

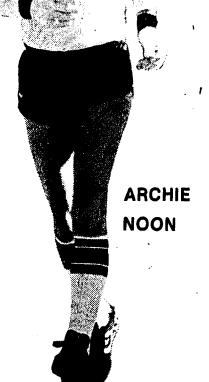

"You're darn right I am," Noon comments when asked if he would compete if he qualified. "I'm not going to have many other chances to do it."

The goal of besting 3:30 in the marathon has Noon working with extra intensity in his training sessions, during which he is joined by his daughter, Susan Sheffler, 35, and sometimes by Susan's daughter Angela, 13.

It's a real running family. Susan, a runner for two years, is rapidly approaching the pace set by her father.

"She's been behind, now she's starting to surpass me," Noon says. "It's a case of the student surpassing the master. Next race we'll probably run together, or she'll be in front."

The racing trio occasionally prompts some comment from other runners or passers-by during the pre-race training. But not as much as Angela, a student at

"Angela's a gymnast. Sh'e finishes every 10K (kilometer) race with two cart-

That might demoralize some of the less physically fit competitors. Not Noon, however, who gets a chuckle out of his granddaughter's performance and a thrill from just being able to run with his daughter and granddaughter.

"That's a reward in itself," he says. It all started 19 years ago as a selfimprovement project for a then 44-yearold Noon, who was concerned with his lack of physical activity.

Text by Jeff Frank. Photograph by Steve

"I was over 40 and getting a little heavy and too sedentary," he recalls. "I was concerned about living a fuller and more complete life."

Not much had been written about running when he first began, so he developed his own training program, beginning with 50 steps running and 50 steps walking for a one-mile distance.

It took almost a year, he said, to work up to the point where he could run a mile without stopping. The next few years, he ran through town, steadily increasing his distance, and eventually moved to running at Kensington Metropark.

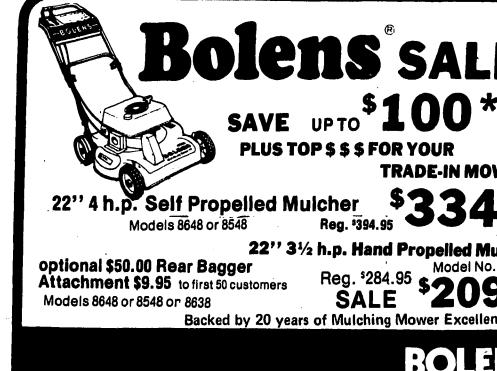

He now runs over his own marked course at Kensington or along Rowe Road in Milford and Highland townships. He ran alone until Susan joined him two

Five years ago he began competing on an amateur basis in a variety of races, and took home his share of hardware in his age group.

Last fall, he represented the United States in a 10K race against Canada in the Masters (age 40 and up) Cross Country Meet held at the University of Michigan Golf Course.

It's not easy for a 63-year-old to perform well in masters' races, Noon chuckled. "When you are a master at 63, you have to run against these 50-year-old punks," he says. "That makes it rough." But no matter how he does in an individual race, the thrill of just being there makes it all worthwhile.

Dave Moilanen takes a 'friend' for a run

Can't take the country out of Dave

f f n ou can take the boy out of the country, but you can't take the country out of the boy" is a time-honored saying which Dave Moilanen, supervising farm interpreter at Kensington Farm Center, has proven to be true, at least in his case. "It took me quite a while to figure out what I really wanted to do, but I've found it now," says the tall, blonde former park naturalist with a smile.

Between doing chores and feeding the animals, the sunburned manager in bib overalls entertains visitors at the farm center in his summer "office." a picnic table on the sunny side of the center's buildings.

Explaining how he settled on his present job, Moilanen says, "I got a degree in economics from the University of Michigan, but that isn't too useful all by itself unless you go into business. So I went to law school at Wayne State for a year and then worked at GM Truck and Coach for a year.

"I finally went back to the U-M and got my bachelor of science degree in natural history interpretation in 1975. "I realized that being outdoors was what I really wanted." The 31-year-old naturalist was raised in the Holly-Waterford area but he and his wife moved to New Hudson in 1974 when he returned to college. "It was located about an equal distance from her work as a teacher in Milford and my school in Ann Arbor and it's even more convenient now," he adds.

After obtaining his degree in natural resources, Moilanen worked as a seasonal park naturalist at Kensington from 1976 until May of 1980, when the Metro Park Service purchased the farm center from the private concern which had planned to use it partially as an amusement park.

"It wasn't really my idea of an educational park when it had amusement-type rides," Moilanen explains, adding that he greatly enjoys the opportunity the present set-up offers to show people how farming was back in the early days.

In this day of fewer and fewer working farms and more and more urbanization. he's pleased to have a part in preserving "the way it used to be."

Moilanen admits that supervising the farm center provides just the right mix of challenging decision-making and good hard work, such as cleaning pens and

His farm "family" includes 70 animals from goats, lambs, pigs and horses to an array of chickens and ducks.

"It's really the perfect job for me," the naturalist explains, adding that he was raised on a "part-time" farm with cows, pigs, chickens and geese and has always enjoyed being outdoors and caring for animals.

In addition to liking his work, Moilanen feels that he's also doing something imText by Marilyn Herald. Photographs by James Galbraith. Graphic by Stephen portant in the way of helping educate youngsters and their parents on the value of maintaining farmlands.

A large part of his work and that of his staff, which varies from three to five persons, depending on the season, is guiding tour groups through the farm facilities located at the northern edge of Kensington Metropark.

"It seems to me that a positive experience at the farm may help to make people more aware that we need to preserve farmlands," Moilanen relates. "They read about urban sprawl but they see a farm in action here."

The 100 acres of land under Mollanen's supervision is kept in its natural state as much as possible with wooded hillsides and lowlands left pretty much as they were 50 to 100 years ago. Maintenance of the farm buildings, which include a barn for the animals and a farmhouse restaurant for visitors, is included in Moilanen's budget. He also has to decide what animals and equipment to purchase from the budget which was cut this year along with many state-funded recreation offerings.

"Besides working with animals, I love to work with children and this job provides plenty of opportunity for that," he says. "We have a lot of school groups through here all the time as well as lots of parents bringing their youngsters. The kids are totally enthralled with being able to touch the calves and the other "Kids from the city often have not seen animals like this before. We have a lot of people who think the goat is a dog. They also get sheep and goats confus-

"We're having a sheep shearing in May. I'm going to shearing school but we'll have someone come in and do it the first time and I'll help him. I'll probably do it myself next spring.

"The milking demonstration is also quite popular. The calf, Rusty, gets most of Blossom's (the Jersey cow) milk but the pigs and other animals get some Moilanen also acts as "midwife" for the animals unless they have a real problem. In that case, he calls in a veterinarian from South Lyon.

"Blossom had milk fever after delivery in March," Moilanen says. "It's quite common in Jerseys but the the 'vet' gave her a calcium solution injection and she came around okay. I'm learning some of the 'vet' techniques and we have a girl on the staff here who is a registered

Moilanen expects to add hay rides to the other offerings at the farm this summer and with this in view, he recently purchased two registered Belgium bay mares. They cost $7,600, which had to come from the farm budget. One is due to foal and Mollanen looks forward to increasing his horse stock in that way.

"I'd really like to have a small farm to work myself but the economics of that kind of operation are overwhelming so this is the next best thing," Moilanen remarks, surveying the attractive farm

Winter demonstrations include such things as quilt-making, candle-dipping and other crafts in addition to providing tours of the barn and the chance to pet the animals.

"This is mostly an outdoor job that provides mental stimulation as well and that's just what I like," Moilanen concludes, moving over to stroke Blossom's nose and give Rusty an affectionate pat.

Leahy visits Old Ball Park daily

Little wonder, though; Leahy works there. In fact, the Wixom resident owns The Old Ball Park, incorporated—a Livonia sports memorabilia shop that, with its impressive contents, dares prospective buyers to leave empty-handed.

The store is a veritable sports fan's smorgasbord, offering an endless supply of card collections, posters, pennants, jerseys, T-shirts, hats, helmets, games, pictures, press guides, plaques, records, yearbooks, mugs, watches and other unheard-of souvenirs.

Want to admire a hockey stick autographed by legendary Detroit Red Wing great Gordie Howe? You can walk out of the store with it for $50. Or you can come away with a momento like the tobacco-stained uniform jersey worn by then-Boston Red Sox pitcher Luis Tiant when he starred in the classic 1975 World Series; that went for $175 some time ago.

Everything but bats and balls, right? Wrong. Leahy's store features baseballs autographed by the star of your choice. "And if what you want isn't here, I'll get it." he says. Then there are bats used in actual game action by such players as Steve Kemp, Lance Parrish, John Wockenfuss, Ron LeFlore, Tony Perez

"There are 40 million directions you can turn toward," says Leahy, whose Mike Leahy goes to the old ball wholesaler for other sports-related tions for a monthly magazine called Sports Collectors' Digest. We decorate recreation rooms and bars."

There appears to be no end to Leahy's innovation. A few months ago, he purchased a camera and set up a booth for the purpose of making sports cards. For a nominal fee, a customer can pose with a baseball, football or whatever and find him or herself on a laminated card just moments later.

"That's the attractive aspect of this business," Leahy says with a smile. "You can be as creative as you want. It's fun to try and think of things that have never been tried before."

Work wasn't always this appealing to Leahy. A frustrated ex-jock like so many of us, he had his heart set on a baseball career as a child. "I played at Tiger Stadium when I was 14," he says.

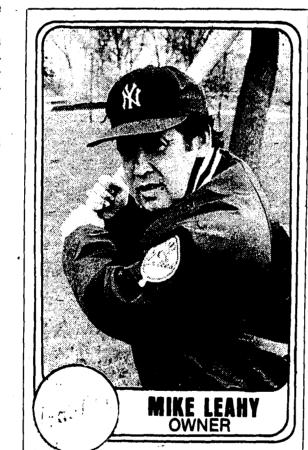

But after realizing that he had no future in playing baseball, Leahy eventually drifted away from sports. He turned to broadcasting for four years before winding up in the unlikely role as the district manager of a chemical company.

"I was doing pretty well for myself," Leahy recalls. "The money was very good. But all of a sudden I got tired of the pressure, the flying, the whole bit. So I took an early retirement."

The retirement didn't last long. Leahy started scratching the itch to get back into the sports arena and decided to open a sports memorabilia store, a gamble that he's glad he opted for.

Leahy's also entertaining some other notions. "I'd like to market ballplayers." says the man who has welcomed local heroes like former and present Tigers Text and graphic by Reid Creager.

Mickey Lolich and Champ Summers along with the Lions' Jimmy "Spiderman" Allen to The Old Ball Park in past months. "Most of these guys just don't know how to market themselves.

"Remember, sports figures are among the most popular celebrities in the world. Especially with kids. It's just a matter of making the ballplayers more visible. I personally think that if I had Spiderman Allen with me in a mall at Christmas—in the same place where Santa Claus was appearing—there'd be no question as to who would be more popular. "I'd outsell Santa Claus."

Leahy would also consider buying a minor league baseball team if the conditions were right, saying that "it's been one of my lifelong dreams."

Despite those grandiose future visions, Leahy appears quite content with the present. "I'm having a good time," he muses. "There are guys who have been working 20 years in the same job who come in here and say they'd work here for practically nothing.

"Before I was envied for my paycheck, and that was about it. But even if I were a millionaire, it wouldn't mean as much to people as does the fact that I have a rare picture of the Yankees' 'Murderers' Row' or something like a souvenir from when Pete Rose got his 3,000th hit."

"I think she's incredible!" observes Walled Lake Council Member Hannah Honeyman, who works with Mercer on the city's beautification committee. "I see her as a truly civic-minded person who has tremendous drive."

The absolute bottom line is that Mercer cannot even pinpoint a typical week's schedule. Along with an average 40 hours spent weekly as a realtorassociate senior counselor for Union Lake's Real Estate One, one might find "Walled Lake's number one go-getter" at a city board of review meeting, a beautification committee gathering or Mostly, Ardys left the municipal involvement to her husband, E.V. Mercer, Walled Lake's first city assessor and one-time council member and acting city manager.

But on December 19, 1966, Ardys Mercer closed her paint box for the last time, removing only one color-care. That evening Mercer recalls vividly that "as Christmas carols were being sung in the hall of the hospital," she was inform-

Gillow's inheritance a lot more than money

Some families inherit land or money, but Jack Gillow was given something else that he considers just as valuable.

From three generations of his family before him. Gillow inherited the skills, knowledge and even some of the tools for working with wood.

"My great-grandfather was a barn builder west of Detroit, and my grandfather pioneered a homestead in western Canada," he relates. After 1918, that grandfather returned to Detroit to work as a carpenter and wheelwright.

"My father became a cabinetmaker and in 1948 he and I formed our own company, E. Gillow and Son, Millwork," Gillow explains, speaking with obvious pride and affection about working with his father, Everett, until his death in 1977. One project they completed together was the remodeling of the Presbyterian Church sanctuary in Milford. Gillow is in 1976. Dressed in costumes of the period, Jack and Everett showed how woodworking was done 100 or more

But for Jack Gillow, woodworking has never been just a way to make a living. In fact, because he has served as Milford's postmaster for the past 17 years, his interest in woodworking has become almost entirely a personal hobby.

Even though work like the church project gave him pleasure and a sense of accomplishment, Gillow believes the things he has done just because they needed doing have given him the most satisfaction.

In that category of things that needed doing, the Huron Valley Youth Assistance office was completely remodeled by Gillow a year ago. He serves on the YA board and volunteered to rearrange the crowded office space in the old village hall.

This spring, Jack is getting ready to start another special project. He has been asked to supervise the building of a log cabin for the Milford Sesquicentennial celebration in 1982.

With energy and enthusiasm, Gillow is busy working out plans for a crew of volunteers who will help cut logs, peel the bark and notch and assemble the walls during the next year.

Once that is done, the pieces will be numbered, taken apart and then reassembled in Milford Central Park on the banks of the Huron River.

Gillow wants to make the project as authentic as possible. Because he owns many of the old tools used by pioneer builders, he and his crew will make use of the adze and broad axe for peeling the logs once they are cut.

"There is an old boring machine that we'll use, that I call the Grand-dad, because it makes you feel that old after you've used it for a while," Gillow remarks with a laugh. "It's a good thing we've got a year for this, because it's going to take that long using the old tools."

Men's Quartz

In doing research for the job, he found a variety of methods were used in the past to notch and assemble logs.

"A lot depended on what kind of wood was used and who was doing the work," he relates. "A cabin built with green logs dried out and left big cracks between them. Our pine logs will have a chance to season before next summer, so we should get a good tight fit."

Gillow thinks there are a lot of reasons why he continues working at his inherited trade. Those reasons have nothing to do with making money or even the more practical idea of doing needed

"I guess the creativity is the reward. And it feeds your ego," Gillow admits. "You look at a pile of old wood or material and say 'I can turn that into

"When I went to work at the post office, I missed that. You could do it all; do the reports, follow all the regulations, get it done on time-but you couldn't see it, or touch it or feel it. There wasn't any real product.

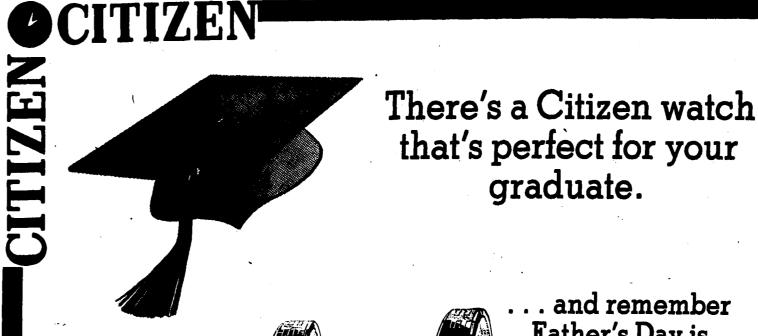

"Because I'd always had that feeling, I really missed it (woodworking). Fortunately, I still had time to go out and create-work on something real and

As a result, he has maintained his workshop and continues to add to his supply of tools, seasoned wood and plans for future projects.

"For me, it's the idea that I've created something. I've taken the raw material and turned it into something useful, that will have some beauty or give some pleasure to someone else," Gillow adds.

The man whose name is written on the certificate sits quietly in a chair. Though he speaks clearly, his voice is somewhat raspy. It has been that way most of his life—the result of throat burns suffered from German gas in the Battle of Soissons.

The World War I veteran, now 90-yearsold, does not boast about his heroism or even acknowledge himself as a hero. It was all in the line of duty, he claims.

"I wasn't much of a soldier," he recalls. "It was my first time in there." However, for Private Pelkey the events of August 2, 1918, brought him a hero's recognition and brought the Americans one step closer to winning the war.

On that day in 1918 in Cierges, France, Pelkey, then 28, sat with the other members of the 32nd Division of Company C, 107th Field Signal Battalion, awaiting word on the American's attempt to push back the German forces.

For the 32nd Division, the task was to overtake Hill 230, which bordered on the German front.

The company's command had devised a strategy to advance the American forces to the front. However, communication needed to be established in order for troops to advance far enough to establish the advance regimental post of command (PC).

Having located the PC the previous day, Pelkey volunteered to lead two division commanders to the site.

When the three men arrived at the PC location, the lieutenant in command laid out the strategy to overtake Hill 230 and break through the German lines. The plan was to set-up a telephone on

'230' in order to call in artillery during the American attack. The three men, Pelkey, Corporal Palmer and Sergeant Burke volunteered to set-up the lines with nine infantrymen following behind as back-up. As night fell, the men set out, stringing wires as they went along. "I followed behind, making splices as we went Germans talking in the slit trenches.

With the connections established, the men were ready to come back down the hill. Yet, one man was instructed to stay behind and man the telephone until American troops had advanced far enough over the German lines.

The soldier who stayed was Pelkey.

"I was all alone up there," Pelkey recalls. "I could see the German machine gunners. The artillery fire was like you had put a curtain down."

With Pelkey keeping the communications line open, the Americans drove back the Germans 12 kilometers. When the cease fire came, the 32nd Division had captured Hill 230.

"They made me a corporal from that," Pelkey explains, "and gave me $2 more a

For his devotion to duty under conditions of great danger and for maintaining unity between the front lines and the regimental post of command, Pelkey was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross—the highest honor given to a field officer. The certificate which bears the honor of the cross is signed by General John J. Pershing, commander-in-chief of the American Expiditionary Force.

Bill Gladden got his first metal detector as a Christmas present six years ago. Now he has boxes full of pennies, nickels and dimes.

He keeps at it because of the fun of never knowing what he's going to be digging up next. And the fact that treasure hunters dig up mostly pop can pull-tabs doesn't discourage him.

When Gladden was a novice treasure hunter his first "find" was the fact that he needed a better metal detector.

"I went out with some other people I had met and they were finding all kinds of neat things, "he recalls. "All I came up with was bottle caps and tin foil." So he quickly purchased a better unit and the search was on. Driving through Milan one day he noticed they were replacing the sidewalks. After thinking it over, he realized it would be a good place to hunt so he went back, hoping to find at least one Indian head penny.

He found dozens of them. Underneath the sidewalks of an old downtown area is a particulary good place for coin hunters. Usually city fathers modernize their downtowns by pulling up the boardwalks and laying down the cement. Meanwhile, the coins that have rolled through the cracks and knotholes in the boardwalks are buried under the cement.

When the cement walks are torn up, the coins are just waiting for someone with a metal detector to unearth them.

A Novi resident for 15 years, Gladden has found the continued construction in the city has provided fertile ground for hunting old items.

In fact, he says, "any time they put a steam shovel in the ground" he trys to search the land with his metal detector.

Any construction work at the corners of Grand River and Novi Road usually stirs up the coins left in the city's old downtown area. Hunting in front of the new Manufacturer's Bank on Novi Road has proven successful and the nursery school on Grand River, site of the former Methodist church, is where he's found more Indian head pennies.

Shallow water off beaches, especially beaches that that have been used for many years, is where most valuable jewelry is found, Gladden says. And property around older homes is another favored hunting ground, when the treasure hunter can get permission. The person operating a metal detector will be looking for metal which is 10 to 12

Ground which hasn't been through a lot of grading is the best to hunt through, Gladden says. Coins often are buried out of range of the metal detector once land has been disturbed by grading.

The metal detector works by an electronic field which passes through the ground. A constant low tone is given off by the machine. When the electronic field is short circuited as the machine passes over a metal object, the tone gets louder.

The conscientious treasure hunter recovers coins without leaving a hole or dead spot in the lawn where they have dug for coins, according to Gladden. They also are careful to contact property owners to get permission to dig.

Most hunters can tell stories about their best finds.

One of Gladden's best finds was a penny worth $125. He uncovered it while searching a 10 by 24 foot area. After he thought he had found everything there was to find at the site, he invited another hunter to search it with him. (Until a prospective site has been meticulously searched a hunter usually is very secretive about its location.) They turned back after them found even more. After becoming involved with the Michigan Treasure Hunters Club, Gladden participated in group hunts.

Some of the more interesting discoveries come from what Gladden calls a "researched find." In a researched hunt, someone will look into the background of a particular location to determine the most likely place to unearth a find.

Gladden is responsible for making up many of the maps the club's hunters use. In fact, his activity in the Novi Historical Society, where he serves as president, is linked to his research of historical sites he conducts to draft maps for club members.

The club regularly publishes historical atlases showing old school houses, chuches and homes where hunters might have success finding metal ob-

Education much mor than a job

It is more than just a job for Pinckney's Gary Evans. It is something he

It is Evan's primary interest that his children, and everybody's children, have the chance to receive quality education in all aspects whether that be the basics, vocational training or fine arts

That's a pretty big order from someone who started out driving a bus to help pay his way through the University of Michigan.

At that time Evans, who had just completed his undergraduate work at Wayne State-University, had every intention of entering the business world once he earned his doctorate degree.

But then he was asked to teach a communications class at Eastern Michigan University. From then on, he was hooked.

It really isn't unusual that Evans should find a niche in teaching. Both his parents With the exception of one year at Lake Superior State College, Evans has been a professor in the speech and dramatic arts department at Eastern since 1963. Growing up in northern Michigan, Evans saw a chance to return to the north country he loved by taking a pro- Text by Jean Spenner. Photograph by fessorship at Lake Superior. It was dur- John Galloway.

ing that year he realized he would have to return to southeast Michigan to earn his doctorate, which he did in 1977. Evans returned to the professorship at Eastern in 1970 and made his home in the rural area of Putnam Township because "I never wanted to live in the city." The hil-convenience of being close to four large metropolitan areas. "Country living is good for the kids," Evans says of his life in Pinckney. "There are times when the 45-minute drive (from his home to Ypsilanti) is tiresome, but ly terrain and lakes of the area remind him of the north country while having the once you reach the country..." Evans lives with his wife, Diane, and their two children, Gary, 7, and Aimee, 5, in a home they built not far from Pinckney High School.

When not working on his teaching duties or other school responsibilities, Evans enjoys spending time with his children and 14-year-old dog, Sopwith, who was so named because of Evans love of flying. He has his pilot's license and says, "I always wanted to fly,' Evans' interest in education goes beyond his teaching. He is a current member of the Pinckney Community Schools Board of Education. Evans came to the Pinckney just as the school district was beginning to grow. Now the district and the community are going through some rough times financially. "Education, now, is involved in controversy," he says. "Part of the reason is the nature of the times."

Evans goes on to say that education may no longer be a national priority, at least not education as we know it today. While higher education is still important, vocational education is also emerging as an important alternative.

"I don't think everybody has to be college prep," Evans says. "We have a young person who graduates and gets a job. They are contributing to society." Evans feels students should be exposed to the arts, especially in the lower grades. That was his platform when he ran for a four-year school board term in 1979. "My interest was more in the art program, that art and music be in the elementary grades," Evans remarks. "Even art in the middle school is good."

But now, as Pinckney is facing another miliage question this spring, the fine arts curriculum along with other school programs may have to be cut.

One bright spot Evans sees in the community, as far as education is concerned, is the opening of the Pinckney Community Complex—a school building that includes a gym, swimming pool and auditorium. He views it as an exciting possibility of bringing the community together.

"I really do believe the schools should be the center of the community," he says, adding that he feels the complex has the potential to be "the hub of the whole community" in providing a place to meet, not only for groups already in the community, but also bringing in entertainment.

"Pinckney needs a gathering place as the energy crisis gets worse," Evans Communications plays an important role in the workings of the school systems. One of the things Evans would like to see is a means of getting the school news out to the people. "A lot of people care about Pinckney," Evans says, "and there are so many positive things people don't hear."

Before attending Wayne State, Evans spent some time at a small college in Chicago. While there, he considered entering the Presbyterian ministry and indirectly it led him to the communications field.

"I enjoyed working for a long time as a student minister in Southfield (while attending Wayne State)," Evans recalls. It was that interest in communicating with others coupled with his interest in education that made up his mind to pursue his doctorate in communications.

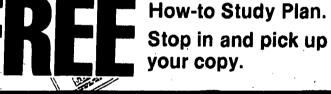

Communication is an important aspect of every thing which touches our lives, according to Evans. Along with his college classes, he takes his knowlege and philosophy to corporation workshops. He helps companies improve their own intercommunications and also works as a consultant.

For someone who didn't want to go into teaching, Evans now says, "I really love my job."

Former professional baseball scout former college and semi-pro player and current high school coach, the 42-yearold Northville resident knows the game as well as anyone.

Undoubtedly, the most memorable year of his scouting career was 1967-After a two-year stint as a part-time "bird dog" scout for the New York Giants, Kucher signed with the St. Louis Cardinals in January of '67 as the head scout in Michigan.

In June he signed Ted Simmons, currently one of baseball's leading catchers. (He was the highest-paid St. Louis player ever while with the club at more than $600,000 per year. He recently signed a multi-year pact with the Milwaukee Brewers). When the Cardinals won their division and then the World Series in October, Kucher said he was ecstatic.

"Everything that most scouts work for in a lifetime I got in one year," he says. "Some guys don't get lucky enough to work for a team that wins the Series in 20 or 30 years of scouting.'

But the Northville High School baseball coach says his biggest thrill was signing Simmons, who also was an

Farming and the law fills up Ferrell's time

itting in his Grand River office, wearing a neat three-piece suit and a perfectly trimmed beard, Brighton attorney Ron Ferrell looks for all the world like a gentleman farmer. Even his fingernails are clean.

But 31-year-old Ferrell is the first to admit he is considered "a wild Indian" by his neighbors in agrarian Fowlerville.

For five years now, the Ohio native has farmed cash crops on about 750 acres near Fowlerville. For a mere three months, he has been practicing law in Michigan.

Raising cash crops allows room for another career, Ferrell explains, because it requires intensive work only a few months out of the year. He also has a "man Friday" to help.

Ferrell's roles as lawyer and farmer have taken him from Congress to town hall meetings. He has been a lobbyist in Washington and a public speaker and, with the help of his wife, Marcia, is about to become a father.

"I'm probably known more or less as a wild Indian," Ferrell explains. "Usually in a rather forthright fashion. I let them (government officials) know my opinions on their effectiveness."

If you ask Ferrell for an evaluation of American farm policy, be prepared for indictments of both government and farmers. Farm policies and their creators are both short-sighted and counterproductive, he says.

"Farmers get sold a bunch of sap that they're the salt of the earth," he adds, railing against what he claims is agriculture's "macho" image of itself. perpetuated by the government.

Farmers are "worse off than Chrysler." continues Ferrell. He claims they receive only a three percent return on $1 trillion in assets.

"One of the natural outgrowths of my dual status as a farmer and lawyer was that I was involved in the American Agricultural Movement (in the late seventies)," explains Ferrell. "I feel like I've probably been involved in the most unique and historic agricultural event of the century. I have acquired a new perspective on this business I'm in, this

Ferrell caught the tail of the radicalism that grasped the nation's universities during the '60s and early '70s. The war in Vietnam, among other things, prompted young Ferrell to start asking, "Why?"

"I feel very uncomfortable whenever I feel impotent to affect or counteract forces which affect my life," he says. "I have the desire to be able to direct or counteract those forces that affect my life daily. I wanted external forces to be aware of my presence and respect my presence. One of the ways I saw as having that potency was through the legal

"There are often extralegal remedies, ways of articulating political or personal objectives, like what John Hinckley did. Out of a desire to articulate this potency constructively, I felt that understanding legal processes and knowing how to articulate things through legal processes was the best way to counteract the external forces." Analysis is the key word in Ferrell's outlook, whether the issue is drugs or farm policy. And farm policy lacks analysis, he says. Ferrell admits to political ambitions. but he won't elaborate. His "analytical approach to problem-solving applies in other areas,'' he says.

Family farms like Ferrell's could disappear in the future, he says. "To some extent, super-farms will exist," Ferrell adds. "A lot of hard-working, productive individuals are going to be absolutely steam-rolled out of this business with the loss of their life savings as their me...as you did it to one of the least of my bretheren, you did it to me." South Lyon resident Harold Crowell is a man who has lived and is living these words of Jesus Christ. For over 53 years, he has served as an officer of the Salvation Army and currently holds the rank of

Retiring as a commissioned officer in 1971 seems to have had little effect on the life of the colonel—a young-spirited, cheerful and physically fit man in his ear-

Daily, Crowell drives to the Salvation Army's Ann Arbor citadel where he oversees and coordinates a wide variety of social and religious activities.

"The newspaper (Ann Arbor News) called the day before Christmas last year and told me about a family they had discovered who had nothing for Christmas," Crowell recalls.

"I personally went out to visit them (the family) and sure enough—they had to make it a kind of Christmas by cutting out a Christmas tree shape from some wrapping paper which they'd taped on the wall. Then they had hung pictures of toys cut out from a magazine on the paper tree. They really had nothing.

"So I immediately went back and we (other officers and workers) packed up baskets of toys and food for them."

Besides seasonal emergencies, the colonel also runs weekly Bible classes in Ann Arbor, visits sick people in the hospital and conducts funerals, weddings and baptisms. In addition, he has administrative duties such as running the Salvation Army's community relations program in Ann Arbor.

Making "a joyful noise unto the Lord," as psalm 100 says, is another of Crowell's services as conductor of the Salvation Army band.

A piano and euphonia player, Crowell performed under the direction of John Philip Sousa in New York City in 1930, and more recently under the direction of Eric Ball, the internationally-famed British bandsman, in 1979 in Wisconsin.

For having served for over half a century in the Army, Crowell has not lost the salvationists' vision of social ministry. That vision, as conveyed by William Booth in 1865 in London's poor, depressed east-end, was that God's Holy Spirit should be the power behind efforts to reach out to the hungry, thirsty, the nak-

What she's lost in cash value, the former Ford Motor Company accountant says she has made up in shaping chubby legs and young minds in an appreciation of the art of dance.

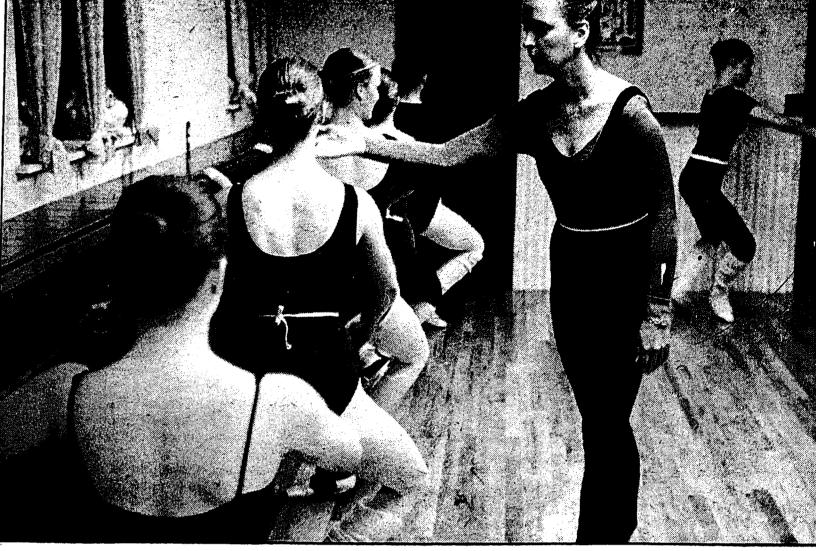

"I was making nice money, taking nice trips," Mihelich relates, quickly adding that she enjoys children and feels no regrets for making the switch after a former marriage dissolved.

She had pretty much given up dancing, too, the Dearborn native says, and wanted to get back into ballet just to get back in top physical shape.

"Machines will never do for you what you can do for yourself," Mihelich adds, explaining that ballet is good body exercise that increases agility, quickness, stamina and motor reflexes.

Mihelich prepared herself to teach by Marygrove College where, several years before, she had received her accounting shop is no laughing or joking matter for Raymond Madigan. "We have the largest novelty showroom and we are the largest novelty retailer in southeastern Michigan," Madigan says in what sounds almost like a sales pitch.

Madigan's store a laughing matter

Madigan, acting superintendent and curriculum director for the South Lyon school district, is the proud owner, president and sole stockholder of the Century Novelty Company in Livonia.

The shop is loaded with gag gifts, masks, party and carnival games and equipment. Madigan, 58, even rents out gambling equipment and is well-stocked with roulette wheels, crap tables and chuck-o-luck games. Bingo equipment is another hot item that moves well at the store, according to the shop owner. "It's all licensed by the state,"

Madigan adds quickly. For those in the gambling mood, $25 can rent a four by eight-foot crap table from Madigan's establishment. Throw in another $45 to rent a popcorn machine and munch while tossing the dice. Of course, being a novelty shop, Dracula faces, skin heads and all types of monster and ghoulish masks line two walls of the store. Choosing a Halloween outfit there can be a haunting experience. For some people, it may seem like a rather strange business for Madigan to be in, considering his career accomplishments and aspirations in the education field. But Madigan will be the first to say that his novelty shop is more than a business for him.

"I think everybody needs a hobby different from what they do," Madigan says. "My hobby, in a sense, was the carnival business. And it was a switch from the school business."

Madigan was no stranger to the novelty and carnival occupations before building his shop in 1960. Similar to the general rule of entering into a new field at the bottom of the ladder, Madigan stepped into the the carnival and novelty worlds on the bottom rung with just a sewing machine and his imagination.

Madigan and his fate with carnivals and novelties began in 1949 when he started helping his father sew names on bowling shirts. Madigan says his father was an avid bowler and dreamed up the idea of pocketing extra money by stitching names on bowling shirts.

Madigan, 24 years old at the time, picked up a sewing machine and started stitching with his father while attending college at the University of Detroit. But

Helping is the purpose in Crowell's Army

Booth, a Methodist minister, realized that the way to reach the hungry and poor-both in material and spiritual ways-was not necessarily through the pulpit, but through service in homes, work places, hospitals, prisons and often on the streets of Victorian England.

Now, in modern American terms, the century-old American branch of the Army reaches out to the poor and homeless, the uenmployed, the problem drinker, the terminal cancer patient, the bed-ridden elderly, the stranger, the lonely prisoner and the unwanted with numerous programs aimed at bettering the immediate lives of these people. Crowell says.

And, if the person is willing, spiritual counselling is also offered but not forced, Crowell adds. However, as far as the officers are concerned, a living faith in Christ and the Salvation Army's purpose is a must, he says.

"I'm steeped in Salvation Army tradition," Crowell commemts as he sits in his office. "But I'm more steeped in our Lord Jesus Christ. He's the center of it all. The day the Salvation Army stops doing social work in the name of the Lord. we may as well stop altogether and give

"This is what we mean when we talk about 'concerned compassion' because we really do care."

"Whenever there is loss of life and personal disaster, it isn't always what you can do in the material sense that's the most important, but often it's what you can give in terms of concerned compassion,'' Crowell explains.

Work in the Salvation Army is busy but rewarding, Crowell adds. It is a yearround, 24-hour-a-day ministry and one, as far as Crowell is concerned, that has taken a life-time of hard work and endurance on many levels.

Following his retirement in 1971 from his last commissioned post in Kansas Citv. Crowell and his wife Gladys, herself a retired colonel, came to South Lvon because of family connections.

However, the colonel's retirement was preceded by years of service in many different capacities all over the United

"Hearing the call," as he put it, at a very young age, Crowell entered the Salvation Army's college in Chicago in 1927 when he was 21 and spent two years in in-residence training, followed by a one-year-probationary period.

ficers are, Crowell married and took his new wife to Chicago Heights. "My wife and I got there just as the banks closed (after the Wall Street crash in 1929).' Crowell recalls. "I remember we had four cents on our first (wedding) anniver-

"A lady came into the post and said she needed help because they had turned off her power for not paying the bill. I told her I knew how she felt because they had just turned our power off too. But still we helped her as best we could with what little we had. Those were hard times but we made it through with the

As a corps officer, or as one who was in charge of various social programs for a whole division (hence the title of colonel), Crowell was stationed in Indiana, East Chicago, Aurora and Peoria, Illinois.

Crowell's ministry continued in St. Louis, Missouri, where he became an administrator. Minneapolis was the next stop, followed by a term in Bismarck, North Dakota before returning to Chicago again—this time in the 1950's under much more favorable economic State commander in Illinois for eight years, Crowell then filled the same role for Wisconsin and upper Michigan 1966, his final commissioned post.

A life dedicated to Christian service has shown Crowell that God's word is never sown in vain. An experience of Crowell's in Peoria in the mid-1930s illustrated this quite dramatically.

It was then that a young woman asked Crowell to conduct her father's funeral. "I asked her why she wanted the Salvation Army do this and she told me that her father had been a cripple and that he couldn't go to church," explains Crowell.

"But every Friday evening the Salvation Army band would play on the street corner below his bedroom window and the family would wheel him over to the window to watch us," he adds. "The woman told me that the Salvation Army had become her father's church and that he would have wanted us to conduct his funeral."

"The Salvation Army is a great life," Crowell says. "Our life in the Army has been good, and we would certainly never, ever say that there was a time when we would have given it up. It has been very fulfilling both in our relationship with the Lord and with others.

"When I walk down the street, people who I do not know say 'hello'. You know,

There, Stover has become a deckbuilder, constructing a wide deck to overlook the wooded area.

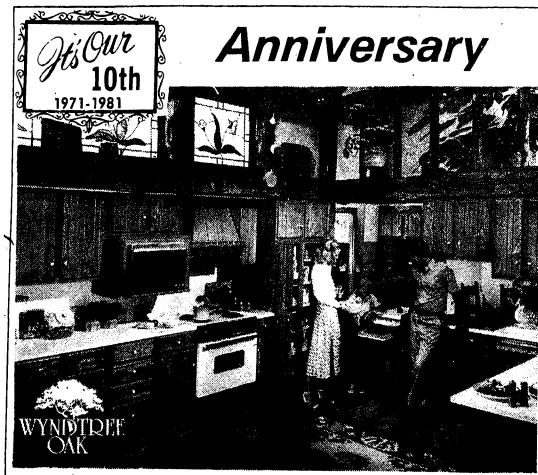

The Stovers are both from Williamston and both attended Michigan State University, where she received her teacher's certificate. They now have a farm near Howell.

While he doesn't have to wait for some of the annual 900 openings of the present bridge to get to his weekend retreat, Stover and his firm's expertise—coupled with the international alliance—will be responsible in large measure for saving many others the delays.

While none will moan the closing of that bridge, what happens to it could be interesting. Stover says it may be torn down. He understands Bay City is interested and has wondered if it could be floated down the river.

He knows for certain that the day the bridge is opened will be applauded by the drivers who take the link to the north, as many as 31,000 a day, according to Michigan Automobile Association

It all started with the Sauk Indians

t all began with an innocuous question from his brother about the Sauk Indian tribe and the rest, as they say,

In fact, what is now known about much of the history of several of Livingston County's southern townships might not have been discovered, at least for quite some time, if Milton Charboneau's brother hadn't asked him what local significance the Sauk Indians could have that would prompt the local Cub Scout council to adopt the Sauk name.

Not one to take such questions lightly, Charboneau, who had helped run the family grocery store in Pinckney and still lives just outside the village, began researching the Sauk Indians and found the answer three years and 158 books

Text by Mark Fabian. Photograph by James Galbraith.

That experience uncovered his unquenchable and previously latent thirst for history that spurred the now 54-yearold part-time mailman to become a sort of do-it-vourself historian.

"I didn't have no formal training," says Charboneau, "and I can't even say I was interested in history, except when we first came out here and the old mill and the Mill Pond interested me. But it laid dormant until I got into that Indian question deal."

Although he has no formal training as either a historian or geneologist, Charboneau spends every spare moment he gets plowing through records at the courthouse for marriage, birth and death certificates and land records.

information from. Sometimes, though, he travels to locate a family's descendants or the records he's searching for.

"I'll visit anybody if they want me to call them," he says.

He recently traveled to New York for three days to dig up information on Solomon Peterson, who Charboneau says became in 1828 the first settler in Livingston County by establishing himself in what later became known as Putnam Township.

And interestingly enough, it appears that the idea that many people have today of coming to Livingston County to escape the congestion of the cities and hoping no one follows them out was actually started by Solomon Peterson.

From data he's gathered. Charboneau has deduced that Peterson, a bachelor, left his New York farm and came to the area because the New York soil was too rocky and because he wanted to be by himself, as far away as possible from any Charboneau's immediate goal is to finish by 1985 a history of southern Livwhich he says have been ignored, leaving gaps in Michigan history.

He is concentrating on about a 10-mile radius around Pinckney, encompassing Putnam, Undadilla, Hamburg, Iosco, Marion and Genoa townships in Livingston County, and Webster and Dexter townships in Washtenaw County.

Part of the reason for the gaps in those communities' history, he says, is that back in the early days the book publishers who sent people into communities to write the history of the people living there couldn't afford to write a family's history if the family didn't pay to have themselves included.

"They often left a lot of people out because they couldn't advertise or didn't wish to," he explains. "They would be good books, but they didn't always have the information they needed."

For instance, Charboneau has been able to discover from records he's found that about 80 percent of the county settlers came from New England through New York and that the remaining 20 percent came directly from Ireland and Ger-

Genoa Township's early settlers, he noted, were almost all German with most belonging to a few Lutheran churches.

"I think possibly their ministers came over and they came over with them," he speculates. "It is something that's never been explained, but you can't help but think it when looking at the land

Digging through all those records can sometimes be a trying experience, but Charboneau says it is well worth it.

"You get dog tired and your eyes get a little weary, but every once in a while you find some little thing that brightens up your day," he adds.

Oh, yes. The answer to the Indian question? Charboneau says the Sauk Indians lived here at one time but left before settlers came.

Remember that now, it was three years in the making.

Mihelich decided that Brighton-a far cry from New York's tenements-was the place to open her studio after several family members living there convinced her to move out this way, dashing her preference for California. Ironically, she noted, since she moved to Brighton, all of those family members who talked her into moving have moved to California.

"If the studio is a bust, I'm moving (to California)," Mihelich laughs.

But the studio isn't a bust and has grown rapidly since she took on her first students in November, 1976. At one time she had 200 students registered, Mihelich says, a number that has dropped to 180 since the general economy took a turn for the worse. The $40 monthly fee became too heavy a burden for some families but maybe, she adds optimistically, those students will be back when the economy recovers.

Her students range in age from three years to the 50s, Mihelich says. Her own mother started her in dance at the tender young age of 21/2, she recalls, and she kept taking ballet and tap dance lessons through college. Dance and piano, Mihelich adds, were two areas her mother thought all girls should be train-

After some brainstorming, Madigan picked up the idea of buying pennents and lacing childrens names on them. He says he peddled the name pennants at sewing machine," Madigan recalls.

But making a profit proved to be a more difficult task than he first envisioned. Madigan remembers one instance at a carnival in Pontiac in 1950. He says he ran up $27 in expenses the first week there but pulled in only $15 of "profit." Through the years, Madigan has traveled around the state to different car-which he expanded as business grew.

"Now we have to do $300,000 in business yearly to break even," Madigan adds.
