Rapes on increase while other crimes dip

By KATHY JENNINGS

There were approximately 12 percent fewer major crimes in Novi during 1981 than the previous year. However, contrary to that trend, an increase in rapes and sexual offenses were reported, according to figures released by the Novi police.

Nine rapes were reported in 1981 compared to three the preceding year - a 300 percent increase. Except for rapes, Novi police reported decreases in each of the areas considered major crimes.

Police consider murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burlary, larceny and auto thefts as major crimes, or felonies.

As a whole the total complaints were up one percent, but increases came in the area of petty crimes - up seven percent from the preceding year.

A total of 9.854 crimes were committed in 1981 compared to 9,764 in 1980. Police said there were 1,374 major crimes, 1,861 class two crimes and 6,617 petty crimes.

During the past year there were 906 larcenies, 102 auto thefts, 37 aggravated assaults and no murders.

Burglaries, which include breaking and enterings, also showed a slight decline with 311 burglaries in 1981 compared to 331 in 1980, approximately a six percent decrease

Of 1.374 major crimes some 346 were committed at Twelve Oaks Mall. Approximately 309 were larceny or shoplifting cases.

There were two rapes, one robbery, five assaults and one burglary at the mall. Police handled a total of 890 complaints at the mall. Cases initiated by mall security personnel are turned over to Novi police for booking, arraignment and prosecution.

Most lesser crimes showed a decrease. Arson was down 57 percent, forgery cases dropped 53 percent and narcotics crimes decreased 46 percent.

There was seven percent less vandalism in 1981 than in the preceding year.

There also was a 5.6 percent increase in the number of sex offenses. Police said there were 38 sex offenses, compared to 36 the preceding year.

When asked for an explanation of the increase in rape cases, Police Chief Lee BeGole had no immediate analysis. However, he indicated he would review the cases.

Regarding the decrease in other crimes, Captain Richard Faulkner said crime is decreasing as a result of the work being done by the department.

"When police officers are out there working hard, stopping traffic and writing tickets, it deters crime," Faulkner said. "If a community is known to have police officers, the possibility exists that when they (law breakers) have a car full of stolen property they will think twice before they mess around in Novi."

sultants, a plan to phase in a citywide drainage system with 40-50 acre master retention areas and small lakes may be proposed by a committee now reviewing Novi's drainage problems.

Novi council members learned Monday that the storm drainage committee is "leaning toward large master retention and detention areas that can be used as recreational areas."

The committee presented its preliminary findings in a report to the city council Monday. They also asked the council to authorize city engineers to accelerate their planning so the committee can determine whether it will recommend a vote on the drain program in August.

Committee Chairperson Joseph Toth told the council that the committee believes "the city must develop a sound, comprehensive plan that takes into consideration maintenance, development and also meets the needs of the city in the future." Final plans from the engineers are Kriewall.

Local floods recur

Officials are carefully monitoring drainage courses throughout Novi as early spring rains fill drains and streams already swollen with melted snow from the weekend's quick thaw, according to City Manager Edward Drainage problems, routinely encountered in the dast, develop Saturday. By Saturday afternoon the Meadowbrook Lake subdivision park was deluged and water spilled across Nine Mile. Storm water run off from 70 percent of the city drains into Meadowbrook Lake, causing it to regularly overflow its banks. 'We had the usual problem at Nine Mile and Ennishore." Kriewall said. "Eleven Mile and Lanny's Road is under water, and we had to thaw culverts along East Lake, Meadowbrook Road and various other places." Kriewall reported Tuesday he does not anticipate extensive flooding problems "unless it rains all day." "It all depends on the amount of rain we get. So far things have been holding steady." Kriewall said. He indicated that it appears Walled Lake can continue to store water. Kriewall explained a pipe with markings on the lake measures the lake's level.

Novi City Council members have to homes where licensure is under ap- ed the city's action would "give an inauthorized the city attorney to seek a court order which, if granted, would prohibit the licensing of an adult foster care home for six emotionally disturbed and developmentally disturbed adults.

Concerned that an administrative complaint registered by the city with the state might be denied and the license issued before an appeal is filed. the council agreed Saturday to seek a restraining order to halt licensing of the home.

"We run the risk that a license could be issued the day we receive a determination letter (regarding the city's complaint) from the state," explained Assistant City Attorney Michael Lewis. "We could go to court then, but the judge would consider whether issuance of a license and occupation of the home will harm the city, rather than whether or not the home should be licensed." Lewis told the council there is an administrative process the city is following in its appeal of the state's latest decision to proceed with licensing the home.

First a complaint is filed. If the complaint is denied the city can appeal the decision. If the appeal is again denied, the city can take the matter to circuit court.

Lewis reported state officials have told him licenses have not been issued

"I was told they have not issued a license during an appeal, but they have the authority to do so," Lewis said. "I requested assurance that a license would not be issued; they could not give me those assurances.'

He said he also discussed the matter with the department of social services employee reviewing the home and currently reside in Clinton Valley. learned she is proceeding with the ground work for licensing the home.

There is no legal precedent for the court action the city is about to undertake. Lewis said. because few community placement homes for mentally ill persons have been proposed.

"We believe the statute (regulating adult foster care homes) does not allow the placement of mentally ill, and this case would be argued on that basis,' Lewis said.

Council members supported the attornev's recommendation to seek a restraining order.

"I think this is extremely important." Council Member Patricia Karevich said. "This must be fought. I am totally opposed to a home for the mentally ill.

In previous action the city has filed a formal complaint to John T. Dempsey, director of the Michigan Department of Social Services. The city has objected to the licensing of an adult foster care group home proposed at 41386 Llewevin in the Meadowbrook Manor subdivision. Proposed residents of the home

Objections have been made on the grounds that:

• there is an existing foster care facility within 1,500 feet of the proposed home and to license another home would result in an over-concentration of facilities within the city: and.

• mentally ill persons would be placed in the home and the state does not permit placement of mentally ill persons in a residential area.

make, but the direction the group now has taken is to set aside natural areas and develop large central lakes. Toth said.

He said the committee also has studied 24 known drainage problems in the city and ranked them according to whether they would be considered immediate, short range or long range problems.

When more information is available the committee will develop a timetable for resolving those problems and determine how much it will cost to accomplish those solutions.

Various methods of financing the projects have been studied, Toth continued. One method may be to charge developers for tapping their projects into a city master-retention area, he add-

"We want to calendarize what we're proposing so it will keep funding at a reasonable level," explained committee member Ron Birou.

City Manager Edward Kriewall told the council the proposal may emerge as "something similar to the road program, with voted approval for general obligation bonding — paid off by a fixed

They hear more than tax appeals

By KATHY JENNINGS

"Sit right down and take the soft chair." Board of Review Member James McLennan invited one of the 500 petitioners who appealed their property tax assessments last week. Both of the chairs are hard-backed.

The petitioner proceeded to tell about her home's moisture problem which is so bad it sometimes causes the furniture to mold. She thinks the dampness makes her home worth about $2.000 less han the city assessor does.

McLennan listened politely, asked appropriate questions, then informed the woman she would learn the board's decision within three weeks.

Not all the cases that come before the three Board of Review members are that easy.

In his eight years of service on the board, McLennan said, he has never seen the volume of hardship cases that appeared this year.

'We've seen people who's unemployment has run out or is about to run out; that's the big difference between this year and other years. There have been more hardship cases this year than we've ever had," McLennan said.

Individuals who have produced documentation of their financial difficulties have been assisted by the board if possible, but city assessor John Merrifield reports many hardship cases had to be denied.

During a short dinner break on the last night for assessment appeals, the other two Review Board members anything.'

Carol Mason said the recurring theme heard by the board through three days of listening to appeals was: "Everybody is broke, everyone's income is down over the past two years; they can't pay the taxes.

echoed McLennan's comments.

'They may be wearing their nice clothes from when they had a job, but a lot of these people are in financial trouble." Mason said. Elmer Heupel said his previous experience on the Board of Review was "a piece of cake compared to this year." The difference?

'We're trying to talk only about the value of their property, but we've heard everything from people's medication to the state of the health of their grandchildren," Heupel said.

"I don't think we've seen this number of wealthy people before, obviously wealthy people. They're feeling the pinch," Heupel added.

Problems differ depending on the age of the petitioner. Board members also agreed that the people of Novi are "very patient." Many petitioners waited for hours on end to see the board. The volunteer review board members listened to appeals into the wee hours on Monday and Tuesday, while residents waited their turn.

Are Unbaptized Infants Lost?

Dr. James H Luther

I have had parents express deep concern about a child that had died during infancy. Many religious systems teach that unbaptized children do not go to heaven when they die. How tragic it is for this unnecessary confusion o lead to such worry.

I am always pleased to be able to point these individuals to the only authority that can calm their fears-the Word of God! The Scriptures teach that children who die are immediately ir the presence of the Lord. When David's infant died, he said: "he cannot return unto me, but I shall go to him'' (Il Samuel 12:23). The sure knowledge that a loving God received innocent babies in heaven was a source of great comfor to the King. Jesus said that if anyone desires heaven, he must come to God in simple faith like a child (Luke 18:15-17). You see such confusion involves a basic misunderstanding regarding salvation. Neither: baptism nor good works can get us to heaven. Even sorrow for sin does not save. What then is

As We See It

Unions must help tackle budget ills

There have been relatively few occasions during the past three years when we have found cause to concur with the opinions expressed by Walled Lake school board member Janet Callahan.

In fact, we usually have been critical of her performance. But on the issue of wage concessions from school employee unions we find ourselves in agreement with Callahan's position.

Callahan has maintained from the start that the most effective means of dealing with the projected $2.9 million deficit in the Walled Lake school district's 1982-83 budget is to impose a wage freeze on employees. She stated that position as early as a year ago and reiterated her belief by voting against negotiated con- its employees tracts with the district's 11 unions that called for pay hikes of approximately nine percent for the is to ask voters to approve addicoming year.

Approximately 83 percent of the district's general fund budget is tied up in salaries and fringe benefits. employees in the district equates to approximately $1.93 million a figure that still falls far short of the projected $2.9 million deficit.

To come up with the shortfall, administrators and board members have been considering rather severe alternatives. The possibility that at least two, and possibly three, schools will be closed before the start of the next school year seems at this point virtually a foregone conclusion. School days will be trimmed, property may be sold, class sizes will be increased.

And the district will still fall short of making up the projected deficit — unless it gets help from

Another possible alternative tional millage. It's an alternative that is likely to become a reality because board members are reluctant to cut programs any further unless voters have had an opportunity to indicate what type educational system they desire

Still, in these difficult economic times, it appears employees refuse to make concessions at the bargaining table, voters will more than likely follow suit and demonstrate that A wage freeze for all they are capable of being just as stubborn.

> We concur with Callahan's assessment that the only way to attack the problem is through wage concessions, and possibly even a wage freeze. We also agree that the board may well have been too generous in approving contracts providing for eight, nine and 10 percent wage hikes for 1982-83.

We do not ask employee unions to put self-interests aside. In fact, we encourage them to exercise self-interest by accepting wage concessions that will retain jobs and enable the district to continue operations with a semblance of normalcy.

Continue review

A recent discussion by the Novi School Board points out the did not address the real problem, need for a total review of gradua- which is that some students cantion requirements, many of which were set at least five years ago, for students attending Novi High and complete the English re-School.

Board members labored over the question of whether students should be required to take four full years of English or eight semesters of English and the sequence in which those classes should be taken.

Ultimately, they determined students should take at least two semesters of English each year, except the senior year. During the senior year students must take at least one semester of English. And when they graduate students must have successfully completed eight semesters of English.

This allows students who wish to graduate in January to continue to do so. It also ensures that they have an adequate exposure to English.

But it seems board members not seem to fit in all the classes they wish to take, or must take, quirements as well.

It was pointed out that students who have taken more English than required as electives find themselves in the position of still having to taking at least one semester of English in the senior year - the minimum requirement set by the board.

The point was made that English is not causing the scheduling the problem. Some students have difficulty getting the classes they want, or are re-quired to take, because seniors fill those classes first.

With the questions raised it appears that it would be appropriate to address the situation and find out how many students are experiencing such scheduling problems and whether graduation requirements should be adjusted accordingly.

A very fidgety person asked me once how I could tolerate sitting through all the meetings I attend as part of my job.

There are three things that make meetings bearable First, I am a very patient person. Second, a reporter has to accept that meetings are what in other fields is called the price of doing business (and the cost is one's social life). Third, meetings can be fun.

When you have city council meetings on Monday, drain committee meetings on Tuesday, city budget meetings on Wednesday, school board meetings on Thursday and meetings early Saturday morning to take care of the items they couldn't get through earlier in the week it requires vast amounts of patience.

One recent Novi council meeting will be remembered as a classic case. Novi residents now can go to bed each night resting assured in the knowlege that the new Kern Industrial subdivision on Ten Mile has the most discussed if not the best planned driveway in Novi. After 45 minutes of questions and discussion the council agreed on a location for the property owner's driveway. Admittedly, driveways onto Ten Mile are a very important consideration, but decisions to launch nuclear attacks have been made with less effort. I wouldn't have believed it possible, but the driveway debate topped the hour-long high school English credit discussion by the Novi school board the preceeding week. That discussion finally came to an end, but it wasn't until even the vote had been kicked around for awhile.

First one board member made a motion. It died for lack of support, even though the person sitting in the chair really wanted to support it. A second motion was made and supported, but it was defeated when put to a vote. The chairperson made it known that he really supported the first motion. He relinquished his chair so that he could make a motion - the same motion as the one that had already died for lack of support

The person who made the original motion supported the chairperson's motion. One board member said he could support the motion after having it further explain-

Then the secretary asked for a point of order — does the chair vote first or last when he has relinquished the chair? Board members passed the motion. The chairperson asked for his chair back, but the secretary said "power is not relinquished easily," and acted like he wouldn't give the chair back. That's an example of the brand of humor peculiar to public meetings. There are others. When the city manager showed slides demonstrating

What does the weather have in common with the Wixom Road/Pontiac Trail in- Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds for improving the downtowr tersection in downtown Wixom? According to Mayor Lillian Spencer, the answer is that "everybody talks about them but nobody does anything about them." But all that's going to change - as far as the Wixom Road/Pontiac Trail intersection is concerned — if Spencer and the Wixom City Council have their way. The council last week voted unanimously to retain the services of Reid, Cool & Michalski, Inc., at a cost of $2,000 to study the intersection and recommend changes to improve automobile traffic flow.

Reid, Cool & Michalski, Inc., is a firm of professional traffic engineers. Spencer said the traffic analysis is something that definitely has to be done if Wixom is to come to grips with improving the downtown area clustered around the troublesome intersection.

The decision to hire the professional traffic consultants comes at a time when the city is putting increased emphasis on improving its downtown area. Wixom's Planning Commission and Planning Consultant Charles Leman cur-

State tournament awaits Warrior spikers

By DAVE JOHNSON

Don't lock that trophy case just yet - Ron Usion's Walled Lake Western Warrior spikers are ooking to open it one more time. For the last time. Having already bagged Western Six, district, and with last Saturday's performance, regional titles, the Warriors will be among an elite 'final four' this weekend as they go for the ultimate goal...the 1982 Class A State Championship volleyball title.

By any means Western won't have an easy task of it. Its initial opponent is Warren Cousineau. The match begins at 2 p.m. Should the Warriors get ast Cousineau, they will then compete for the tate championship at 5 p.m. against the Portage Northern/Flint Northern winner slated for 2:30 At 20-0 Western remains the only unbeaten team in the state. No slouches themselves, Cousineau (22-3), Flint Northern (26-4) and Portage Northern (52-5) also sport fine records. But Fuson remains confident.

"We've got as good a chance (to win) as anybody," asserted Fuson following Western's regional triumph at Dearborn High School this past weekend. "But when you get this far, it's just a matter of who has the better day.' Western clearly had the best day at its regional in bouncing host Dearborn High School by indenfinal against Walled Lake Central, Northville began its doublewharrimy on the Walled Lake school district with a 51-50 triumph over Western. For Western, the first-round district defeat capped a 7-14 season and marked the twelfth time in 13 years of existence that the Warriors failed to make it into second-round Having split with the Mustangs in two previous games this season,

Western took a 48-47 lead on a Mark Webb free throw with 2:06 to play in the garne, but Northville's Carl Lang got the Mustangs back on top with a lay-in and Northville never trailed

According to Western coach Ted Felegy, his team's "hang tough" attitude the last three weeks, following a seven-game skid that dropped its ecord to 4-11, made the season worthwhile. It also resulted in a Western Six co-championship — the Warriors' first — which pleased Felegy no end.
