As they go out into the world Novi graduates are going to face obstacles. They may even stumble and fall. But when that happens Valedictorian Sujata Sanghvi urged them to remember their "unofficial" class motto: "Oh

Arbitration scheduled

Police officer appeals dismissal

By KATHY JENNINGS

A Novi police officer, released from the department in February, has appealed his dismissal and the matter is headed for arbitration.

Officer John Zimmer was fired for violation of departmental regulations after being accused of transporting a woman in a Novi police car to Southfield, The News has learned. There is no alleged brutality or improper action on the part of the officer in connection with the incident.

When the department learned of the alleged incident an internal investigation was conducted and severe discipline was recommended. Instead of being disciplined, Zimmer was fired.

Zimmer denies the allegations against him and the Police Officers of Michigan (POAM), the bargaining unit representing Novi police, is appealing his dismissal. An August 5 arbitration date has been set.

According to reports Vernetta Coleman was placed in a police car by Zimmer after she allegedly was creating a disturbance at K mart in the West Oaks Shopping Center.

Store personnel alleged the woman was trying to obtain a refund for merchandise previously stolen from another K mart store and contacted police.

Zimmer determined at the time there were insufficient grounds to arrest the woman and decided to remove her from the premises, according to William Birdseye, POAM business agent.

After investigating the matter and determining she was not wanted for offenses in other communities, Zimmer took her to a restaurant approximately one-quarter mile from the scene, (Dave's Hamburgers at Grand River and Novi Road), according to Birdseye.

The alleged incident occurred in October 1981.

Later the woman contacted the department to recover confiscated property, according to reports.

The department subsequently was contacted by Coleman's attorney who alleged the officer took her to a Holiday Inn parking lot on Telegraph in Southfield where he let her out of the car. Allegations that the officer was verbally abusive to the woman also were made.

A departmental investigation of the charges was conducted and Zimmer was dismissed.

However, Birdseye believes the outcome of the arbitration will result in Zimmer's reinstatement.

"He has an excellent personnel record," Birdseye said. "There is nothing in the file but commendations he's received all throughout his career. There is nothing negative in his personnel file."

"There is no indication the officer behaved improperly," Birdseye said.

Birdseye went on to say all the information gathered by the city in an attempt to justify Zimmer's dismissal supports the officer's version of the story.

City Manager Edward Kriewall and Police Chief Lee BeGole had no comment on the dismissal or the pending

Hoyer seeks seat as state house rep

Novi City Council Member Martha L. Hoyer will compete with Highland Township Supervisor Willis Bullard Jr. in seeking the new 60th District seat in the state House of Representatives.

A council member since 1975, Hoyer lists among her concerns the location of community placement facilities such as foster care homes for the mentally ill and emotionally disturbed, contamination of underground water supplies by toxic landfills, education funding and "individual taxes and assessing formula."

Hoyer, a Republican, also said she is concerned about DNR access to private lakes, railroad inspections, the size of state government, the cost of conducting business in Michigan, welfare, transportation funding and prison and jail overcrowding.

Hoyer served on the Novi Planning Board from 1973-75 and was Novi Mayor Pro-Tem from 1975-79.

She represents Novi at the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) and is a member of SEMCOG's Council on Regional Development.

Hoyer is Novi's delegate to the Michigan Municipal League and a member of the Transportation and Communication Advisory Committee of the National League of Cities.

Election day Monday for Novi school seats

Novi school district voters will go to the polls Monday (June 14) to elect two members to the school board.

Estimated turn-out of the district's 10,500 registered voters is unpredictable because of the unknown effect of two write-in candidates. In the last contested school board election in June 1980, 400 of the district's registered voters made it to the polls.

Incumbent Trustee Robert Schram faces write-in candidate Kathleen Mutch for a four-year seat on the board.

A one-year term, created by the resignation of six-year board member Ruth Waldenmayer, is contested by write-in candidate Diana Canup and Gilbert Henderson.

Schram was first elected to the school board in 1978 and is seeking his second term on the board. He previously served as board vice-president in 1980 and treasurer in 1981.

Mutch is making her second bid for the board after running unsuccessfully in 1980. She has been involved in educational committees at both the local and state level.

This is Canup's first try at running for public office. She also is conducting a write-in campaign. She is past president of the Novi Woods Elementary parent-teacher organization and has served on various committees in the school district.

Henderson has revived his local political activity after five years out of action. He was first elected to the school board in 1968 and re-elected in 1971 and 1975. He served as board president in 1970-71 and again in 1975. He resigned from the board in 1975 to take office as the mayor of Novi.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. Polling places are in several school buildings. Voters from Precinct 1 should report to Middle School South, 2599 Taft Road; Precinct 2 voters will cast ballots at Orchard Hills Elementary, 41900 Quince; and voters in Precinct 3 will vote at Village Oaks Elementary, 23333 Willowbrook.

Those interested in writing in a candidate should follow these instructions: Raise the metal slide directly over the name of the opponent of the person you wish to write in. Write in the candidate you chose on the paper under the slide. Your vote will be recorded when you pull the lever to open the curtain.

Court asked to approve Bob Evans eatery plans

As promised, Bob Evans Farms, Inc., has filed suit in Oakland County Circuit Court asking that a Novi zoning ordinance used as the basis for rejecting a restaurant site plan be struck down.

The action comes after Novi City Council members twice reviewed site plans for a Bob Evans restaurant proposed for construction near the Kroger Store in West Oaks Shopping Center on Novi Road.

Council members rejected the plans after the first review and refused to reconsider the denial at the second review.

The council based its decision on provisions of the Planned Development Ordinance, which regulates property in the area where the restaurant is proposed. Council rejected the plans on the grounds it would hinder "harmonious land uses" west of Novi Road across from Twelve Oaks Mall.

The Bob Evans suit asks the court to declare the council was wrong when it denied site plan approval.

It further asks the court to rule that the ordinance is invalid "to the extent it provides the council may deny preliminary site plan approval based on disapproval of architectural style."

Bob Evans Farms also wants the court to: "Issue a permanent injunction enjoining the city... from interfering with the company's intended use of the land."

The suit claims the site plan submitted to the city has all the information required by the ordinance and otherwise complies with all terms of the ordinance. Despite that, the council rejected the site plan on a 5-2 vote, the suit notes.

"Accordingly, (under provisions of state statutes) Bob Evans has a right to preliminary site plan approval... and the city council had a duty to issue such approval."

"Assuming the city council had discretion to deny site plan approval, which plaintiff denies, the denial constituted an abuse of discretion and was arbitrary and capricious and not supported by substantial evidence on the record," the suit states.

The company asks the court to declare: "the action of the city council in denying site plan approval is invalid and issue an order directing the city to issue preliminary site plan approval and other necessary permits for the construction by Bob Evans of a restaurant pursuant to the plans previously presented to the city council."

The suit maintains that the council objected to the architectural style of the restaurant. If Novi's zoning ordinance is drafted to give the council that discretion it should be struck down for a number of reasons, the suit continues.

Bob Evans claims the ordinance provides standards which are inconsistent with the Zoning Enabling Act and are not authorized by that legislation.

Because it treats similarly-situated persons in a discriminatory fashion without rational basis, the ordinance violates equal protection clauses and due process provisions of the state and federal constitutions, according to the suit.

The suit also claims that the city zoning ordinance "bears no reasonable or substantial relationship to the needs of the public health, safety or welfare."

Under provisions of the Zoning Enabling Act, municipalities may not deny a use based on aesthetic grounds, the Bob Evans suit contends.

City Attorney David Fried said the issues raised in the suit are "interesting ones that will have to be tested in the courts."

The questions raised are the same ones raised "in every suit that attacks a zoning ordinance," he added.

Fried refused to speculate on the outcome of the suit, saying "there are many things that will have to be tested."

She's Novi's voice

By KATHY LAVEY

"Good afternoon, City of Novi." If you've ever called city hall, you've probably heard the pleasant voice of Florence Gopigian, who makes her living answering the city's phones and channeling calls through the city hall switchboard.

As the first contact that many people have with city administration, Gopigian, who also serves as city hall receptionist, is willing to go to some trouble to be as pleasant as possible. But she admits that it isn't always that easy.

"Sometimes we laugh," she said. "People think we're information please...they ask us all kinds of questions."

Gopigian said she feels her job is especially important when something goes wrong and citizens call to complain.

"I try to get here a little early in the morning," she said. "When there's some kind of tragedy or trauma, like when water mains break and people are trying to get their showers and get to work... they start calling very early."

Gopigian said she likes her work. "It's not a long day, it doesn't seem to drag," she said, explaining that at slack hours at the switchboard she finds other things to do.

As a matter of fact, she admitted that she was folding up some of the new Novi T-shirts even as she was being interviewed over the telephone, and she also performs clerical tasks in between phone calls and guest-greeting.

A 10-year Novi resident, Gopigian has two sons, Richard and Michael, both of whom graduated from Novi High School. She returned to work last year after spending more than 20 years as a

Gala Days focus: old-fashioned fun

Gala Days '82 begins today (Wednesday) and runs through Sunday, and according to Ed Leininger of the Novi Jaycees, there's plenty of reason to come join the fun at Ella Mae Power Park on Ten Mile.

"Almost Anything Goes," the popular contest between teams of local clubs and visiting municipalities, will be repeated this year. And Pugh Amusements will again supply the midway, with a $5 admission ticket for all rides. But many new events have been planned in keeping with this year's old-time country fair atmosphere.

"We're really promoting our special events this year," said Leininger. "This is the first year we've really done it... with new events like the watermelon-eating contest and frog-jumping contest... maybe people will come down here and bring their kids and stay and really enjoy themselves."

Included in the list of new, old time-flavored special events are such things as a costume contest, a baking contest, a demonstration by a group of muzzle-loaders and performances by a barbershop quartet. For children, there are the frog-jumping and watermelon-eating contests, and there's even a "husband-calling" contest for wives.

Two events this year will earn money for special purposes. Proceeds from the dunk tank are going to aid the family of Scott Seppala with medical bills, while the proceeds from a "high-striker" contest will go to purchase new park equipment for children.

Leininger said the dunk tank will be manned by Novi city personnel, including Mayor Robert Schmid, as well as administrators, teachers and students from the Novi schools. Seppala, a ninth-grader, is undergoing treatment in Seattle for a rare form of cancer.

"High-striker" is a carnival game which tests an individual's strength for a fee by determining how high up a scaled pole he can drive a weight with a sledgehammer. If a weight is sent all the way to the top of the pole, a bell rings.

This, Leininger explains, will be used in the high-striker "ring-off." At the beginning of the contest, the high-striker will be set so that it takes little force to send the weight to the top. Those who are able to ring the bell in the first round proceed to the second round, when the high-striker is set to make it more difficult to send the weight to the top. Those who make it through the second round go on to a third round and so on, until only one contestant is left.

That person will win half the total fees; the other half will go to the park equipment fund.

About 15 area merchants have leased space in the merchants' tent, and special in-tent features will include a cheerleading group and bagpipers. The Beer Tent will operate with nightly entertainment. Contributing to the old-time atmosphere will be performances by a banjo band on Wednesday and Friday nights, and a

School board vote slated Monday

Voters in the Walled Lake school district will go to the polls next Monday to fill two four-year terms on the Walled Lake Board of Education.

Polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Up for grabs in this year's election are the terms currently held by Kenneth Tucker and David Roddy. Tucker, who has served as board president during 1981-82, is completing the four-year term he won in 1978, while Roddy is rounding out a one-year term he won in the 1981 campaign.

Both Tucker and Roddy are candidates for re-election.

Challenging the two incumbents is a slate of four candidates. Also running for the two four-year terms are Donald Eby of West Bloomfield, Merlin Reeds of Walled Lake, Bonnie Venzke of Milford and Mary Weberg of Walled Lake.

Although the level of campaigning has not yet reached the heights it did during the 1981 race, two, and possibly three, "factions" seem to be emerging.

Tucker and Roddy, the incumbents, represent one group. Roddy teamed with Trustee Patricia Jackson to win election in 1981, and they subsequently joined Tucker and Trustee Janet Callahan to bring about a change in board leadership.

The campaigns of Venzke and Weberg also appear to be linked.

Although neither has previously sought election to the board, they are campaigning as a team and have the support of former Board President Stephen Lasher, who was ousted from the board in last year's election.

The campaigns of Reeds and Eby are linked only in the sense that both have been endorsed by Callahan, who has expressed displeasure with both Tucker/

Roddy and Venzke/Weberg. Both Reeds and Eby maintain they are running as independents, however.

There are no proposals on the ballot other than the six-person race for the two seats on the school board. Issues discussed by candidates during the campaign include school finances and the need for a millage election, declining enrollment and the possibility of closing another school, and the performance of administration, including Superintendent Don Sheldon.

STAR STRIDER: Walled Lake Central's Kathi Harris breezed her way to the first state Class A championship ever for a Central trackster in the 800 meter run, but Coach Brian McKenna reports that Harris is disappointed that she didn't run faster. She will get a chance to try to better her time of 2:15.3 she's been selected by Michigan track coaches to compete in the Midwest Meet of Champions in Fort Wayne, Indiana. For more on the state championships, see Page 1-C.

Ted Yura plans to make the most of his summer internship in Walled Lake

City intern loves his work

A paycheck is just icing on the cake for Ted Yura.

So happy is he to be working as an administrative intern for the City of Walled Lake, in fact, that Yura says he "really would do this job for minimum compensation, just for the opportunity."

A senior at Northern Michigan University majoring in broadcasting and business management, Yura will be sharing an office for the summer with Building Inspector Earl Glasgow. But he is "under the umbrella of the city manager," to quote his boss, J. Michael Dornan.

His duties will entail a wide range of administrative functions, although Yura is excited most about the opportunity to work with the West Oakland Cable Television Study Group, a 12-community organization of which Walled Lake is a member. His role with the group will not be large, according to Dornan, but it will be important to Walled Lake. Yura will probably do quite a bit of legwork for Walled Lake as the city prepares for its involvement with cable television.

A resident of Dearborn, Yura has had extensive broadcasting experience at Northern, where he worked as a reporter for the university's television station. He also was involved in production at a competing station in Houghton, where the college is located.

He is hoping to go on to law school following his graduation next year from Northern and expects to specialize in communications law. "This is really going to fit in well," Yura says of his summer internship. "I'm really grateful for the opportunity they've given me."

Everyone likes downtown plan

"I'll be honest with you: It knocked my socks off. I was so pleased," said Debbie Schutt of the Oakland County Planning Division.

Thrilled with the reaction of Walled Lake business owners and city officials to downtown revitalization drawings, Schutt said plans to spruce up businesses along Walled Lake Drive and Pontiac Trail are heading full steam ahead.

"We didn't receive one negative comment," Schutt said following a meeting at which county planners returned to business owners and city officials with conceptual drawings of how Walled Lake could be beautified.

The target area includes all the businesses along Walled Lake Drive from the Union 76 station to just north of Pontiac Trail and those along Pontiac Trail east to Market Street.

Although improvements proposed to business owners won't involve large expenditures, they should produce dramatic results, Schutt said. Awnings, new trim, fresh paint and perhaps added landscaping are among the changes suggested.

In addition, the resurfacing of Walled Lake Drive — slated to begin in early July — and a joint beautification project along Liberty Street should really give the old downtown a new look.

52nd Court moves without a hitch

By KATHY LAVEY

Judge Martin Boyle heard arrangements Monday.

That wouldn't be unusual, but he did it from a courtroom in the new 52nd District Court building at 1010 East West Maple in Walled Lake.

Although employees were still unpacking and carpenters were still putting finishing touches on the interior of the building, the court was "in full operation" Monday, reports office supervisor Michelle Bilga. "Considering the monumental move this was, it's gone pretty well," she said.

The process of moving the court into its new quarters has been lengthy and full of delays. Don Malinowski of Oakland County's building and maintenance department says he remembers working over Fourth of July in 1980 drawing up specifications for the project, and Court Administrator Virginia Perry says bids were let out for the renovation work in June of 1981.

Evidence? Eyesore? Building may be both

By KATHY LAVEY

Is it a health hazard? No. Is it an eyesore to crime? No. Is it in danger of collapse? No, again. Is it evidence?

Maybe, but its importance as such depends on who you talk to. Is it an eyesore that seems to be cluttering up downtown Wixom? There are those who say yes.

It is the Kelly Homes building at 4935 Pontiac Trail, still standing 19 months after it was gutted by fire in a controversial case of alleged arson.

The building's presence triggers some questions in the minds of those who are forced to look at it. First, why hasn't it yet been repaired or removed?

Since it may have evidentiary value in the case of "burning insured property" charges pending against developer Edward Coogan, who allegedly set the November 8, 1981 fire, it cannot yet be torn down or renovated. And, though officials agree that the building is an eyesore, there's really not much anybody can do but wait ... and wait ... for the case to come to trial. Consider these statements from Wixom officials:

• Building Inspector William Tyler: "Sure it's a hazard, but building ... I'd like to see it go myself, but I can't do anything about it."

• Wixom Police Chief Philip Leonard: "We're trying to determine whether the evidentiary value of the Wixom's Coogan building may be used as evidence building is worth it ... (protecting it) hasn't been a problem, but it is an eyesore."

The list of those waiting, some impatiently, for the case to come to trial includes Prosecuting Attorney John Slevin, Defense Attorney Thomas Brady, Wixom Attorney Thomas Connelly, Wixom police, witnesses and Wixom city officials. Coogan himself awaits the trial from his new home in Texas.

All involved agree that the wait for trial has been unusually long, but seem confident that their day in court is coming soon. However, they aren't holding their breaths.

come of the case, they do agree that it is going to be a humdinger.

"This is no two or three day case," said Defense Attorney Brady. Nor is the outcome cut and dried. Consider these statements:

• Brady: "To this day I don't believe it was arson, and I will introduce evidence to that effect ... I believe it's one of the weakest cases I've ever seen on the prosecutor's part. I'm surprised he even brought it."

• Wixom Police Investigator Bruce Kirby: "(The building) is definitely an arson scene. I can't tell you a whole lot because I don't want to tip the hand ... I'm confident of the fact that we can prove the case without any doubt."

Another complication in the case is that a determination apparently has not been made whether or not the building is a total loss or whether it can be repaired. According to Brady, Coogan has filed suit to retrieve the insurance money on the building. The case, though, will largely depend on the outcome of the criminal trial since Coogan, if convicted, will not be entitled to insurance money.

Thieves make off with $2,000 from grocery store

In Novi

Some $2,000 was reported stolen Saturday from the A&P store at Ten Mile and Meadowbrook Road. Police believe the money was taken either by a customer or employee.

Despite signs of forced entry to the cash room, police said they were uncertain whether there was an actual break-in. The pry marks may have been made to confuse the investigation, police said.

male, approximately 5-2 tall and 40-years old. He was wearing a beige shirt, blue pants and a beige, cloth hat, according to reports.

An estimated $2,500 worth of stereo equipment and a $500 microwave oven were stolen from a home in the 2000 block of Chestnut Tree. Police said the home was entered by a thief who found a hidden key.

Nearly $1,300 worth of goods were stolen in the break-in of Specialty World, 4311 Grand River. Police said the thief apparently gained entry by prying open a front window and then ransacked file cabinets and desk drawers.

Stolen were a $450 electric typewriter, two calculators valued at $250, two heatlers worth $80, $50 in cash and a $200 house plant.

Approximately $700 in cash, an 18-inch gold chain and two bracelets were stolen in the break-in of a home in the 2000 block of Virginia Street. Police said the home was entered through a bathroom window. The stolen property was taken from a metal box with a combination lock.

A $100 shot gun, $100 rifle and $50 chain saw were stolen from a home in the 100 block of Eubank. Entry was gained by breaking a window and unlocking the front door. The owner told police he found the front door ajar upon returning home.

Four rifles, jewelry, figurines, glass and other items were placed in a bed cover and stolen from the master bedroom of a home in the 2000 block of Cranbrook.

The responsible party gained access by prying the screen from a kitchen window and proceeded to ransack the home in addition to taking the missing items.

Five automobiles were damaged May 28 in an alleged act of malicious destruction of property by a man as he was leaving the scene of a party. The man allegedly used a large, torque wrench to check the windows of the five vehicles, according to police.

Damaged cars included a 1980 Buick, 1971 Chevrolet, 1975 Chevrolet, 1977 Chevrolet and an AMC Eagle.

Two men arrested in March after police responded to a suspicious person call have pled guilty to various charges before 52nd District Court Judge Harold Bulgarelli.

Steven Waggoner, 20, of Dearborn Heights was placed on one-year probation and fined $100 with $15 monthly probation costs after pleading guilty to carrying a firearm without registration. He originally was charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

Jay Clark, 21, of Farmington Hills was placed on six months probation and fined $100 with $15 monthly probation costs after pleading guilty to carrying open intoxicants.

A woman charged with malicious destruction of property has been bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court. The woman is alleged to have hit a car with a snow shovel after the driver of the vehicle reportedly sprayed her with water as she drove by.

area blotters

Barbara Christie, 23, of Novi has been charged with malicious destruction of property over $100 — a felony carrying a maximum penalty of four years in prison.

Two youths were arrested June 5 in the Stonehenge Condominium Complex at approximately 1:40 a.m. for having a $1,300 golf cart in their possession. The cart is owned by a Farmington Hills resident, police said.

The youths were released to the custody of their parents. Police said the matter will be referred to juvenile court.

In Wixom

Two cameras and an estimated $200 in cash were stolen from the Leitch Equipment Company on Wixom Road between June 4-5.

The theft was reported by an employee who told police she stopped by to check the building Sunday and discovered broken glass on the floor and several open filing cabinets.

Police said the responsible parties apparently gained entry by breaking a window and then ransacked the office area.

A resident on Lamella reported the theft of a four-wheel drive Ford pickup truck from the driveway in front of his home.

The complainant said the truck was stolen June 2 between 12:30 and 6:30 a.m.

The theft of $30 from a purse was reported June 1 by a resident of the Indian Lodge Apartments. The complainant told police the responsible party gained entry by kicking in the door and then removed the cash from a purse.

A resident on Tamarack reported the theft of two Seiko watches from his apartment May 28.

The complainant told Wixom police the watches were stolen while he and his wife were out jogging. Value of the watches was placed at $125 apiece.

Music series opens

Believe it. The Walled Lake Western High School band may perform for free, but they can't be called amateurs — not by reputation anyway.

The Warrior ensemble is garnering a respectable name for itself, according to Walled Lake Mayor Gaspare LaMarca, who said last week "everybody kept talking about that band" after hearing musicians perform in the city's Memorial Day parade.

Those who missed the band have an opportunity to hear for themselves at 7 p.m. Monday when Western opens Music in Motion, Walled Lake's concert series.

In its second year, Music in Motion will again be held in front of the Walled Lake Villa at the corner of Pontiac Trail and West Road. Area residents are invited to attend, and should bring lawn chairs or blankets and a picnic dinner if desired. The free concerts are sponsored by the Walled Lake Parks and Recreation Commission.

Also slated to perform this summer are the Brookside Jazz Ensemble on July 19; the Franklin Village Band on July 26; Dick Murphy's Band on August 2; and Showdown on August 5.

But Western's music might top those four. Said LaMarca: "If you were at the Memorial Day parade, you got a real nice taste of this excellent group. Everybody kept talking about that band — that band was just excellent."

Assessments up, millage down

By KATHY JENNINGS

Tax bills, which were slated to drop for some Novi residents this year, may go up instead following the Michigan Tax Commission's decision to raise residential assessments in Oakland County.

The tax commission decided May 24 to raise residential assessments by six percent. As a result of that action, Novi City Council members voted in a special meeting June 2 to roll back the millage to offset half the increase.

Without the rollback, the assessment increase would have meant Novi taxpayers would have paid more tax revenues than needed to balance the recently adopted 1982-83 budget.

Council members voted instead to reduce the millage levy to offset the assessment hike.

The rollback applies equally to residential, commercial and industrial property taxpayers, although only residential assessments increased.

Legally, the city must apply the same millage levy to all property classifications.

What the rollback means is the city will collect three percent less in property taxes than it would have if the millage had not been reduced.

Homeowners will pay three percent more in city taxes than they would have before the state imposed the factor.

As a result of the millage rollback, commercial and industrial property owners will pay three percent less in local taxes than they would have before the state's action.

If the city had rolled back the millage six percent, the factor's effect on residential property would have been eliminated. But the city would have been forced to cut $60,000 from its budget because of the loss of revenues from industrial and commercial developments, whose assessments did not increase.

Council members learned they could either rollback the millage or leave it as approved during the budget process and hold a Truth in Taxation hearing to explain the collection of increased revenues.

The city considered collecting the full amount of taxes it could have received as a result of the increased assessments and then placing the extra revenues in an escrow account to be paid back to property taxpayers at a later date.

Council Member James Shaw asked the administration why it had not recommended collecting the additional taxes and setting the money aside in case it had to be returned, since that would involve less risk than reducing the millage.

City administrators recommended against that position, saying the city really would not be placed in financial jeopardy by rolling back the millage.

Under the worst circumstances the city could face a $160,000 deficit, according to Novi Finance Director Les Gibson. City officials believe this would occur during the 1983-84 budget year.

However, because the city expects a significant amount of new construction, such as the Sheraton, luxury apartments, F.W.Kerr and Norris Industry to be added to the tax rolls next year, city administrators feel the city will have money to pay back taxpayers if it becomes necessary to give a refund.

Council Member Guy Smith asked if the rollback would impact the city's ability to provide services. Gibson responded that if the city experiences financial difficulty it could be in 1983-84, but he does not anticipate problems because of the anticipated increase in the tax base next year.

Council Member John Chambers stated that the state is forcing municipalities to be in the position of collecting increased taxes. "They hold the hammer on us with legislation like Truth in Taxation and Truth in Assessing, then they turn around and approve increases that we don't have anything to do with," he said.

Four candidates seek two seats on Novi board

Kathleen MUTCH

Kathleen Mutch doesn't want voters to compare her to her opponent because she thinks they have different things to offer.

Voters should look at who is most representative of their interests. Communication is very important. A person needs the ability to speak to others and get a point across, to be receptive and not jumping to conclusions and making decisions.

Mutch says her opponent has developed an "image" — and other board people have allowed him to create that image — of a financial whiz.

But when analyzed the image doesn't hold up, because her opponent's figures are frequently based on misconceptions and are inaccurate, she says.

Her position on school finances is that "barring an outcry to the contrary" she supports not cutting the budget.

If she had to cut the budget, rather than "chopping here and there," she would look at programs and determine if things are being done as efficiently as possible, Mutch says.

She also said the school district should look at alternative ways of maintaining existing programs. For example, "it may not be necessary to fight for (funding for) computers if you look at companies in the area to see if cooperative efforts can be arranged, using their expertise and their equipment. They can develop students with a loyalty to their company and the district benefits from the alternative method of financing."

The district should look at programs with high per-pupil costs and determine if there are ways to offer cooperative programs with neighboring school districts, she suggests.

The last place Mutch would cut the budget would be elementary education programs where students receive the foundations, she says.

She says she likes the changing attitude about vocational education and looking at "high tech areas."

"The district needs to look at the real-world labor market, look where they are at today and educate students for today. It should be planning ahead and we curriculum constantly revised."

Art, music and physical education should not be considered frills or "snatch" items. "A school district should have a full commitment to these areas. One way to do that is to further integrate them into the curriculum. It is to eliminate a whole program if it is not integrated."

She says the board as a whole need to become more involved in the community. "It's not enough to be accessible, the board needs to draw from the community network."

Regarding the increased number of grievances reaching the board level, Mutch responds: "The administration's attitude ideally should reflect the board's attitude. Whether by design or through omission, simply by not commenting, they are endorsing a certain administrative attitude.

"From some teachers I hear they do feel there is a get-tough attitude, which is not necessarily all bad. But there is a certain adversarial relationship that doesn't need to be negative."

When it comes to contract talks, she said it should be remembered that board members do not negotiate, they set parameters. "They don't eyeball it across the table with the union representatives."

She tends to favor a team-management style, "if not for any other reason than the more people with input the more likely they are to hit upon resolution for a problem."

She adds, however, that there must be recognition of "who has the ultimate responsibility at each level and where the discussion stops and the decision is made."

Art, music and physical education are part of a total program for the well-rounded individual, Schram says. "They are not frills until you don't have the money to take care of the basics. Some districts are in that position, but we're not."

Regarding the increased number of grievances reaching the board level, Schram said he and the board support the administration.

"Superintendent (Robert) Piwko's attitude is outstanding toward the staff and other administrators. He has been in the schools and the classrooms and is involved with teachers, administrators and student activities."

"When we hired Piwko we made a lot of telephone calls and knew a lot of grievances were filed in his former school district. We knew coming in that he would strictly enforce the contract. He is strictly enforcing the contract and that's what this board wants. We are happy with that and don't see any evidence that it's making enemies of the teachers."

"We do have a warm, close relationship with the staff that I believe is unique."

Schram also believes Novi taxpayers can afford programs offered by the district.

"Yes, they can afford it. There is no need to cut programs. But we have to watch, we have to consider the economic times... and shouldn't try to do more than we can afford. We should try to pull in our belt where we can."

Robert SCHRAM

"There are two issues in this race: the challenges facing Novi Schools in the next year and who is best equipped to help meet those challenges," incumbent Robert Schram says.

The 39-year-old school board trustee is seeking re-election to a four-year term. He contends his experience on the board, his record and his community involvement make him the best person to meet the district's challenges.

Union contracts for five employee groups are already being negotiated. Depending on the length of the contract, the settlements could "dictate what happens over the next three years. Education for the next three years is predicated on those settlements," he says.

A millage renewal is a challenge facing the district next spring. Schram believes the board has been responsible in this area. "We could have levied 30 mills, but we actually levied 28. We told the voters we would only levy what we needed."

He believes the Novi Schools now "are where they should be; providing for the needs of students." But to provide for the future the board will need to analyze student needs and react to those needs by adjusting curriculum if necessary, he says.

His general philosophy on curriculum is the district "can never forget basic education. The district must take basic education and keep building from there. You can't let as students can absorb it and funds are available."

Gilbert HENDERSON

"I think I have a lot to contribute in terms of how the district operates and how various bodies interact. It won't take a year or two to train me. I can step onto the board and at the first meeting make a contribution on policy and decision-making. I understand the whole process and can intelligently interact."

Gilbert Henderson dropped out of local politics once, but now is back in the thick of things by running for a one-year seat on Novi school board.

"I think I have a lot to contribute in terms of how the district operates and how various bodies interact. It won't take a year or two to train me. I can step onto the board and at the first meeting make a contribution on policy and decision-making. I understand the whole process and can intelligently interact."

His philosophy of education is that it's important to create an environment for learning.

"The elements are usually found in adult education: students are there by choice, course work is something they want to know and do, and there is an immediate reward in learning."

Person to Person...

A Matter of Opinion

Dr. James H. Luther

No person has ever thought of his or her own ideas as being wrong. Just the opposite is true. Each of us tends to think that our own ideas are the ones that are right. Why else would most accused criminals plead innocent in the judicial process? In his own mind, he thinks his ideas are right.

We enjoy one of the greatest systems of government in the history of man. Yet within this system, men differ on the course of action to take on any given issue.

When we face a serious decision regarding our health, we seek more than one medical evaluation before submitting our body to the edge of the surgeon's knife. The choice of surgeons, the right hospital, the time for surgery and other details become important to making our decision.

Consider what Jesus said, "...I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me" (John 14:6). Quite a claim! We must examine our opinion about God's salvation and Christ's claim, and then we must determine our way to God, or is there only one way?

Robert Y. Mangin, Assistant Pastor
First Baptist Church of Northville
217 N. Wing • Northville 348-1020

He also feels good about his record as a public servant, saying that he has "demonstrated courage when necessary."

"There comes a time when you have to tell the yelling crowd 'that's not right...' I have a decent courage level."

Henderson is especially concerned about the five union contracts that will be negotiated this summer.

He said the increased number of grievances reaching the board level can mean any of several things. "Either the contracts are poorly worded, union leadership is more militant or the administration has become more combative."

The school district in the past 10 years has done a good job to provide a good physical climate for learning, Henderson says. It also has done a good job of upgrading curriculum, and the quality of the teaching staff is good, he believes.

Now the district should give attention to "spending more time training middle management to get the job done. Research shows a building climate is impacted most by the quality of management. They make the system flow."

His next concern would be written-mid-term expectations of teachers. He defines what is acceptable and provide the district with a document that measures our expectations of an employee.

Henderson believes most Novi taxpayers can afford the programs now offered in the schools.

"When you talk about maintaining programs you have to ask at what level are they being maintained. I think the schools are offering what the taxpayers want, what they asked for and are willing to pay for. The taxpayers have been good to the school district."

If forced to cut the budget, Henderson said he would look for programs that don't have a direct impact on children in the classroom — such as nutrition. "Programs that don't impact routine classroom instruction" would be examined, he said.

Henderson said the district ideally should determine its needs based on the tax levy and budget accordingly. "But it has never operated that way and never will."

Instead the system takes available financial resources and makes the allocations necessary, he says.

Henderson says the district is in a good position because not all teachers are at the top of the pay scale, but he cautions "those days are coming." He also warns that the district should never build enough schools to take care of maximum populations. He suggests it will be necessary for board members to look hard at school building programs if the city returns to a growth phase.

His philosophy of education is that it's important to create an environment for learning.

"The elements are usually found in adult education: students are there by choice, course work is something they want to know and do, and there is an immediate reward in learning."

Diana CANUP

Until she got involved in the campaign, Diana Canup did not realize how "frivolous" the Novi Community Schools had become.

"For a school district our size things have gone a little overboard, they have to face the reality the rest of us are facing."

"I can't compete with those with a quality education. I can't compete with other people's experience. But I can ask questions. There are not enough questions asked. Why is what's happening in the school district the best kept secret in Novi? Don't tell me they can't cut frills and still keep a quality education."

Regarding the budget she believes it should be set by determining the amount of money available and working with that amount. "That's reality," she says.

Canup supports a curriculum committee designed to constantly review courses offered in the district. She describes it as a watchdog designed to find what students need by talking to students and their parents. "This curriculum committee must work all the time; talk to kids to see their goals rather than just leave it up to administrators."

Regarding the increased number of grievances reaching the board level, Canup says: "Administration can't let a person feel they can get away with something. They should let their department heads know they have to take care of problems."

"I'm not sure if sending grievances to the board is something that is starting now that hasn't been happening in the past or if this is a new form of management. Maybe before it was nipped in the bud. But it looks like someone, management or labor, is not doing their job."

"The people dealing out the orders need to know how to delegate and take care of a problem. They should determine how to work it out. They should either be extremely well staffed or get new management. The district should train its managers or get someone who knows how to handle these problems."

She believes Novi is doing very well as a school district. "It is highly ranked and attracts people as they move into the state," she explains. "Novi is thought of extremely well and is known across the country."

But the board can't be too "narrow-minded," she continues. "If they don't keep their eyes on the budget, the situation in the district could change, they can't live in a dream world."

The board can maintain the status of quality education and still keep the line on over-spending, Canup asserts.

"Everyone who works knows you determine your options. You decide this is plan A and this is plan B. Something might happen and plan A may not be possible. If you don't have options you're left without a plan."

"It's important to think before acting — that's maturity. They are acting like novices. We look like an adolescent school district. They have to pay attention to what is happening."

"They need someone on there who will do some serious digging. I don't see any thorough investigation or enough courses offered in the district. She describes it as a watchdog designed to find what students need by talking to students and their parents. "This curriculum committee must work all the time; talk to kids to see their goals rather than just leave it up to administrators."

Regarding the increased number of grievances reaching the board level, Canup says: "Administration can't let a person feel they can get away with something. They should let their department heads know they have to take care of problems."

Miller is in county race

Celeste Miller, a Novi Democrat, has filed nominating petitions for the 24th district seat on the Oakland County Board of Commissioners.

The 24th district includes Novi, Northville, South Lyon and Lyon Township.

She is vying for the seat presently held by John Calandro, a Northville Republican, who was appointed to the district following the resignation of former 24th District County Commissioner Dennis Murphy in December 1981.

Calandro said last week that he plans to attempt to retain the seat.

Miller said her main reason for running is "to improve the county's responsiveness to what local groups of citizens want it to do."

"I want to bring it closer to home; to be the ears for the people," she said. "I want to be on top of what their needs are and communicate that to the county."

Miller, who said she was encouraged to run by Michigan Senator Doug Ross (D-Oak Park), said she is developing a base of supporters and meeting with small groups to make them aware of her candidacy.

"I think there are a lot of Democrats with concerns who are willing to support another Democrat, and there are some people who are independent thinkers who will vote for a person and the issue they are standing for. I am hoping they will see I am that kind of person," she said.

Miller said the "Democratic stand of compassion for those in need can be combined with fiscal responsibility."

To familiarize herself with the issues, Miller said, she reads minutes of county commission meetings. "I'm very concerned about the kind of votes I've seen. On controversial issues the votes are divided 10-9 (strictly along party lines). I hope that through my involvement they would become more issue-oriented."

She also said she supports "use of a three month study of home sales to determine property tax assessments in Oakland County instead of using data from the past 30 months. Data from 30 months back includes information from when the housing industry was booming, and is unfair to use in today's recessionary economy," she said. "We need a new method of tax assessment in Oakland County."

Professionally, she has managed, supervised and organized systems as a consultant for skill training programs.

Miller is a graduate of Oakland University, has a master's in guidance and counseling from University of Michigan at Dearborn and is currently enrolled in a master's of management program at the school.

She has served on the board of directors of the League of Women Voters, Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Novu chapter, committee chairperson for the American Society for Training and Development, volunteer in the Michigan Citizens Lobby; member of the North Central Evaluation Team in 1980; and member of the Founders Society for Detroit Institute of Arts.

As a member of the League of Women voters she said she has developed an understanding of the elected official's role. She said she has been involved in health care activities and cable television through the league.

She is a member of the Professional Society for Training and Development and the American Association of University Women.

She is married to Novi School Board Trustee Norman Miller and has a teenage son, Brian. The Millers have lived in Novi for five years.

Merlin REEDS

Kenneth TUCKER

Kenneth TUCKER

"I'm independent. I'm not tied to anyone," said Merlin Reeds, 52, in outlining his candidacy for the Walled Lake school board.

"I'm not endorsed by the unions nor the administration. My only commitment is to the children."

Reeds does say, however, that he is dissatisfied with the present board. He said he believes the present board "is committed to factions and these factions do not really represent the interests of the children; the good of the children is not the basic reason for their decisions."

He also chides the board for the lack of board goals and its conduct. "I'm appalled by the lack of board goals," he said. "The board always appears to be putting out fires instead of making well-conceived plans."

"I'm also appalled at board conduct," he added. "I'm not pleased with their relationships with each other or the community. I would not indulge in personalities."

Reeds holds a BA degree from Michigan State. He previously has worked as a cost and general accountant for Dupont and a systems engineer for IBM. He served as director of the data processing division for the Oakland Intermediate School District and currently is president of his own firm—Merlin Data Systems, a consulting firm in the field of computer technology.

Reeds said he would not support a millage election because he believes it would be counter-productive with no chance of success. Instead, he said, the district should "take it in the ear for a year" and try to bring about some changes. "Some intelligent financial control by the board is needed," he said. "The community feels it is being extorted and I believe the community has lost fiscal and political control of the school system."

"The solution," he continued, "rests with the unions. I think they want to help, but the board has not created the atmosphere which will let them do what I think they want to do."

Reeds expressed reluctance to evaluate the performance of Superintendent Don Sheldon on the basis that he (Reeds) has not yet served on the board. He did say, however, that he has strong reservations about the leadership provided by top administration.

"Education takes place in the schools," he said. "But we need leadership at the top which lets the people in the field do what they're paid to do."

"The district's greatest need, according to Reeds, is 'a strong, effective concerned board to create an environment for leadership.'"

An interest in completing some of the projects initiated this year is the reason given by Kenneth Tucker, 38, for seeking re-election to the Walled Lake school board.

"I'm concerned about the bickering on the board and the way the board attempts to disallow input from one board member (Janet Callahan) because it disagrees with her opinions. And I'm concerned about the way the board has attempted to avoid Freedom of Information laws."

Eby also is critical of Trustees Patricia Jackson and David Roddy, charging that they have failed to perform "to the degree I thought they would perform." He specifically cites Roddy's "inability to communicate with the board."

A high school graduate who never finished college "due to boredom," Eby, 52, is the owner of an office-supply company in West Bloomfield and has been active in the founding of Datatronic Corporation and the Great Lakes Institute of Dental Technology in Warren. He also has worked at Triets Electronic School.

Additionally, he has served as president since 1979 of the West Bloomfield Homeowners Association, which represents approximately 60 of the 109 homeowners associations in that community.

Eby admits that his previous candidacies (the ran for the Walled Lake school board in 1974 and 1975 and for West Bloomfield Township supervisor in 1976, 1978 and 1980) have been unsuccessful, but says he will continue to run for public office because he wants to be involved in providing solutions.

"I'm concerned about property taxes and the future of public education," he said. "I don't have the answers, but I want to get involved as an insider so I can help in providing solutions."

"We must find new methods of funding to protect both the future of public education and the taxpayers," Eby said he is opposed to a millage increase because people are having trouble paying property taxes now. "I think the board needs someone who has run a successful business. It needs to take a long look at the way we run our schools."

If cuts become necessary, he said, his first priority would be to preserve the "three F's."

In terms of his evaluation of the superintendent, Eby called Don Sheldon a man of "impressive credentials, an excellent educator." He added, however, that he questions his administrative ability to handle millions of dollars.

Eby said the district's biggest need is "to be saved from itself."

In terms of his evaluation of the superintendent, Eby called Don Sheldon a man of "impressive credentials, an excellent educator." He added, however, that he questions his administrative ability to handle millions of dollars.

Eby said the district's biggest need is "to be saved from itself."

"I'm concerned with the bickering on the board and the way the board attempts to disallow input from one board member (Janet Callahan) because it disagrees with her opinions. And I'm concerned about the way the board has attempted to avoid Freedom of Information laws."

Eby also is critical of Trustees Patricia Jackson and David Roddy, charging that they have failed to perform "to the degree I thought they would perform." He specifically cites Roddy's "inability to communicate with the board."

A high school graduate who never finished college "due to boredom," Eby, 52, is the owner of an office-supply company in West Bloomfield and has been active in the founding of Datatronic Corporation and the Great Lakes Institute of Dental Technology in Warren. He also has worked at Triets Electronic School.

Additionally, he has served as president since 1979 of the West Bloomfield Homeowners Association, which represents approximately 60 of the 109 homeowners associations in that community.

Eby admits that his previous candidacies (the ran for the Walled Lake school board in 1974 and 1975 and for West Bloomfield Township supervisor in 1976, 1978 and 1980) have been unsuccessful, but says he will continue to run for public office because he wants to be involved in providing solutions.

"I'm concerned about property taxes and the future of public education," he said. "I don't have the answers, but I want to get involved as an insider so I can help in providing solutions."

"We must find new methods of funding to protect both the future of public education and the taxpayers," Eby said he is opposed to a millage increase because people are having trouble paying property taxes now. "I think the board needs someone who has run a successful business. It needs to take a long look at the way we run our schools."

If cuts become necessary, he said, his first priority would be to preserve the "three F's."

way or another toward Superintendent Don Sheldon. Her only dealings with him, she said, have been when he has demonstrated his poise under difficult circumstances. "My campaign does not revolve around evaluation of the superintendent," she said.

In evaluating the quality of education provided in Walled Lake schools, Venke dismisses the validity of the Michigan Education Assessment Program as a measuring instrument.

"Walled Lake should not be compared with West Bloomfield," she said. "The scores are overly stressed. I don't want to see us get to the point where we teach to the test and leave out other skills not measured on the test."

After serving on the Declining Enrollment and Facility Utilization Committee, Venke said she opposes the closing of another school at this time. The decline in enrollment only means there is enough space at the present time to house programs that previously were crowded in inadequate quarters.

Venke and her husband have two children, both of whom attend Walled Lake schools.

Extensive background in the field of education, 37 years of experience in the Walled Lake School District and a thorough knowledge of the community are among the reasons given by Mary Weborg in explaining her candidacy for the school board.

"I think I can contribute to a more efficient operation and cut down on argumentation and extended discussions," said Weborg, a retired teacher, whose list of qualifications runs the gamut from school principal to teacher to presidency of the Walled Lake PTO Council.

"I don't like to sling mud. I think the board has had its turn and probably did the best it could do. But I think a board member should have a full awareness of the community and know what it takes to be a teacher."

"I've served in just about every conceivable position, including tenure chairman, so I know what it takes to evaluate teachers and evaluate education. I know the school district and the problems in the schools."

Weborg expressed mixed emotions about a millage proposal. She said she herself is not anxious to pay more taxes but feels the revenues are needed and personally is willing to pay. "Two more mills won't hurt that much," she said.

Unlike some of her opponents, Weborg gives high grades to Superintendent Don Sheldon. "I've seen four different superintendents in Walled Lake and I respect Don Sheldon highly as an educator," she said. "I've never known him to bad-mouth his board or his teachers."

"He's a bright man and an educated man," she added. "We've loaded him down with work and he's in his office all the time. For the times we have right now, he's the right man."

Weborg also gives high grades to the quality of education provided by the school district. In fact, she said she believes Walled Lake offers as good a program as any school in the state.

She dismisses the results of the Michigan Education Assessment Program on the basis that it is not an accurate measure of achievement. "Every teacher in the state hates it," she said. "We should test kids on the basis of what they've been taught, not on the basis of what someone sitting in an ivory tower thinks they should be taught."

Weborg is reluctant to take a position on the need to close another school. She said she agrees with those people who say a decision should be postponed until enrollment figures are available in the fall.

"The district's greatest needs, she said, are 'money and the rebuilding of confidence.'"

"We need to get back on the positive side," she explained. "We need to have some confidence in the people who are responsible for providing education."

Thursday night performance of old-time favorites by the barbershop quartet. Saturday night will also feature musical entertainment.

Friday's special events include the "Lazay Summer Days" costume contest at 7 p.m. Leininger said men and women will compete to see who has the best circa-1900 costume.

"The women will wear dresses with the big, puffy sleeves, the men will wear... circa-1900 clothes," said Leininger.

The "husband calling" contests are slated for 9:45 and 10:45 p.m. Friday in the Beer Tent. In this contest, Leininger says, wives with "unique ways of calling their husbands" will have an opportunity to demonstrate their technique.

Contributing to the old-time atmosphere on Saturday is the demonstration by the 21st Michigan Volunteer Infantry from Greenfield Village, a muzzle-loaders group.

The infantry group, which appears with their old-time guns in Civil War dress, will put on demonstrations every hour from 1:30 p.m. and mingle with the crowd between demonstrations.

The annual "Almost Anything Goes" competition between teams representing City of Novi departments, surrounding municipalities, and other community groups will be held from 2-4 p.m. Saturday, culminating with a tug-of-war.

Based on the "Almost Anything Goes" television show, the contest features the teams performing "athletic" feats including things like tricycle-riding and a "doughnut race," where team members with their arms and legs connected together by inner tubes race a course against the clock.

Also scheduled for Saturday is a 4:30 p.m. "Tower of Flame" demonstration by the Gallagher Fire Equipment Company on the soccer field. A "public-service oriented event," Leininger says, Gallagher will use the "Tower of Flame" to demonstrate how the public can best deal with different types of house fires.

Another Saturday feature is a display of street and hotrod cars from 8 p.m. by Street Machine, Inc. of Detroit. At 6:30 p.m. dancers from Elaine's School of Dance will perform.

Saturday events especially for children include the noon "penny-fund" for those five-and-under and a "shoe race" for 6-7 year olds at 1:30 p.m.

Sunday brings two old-fashioned favorites: the noon watermelon-eating contest (for youngsters 8-12 years old, followed by the frog-jumping contest.

Children in the three divisions (4-7 year olds, 8-9 year olds, and 10-12 year olds) will test their frog-jumping ability in the Waxie Twain-inspired contest.

For those interested in testing their own skills, there will be a Frisbee-throwing contest Sunday at 3 p.m. There will be separate divisions for 7-9 year olds, 10-12 year olds, 13-15 year olds, and those 16 and up.

Schram, Henderson best choices in Novi

Novi voters have some difficult but enviable choices in the June 14 school election. The slate of qualified, informed candidates is one that would make other school districts envious.

with the community, but we do not doubt his ability to step back into office and rapidly reacquaint himself with the situation.

If elected Canup's would be a learning process, while Henderson's would be a catching-up process.

Our endorsement of Henderson should not be construed as criticism of his opponent. They both can do the job.

The race between Henderson and Diana Canup (as a write-in) for the one-year term might be viewed as a choice between experience and enthusiasm.

If previous service to the community is any indication, both Henderson and Canup will make a meaningful contribution to the school board. Both are former winners of the Distinguished Service Award presented by the Novi Jaycees.

Canup has demonstrated her commitment to Novi by work on numerous community groups and school committees.

Henderson has a record of public service that includes seven years on the school board and two years as mayor of the City of Novi. His is a record of vision and leadership.

Canup demonstrates an eagerness to learn what she can about the school board and ask questions, characteristics needed on the Novi school board.

Beyond his record, however, Henderson has a superior understanding of the system, how to determine the needs of the district and how to meet those needs. He operates at a level above that found in most candidates for the office.

Henderson has shown some indications he is "out of touch"

As a board member for the past four years he has at times spoken out when other board members remained silent. He has fought for a budget which is easier for board members and citizens to understand — a position we have supported.

It can be difficult to fight one's battles when there appears to be little or no support. We admire Schram's persistence and believe he has effected positive changes.

Schram's positions at times have been unorthodox, but he has learned to work with six other board members and stimulated thinking among them.

His opponent Kathleen Mutch, who also is running a write-in campaign, has grown as a candidate since she ran for election two years ago. She has not only maintained, but increased, her involvement in education-affiliated organizations since that time.

While her knowledge of educational issues would make her a valuable board member, we see no reason to unseat her opponent at this time.

Tucker, Venzke lead ballot in Walled Lake

We endorse KENNETH TUCKER and BONNIE VENZKE for the two four-year terms on the Walled Lake school board in the June 14 election.

We confess, however, that the decision was not easily reached. With the exception of Donald Eby, we gave serious consideration to endorsing each of the candidates at one time or another during our deliberations.

Although a bright man, Eby has not demonstrated a sustained interest in Walled Lake Schools and his discussion of issues involves generalities, not specifics.

Each of the other five candidates merits serious consideration, however. Each has flaws, each has assets.

Our endorsement of Tucker, for example, is based first on the extent of his involvement and work as a board member for the past four years. We tend to believe his claim that he works 20-30 hours per week on board matters. At the same time, we believe he needs to overcome some of his prejudices and improve his public treatment of school officials and occasionally, members of the audience.

The second endorsement proved tougher. Mary Weborg has a thorough knowledge on educational matters and is practically an institution in the community with a long record of public service. Merlin Reeds probably has the most impressive credentials and was the most impressive in his personal interview.

When asked to define the district's biggest need, Reeds responded that the board and administration must create an atmosphere that will allow "the people in the field" to provide education. It was a response all candidates should heed.

That brings us to Venzke and Roddy for the other endorsement. Roddy has not done poorly during his past year as a board member. We have been impressed on occasion with his willingness to keep an open mind.

On the other hand, his input has been limited over the past several months and we believe some of the other candidates are better able to provide significant contributions. Roddy's candidacy has value foremost as a member of a group that has brought about improvements and a new attitude of cohesiveness. Voters should not dismiss that attribute lightly.

Our endorsement of Venzke is based in part on the perception that she also will work for appropriate changes, avoid a defensive posture and maintain an open-mind on every issue.

We are further impressed by her concern with education and involvement in school activities over the past seven years. She has been active as a tutor, classroom aide and a PTA president in addition to voluntarily serving on two citizens' committees — the school finance committee and the facility utilization committee. Now, she said, she wants to serve the district as a board member. We believe she will be an asset.

Opening up

By Stephen Cvengros

On the wall of my father's hunting camp is a plaque that is facetiously titled "The Hunter's Code." It reads:

*Early to bed,
Early to rise,
Hunt like hell,
And make up lies.*

I came to really find out last week that my uncles and cousins adhere to that theory more than I had previously thought. Right from the oldest to my youngest cousin Johnny, who's 12 years old, they have the knack of storytelling down to an art.

Now it was never much of a secret that my grandfather, the old lumberjack, always had a tale for every occasion. As little tykes, my brothers, cousins, etc. would snicker whenever grandpa started up about his friends Dan or Myron.

So it really shouldn't have come as such a great shock to me that everyone insisted on telling everyone else fishing on the Flambeau Flowage in Mercer, Wisconsin that they were going to catch more, bigger and better fish than the next guy.

The need to tell stories among fishermen must be infectious.

My brother's son Dan, who had never before been fishing up there, announced in the truck on the way to pick up minnows that he was going to show everyone how to fish. That was before he'd even tossed out his first cast.

And one of the big tales, which is one of the more truthful ones, that made the rounds last week was about my cousin Gary shooting my grandfather's tame rabbit one winter and proudly showing them off for a picture — before being told that they weren't wild snowshoes.

After several days exposure to the stories, my cousin Johnny came up to me one evening after a long 12 hours on the water and asked me how many fish I caught.

"I don't know three or four," I responded.

"You don't know?"

"No. And I don't really care if I catch one fish."

"You liar!" he taunted, before accusing me of being the worst one out of the whole bunch.

It was an honest answer, but John thought it was the best story he'd ever heard. I was up there to spend some time with my father and uncles, get away from the concrete I love so much and visit "The Loon Capital of the World," where an everyday occurrence is watching bald eagles circle the sky.

Finally, when John confronted my uncle Don with the news that I didn't care whether I caught one fish, my uncle looked up from his tea and responded, "Me either."

"You, too!" Johnny said in astonishment, just about slapping his head.

"No, John, I don't want to catch one fish either — I want to catch 20 fish."

Relief sank back into Johnny's face that it was okay to go out in stink of big stringers filled with walleyes, crappies, pike, bass and muskies.

"I'll tell you how much I don't care, John, I'm thinking about not going fishing tomorrow," I later told him.

"Whatcha gonna do?" he eyed me, dare I say that I had chosen instead to sleep over fishing.

"I think I'm going to stay in the cottage and write."

"You any good at it?"

I took an embarrassing long pause in the den of storytelling and then — silence.

"No John, that's why he does it for a living," one of my older cousins Tom interjected and saved me.

"He does?" I was accompanied by a puzzled look from a sixth grader who had played hooky from English and spelling classes to play with hooks on the water.

So when everyone piled into the boats the next a.m., their tackle boxes and rods in tow, I toted out my equipment. My typewriter, notes and paper, and started into some storytelling of my own. Maybe it's just in the air.

Trial may be soon

Even though there are no outward signs of progress, prosecutor Slevin says things have been happening in the case.

"There have been several pre-trials something going on all the time," he said. But now, "it's just waiting for trial, it's ready to go."

While the rest of Wixom gets sore eyes looking at the boarded-up upstairs of the building, the bottom floor of which is occupied by a pizza shop, those involved are getting sore about the length of the wait for their day in court. For, they explain, each day's delay makes it harder to prove their respective cases.

Brady says the period of waiting for the case to come to trial has been too long. "I feel it does affect the case," he said, and is quick to assure that Coogan himself wants the trial over with as quickly as anyone.

"Mr. Coogan has done nothing to delay it in the least because of his unfortunate circumstances," said Brady. "This man has been facing charges for some 20 months, a cloud hanging over his head. Emotionally, what it does to his family, his business ... that's why he went to Texas, to try to make a new life for himself."

Brady assures that Coogan will return to Michigan for the trial, when it finally comes.

Meanwhile, investigator Kirby is also anxious to get to the case.

"The longer it takes to come to trial, the more hesitant the witnesses tend to be," he explained. And although they haven't run into that problem yet, getting subpoenas and witnesses ready for the trial and then being bumped from the court calendar has been frustrating.

The building? Eyesore and all, it will just have to stay, since either side could use it as evidence against the other.

Although Kirby says it probably doesn't have much evidentiary value, Wixom attorney Thomas Connelly says to tamper with the structure would be to invite a mistrial.

"If the evidence (the building) were removed it could be argued by Coogan that it could have been used in his defense," he said.

Brady says if the building were torn down, he would move for a mistrial, and that there's no reason not to leave it standing until the trial. "It's not an eyesore, it's not a dangerous building," he said.

Although Slevin says it's too bad that some people think the building is an eyesore, "I'm not going to destroy any evidence until the trial occurs."

When will that be? The best estimate is between now and September, but then again ...

time I'm going to have for parts and rec," he says. "But, when cable's slow, I can just be showered with parks and rec."

"I'll tell you how much I don't care, John, I'm thinking about not going fishing tomorrow," I later told him.

"Whatcha gonna do?" he eyed me, dare I say that I had chosen instead to sleep over fishing.

"I think I'm going to stay in the cottage and write."

"You any good at it?"

I took an embarrassing long pause in the den of storytelling and then — silence.

"No John, that's why he does it for a living," one of my older cousins Tom interjected and saved me.

"He does?" I was accompanied by a puzzled look from a sixth grader who had played hooky from English and spelling classes to play with hooks on the water.

Walled Lake Drive gets new surface

By the time Walled Lake officials are through with it, area drivers aren't going to recognize Walled Lake Drive.

Not only is the city getting ready to resurface the road from Pontiac Trail to Fourteen Mile, and not only will the entire street be closed to through traffic during the expected six weeks of construction — but large trucks may not be able to use the road after Walled Lake Drive reopens in August.

The city council last week authorized City Manager J. Michael Dornan to look into weight limitations on Walled Lake Drive to see if the guidelines could be lowered. Should the limit be dropped, some delivery trucks may be forced to seek other routes around Walled Lake — including Decker, Haggerty or West roads.

"The thing we're trying to do is preserve our road and prevent (trucks) from tearing it up," stated Council Member Edward Horsman. "Is it possible to restrict commercial traffic from driving there except for delivery purposes?"

Noting that even pickup trucks are considered commercial vehicles, Dornan said the city would probably not want to go quite that far but might be able to consider limiting traffic to a certain size of truck. That could remove the bulk of the heaviest traffic.

Mayor Pro Tem Walter Lewandowski and Mayor Gaspare LaMarca asked Dornan whether the city would be able to install stop signs or stop lights, as some residents have requested, to restrict traffic.

"Really, this is a residential section we're talking about," Lewandowski said, commenting that he felt commercial traffic should be rerouted if possible. Lewandowski suggested Walled Lake work with Novi and the Oakland County Road Commission to resolve turning problems at the intersection of Fourteen Mile and Walled Lake Drive.

Dornan recommended the city first undertake a study of weight limitations, pave the road and then look at how fast speeds will be on the smoother surface of Walled Lake Drive before the council considers requesting stop signs or stop lights to restrict traffic flow.

Judges 'ecstatic' about new court

while the criminal court remained in the city-owned building. "We're really looking forward to being under one roof," she said. "We will find it much more efficient ... it has not been easy to operate a court with the two separate locations."

Perry noted that Judges Harold Bulgarelli, Martin Boyle, and Michael Batchik will finally have their own offices after years of playing "musical chairs."

"Because there was not enough space in the old locations for each judge to have an office in each building, they were forced to share office space. The judges never had their own offices," she said. "Every third week one judge would move ... they were playing musical chairs. Every time they wanted something, it was usually at the other location."

The judges, Perry said, sacrificed personal offices because it was easier to move them around than to move clerks and records from building to building. Judge Bulgarelli says he is "ecstatic" about the move, noting it will relieve the overcrowded conditions that bothered him about operating from the other two locations. "We're all excited about it," he said. "In the old buildings we had no conference room, witnesses and everybody were just standing in the hallways ... we're going to have conference rooms, everybody will have their own chambers, their own offices."

In addition, Bulgarelli said the clerks will finally have enough space from which to operate.

"It's going to be so much better for the clerks to have more room to work in," he said, noting that before, clerks were all "on top of each other," with some even working out of a trailer.

The renovation of the Consumers Discount building, which Perry says was built in the 1940s, included a complete interior remodeling, said Malinowski.

"We completely gutted the building," said Malinowski. "No interior partitions were left standing ... we had a new facility designed to accommodate three judges and we built it inside the building." The work also included re-roofing, some exterior work, landscaping and resurfacing the parking lot.

Bulgarelli says the court plans to hold open houses when remodeling and moving are complete.

Downtown plan ok

Plans for Liberty Street involve an asphalt overlay, landscaping, pedestrian walkways and flared curbs. Also, county planners have drawn up a proposal to beautify the point near to Stonewacker, an idea that has generally been well received by the city and the Commerce Township Area Historical Society, which owns Stonewacker.

"I think with the improvements this city's going to be making this summer along Liberty Street and Walled Lake Drive, you'll be seeing a lot of improvements," Schutt said. "I hope everything works — we've got a lot of enthusiastic people."

The next step, Schutt said, will be for county planners to formulate a study on how the improvements can be implemented, present the text to the city council (possibly in July) and let the city move ahead.

Yes to Michigan

Fortune 500 companies filling high-tech park

By PHILIP JEROME

There was a feeling that something special was taking place when a small group of people gathered in Novi for groundbreaking ceremonies for a new building last Thursday.

Something special was taking place. While ear-busting equipment drowned away in the background, the officials, including representatives from the State Department of Commerce, broke ground for a new 82,000 square foot sales office for the Hewlett-Packard Company, a Palo Alto, California-based designer-manufacturer of precision electronic products.

But something else, something more important even than groundbreaking ceremonies for a company the size of Hewlett-Packard, also was taking place.

Specifically, the groundbreaking ceremonies represented another step toward development of what may become one of the top high-tech centers in the State of Michigan, if not the entire Midwest.

And in case the term "high tech" doesn't ring a bell, remember that it is one of the key ingredients in the location of the activity is Orchard Hill Place — a 65-acre office and commercial development in Novi near the I-275/Eight Mile intersection.

Developers of Orchard Hill Place include Emro Land Company and Eight-Hagerty Properties, whose general partners include Edward Samson, Richard Nordstrom and Joseph Gerak. Samson and Nordstrom are the principals in the firm of Nordstrom-Samson Associates, architects, engineers and planners who have been responsible for major institutional, industrial, commercial and office buildings across the Midwest for the past 20 years.

Gerak was executive vice president of Campbell Development Company, which develops, builds, finances and leases office and industrial parks and buildings throughout the United States.

Emro Land Company is wholly-owned by Marathon Oil Company, which is a subsidiary of United States Steel Corporation. Emro has acquired and/or developed real estate in many sections of the United States, including a 3,000 acre portion of Hilton Head Island in South Carolina.

Although Orchard Hill Place has been taking shape gradually over the last five years, its potential significance to Michigan is just beginning to be recognized.

In announcing the Hewlett-Packard groundbreaking, Gerak noted that efforts to date have been low-key. "But it's beginning to get to the point where it's hard to keep it a secret any more," he observed.

Buildings for two companies — Digital Equipment Corporation and Norris Industries — already have been completed and are being occupied. Construction now is underway on the Hewlett-Packard building. And Gerak hopes to begin construction of a 275-room Novi Hilton this year.

All four — Digital, Norris, Hewlett-Packard and Hilton — are Fortune 500 companies.

And the tenants are significant in and of themselves, they may be more significant because of what they represent. By choosing to construct major facilities in Michigan, they have demonstrated that big business still has confidence in the state.

Even more significant, Digital, Norris and Hewlett-Packard are "high-tech" companies — the kind of companies the state has been hoping to attract.

So, who exactly are the major tenants in Orchard Hill Place? Here's a closer look:

Digital Equipment Corporation, which has leased two full floors in one of Orchard Hill Place's new office buildings, ranks 137th in the 1982 Fortune 500 with 1981 sales of $3.198 billion. Headquartered in Massachusetts, Digital is prominent in the design, manufacture, sales and service of computers and associated peripheral equipment and related software and supplies.

Digital's products and services are used in scientific research, education, data analysis, industrial controls, time-sharing, commercial data processing, health care, instrumentation, engineering and simulation. The firm has 59,300 employees, operates worldwide sales offices and has manufacturing facilities in Canada, Ireland, Scotland, West Germany, Taiwan and Hong Kong as well as the United States.

Norris Industries, which recently constructed a 75,000 square foot research and office park at Orchard Hill Place, reported 1980 sales of $399 million, good for 43rd place on last year's Fortune 500 list. The firm was acquired by Norind Holdings in December 1981.

Based in Long Beach, California, Norris is involved in the design, manufacture and sales of building, industrial and defense products, centered on the application of advanced metalworking technology.

The company has 9,600 employees and operates plants in the United States, Australia, Belgium, Canada and Great Britain.

Hewlett-Packard is constructing a $4.5 million building of 82,000 square feet at Orchard Hill Place. The company ranks 110th on the 1982 Fortune 500 list with sales of $3.578 billion in 1981.

Hewlett-Packard focuses on the design, manufacture, marketing and service of a broad array of precision electronic instrument and systems for measurement analysis and computation. The company manufactures more than 4,000 products which are used in business, engineering, science, education and medicine.

Those products include business and scientific computers, data terminals and printers, medical electronic equipment, financial calculators and desktop computers and scientific measurement devices such as gas and liquid chromatographs and mass spectrometers.

Hewlett-Packard has 60,500 employees worldwide and production plants in the United States, West Germany, France, Scotland, Singapore, Brazil and Malaysia.

Also located within Orchard Hill Place is a branch of the National Bank of Detroit which operates some 107 offices in metropolitan Detroit and such overseas locations as London, England; Frankfurt, West Germany; Tokyo, Japan; and Nassau in the Bahamas.

Gerak said he anticipates the growth of Orchard Hill Place will continue. One of the keys, he says, is the site's strategic, high-traffic location. Situated just off I-275, Orchard Hill Place is served by I-275 — the major north-south bypass freeway in the Detroit area. Further, it enjoys the benefits of I-275's intersections with both I-96, one of Michigan's two main east-west freeways, and Eight Mile, a major artery traversing the entire Detroit metropolitan area.

Further, Orchard Hill Place is within quick reach of several significant points in the greater Detroit area. Detroit Metropolitan Airport, for example, is 30 minutes away. Twelve Oaks Mall is five minutes away. Downtown Detroit and the Ford River Rouge Plant are both 20 minutes away and the University of Michigan is just a 30 minute drive.

Gerak is quick to cite additional advantages:

- An abundance of high-quality offices and commercial land with attractive work settings and ample room for expansion of facilities.
- Quick access to the multitude of financial, governmental, cultural, educational and recreational services and facilities of greater Detroit.
- Presence of a ready-made market for goods and services in Orchard Hill Place's "home" area of Novi, Northville, Livonia and Farmington Hills — a population of 350,000 it is the swiftest-growing part of Detroit.
- Close proximity of support businesses and services, including a regional shopping center and first-class restaurants, highlighted by the Novi Hilton which will feature convention and meeting facilities available to serve the enterprises located at Orchard Hill Place.

Gerak emphasizes that Orchard Hill Place has been designed with intelligence and care by some of the most experienced and well-known developers in the Midwest. "We believe," he said, "Orchard Hill Place is the premiere office development property available today in the state."

What's important for Michigan is that "high-tech" industries of the stature of Digital Equipment Corporation, Norris Industries and Hewlett-Packard are not only interested in the state, but are investing their money to be located here.

Governor Milliken ought to be pleased. "High-tech" in Michigan is becoming a reality.

Business Briefs

CARL E. PFEIFFER, president and chief executive officer of Qualex Corporation, has resigned from the board of directors of Manufacturers National Corporation. The announcement was made by Dean E. Richardson, chairman of Manufacturers National Corporation.

Pfeiffer has served as a director of the corporation since February 10, 1978. Qualex Corporation, the largest independent tube manufacturer in the United States, is headquartered in Houston, Texas. Pfeiffer's resignation results from the difficulty in meeting the time requirements of serving as a director in an area far from his company's headquarters.

Richardson said Manufacturers National Corporation is "grateful for Mr. Pfeiffer's dedicated service over the past four years and understands the difficulty of meeting board obligations in Michigan."

JAMES STEEL, manager of Fox Portrait Studios, Inc., in Northville has been elected to a three-year term on the board of directors of the Detroit Professional Photographers Association (DPPA).

Steel has been a member of the association since 1977. Earlier this year he was awarded a scholarship by DPPA to study advanced portraiture at Winona School of Professional Photography at Winona Lakes, Indiana.

MIKE HAGGERTY (left), Hilton sales director, holds the plaque signifying that the Plymouth Hilton Inn on Northville Road has been elected by the American Automobile Association for being among the state's finest accommodations. John Piantas, AAA vice president of corporate services, made the presentation.

HENRY STARR, president of Starr Advertising, Inc., has been elected a member of the Overseas Automotive Club, Inc., headquartered in New York City. As the club's only non-manufacturing member, Starr fulfilled membership requirements through his agency's involvement in marketing automotive aftermarket products in Europe, Asia, the Middle East and South America.

The Overseas Automotive Club is a non-profit organization formed to promote and protect international markets for American automotive products and enhance the prestige and goodwill of the industry.

Members, while accorded certain privileges and benefits, also are required to maintain a standard of business in furtherance of the common goals of the organization.

DR. DONALD M. WAYNE, D.D.S., has joined the staff of Family Dentistry at Providence's Novi Ambulatory Care Center. A 1965 graduate of Northville High School, he was graduated from the University of Michigan and the University of Detroit School of Dentistry. His graduate training in orthodontics was completed at the University of Michigan in June, 1981.

Dr. Wayne is a board-eligible candidate of the American Board of Orthodontics and a member of the American Association of Orthodontists. He will provide complete orthodontic services to patients of family dentistry at the Novi Center, Ten Mile at Haggerty Road.

PSYCHOTHERAPY AND COUNSELING SERVICES, at 511 North Center in Northville, announces implementation of a new therapy program designed for persons suffering from agoraphobia.

According to Stephen Paul Stocker, ACSW, director of clinical services, agoraphobia is a much more common problem than previously realized. Typical symptoms of this condition, he states, include the fear of going far from home, fear of being alone or far from help, fear of crowded public places, such as streets, stores and buses.

Most agoraphobics also fear they will lose control over their own reactions and suffer a panic attack. Symptoms of agoraphobia frequently begin between the ages of 18 and 35, he says, and untreated cases often persist for many years. More than two-thirds of the sufferers are women.

The treatment program utilized by Psychotherapy and Counseling Services integrates the latest advances in clinical hypnosis, relaxation strategies and behavioral psychotherapy. Stocker states, indicating that the first of a series of mental health information reports, Agoraphobia, is now available. Anyone interested in receiving this free report may contact the firm.

Not for eating

Elaine Schleele, left, and Jean Reinhold, employees of Long's Fancy Bath Boutique, a division of Long Plumbing, at 190 East Main in Northville, smilingly display the "wedding cake" they created for a window display. Lace and satin-edged towels and tiny rosebud soaps were used for the creation, which, they suggest, can be both a decoration and gift at a bridal shower.

Memory Keepers for Graduates

Distinctive albums by Hallmark are the perfect way to save graduation memorabilia. "Graduation Memories" can be personalized with the graduate's own photo on the cover. $17.00. Other albums and address books from $9.00.

The Write Gift for Dad

Crafted from richly grained natural woods, Hallmark writing instruments are the gift Dad will treasure for a lifetime. Dress up his correspondence even more with this distinctive new stationery by Hallmark. Stationery $7.50. Notes $3.75.

In nearly every home there are perfectly beautiful diamonds that aren't shown.

After all, a diamond collecting dust in a dresser drawer is nobody's best friend.

Which is not only a shame, but economically unsound, because your diamonds are never seen.

That's where Diamond Boutique comes to the rescue.

Bring us your sleeping beauties. We'll transform them.

First, we clean the diamond and appraise its current market value.

Then we place it in a setting that plays up the diamond for all it's worth - shows off its weights, its clarity, its brilliance, and makes it beautiful.

We'll even melt down the old ring, and credit you for 100% of its gold value.

After all, a diamond that's never worn is nobody's best friend.

Diamonds are forever,
but mountings are not.

THE RICH PLAN
Our Promise...

There is no simple answer to whether one of our 24 different programs will suit your needs, however, if you have a typical family and like top quality foods, — appreciate the value of proper nutrition, seriously want to fight today's food costs, then you owe it to your family and your pocket book to get the facts. We'll be happy to let you compare. We'll show you exactly how we can feed your family better. There is no obligation. But when you realize you'll be spending thousands of dollars at the store every year, doesn't it make sense to get the most for your food dollar and your staples at wholesale prices.
