Council near conclusion of housing ordinance

By KATHY JENNINGS

An architectural review ordinance and an ordinance requiring home buyers be provided with a summary of covenants and restrictions received conceptual approval from the Novi City Council Monday, but minimum house size regulations and a moratorium on residential building were defeated.

The council decided to send the architectural review ordinance to the city administration and legal counsel for "fine tuning" after agreeing to the concepts put forward.

The council requested the ordinance be returned to them for action Monday. It also will meet today (Wednesday) at 8 p.m. in the Novi Public Library to discuss specific aspects of the ordinance which must be addressed before it is drafted in final form.

A combination of three ordinances went into the architectural review standards which received tentative approval from the council Monday.

Council Member Ronald Watson took sections of an ordinance drafted by a planning board committee, an ordinance drafted by Planning Board Chairperson Donald Gleason and an ordinance drafted by an attorney representing residents known as People Looking After Novi (PLAN) to develop an ordinance which a majority of the council said it could support.

About 250 residents, the most orderly crowd to attend a council meeting on the housing ordinance issue, turned out Monday to encourage the council to act on the ordinances. The ordinance proposals faced the council Monday. The ordinances were variations of each other, falling into four basic groups — minimum floor sizes, architectural control, residential building moratorium and "truth in selling."

Nancy Covert, president of PLAN, asked the council to consider that 51 building permits already have been applied for this year and builders have not been discouraged by Novi's consideration of architectural compatibility legislation. "The people have given you their public trust," Covert said, adding that residents support the ordinances to protect "the vast undeveloped areas of Novi."

Kenneth Flaska, an attorney representing PLAN, told the council he was present because residents "have finally put their money where their mouth is." He explained his ordinance, saying it provides an objective standard which can be applied by Novi building officials. He added residents asked him to draft the ordinance not solely to promote aesthetic purposes, but because they are "concerned with the quality of homes and what Novi looks like. If Novi allows a hodgepodge of homes in unfinished areas, people will move down the road five miles."

Richard Clark told the council: "This is not an issue of large-home owners versus small-home owners. This is an issue of the future of the community..."

Richard Henderson, another resident, took an opposing viewpoint. "I'm not a builder or a developer. I live in the City of Novi," he said. "As I've listened to what has been said here there is an assumption that this is a debate between the representatives and citizens on the one hand and builders on the other. I know there are a great many residents who don't want a homogeneous community, without variety and different lifestyles."

Two school board seats up for grabs in election

Novi School Board President Joel Colliau will not seek re-election to the board of education, he confirmed Tuesday.

But the race for two spots on the school board is heating up, as one candidate has already filed nominating petitions and at least two others — including Trustee Gil Henderson — are circulating petitions prior to Monday's deadline. Candidates seeking the seats must have nominating petitions filed by 4 p.m. Monday (April 11).

Colliau, a board member since 1975, said his decision not to seek re-election is not related to any one issue; rather, he said, he felt it was time to step down and let someone else take over the responsibilities of helping run the school district.

"I pretty much decided not to run again about four years ago (following the 1979 election)," Colliau said. "It's been fun and enjoyable. But it's time for some new people. I figured this would be my last term."

Colliau has served as board president, vice-president and trustee during his eight-year tenure.

His decision leaves one four-year term completely up for grabs, while Trustee Gil Henderson is expected to seek the second available four-year term.

Although Henderson has reportedly picked up nominating petitions from the board office, they had not been returned as of Tuesday, school officials said. He was unavailable for comment this week.

Henderson — a former mayor of Novi, former school board member and the principal of a Farmington middle school — was elected to a one-year board term last June following the resignation of Trustee Ruth Waldenmayer. Henderson narrowly edged out challenger Diana Canup, who mounted a write-in campaign when her nominating petitions were declared invalid.

Wayne Limbright, a graduate of Novi High School, has entered the running. Limbright became the first candidate to file nominating petitions at the board office. A former winner of the annual youth volunteer award given out annually by Novi Youth Assistance and the Novi Jaycees, Limbright could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Nominating petitions have been given out to at least one other potential candidate, school officials said.

However, petitions are still available from the Novi Administration Office on Taft Road. Petitions and candidate information may be picked up between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Residents interested in running must live within the boundaries of the Novi school district and be a registered voter. Petitions bearing 20 valid signatures must be submitted by 4 p.m. Monday (April 11) at the board office.

The last day for voters to register for the June 13 board election is May 13 — a month before the election. Voters can be registered at Novi City Hall during business hours.

Joel Colliau won't run again, while Gil Henderson is in the race

Gulf terminal on the market

When a company pulls out of a state, what does it do with a large stationary facility it has in the ground? Specifically, what will Gulf Oil Company do with the bulk storage terminal on Grand River in Novi?

Sell it, if it can. "We will sell the terminal and cease distribution to our customers," reported William Berghoff, general manager of Pittsburgh distribution.

Berghoff said there is no timetable for sale of the distribution center, but Gulf anticipates no problem finding a purchaser for the facility.

He said several prospective customers from inside and outside the Detroit metropolitan area have expressed interest in the terminal. Prospective purchasers have indicated they want to continue to use the facility for fuel storage, and Gulf officials anticipate no need to dismantle the facility.

"It's a fairly new facility by industry standards and we think we will be able to sell it to someone else," Berghoff said.

The terminal currently is a distribution center for gasoline, fuel oil and jet fuel. Petroleum products enter storage tanks through a pipeline. The fuel is sold to Gulf dealers or other customers.

Tank trucks which make distributions to Gulf dealers obtain their fuel from the terminal. The terminal also is used by commercial companies with large fleets of vehicles which require a large supply of fuel.

Gerald Bradley, Gulf public information officer, said the sale is part of the company's move to dispose of its holdings in Michigan. The company is pulling out of the state because it has found it is no longer competitive here and there appear to be no prospects that the company can become competitive in Michigan, Bradley said.

"With decontrol (of the oil industries) we were able to look at the market and see if we could become competitive," Bradley said. "If we can't be competitive in a certain area where we reallocate our assets in areas where we are a major market."

Gulf expects to be out of Michigan by the end of 1983. But Bradley indicated the company could be gone sooner.

"It depends on a number of factors such as existing contracts and sales," Bradley said.

Child Find wants to assist youngsters

Novi parents are being asked to look closely at their children during April and ask three questions:

- Are you concerned because your preschooler cannot do what other children the same age can do?
- Are you concerned because your child has a problem that interferes with learning?
- Are you concerned because your young adult cannot perform normal tasks?

If the answers to any of those questions are yes, parents are urged to contact the Novi Schools' special education department, 348-1200.

According to Gail Swinehart, chairperson of Novi Child Find, the special education department is conducting its annual Child Find program this month in hopes of identifying any Novi children who could take advantage of special programs and services.

"Child Find is a program that is designed to get to any child who may have a special education problem," Swinehart said. "In other words, to find a child who could potentially benefit from the special education program and get them into the system early on." But, she adds, "It's never too late to seek help for your child." Special education is available for newborns to 25-year-olds.

One of the biggest clues to parents that their child might benefit from special education, Swinehart said, is if the youngster is not able to progress at the rate he or she should.

For instance, babies should be able to sit up at a certain age, speak by a certain age and perform such skills as turning over, following a moving finger or differentiating between voices. Parents who suspect their child may not be developing fast enough — or who would like to find out what skills are normal for their child's age — are encouraged to take advantage of literature available through the special education department, she said. Brochures describing what each child should be able to do at a certain age are available and will be mailed "willingly," she said.

'The earlier the diagnosis is made, the better off the child is because the more help they can receive.'

— Gail Swinehart, Child Find chairperson

If parents have even the slightest suspicion their child is not "normal," they should contact the special education department so the youngster can be tested, she said. Some children tested do not need special education, she said.

"The earlier the diagnosis is made, the better off the child is because the more help they can receive," said Swinehart, the mother of a hearing-impaired daughter.

Swinehart admits it's difficult to locate children for the special education program.

"Everyone wants their child to be normal," she said. "The first problem is often just accepting that there is something wrong. What we're saying is don't ignore the fact. If you have any question, come to the special education department. If you have a child or just know of a child, call."

The Novi special education program has services and programs designed for youngsters with vision, hearing, physical, learning and development, speech or language, social or emotional problems.

Agape Players set to perform in Novi

The Agape Players from Lake Wales, Florida, will present a program of music and drama at the First Baptist Church of Novi next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. A bohemian dinner will precede the musical drama at 6:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend both the dinner and the Agape Players' presentation at 7:30 p.m. The Agape Players are a group of college-age young people from across the United States. They spend nine months on the road each year, presenting musical dramas both nationally and internationally. Music and scripts are written especially for the groups and tailored to their varied talents.

The original Agape Players performed in Miami and other parts of Florida. In 1970, the group organized a touring company and traveled to 16 states. Since that time, the Agape Players have grouped annually during the summer for 12 weeks of Bible study, drama and music classes, rehearsals, sewing, technical training, housekeeping and waiting tables at the hotel owned by the Agape organization. Currently there are three separate touring groups, traveling both nationally and internationally. Music and scripts are written especially for the groups and tailored to their varied talents.

Regional ambulance pact near

Within the month, Novi may be served by regional ambulance service. Three of the four communities in the regional service area — Novi, Farmington, and Northville Township — now have accepted a recommendation to award a contract to Community EMS. The City of Northville is expected to act on the matter April 18. If Northville accepts the proposal, contract agreements between Community EMS would incorporate by reference the specifications for service detailed in the proposal submitted by the company when it bid on the regional service contract. None of the communities will pay a financial subsidy for the service. Klaver indicated the contract with Community EMS would incorporate by reference the specifications for service detailed in the proposal submitted by the company when it bid on the regional service contract. None of the communities will pay a financial subsidy for the service. "We'll take the key elements of the proposal and make them part of the contract," Klaver said. An ad hoc committee of representatives from the four communities studied ambulance service in the area to investigate the possibility of obtaining service without paying a financial subsidy and acquiring an element of local control over ambulance service. Terms of the proposal call for five years of service with rates guaranteed for two years. An adequate level of insurance is required of the company. The communities also have requested the formation of a review committee to oversee ambulance service and resolve disputes which do not relate to medical care. Community EMS has been recommended to receive the contract.

North Hills challenges assessor

North Hills subdivision residents believe that as a group their property has been over-assessed by Novi City Assessor John Merrifield and have asked the city council to address their complaints. David Yezback recently told the council he and his neighbors believe they are being treated unfairly by the city assessor. Yezback indicated he feels his home was over-assessed when property values were rising. Now that property values are dropping, the assessment has not been reduced in proportion to the drops in property values, Yezback maintained. He complained that many North Hills residents did not receive reduced assessments even though property values have dropped. Yezback further objected that reductions granted by the board of review one year are eliminated when assessors raise assessments the following year. "This is arbitrary behavior and it looks like you're harassing us by appealing our assessments," Yezback said. Merrifield, the city assessor, told Yezback and his neighbors that he's tried to treat their area as equitably as any other area of the city. "It's the opinion of the assessor to say the board was not correct in its decision to lower an assessment by not reducing it the second year. You can appeal it again." Merrifield went on to explain that he reduced 1982 assessments as low as he believed he could. To reduce assessments further would have been an invitation to the county equalization division to impose a factor on Novi's residential property, Merrifield said. The city assessor also reported that it was difficult to set assessments for 1982 because so few homes were sold in the city. "I reduced residential-improved (property with homes) by two percent across the board. Anything below that would have automatically brought a factor by the county...The market is so erratic, I chose to do nothing but lower everyone as much as possible without getting a factor." Assessments can be appealed, but there is no appeal process for a factor, Merrifield noted. Residents pointed out there were a number of sales in their subdivision which established the market values of homes there, but their assessments did not show a corresponding reduction. Most of the sales in the subdivision were "distressed sales" or "buy outs" — cases where the company of a transferred employee purchases the home for resale — and those do not constitute market selling prices, Merrifield said. Another citizen pointed out that North Hills residents are particularly sensitive about their assessments because of the discrepancy between assessments in Novi and neighboring homes in Northville. "We're in a part of the Northville school district where there is one assessment policy and in other areas there's a different policy applies across the county line in Wayne. We are paying a disproportionate amount of tax dollars to the Northville school district," he said. Merrifield responded that discrepancies of that nature are the types of problems dealt with by the Michigan Tax Commission. The city assessor offered his services to the residents in preparation for information to submit to the tax commission. He further indicated there were many North Hills residents at the board of review this year and that the number of appeals is a factor considered by the state tax commission in dealing with such matters. Another resident suggested there is information which could be used to determine if Merrifield had over-assessed homes in North Hills. City council members asked the city administrator and Merrifield to meet with residents to study the data they believe demonstrates they have been treated differently than other areas in Novi.

Recycling used oil saves environment

People who change the oil in their cars can help conserve energy while protecting the environment by distributing used oil to "used collection sites" for recycling. In Oakland County alone, almost two million gallons of dirty oil end up in the trash or in landfills, on roads, buried in holes, poured down sewers, flushed down toilets or otherwise disposed of improperly. Although do-it-yourself oil changers generally have had limited resources for disposing of their oil in the past, there now is a wider range of possibilities. A network of over 125 service stations, auto centers, new car dealerships, road commission garages and other commercial and public sites where oil is changed in large quantities has prompted practical energy-saving ideas by establishing used oil collection sites for the do-it-yourselfer in Oakland County. Motorists can take their oil to these sites in a plastic milk carton, anti-freeze container or specially-purchased oil containers. One word of caution, however: Be sure the cap is on tight. When looking for a collection site, look for one that displays the sign, "Used Oil Collection Sites" in the immediate area: Novi Standard Novi/Grand River Novi Boron Service Station Novi Road Novi Sears Auto Department Twelve Oaks Mall Novi Commerce Gulf Commerce Road Commerce Township Boron Service Station Maple Road Walled Lake Dave's Gulf Pontiac Trail Walled Lake G-R 76 Walled Lake Road Walled Lake Riley's Standard Pontiac Trail Walled Lake Sparks Marathon Pontiac Trail Walled Lake Walled Lake Marathon Pontiac Trail Walled Lake Eight/Taft Auto Service Eight Mile Northville Boron Service Station Eight Mile Northville

Walled Lake tradition

The Easter Egg trees outside Walled Lake Elementary School have become something of a community tradition, according to School Secretary Pat Wright. Teacher Kristen Trenholm started the brightly-decorated trees 10 years ago and her students have been doing it ever since. Dan Boynton (left) is pictured affixing his egg to the tree. ## Super sewer status still unclear

The continued participation of Wixom and Commerce Township in the Huron Valley Wastewater System, known as super sewer, is still unclear as a report from the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is awaited. Officials of the DNR and Detroit sewer system recently have indicated there is sufficient existing capacity to service communities including Commerce and Wixom. "This is a matter of concern. It has been said that it might be cheaper to join the Detroit system," said Commerce supervisor Robert Long. "There are no set figures right now. Everything seems to be coming to a head rapidly." Long said it is his feeling that Commerce does need the capacity in super sewer. "There is no question we will have problems around the lakes in the future," he added. At this point, Long said he would like to keep the township's options open for obtaining sewer capacity. "High rates in the Detroit system would be a concern but if we save a lot of money on construction that would be a consideration," he said. "I don't want to close the door." Wixom officials have taken a position opposing a hook-up with the Detroit system, instead favoring super sewer. In a letter to the DNR, Wixom Mayor Lillian Spencer said, "The city of Wixom does not consider the connection to the Detroit Sewer System as a reasonable, feasible or the best interest of the citizens of Wixom." A concern cited by Wixom officials is the uncertain amount of guaranteed capacity in the Detroit system and recent upheavals in the Detroit sewer department management. "There has been speculation that the Detroit sewer system alternative was mentioned late in the super sewer planning due to pressure from Detroit officials and in response to limited federal funding. "The alternative was brought up now because ongoing studies were completed and made the determination that there was sufficient capacity in Detroit," said Pat Burnett, land use and environmental program manager for the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG). The studies generated information to warrant a reconsideration of the super sewer plans, Burnett said.

Wixom stands firm against waste plan

Wixom's City Council remained firm in its refusal to adopt the Oakland County solid waste management plan last week. Council had acted in February to reject a resolution that would have adopted the county plan. Council Member Dennis Andrews offered a motion to reconsider the resolution, but it did not receive support from the council. In a memorandum to the city council, Bonczek said, "It is important to realize that delayed participation in the county system could eventually result in higher costs to Wixom." The county does not plan to build excess capacity in the incinerators and resources recovery facilities, according to Bonczek. Capacity would be provided for communities contracting for solid waste management, although plans would allow for future expansion. A two-thirds majority of communities in the county need to adopt the plan for it to go into effect. Bonczek said five communities had rejected the plan and 27 had approved it. "This resolution doesn't change the location of the landfills or the traffic patterns and I don't support this," said Council Member John Lee. "If the other communities pass this resolution, Wixom will be forced to go along. If we reject it at least we will be on the record opposing the plan." Council Member Wayne Glesner said he thought the intent of the plan was good but specific information was missing. In February, the council voted 4-2 to reject the resolution approving the county solid waste management plan. Dissenting votes were cast by Council Members Gunnar Mettala and William Wylie. Andrews had been absent from the meeting.

Wixom selects sites for foster care homes

Three parcels in Wixom have been designated by the city council as potential sites for adult foster homes. One site is located on West Maple Road, a two designated on Potter Road. A citizens' committee had selected the sites which also received the recommendation of the planning commission. The committee had been formed after the Macomb-Oakland Regional Center (MORC) proposed licensing of an adult foster care home on Shebird in Wixom's Birch Park subdivision. The proposed foster care home was not opened on Shebird. Under existing state laws, local communities are not permitted to open foster care home locations. The foster care home sites were selected as recommendations for MORC. "The planning commission has no objections to the recommendations," said Council Member Gunnar Mettala. "The West Maple site might be a problem in the future because it is close to an elementary school and the railroad tracks." Council Member Wayne Glesner continued remarks made at earlier meetings criticizing the state's community placement program.

What is an ASA Rating?
The ASA rating which appears on your film box is an international evaluation of that film's sensitivity to light. The greater the light sensitivity, the faster the exposure which can be used. Most popular films are rated from ASA 50 to ASA 400. The speeds are related arithmetically. An ASA 400 film is twice as fast as an ASA 200, four times as fast as an ASA 100 and eight times as fast as an ASA 50. "Why shouldn't I use the fastest film available for all my picture taking?" you may ask. Because the faster the film used, the greater the degree of graininess in the negative. This graininess will become more evident if the pictures are enlarged. So if high speed or dim light do not create picture taking problems, you may be better off using a film with a lower ASA rating. Come in and discuss your picture-taking needs with us at f-stop, 43220 Grand River in Novi, 348-9355.

Incumbents, Kemp top village vote

By KAREN RICE

Wolverine Lake Village voters returned Tom Gerhard, John Coxeter and Ed Sienkiewicz to the village council Monday and elected David Kemp to his first four-year term.

Tom Gerhard	272	Judy Bronnecke	143
David Kemp	266	Denise Obiak	84
John Coxeter	241	Lowla Wells Jr.	75
Ed Sienkiewicz	227	Raymond Teltman	66

hour during summer week nights. About a quarter of Wolverine Lake Village's 1,768 registered voters (1,100) cast their ballots at the village offices.

Ed Sienkiewicz, who garnered 227 votes, was re-elected to a two-year term. Under village charter provisions, the top three vote-getters in an election assume four-year seats, while the fourth highest vote-getter wins a two-year term.

Election results showed Tom Gerhard, appointed to the council in August to fill the remainder of John McLeilan's term, in first place with 272 votes. Gerhard, who finished out of the running in the 1979 election, won his first council seat by topping other candidates on the ballot.

David Kemp, a member of the village plan commission, finished a strong second with 266 votes, while John Coxeter was seated to his third four-year term with 241 ballots.

Following the new council members in the balloting were the four volunteer "candidates" named to fill the ballot by the village council last month — as required under the village charter. However, residents Monday

Ed Sienkiewicz, who garnered 227 votes, was re-elected to a two-year term. Under village charter provisions, the top three vote-getters in an election assume four-year seats, while the fourth highest vote-getter wins a two-year term.

Students expelled after drug incident

By PHILIP JEROME

Six Walled Lake Junior High School students have been expelled for the remainder of the spring term in the wake of alleged drug sales at the school last month.

Principal Roy Danley confirmed that expulsion recommendations for the six students have been approved by the Walled Lake Board of Education.

The action comes after school administrators discovered a group of students selling what they alleged to be "speed" March 10. Subsequent investigation revealed that the pills had been some sort of caffeine-based diet pills, not speed as represented by the sellers.

Danley said the pills apparently were brought to the school by three boys who enlisted the help of three others in selling them for 50 cents apiece.

Students who bought the pills received suspensions, while the more-serious expulsion action was taken against the alleged sellers of the pills.

"The fact that they were selling diet pills was immaterial," said Danley.

"The point was that several students were selling pills they alleged to be 'speed' and that other students were buying what they believed to be speed."

Walled Lake police also are taking action against the students, according to Sergeant Roger Cole. Juvenile petitions are being requested against about a half-dozen students, while police are seeking help through the Youth Assistance program for about six other students, Cole said.

Danley reported that reaction from staff and students to the expulsions has been positive.

"In accepting our expulsion recommendations, the school board directed Dr. Chalker (secondary education director) to set up alternative education programs for the youngsters," said Danley. "The program will cover their academic requirements for the remainder of the term so that they conceivably can pass to the next grade next year."

"Students will be coming in after school during summer week nights. About a quarter of Wolverine Lake Village's 1,768 registered voters (1,100) cast their ballots at the village offices."

Veterans sought for place of honor

If you're a veteran from Walled Lake, Wixom or the Greater Commerce Township Area, Paul LeBlanc would like to hear from you.

LeBlanc is chairman of the Wixom VFW Post's Memorial Update Committee, which is seeking to add the names of area servicemen to the Veterans Memorial at the corner of Pontiac Trail and Walled Lake Drive in Walled Lake.

Currently, the memorial lists the names of servicemen from Walled Lake, Wixom and the Greater Commerce Area who served during World War II.

However, some names were not included due to an oversight, and LeBlanc's committee is seeking to remedy the situation.

In addition, LeBlanc and his committee want to add the names of area residents who served during the Korean and Vietnam conflicts.

LeBlanc himself served during the Korean War, but said he is not eligible to have his name added to the list because he enlisted in Detroit, not the Greater Commerce Township Area.

"Service to your country is one of the most honorable things a person can do," said LeBlanc. "Our goal is to update the names on the Veterans Memorial so residents will be aware of their neighbors who fought to protect the freedoms we still enjoy today."

Applications are available at Walled Lake City Hall and the Wixom VFW Post on Loon Lake Road. Forms should be completed and returned to the VFW Post as soon as possible. Deadline is May 15.

For additional information, LeBlanc may be contacted at 624-9742.

On the rabbit trail

There was a lot of competition Saturday when youngsters spread out across Walled Lake's Sims Park hot on the trail of the Easter bunny. Joe Cockrell, 7, bundled up to face the spring rains and hunt eggs during the Easter egg hunt sponsored by the Walled Lake Jaycees. An estimated 200 youngsters turned out for the event, which followed a visit from the Easter bunny at Walled Lake City Hall and an egg hunt at St. William's Church. The Jaycees received help not only from the Easter bunny, but from the Jaycees and Mayor Gaspare LaMarca. (News photo by Steve Fecht)

COOPERATION STATION. Freda Shewach is one of those lucky people who think she's got the best job in the world. Fortunately for other people, her job is to help Walled Lake students gain working experience along with their classroom education so they'll be prepared to step out and find the best job in the world for themselves. To find out what Shewach and the Walled Lake Schools' co-op program are doing to help others, see Page 5-A.

OVERHEARD in line at the Novi Post Office: A woman asked for $2 worth of commemorative stamps. "They're just so much more than ordinary stamps," she said to the clerk. "Yeah," the postal worker agreed. "They almost make you enjoy paying your bills."

AND THEY'RE OFF: It was a less than ceremonious start for egg hunters present at the Walled Lake Jaycees' Easter egg hunt Sunday. As groups of youngsters eagerly waited to race into the wilds of Sims Park for their booty, the Jaycees prepared to begin the event with a few words from Mayor Gaspare LaMarca. However, as Jaycee President Brooks Roddy spoke into the megaphone, a funny thing happened. "The mayor will say a few words now," she noted. But the only word the kids heard was "Now," and they dashed off to grab their eggs without waiting for the mayor's words. A surprised Roddy and LaMarca just laughed.

Friends of library organize

Will the friends of the Walled Lake Library please stand up?

Your presence is requested at 7:30 p.m. tonight (April 6) at the city library, where the second meeting of the newly organized Friends of the Walled Lake Library will get underway.

Bylaws of the chapter will be presented at tonight's meeting, according to Librarian Donna Rickabaugh, who says she is very excited about the effort to establish a Friends group.

"It's moving!" she says. "It's working out real well — we had 22 people come to the first meeting."

Lois Ziegler of Commerce Township has been named temporary chairperson of the Friends group as it attempts to get organized. Officer elections probably will be held in May, Rickabaugh said.

Any library patron is invited to become a member of the Friends, which will help support the library and sponsor programs.

The Walled Lake Library serves residents of Walled Lake, Wolverine Lake Village and a portion Commerce Township, which also receives service from the West Bloomfield and Milford libraries.

Although a Friends group was established several years ago that organization folded and the library staff has been hoping to see another one form, Rickabaugh said.

While the first group was comprised mainly of young mothers, the new Friends chapter is more mixed in age and has a number of male members, she said.

"This is an entirely different group of people," she noted. "I think we'll be able to get a lot of interesting programs going."

For more information on the Friends, call the library or stop by for tonight's meeting, Rickabaugh invited.

Former Wixom mayor succumbs

Former Wixom Mayor Wesley E. McAtee died April 1 in Inverness, Florida, following a long illness. He had lived in Florida for the past three years.

A key figure in Wixom's history, Mr. McAtee served on both the village charter commission and the city charter commission as well as the Industrial Development Committee. He was first elected mayor in 1962 and held the position through 1970 when he temporarily retired from local politics.

Mr. McAtee attempted to return to public life in 1973 but was defeated in the mayoral race by Gilbert C. Willis, who held the position until resigning in 1974.

Mr. McAtee was 58 at the time of his death.

McAtee was the former owner of Plymouth Office Supply in Plymouth and was a representative of the Howard T. Keating Company. He also worked for Miles Fox Office Supply in Detroit.

He had been a Rotarian, a member of the Wixom Chamber of Commerce and served as president of the Wixom PTA. He also was an active member of the Disabled American Veterans Association and was a past member of the Plymouth Rotary and the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce. He also was a former member of the First Baptist Church of Wixom.

He is survived by his wife, Betty, and five children: Wesley of Bethany, Oklahoma; Mrs. Terry Jacobs of Charlotte, North Carolina; Mrs. Valerie Montgomery of Wixom; Jacqui McAtee of Wixom and Eille J. McAtee of Wixom.

Three brothers, seven sisters and four grandchildren also survive.

Services were held April 5 at the Richard Wilder Funeral Home in Homosassa Springs, Florida. Interment was at Fountain Cemetery in Florida.

Born in Cincinnati August 28, 1901, to Christian and Caroline (Reiners) Kunsemiller, Mrs. Klaserer was preceded in death by husband John in June 1960.

She was a member of Novi United Methodist Church and the Blue Star Mothers. Mrs. Klaserer is survived by son William of Novi, six grandchildren, sisters Anna Betting and Minnie Flor, and brothers Albert and Henry Kunsemiller. One son predeceased her.

Services were held March 23 at Castlerine Funeral Home in Northville. The Reverend Richard Griffith of Novi United Methodist officiated. Burial was at Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens in Novi.

LUCILLE COLLINS

Lucille A. Collins of Wixom passed away March 29 in Southfield. Reverend Richard O. Griffith of the United Methodist Church of Novi officiated at services April 2 at the Lambert, Lockniskar & Vermeulen Funeral Home.

Born February 9, 1906, in Illinois, she was 74.

A Wixom resident for nine years, Mrs. Collins was a member of the Novi United Methodist Church and the Northville Lions Club. She also was an active member of the Novi Senior Citizens.

Mrs. Collins was preceded in death by her husband. Survivors include two children: Gerald of Connecticut and Gail of Canton. Also surviving are three brothers, two sisters and eight grandchildren.

Interment was at Grand Lawn Cemetery.

Also surviving are a brother, Arthur Horner of Ohio, and a sister, June Dunley of Walled Lake. He was the dear friend of Margaret Moore. Eleven grandchildren and three great-grandsons also survive.

'Nepotism waiver nixed

A requested waiver to allow the son of Wixom Council Member William Wylie to be employed by the city was withdrawn after objections were raised by some council members.

Wylie said his son, a student at the University of Michigan, had been employed by the Wixom Department of Public Works (DPW) during the summer of 1982.

"It seems that we were in violation of the charter provision on nepotism. There is nothing that I can do about the past," Wylie said. "My son expects to be hired again by the city and I would ask the council for a waiver as required in the charter."

Council Member Wayne Glessner said the nepotism issue had been discussed in the past by the council. He said his personal opposition to nepotism had not changed.

"If there was some way to get all the names of people who would want the jobs and draw them out of a hat I could go along," he said. "I would like to make it equitable. Being a member of the council you do know when city jobs are opening up."

Council Member Gunnar Mettala said the job barely paid minimum wages. "Sometimes it is hard to find someone with the work ethic," he added.

Members of the council indicated disagreement with Mettala's statement about the difficulty of finding someone to fill the position.

Wylie then said he would withdraw his request.

Dick Edington enjoys a special present

By KAREN RICE

"The van has made a complete difference in his life," says Carol Pitcher as she watches her foster son, Dick Edington, who smiles and laughs as she talks about the van purchased for him by the community.

"It just opens up a whole new world for him."

For Dick and his foster mother, a dream has come true. Sixteen-year-old Dick, who has cerebral palsy and is confined to a wheelchair, is now the proud owner of a white van equipped with a wheelchair lift.

Friends and neighbors, however, may not have realized the van had arrived.

"We haven't been home at all since we got the van," Pitcher laughs. "Friends have said, 'Well, I know you must have gotten the van because you're never home anymore.' We've been out to eat, to the movies, to Twelve Oaks twice, visiting friends and to K mart — that's Dick's favorite place for some reason. He just wants to show the van off."

Dick Edington is hoping to take lots of trips in his new van anonymous donor contributed the wheelchair lift.

The fund-raising effort was spearheaded by Jackie Somerville, a friend who has a daughter with cerebral palsy and recognized the hardship involved in lifting Dick and his chair in and out of Pitcher's car. Fifteen special education teachers in Waterford, also had undergone an operation and suffered back problems — aggravated by the necessity of lifting Dick in and out of the car frequently.

So, Somerville undertook the project to help Pitcher and Dick. She first got backing from the Walled Lake Jaycees, who handled all the finances and lent support to the project. She set up a number of fund-raisers with local merchants, church groups and service clubs. She baked cakes to sell at Market Days. And, with the help of her husband, Derek, went shopping for a van that would fit their budget.

After nearly eight months of effort, Somerville admits she's "sort of relieved" the whole thing is over. But, she says she is proud to have been part of the community project that helped buy the van for Dick and Pitcher.

"The van has made a complete difference in his life." — Carol Pitcher

"It's nice to know it really did happen," she says. "I know first-hand what a difference this van will make for them."

Pitcher is still somewhat stunned that the dream of having a van and chairlift actually came true.

"This really has been nice and the funny thing is I never thought we'd get one," she said. "I was really amazed. And not only did we get a van, but it's in perfect condition."

"Considering I really didn't think we were going to get a van up until a few weeks ago, it happened rather quickly."

No one has been more excited about the new van than Dick, who has his own set of keys to the van and carries them constantly in his pocket. He is Pitcher's "direction giver," sitting in the middle of the van and pointing out when to stop and when to go.

"He's planning all kinds of trips. He wants to go up north and to Florida."

Every working person with earned income from performing personal services is now eligible for an Individual Retirement Account. Contributions to this account are TAX DEDUCTIBLE each year and earnings are also TAX DEFERRED until retirement (age 59½). A working person may contribute up to a maximum of $2,000.00 per year. A husband and wife who are both working may EACH contribute up to a maximum amount of $2,000.00 (total $4,000.00). A working person with a non-working spouse may contribute up to $2,250.00 per year.

YOU ACTUALLY SAVE MONEY TWO WAYS:

1) TAX DEDUCTION
For example, even though an actual cash contribution has been made in the amount of $2,000.00, it would cost the taxpayer in the 40% tax bracket only $1,200.00 in actual dollars because of the $800.00 tax savings incurred.

2) TAX DEFERRAL
Interest earnings on your annual $2,000.00 contribution are also tax deferred until retirement when tax brackets are usually lower.

Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal from certificate accounts, and withdrawals from your IRA prior to age 59½ may result in tax penalties. When you withdraw the money in your IRA Account at retirement after age 59½, your withdrawals will be taxed as ordinary income at a time when your tax rate is likely to be lower.

IRA Accounts are insured separately to $100,000.00 by the FSLIC.

All these gifts are available free or at big savings when you deposit $500.00 or more to a new checking account or new or existing savings account at the Novi office, 43600 West Oaks Drive across from Twelve Oaks Mall.
Select a free gift or pay the amount listed above for your gift. Regulations restrict the number of gifts to one per account and no individual may receive more than one gift. No gifts are allowed for funds transferred from one Standard Federal savings account to another. Gifts cannot be mailed. This offer good for a limited time. Funds must remain on deposit for at least 90 days. During this 90-day period, if funds are withdrawn below the minimum amount required to obtain the gift selected, an amount equal to the cost of the gift will be deducted from the account balance at the time of the withdrawal.

Thieves nab $1,800 worth of tires

In Wixom

An estimated $1,800 worth of Michelin radial tires were stolen from the trunks of nine 1983 Lincoln Continentals parked at the Auto Specialty Corporation on Beck Road last week, according to Wixom police.

The tires, worth about $200 each, were apparently removed from the trunks of the cars between March 25 and March 28 while security guards at the business were distracted from their rounds, police said.

According to officers, security guards on several occasions were called back to the guard office to answer a phone while they were on their rounds patrolling the car yard. When the guards answered the phone, however, there was no answer.

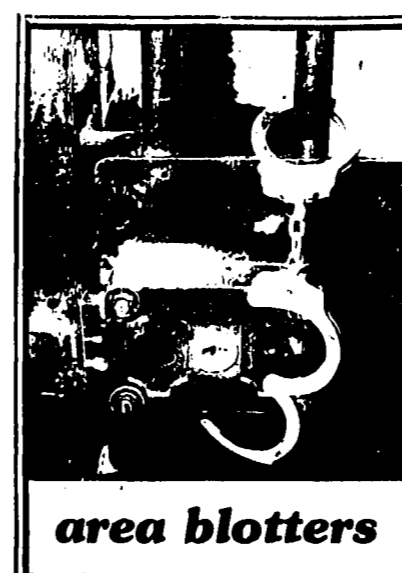

Officers theorize thieves took advantage of these few minutes to remove the tires from the cars and then push them through a hole cut in the chainlink fence surrounding the yard.

Two juveniles were apprehended inside Wixom Elementary School last week while the building was closed for Good Friday, according to Wixom police.

The boys apparently entered through an unlocked door near the gym, which set off an alarm when opened, police said. They told officers they had been given permission to use the building, but the school was closed, reports said.

The youths, 15 and 16 years old, said they were looking for a janitor when they saw police arrive and became frightened, so they crawled out a window at the back of the school. They were apprehended, questioned and released.

No damage was done to the school, police said.

In Novi

A 31-year-old Detroit man was severely injured when the car he was driving, a 1983 Ford, collided with the rear of a tractor trailer on the I-96 expressway near Beck Road.

Witnesses told Michigan State Police the driver of the automobile was weaving and driving in the middle of the right lane at approximately 55 miles per hour when it struck the back of the tractor trailer. The driver of the automobile did not brake before his car hit the truck, witnesses reported.

The automobile was demolished, the State Police reported.

The driver, Ronald W. Metalski, was issued a citation for careless driving, police reported. Police said it appeared the driver of the automobile had been drinking.

The driver of the tractor trailer was uninjured in the collision, police said. Metalski was taken to Botsford hospital where he was reported to be in stable, but guarded condition.

A Novi woman reported $1,800 worth of unauthorized withdrawals from her savings account, using her bank card.

The woman told police she had given the man her bank card in December to obtain money to bond her out of jail. Over the following month he continued to withdraw money from her account, the woman told police. She said the man formerly resided with her, but has now left the area.

It is believed the money for five fireplace inserts was embezzled from I.E.M. Limited. The $1,675 worth of fireplace inserts were sold to a sales representative on a consignment basis in October and were to be paid for at a later date.

Police reported it appears the sales representative sold the fireplace inserts for cash and kept the money.

Apparently the cooling system for a power shovel was emptied in an act of malicious destruction, causing the engine of the vehicle to seize.

An employee from the construction site told police the malicious act was discovered when the shovel operator engaged the power shovel and it suddenly stopped. Repair costs are estimated at $1,500.

Additionally, a service panel was opened and 15 quarts of oil, 15 tubes of grease and a can of ether were removed.

Some $650 in cash was stolen from a wallet left in a hiding place in a home in the 2000 block of Meadowbrook. The owner reported she believes the money was taken by a woman living with her family.

The woman said the suspect left at 11:30 a.m., saying she was going to get cigarettes. When she did not return by 2 p.m. the owner looked for the money and found it missing.

A Wixom woman reported the theft of her 1981 Pontiac Trans Am from the Twelve Oaks parking lot. The car is valued at $5,782.

The woman said the car was stolen while she was gone approximately 2½ hours. The automobile was later recovered in undrivable condition by Detroit police, according to reports.

Trucks stolen in Walled Lake

Car thieves kept Walled Lake police busy last week, as suspects drove off with two pickup trucks — both of which were later recovered.

A Shuman Chrysler car salesman may have thought he was about to make a sale, but a prospective buyer who asked to test drive a 1980 Toyota pickup truck March 29 never came through with the money.

In fact, the man never came back with the truck — driving off with the pickup and leaving his own car behind.

When the salesman reported the incident to Walled Lake police, officers discovered the car the man had left behind had been stolen in Livonia.

The Toyota pickup — which was the personal car of the Shuman salesman — was recovered April 2 in Redford Township, police said.

A similar incident occurred recently in Novi, when a man asked to test drive a Toyota pickup for sale at McNeill's Gulf Station, drove off and never returned. The truck he left behind, a Blazer, had been stolen in Wayne, Novi police said.

Walled Lake police said they did not know if the man who stole the Toyota pickup from Shuman Chrysler was the same man as the one involved in the Novi incident, who is suspected of having repeated the offense statewide.

In another incident, a 1983 Ford pickup valued at $500 was stolen from a home on West Walled Lake Drive early the morning of April 2, Walled Lake police said.

Housing compatibility issue nearing conclusion

jeans? They're not acceptable unless they're all the same and all expensive."
Irving Yackness of the Southeastern Michigan Builders Association, Marvin Kramer of R&H Builders and Brian McMahon of Pulte Builders all asked the council to reject the ordinance. The attorneys cited specific provisions with each of the areas under consideration. While the attorneys recommended outright rejection of some of the ordinances, others such as the "truth in selling" ordinance were acceptable with modifications, they indicated. Council members went on to discuss the various ordinances in groups. They dealt with the disclosure ordinance with each council member detailing specific problems with certain aspects of the ordinance and discussing language to be added to the ordinance to resolve the reservations. Those were turned over to the city attorney to be incorporated into the disclosure ordinance which is designed to make home buyers aware of covenants and restrictions, master plans and zoning maps.

The revised architectural review ordinance, as proposed by Watson, was tentatively supported by five council members — John Chambers, Mayor Robert Schmidt, James Shaw, Guy Smith and Watson. Patricia Karevich and Martha Hoyer opposed it.
Karevich explained she favored encouraging a "similarity in size." The size would be determined by the builder who put in the first homes in the subdivision and future homes would be built within a range established by the size of the original homes. "Beyond that it is up to the builder and the home buyer," she said. She believes the ordinance could address establishing a percentage of house size changes, but not architectural design and review.

Hoyer said she was concerned about the legality of such an ordinance. She specifically objected to language in the preamble stating one reason the ordinance was enacted was to protect property values. Hoyer said she would not be comfortable with those words included.
Karevich explained she favored en-

Council Member James Shaw pointed out the requirement as proposed by Watson may be "a monster" to enforce and asked for further input to determine if a better set of criteria could be utilized.
Those supporting the architectural review concept agreed to look into the criteria used by the building official to determine architectural compatibility.
Regarding house size, the council could come to no consensus and took no action.
Mayor Schmidt strongly supported minimum house size standards, noting that many surrounding communities have such standards.
He also said the city has a wide variety of housing and can accommodate residents from all income brackets. Schmidt further said that although there has been a great deal of attention given to the problem of excluding people from Novi with high priced housing, the city also should be concerned about losing residents willing to purchase larger homes. He said he believes such standards are "critical" because without minimum standards "many of the owners of existing houses will get taken advantage of by developers whose sole interest is making a profit without concern over what happens to the City of Novi."

Shaw indicated he thought such ordinances were not legal and amounted to "economic discrimination." Watson opposed a house size standard that went up in graduated increments based on the lot sizes and received no support for a cross-the-board house size minimum. Chambers and Smith supported adding house size standards to the architectural review ordinance.

And Hoyer again raised questions of the legality of such an ordinance. She pointed out minimum house sizes would be difficult to uphold and small square footage requirements which could be upheld would be meaningless.
Council members rejected the residential building moratorium on the grounds it was unnecessary, as they expect to act on the architectural review ordinance within one week.

Workers help feed friends

Mary Kupovits can't say enough good things about General Motors.
That's because employees at GM's Milford Proving Ground donated 1,410 cans of food and $376 to Walled Lake residents who are being helped by the city's emergency food program, which Kupovits is coordinating.
In addition to the cans and money collected from GM employees and retirees, GM contributed $1,061 in matching funds to the Walled Lake food program, according to Richard Levenick, a spokesman for the proving ground.
The contributions came as part of the company's Care and Share program, which ran for eight weeks in more than 70 communities where GM employees live and work, Levenick said.
Proving ground workers donated food and money to the food drives, and their contributions were distributed to the emergency help programs operating in their communities.
"At the Milford facility, the results of this effort have been outstanding," said Donald R. Bowen, chairman of the Milford GM Public Affairs Committee. "We want to thank GM employees for their generosity and all those who worked so hard to administer the program at the proving ground."
Bowen cited the outstanding efforts of Walled Lake Fish in making the program a success and thanked Kupovits for the organization's strong support.
Kupovits noted she was very appreciative of the assistance provided by GM workers and the company itself.
But although the Care and Share program is over, the need for added food and money continues. Food distributions are continuing at the Walled Lake Police Station every Friday and the program is still approved on a broad base of support — including help from Walled Lake and Decker Elementary schools. Anyone who needs help is urged to call the police department, 624-3111. Donations also are being accepted and can be dropped off at the police department.

Our Perspective of Missions
Dr. James Luther
Who was the first missionary? Well, the answer is clear — the Lord Jesus Christ. He spent his ministry telling others the good news — His death on the cross for the sins of mankind. Right before He went up to heaven, He gave us the Great Commission — to go and tell the world this good news (Matt. 28:19-20). Since that time the history of the church has been the outworking of this mandate. We at First Baptist Church believe it is our job to reach Northville with the Gospel, as well as the whole world.
This is the reason we are having a Mission Conference, April 10-13. In our regular Sunday services, as well as Monday through Wednesday evenings at 7:30 we will be hearing from missionaries representing the continents of Europe, Asia and South America.
There will also be several other events surrounding this conference. Please call the church for further details. This should be an exciting and challenging time. Won't you join us?

'Vocational ed's for everybody'

Freda Shewach believes in the co-op experience

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Co-operative Education Program in the Walled Lake School District is marking its 20th anniversary this year. This is the second in a series of articles about the program which provides on-the-job training for students at the conclusion of their vocational education experience.

By PHILIP JEROME

Freda Shewach knows something about working in an office. After graduating from high school, she served five years as secretary to the chairman of the English Department at Wayne State University.

She then took time off to raise a family, but returned to Wayne State as a student and earned a BS degree in Business Education and a M.Ed. in Guidance and Counseling.

Today, Freda Shewach is coordinator of the Office Education Program for the Walled Lake Co-operative Education Program. And she couldn't be happier.

"I have the best job in the system," said Shewach from her office in Walled Lake Central High School recently. "The work load is pretty heavy, but I like what I do. I like working with students and I like working with employers."

Her own experience as a secretary is critical to the performance of her job. In fact, state law mandates that co-op teachers have practical field experience as well as the appropriate teaching degrees.

As coordinator of the office education program, Shewach says her primary responsibility is to coordinate "the world of skills with the world of work." Students apply for the co-op experience after acquiring vocational training at the end of the eleventh grade.

Shewach then finds them jobs in the workplace and students gain invaluable on-the-job experience during their senior years. It's not unusual for employers to add the students to their regular payrolls after the co-op period is over.

"Typical of the administrators in Walled Lake's co-op program, Shewach has a deep and abiding faith in vocational education and the co-op experience."

"Too many people think of vocational education as something for other people's kids," she said. "But it's not just for the student who isn't going to college; it's for everyone. Everyone should have at least one vocational skill to fall back on after they graduate from high school."

Shewach illustrates the point by citing the example of her own children — all of whom are in college or have graduated from college. One of her daughters has a Ph.D. and currently is doing cancer research in Texas.

"Every one of my children was headed for college, but every one of them also had a vocational skill by the time they left high school," she said.

"And those skills came in handy, too," she continued. "Each of my children earned part of their college educations. I believe in the work ethic for kids — all kids."

"I still believe the best thing we ever did for our kids is encourage them to learn a vocational skill and earn part of their college educations."

Shewach says college placement bureaus also are beginning to place increased importance on vocational skills and work experience. "Basically, the placement bureaus have found that employers are asking for people with work experience," she reported.

"They're looking for people with practical experience in the workplace as well as the theoretical skills obtained in the classroom."

In addition to being a strong supporter of vocational education, Shewach also believes strongly in office education, and sees it as a rapidly expanding field.

"When I started as Office Co-op Director 15 years ago, all our students were females in the typist and receptionist categories," she said. "But office education has broadened immensely in recent years and is going to grow even more because of computers and automation."

"There are so many fascinating, challenging occupations that it's too bad people don't get specific training for them."

"That's one of the goals facing those of us in the vocational education field — to make people aware of the exciting job opportunities available so they can acquire the skills to obtain the jobs that will help them lead satisfying, fulfilling lives."

Gerhard tops village candidates

approved a charter amendment abolishing that requirement in future elections.

Judy Brennecke placed fifth with 145 votes, followed by Dennis Oblak at 84; Lewis Wells Jr. at 79 and Raymond Tellman at 66.

The village council will hold its bi-annual organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday (April 11), rather than at its regularly scheduled time of April 13.

Voters approved all five charter amendments by an overwhelming margin.

The first question, to allow the council to name council candidates only if fewer than one candidate per available seat files nominating petitions, passed 331 to 72. Approval means the council will no longer be required to appoint volunteer "candidates" to fill a slate that formerly required two candidates per seat.

The second question, which would allow the council to elect the president rather than mandate the member who receives the highest percentage of votes be designated president, also was approved, 327 to 77.

Wolverine Lake also will have a president pro tem from now on since voters approved proposed amendment three with a vote of 345 to 54. The president pro tem will serve in the temporary absence of the council president. A council member will probably be named to that post at next Monday's meeting.

The charter proposal that would raise the ceiling for purchase and sale of property from $250 to $1,500 passed, but on a smaller margin than the other questions. Favoring the change were 272 voters, while 134 opposed the new figure, which village officials said was needed to keep pace with inflation.

The last amendment question also passed, 355 to 53. As a result, village officials will no longer be required to post meeting notices on village boards instead of upcoming meetings will be either printed in a local newspaper or posted at the village offices, as they have been in the past. Notices of ordinance adoption and public hearings will continue to be published.

The lake hours advisory question was, perhaps, the surprise decision of the election. It was narrowly defeated, as 241 voters favored keeping lake hours as they currently are and 201 voters wanted to recommend that the DNR extend speed boating one hour on summer week nights.

While that question was not binding in a legal sense, it could put an end to the village council's efforts to change the boating hours, a struggle they have been engaged in for almost the entire past year. The village council decided to put the question on the ballot to see how residents really felt about the issue. Council members said if voters approved seeking a change, they would pursue it with the DNR, but if voters rejected the change they would abandon attempts to have the hours changed.

The DNR has rejected the village council's attempts to have boating hours extended, saying it was not in the best interests of the residents of Wolverine Lake or the State of Michigan.

Karell heads Goodfellows

Jack Karell has been elected president of the Wixom Goodfellows, according to the group's secretary Gunnar Mettala.
Henry Brandell received the nod as first vice president and Charles Hubley will be second vice president. Henry Mach was selected as the Goodfellows' treasurer.
Mettala said the Goodfellows prepared food baskets for 30 families before Christmas and 16 supplemental baskets since Christmas.
"If there are emergency situations people should contact city hall. The Goodfellows always take care of them on a short-term basis," Mettala said. Part of the Goodfellows' fund-raising activities includes the sale of special edition holiday newspapers.

As We See It

Delaying tactics can't be allowed

No one seems to disagree that communities like Commerce Township and Wixom need additional sewer capacity to correct existing pollution problems and avoid future ones. After more than 20 years of study and planning, both communities were slated to obtain capacity in the Huron Valley Wastewater System, commonly known as Super sewer.

Despite the massive amounts of time, money and study that have been committed to the super sewer project, the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has suddenly come up with a new proposal — that Commerce and Wixom join Detroit's embattled sewer system.

The DNR proposal comes at a time when the director of Detroit's sewer department has resigned under fire and its administration is in a shambles.

DNR and Detroit officials contend the city system has more than sufficient capacity to service communities such as Commerce and Wixom. They make the contention despite past problems at the Detroit plant with overflow sewage being released without proper treatment.

Regional planning officials indicate part of the reason for the increased Detroit sewer capacity is the improved physical plant and management resulting from federal district court receivership.

Local officials have commented, however, that the Detroit proposal could have been made years earlier. It seems more than coincidental that Detroit is seeking additional customers to subsidize its system and the DNR suggests adding the communities in super sewer's northern tier.

Detroit and regional officials indicate there will be a cost savings to communities using Detroit's system due to reduced construction needs. The DNR is expected to soon provide cost comparisons.

Another key factor in the Detroit sewer proposal appears to be the limited federal funds available for the project. If super sewer is constructed as proposed, all of Michigan's available federal funds would be used leaving the rest of the state without funding.

Certainly the most efficient and cost effective method for handling sewage disposal is desired by the local communities. The DNR may decide that Detroit's system will provide both.

There are still legitimate concerns being raised by local officials, not the least of which are the motivations behind the DNR's sudden switch and future accountability within the Detroit system.

Unless the DNR offers substantial evidence to the contrary, super sewer should be completed as planned. Last minute changes in federal policies and state and regional political climates have caused confusion and possibly costly delays in obtaining environmentally needed services.

Local officials have commented, however, that the Detroit proposal could have been made

By KAREN RICE

Nobody rents rabbits for Easter anymore.

Actually, no one ever did. No one I've ever heard of, that is, except one wonderful gent who shall remain nameless due to an excessive amount of notoriety already having been foisted on him thanks to his familial ties.

Anyway, once upon a time a man decided his children ought to know what a bunny was like. You see, they lived in the city and it's hard to gain much knowledge about things like that.

This same man was horrified to discover that what his children referred to as an "orchard" was actually a vacant lot with two cherry trees on it. He realized then that their knowledge of nature was sadly lacking, especially since the only members of the animal kingdom they had ever seen were in the Detroit Zoo and on Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color.

He decided to teach them about animals, beginning with rabbits. And there was no better time for them to learn than Easter, which happened to be right around the corner.

So he walked down to his neighborhood pet store and said to the man, "Hi there. I'd like to rent a rabbit."

The pet store owner stared and said, "I'm sorry, sir. We don't rent rabbits. We sell rabbits."

"Well, I don't want to buy a rabbit," the man said. "If I buy a rabbit, it'll be fun for about two days. Then my wife will end up having to feed the rabbit and take care of the rabbit and everyone else will forget about it. She'll be furious with me."

"But," he continued, "I want my kids to know what a rabbit is like. You don't get many chances to pet them when you're living in the city. So I want to rent a rabbit that they can use for Easter. And then I want to bring it back so you can sell it to someone else."

The pet store owner thought about it.

Finally a deal was arranged. He agreed to sell the rabbit to the man on Saturday. But on Monday, when the store opened again, he promised he would buy the rabbit back — less a handling fee — if the man decided he didn't want to keep it.

And that's exactly what happened.

The man took the rabbit home, hid it in the basement all night Saturday and in the morning announced to his excited children, "Oh my! You'll never guess what's happened. The Easter bunny is in the basement!"

Well, the Easter bunny hopped around all day, leaving his tell-tale trail behind him. And although the children begged to keep the rabbit, the man said he was sorry but the Easter bunny could only stay for Easter. Then he had to go back home to be with his own family.

The children accepted that, as children are apt to do. And although they often wished afterwards that the Easter bunny would stop by for another visit, they knew they had been lucky that he had chosen to spend a whole day with them.

Dare you ask what the moral of the story is?

Here today, gone tomorrow.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

Hallelujah.

Praise the Lord.

Do ya love Jesus? Wave if ya love Jesus. Do ya love Jesus, sing Hallelujah.

You'll have to excuse me this week. I've got the spirit. And the fact that Easter was last Sunday is only coincidental.

Actually, what's got into me is "Your Arms Too Short to Box with God." That's what was playing at the Fisher Theater in Detroit over the weekend. And my good wife and I decided to take it in.

Thank God we did. What a show. What fun. What an experience.

If you get the impression I liked it, you're right. Basically, "Your Arms Too Short" is a black version of the crucifixion. And, appropriately I believe, it features lots of good old-fashion gospel singing. Patti LaBelle is the star and she sings up a storm.

I decided early on in the performance that part of the fun was going to be audience participation. So, despite my WASP upbringing, I decided to join in. It wasn't easy at first; quiet, subdued worship has been the general rule at any church I've ever been to and it's hard to break old habits. But before it was over I never did summon up the courage to sing, Hallelujah.

The highlight of the afternoon occurred when Patti LaBelle came out into the audience and was confronted by a tall, dignified-looking black woman who decided she wanted to testify. So she did.

There they were — Patti LaBelle and the tall woman — just a few rows away from me, arms wrapped around each other's shoulders, tears in their eyes, singing about Jesus.

It was nice, real nice. I realize "Arms" is theater, a musical production. But it's also much more. As we were walking out of the theater after the show, I remarked to an acquaintance who just happened to have been sitting next to us that I couldn't believe we went to a church where people didn't sing "Hallelujah" and "Amen" when the spirit moved them.

People should worship as they wish, of course. But if I were starting all over, I think I'd find out where Patti LaBelle goes to church.

Vote places onus

Novi voters once again have demonstrated their desire for a strong community and a strong school system by approving a millage renewal issue on the March 28 ballot.

Specifically, voters approved a 13-mill renewal question for the operation of schools by a margin of 504 to 363.

The comfortable margin of victory was somewhat surprising for a number of reasons. Some hard feelings persist from the employees strike at the start of the current school year; and the arrest of two high school teachers on arson charges has generated poor publicity for the district.

The playground controversy and the decision not to replace the special education director also have created segments of dissatisfaction.

'Friends' needed

It's good to see patrons of the Walled Lake Library forming a Friends of the Library association.

Now that the library has completed the transition from its cramped quarters to a sparkling new facility, all kinds of additional programs can be incorporated into the services the library already provides.

From more children's story hours to adult book discussions, from craft workshops to tax seminars from puppet shows to used book sales — those are the types of extras the library could be offering and may be able to once the Friends group gets underway.

A Friends organization is a vital part of the support structure of any library. The Friends groups provide invaluable service to both the Novi and Wixom libraries and will be able to do the same in Walled Lake.

We encourage the newly forming Friends of the Walled Lake Library in their endeavors. Their efforts are important and needed.

'A driveway's not a playground'

To the Editor:

"Playground: An area used specifically for outdoor recreation, as one attached to a school."
"Driveway: A road, especially a private one, leading from a street or other thoroughfare to a building, house, garage, etc."

These are dictionary definitions of the common terms playground and driveway. The Novi school board, it appears, is redefining these terms. It is trying to make one into the other. The school board has made driveways and parking lots into playgrounds. If these two terms were truly equal, they should also be able to make playgrounds into driveways.

This magic art of calling a spade a heart is performed daily at all the elementary schools and one of the middle schools in Novi. According to the building principals, none of the schools has a hard-surfaced playground to use during wet weather. The only place for children to run without getting muddy on a rainy day is on a driveway or in a parking lot.

On dry days, the only place for children to bounce a ball or jump rope is on a driveway, parking lot or sidewalk near traffic and other hazards.

It reminds me of the story of the emperor's new clothes. Everyone admired the emperor's wardrobe except one clear-eyed little boy who exclaimed that the emperor was naked. Every empire needs its clear-eyed citizens who can tell the difference between clothing and nakedness.

The "clear-eyed little boy" in this case is a certain Mrs. Sharon Burke who can tell the difference between a playground and a driveway.

The moral of the story was that honesty is rewarded and that all the "yes men" in the world saying something is so, doesn't make it so.

In the real-life situation, the school board is going to continue to call a driveway a playground. It is interesting to ponder what other terms they could redefine for the sake of expediency.

Resident seeks support for drug abuse program

By KAREN RICE

When Dick Wilson's son developed a drug habit, Wilson learned a lot about drugs and the difficulty of giving them up.

But that was only a small part of what Dick Wilson learned. He quickly discovered there wasn't an available program in Oakland County or southeastern Michigan that fit his son's needs. Specifically, while Oakland County has several programs to help drug addicts break the habit, it had nothing to help once the reformed addict went back home to face the same pressures and friends that helped start his drug habit, Wilson said.

Wilson and a large network of supporters in the Milford area — including 52nd District Court Judge Martin Boyle — are in the midst of organizing a branch of the Palmer Drug Abuse Program (PDAP), the Texas-based organization Wilson credits with saving his son's life.

Currently they are making the rounds to local city, township and village council meetings as governmental agencies wade into budget sessions for 1983-84.

With a projected budget need of $81,200 for the coming year — Michigan PDAP's first year — program supporters are looking for a lot of help, but expect only $4,000 of it to come from government agencies. The rest, they say, will come from private and business donations, contributions from service clubs, churches and community fund raisers.

So far, Wilson told the Walled Lake City Council last week, PDAP supporters have been getting a good response. Milford Township has promised to allocate $2,500, while Highland Township has kicked in $1,500, he said; together the two communities contributed PDAP's entire municipal goal.

Other communities may follow: Milford Village is considering the request, as is Walled Lake. Yet to be approached are Wixom, Wolverine Lake, Commerce Township and White Lake Township.

In addition, the Michigan Jaycee Auxiliary has adopted PDAP as its prime cause this year and local chapters — including the Walled Lake and Union Lake Jaycees — are selling raffle tickets to benefit the program.

PDAP will be based at the Milford Presbyterian Church, which has donated space for the first year, according to Wilson, executive director of the program. When it gets underway, it will have at least two counselors and a director/counselor who will be available to meet with drug addicts years and older. While much of the program is geared to teenagers and their families, older addicts also are encouraged to participate, he said. Participation in PDAP is free of charge.

Wilson, chairman of the board of trustees of PDAP, said communities like Walled Lake, Wixom and Wolverine Lake would benefit from establishment of the Palmer Drug Abuse Program in two ways.

"We believe if we can get this underway, number one it will be available to people in your area, and number two it will be the first one to be established in the State of Michigan."

— Dick Wilson, PDAP proponent

"We believe if we can get this underway, number one it will be available to people in your area, and number two it will be the first one to be established in the State of Michigan," Wilson said. That would make it easier to get an extension of PDAP off the ground here since the Milford chapter would be able to support the effort and would have already completed most of the paper work, he said.

"We believe having such an agency in your area could be of direct benefit to agencies such as yourself," he told the Walled Lake City Council, suggesting drug-related crimes could drop as a result.

According to Wilson, PDAP is a para-professional outpatient program that uses methods similar to Alcoholics Anonymous to help addicts or drug abusers become free of their dependencies.

To participate, the abuser must agree to make a 30-day commitment not to use any drugs — whether narcotics or alcohol. PDAP then substitutes the abuser's peer groups from a negative to a positive force. PDAP counselors are former substance abusers who go through an intensive training program and serve internships under experienced counselors, Wilson said.

Wilson said the Milford group will help anyone who seeks help there and will help encourage formation of more chapters.

The group has applied for a license to operate from the Oakland County Office of Substance Abuse and is now working on raising enough money to pay for its first year in operation. The PDAP board of trustees hope to be in operation by June.

For more information, write to Wilson at P.O. Box 460, Milford 48042.

Wixom okays crackdown on delinquent taxpayers

People owing delinquent personal property taxes to Wixom have received fair warning — and the Wixom City Council has voted to call in the strong arm of Oakland County to get their money.

City Treasurer Rick Holman recommended last week that the city enter an agreement with Oakland County for the collection of overdue taxes. "The number of delinquent personal property tax parcels has increased dramatically over the last two years because of the deteriorating economy," he said.

According to Holman, a personal property taxes were delinquent in April 1981. In 1982, he said the number had increased to seven and it currently has reached 27 parcels.

An additional reason cited by Holman for having Oakland County take over delinquent tax collection is staff availability.

"We don't begin serious efforts to collect until the first of April each year," Holman said. "Our collection efforts are then hampered by the time constraints imposed by the budget preparation process."

City staff time currently spent visiting businesses and attending bankruptcy hearings could be better spent, he added. Holman added that with its trained staff the county has the reputation and experience to speed tax payments from delinquent taxpayers.

Wixom will receive the full tax collected by the county, which will receive penalties, interest or collection fees assessed.

school to get their assignments and they'll take a final exam at the conclusion of the term. If they pass the exam, they'll be promoted with the rest of their class, although it might be necessary for some of them to take additional classes during summer school."

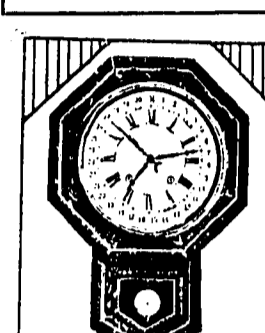

Danley said school board members were very concerned about "cutting 12 and 13-year-olds adrift for the remainder of the spring term without an educational program."

Danley also said he was pleased with the board's support. "It was a difficult decision for them to make," he said. "These are nice kids — they could be your neighbors or mine. They made a mistake, but a serious mistake."

"I believe we've taken the proper action," he continued. "I think we have dealt effectively with a potentially serious problem and still demonstrated that we have the interests of the students at heart."

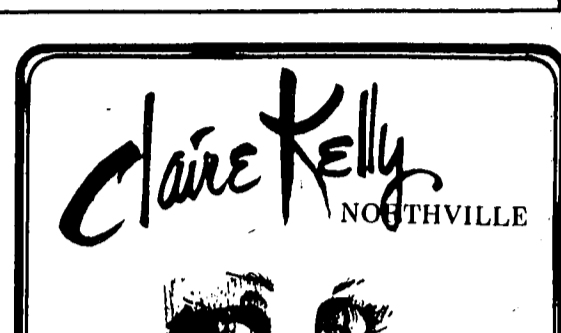

"I hope the six students who were expelled will benefit from their mistakes ... that they'll grow from the experience. I'm glad that we dealt with it openly and didn't sweep it under the rug."

"I think morale would have been hurt if strong action had not been taken," he said. "I think the students are generally pleased; any number of them have told me they don't want that type of activity in their school."

Landscape design wins top nurserymen award

Landscaping designed and constructed at a Farmington Hills residence by Milo Hunt and Green Ridge Nursery, Inc. of South Lyon has won the Michigan Association of Nurserymen's award for excellence.

Presentation was made at M.A.N.'s annual convention last month in Saginaw. Hunt, of Northville, has been designing residential and commercial landscapes for 25 years at Greenridge Nursery and has won numerous awards for his expertise. The firm itself has been in business 42 years.

This year's honor was for landscaping designed and constructed at the Al Roseau home in Farmington Hills. The contemporary home was built by Tony Bausa of Northville.

The focal point in the landscape is a large front entry courtyard surrounded by the house and archways connecting the house to the garage. The enclosure creates a micro-climate allowing use of delicate broadleaf evergreens, brilliant shade-loving impatiens and pots of colorful geraniums.

A warm slate flagstone walk completes the rich entry to the Roseau home.

The house is located on a rolling, wooded lot. Hunt has eliminated the need for lawn maintenance by transplanting myrtle from surrounding slopes to form a carpet of lavender-flowering ground cover in summer months. The balance of the yard is covered in shredded bark mulch, and several specimens of evergreens and ornamental trees are Eroded limestone boulders are strategically placed in the front yard to produce a naturalized setting. A hemlock tree is planted in front of the bedroom window, among more limestone boulders, to provide privacy and allow those inside to view wildlife in the neighboring woods.

Greenridge Nursery offers full landscaping service, including expert design assistance, quality trees and shrubs grown in the nursery, and landscape construction of decks, walks, walls and patios.

The nursery, formerly in Northville, recently moved to 9710 Rushton in South Lyon, between Seven and Eight Mile roads.

Hours are Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. through April 2, then spring hours will be Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

State sixth in home sales

Despite being among the states hardest hit by the recession, Michigan ranked sixth in the number of existing homes and condominiums sold last year.

California remained the most active state in the resale market with 181,100 units changing hands. Texas was next with 155,900, followed by New York (121,200), Pennsylvania (108,700), Florida (92,600), Michigan (90,000), Ohio (79,800), Illinois (78,600), New Jersey (74,800) and Virginia (68,300).

Figures supplied by the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WVOCBR) from a national survey showed resale of units declined 19.1 percent. Last year's sale of 2,038,900 units compared to 2,521,400 in 1981.

Five states reported improved sales in 1982. Louisiana led the way with a 12.5 percent gain. Others with smaller increases included Alabama, Kentucky, Maine, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Michigan showed a 23.1 percent drop in sales from a year earlier, but was not among the major decliners. WVOCBR, the state's largest Realtor board, reported a drop of 10.7 percent in its 1,600 square mile metropolitan territory.

Seven states showed decreased sales of 30 percent or more headed by Missouri with a 37.8 percent decline.

Other high percentage losers included Georgia (35.3), Florida (34.6), Washington (32.7), Wisconsin (32.6) and California (32.3).

The four lowest states in terms of sales volume were Vermont, Wyoming, Alaska and Hawaii, all with 6,000 units or less.

Some added interesting facts disclosed in the study:

- more homes were sold in Alaska (4,400) than Hawaii (4,100);
- the District of Columbia ranked higher than both Alaska and Hawaii with sales of 5,000 existing units.

MASTER GARDENERS THREE — Irene and Ray Raney and their daughter Anne, all of Raney's Plants and Produce, pictured in their greenhouse at 57705 Tenth Mile, South Lyon, recently completed 10 three-hour sessions on gardening at the Wayne County Extension office.

It was an intensive 30 hours of instruction followed by a final examination that all three Raney's passed with flying colors to achieve their Master Gardener certifications. Some of the horticulture areas covered in the course were grasses, trees, shrubs, flowering plants, bedding plants, compost, perennials and household pests.

In addition to taking the course, Master Gardeners are required to donate some time to assisting in a variety of gardening projects. Irene satisfies that requirement by giving talks for groups concerning gardening and plant care. Carditis Cough Miseries have many names many of unheard. Trade diseases some are called. Explained sometimes by word. Now, take the one that bicyclists have 'Banana seat hernia' Others a 'Tight giraffe syndrome' Those for which a Doc could cure ya.

Then, there is 'Label licker's tongue' 'Celist chest' and 'Cricket thigh' That takes a greater try.

'Art Gallery Academy headache' And self-explained 'Milk spasm' Are trade names, as 'Mattress maker's fever' Medical magazines, Smithsonians has 'em.

Defying cure forevermore 'Credit-carditis,' a sciatic nerve Irritation, reaching buttock to hip From pressure of wallet to constantly serve. F.A. Hasenau

Love

Flowing gentle with streams of consciousness, love is the meaning of life's awareness... the only one of beauty. Without love, no life is lost... never to be found... as a lone wolf howling through the long dark night... a soul wishing another were there. Loving... sharing the intensity of loving the moments... knowing it is the treasure that is greatest in all time.

Patricia Keith

She Loved The Simple Things

The little things we used to do in which we found much pleasure Would not impress a lot of folk. But for us they were a treasure.

We would drive along a country road To witness God's creation; The beauty of the autumn leaves Or the blossom's soft elation.

We would absorb the beauty Of a sunset o'er the lake, Or listen to the haunting call Of a loon at dawning's break.

The journeys that we so enjoyed Through the east and then the west Filled us with abounding thanks For our land we call the best.

But the sweetest, simplest time of all For Charlotte and for me Was the coming home again With love, so joyfully.

To be welcomed by our home folk And our neighbors, waiting there; It made our lives so much worth while As we bowed in humble prayer.

Charles E. Hutton

The March

Long forgotten images live forever inside us the lost room of a dream lit quietly, from afar...

A distant blue sun warms and slows time while the symphony of the subconscious leads the parade of all meaning

Parade marching slowly, marching slowly without sound past lids' selfish urges and egos' artful mask past all that is added past all that is "real"

then at last we arrive the parade now dispersed and alone we are left all alone in our self feeling thought thinking fear and wanting to go home

Barrett Strong

An Epilogue

Lord, God of mercy, Justice—love With contrite hearts we humbly pray That Thou wilt send light from above To guide us who have lost our way.

Those who have turned their eyes from Thee Must feel the chastening stripes and rod; Thus saith the Book of Holy Writ Of nations that forget their God.

Strengthen our leaders, sadly weak Who falter in their sacred trust. Stretch forth Thy Hand that we may be Not once a nation of the just.

"We didn't have outstanding talent last year," he continued, "but did we battle. They knew how to win and had something extra in them. They were better as a team than they were individually and I honestly believe this team could be as good or better."

Pitching depth, a critical consideration for most high school squads, abounds on this year's 20-man Wildcat roster, but Weinburger views the situation with some reservation.

"We have plenty of talented arms this spring, but it has a way of going weird on you," said Weinburger citing an injury to potential starter Erik Balk as evidence. "I think we have a pretty good staff and these guys are definitely talented, but whether or not they can pitch successfully at the varsity level remains a question."

Weinburger's reference to pitching at the varsity level refers chiefly to juniors Brent Dinn and Balk, two members of last year's successful junior varsity team that lost just two games.

Dinn, a lanky 6-3 right-hander fresh off a successful stint as a varsity basketball forward, should be the Wildcat's third starter in a five-man rotation this spring. Balk will inherit the fourth or fifth spot depending on his recovery from a heel injury.

Senior Eric Laverty (21 on the varsity last year) and juniors Eric Brook and Pat McKernan add depth to the Novit staff.

Foremost in Weinburger's plans this season will be senior hurlers Eric Deline (21 on the varsity last year) and Tim Bunker, two more members of the Wildcat basketball team.

"Bunker played outfield so well last year that I kept him off the mound," Weinburger daily stated. "I also had a kid who pitched a lot last season for me in Todd Faulkner, who was 9-3 in 80 innings. So Tim didn't get much of a chance."

Around the infield, Weinburger will start junior Todd Crutchfield at shortstop, Dinn or Deline at third base and a whole lot of questions at first and second.

Tom McSweeney, a junior, will inherit first base from slick fielding Mark Stonier, who, according to Weinburger, "fielded a ton and saved the infield from a lot of errors last season." He said McSweeney, one of the team's hardest workers, has the potential to be as good as Stonier.

Prospects appear bright for Novi baseball squad

By DON NEWSTED

Predictions are pointless, according to veteran Novi baseball coach Bob Weinburger. But with the arrival of spring, optimism is blooming brightly for the 1983 Wildcats.

Novi's baseball program has a tradition of excellence, and Weinburger's 1982 squad did nothing to damage the reputation.

The Wildcats rebounded from a mediocre regular season to make waves in the MHSAA State Class B tournament last spring, advancing to the regional finals before Bay City Handy ended the Cinderella string and the season with a 5-2 victory.

The Wildcats ended the season with a 17-12 record and an impressive 9-5, third-place finish in the rock-rough Kennington Valley Conference.

In 1973, Novi reached the state Class C (finals before Bay City Handy) and in 1975 the Wildcats reached the regional finals where they lost to Flint Parkers.

With tradition like that, Weinburger begins his fifth season at the Wildcat helm with the distinct possibility of fielding his finest team ever.

"I'm looking forward to it (the season)," Weinburger said. "We didn't have outstanding talent last year," he continued, "but did we battle. They knew how to win and had something extra in them. They were better as a team than they were individually and I honestly believe this team could be as good or better."

Pitching depth, a critical consideration for most high school squads, abounds on this year's 20-man Wildcat roster, but Weinburger views the situation with some reservation.

'I think we have a pretty good staff and these guys are definitely talented, but ...'

— Bob Weinburger, Novi coach

Weinburger's other "problem" is at second, where he must choose between Bunker, Deline, Laverty or junior Dan Mahan for the starting position.

The choice will be academic when the season opens Friday at home against Kingston. Four of Novi's five senior starters will be on the sun-baked benches of Florida, participants in the school's traditional spring trip. Mahan will receive the start by virtue of elimination.

Crutchfield will also double as the Wildcat leadoff hitter in a lineup that is still unsettled, according to Weinburger.

"Todd was good enough to make the varsity last year, but I decided to keep him on the JV to get the work," said Weinburger. "He has a good glove, good hands and runs the bases as well as anyone."

John Meo, a junior whose brother Joe is one of three former Wildcats currently filling spots on the Adrian College baseball roster, will start at catcher with juniors Pat Mason and Tim Ford in reserve.

Ford, the star of Novi's varsity wrestling team this season, has turned his aggressive nature to the diamond and will play centerfield this season.

Jim Wineka, a senior, will start in leftfield, but rightfield is wide open pending the final decision on where Bunker will play. John Plumley, a junior, and classmate McKernan also will see action in the open spaces.

Additional first year seniors Mark Turentine, Mike O'Connell, Randy Olson, John Montiz and Len Vetter join lefthanded hitter Jim Clancy as members of the 1983 Wildcats fighting for positions.

"I hope we do better than last year's team," said Weinburger cautiously. "We were 4-2 at one point last season, but then turned it on and finished 13-3. We could equal that record, but I don't set goals. We will do what we can to win as many as we can. Hopefully it will be enough."

Although Weinburger will not have the luxury of senior experience against Kingston Friday, he approves of their excursion southward and will use the opportunity to experiment with younger players.

"I use this game as an exhibition of sorts," he said of the game against the Class D school. "I'm only going to dress 12 or 13 players and move people around."

The seniors will return to face Oak Park April 12 in Novi and give the Wildcats enough leadership to survive the rigors of another onslaught of Kennington Valley Conference competition.

According to Weinburger, the defending champion from Brighton are the favorites, but "South Lyon and Hartland will have to be reckoned with and Lakeland will be tough with its pitching. Throw in Howell's tradition of good baseball teams and you have one heck of a race."

Where does that leave Novi? With no predictions but a lot of optimism for a successful 1983 campaign.

CUSTOM CHROME FASTENERS

They are ever so content to take what you give, Begrudging your success and the way that you live. You can bet all your dollars against maybe one. If they have started a job it's probably not done. They have shunned all the hard work and decided to play. Have accomplished not a thing throughout all the day. They will usually complain that it's hard luck they've had. That you've had all the good and they've had all the bad.

It is really quite obvious as you travel on through, Those that won't work will depend on you. To see that they have what they want as they go, As they stumble through life at a pace really slow.

If things were reversed and you needed a hand, For planting the seed or for tilling the land, Those that depended on you would just turn away, Or say they might help you on some other day.

It might even be better not to help them at all, You only learn best to get up after you've taken a fall. So the best way of all you might help them to learn, Tell them to get up and make a one eighty degree turn.

Novi must replace mound corps

By DON NEWSTED

Undeniably, the potential of every softball team lies in the strength of its players up the middle, beginning with the catcher and concluding with the centerfielder.

Faced with a minor rebuilding task since losing the "heart" of his 1982 squad (pitcher Cheryl Shankel and backstop Linda Nagrant) to graduation, Novi softball coach Jim Tinsley has based his efforts this spring on building from within.

"What I look for is strength up the middle," explained Tinsley, whose Wildcats finished 12-13 a year ago. "I have it in the outfield and infield, but our pitching and catching is questionable."

Shankel, a hard-throwing righthander who broke several bones in Nagrant's receiving hand last year, is now firing her flames at Western Michigan, leaving a gaping hole for Tinsley on the mound.

Wendy Kaercher, a senior coming off a successful volleyball campaign, will head a trio of pitching hopefuls into the April 13 opener against Farmington Harrison.

Junior Lisa Palka and Lansing Waverly transfer Sue Rasinke complete an inexperienced staff that has seen a minimum of high school action but causes only minor concern for Tinsley.

"None of them has ever really pitched at the varsity level before," said Tinsley. "I started from scratch with them two months ago, concentrating on the fundamentals, and I'll be doing a lot of experimenting early in the season with all three. Hopefully, I'll feel comfortable with any of them on the mound."

Palka is expected to receive the starting nod against Harrison and Tinsley

'We have experienced people in the infield and outfield who are good ballplayers and should give us some leadership.'

— Roy Tinsley, Novi softball coach will rotate the other two hurlers at third base, along with Karen Burnett. Catching also is a major concern for Novi this spring, but Tinsley feels he may have a diamond in the rough in sophomore Michelle Heath.

"I'm really impressed with Michelle," he said excitedly. "She is ideally what I look for in a catcher with her aggressiveness and attitude. She only started catching this spring, but has looked good so far and will probably start against Harrison."

Backing up Heath but also in contention for a starting berth behind the mask are senior Sandy Wilkinson and Junior Lisa Coach.

Novi's keystone combination of senior Sue Beckman at shortstop and either junior Chris Finzel or Burnett at second is just cause for Tinsley to feel secure.

"I have given the shortstop position to Sue," said Tinsley. "She is our leading returning hitter from last season (.333) and started the entire season at second for me, but I'll be moving her to short this year. Last year we had a lot of balls hit to second because of Cheryl's (Shankel) speed."

Selecting a second sacker may not be so easy for the veteran coach. "Finzel is a pretty good fielder," noted Tinsley. "But Burnett looks like she can really handle the bat. I will probably alternate the two all season long, depending on the situation."

One note of special concern is the absence of last season's starting shortstop Peggy Wilson. As a junior this year, Wilson will not play due to a nagging back injury. She will attempt a return in the spring of 1994.

First base will be handled by senior Jill Shankel unless she is moved to third or the outfield to shore up those positions. Barb Ede, a junior, and Karen Bradley, a sophomore, also are vying for a shot at first.

Novi's outfield strength is readily apparent with the return of senior flycatchers Beth Pianta (.400 hitter in 1992) in leftfield and Debbie Samaman (.2nd team All-KVC) in center. Rightfield could be manned by sophomore Kim Burnett or one of the aforementioned infielders.

"Samaman is a real good centerfielder," said Tinsley. "She's not real fast, but is quick and gets a good jump on the ball. Pianta had a .750 on-base average last season and was second team all-league, so I am counting heavily on my seniors in the outfield."

On the bench, juniors Colleen Flanagan and Julie Spicer will be searching for a regular spot in the Wildcat outfield. Overall, Tinsley views his 1993 product with renewed optimism, despite the loss of workhorse Shankel to the collegiate ranks.

"I'm optimistic, although we haven't practiced outdoors much yet," said Tinsley. "I think we'll do quite well, but I'm not sure how well we'll make out in the league."

"I think we're going to be good, but we lack the experience to know that yet," he continued. "We have four non-league games before the league starts and I'm going to be open-minded about all the positions. It should be quite a competitive situation."

Competitive should also be the word for the Kensington Valley Conference this season, according to Tinsley, who rates defending champion Lakeland, Howell and South Lyon as the teams to beat. Perennial KVC power Brighton also can be counted on to raise havoc.

Novi concluded last season with a 4-8 KVC record, far behind Lakeland's unblemished and unbelievable 12-0 mark.

The 1992 season also ended on a wet and dismal note for the Wildcats, who held a lead over Fenton only to have rain and an off day by Shankel finish in a 11-0 elimination in the district championship game.

"We have experienced people in the infield and outfield who are good ballplayers and should give us some leadership," summarized Tinsley. "I won't make any predictions, but I think we can be a good club."

"The key will be the development of a couple of pitchers who put together good seasons and I think we can do a good job. With those things, we should be real tough to beat."

With those things, Novi will realize the importance of having a strong heart for your team.

Western's girl thinclads eye another super year

Warrior sprinters. The 220-yard dash is just as awesome with Welch, the two VanPuttens and Jablonski, not to mention Nancy Leach, Lisa Roselle and Fran Cullen, who finished fifth in the W-6 last year.

The same names pop up again in the quarter-mile, which Young also considers a sprint. Cullen finished third in the W-6 440. But the top quarter-miler this year may be Heather Gillespie. Or it could be Paula Hammond. Or Nancy Leach. Or even the VanPuttens again. Young also is high on Chris Wylie, a sophomore quarter-miler.

"We have a real good crew of sprinters from the 100 up through the 440," admits the veteran Warrior coach. "One of the nice things is that they're all so versatile. You can put virtually any one of them in any event and you're going to get a good performance."

In the 800, the Warriors are headed by sophomore Audrey Skoneczny, who finished third in the W-6 last year and improved considerably during the cross-country season. Cullen and Hammond also will see duty in the half-mile.

The mile and two-mile also will be capably staffed with the Glagola sisters — Nancy, a senior, and Betty, a sophomore. Nancy finished third in the W-6 two-mile last year. Two sophomores, Jennifer Junola and Chris Hyde, also are good distance runners. And Young also expects big things from Sarah Nimmo, only a freshman.

That leaves only the hurdles, another event in which Western looks strong thanks to Byrka, who finished second in the W-6 last year in both the 110 and 220 hurdles. Junior Kris Poland finished fifth in the W-6 in the 110s; and the Warriors also have four strong freshman candidates — Pam Roselle, Paula Jenks, Cindy Wylie and Karen Byrka, who also will see action in the sprints.

Young is one of the most successful coaches in the history of Walled Lake Western. Her teams traditionally have done well, and 1993 will be no exception.

But despite the incredible wealth of talent, Young is making no predictions about the upcoming season. Reason? Livonia Churchill, whose girls' track team is just as awesome as the Western squad.

Churchill and Western made a two-team race out of last year's W-6 Conference Meet. And the two squads did exactly the same thing during last fall's cross-country season.

Just what will happen when the Warriors meet Churchill is anybody's guess. But in the meantime, a lot of pretty decent squads are going to get blitzed along the way.

Lack of depth hurts chances of Central girls' track team

Kim McKinley knows she's facing a big task.

A standout miler on Sharon Young's 1992 Walled Lake Western squad, McKinley is taking over the girls' track program at Walled Lake Central this year — and currently is trying to figure out how to win meets with just 25 girls on the squad.

"It's going to take time," admits McKinley, who coached Western's girls' cross-country team to a second place finish in the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) last fall.

"We have some very talented performers, but we don't have that many girls. The big thing is our lack of sprinters, and that's extremely important because it affects you in the 100 and 220 as well as the 440 and 800 relays."

"There's a lot of talent right off the bat, and it's difficult to overcome."

Another problem facing the Vikings this year is that they'll have to make do without the considerable talents of Kaiti Harris, who graduated last spring after winning the state 800-meter championship. Harris was an incredibly gifted athlete who could win just about any event she entered.

The Vikings got their first taste of action last week, falling 88-33 to Clarkston.

Still, McKinley found plenty of reasons for optimism, particularly in the discus and shot put.

Karen Frye and Helen Dietrich gave the Vikings a 1-2 finish in the discus, while Caryn Lamb and Shauna Alexander duplicated the 1-2 finish in the shot put.

Lamb already holds the school shotput record, and McKinley believes Frye will bust the school record in the discus before the season is much older.

Central picked up two more places against Clarkston in the field events. Becky Rohloff, only a freshman, placed second in the long jump, while Patti Makkonen was third in the high jump.

Another standout for the Vikings was Lisa Laansma, who won the half-mile in 2:35 and also led the field to the tape in the mile with a 5:47 clocking.

Kim Curry added a second in the two-mile, while three place points were recorded by Becky Rohloff in the 100 and Barb Brammell in the 220.

Despite the graduation of Harris and the lack of numbers, McKinley said she hopes to equal last year's 500 record in dual meets. "That's a pretty good goal since we don't have Kaiti Harris around this year," she said.

"But I think we can do it," she added quickly. "Even though we don't have a lot of girls, the girls we do have have a lot of talent. I think as many as five or six of our girls could qualify for state this year, and that's a pretty respectable showing."

In the meantime, McKinley is on the lookout for more runners. Sprinters, in particular, are encouraged to apply.

Softball openings available

There are still a few openings for teams in the Novi Parks and Recreation Department's adult softball league.

Registrations still are being accepted for the Women's Resident League, Women's Open League and Men's 35-and-Over League.

NOVI-WALLED LAKE NEWS

DeMolay proclamation

Walled Lake Mayor Gaspare LaMarca (center) recently signed a proclamation declaring March 13-20 DeMolay Week in Walled Lake. The mayor is surrounded by (left to right) Master Counselor Eric Gustafson, Advisor Jerry Finnannon, Junior Counselor Chris McDaniel and Senior Counselor Phil Averett of the Commerce chapter of the Order of DeMolay. The goal of the Order of DeMolay is to build better citizens out of teenage boys. Membership is open to any boy of good character between the ages of 13 and 21. Although DeMolay chapters are sponsored only by Masonic bodies or individual Masons, boys do not have to be sons or relatives of Masons to join DeMolay. (News photo by John Galloway)

Self-psych clinics slated at Western

Have you noticed your clothes fitting a bit snugger? Or your morning cigarette cough getting steadily worse? If so, the Walled Lake Community Education Department is offering Self Psych sessions in weight control and stop smoking on April 18 at Walled Lake Western High School.

Clinical Hypnotist David Rowe will hypnotically help participants reprogram their subconscious minds to become light eaters and non-smokers. The stop smoking session begins at 6 p.m. and the weight control session starts at 8:30 p.m.

The fee is $30 per session and registrations may be made by calling the community education office at 624-0202.

Both sessions include four hypnotic inductions, literature and cassette tapes to reinforce suggestions at home. Rowe helps participants attack the emotional part of their minds which prevents them from making desired habit changes.

"Emotions control a person's eating habits," said Rowe. "When people are blue, they think food will cheer them up. When they're happy, they think food will help them celebrate. Hypnosis conditioning helps change such attitudes and puts food in its proper perspective."

Emotions also control a person's urge to smoke, according to Rowe. "You smoke because it feels good," he said. "Grinding up leaves, stuffing them in a tube of paper, gluing them together, setting fire to one end and sucking on it is not intelligent, so it's pretty obvious you don't smoke for intelligent reasons. Your intelligence knows you shouldn't smoke."

The big hook with smoking, said Rowe, is the psychological hook. The chemical addiction of nicotine is withdrawn from your system in three to five days. The psychological addiction can take much longer, and that's how hypnosis helps."

A postcard follow-up indicates two out of three Self Psych stop-smoking participants successfully kick the habit.

Rowe is a member of the Michigan Society of Ethical Hypnotists and the Mental Health Association of Michigan.

Gala dinner boosts Lampe fund

A gourmet dinner and dance at the Westacres Clubhouse raised more than $2,500 for the Chris Lampe Memorial Scholarship Fund recently. The money was contributed by 31 couples who paid $100 each for a seven-course dinner prepared by seven leading chefs who volunteered their time.

Participating chefs included Duglass Duglass of Restaurant Duglass; Anthony Hanford of Forest Lake Country Club; Mark Lemke and Ken Olson of Van Dyke Place; Jeffrey Wolfe, a professor of culinary arts at Oakland Community College; and Chef Richard Ciesielski of Bloomfield Hills Country Club, who coordinated the affair.

Music for the dance was contributed by the Mike Ogorek Quartet. A total of 68 persons and 31 businesses contributed time, money or products to make the event possible.

The scholarship fund was started nearly two years ago in memory of Chris Lampe, a 14-year-old Walled Lake Central freshman who died on the high school track before the eyes of his classmates in May, 1981. He is the son of Seth and Pat Lampe of West Bloomfield.

The fund has received contributions from friends, neighbors, relatives, student organizations and businesses and business organizations, both local and national. Lampe said the scholarship is expected to be permanent. The principle is invested and only earned interest is paid out in scholarship grants.

To date, the fund has awarded grants to five graduating Walled Lake Central students, two the first year and three the second.

Novi church selects site

Members of the Good Shepherd Evangelical Lutheran Church of Novi gathered at the southwest corner of Nine Mile and Meadowbrook Road March 27 to dedicate a three-acre site which will become the home of a new church.

Following Sunday worship services, Pastor Gene Jahnke led the group to the site and recited a prayer of dedication, setting aside the property as a place for God's worship and a place to preach the good news of Christ.

Sings donated by Rick Simpson of Simpson Granite Works were hung by Congregation President Dave Yarmuth to proclaim the parcel as the future site of Good Shepherd Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Following ceremonies at the site, the group returned to its present place of worship in the Novi Community Building for a fellowship meal. Jahnke presented certificates of appreciation to members of the Site Committee whose work has reached a successful conclusion. Members of the committee are Rolf Gehring, Cliff Ross and Sandy Schurz.

Jahnke said plans call for the church to be built in 1984. "Thanks to the generous support of the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod, we should be able to build a very nice facility," Jahnke said.

Construction plans are headed by a Building Committee composed of Terry Langan, Cliff Ross, Rick Simpson and Charlie Thropp.

Good Shepherd Evangelical Lutheran Church is part of the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod which maintains over 1,100 congregations in the United States, although its name still reflects its midwestern origins in 1848.

Novi Choir scores high in district competition

Novi High School has always thought its choir was good, and now they've found out. The Novi Concert Choir received "1" (superior) ratings at the Michigan School Vocal Association District IV Choral Festival at Howell High School recently. They sang "Rise Up My Love, My Fair One" by MacCray and "Agnus Dei" by Antonio Lotti. The choir is primarily composed of upperclassmen.

As a result of excellent performance at the festival, the choir is eligible to participate in the state choir festival in Jackson on May 6-7.

The Blue Shadows, the freshman and sophomore women's choir, earned a "2" (excellent) rating for its performance of "My Johnny's a Soldier" and "Chariot's Comin'".

The concert choir also competed recently in the Johnny Mann Choral Competition in Plymouth.

Paula Joyner, Novi High School choir director, said she was pleased with the effort. "I'm very proud of my students and proud of their performance at the festival, but with the dedication and effort they showed in their preparation for this important event," said Joyner.

Novi symphony band wins superior ratings

Novi High School's Symphony Band made its first appearance as a Class B school in the District IV Michigan Band and Orchestra Festival at Novi High School recently.

But if the transition from Class B to Class A competition bothered the talented Novi musicians, they certainly didn't show it as they received a 1 (superior) rating for their performance. Evelyn Young of the Novi Band

Boosters reported that Craig Strain, instrumental music director at the high school, "was especially proud of his students because it was the first time the band had competed in the Class A division."

Fifteen bands participated in the district festival; Novi was one of seven to receive superior ratings.

The Novi Symphony Band is now eligible to participate in the state festival which will be held at Novi High School on Saturday, April 30.
