

Builder objects to labeling homes 'low quality'

By KATHY JENNINGS

Don't tell Cynthia Johnson she lives in "low-quality, tract type" housing. "Anyone who doesn't like these houses hasn't lived in one," Johnson says of the 1,200 square-foot ranch home at 24141 Nilan she and her husband Gregory purchased in July. "I'm somewhat insulted people are saying these kinds of things. I didn't realize I was living in such an elite area and didn't live up to their standards," Johnson says with a touch of irony in her voice. "I don't care for the low-income label. When you say low-income you think of some poor person on food stamps."

Both Johnson and her husband are 24-years old and their home in Novi, their first, cost them everything they had. Her husband supports the family, while she remains home with seven-month old Alicia. With their house payment, the young couple has enough left each month to buy groceries, Johnson said jokingly.

Even so, she believes buying the home was a wise decision.

"We didn't feel we were buying a tract home at all. We watched it being built and we were very pleased."

Until they found their present home, Johnson said the search for a home had left her and her husband discouraged. "We didn't want to move into an area that didn't have good schools. We looked at homes for three months and most of them had no character, no personality."

"I would rather have lived in a nice apartment than buy some of the homes we looked at. The standard of living is higher in an apartment than in many of the neighborhoods with old homes we were shown. In some of the places we looked, we were told we couldn't touch anything with an attached garage unless we wanted to pay well over $60,000."

Since Memorial Day, 24 homes on the order of the Johnsons have gone up in Whispering Meadows subdivision. Twelve of the homes, which are purchased before they are constructed, are occupied. According to builder Craig Hills an offer has been made to purchase 44 additional lots where homes will be built next year.

Last week, a group of residents led by Nancy Covert asked the city council to enact "emergency quality-housing zoning ordinances" in order to maintain high property values in Novi's residential areas.

Covert told the council new homes are threatening existing homes in subdivisions such as Whispering Meadows and Simmons Orchard.

That attitude surprises Johnson, who says her immediate neighbors have not commented on her home. "Everyone has been real nice."

Builder Craig Hills also bristles at the criticism his homes have taken. He particularly objects to complaints that his home may be "low quality."

"The quality of these homes is as good or better than the existing homes," he says. "I use quality building materials and they are more energy efficient — they have to be to

Political action group organizes

By KATHY JENNINGS

PLAN — People Looking After Novi. That's what 18 residents are calling themselves as they set about watching Novi's city council, planning board and school board.

The recently-formed group announced its existence last week when its president, Nancy Covert, asked the city council for strict standards in Novi's subdivisions.

PLAN started as a loosely-knit group of neighbors who "sat around in family rooms" of various homes at various times for four months, then decided there was a need for a more formal organization, according to Covert.

They decided to form a self-styled political action group and elected officers: Covert, president; William Wineman, vice president; Paula Docherty, secretary; Nancy Janik, treasurer; and Linda Weise, social chairperson.

Covert said most members so far reside in Novi's southeast quadrant, but others concerned about the same issues as PLAN have since joined.

"These are citizens who really care about Novi. We've attracted others who share the same sentiments, but who don't know where to turn," Covert said.

They are residents who have been drawn together because their subdivisions are not complete and they're concerned about how the area will develop when homes finally are built again, Covert said.

"We came together with the concept we would be part of a group with a goal of informing ourselves about what is happening in city government," Covert said. "We want first-hand knowledge of what is going on and we will use this group as a vehicle to express our concerns."

Without first-hand knowledge of the city and school district's actions, she explained, it is difficult to provide elected and appointed officials with educated input. To remedy that, PLAN will send representatives to public meetings. Those representatives will report back to the group.

The idea behind the group was that if members educated themselves they could "get in on the ground floor process" of local government, Covert said.

"We found that on a regular basis, and individually, hardly anyone ever goes to these meetings unless they have a specific need or concern facing them. That is too transitory. We wanted to have an ongoing impact.... A number of us wanted to do this and we're excited about it. No one else was doing it," Covert explained.

The group's primary focus will be on "sound planning in keeping with the city's ordinances and master plan," she said.

Rezonings, the Town Center proposal and a quality-housing ordinance are examples of the issues PLAN hopes to address in the future.

"Novi seems to be in a stage of transition and growth. We want to have input into that development. We represent primarily homeowners' interest and we recognize there must be a balance of interests within the city. We want to have the knowledge so we can address that balance."

Covert added that the group believes the city is on "the right track with its master plan, although it needs to work with its ordinances so they speak more directly to standards. We believe we have a role to play in that area."

She indicated that most members also have school-aged children and are concerned about the Novi schools. Covert said, however, they are "impressed with the quality education" being offered.

Another goal of PLAN is to publicize Novi, improve its image and encourage city leaders to do likewise.

"When you've got a good thing you should make it known," she said.

"We believe Novi has an image problem. Those of us who live here know we have committed elected and appointed officials, but it's not well known outside the community. We want to be the public cheerleaders for what this town is all about."

Covert said she believes Novi has an image problem because people are not sure how the city will develop and are leery of settling here for that reason.

"We would like to create an image throughout the area of a community where people can feel safe and secure. That was our motivation for getting together."

The Ayearsts — Elena, Anita, Lana, Muffin, Lana and Richard — have no complaints with snow; it beats Texas dust

Texan 'nightmare' brings family home

By KATHY JENNINGS

When the snow starts piling up and the wind whips the drifts, you won't hear the Ayearsts complaining. After a year in Texas they're happy to be back in Michigan where the winters may be frigid, but the people are warm.

In the fall of 1980 the Ayearsts sold their home in Novi and headed for Texas, back when it was being billed as the land of opportunity.

Instead they found a nightmarish landscape made more for bugs than humans, where the trees are sickly, southern hospitality is skin deep and the people even drive differently.

"It year was the worst year I ever spent in my life," says Richard Ayearst as he stirs his coffee at the kitchen table in his home in Simmons Orchard. "It was the biggest rat race of my life. I felt like I was constantly battling for survival — it was one battle after another. I lived in constant fear of what would happen the next day."

"If we can keep just one family from making the same mistake we did, telling this story will be worth it," Lana Ayearst says.

What the Ayearsts didn't realize when they left was the difference between Michigan's upwardly mobile way of life and the Texan way of doing things. They found Texas divided into the haves and have-nots. And the have-nots did not believe they could improve themselves.

"There was no middle class," Lana says. "You either have it or you don't. We couldn't believe the shacks and shanties. We couldn't believe people actually lived there. But we also saw homes that make places in Bloomfield Hills look like shacks."

"There was almost a snobbery against the working class," Richard says.

Anyone who moves to Texas should be prepared for culture shock, the Ayearsts warn.

"It's a whole different way of living," Lana says.

There were the Baptist Bible thumpin' families who were prejudiced against those of other religions and race. Or at the other extreme — the men whose major interests were booze, broads and pickup trucks.

"They lived for fighting, womanizing and buying pick-up trucks," Richard said.

"Their priorities are completely different," Lana said. "A pickup truck is a status symbol down there. Even if you have a car you have a pickup truck. We saw trucks parked next to shacks. The trucks were better than their houses."

And it's like going back in time 20-30 years, Richard says. "For entertainment they cruise up and down and go to drive-ins. I think we're 20-30 years ahead of them."

One problem Lana experienced was Texans who "looked down on people without an accent."

With her rapid speech, Lana encountered coolness when she went to the beauty shop each week. It was as if there were an invisible barrier around her. She drew attention everytime she opened her mouth.

Richard found it easier to meet people since he was working, and he reports some were friendly and willing to help when needed. But there were more bad experiences than good ones.

There is a joke they tell in Texas. "Do you know the difference between a Yankee and a damn Yankee? The damn Yankee stays."

It's cute the first time you hear it, but

Four sergeants named by Novi police

Four Novi police officers have been promoted to the rank of sergeant, raising the number of sergeants in the department to five.

The four new sergeants are Gerald Burnham, David Bulter, Ralph Fluhart and John Johnson.

The four officers received their promotions in ceremonies at Hudson's Greenery Restaurant at Twelve Oaks. Chaplain Dale Gross gave the invocation and Police Chief Lee BeGole handled introduction of guests, including city officials.

The four were promoted after competitive examinations which included a written exam, oral-board exam and a chief's evaluation. Six Novi officers applied for the four positions.

Captain Richard Faulkner said the new sergeants will be "shift commanders," serving as uniformed sergeants with duties that may be "designated or assigned on an individual basis."

"These officers will definitely be an asset to the City of Novi as far as first-line support is concerned," said Faulkner, calling the promotions "another page in the history of the Novi Police Department."

The 28-year old Novi department has had just five sergeants in its history. Gordon Nelson was the lone sergeant on staff prior to the recent promotions.

Burnham is a 14-year veteran of the department, formerly assigned to the General Services Division as a plain clothes detective. He also has served on the road patrol and been assigned to mail detail.

Bulter, an 11-year veteran, was promoted from corporal on the road patrol. He previously worked on the Special Investigative Unit which handled undercover work.

Fluhart, a veteran of the Novi Department for 13 years, also was a road patrol corporal.

Johnson, a 15-year veteran, has been reassigned from the traffic division and staff officer and staff leader assigned to records and identification.

The promotions had been delayed by a grievance filed on the grounds that contract language provides vacancies must be filled within a certain period of time. The city took the stand that the sergeant's positions were newly-created positions, not vacancies. With settlement of the grievance, the department proceeded with examinations for the positions.

"That's all past history," Faulkner said. "All those obstacles were hurdled."

City slates events to ring in holidays

Novi residents will welcome the holiday season with two special community events during the coming week.

The Novi Choralaires will present "A Christmas Concert" at the Holy Family Catholic Church this Saturday at 7 p.m. and the Novi Jaycees will hold their annual Community Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony next Monday outside city hall at 7 p.m.

Both events are free and the entire community is invited to participate.

The Choralaires have planned a special program of Christmas music for the entire family that will include excerpts from "Gloria" by Vivaldi, "Behold A Star from Jacob Is Shining" by Mehdelssohn, "It's the Most Wonderful Time of the Year" and a "Christmas Celebration" medley.

In addition, the audience will be invited to join the Choralaires in singing some favorite Christmas carols during the performance. The Holy Family Catholic Church is located on Meadowbrook Road between Ten Mile and Grand River.

The official start of the holiday season in Novi will be marked next Monday when the Novi Jaycees sponsor their annual Community Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony on the lawn outside city hall on Ten Mile, just east of Taft Road.

Mayor Robert Schmid will flick the switch to light the beautiful tree that was moved to the site by the Jaycees three years ago. Ceremonies begin at 7 p.m.

Various community groups as well as the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts will be participating in annual tree-lighting ceremonies. And there also will be singing of Christmas carols.

The Novi Jaycee Auxiliary will provide refreshments in the Novi Public Library following ceremonies.

Everyone's invited to get into the "Spirit of the Season" by attending both the concert and tree-lighting ceremonies.

Second cab company licensed

Novi residents now have a choice of two companies when they want a taxi cab as a result of action by the Novi City Council.
 Specifically, the council voted 4-2 to approve an application from Simplistic Transportation to license three cabs in the City of Novi.
 Novi currently is served by the Community Cab Company which has licenses for five vehicles.
 Mayor Robert Schmid and Council Members Martha Hoyer, Ron Watson and Patricia Karevich voted in favor of the action, while dissenting ballots were cast by John Chambers and Robert Shaw.

While voting to approve Simplistic's application for three cabs, the council took no action on license applications from two other companies. The Southfield Cab Company had asked licenses for five taxis, while Huron Valley Veterans Cab Company was seeking to license two vehicles.
 Representatives from Simplistic, Southfield and Huron Valley made their pitches to license additional cabs in Novi at the November 8 council meeting, but the council postponed a decision pending input from administration regarding the need for additional taxi services.
 In addition, Mitchell Roberts of the Community Cab reported November 8 that his company is barely making a profit and said licensing of other companies in the city would invite financial disaster. Roberts said Community Cab has five cabs and only three of them operate.
 Further complicating council's decision was a legal opinion rendered by City Attorney David Fricke which stated that the city's right to license taxi cab companies is limited to considerations of safety on the roads.
 "A municipality has the right to limit the use of the streets for taxi cab business purposes, if the limitation... (makes) the streets more safe and convenient for the use of the public," said Fricke.
 Hoyer questioned the need for additional taxis in Novi, noting that the only complaint about cab availability to have come from Sheraton Oaks. Acknowledging Hoyer's comments, City Manager Edward Kriewall responded that Sheraton Oaks believes quick service is essential to the success of the hotel. He said Sheraton Oaks had indicated the service provided by Community Cab is not up to expectations and is an important element in the hotel's service package.
 "They feel quite adamant about it," Kriewall reported.
 Kriewall cited Southfield Cab for having operated in the city in the past without benefit of a license and expressed support for not licensing any additional taxis. "Community Cab has supported this community a long time," she said. "Now that there's more business coming in, these other companies are coming in."
 Shaw commented that he did not believe the city had grounds to deny licenses to any of the companies because of the legal opinion, but his motion to grant licenses to all three companies died for lack of support.
 Watson subsequently moved that the city approve the application of Simplistic to license three additional cabs in Novi, stating that he believed there was an appropriate number to serve the community.
 The motion was approved on a 4-2 vote with Shaw and Chambers dissenting. Shaw opposed the motion on the basis of the legal opinion that the city cannot deny licenses unless the number of cabs will create a traffic hazard on city streets. Chambers said his vote was based on the fact that the only complaint about the level of service had come from Sheraton Oaks.
 "I'm looking out for the welfare of the public as a whole, not just one hotel," he said. "There seem to be no complaints from the general citizenry regarding the quality of service provided by Community Cab."

Despite the legal opinion, council members maintained that they were, in fact, empowered by ordinance to limit the number of taxi cab licenses if a sufficient number of cabs are licensed to adequately serve the needs of the public.

Efforts by the City of Novi to rezone the Grand River corridor to light industrial in conformance with the master plan have run into a snag that will necessitate a restudy of the area by the Novi Planning Board.
 Planning Consultant Charles Cairns has advised the Novi City Council that he believes the planning board must restudy the portion of Grand River that lies between Taft and Beck roads because the council denied recommendations to rezone commercial property in that portion at its October 25 meeting.
 "Because the council has decided to retain some of the existing commercial zoning on Grand River between Taft and Beck, we feel the area must go back to the planning board to discuss various alternatives," said Cairns at Monday's meeting.
 "Our concern is for the potential of strip commercial development in that area which we feel is contrary to good planning," he said.
 "We may come back with the same recommendation to rezone the commercial districts to light industrial, but we definitely need an opportunity to re-evaluate the area."
 "Our concern is about stopping the potential for strip commercial development along Grand River between Taft and Beck roads."
 The city has been attempting to rezone property along the Grand River corridor to a light industrial classification in accordance with the master plan for more than a year. The concept in designating the Grand River corridor for light industrial on the master plan was to create the potential for development of a light-industrial park.
 Efforts to rezone the corridor to light industrial were approved by the council

 — Charles Cairns, Planning consultant

Council delays zoning decision

After listing to owners state that rezoning the property from commercial to light industrial would adversely affect the value of the land, the council departed from the recommendations from its consultant and planning board and decided to retain the existing commercial designation.
 Specifically, the council voted October 25 to retain the commercial designations on the parcels currently occupied by the five-unit Fairlane Motel and Wilkins Auto Parts on the north side of Grand River. Additionally, property on the south side of Grand River from the corner of Taft Road west to the Pit Stop was retained as commercial.
 As a result of that action, Cairns recommended last week that no action be taken to rezone two commercial properties on the south side of Grand River including the Roselawn Restaurant and Foote Gravelly Tractor) to light industrial pending additional study by the planning board.
 "I'm particularly concerned about these parcels because they're on the interior (midway between Taft and Beck) and will promote strip commercial development," he said.
 In response to questions from Council Member James Shaw, Cairns admitted that one of the alternatives may be to extend the depth of the commercial zoning in the area beyond its existing 300 feet.
 The effect of extending the depth of the commercial property presumably would permit development of convenient-commercial areas as opposed to less desirable strip commercial development.
 Cairns also stated, however, that the planners may come back to their original conclusion to eliminate commercial zoning along the road to limit the potential for strip development.
 Council members accepted Cairns' recommendation Monday to turn down the proposed rezoning of the commercial property to a light industrial designation for the purpose of allowing the planning board to re-study the area.
 However, Mayor Robert Schmid said he felt strongly a month ago (at the October 25 meeting) that all properties had potential for being rezoned to a light industrial designation.
 "I would have liked to see it rezoned," said Schmid, "but I understand the need at this point for additional study."

Volunteers sought for park committee
 The Novi Parks and Recreation Commission is seeking volunteers to serve on a committee which will determine priorities for development of recreation facilities and recommend methods to finance the projects.
 Parks Director Tom O'Branovic said the committee will be charged with developing a phased capital improvement program based on the recently adopted long range parks and recreation master plan.
 "Our ultimate goal is to develop a program for a voter approved funding issue," O'Branovic said. "Those who get involved should have more than an interest in parks and recreation. They should understand we will be looking at the funding part of this."
 The financial recommendation the committee develops will go to the city council for its approval and placement of the issue on the ballot.
 Volunteers should be willing to make a one year commitment to the committee, O'Branovic said. The group will determine how often it will meet and may meet at least once a month in the coming year, O'Branovic said.
 The committee will be appointed by the Parks and Recreation Commission. Those wishing to serve will be asked to follow-up their request to serve on the committee with a letter detailing their interest.
 The commission hopes to interview interested citizens December 2 and appoint the committee by December 9.
 Those interested should contact O'Branovic at 349-1976.

Wixom won't okay county plan — yet

Wixom's City Council has decided it wants some more answers before approving the Oakland County Solid Waste Management Plan.
 With Council Member Wayne Glessner leading the opposition, the council told George Schutte, supervisor of the county's solid waste unit, that it needs more specific information about how the plan will be financed before granting its stamp of approval.
 "To me, it (the plan) is lacking a lot of things," said Glessner at last week's council meeting. "When we go to get the details? Where is the financial data?"
 "All counties in the state are required by Public Act 641 to develop and adopt 20-year master plans for disposing of solid waste. The Oakland County plan was approved August 26 by the county board of commissioners and now must be sent to Oakland's 11 cities, townships and villages for final approval.
 The plan takes effect when approved by two-thirds of the local governing bodies, although all municipalities will participate in the plan once accepted.
 Just five of 61 units of government had approved the plan as of Tuesday morning, according to county officials.
 If municipalities fail to approve the plan, the state will impose its own solid waste management plan on Oakland County.
 At the same time, Wylie expressed concern that the city is being asked to approve the plan without knowing how it will be financed. "My concern," he said, "is that we'll be locked into whatever implementation program comes down the line if we say we approve the overall plan."
 The council decided to postpone a decision on the county's request for approval of the solid waste management plan until its December 14 meeting.
 In the meantime, Mayor Lillian Spencer asked that council members seek out answers to their questions and be ready to approve or disapprove the program at that session.
 Schutte said the plan calls for roughly 60 percent of the garbage to be burned as opposed to being dumped in a landfill. Energy produced will be sold to private industry.
 Once the plan is in operation, each municipality will be charged a flat rate for rubbish collection, according to Schutte. Total implementation cost is projected at approximately $150 million.
 In response to questions from the council, Schutte admitted that financial details are sketchy at the present time. All we have now is a plan, he said. "Details will be worked out at the time we negotiate contracts with each community."
 "The plan is only a skeleton that needs to be fleshed out," he added. "That will occur when we negotiate contracts."
 Schutte emphasized that the state will impose its own plan on Oakland County if municipalities fail to approve the county plan. "At least you have some input on this proposal," he told the council.

Liberty getting final touches

Liberty Street may be open to traffic, but minor problems were due to the fact the road is not yet completed. He said they would be fixed before the project is finished.
 "It's safe to drive on," Dorman replied. "We feel with our taping of center lines, we'll be okay. We won't have any safety problems."
 Council Member Linda Ackley said she did not think the council should consider acting on whether to keep the road closed through the winter at that meeting. She said the city should at least talk to area merchants to see if the road closing had adversely affected business and should take that into consideration before ordering the road remain closed during the winter.
 Ackley asked DPW Supervisor John Nail whether there would be problems with snow removal because of the exposed curbs.
 Nail said he did not anticipate major problems with snow removal on Liberty Street with exposed curb lips, but said he would instruct plow operators to "take it easy" this winter until they were used to the road's new design.
 However, Ackley said she was "not satisfied with 'I don't think there's going to be any problems.'" She said she thought the curbs should be protected from chipping.

City dumps lawyer, hires new firm

By KAREN RICE

The Walled Lake City Council voted to give City Attorney Richard Poehlman 30 days notice and hire a different legal firm at a special meeting Monday night.

John Donohue, a former city zoning board of appeals and plan commission attorney, got the nod from council members on a 6-1 ballot to replace Poehlman, whose firm Brennan, Bibeau and Poehlman has represented the city for 9 1/2 years. Donohue is associated with Davidson, Gotshall, Kohl, Seerest, Wardle, Lynch and Clark of Farmington Hills.

The action came less than a week after council members received presentations from six area law firms including Poehlman's and Donohue's.

Council members have individually expressed dissatisfaction with the city's legal counsel in the past — particularly when reviewing the attorney budget last spring — and had asked City Manager J. Michael Dornan to solicit legal proposals from several qualified firms.

Representatives of six firms pitched for the spot November 23 and council members studied their proposals and two others over the Thanksgiving weekend before convening Monday night to settle the issue. Mayor Gaspare LaMarca pressed for a decision before December so the city council could give Poehlman his required 30 days notice if members decided to change legal counsel.

Only Council Member Ed Horsman opposed the motion to hire Davidson, Gotshall. He favored retaining Connelly, Jacques, Reilly and Ziem, a Walled Lake firm with extensive municipal experience. However, Horsman's motion to hire that firm died for lack of support.

Council Members Dorothy Dingman and William Roberts opposed severing the city's contract with Brennan, Bibeau and Poehlman, although both voted to retain Donohue in an earlier vote.

Home site ownership in question

By PHILIP JEROME

A new twist has been thrown into plans by the Macomb Oakland Regional Center (MORC) to construct a barrier-free group home in Wixom.

The News has learned that an option held by Dennis Parks to purchase a parcel of land at 2813 Shebird in the Birch Park subdivision has expired. As a result, Parks is unable to prove ownership of the property and cannot receive a building permit to construct the proposed home for six developmentally-handicapped individuals.

Waterless wonderland

Since its drawdown, residents around Wolverine Lake have discovered a whole new side of their lake. Above, two men investigate the debris on the now visible lake bottom. Many villagers are cleaning up their beaches now and it looks like they'll have all winter to continue the work. Under the DNR's permit, the lake is at the very level it should be, 913.5 feet above sea level, and will probably stay down until spring, said project engineer William Klockow. Tree lights will go on tomorrow

For those of you who've noticed the Christmas tree in front of Walled Lake City Hall already trimmed with its holiday lights, don't worry. That's just a test.

The annual Christmas tree lighting ceremony at city hall actually is slated for tomorrow (December 2) at 7 p.m. Sponsored by the Walled Lake Parks and Recreation Commission, the yearly event will include Christmas caroling around the tree after the lights are turned on.

Santa Claus will make a special visit to help usher in the holidays and refreshments will be provided in the Walled Lake Fire Association Hall behind the municipal complex afterwards.

Families also are invited to bring a toy, can of food, mittens, socks or other clothing for a gift barrel. The items will be given to need Walled Lake families before Christmas.

The contributions are optional. City hall is located at 1499 East West Maple Road.

Shining MEAP scores pay off Walled Lake students' year of hard work

Officials in the Walled Lake School District are more than a little pleased about a significant jump in local scores in the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP).

Scores in five of the six areas measured by the MEAP test were higher than last year's results, and in some cases the increase was significant.

"The only area which decreased — seventh grade reading — dropped a mere one-tenth of a percentage point from 83.4 in 1981 to 83.3 in 1982.

Saml Alam, director of program evaluation and testing for the Walled Lake Schools, was somewhat cautious in expressing optimism over the significant increase in local scores but admitted nevertheless that "at first glance they (the scores) look terrific."

Basically, the scores indicate that we're doing a better job," said Alam. Alam added that he needed to analyze the results more thoroughly before arriving at any general conclusions.

Official results indicate substantial improvement in both reading and mathematics at the fourth grade level. The most dramatic improvement came in the area of mathematics at the seventh grade level which rose more than 15 points from 61.3 in 1981 to 76.5 in 1982.

In summary, the MEAP results show:

a) At the fourth grade level, 80.0 percent of the students mastered 75-100 percent of the math objectives, an improvement of 6.3 percent over 1981 when 73.7 percent of the students mastered 75-100 percent of the objectives.

b) In fourth grade reading, 77.8 percent of the students mastered 75-100 percent of the objectives, an increase of 6.0 percent over 1981 when 71.8 percent of the students mastered 75-100 percent of the reading objectives.

At the seventh grade level, 76.5 percent of entering seventh graders mastered 75-100 percent of the math objectives, a substantial 15.2 percent improvement over 1981 when 61.3 percent of the students mastered 75-100 percent of the math objectives.

In seventh grade reading, results were down slightly from 1981 levels. Some 83.3 percent of this year's entering seventh graders mastered 75-100 percent of the reading objectives, a decrease of one-tenth of one percent from 1981 when 83.4 percent of the students mastered 75-100 percent of the math objectives.

On the tenth grade level, 67.3 percent of the students mastered 75-100 percent of the math objectives, an increase of 1.6 percent over last year when 65.7 percent of entering tenth graders mastered 75-100 percent of the objectives.

In tenth grade reading, 78.6 percent of the students' tenth graders mastered 75-100 percent of the objectives, an increase of 1.7 percent over 1981 when 75-100 percent of the reading objectives were mastered by 76.9 percent of the tenth graders.

Jaycees seek helping hands

The Walled Lake Jaycees need help. Not for themselves. For about 50 families they hope to provide with food, winter clothes and Christmas toys.

The Jaycees are undertaking their first holiday food basket program this year and are seeking donations from residents, service groups, churches, organizations and merchants in Walled Lake.

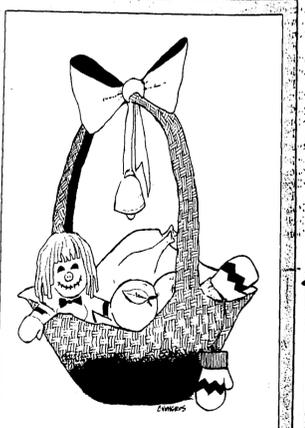

Anyone who needs a food basket or knows someone who does also is encouraged to get in touch with the Jaycees, according to Terry Heller, Jaycee president.

Although the holiday project is still in its formative stages, the Jaycees have rounded up a good number of commitments — from Arkin Janna at Penny Lakes Grocery, who brought up the idea, to Robert and Kathleen Whipple at West Oakland Rollery, who are sponsoring free skate nights in exchange for canned goods the first three Tuesdays in December.

"Things are going so well it's almost unbelievable," Heller said.

But, he added, because of the tough economic times, even more help is needed.

Classes geared toward tests

By PHILIP JEROME

Although pleased with the significant increases registered by students in the Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP), top administrators in the Walled Lake School District are being careful not to overreact to the results.

"We're pleased that we've shown improvement in the MEAP program, and our efforts to show further improvement in that program as well as others will continue," commented Superintendent Don Sheldon.

Similar sentiments were expressed by Secondary Education Director Donald Chalker and Elementary Education Director Hugh Davies.

Several school board members were upset last year when Walled Lake's 1981 MEAP results were among the lowest in the county on a comparative basis.

Both Chalker and Davies admitted that additional efforts have been made during the past year to raise Walled Lake's scores on the state-wide testing program which is administered in the fall to all fourth, seventh and tenth graders.

The MEAP test is designed to measure how well students have mastered specific grade-level objectives. Each objective (equations, for example) is measured by three questions on the test. If the student answers two of three objectives correctly, he is said to have mastered the objective.

After last year's MEAP results were received, Chalker said each building was asked to check its curriculum to make certain the objectives designated on the state test were incorporated into instructional plans at the appropriate grade level.

In addition, Chalker said some Local reps get leadership posts

Two local legislators — State Senator Richard Fessler (R-17th) and State Representative Willis Bullard (R-60th) have been named to leadership positions in the Republican Party Caucus.

Fessler said he believes the new Senate Republican Caucus will play a strong role in leading Michigan over the next four years and "wielding power well beyond its number of 18."

"The margin of votes between Democrats and Republicans has been significantly narrowed and we have a philosophical majority on many issues important to Michigan," he said.

He also said he expects the expanded created 17th District seat in the State Senate in November. His new district includes Walled Lake, Wolverine Lake and Commerce Township.

Fessler said he believes the new Senate Republican Caucus will play a strong role in leading Michigan over the next four years and "wielding power well beyond its number of 18."

"The margin of votes between Democrats and Republicans has been significantly narrowed and we have a philosophical majority on many issues important to Michigan," he said.

He also said he expects the expanded

Caucus to have a major role in passing legislation to make the economic environment in Michigan more conducive to job expansion.

"The group that was elected by the caucus for leadership over the next four years is one that is ready to spend the time that's necessary to continue to build the Republican party in Michigan and make Michigan a more dynamic state," he added.

Bullard, who currently serves as Highland Township supervisor, was elected to the newly-created 60th District seat in the State House in the November election.

He defeated third-term representative Carl Gnostke for the position of assistant caucus chairperson. He was one of three freshmen legislators selected to serve as one of the seven leaders of the Republican caucus.

As assistant caucus chairperson, Bullard will act as recording secretary at caucus meetings and assume the chair in the absence of the caucus chairperson. He also will participate in the formulation of strategy and Republican positions on proposed legislation.

Board objects to split taxes

The Commerce Township Board has put the state legislature on notice that its voters do not approve of twice yearly tax collections and it expects legislators in Lansing to support the will of the majority.

The board has passed a resolution asking the legislature to "support the will of the majority and oppose" proposed legislation which would mandate what is known as split tax collection.

Commerce Township voters rejected split tax collection which appeared on the November 2 ballot as an advisory question at the request of Huron Valley Schools. The question was defeated by a 61-39 percent margin with 2,622 for split tax collection and 4,101 against it.

The proposal would have divided school tax into two equal payments. Passage of the proposal would have given the Huron Valley Schools revenues enabling them to avoid borrowing money for operations.

Currently, property taxes for schools are not levied until December and not fully collected until February, forcing school districts to borrow against anticipated tax revenues in order to finance operations for the first eight months of the fiscal year. In 1982 the Huron Valley Schools paid $735,000 in interest on money borrowed.

Township board members opposed the legislation currently pending in the legislature on the grounds it would increase taxes for some taxpayers 50 percent during the first year it is in effect.

For example, a person with a $1,000 1982 tax bill paid February 1983 and a summer tax bill of $500 paid July 1983, would pay $1,500 in taxes during 1983.

The board stated: "In today's economy, individuals as well as businesses would be hard-pressed if not totally unable to pay portion of their school tax in July."

The board went on to say it "understands mortgage companies would require an additional deposit of money to individual's escrow accounts, once again placing the additional burden on the individual taxpayer."

Trustees urged Walled Lake and Huron Valley Boards of Education to support the will of the majority and oppose implementation of split collections of school taxes.

Students return high scores on SAT, ACT

How do college-bound students in the Walled Lake Consolidated Schools stack up against their counterparts across the state and the nation?

The answer is "very well," according to Sami Alam, director of program planning and evaluation for the Walled Lake Schools.

As evidence, Alam points to the results of the 1981-82 SAT and ACT tests. High school juniors and seniors are eligible to take either or both the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) and ACT (American College Testing) on an optional basis.

Colleges and universities require high school students to have taken at least one of the tests as part of their admission requirements. Both the SAT and ACT are considered to be an indicator of a student's readiness for entering college.

The 69 Walled Lake students who took the SAT last year had average scores of 468 in reading and 533 in mathematics.

The average score of 468 in reading registered by Walled Lake seniors in reading is nine points higher than the state average of 459 and 42 points higher than the national average of 426.

The average score of 533 registered by Walled Lake seniors in mathematics is 39 points higher than the state average of 514 and 86 points higher than the national average of 467.

"The data suggest that our college-bound youngsters continue to score above the national and state norms on both sections of the SAT," said Alam in a memo to Superintendent Don Sheldon. As a result, he added, they "are predictive of a significantly better chance of success in college than would be predicted for their counterparts, nationally and at the state level."

The 159 seniors and 224 Juniors in the Walled Lake District who took the ACT Test last year also scored higher than their state and national counterparts in three of the four areas measured by the test.

The lone exception was in the area of English where Walled Lake students had an average score of 17.4 in comparison with the state average of 17.4 and the national average of 17.3.

In all other areas, however, Walled Lake students scored higher than their state and national counterparts.

In mathematics, Walled Lake students had an average score of 19.3 in comparison with the state average of 18.1 and the national average of 17.2.

In social studies, Walled Lake students had an average score of 17.7 in comparison with the state average of 17.4 and the national average of 17.3.

And in natural science, the average score of Walled Lake students was 22.5 in comparison with the state average of 21.2 and the national average of 20.8.

Overall, Walled Lake students had a composite score of 18.7 on the ACT in comparison with averages of 18.7 throughout the state and 18.4 throughout the nation.

"The ACT data also suggest a better than average performance on the part of our juniors and seniors than national and state averages," observed Alam in his memo to the superintendent.

Dublin principal resigns

Dublin Elementary Principal Robert Pontichiaro has resigned to become supervisor of special education for the Bloomfield Hills School District.

Pontichiaro's main responsibility for the Bloomfield Hills District will be as principal of the Wing Lake Developmental Center. Wing Lake houses severely mentally impaired students from nine area school districts and is operated by Bloomfield Hills for the Oakland County Intermediate District.

Pontichiaro has served with the Walled Lake Schools for the past 11 years. He is now in his fifth year as principal at Dublin Elementary after serving as principal at Twin Beach Elementary prior to that.

His request for release from contract was approved November 22 by the Walled Lake Board of Education and his last day in the district will be December 3.

Pontichiaro called his decision to accept the new position "a professional passage."

"I've been an elementary principal for nine years now and I wanted to do something different," he said. "It's a totally different type of position because I'll be working exclusively with special education children."

"Wing Lake is a center school for the severely mentally retarded. It's not a regular school program."

In addition to his duties as head of Wing Lake, Pontichiaro will be in charge of physical and occupational therapy, out-of-district placement of special education students and early intervention programs in which children are screened for potential handicaps.

Before becoming a principal in the Walled Lake district, he was a teacher of emotionally impaired students and a learning resource teacher. He also has been a teacher at the Clinton Valley Center.

Pontichiaro has a BS degree in special education with an emphasis on the mentally impaired from Wayne State University in 1964. He earned a master's degree of education in the emotionally impaired from Wayne State in 1965.

He was selected for the Bloomfield Hills position from a large number of applicants through an interview process and a screening committee.

Pontichiaro said he has enjoyed his association with the Walled Lake Schools.

Trustee fails in bid to upbraid Sheldon

A motion by Trustee Janet Callahan to reprimand Superintendent Don Sheldon was rejected by the Walled Lake Board of Education at its November meeting.

Specifically, Callahan called for the board to reprimand the superintendent "for violating board policy and school law" in the administrative handling of bids for roof repair work.

Additionally, her motion called for Sheldon to reimburse the district for any costs associated with having to re-bid for the roof repairs.

Although seconded by Trustee Merlin Reeds "for discussion purposes," the motion subsequently was defeated on a 1-6 vote with Callahan casting the lone affirmative ballot.

Callahan's action stems from the manner in which bids were opened for repairs to the roofs of Walled Lake Central and Clifford H. Smart Junior High School.

The bids were opened by administration and presented for board approval October 16. Board policy states that the board must open construction bids expected to exceed $2,000, but that administration can open bids for repairs that are expected to be less than $5,000.

Taken collectively, the bids for the roof repairs at Central and C.H. Smart exceeded the $5,000 limitation.

Callahan objected to administration's opening of the bids at the October meeting, and administration subsequently re-advertised for bids which were opened in accordance with board policy at the October 25 meeting.

Callahan's motion to reprimand Sheldon received little support from other board members.

Trustee Patricia Jackman claimed board policy is not as clear as it should be in defining the difference between construction and repair bids. "Dr. Sheldon has said administration did not believe it was violating board policy and that's satisfactory indication of intent to follow policy as far as I'm concerned," she said.

Reeds said he felt Sheldon was embarrassed as the board had been over the incident and he assumed "middle management has had its feathers singed (for opening the bids). Venke said she believed Callahan "was beating a dead horse" and the board should move on to something else.

Callahan responded that every time Sheldon violates board policy he has said it was not his intent. "He has said, 'I didn't know the school buildings without board approval' and it goes on and on," she said. "I think it's time for this board to put its foot down."

When Trustee Betty Campion said she was in defining the difference between construction and repair bids, "Dr. Sheldon was making accusations without proof, Callahan said she was not accusing Sheldon of opening the bids but of allowing them to be opened.

"He's setting a bad example for other employees," said Callahan.

schools did some test readiness training. "Basically, we made sure students understood that good performance on the MEAP test was important to their own futures as well as the future of the district," he explained.

Davies also said increased importance was placed on the MEAP test this year. "The MEAP test is only one measure of how well children are being educated, but it's gained increased importance because results are published in the newspaper and the general public seems to be making comparisons between districts," he said.

"We recognize the fact that the MEAP results are important to the public," he continued. "There's no sense in fighting it, so we reviewed our curriculum during the past year to make certain that the objectives established by the state are taught during those years to state believes they ought to be taught."

"We've always taught all the objectives measured on the state test, but we didn't always teach them in the year the state believed they should be taught," he continued. "This year we just made sure all students had received an opportunity to master all the objectives measured on the state test."

At the same time, Sheldon, Chalkier and Davies emphasized that curriculum was not significantly altered merely for the sake of improving MEAP results.

"Our trust has never been attempted to make sure the objectives considered important by the state are included in our curriculum," said Sheldon. "Our trust has always been to improve programs and learning opportunities for our students."

"As a natural consequence of those efforts, our test scores have gone up."

Novi, county resume East Lake Drive talks

Novi officials have perceived an apparent "change of heart" in the Oakland County Road Commission's position on maintaining East Lake Drive as part of an inter-county route.

City officials met with the road commission recently to resume talks on the possibility of relocating East Lake Drive through property at the northeast corner of Novi Road and Thirteen Mile.

Novi wants East Lake Drive to be a route for local traffic, but the county contends it is part of an inter-county route which must be maintained.

Previously, the road commission rejected Novi's plans to relocate East Lake Drive and re-route traffic from East Lake onto Decker Road.

But city officials indicate the county now appears ready to discuss alternative possibilities.

City Manager Edward Kriewall told council members recently that the county has proposed:

- allowing East Lake Drive to be relocated if Novi accepts jurisdiction of East Lake Drive and Novi Road between Twelve Mile and East Lake, or
- allowing East Lake Drive to be relocated if the city turns over Decker Road in exchange for East Lake Drive and gives the county jurisdiction over Thirteen Mile from Novi Road to Decker Road.

City Engineering Consultant Raymond Cousineau said the tone of the meeting with road commission personnel was "very cooperative; they were willing to discuss jurisdiction and changes over the road ways."

"They came in and looked at the City of Novi as a whole," Cousineau said. He reported that the commission said it would look at Novi's roads as an entire system.

"They also discussed the future of the road commission and indicated that it appears they will be returning to performing their mandate — maintenance and repair, rather than new construction," Cousineau continued.

"We were told they would begin to assist local units of government with funds for road improvement projects, as well as coordinating projects with the state and federal governments."

Cousineau reported that the road commission said it will be difficult to maintain East Lake Drive as an inter-county route, especially since Walled Lake prohibited some truck traffic along that route early this year.

"They told us it no longer functions as a viable inter-county connector and are looking for routes that will restore the system," Cousineau said.

City officials are now "sitting back and taking a look at the options facing them," Cousineau said. Revenues and maintenance costs will be studied as the city reviews the county's proposals.

City officials are less than enthusiastic about the idea of trading the one-year old Decker Road for the disintegrating East Lake Drive. But they are encouraged that road commission officials are willing to discuss alternatives.

"They were very cooperative and willing to deal. It was a very productive meeting," Cousineau said.

Dental Dialogue

SAVE THAT TOOTH

Q. If a child knocks a tooth completely out, can it be saved?

A. Yes in many cases, but it must be taken care of quickly. If possible wipe the tooth free of dirt and place it back in its socket. If the tooth is not back in place within twenty minutes the chances of a successful reimplantation are reduced. If you aren't able to replace the tooth, wrap it in a damp cloth, or have the child place it under his tongue, and take him to the dentist immediately. The tooth will be treated and reimplanted in the mouth with some type of brace to secure it.

Wixom considering tax abatement policy

Does Wixom want industrial development? How much does it want? And what is it willing to offer in the way of incentives to get it?

Those were some of the questions raised last week as the Wixom City Council studied the possibility of formulating an official policy on tax abatement.

Speakers included Charles Hazen of the Michigan Department of Commerce and George Ross, a developer of industrial properties with the Byron Terrace Company.

Hazen, who helped write the legislation which provides tax abatement in Michigan, noted that there's tremendous competition for industrial development.

"The legislation was adopted in response to an increasing demand from businesses which operate in Michigan and have to answer to corporate headquarters in other parts of the country," said Hazen.

"At the time the legislation was adopted, 36 other states were offering some form of tax abatement—and our businesses were leaving to go to those states."

Now, said Hazen, 48 states offer some form of abatement in hopes of luring industry. Some states offer abatement for up to 25 years.

Wixom officials have strongly debated the merits of tax abatement over the past several years. Some council members, Gunnar Mettala, for example, see it as a necessary tool for retaining and expanding the city's industrial tax base. Others, most notably Wayne Glessner, have taken strong stands against requests for abatement.

City Assessor John Sailor urged the council to put together a policy on tax abatement so its position would become known in the marketplace.

"Cities like Troy and Farmington Hills feel they have enough drawing power to get along without it," he said. "Others feel it is desirable. Regardless of whether you come out for or against it, you should have a clear policy so developers know what to expect when they come to Wixom."

In response to Council Member Nancy Dingeldey, Hazen said the council should not feel like it was being "blackmailed" when a prospective industrial resident said a decision to locate in Wixom was contingent on tax abatement.

Village council decides to replace a dispatcher

A full-time dispatcher has been named to a vacancy in the Wolverine Lake police department. Meanwhile, the village council is considering a proposal to consolidate dispatch services with Walled Lake.

The village council voted to replace retiring dispatcher Betty Bruder with Susan Longfield, a part-time village dispatcher for two years. The change takes effect after Bruder's retirement December 10.

With Tom Gerhard and Geri Matkowski objecting, the council voted to accept Police Chief John O'Neill's recommendation to hire Longfield "with the understanding of everything that's going on."

The motion ostensibly referred to the possibility that the position may be temporary if Wolverine Lake and Walled Lake joint dispatch departments and share other police services. The council is studying a proposal to combine services and is expected to make a decision December 8.

Bruder, Wolverine Lake's head dispatcher, sent a letter seeking retirement to the village council in October and recommended Longfield be hired as a full-time dispatcher. O'Neill concurred with that recommendation.

However, Gerhard and Matkowski questioned whether it was essential to have two full-time dispatchers, suggesting part-time dispatchers would be more economical.

Other council members responded that part-time employees may not be as conscientious as full-time personnel and pushed for the replacement. (The issue was also raised a year ago when Bobbi Martin was hired to replace dispatcher Evelyn Rosemary, who died in November 1981.) However, the entire matter was tabled while Administrator William O'Brien investigated the possibility of joining forces with Walled Lake for dispatching and other police services.

The item came back to the agenda November 10 hours after council members had voted 5-2 to study a formal proposal for joint services for another month. Council members Robert Woodrow and Ed Sienkiewicz opposed giving the proposal further consideration, contending they saw no reason to save up the village's dispatch services.

Although Gerhard and Matkowski objected to replacing a full-time dispatcher while the council was considering a major change in its police depart-

Join us next Sunday for the sermon "Tale of Two Deaths—the Tragedy and the Triumph" when we compare the suicide of Saul with the cross of Christ.

I am no expert, but please consider these safeguards:

- Invest your life in others; do not center it on yourself. Selfishness and self-satisfaction are sure tickets to sorrow.
- Expand your vision to the spiritual realm. Dwelling on the love of Christ and the wisdom of God's word is far better than morbid introspection.
- Receive Christ as your Savior now! The most refreshing thing in life is to be forgiven, and thus, free of guilt.

Christmas donations requested by Jaycees

Novi's Jaycees are looking for help with their Needy Family Christmas project this year.

"The need this year is more acute than ever," said Jack Riley, who is co-chairing the annual project with Greg Dunn.

"We have more people out of work and for a longer period of time, and the continuing recession also has taken its toll on the amount of contributions from area businesses," he said.

"Businesses who've always helped out in the past are having to cut back on their donations because they're affected by the economy just like everyone else."

As a result, the Jaycees are making a special effort this year to seek donations from a broader spectrum of the community.

Approximately 50 canisters have been placed in various businesses around Novi and the Jaycees also are appealing to residents to dig a little deeper into their pockets to help those less fortunate than themselves.

"A $10 donation is significant," said Riley. "Take a $10 donation from one resident and put it together with a $10 donation from a neighbor and you've got enough money to make sure every kid will have at least one present under the tree to open Christmas morning."

The Needy Family Christmas project is sponsored annually by the Jaycees to make sure every family in Novi is able to celebrate Christmas to some degree.

Last year, the Jaycees provided Christmas baskets for 57 families, an all-time record in the history of the project, and they expect the need for

"Businesses who've always helped out in the past are having to cut back on their donations because they're affected by the economy just like everyone else."

As a result, the Jaycees are making a special effort this year to seek donations from a broader spectrum of the community.

Approximately 50 canisters have been placed in various businesses around Novi and the Jaycees also are appealing to residents to dig a little deeper into their pockets to help those less fortunate than themselves.

"A $10 donation is significant," said Riley. "Take a $10 donation from one resident and put it together with a $10 donation from a neighbor and you've got enough money to make sure every kid will have at least one present under the tree to open Christmas morning."

The Needy Family Christmas project is sponsored annually by the Jaycees to make sure every family in Novi is able to celebrate Christmas to some degree.

Last year, the Jaycees provided Christmas baskets for 57 families, an all-time record in the history of the project, and they expect the need for

NOVI-WALLED LAKE NEWS

As We See It

Test scores raise public confidence

Officials in the Walled Lake School District should feel good about the results of the 1982 Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP). Scores registered by Walled Lake students increased dramatically this year.

MEAP is the statewide testing program administered every fall to all fourth, seventh and tenth graders by the Michigan Department of Education to determine how well students are meeting minimum, grade-level objectives.

Walled Lake students have not always done well on the MEAP. Last year, for example, several school board members expressed great dismay when the MEAP scores registered by Walled Lake students were among the lowest in Oakland County.

This year, Walled Lake's MEAP scores are up a total of 30.7 percentage points over 1981 figures. The greatest increase occurred in seventh grade mathematics which increased 15.2 points from 61.3 in 1981 to 76.5 in 1982. The only area to show a decrease was seventh grade reading which dropped a mere one-tenth of a point from 83.4 in 1981 to 83.3 this year.

Fourth grade math is up 6.4 points, fourth grade reading is up 6.9 points, tenth grade math is up 1.8 points and tenth grade reading is up 1.7 points.

It's not surprising that Walled Lake officials have refused to overreact to the dramatic increase in scores. In the first place, officials have refused to overreact in the past when scores were lower. They defended those scores on the basis that the MEAP is only one indicator of how well students and a school district are doing.

Further, they said they did not want state officials to dictate curriculum in the Walled Lake Schools. If, for example, the state believes fractions should be included on the fourth grade math test but Walled Lake believes equations should not be taught until fifth grade, local students will do poorly on that section of the test. Not because they're less smart and not because the district doesn't do a good job of educating youngsters, but because of basic philosophical differences between the state and local district on curriculum sequence.

Time to start work

Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall hit the nail squarely on the head when he appeared before SEMCOG's Area-wide Quality Board (AWQB) recently.

Kriewall addressed the AWQB for the purpose of opposing a suggestion from the Detroit Water Department that additional studies be done before work on the proposed Huron Valley Wastewater Treatment System (super sewer) proceeds.

In essence, the Detroit Water Department maintains that an alternative to send new flows to Detroit, instead of a new wastewater treatment facility in Downtown Township, has not been fully studied and needs further consideration.

The City of Detroit also has threatened legal action to halt construction of the proposed regional sewer system.

The so-called super sewer project has been studied and rejected now for better than a decade. As soon as one hurdle is cleared, another is raised to prevent implementation of the badly-needed system.

The arguments are valid. Why, then, have Walled Lake test scores made such a marked increase this year? The answer rests with the district's recognition of the public relations value of the MEAP results.

Elementary Education Director Hugh Davies notes that MEAP scores are published in local newspapers and citizens not only read them carefully but also use them to make judgments about the quality of instruction in the local district. It's not a fair assessment, said Davies, but the fact of the matter is that people do it anyway. There's no sense fighting it.

As a result, the Walled Lake Schools reviewed its curriculum sequence after the 1981 MEAP scores were released to make sure objectives were being taught when the state said they should be taught. That, probably more than anything else, accounts for the increase in Walled Lake's MEAP scores this year.

We suspect that Walled Lake did just as good a job of educating children in 1980 and 1981 as it did in 1982. As a result of the district's willingness to modify its curriculum sequence to coincide with the state testing program, however, residents will feel a great deal more comfortable about their schools this year than they did last year.

MEAP was designed as a tool for assessing educational programs. Over the years, however, it unfortunately has become much more than that — it has become a public relations tool, a measuring stick used by residents to judge the quality of instruction in the local district.

That's not what it was designed to be, but it is what it has become. The real breakthrough this year was the district's recognition that it's important from a public relations perspective to do well on the MEAP.

Walled Lake officials have to a degree amended their educational philosophies in order to do better on the MEAP. Frankly, it was a small price to pay for increased public confidence.

In addressing the AWQB, Kriewall said he's concerned about the "inordinate amount of time and expense that have been expended studying this matter and the potential loss of federal funding if further delay is incurred."

The bureaucratic and political delays he added, however, had a profound negative impact on the ability of western Wayne and Oakland County communities to provide service for potential commerce and industry.

He's right. It is incomprehensible that entities are still throwing roadblocks in front of this project which is critical to the future of southeastern Michigan.

Super sewer has been studied long enough. The objections of the Detroit Water Department should be summarily dismissed. Let the work begin so southeastern Michigan can provide badly-needed jobs and a key building block in the blue print for economic revitalization.

By KAREN RICE

There was no Thanksgiving at our house this year. My brother went to his wife's parents' house and ate dinner and watched television with her family.

My other brother went to his girlfriend's house, had three plates of turkey, most of the mashed potatoes and no stuffing ("I wasn't like Mom makes it.")

My parents were touring Disneyworld on the last leg of their Florida vacation, which is why our family split up for the holiday. They ate at a restaurant and my dad had traditional turkey, while my mother — happy because it was one holiday she hadn't spent slaving in the kitchen — had southern-style chicken.

I spent Thanksgiving with friends. And on Thursday, my friends and family were two of the things I was truly thankful for.

I was lucky. I received a half-dozen invitations for Thanksgiving Day and was fortunate enough to attend two special gatherings. My brothers, parents and I all had nice — if individual — holidays. Still, it made me a little sad that my family was scattered all over the place on Thanksgiving and though I tried four times, I never could get through to my parents to wish them a happy day.

This really hit home when I talked to one friend on the telephone and she told me she was dreading Thanksgiving because it meant she'd have to go over to her parents' house and face the rounds of aunts, uncles and cousins with all their questions and talk about who was doing what.

Her husband had decided he'd rather spend the day at home ("I can't say I blame him," she said), so she was going by herself. It was an obligation she couldn't get out of.

Some obligation, said my friend, Judy, whose parents drove down to Cincinnati last week to spend the holiday with her brother and his family.

"Just once I'd like to have our family all together for a holiday," she sighed.

Instead, she made souffle-and-champagne breakfast for her friends, spent the day sleeping and went to work on the midnight shift at a private hospital for mental patients.

Joining the breakfast was our friend Kim, who came home from Kentucky to spend the holiday with her family. It's a long drive from Big Creek, Kentucky, to Novi — but Kim said her decision to come home for Thanksgiving had been simple. Thanksgiving isn't Thanksgiving if you're alone, she said.

That was basically the same thing Marty told me when he invited me to spend Thanksgiving with his family. "Everybody should be with people who care about them on Thanksgiving," he said. "That's what holidays are for."

It was comforting that his parents' version of Thanksgiving is much like my parents' version. There were bowls and platters and plates of food, baskets of rolls, lots of wine and coffee, and a whole table loaded with desserts. Everyone ate too much and there was, of course, enough food left over to feed a small nation. Almost everyone took home a care package.

It was a nice way to spend a holiday and infinitely better than eating turkey pot pie, which is what I had threatened to do if I hadn't received a better invitation.

I thought about the times my parents and I argued our way through dinner. The time I cried because there were only two candles on the dining room table to be blown out and my brothers blew out the one I was supposed to. The time we spent Thanksgiving at a Florida motel and ate turkey dinner with the other patrons on the patio with the Gulf of Mexico roaring behind us. The times we drove to my grandparents' and all the cousins had to eat in the basement because there were too many kids to fit around the table.

I thought of my boss and his wife, driving to Caro to spend the day with relatives. I thought of all the people I knew — most of whom drove miles to eat dinner with their families.

And it made me feel terribly sad for the people who didn't have anywhere to go or anyone to spend the day with. The only ones I felt sadder for were the people like my friend who has a family she didn't want to spend time with.

Those kind of people can't have much to be thankful for. Marty was right: If you can't spend your holiday with people who care about you, it isn't a holiday. It's just a day off.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

The world is becoming increasingly unsafe. I reached this conclusion Thanksgiving Day.

No, I'm not talking about nuclear holocaust. If somebody's stupid enough to push the button, flip the switch or do whatever else it takes to send all those missiles speeding across continents, I figure there's nothing much I can do about it and will await my fate calmly.

What bothers me is kung-fu, jiu-jitsu and a lot of other Japanese words.

While enjoying Thanksgiving dinner, my brother-in-law announced that he and his wife are taking bow low gai pan (or something that sounded like bow low gai pan) lessons. And with that my sister-in-law jumped to her feet and began to demonstrate.

After uttering a high-pitched scream, she whirled around several times and kicked her foot straight up in the air, darn near knocking out a light in the ceiling. "That's a skull kick," she explained. And then she went through the same process again, except this time her foot streaked straight out in front of her. "That's the groin kick," she announced. "It's very effective."

I swallowed hard, attempting not to choke on the turkey. But things only got worse.

Then, believe it or not, almost everyone at the table confessed that they also were studying martial arts. Even my eight-year-old niece, Randi Suzanne.

Now that's incredible. It's also very scary.

I'll admit that my in-laws have always been into machismo-type things. They all played football. Steven boxed in the Golden Gloves. Nancy and Billy is called "The Incredible Bulk" because he's worked so hard at weightlifting that he's beginning to look like Bill Bixby's alter-ego. But basically they're nice, peace-loving people.

Except now they're all human arsenals, deadly weapons, qualified to inflict great bodily harm with their hands, arms, legs and feet, not to mention those ear-shattering high-pitched screams.

I have decided to work harder at establishing friendly relations with my in-laws, even Randi Suzanne. After all, how could I face the crew at the office if I come in with a black eye some day and have to admit I was bow low gai panned by an eight-year-old?

Charges against Dora Wood 'ridiculous, absurd'

To the Editor:
For 55 years I have been a friend of Dora Wood and her late husband, Harold Wood.

To charge Mrs. Wood with first degree — premeditated — murder of her husband is ridiculous and absurd. She alerted him to the fire and thought he was following her downstairs. With his emphysema, the smoke inhalation would have impaired his ability to react rationally. If she had planned to murder him, would she have burned herself?

Dora Wood did not set that fire. Dora Wood did not murder her husband. Dora Wood is a respected citizen of Walled Lake.

Dora Wood was a teacher in Walled Lake for 42 years.

The response of her former students is outrage and incredulity. It is hoped that the administrators of the law in our county will see what a grave injustice is being done to a woman who has been a devoted wife, mother, teacher and community asset for many years.

On December 6, 1982, in the 52nd District Court in Walled Lake before Judge Bulgarelli, the case should be dismissed. She did not set the fire. She lost her husband, her home, her possessions and the memories of 75 years of living.

Thank you for providing a forum for citizens to express their views.
Margaret Tuttle

'Dismiss charges'

To the Editor:
It will not be possible for me to stand beside Dora Wood during this trying time for her. So let me please say a few things about her.

Mrs. Wood was my third grade teacher and gave me a memorable year. She has been my friend for just about all my life and gave me encouragement, support and an example to follow in establishing myself in the business field. She has given her time in this manner to the children of Walled Lake.

I also have known Mr. and Mrs. Wood as a very fine couple. They shared many interests, hobbies, friends and a productive life together. She stood at his side as his hearing and health failed. He was always well cared for, clothed nicely and obviously loved.

My wife and I have known Mrs. Wood never have harmed her beloved "Woodie" in any way. Count me as one who stands with her in spirit. The people of the Walled Lake area should stand up for one of their own.

I say dismiss the ridiculous charges against her.

Graduation site argued

To the Editor:
We, as members of the graduating class of 1983, wish to express our views on the issue of the graduation site. We would like our graduation ceremonies to be held out of doors.

Traditionally, Novi has held their graduation outdoors on the football field. Now the administration wishes to move graduation indoors by design rather than weather conditions.

As a back up, Fuester Auditorium is fine, however, to look forward to over 1,200 people compacted into a facility not intended for such a purpose is beyond our imagination.

In reference to the comment found in the Novi News article concerning the disuse of the auditorium, we find this comment unjustified. The auditorium has many uses throughout the year including choir and band concerts, school functions and community affairs.

High school graduation is one of the most joyful times of a person's life and a time which is meant to be shared with those close to you. If graduation is held outdoors we would be able to invite as many friends and relatives as we wish to share in our joy. Inside, we would be limited not only in the number of invitations we may extend but also in our freedom of movement.

Does not the administration wish to move the site because of behavioral problems? We admit the behavior of our predecessors is nothing to be proud of, but it should not reflect upon us. We suggest that the administration work with the student body to help overcome any discipline problems they anticipate.

Why should the administration be the ones to play both "judge and jury?" Have we no say in the site of our graduation? Have we no say in the decision? After all, it is our graduation.

We urge all concerned citizens, parents and students to lend us their support by voicing their opinion to school board members either by letter or by appearing at the December 2 school board meeting.

Wage freeze supported

To the Editor:
I have written to the State Officers Compensation Commission to state my view that salaries of state government officials should be frozen in 1983 and 1984.

The State of Michigan, according to the Citizens Research Council of Michigan, has a cash deficit approaching $1 billion. For this reason alone, I want to make a public record of my view that salaries and fringe benefits for all state employees should be frozen for the next two years.

If the State Officers Compensation Commission does vote to approve any raises during the next two years for any state public officials, including legislators, I intend to vigorously oppose those raises as a new member of the Michigan Legislature.

Family happy to be out of Texas

not after that. Resentment toward northerners was growing while they were there, the Ayeaerts say.

"Jobs are scarce for Texans. There are so many people looking for jobs that to fire someone doesn't matter there," Richard says. "I heard about people who were fired because they were injured on the job. Labor laws aren't enforced. It was like a nightmare. I couldn't believe it."

The Ayeaerts say they should have known it was not meant to be when Lana stepped off the plane and immediately learned they had lost their dog, Muffin, in the Dallas Airport at 1 a.m.

Lana and youngest daughter Elena arrived in Texas four months after Richard as a result of difficulties in selling their Meadowbrook Glens home.

Lana took an instant dislike to the Watacacia home Richard and her eldest daughter Anita had been living in. Within two days they moved to DeSoto, a suburb of Dallas, where they rented a home relatively low, but the Ayeaerts said they more than paid the difference in other areas, such as sending their daughters to a private school.

Spraying indoors and out twice a year is mandatory. And during the summer, more spraying is necessary, Richard says.

When he realized his wife and children were unhappy in Texas, Richard knew it was important to find a place they would like, so "we drove all over."

They found Waco, a town in east Texas which reminded Lana of home with its lake, trees and hills. And they purchased a home in an exclusive subdivision.

"It looked ideal; we figured there was no way we could lose. We bought it and moved in," Richard says.

Then they took the girls to school. The first problem was finding a way to get them there. School districts don't bus children further than two miles, so most parents carpool their children to and from school. Since Lana doesn't drive, they found other parents wanting $30-40 a week to chauffeur the girls to school.

"The only people who offered to help us (with transportation) were not themers," Lana says. "They said they understood and were willing to help."

It didn't take long to find out Waco has one of the worst school districts in Texas. Their oldest daughter brought home school books she had used in Novi two years before.

The Ayeaerts discovered "private education" is the only place to get a good education in Texas. They enrolled the girls in St. Louis Catholic School.

As a result of their poor education, many people who provide services in Texas are simply incompetent, according to the Ayeaerts.

The cable television company was called back to their home three times before they properly buried the cable. Twice they tried to get away with burying it by kicking dirt over it, Richard says.

'I heard about people who were fired because they were injured on the job. Labor laws aren't enforced. It was like a nightmare.'

— Richard Ayeaert, Former Texas resident

And the telephone was installed so they could call out but no one could call in. That was after they learned it was impossible to get a private line, as they originally had been told by the phone company. Some days it took the telephone company 15 minutes to answer its phone.

Any of the businesses close at 5 p.m. making it almost impossible for a working person to accomplish regular errands, Richard says. Since banks are closed Saturday and by 6 p.m. Friday, nearly every bank is by mail.

After meeting many penniless families with no way of returning home, the Ayeaerts warn anyone thinking of moving to Texas to visit first.

Because they need skilled labor, many companies make promises to prospective employees to lure them to Texas. But when they arrive those promises are never carried through, Richard warns.

Richard estimates it takes 1-3 years for a northerner to adjust to the Texas culture. Texas attitudes about work and social-standing were too difficult for them to deal with.

"It was willing to take a step down I had to jump off the ladder," Richard says.

She maintains Texans are more self-centered, because they have to be. "It's a matter of survival. They have to work so hard for the basics that we take for granted."

"Boomin' is part of that difficult lifestyle. It is not unusual to carry in the trunk a Texan big way."

"In Detroit a commuter carries if they have to drive 30 miles. That's just around the corner in Texas. Everything is spread out and they're used to traveling," Richard says.

Lana's hairdresser, who herself worked 12 hours a day six days a week, said her husband dreamed all around Texas. Their oldest daughter brought home school books she had used in Novi two years before.

"The only people who offered to help us (with transportation) were not themers," Lana says. "They said they understood and were willing to help."

Vikings win district title	2
Wildcat five relies on speed	3

Novi's star Sue Rasinske puts up shot against Fowlerville

Wildcat five falls in district finals

Foul trouble. That's what Bill Ayotte said was the difference in the Wildcats' 58-51 loss to Fowlerville in the finals of the MHSAA Class B regional tournament at Hartland last week.

"The big story was foul trouble," said the Novi cage coach, whose team was gunning for its first district title since 1977.

"(Sue) Rasinske had her fourth foul two minutes into the third quarter. And (Kathy) Sroka and (Sherril) Lawton also had to sit out much of the second half with foul trouble," he added.

In the same breath, though, Ayotte was quick to credit Fowlerville for winning its first district championship in 21 years.

"They're a quick, fast team," he said. "They shot well from the foul line and they capitalized when we had key players out with foul trouble."

"We had four or five shots under the basket which we stiffed (missed). We had our chances, but we couldn't convert."

— Bill Ayotte, Novi coach

Rasinske rode the bench for six minutes of the third period and spent three additional minutes on the pine in the final stanza due to four fouls.

"She played an outstanding game. She was dishing the ball out left and right and doing some beautiful things out there."

"Unfortunately, every team in the state with the exception of one ends the season with a loss," he offered.

Novi advanced to the championship contest with a 54-47 triumph over Dexter, a team which had beaten them earlier this season.

It was a seesaw battle with Novi taking the lead for good midway through the second period. The Wildcats lead 10-9 after the first quarter and 24-23 at intermission before opening up a 36-31 edge after three quarters.

Ayotte said Sroka was the key to the victory.

"She played an outstanding game. She doesn't get a lot of ink, but she's the one who makes Rasinske, Jordan, Lawton and the others look good. She's the best point guard I've seen all season," he praised.

Sroka's feeds helped Rasinske can 17 points and Jordan toss in 16 more.

"The Kensington Valley Conference champions finished the season with a 17-5 overall mark."

"It's been a tough season. We were on top of the KVCF for months and the team handled the pressure well."

Western trio gains all-division honors

Three members of Walled Lake Western's outstanding girls' basketball team have been named to first team berths on the Western Division squad of the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA).

Selected to Western Division honors were Cathy Artley, Fran Cullen and Val Hall.

In addition, Artley and Hall were selected for the first team on the All-Oakland County team, while Cullen was an honorable mention choice on the all-county squad.

"It's difficult to single out players on our team because so many girls have made important contributions," observed Roy Artley, coach of the Warrior squad.

"But I'd have to state that Artley, Cullen and Hall are good choices on any all-star team. They've certainly made major contributions to the success of our program this year."

The Warriors have indeed had a successful season so far, putting together a 15-7 record and winning the MHSAA Class A District Championship at Northville last week.

Now, of course, the sophomore-laden Warrior squad is attempting to add more laurels in the MHSAA Class A Regional Tourney at Plymouth Canton. Western was slated to meet Temperance Bedford in the opening game of the regionals last night (Tuesday). A victory will advance them into the regional finals tomorrow (Thursday) against the winner of the Farmington Mercy/Westland John Glenn contest.

Cathy Artley, daughter of the Western coach, makes her second consecutive appearance on the all-conference squad. A 5-4 senior point guard, she has averaged approximately 11 points and four rebounds per game this season, while dishing off roughly four assists per game as well. Her high-game came against Livonia Franklin in the district finals when she tossed in 17 points.

Cullen, a 6-0 senior forward, earned all-conference honors on the basis of averaging eight points and 11 rebounds per game this season. She had a personal high-game against Livonia Churchill in the first round of the district tourney when she hit for 25 points.

Hall, a 6-2 sophomore center, has been a pivotal player for the Warriors this year, leading the team in both scoring and rebounds. She has averaged 16 points and 17 rebounds per game. Her high game came against Livonia Bentley when she tossed 26 points through the cords, and she established a new school single-game rebound record by pulling down 32 caroms against Franklin in the district finals.

Vikings take district cage crown

By JEFF FRANK

Records can be deceiving. North Farmington carried an 18-3 record into last week's district finals against Walled Lake Central, while the Vikings were 14-8 on the season. But don't think North Farmington had an easy time of it. Quite the contrary as Central wrapped up its second straight district crown and fourth in the last six years by destroying the Raiders, 61-44.

The game was never close. Central jumped out to a 6-0 lead, stretched it to 16-6 late in the first quarter and never allowed the Raiders within 14 points after halftime. The rebounding of Patty Fitzgerald and Caryn Lamb, particularly on the offensive boards, powered the Central attack. The dynamic duo converted four offensive boards in the opening quarter alone and continually outmuscled the Raider forwards.

The inside attack that carried North to a victory over West Bloomfield the night before was nowhere to be seen. Central's man-to-man defense concentrated on preventing passes inside, and worked to perfection.

'We saw consistency in the district that we hadn't seen all year.'

— Ken Butler, Viking coach

"We had to close down their big girls," said Viking coach Ken Butler, who felt the Raiders' top player, Amy Austin, could be contained if the other Raiders were covered. "We gave Austin some room, but she had to earn what she got."

What she got was 13 points, only four in the first 20 minutes of the game. By then Central was up, 40-22. Guard Sherry Strohs kept Austin under control while she and her teammates were building that lead.

"Strohs has good lateral movement. We didn't want Austin to penetrate, that's why we put Strohs on her," explained Butler.

On the other end of the floor, the Vikings were oft-times playing volleyball under their own basket, tipping the ball repeatedly until it found the twine.

"They were obviously flat. I think they played their game (Monday)," said Butler. "I don't think North took us lightly, but I keep thinking of all the times this year we went to Canton and Salem and Bentley and got our butts kicked."

"We saw consistency in the district that we hadn't seen all year," he added. One of those consistent players was Shauna Anderson, who popped in 14 points and grabbed six rebounds in the final. Almee Frye also chipped in with a top performance, scoring eight points and running the offense neatly flawlessly.

The victory sent the Vikings to the Howell regional, where last night (Tuesday) they were scheduled to play Flint Southwestern, a team they defeated fairly easily early in the year. A victory in that contest sends Central to the regional finals tomorrow against the winner of the Ann Arbor Pioneer-Lansing Everett contest. That game is also at Howell, beginning at 7 p.m.

"They're good athletes with good speed," he noted, adding that Novi will be a running team this year, provided he can figure out a way to control the boards without any real height.

"Speed is useless if we can't control the boards," he said. "If we can't press and run, we'll go with a deliberate style offense."

The remaining eight players will be vying for the remaining starting slot

Novi Bobcat swimmers stroke way to honors

Numerous Novi Bobcat Swim Club members posted their best times of the season at the Okemos State Hawks Class B-C United States Swimming meet recently.

The 400-yard freestyle relay team of Bryan Whitehill, Jamie May, Mark Chjrgwin and Jimmy McMahon took third place (5:25.4) in the boys' 10-and-under division.

The 200-yard mixed freestyle relay team of Whitehill, May, Chris Forback and Carolyn May took sixth (2:45.0) in the 10-and-under group.

In the eight-and-under division, the 100-yard mixed freestyle relay team took second (1:20.2), while thirds were registered by both the 200-yard medley relay team (3:08.4) and the 400-yard mixed freestyle relay team (4:47.4).

Individually, Whitehill took three firsts, two seconds, a third and three fourths in eight-and-under boys' events. He won the 100-yard individual medley (1:37.0), 50-yard freestyle (37.9) and the 25-yard freestyle (18.0); and then added seconds in both the 50-yard backstroke (44.3) and 200-yard freestyle (3:10.0).

Whitehill finished third in the 100-yard breaststroke (1:50.6) and took fourths in the 25-yard backstroke (21.9), 50-yard butterfly (57.3) and 50-yard breaststroke (47.1).

Solomia Cleveland took two seconds, two thirds, a fourth and a fifth in eight-and-under girls' events.

Her seconds came in the 50 backstroke (50.0) and 25 freestyle (18.9), while her thirds came in the 50 freestyle (45.2) and 25 backstroke (22.0). She was fourth in the 25 breaststroke (28.0) and fifth in the 25 butterfly (27.1).

David Suchyta took a first, three seconds and a sixth in Class B events for boys in the 11-12 year-old group. He won the 200 individual medley (3:42.0) and took seconds in the 200 freestyle (2:35.6), 100 breaststroke (1:30.9) and 50 breaststroke (41.6). He was sixth in the 100 freestyle (1:13.7).

Dennis Suchyta was third in the 25 breaststroke (28.8) in the eight-and-under Class C event. His time earned him Class B standing.

Speedy guards buoy Novi hopes

It will be back to the drawing board for Ron Flutur and the Novi basketball team this year.

Just four lettermen return from last year's team which posted a 13-7 record and tied Howell for second place in the Kensington Valley Conference (KVC).

One from that squad are high-scoring forward Todd Parsons (17.1 points per game), guard Brian Jordan and center Jim Weber. The only returning starters are seniors Eric Deline (5-11) and Chris King (6-2), although seniors Dave Williams (5-11) and Tim Bunker (5-10) return after winning letters last year.

"We're basically new," Flutur admits. "They'll hopefully fill some big shoes left by Parsons, Jordan and Weber."

"I'll be young and green if you want to use any clichés," he added. Flutur remains optimistic, however, despite the lack of experience. "We've got nice people to work with who have some potential," he said.

Deline, Williams, Bunker and King have four of the five starting jobs locked-up in Flutur's three-guard offense. Deline, Williams and Bunker will work at guard with King fluctuating between forward and center.

"They're good athletes with good speed," he noted, adding that Novi will be a running team this year, provided he can figure out a way to control the boards without any real height.

"Speed is useless if we can't control the boards," he said. "If we can't press and run, we'll go with a deliberate style offense."

The remaining eight players will be vying for the remaining starting slot

'I would like to say we will go 20-0, but I can't. We're not really tested in game situations.'

— Ron Flutur, Wildcat coach and all will see action, Flutur said.

Two of those are seniors who did not play varsity basketball last year. However, Eric Lavery (5-11) and Scott LeBret (5-10) are good athletes who are learning the system quickly, Flutur said.

The rest are juniors with last year's leading junior varsity scorer, Brent Dinan (6-3), topping the list. David Fisher (6-4), Kevin O'Connell (6-3) and Mike Serra (6-0) lend height to the lineup.

Rounding out the squad are juniors Ken McKay (5-11) and Todd Crutchfield (5-8).

The first part of the season will be a learning experience and Flutur hopes it doesn't take too long for the team to get it.

"It all depends on how fast they make the transition from junior varsity to varsity," he said.

Flutur got his first look at the team against outside competition in a scrimmage at Clarenceville Monday night.

"At times we show a lot of promise, but the big thing is control," he offered.

"If I had to list things in order of comcern, there would be three things. The first would be rebounding and defense of the bigger people and the ability to stay out of foul trouble.

Novi opens the season at Willow Run Friday and then travels to Dexter next Tuesday for another non-league game.

Novi Community Ed announces contest winners

There were a lot of winners in the special events sponsored by Novi Community Education on Community Education Day (November 17).

But few were as happy as middle school students Laura Gray and Debbie Banker, who won cameras for their winning posters supporting community education in Novi.

Laura beat the competition from Middle School North, while Debbie walked off with the top prize among Middle School South students. The cameras

According to Community Ed Director Clara Porter, the special events held in conjunction with Community Ed Day were a large success. Elementary school students stayed after to participate in one-session community education workshops, ranging from art to dance.

Middle School North students also were very active in the special day, turning in essays and posters on community education and winning prizes for their efforts.

Other post contest winners were Middle School North students Anthony Coppola, who won tickets to a Detroit Pistons/New Jersey Nets basketball game for his most original poster; Amy Knott, who won an autographed Piston basketball for best poster representation; and Nickie Kasten, whose most versatile poster won a $5 gift certificate toward a community education class.

The Pistons-related prizes also were donated by Guardian Photo.

Middle School North students also did themselves proud in an essay contest.

Brian Kemp won tickets to the Pistons/Nets game with his first place essay on "What Novi Community Education Means to Me."

In second place was Heather Morgan; Danny Lyngholm took third; both received autographed Piston basketballs.

Runners-up Ginny Durham, Beth Surowiec and Christie Duthie received community ed gift certificates.

At the elementary schools, drawings were held throughout the day and 25 students won $5 gift certificates for winter community ed classes.

Winners at Novi Woods are: Amanda Van Horn and Bryan Mey, kindergarteners; Amy Beth Tada-jewski and A.J. Tyl, first grade; Stefanie Standish and Patrick Nichols, second grade; Caryn Champine and Jason Walker, third grade; and Angela Deangelis and Daniel Taylor, fourth grade.

Village Oaks winners are: Jamie Purslow and Amy Kim Yang, kindergarten; Karen Rosick and Jimmy Rowlands, first grade; Colleen Fitzpatrick and David McDonald, second grade; Jeanna Biggs and John Fischer, third grade; and Kristin Lockwood and Michael Bank, fourth grade.

Proudly Presents Twas A Few Days 'Til Christmas

Twas a few days 'til Christmas and all thru the halls
All the ceilings were peeling and so were the walls
The chimney that stockings were hung by with care
Like most of the house was in need of repair.

The children were nestled all snug in their beds
While pieces of plaster fell down on their heads

Then I with my hammer and lack of finesse
Had tried hanging wreaths up but made quite a mess
So there on the carpet were several bent nails
And pieces of paneling that splintered and fell

Away to the closet I flew like a flash
To hook up the vacuum and pick up the trash
The plug on the cord of the vacuum was wet
And gave me a shock that I won't soon forget!

When looking at watermarked ceilings and floor
It was plain how the dampness had ruined the cord
With a leak in the ceilings I knew right away
That all of the shingles must soon be replaced.

More rapid than crabgrass my trouble had grown
I mumbled and grumbled and started to moan
If it's not one thing, it's surely another
And I'd live a lot better if I had my drawers.

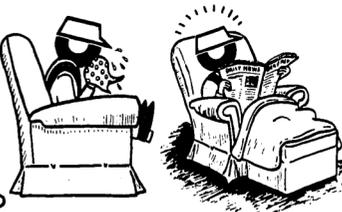

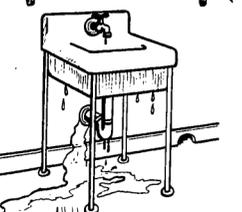

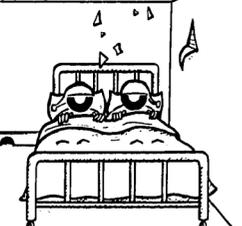

The top of the front porch is ready to fall
And the siding needs painting on all outside walls.

The plumbing is coming apart at the seams
And making a nightmare of the house of my dreams
It all looked so hopeless, I sat in my chair
My face in my hands in utter despair

But then as I pondered the problems I had
I picked up a paper and saw a big ad
It told of a place where the big builders go
To buy their supplies cause the prices are low

The home decorators have known quite a while
It's a great place for buying their paint and their tile
Plus paneling and shelving and lights of all kind
And tools, locks and hardware; the best you can find

So when you find that your home is a wreck
Go by the store where the big builders check
Each time that you stop in, you'll see how they try
To give super service and extra Good Buys
