Town center concept draws flak

Ideas on sections of the Novi Zoning Ordinance which need revision in order to restrict the type of businesses locating in what may some day be Novi's downtown met with opposition when presented to the planning commission Thursday.

Charles Cairns indicated he had "problems" with a number of the committee's recommendations. Cairns objected to allowing high density residential buildings in the Town Center. He indicated that although residential space at the higher levels of a commercial development would be allowable, a strictly residential land use would not conform to his interpretation of what should be located in the Town Center.

Two school budget hearings slated athletic director will cut $5,500 from the athletic budget. Additionally, the proposed budget for textbooks and supplies which was to be held at 1982-83 levels was increased by $23,000 at the request of school trustees. The increase allows the purchase of science and social studies textbooks as proposed by curriculum committees.

Roller coaster

No carnival ride thrills kids as much as the roller coaster, whether it's at a major amusement park or the Gala Days in Novi. These kids were evidently having fun Saturday as the car whizzed along the track during the Novi Jaycees' Gala Days. But it was fun for the whole family as many turned out in ideal warm weather.

Novi Special gets new attention jolt

The Novi Special is again getting the attention it enjoyed when it was regularly circuiting the Brickyard. In recent months the race car, named for the parts which were built in Novi, has been featured in Auto Week. Novi's efforts to restore the car which raced in the Indianapolis 500 from 1946-64 also have been written up.

Tears, smiles abound at talent show

Two groups from Our Lady of Providence, a home for mentally impaired girls located in Northville Township, won first and second place trophies in the instrument group category.

For the OLP Band it was their first time on stage. The group, which includes Susan Walters, Jean Schuck, Dawn Schott, Linda Pineau, Mary Beth Beltra, Elizabeth Murphy, Laurie Lunceak and Rhonda Stark, took home a first place trophy. They performed "You Light up My Life" and "Ike & Mike" on wind and percussion instruments.

Students learn while shopping

By LAUREL ADELMAN

The "Woods Whistle Stop" may be the new hot spot for Novi Woods Elementary school student shoppers. The shop just opened on Wednesday, May 24, and so far it has been an overwhelming success.

"Whistle Stop" is the result of a year's worth of planning, and is run by Novi Woods fourth grade students Nate Faulkner, Kevin Mittelz, Kelly Silvarman, Joanne Sills, Nicky Kuenzel and Davey Boner, with the help of reading teacher, Ann Diebel.

The store sells pencils, erasers, pens and other inexpensive items that the students may purchase. There is also a "book swap department" where students can exchange a new book for a book they've already read. This gives students who don't wish to buy anything an opportunity to visit the store.

The store offers students business experience they might not receive until they are much older, Diebel says, and it tests them using their problem solving abilities.

To plan the store, several meetings were held to discuss the different aspects and obstacles of starting a business. Students such as marketing were addressed, Diebel said.

"This may seem like a complicated subject for fourth graders, but the students running the shop

"We all went in a van and went out to buy our inventory. The kids were really excited," — Ann Diebel, Novi teacher are from Diebel's class for the gifted and talented. To help the students better grasp marketing concepts and business operation, guest speakers appeared before the class, Diebel said.

Last year the kids studied architecture so they were able to make the architectural drawings for the store, with the help of Novi Woods Principal Roy Williams, and Novi Woods teacher, Jim Fry.

A Novi company donated glass for the store, Diebel explained, and soon construction was underway.

Diebel helped the students borrow money from the school so they could invest in the start of their business.

"We all went in a van," said Diebel, "and went out to buy our inventory. The kids were really excited." It was a year's worth of work beginning to pay off.

A trip to K-mart oriented the students to the use of a computer, and K-mart personnel showed them how to handle a store's inventory. The students were able to compute the cost per item, profit margin and selling price of their merchandise by using the school computer, Diebel said.

Current plans, Diebel continued, call for the store to operate four days a week with different hours for different age groups.

The school is fast realizing the presence of "Woods Whistle Stop." The students have tried different promotion techniques such as first day discounts, sits at school assemblies and commercials over the school PA system. This also lets the students use their imagination, says Diebel.

Business has been so good that Diebel thinks they will be able to pay all liabilities within two weeks. The students are still trying to decide on different possibilities for the store's inventory, and may buy different merchandise in the future.

A woman who makes and sells cookies, for instance, has already offered to come in and help the kids bake some of the store, says Diebel.

"Their challenge of having to cope with day-to-day changes, however, is akin to the experience of retailers in the real business community. They are learning that you have to be sensitive to customer needs and changing conditions."

Commerce, Wixom reconsider sewer contract

A contract considered this week by Commerce and Wixom officials guarantees Oakland County will provide funds for the completion of the Huron Valley sewer project should future federal grant monies not be available.

The contract, prepared by state Department of Natural Resources (DNR), Oakland and Wayne County officials and reviewed by attorneys from the 14 participating communities, replaces the resolutions of intent originally signed by the communities.

"We still maintain the resolutions were binding," said Wayne County Director of Engineering Duane Egeland. However, Richard Hinson, acting chief of the DNR's Community Assistance Division, rejected the resolutions and gave Wayne officials three weeks to garner a more legitimate contract from the communities.

Hinson also required a clause in the contract stating that in the event federal grant monies are not available for construction of phase two and three of the interceptor, Oakland and Wayne counties will put up the funds necessary for completion of the $350 million project.

The contracts will be included in Wayne County's application for $40 million in 1982 federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) grant money. Deadline for the application was May 1, and Hinson two weeks ago nearly released the 1982 Huron Valley project funds to other eligible projects on the DNR's priority list.

Instead, the contract was rewritten to include the necessary language and the three-week extension was granted. The Huron Valley project remains at the top of the priority list for 1983-85 federal grants totaling $13 million.

Although the possibility of the county having to fund phase two and three construction is "extremely remote," county bonds would be issued if this should become necessary, Egeland said.

The Wixom City Council, which on May 28 rescinded its resolution of intent to participate in the Huron Valley project, was to consider the new contract last night (Tuesday, June 14).

City officials said there were no assurances in the original resolution that the Wixom arm of the interceptor would be built, should federal funds dry up. Therefore, the council added language to the resolution allowing the city to back out of the project at any time without any liability to the city.

Commerce officials, who also were to consider the new contract this week, had added language to their original resolution making local funding subject to a township referendum vote.

DNR officials balked at these provisions, claiming the state had no assurances the communities would provide their local shares of the project. The contracts now under consideration by participating communities are intended to alleviate the fear of both state and local officials that financial commitments on all sides will be upheld.

The Novi City Council, which did not consider the new contract this week, had added language to their original resolution making local funding subject to a township referendum vote.

Country store reflects rustic life

By LEANNE ROGERS

Shakespeare wrote that all the world is a stage. Commerce Township store owner June Byers considers her country store a stage for presenting a rustic way of life.

Beginning Friday, June 24, Byers will be expanding her and her country museum is opened in the historic Byers homestead. "To me it's just like a big stage where all the children and other people can come to observe the museum, like an audience," Byers commented.

The homestead, built sometime prior to 1850, is a registered historic site. Located on the Huron River, the frame house replaced an earlier log cabin which served as the home of Abraham Walrod, the township's first white settler.

A country store had been operated from the homestead until Byers suffered a heart attack three years ago. "The doctors thought I should give up the business. I did have to close the farmhouse," she said. "I'm doing much better now. My daughter Terry is very active in the business now."

The store housed in a barn on the property continued to operate, featuring dolls, antiques and other collectibles. The museum features a large Regina nickelodeon, antique toys and a country kitchen.

"The museum has been my heart's desire. I have had a collection of items," Byers said. "I want people to come in and see things they remember, this trying to recapture the past."

During the three-day grand opening weekend for the museum, members of the Commerce Area Historical Society will provide tours through the museum and grounds.

Artists and craftsmen will be featured during the opening weekend as well. Byers said she enjoys helping talented craftsmen gain attention and support for their work.

"On the weekends we have Oakland County talent in the yard," she said. "We have lots of wonderful craft people in the area and we have a cooperative arrangement with them."

The Byers Country Store will be celebrating its 33rd anniversary on Wednesday, June 15. "I'm originally from the Ferndale area and my parents bought this property. We used to vacation here," she said. "The house I live in was the summer house and built around 1935."

For many years Byers worked as a speech and drama teacher. "I was affiliated with WXYZ radio and did the original 'Lone Ranger,'" said Byers. "Mostly I was directing. I worked in television and radio. I worked a lot at Willow-Way."

The first business the family operated on the property was a ball shop housed in the barn. "My mother had never done anything like that before. She was a certified horticultural judge but she ran the business," Byers added.

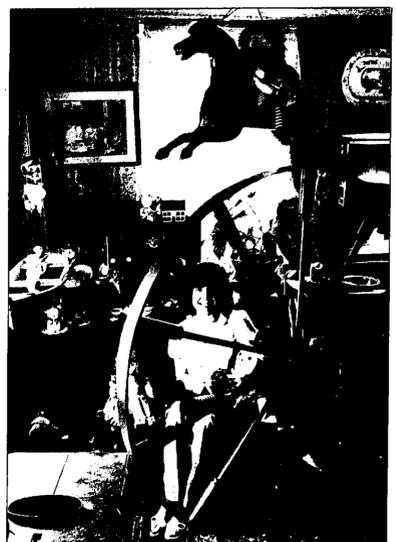

The Byers' original business was an antique store in a log cabin on South Commerce Road. The cabin was later moved to Walled Lake, Byers said, after the successful business was relocated to Commerce Road.

"We opened that business on April Fool's Day. My mother and I used to say that if the business didn't work, we could say it was an April Fool's joke."

The Byers store has been a family operation since it opened. Although Byers has never married, she has two adopted daughters, Terry, 20 years, studied advanced display at the Southwest Oakland Vocational

Better Candid Shots

What is a candid shot? It's an unrehearsed, unposed photograph which captures the true personality of the subject. Here's how to get good ones:

Use a camera which can be set quickly. Know in advance what your shutter speed and aperture opening should be. Automated and manually operated 35mm cameras are best bets for candid photography.

Select a fast film to reduce exposure time. If you want to put some distance between you and your subject to avoid a "before the camera, use a telephoto or zoom lens.

Be patient. Make sure that when you snap the shutter the subject is doing something of special interest to him or her. Whether it's eating an ice cream cone or studying a chess move, the action and expression should tell a lot about the person in the picture.

Shoot a number of pictures. The slightest change of expression or motion may make the difference between a routine picture and a great one.

Eagles club helps leukemia hospital

John and Virginia Norris of Walled Lake are glad they joined the Walled Lake Eagles five years ago. The local fraternal organization recently sponsored a fund raising effort to help Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor, the only hospital in the state that treats children affected by leukemia.

The Norris' eight-year-old granddaughter Kimberly Dismore has had leukemia since she was three years old, according to her grandmother Virginia.

"She was in remission from the leukemia from October of last year to March. Then she had a relapse," said Virginia Norris. "She started getting treatment once a week and is still being treated at least one a month."

The only hitch is that Kimberly lives near Ocoota on the Wordsmith U.S. Air Force Base with her father Chester Dismore and mother Marie.

"They come down about every Thursday and stay for a couple of days," said John Norris. "They've been lucky, the Air Force and the Leukemia Foundation have been helping pay their expenses."

The Norris' and the Eagles decided to organize a fundraiser, not for their granddaughter, but for Mott Children's Hospital because, as John Norris said, "They have done so much for our granddaughter we want to pay them back somehow."

The Eagles raised about $600 during a one-day dinner they staged on June 4, according to the President Jerry Foss. "All of that was in single contributions," he said. "We filled our clubhouse most of the day."

The Eagles have been organized in Walled Lake for 10 years. The 215 members all helped on the fundraising project, according to Foss. "All the members just jumped right in and helped," he said.

The event included dinner and dancing. Two bands donated their time all day, Foss said.

"When our son first heard that Kimberly had leukemia, he was told she had a 50-50 chance of survival. This time they said she had a 20 percent chance," said Virginia Norris. "But you would not know she's sick right now — she's got more pep than I do."

Locke Anderson joined Saturday's protest

Demonstration supports freeze

They came from all over Michigan, affiliates of sundry peace organizations united for one afternoon under a single banner in front of Williams International in Walled Lake.

An estimated 600 protesters gathered outside the white iron gates of Williams Saturday, June 11, to demonstrate against the deployment of cruise nuclear missiles and to advocate defense spending for these missiles be diverted to other needs.

The factory on Maple Road manufactures engines for cruise missiles and was number 86 of the top 100 U.S. companies receiving defense contracts in fiscal year 1981. In 1982, Williams received about $133 million in government defense contracts for F107 cruise missile engine production — about 75 percent of that for work at the Walled Lake factory.

According to Janice Michael of the Michigan Alliance for Peace, which organized the demonstration, groups represented Saturday included Black Women for a Better Society, the Windsor Coalition for Disarmament, the New Jewish Agenda, and Jobs with Peace in Lansing.

"The point was unity in Michigan," said Michael. Although the groups represented various issues, "if we have a nuclear war, there won't be any other issues," she added.

Speakers at the rally, which began assembling at 2 p.m., included Marge Duesy of Covenant for Peace, a group of about 12 core members who meet weekly to pray and work for the peaceful conversion of companies like Williams. Their activities include weekly picketing of Williams and the distribution of leaflets among Williams workers attempting to convince them to refuse to work on the missile engines.

Covenant for Peace, Duesy said, promotes a three-tier conversion of society. On the personal level, the group promotes a change in the public attitude from one of fear and violence to one of trust and hope in life.

"Secondly, we're working for a conversion in companies from goods for war to goods for peace time," she told the crowd. A company like Williams, Duesy explained, has the capability to make engines for boats and small aircraft, rather than nuclear warheads.

Finally, Covenant for Peace seeks a national conversion from a militaristic attitude to a mission of peace.

Although rumors circulated that Saturday's rally might be promoted by a national figure, Michael said the organizers deliberately decided against that tactic.

"The point was that ordinary people can do something," she added.

Another rally is planned in Oscoda, at the Wurtsmith Air Force Base Saturday, August 6. Michael said local peace groups will be asked to join a caravan to the base, which is one of eight strategic air command bases in the U.S. deploying the Cruise missiles, according to the Center for Defense Information in Washington D.C.

Airport study nearly done

"I'd say the project is pretty much go if the airport board decides to proceed with the expansion after the review," said Maidens. "The airport board has to make a decision. We can put a viable proposal together, allow the project to be scheduled for a public hearing."

"We are reworking the draft environmental assessment for the airport, incorporating information such as the proposed plan for dealing with the heron rookery and planned development around the airport," said John Maidens, Department of Natural Resources (DNR) environmental liaison. "It is an extensive reworking task but we anticipate announcing a hearing date within two weeks."

A period of 30 days would be allowed for public review of the environmental assessment prior to the public hearing. Maidens said the study would be reworked after the hearing to incorporate new information and comments.

Campion, Tucker elected to terms on Walled Lake board

By PATRICIA BOWLING

Walled Lake voters returned Kenneth Tucker to the school board Monday, June 13, and added a newcomer to the panel, Cynthia Campion.

In one of the slimmest voter turnouts in recent years, Tucker and Campion finished strides ahead of opponents Samuel Wolfel and incumbent Janet Callahan.

Tucker, who received 1,071 votes in Monday's election, was first elected in 1978 and served as board president from 1981 to 82. He was defeated in his bid for re-election in 1982.

Campion, a member of the Oakley Park PTA and the Walled Lake Western PTA, netted 1,042 votes in her first election bid.

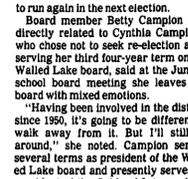

"It's an awful nice feeling," said Campion after being informed of the unofficial results, which placed her with Tucker far ahead of the other two contenders.

Unofficial results indicated only 1,762 district residents attended the polls June 13, compared to 2,426 last year. Following Tucker and Campion were Wolfel with 655 votes and Callahan with only 111 votes.

"I'll continue to be very visible," said

Police officer desires school program

By KEN VOYLES

Walled Lake's recently honored police officer, Bill Nicholas, wants to see some kind of liaison program started in his community to reach out to junior high school students. But the City of Wixom resident is well aware of the difficulty of getting a good liaison program started.

"I think a liaison officer who could be available to go to the schools on a regular weekly basis would be great," said Nicholas, this year's recipient of the Outstanding Young Law Enforcement Officer award handed out by the Walled Lake Jaycees three weeks ago.

"I'd like to see something like that happen but it's a matter of money and a matter of tying up an officer at the schools when he is needed on the road," continued the former Detroit police officer.

Nicholas has been on the Walled Lake force for six years. Before that he spent six years working in some of the rougher sections of Detroit.

When Nicholas and his family, including two sons, moved to Wixom, little did they realize he would be working less than three miles from home.

"It was about a month after we moved in when a job opening came up in Walled Lake," said the officer. "I thought it would be nice to work in the community I live in. I mean I really like it, I am a part of the community and it is a very good one."

Nicholas, who received several commendations while working for Detroit, added, "I don't see anything special in what I do. Just because I put on

Authority selects cable firm

By LEANNE ROGERS

Cable television service for the nine member communities of the West Oakland County Cable Authority moved closer to reality last week as the group unanimously agreed to begin franchise negotiations with Greater Media Cablevision.

The New Jersey-based firm had been highest-rated by consultant Carl Plink of Telecommunications Management. Three firms had been submitted in response to the authority's request for proposals.

"I am pleased with the outcome but a uniform, that doesn't distance me from my community and friends."

Nicholas said his thinking about a liaison officer started when he became the leading officer involved in the recent drug scandal at Walled Lake Junior High.

"Drugs are a common problem at junior highs.

We just did something about it," he said. Apparently students were selling caffeine pills and calling them speed before the Walled Lake Police were called in.

"I don't know if I won the award for my work in that incident or not. Maybe it's my attitude about the community," said Nicholas.

Nicholas, 33 years old, is not the youngest officer on the Walled Lake force. Two fellow officers on the 10-man force are 25 years of age.

"I think if we worked with the schools and tried to keep an eye on what's happening there without being threatening to the faculty or students, it would help resolve some problems," Nicholas said. "I really don't like accepting this award on my own. It wasn't given to me but to the whole force and the entire community."

Nicholas said he was surprised he was honored. "I couldn't believe it. I was in shock, really," he said. "I think an award like that is very difficult to give out because there are so many other deserving officers who have been around longer."

A student in criminal justice at Madonna College in Livonia, Nicholas said he plans to join the Walled Lake Lions Club very soon.

With five classes to go for my degree, and my family, and my work I really don't have that much time for our other community activities. I'd love to work as a juvenile officer on my own time but that is so limited," said Nicholas.

Student discovers writing talent

Treehouse
Some five years later, I come upon my favorite tree
Climb into its crook, where my treehouse used to be Little tiny bird, soaring wild and free
Pauses for a rest, surprised to discover — me!

When she was a little girl, she spent a lot of time in a treehouse reading Nancy Drew mysteries. In fifth grade, she began writing verses for birthday and Christmas cards. A storm destroyed the treehouse and she built a perch so she could still sit there.

Now a senior at Walled Lake Central, Christine Murray wrote a poem about that tree. "Treehouse" was one of four poems she submitted in the 1983 Wayne State University Writing Contest, which placed her as one of 10 finalists in the poetry division.

She won a certificate and discovered a talent.

The contest was her first. In fact, Chris only began writing "real" poetry last year as part of an assignment in Edward Hart's English class. The students had to keep a journal, filling up so many pages each day, explained Chris.

In one entry she wrote a poem in response to services at St. Williams Catholic Church in Walled Lake:

My family rises
To a song of praise
Like beams of sunlight
Through the stained glass.
Ancient words of wisdom
Encased by music
A gift from the heart
A miracle of change
We receive His life
And live it.

Chris praised "Church" as "one of the best poems I've ever seen from a student." With his encouragement, Chris began writing more and entered her work in the Wayne State contest.

My family has a math and science background," said Chris. "Every year I took math and science classes because that's what everybody did. But it's never been my thing."

Her generation reputedly is obsessed with computers, television and video games. Yet Chris writes poetry.

"I don't really know why," she said recently. "I love it." Poetry is a challenge to her. A way of expressing half-understood feelings. She enjoys condensing an experience into a few words.

"Part of it is that when I have kids, I want to understand and remember what it was like. It's a very intense thing," she observed.

Hooked on Harlequin romances, Chris also likes her computer class, took part in Central's production of "The Sound of Music" and was a cheerleader "all my life."

She doesn't watch much T.V. Never did, she claims.

She still keeps a journal, filling it with thoughts, emotions, quotes that touch her, and her poems. Sad feelings don't become poems. But joy, her love of nature, her humor are experienced by Chris as "a poem coming on."

Surprised by her own talent, she takes a delight in the gift. "I don't think of myself as a poet," she said. "It's more like a hobby. I guess I don't have a lot of confidence in it yet."

Chris has been accepted at Michigan State University in the Hotel and Restaurant Management Program. Someday she would like to write a book of poems for children.

Farmer Jack considers old school parcel

Farmer Jack might be coming to Union Lake. Representatives of Borman Foods, the parent company, appeared before the Commerce Township planning commission Monday, June 6, to discuss the project.

Ted Simon, vice-president for real estate, said his company has an agreement with the Walled Lake School District to purchase the 10-acre Union Lake elementary school site. The school, which is closed, is located on the south side of Commerce Road west of Union Lake Road.

The company is still in the preliminary stages of the project. Simon said, investigating the possibilities of using the school building.

"We were here talking about a land use plan and we'll be back. We don't know yet if we will be tearing the building down," he said. "It is hard to reuse the school."

Simon indicated the purchase agreement did include contingencies about obtaining the proper zoning. Currently, the school property is zoned residential. A commercial zoning would be needed to permit development of the store.

Some residents who were present at the meeting questioned whether the store would be constructed to meet guidelines of the Union Lake District Study.

"I think that the company can satisfy your planning requirements," said Simon. "I can't guarantee we can satisfy everyone on the faculty or students. Planning commission Chairman George Allard said in the end the township cannot regulate aesthetics. Simon said, "We will build a first class store. We have to because we will be the new guys on the block," referring to the nearby Kmart and Kroger stores.

One resident said the roads were not sufficient to handle the additional traffic that would be generated. Planning commission members said Union Lake and Commerce roads were under the control of Oakland County.

Almost anything goes

Seven teams of officials, citizens, cops and media-types lent their near-total lack of dignity to the amusement of oh, maybe a dozen onlookers at the "Almost Anything Goes" competition sponsored by the Novi Parks and Recreation Department at Novi Gala Days Saturday.

Competing in the winning team were City Manager Ed Kriewell, Assistant City Manager Craig Kiever and his wife Pam, Sheila Mahan of the treasurer's office, community development director John Hazelroth and guest Sheila Gotsleben.

Among the local luminaries competing were State Representative Willis Bullard and county commissioner John Colandro of the Oakland County team, Walled Lake City Manager Mike Dorman competed on the Walled Lake squad.

Tying for second were the "O.K." team of Novi residents and the Walled Lake officials team, each with 44 points. Close behind was Echo Valley with 41, and fifth overall was the highly competitive and almost completely incompetent Novi-Walled Lake News team, winners of the "Water-Go-Round" event.

Call for task force elicits volunteers

Residents have responded overwhelmingly to a call for establishment of a task force to study the future of public education in Novi.

Applications from 49 residents were received for the 30-member task force, which would identify ways the district can turn out top high school graduates by the year 2000.

The task force will investigate the future direction of the Novi Schools. It will study alternatives for education. It also will establish a set of curriculum options incorporating anticipated changes in kindergarten through 12th grade curriculum. The group also will identify skills, attitudes, and knowledge needed by students presently and into the year 2000.

Trustees have recommended the task force be given a year to study education and make its recommendations. They have suggested a preliminary report by December and a final report by the end of next June.

Superintendent Robert Piwo recently told the school board the applicants come from a wide range of backgrounds.

The board appointed three members to review the applicants and recommend appointment of 27 citizens to serve on the task force.

In light of the number of respondents seeking positions on the task force the board also discussed the possibility of compiling a list of alternates to serve as needed.

Board members asked the screening committee to deal with the question of whether alternates should be appointed to the task force and whether alternates should be a part of the proceedings on a regular basis.

Outgoing Novi School Board President Joel Colliau was asked to direct the task force, which is being formed in response to a request by Colliau.

Colliau said he was "pleased and flattered" to be asked to chair the committee. But he cautioned the board that his house is for sale and he may be moving from the area.

The board voted 7-0 to appoint a 30-member task force chaired by Colliau.

Local projects get first approval

By PATRICIA N. BOWLING

The Oakland County Community Development staff last week recommended to award more than half the county's $900,000 in special activity funds to Novi, Walled Lake and Commerce Township for community development projects.

But none of those communities is banking on receiving the funds yet. The recommended projects also must be approved by the county's public service committee and the full county board before the decision moves on to the federal level for further consideration.

Selected projects in the three communities include $100,000 for downtown parking development in Walled Lake, $200,000 for the extension of Welch Road in Commerce and $800,000 for the restructuring of the 1-96 westbound access ramp at Novi Road.

"The list could possibly be changed if there is adamant opposition to one of the recommended projects," Kathy Rieth, community development spokesperson, said. "But if all the projects fly, we can begin to expend the funds September 1."

In addition to the three local projects, proposals from Clawson, Ferndale and Oak Park were approved by a 9-5 vote of the county citizens' advisory council at a meeting Wednesday, June 8.

The funds will be made available through the Emergency Jobs Bill signed into law recently by President Ronald Reagan. Oakland County was allocated $2.1 million from the jobs bill program, designed to stimulate both long and short term jobs throughout the county.

The county divided $1.2 million of its allocation among all communities, then set aside $600,000 in a special activities fund for selected community development projects.

Walled Lake's proposal to develop a half-block area surrounded by Market, Ferland and East Walled Lake Drive for a 75-space downtown parking lot would create about 17 short term jobs, City Manager Michael Dorman said. In addition, the new parking area would provide incentive for commercial development downtown, particularly the proposed Watersview Restaurant where J and D Energy Projects is presently located on East Walled Lake Drive.

"For any development of that type, parking is critical," said Robert Sukenik, of his proposed restaurant. "Downtown parking would be incredibly beneficial to expediting our project."

Sukenik acquired the East Walled Lake Drive property with the Watersview Restaurant in mind, but "unfortunately the economy did not cooperate," he said. If the downtown parking lot becomes a reality, work on the new restaurant might begin within a year and a half, eventually creating about 25 new jobs in the city.

The developer commitment demonstrated in project applications from Walled Lake, Commerce and Novi was a primary consideration in their selection, Rieth said, describing these as "brick and mortar" projects.

Commerce Township's Welch Road extension would allow for expansion of the Williams International Plant into 40 acres adjacent to the present facility.

While the street improvement would provide temporary jobs for about 100 people, the possible expansion of Williams International potentially could add 150 permanent jobs, Rieth said.

Novi officials declined comment on the recommendation, noting the tentative nature of the approval and the fact there are a number of other levels for the project to go through before the money actually is awarded.

Novi had requested $600,000 for the I-96 ramp project, which is designed to eliminate access problems in Section 15—the commercial development across from Twelve Oaks mall. Construction of the ramp is expected to cost approximately $500,000. Of that, Novi was to contribute an estimated $88,000 and Sheraton Oaks was expected to pay $60,000.

Rieth noted the proposed convention center development in this area was a determining factor in the selection of this project.

A total of 38 projects calling for $6.2 million were submitted for consideration by county officials.

Communities to study lake level

Walled Lake Mayor Gaspare LaMarca said last week the city should "try for cooperation" with Novi on a proposal to establish a legal lake level for Walled Lake.

Questions surrounding the proposal will be discussed at a 7 p.m. public meeting at Walled Lake city hall Monday, June 20.

"This is very important for Novi, probably more than for Walled Lake," said LaMarca. "But just signing a contract and agreeing to pay a certain amount over the next few years doesn't answer all the questions."

The project, intended to solve Novi's citywide drainage problems, involves installing a weir at the south end of Walled Lake at an estimated cost of $150,000.

Novi officials have asked Walled Lake to participate in the project by contributing $2,000 annually for the next 15 years, for a total share of $25,000 with interest. Novi would finance the scheme, including Walled Lake's part, through the sale of bonds. Walled Lake would pay back Novi over the 15-year period.

Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall has estimated the project would cost about 20 to 30 percent more if Walled Lake and Novi do not cooperate on the endeavor.

But several Walled Lake council members bled out at LaMarca's suggestion for participation in the lake level project.

"It's going to take a whole evaluation as far as I'm concerned," said Council Member Edward Horsman.

Council Member William Roberts suggested leaflets informing residents of the meeting should be distributed since the proposed project would involve expenditure of tax dollars.

Meanwhile, the Novi city council Monday, June 13, approved a proposal that the Oakland County Board of Commissioners proceed with establishment of the legal lake level. County Commissioner John Colandro has prepared a resolution submitting the lake level control to the county commission, but the Novi council tabled the action Monday, June 6, pending more information on possible added costs if the county commission were to handle the project.

Wixom CB club sends cable to local youth—join!

By KEN VOYLES

Jack Karell, chairman of the Wixom CB Club, which was organized seven years ago to provide extra radio road patrols in the community, would like to attract more young people to the group.

"We have about 40 members," said Karell, leader of the group for the past four years, "and most of those are retirees. The young people just don't seem too crazy about what we do."

Karell, a retired Ford Motor Company worker, and his wife Anni have been members of the club since they moved to the community over six years ago. There are about equal numbers of men and women in the club.

"We are looking for more members all the time," said Karell. "Word gets around and new subdivisions get involved, but we don't have the young people out there working with us."

The group's role was recently expanded to allow members on patrol to supply emergency communications to all areas of the city through the use of strategically located base stations and marked mobile units. The stations provide police, fire and medical services with emergency communications during natural or man-made disasters.

"We have a beautiful relationship with the police department," Karell said. "The chief (Phillip Leonard) is a very active member of our group, as is the mayor."

Eight of the CB clubbers are tornado spotters and members of the Sky Warn Team.

Club members are trained by the Wixom police and fire departments, as well as the Red Cross, in such things as first aid and CPR. They are linked to the police station by CB radio and by several police department portable radios.

"Those radios really help us. They put us in touch with the department when the CBs can't," said Karell. "We use the radios to call in to our base, which relays any information from a patrol to the police dispatcher."

"We patrol pretty much on a random basis unless the police department makes a specific request," Karell continued. "If we spot something, like a car wreck, we call in our position and any information about the victims, the car, etc."

According to Karell, the club's two biggest days of the year are the Fourth of July and Halloween night. "We do whatever the police want us to do to help," said Karell. "Sometimes that's directing traffic."

Karell added that the community of Wixom has really come forward to help the group. "I really can't tell you how much our patrolling helps the community. We are just observers."

Karell emphasized that CB club members are not playing policeman. "We work at the request of the police most of the time," he said.

This summer the group will probably conduct several fund raisers. According to Karell, the club gets most of its funds that way. Some equipment, such as the portable radios, are donated or loaned from city departments. "We do have a little money we have in the bank very carefully," he said.

According to Karell, the club's two biggest days of the year are the Fourth of July and Halloween night. "We do whatever the police want us to do to

State Rep. Bill Bullard to be at Novi City Hall

Residents with concerns to share with their state legislator can meet State Representative Bill Bullard (R-60th District) Thursday at Novi City Hall at 8 p.m.

Bullard will be present to discuss the new state budget, pending legislation and the recently enacted state income tax increase, which he opposed. After Bullard's remarks, he will take questions from the floor.

The session is one of a series of town hall meetings Bullard has scheduled throughout the district.

Bullard describes the meetings as an opportunity for "those individuals who might not want to write or travel to Lansing a real chance to have some input in the legislative process. It gives me a chance to explain my position on any number of issues and creates a healthy atmosphere for debate and discussion."

Walled Lake Central's valedictorians and salutatorians agree that getting involved in school activities has helped them gain for their education.

And the gains won't be ending with commencement exercises June 20 for Central's co-valedictorians Eric James and John Stoddard or salutatorians Kristin Olin and Marc Landry. All four students plan to pursue careers in either business or engineering.

Eric and John tied with the honor of first in the class with perfect straight-A grade point averages over four years. Kristin and Marc also tied, earning grade point averages of 3.96.

Eric, the son of Clifford and Linda James, plans to attend Stanford University this fall and major in chemical engineering.

While in high school, Eric's main activities were those centering around the student council. He was treasurer of the council in his junior year, and president in his senior year.

Eric admitted the student council kept him busy both in and outside of school. He feels that Central's student council is more active than most schools' and has been helpful to the community. One of the council's larger activities is its traditional volleyball marathon, which has raised over $118,000 during the past seven years to help fight Lupus disease.

In addition to being active in student council, Eric has also won several awards for his strong math ability. These awards include receiving the Michigan Math League State Champion award, second place in the Michigan Math League, and placing among the top

Reading program teaches students

There are few decisions 7 to 11-year-olds can make for themselves within the regimented course of a typical elementary school day.

But in the national Reading is Fundamental, or "RIF", program children are afforded an opportunity to exercise their own decision-making.

"For many of them it's the first time they can make their own choice about something," said library assistant Ruth Doggett, who organizes the RIF program at Commerce Elementary School.

Allowing children to pick their own books encourages reading, Doggett said. The paperback books are distributed three times during the school year, allowing the children to begin developing their own libraries in their homes.

"They have a large variety to choose from. There are 75 to 100 books for each grade level," Doggett explained. The books are ordered each fall, and selected according to grade level and interest.

At Commerce Elementary, Doggett picks a theme for the program and includes a special presentation on book selection days. This year the arts provided the central theme of the program, and highlights included a demonstration of drama in reading by a puppeteer and having the children write their own poetry, Doggett said.

The children closed the program by writing letters of thanks for their books to President Ronald Reagan. About two-thirds of the books are federally funded, with the Parent Teacher Organization supplying the remaining funds. Last year Commerce received $270 in federal funds, which were supplemented by $187 from the PTO.

"We'd ultimately like to add two more grades," Doggett said. "Money permitting, we will add one next year." But anticipated federal monies for RIF are only slightly higher next year, she noted, so if another grade is to be added, it would have to be through the efforts of the PTO.

Thieves take jewelry in break-in

In Novi

An apartment on Wilshire in Walled Lake was hit by a breaking and entering on June 6 and about $304 in jewelry was stolen, according to Novi Police.

Police said entrance to the apartment was gained by reaching through an open rear window and unlocking the rear door. The evidence at the scene was disturbed, the police added, by one of the family members.

A Novi resident signed a statement last week admitting his guilt in smashing the driver's side window of a car driven by David Devore of Walled Lake, according to a Novi police report.

David E. Umbie of Novi was released pending issuance of warrant, stated police, after having signed a statement waiving his Miranda rights and another statement admitting guilt to smashing in the car window.

The incident took place on June 2 on West Oaks Drive at Novi Road. Police said the pair exchanged words over a traffic "mishap." Several minutes later, as Devore was waiting in traffic, the pair exchanged words again, said police, where upon Umbie broke out Devore's window with karate sticks.

The sticks were later turned over to police after they visited Umbie and he admitted having committed the act of malicious destruction of property.

Police added that the case has been turned over Court Service, the department's liaison with the prosecuting office and the district court.

In Wixom

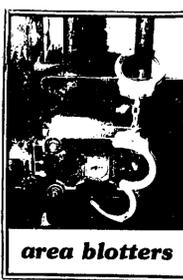

Unknown suspects broke into the golf shed at Hickory Hills Golf Club in Wixom on June 7 and made off with over 150 gallons of gasoline, according to a City of Wixom Police report.

The suspects entered the shed by prying off the doorjamb. Once inside, keys to the gas pump were found and the gas, along with several gas containers were taken.

Over $400 in assorted coins were stolen from the home of Norma Lafever, of the 2900 block of Orland in Wixom, on June 7, according to police.

Lafever, who was not home at the time, told police that collections of quarters, dimes and pennies were all removed from her property.

Police said entrance to the home was gained by way of the garage and basement windows. Police are continuing area blotters

the investigation.

On June 6 a resident of the City of Wixom called the police department and requested that the department hold his weapon, a single action shotgun, until she was in "a better emotional frame of mind," according to a Wixom police report.

Police later visited the home and removed the weapon for storage.

Lynn Gurniak of Wixom was assaulted while driving on Beck Road last week, according to Wixom police.

Gurniak told police that she was unable to make a quick stop at Beck, due to wet pavement, and hit the back end of the vehicle in front of her.

According to the police report, the driver of the vehicle exited his car and began yelling and shouting at Gurniak, who rolled down her window. The suspect then slapped Gurniak across the face and fled the scene.

Two Milford residents were arrested by Wixom police Friday after being spotted by Wixom residents allegedly attempting to steal a boat motor.

The pair were arraigned on Friday by Wixom police on charges of larceny. They are Glenn H. Johnson, 20, of Milford, and Daniel Savage, 23, of Milford.

According to a police report, witnesses watched as the pair moved the boat motor from a lake home and hid it in a field nearby. The motor was later recovered where it had been left under a black trash bag.

Fun runnin'

Jason Everett, 8, gives it his all Saturday in the 2nd Annual Faith Community United Presbyterian Church Fun Run. He wasn't alone. Over 150 runners in six age brackets competed. Pate Hoke of Southfield finished first among the men with a time of 21:08 over the four-mile course, while Suzanne Sitts of Novi bested the women, with a time of 28:02 for the course. According to race organizer Mike Everett, $234 was raised to help the Novi Emergency Food Program.

Sheldon reviewed: boost leadership

While Walled Lake Superintendent Dr. Don Sheldon needs improvement in his leadership and handling of business and finance in the district, his personal qualities are excellent.

Such were the results of the Walled Lake School Board's superintendent evaluation revealed at the board's Monday, June 13 meeting.

Sheldon's relationship with the board is between fair and good; his relationship with the community, good; and his relationship with school staff, fair, according to the report.

Trustee Merlin Reeds reported the evaluation results, noting that a three-member committee spent over an hour compiling the individual evaluation forms into a single report.

The forms afforded board members the opportunity to rate Sheldon on a one to five scale, with one denoting poor performance; two, needs improvement; three, fair; four, good; and five, excellent.

For example, under the category of Relationship with the board, Sheldon was rated in 11 different areas. Five board members rated Sheldon "excellent" in his attendance of board meetings and accessibility to board members.

In the same category, five board members said he needed improvement in the area of providing back-up information for administrative recommendations. But overall, the majority of markings in this category were in the "fair" to "good" range, Reeds reported.

Although the board voted unanimously to accept the evaluation, there was some confusion over the compiled form presented by the committee. After the meeting it was discovered copies of the complete evaluation distributed to the board were incomplete. The last column for the "poor" rating had been inadvertently cut off, Trustee Patricia Jackson noted.

Jackman said she would request complete copies of the evaluation be distributed at the next regular board meeting.

Rather than tabulating the numerical value of the marks, Reeds said the committee reported the average rating in each category.

Additional charge of $1.20 per 1,000 gallons over the base gallon rate.

The main reason for the change, said Berchold, is the village's continuing problem with inoperative meters.

"It would take a great deal of money to repair them and even then they'd break down again," said Berchold. "We estimate it would cost $18,000 for the meters alone."

The new rate policy will take effect for all water used after July 1.

Bill to end strikers' advantage

Legislation that would eliminate the unfair and possibly unconstitutional advantage labor unions have over employers during a strike was recently introduced in the Michigan House.

The bill would repeal Michigan's 1962 "strike-breakers" act, which is presently in litigation in Oakland County Circuit Court.

The present law prohibits employers from advertising to fill positions without a specific statement that the people hired will replace workers on strike. It is also illegal under the law to refer an habitual strike-breaker to a job, or for such a person to apply for a job vacated by the strike.

However, the Oakland County Circuit Court has declared the advertisement section of the strike-breakers act unconstitutional, and the reasoning parallels cases in Illinois and New Jersey where state supreme courts have struck similar acts.

Essentially, these cases hold that when a union decides to exercise its right to hire replacement workers, it is the constitutional right of an employer to fill a job no matter how it became available. With Michigan's record unemployment, it seems folly to restrict job opportunities in any manner.

The UAW has given every indication it will appeal the circuit court decision in the case against C.M. Smittle Company, a third generation manufacturer of auto assembly tools and equipment. When the company began hiring replacement workers, the newspaper announcement read in part, "These positions are to replace people who have left their jobs."

The union received a temporary restraining order prohibiting the company from using the advertisement because it violated the act. Subsequently, the court declared that section unconstitutional and lifted the restraining order, but the appeal is still available.

If passed, this bill would send a strong message that Michigan is finally serious about real improvement in the business climate.

Water rate is flat

The Wolverine Lake Village Council voted unanimously for a flat rate proposal on future water rates in the village at last week's regular meeting.

The flat rate plan, as proposed by a citizens committee, will allow residents to pay a $30 quarterly fee for water use regardless of consumption, said Wolverine Lake Administrator John Berchold.

The previous method of charging for water was by meter, with a base charge of $15 for the first 15,000 gallons and an additional charge of $1.20 per 1,000 gallons over the base gallon rate.

The main reason for the change, said Berchold, is the village's continuing problem with inoperative meters.

"It would take a great deal of money to repair them and even then they'd break down again," said Berchold. "We estimate it would cost $18,000 for the meters alone."

The new rate policy will take effect for all water used after July 1.

Cindy and Len we have a gift for you

If "Cindy and Len" who probably were married somewhere in this area last Saturday are missing one of their wedding presents, Gimmy Burnham may have it for them.

Mrs. Burnham reports she was following a car decorated with tissue paper flowers and tin cans in typical fashion for newlyweds about 8:30 p.m. when a package fell off the back of the car.

"It was a square package wrapped in silver, and we realized it must be a wedding present," she reported Monday. "They probably were excited and placed in on the back of the car and then forgot to put it in."

"We followed the trail of tissue paper flowers that were dropping from the car all the way from Nine Mile between the railroad tracks and Meadowbrook to Halstead and then lost it," she said.

Monday Mrs. Burnham called several area churches without success, trying to find where "Cindy and Len" were wed.

She has not opened the gift, but a shake revealed it does not seem to be broken. However, if "Cindy and Len"—the names on the gift card—will call Mrs. Burnham at 349-2218, they'll be able to find out.

McGee selected to study Michigan lottery

State Representative Robert McGee (R-Union Lake) has been appointed to a special committee to study the Michigan Lottery by Speaker of the House Gary Owens.

McGee will be joined by one other Republican and three Democrats from the Michigan House of Representatives and will undertake the first study of its kind in the ten-year history of the lottery.

"I think this study is needed and will probably prove to be very fascinating," McGee stated. "After something as established as the Lottery has been around for many years, I think we need to go in and see what has worked and why, and also find remedies to problems that we come across."

McGee added that the special committee would be dissolved after the study is completed.

Cable wiring progresses in Novi

By KEN VOYLES

According to MetroVision Franchise Manager Tom Bjorklund, the City of Novi should be completely wired for cable by the end of this year.

"We are ahead of the game as far as construction and wiring goes," said Bjorklund. "We anticipated Novi will be ready by the end of this year."

As soon as the community is wired, Bjorklund said, marketing will begin in full force. He added that a few subscribers (about 25 to 30) are already hooked up in Novi.

To get ready for the marketing push, Lark Samouelian, executive director of the Southwest Cable Consortium representing Novi, Farmington and Farmington Hills, suggests that families talk among themselves and figure out their own cable television priorities.

"That is very important and often overlooked," said Samouelian. "Before a salesman comes to your door you should sit down with your family and consider its cable needs."

community are met is one of Samouelian's main tasks. She said that if residents have complaints about the installation of cable wires in their subdivisions, they should contact her.

"MetroVision is ahead of the game, but if residents have complaints, they should contact Metro and record the complaint and then come to me," said Samouelian.

Residents will receive a postcard from MetroVision announcing that salesmen will be available on an appointment basis, once wiring is complete. Samouelian suggests that a family make an appointment during a time when the entire family can be involved.

She added that initial installation is free for all those who accept the service, but if a family originally decides it doesn't want cable and later changes its mind, there is a charge for installation.

"Be sure to ask any questions. We all know cable has been around for a while and we think we know everything about it, but that just isn't true. I'm learning something new every day," Samouelian said.

She added that MetroVision has been very positive in its efforts to please the communities so far.

"Most of the work in the field is being done by subcontractors. How they act does not really reflect MetroVision's attitude," said Samouelian.

Samouelian is organizing community groups, clubs and individuals to get ideas for public access programs, which is one of her other main functions.

As we see it

Budget proceedings have been improved

This year the proposed 1983-84 Novl school budget received the deliberation it deserved.

When budget proceedings began school trustees reviewed a proposal which would have continued all school programs without reductions — a $10.7 million proposal requiring an increase of 3.2 mills over last year's levy.

Calculations showed it would have cost taxpayers approximately $60 to $70 more than one year ago to maintain school programs. School board members asked for budget reductions, rather than passing on that increase to taxpayers.

That was the beginning of a lengthy, thorough review of budget proposals, which included study of at least six different spending plans.

What emerged from those deliberations was a $10.3 million budget and a 29.9 mill levy which holds the line on property taxes.

To arrive at that budget trustees have asked many questions and received answers to each of them. School administrators — Superintendent Robert Piwko and Assistant Superintendent William Barr — have diligently gone over the budget find areas which could be reduced without critically affecting educational programs as trustees required. Board members have indicated they believe the administration has responded to their wishes in drafting a budget and the latest spending plan deserves support.

As trustees have demonstrated to be demonstrated in deliberations are conducted as they should be the budget which comes out of them are a reflection of educational philosophies and financial priorities of the school board and the community.

With the budget now under consideration the school board does just that. Statements it has made regarding its priorities are:

• They will not indulge in deficit spending. The board rejected a plan to use the fund balance, money carried over from last year's budget, to meet expenses of the coming fiscal year. Trustees recognized that having been spent this year, those funds would not be available one year from now, creating a discrepancy between the spending levels and available funds which must be fact-ed in the next budget.

• Cuts are to be made they should be made across the board. Extra-curricular activities should include cuts in competitive as well as non-competitive areas.

• School trustees are committed to maintaining the quality of educational programs in Novl and personell is an important aspect of that commitment. The budget does not call for any reductions in the number of teachers, counselors, social workers, librarians and other employees — unless those cuts are dictated by declining enrollment.

The budget now must face public scrutiny in two public hearings scheduled Thursday. One hearing will be conducted because the budget calls for a millage increase, the second will be to discuss the budget in general.

Whether or not the budget proposal is a true reflection of the community's sentiments will not be known until that hearing, but the board cannot be faulted for the manner in which it conducted itself throughout budget deliberations this year.

The News previously has been critical of the Novl School board's review of proposed budgets. In past years budgets have been adopted without a single work session. Board members received a copy of the budget, reviewed it on their own, questioned school administrators about it privately, and subsequently adopted it.

Instead of getting such a cursory review, budgets need to be studied each year to determine whether programs which were funded last year still deserve funding in the coming fiscal year. Without a thorough review money can be spent to carry on a program which no longer meets the needs of students, money could be spent in an area simply because it has been spent there in the past.

The school board, in dealing with approximately 65 percent of the local property tax dollar, has a heavy responsibility to make sure those funds are being spent properly. We are pleased to see they have decided to step up to that responsibility.

This year, perhaps for the first time in many years, budget talks in the Novl schools have proceeded properly.

Praise is deserved

At the recent West Oakland County Cable Authority meeting, delegates prepared for the final stage of obtaining cable service for their communities — negotiating the franchise.

During the meeting authority delegates and their professional advisers were verbally patted on the back for their efforts, some of which extended over two years. The praise is well-deserved for a job well-done.

The delegates include volunteers, some citizens, some elected officials and some municipal administrators. All have devoted extensive time and effort to assessing the needs of their communities and reflecting those requirements in the request for proposals.

Because of the dedication and integrity evidenced by the delegates, the authority has avoided controversies that have occurred during the heat of bidding by cable companies. The group members, while keeping their local interests in mind, have done an admirable job in working for the common good.

The hard work of the delegates will continue as a franchise is negotiated. It may be some time before the full impact of the delegates' efforts are fully realized but there's no question about their diligence.

Thinking out loud

By KATHY JENNINGS

Once in awhile, sitting in a dark bar, a person has a conversation that's difficult to forget — the specific words are lost, but the concepts keep coming back for further consideration...

□ Not long ago a friend told me she is a successful reporter because of her ability to perceive how people want her to act, then she acts that way. She has a role she plays for each of them, depending upon what each expects.

The topic made me feel uneasy. When I said as much, she responded it was probably because I didn't know whether she was playing a role for me. She assured me that for me she was herself.

I don't know if she perceived that's the role I wanted her to play. When I thought about it as I drove home, it wasn't that I didn't trust my friend to be herself around me that unnerved me. It was the thought of changing oneself to fit someone else's image of you; to be what they want you to be.

The uneasiness came from recognizing how easy it is to do. When others' approval is all-important, a person will behave so they get that approval. I wanted to believe I was secure enough never to have to make those kinds of changes. I recalled the person who told me I was 'pretty much the person you pretend to be.' But the more I thought about it, the less convinced I became that I didn't make the same kinds of adjustments.

□ Not long ago I talked to a gentleman who is convinced Middle School students should not have co-ed gym classes. Since they are at an awkward age, these children need time, at least once a day, to talk to each other without the interference of the opposite sex, his reasoning went. They need time for "little boy talk and little girl talk."

I suggested one of the concerns of my female friends is that men and women frequently don't seem to talk the same language. I suggested such classes and the perpetuation of "little boy and little girl" talk would simply perpetuate the problem. He proposed that one thing that is wrong with relationships today may be too much communication. He said maybe the trouble's not that people don't talk the same language. The problem is that now that they are talking

Framework

By Steve Fecht

Eye-eye captain

to each other they are finding out they can't get along. I'm not convinced that's how it works. Or even that we aren't talking the same language. But we don't talk the same way. Women are taught to talk in volumes, while men stick to conversational basics.

In a group where we were having a conversation along the same lines one man said they are taught to speak "only when they have something important to say." Every woman in the room gasped. They reacted as if he had said because women talk so much the things they say are unimportant.

When the group was polled, men agreed women talk too much. Women expressed frustration that men don't talk enough.

The discussion could have broken up with the group split along those lines without either side acknowledging the other's perspective. But we went on to discuss shared responsibility for overcoming such a diversity in viewpoints. When men believe women are should come to the point, they should respectfully suggest that. When women want men to express themselves more fully, they need to ask them to talk more, with equal respect.

□ Then there was the late night conversation with two friends, sitting on swings on the beach of Walled Lake. One of them suggested it was absurd to be good and equally absurd to be bad — for him there was no choice in the matter of which way to behave. When the conversation replayed in my mind later, it made sense. In a world where there is so much corruption, evil and meanness it can seem absurd to act any other way. But it is equally absurd to be bad just because everyone else is. How can a person who recognizes wickedness for what it is behave that way?

What this doesn't take into account is all the people for whom being "good" is a struggle. They know right from wrong. They don't necessarily want to do what is wrong. But perhaps because the wrong way is easier, they have something to gain from it, or because it is more attractive, that is the way they go. Under those circumstances, when there is a conscious choice to do wrong, the situation is no longer absurd.

...If my friends and I come across the meaning of life during one of our late night rumination sessions, I'll be sure to pass it on.

Rolly's column

I call them head shakers. About all you can do in this business once you have made a goof is shake your head in disbelief, profusely apologize, renew efforts to assure it doesn't happen again and pray a lot.

Jack Hoffman, the general manager of Sliger/Livingston Publications, was the first newsman to warn me of what I shall call the recurring nightmare and the mistake syndrome.

Let's talk about the mistake syndrome first. Jack would pick up the paper on Wednesday, the day of publication, and look through it. If he detected a mistake, he would utter some bleep words and slam the paper down. He wouldn't look any further.

"If there's one mistake, I know there are others," he would proclaim in anguish. My experience has borne out Jack's observation. Find one mistake and there are bound to be others. Don't ask me why this happens. My only explanation is, we all have had weeks.

The recurring nightmare is another faux pas that will shake a newsman to his roots. If a news story or ad about the Novl Jaycees, for instance, is wrong the first time, the chances are that group will be victimized again through repeated errors. I've found that that three is the magic number. If it happens once, it will happen two more times. Don't ask me why. It just happens that way.

The error pops up despite concerted efforts to correct the initial error. We had a beauty when I was editor of the Brighton Argus. Hartland Township had scheduled a public hearing on a proposed K mart development. The first time we lost the ad and it didn't appear in the paper. The second time we printed the wrong public hearing date and the third time, we failed to publish the required number of weeks.

Finally, we got it right. Everybody on the staff checked the ad the final time and I mean everybody.

One time, unbelievably, we actually "lost" a full page ad. That was a one-time goof but once was enough.

One might conclude from these goofs that errors are rampant. They aren't. These recollections cover 20 years. Considering the volume of stories and pictures we print under deadline pressure, it's amazing there are so few errors. I only wish we would never stumble.

Changes in mayor's role considered

Voters in Wixom may be asked if they are interested in a possible change in the form of city government — a shift from a strong mayoral system to a city manager.

The city council was slated to consider an advisory ballot question at its meeting last night (Tuesday, June 14). The resolution would establish a ballot item asking if the city charter should be revised.

If voters support the advisory question, a nine-member charter revision commission would have to be elected. The commission members would have to submit nominating petitions and could be selected on the same ballot as the advisory question.

Since its incorporation 25 years ago, Wixom has used the strong mayoral system. Gunnar Mettala, a member of the council since it was formed, is scheduled to introduce the advisory question resolution.

Under the current charter provisions, department heads serve at the pleasure of the mayor. As a result, those persons answer directly to the mayor, rather than the mayor's assistant who handles most city administrative matters.

If an advisory question is approved and the charter commission established, voters would consider a specific charter amendment changing the form of government.

"It has been charged that we would be tampering with the charter if we change the form of government," said council member Nancy Dingeldey. "We definitely would be tampering with the charter but the voters have to agree."

The major drawback that has been cited in the strong mayoral system in Wixom is that the elected mayor serves on a part-time basis, while working at a fulltime job. As a result, many tasks are assumed by the mayor's assistant, while department heads answer directly to the mayor.

OBITUARIES

Funeral services for W. Richard Stisko, 54, of 24117 Woodham, was held at 11 a.m. Friday at Westminster Funeral Home in Northville with Pastor V. F. Halbohn, Jr. of Grace Lutheran Church in Redford officiating. Burial was in Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens in Novi.

Mr. Stisko died May 31 at Mt. Carmel Mercy Hospital in Detroit.

An analyst at Burroughs Corporation, he moved to the community 10 years ago from Livonia. He was a member of the Livonia Elks and the Stew Rock Radio Club of Plymouth.

Mr. Stisko was born March 3, 1929 in Dearborn to Timothy and Mary (Fitzmaurice) Stisko and married Grace Beauchamp, who survives.

He also leaves his mother, a Northville resident, and daughters Susan and Julie at home.

SAM B. COVELLI

Funeral services for Sam B. Covelli of Walled Lake were held May 17 at Lynch and Sons Funeral Home in Walled Lake.

Father Leo Broderick, pastor of St. William's Catholic Church in Walled Lake, officiated at the memorial service and a funeral Mass at St. William's.

Burial was at Oakland Hills Cemetery.

Mr. Covelli, 89, died May 13 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac. A resident of Walled Lake for 15 years, he was born in Italy on September 27, 1893.

Mr. Covelli was a retired maintenance man and was formerly employed by Hudson Motor Car Company. He was a member of St. William's Church, the St. William's Senior Citizens and the Wixom VFW.

Mr. Covelli is survived by his wife, Evelyn.

BERNICE J. LAMBIE

Berniece J. Lambie of Walled Lake died May 23 after a long illness. She was 56.

Funeral services were May 26 at Glen Eden Cemetery in Livonia. Reverend Christopher Dodge, pastor of St. Matthew Lutheran Church in Walled Lake officiated.

Burial was at Glen Eden Cemetery. Lambie was born in Detroit in 1926, the daughter of Charles Obrey and Bernice Kilian.

She is survived by her mother, a son Terry Lambie of Wyandotte, two sisters, Essie Durst and Gladys Vail and two grandchildren. Lambie was employed as a cashier at Great Scott Supermarket.

Nicholas honored by local Jaycees

The officer said he loves working in the community. "It is so much different from working in Detroit. There you never take a case from the time you're called to it through going to court. Also the Detroit officers isolated themselves from their community to a great degree," he said.

"Crime-wise, Nicholas added, Walled Lake is very different from Detroit. "Still I was surprised to see just how much crime there is," he said. "Out here there is a lot less violent crime but more malicious destruction kind of crime."

The officer also said he felt the award he received is an encouragement to other officers to get more involved in the community. "When I put on that uniform, I have to do a job, a job that I sometimes don't like, but one I've got to do," said Nicholas. "When I'm not in uniform, I'm just another member of the community."

of the entire plan had to be discussed before proceeding. "I got my hand in hand," Toth said. "Otherwise you're putting the committee out on a limb. The revisions ought to be based on the planner's best information. I don't want to see the restrictions he believes may work in the Town Center. "To me what this area needs is a regulatory standard to outline the things the city is looking for — like a master plan," Cairns said.

He explained the way the review would work, saying "an applicant comes in with a proposal and if it fills your want to see there, you approve the site plan. That goes on to the city council for approval. Their approval effects a rezoning of the land."

Cairns said some view such standards as "contract zoning," and there are some questions as to the legality of the type of standards he proposed, but other communities are using such restrictions.

"The state zoning enabling act all but permits it," Cairns said.

Grand Haven is one community using similar restrictions. Cairns will bring a copy of their ordinance to the next regular planning commission meeting for the planners to review.

The planning consultant also explained the potential for developing the Town Center area may be limited. He cited bad soils and existing developments as examples of conditions which could restrict development taking place there.

"We feel the whole area will have to be part of a redevelopment area or there will not be enough land for development," Cairns said.

Cairns cautioned the planners that the type of district he is proposing could meet with strong opposition from current property owners in the area, since the new restrictions would make the majority of them non-conforming land uses.

But planner Joseph Brett indicated that pressure would come to bear most on the city council.

"Our job is to bring the council a good plan so they have to make the political decisions," Brett said.

The planners will take up the matter again Wednesday at a regular meeting of the board at 8 p.m. in the Novi Public Library.

Impaired show talents talents before an audience. Despite minor technical problems, Ed Donoghue beamed over the show's success.

"We are really happy with tonight. The kids were just beautiful," said Donoghue. "And the audience was great. You've got to have the people in the audience applauding."

Donoghue, deputy regional director of the Alhambra local in anguish. My experience has borne out Jack's observation. Find one mistake and there are bound to be others. Don't ask me why this happens. My only explanation is, we all have had weeks.

The recurring nightmare is another faux pas that will shake a newsman to his roots. If a news story or ad about the Novl Jaycees, for instance, is wrong the first time, the chances are that group will be victimized again through repeated errors. I've found that that three is the magic number. If it happens once, it will happen two more times. Don't ask me why. It just happens that way.

The error pops up despite concerted efforts to correct the initial error. We had a beauty when I was editor of the Brighton Argus. Hartland Township had scheduled a public hearing on a proposed K mart development. The first time we lost the ad and it didn't appear in the paper. The second time we printed the wrong public hearing date and the third time, we failed to publish the required number of weeks.

Finally, we got it right. Everybody on the staff checked the ad the final time and I mean everybody.

One time, unbelievably, we actually "lost" a full page ad. That was a one-time goof but once was enough.

One might conclude from these goofs that errors are rampant. They aren't. These recollections cover 20 years. Considering the volume of stories and pictures we print under deadline pressure, it's amazing there are so few errors. I only wish we would never stumble.

Florist moves shop, expands

By DIC DOUMANIAN

The term florist refers to "anything having to do with flowers—dried, silk or fresh."
 That is not the Webster's Dictionary definition but one given by Roberta Bearup, owner of The Village Florist in Milford.
 The Village Florist celebrated its eighth anniversary this past Mother's Day at a new location, 401 North Main Street. The new shop is located across the street from the old one.
 "The reason we moved was to offer a wider selection of plants, silk and dried arrangements, and gift items," said Bearup.
 Bearup, who owns and runs the business with her daughter Michelle Sadler, started the business eight years ago after her children had completed school.
 After working at the Four Seasons florist in Brighton, Sadler was interested in opening a florist shop. Bearup decided it was a good idea to open a shop in Milford.

 The Village Florist offers a wide variety of fresh-cut flowers, green plants, flowering plants, cacti, and terrariums with sand paintings. It also features dish gardens, and silk and dried centerpieces.
 The new shop does arrangements for special occasions; corsages, wedding flowers and funeral arrangements.
 According to Bearup, the shop's specialty is dried and silk arrangements.

Extended jobless pay ends

Nearly 56,000 Michigan workers now receiving extended unemployment benefits will lose them after June 11 because the state will no longer qualify for the program.
 The federal-state Extended Benefit program (EB) is triggered by a 13-week moving average insured unemployment rate (UIR) which fell below the 6 percent level recently. When the UIR is above that level, state workers are eligible for up to 13 additional weeks of benefits after expiration of regular state unemployment benefits (26-weeks maximum). With an UIR below 6 percent, it automatically ends.
 Despite the loss of the EB program, according to S. Martin Taylor, MESC director, those currently receiving or about to receive EB will not see any immediate loss in benefits.
 "The Federal Supplementary Compensation (FSC) program will remain in effect at least through September," Taylor said. "Most of those now receiving or about to receive EB will immediately move into the FSC program and will avoid any interruption in their benefit payments."
 The federally-funded FSC, due to end in September, provides jobless benefits for those who exhaust both regular state benefits and EB. Without an EB program, Michigan will move directly into the FSC program once they exhaust regular benefits.
 Currently, there are about 135,000 workers in the state receiving FSC.
 The EB program is funded by both state and federal taxes and is programmed to trigger in at high levels of unemployment.
 The week ending June 11 is the last for which MESC can pay EB, Taylor said. Because of the bi-weekly reporting system, some claimants will get their last EB checks as early as June 13 or as late as June 24.
 The drop of UIR below 6 percent could also cause some FSC recipients to lose from one to four weeks of these benefits. For new FSC claims after June 5, the maximum entitlement is 12 weeks.

In effect most recently from February 28, 1982 to March, 1983, the EB program paid out over $437.9 million in benefits. It starts and remains in effect when the UIR is six percent or higher or when it five percent or higher and at least 20 percent higher than the average for the two previous years.
 If a state fails to meet both criteria, EB payments must stop for a period of at least 13 weeks.
 The UIR is the ratio of those claiming regular unemployment benefits to those covered by state unemployment insurance law. The labor force unemployment estimate released by MESC Monday is the ratio of those unemployed to those in the labor force (those looking for work and those working). The new UIR for the period ending May 21 is 5.38 percent and is not 20 percent higher than the two-year average.
 The unemployment rate for April is 15.5 percent.
 Taylor said the state UIR has been dropping steadily since February due to a decline in unemployment insurance claims. He attributed the claims drop to fewer layoffs in the state and to workers either returning to work or exhausting their benefits.
 Michigan had been one of 22 states paying EB to its jobless.

Unemployment falls second month in state

Michigan's jobless rate dropped for the second consecutive month in May, falling to 14.7 percent from April's 15.5 percent. After seasonal adjustments, the rate remained steady at 14.9 percent in both months.
 The figures are labor force estimates released by the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) last week.
 Director S. Martin Taylor said there were 25,000 fewer jobless workers in the state during May, with the unemployment total dropping to 641,000.
 Despite the decrease, unemployment in Michigan was worse than the year-ago level of 14.3 percent when 614,000 were out of work.
 Seasonal variations usually cause a drop in unemployment statewide between April and May.
 May employment gains were registered in construction, retail trade and service industries. Some job gains were also seen in the auto industry, where employment reached year-ago levels.
 Total employment in the state rose by 114,000 in May, reaching 3,736,000—the highest since July, 1982. The state labor force also grew last month, with the added 59,000 bringing the total to 4,377,000.
 On a seasonally adjusted basis, only 4,000 additional workers were added to the unemployment rolls, making 655,000.
 Nationally, the seasonally adjusted figure for the civilian labor force fell to 10.1 percent from 10.2 percent in April. The number of unemployed workers nationwide fell by 136,000 to 11,152,000.

Benefit swap meet set in Northville Saturday

Northville Downs parking lot will be the scene of a large swap meet Saturday, June 25, to raise funds for the Northville Community Fund for Life.
 According to organizer Scott Lapham, the fund is intended to provide assistance to the city of Northville by purchasing items such as "gazebos, street signs, a power generator for Allen Terrace (senior citizen apartments) — just wherever the city needs help."
 Spaces at the meet, intended for the sale of cars, boats, motorcycles, lawn tractors and parts, rent for $15 per 10-by-20 foot space, Lapham said.
 The sale will run from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday. For space reservations, call 949-5175.

Traditional Guernsey Father's Day party readied

Guernsey Farms Dairy of Northville will conduct its annual Father's Day Celebration Sunday, June 19 from noon to 4 p.m.
 Featured is an old-fashioned milk wagon drawn by Belgian show horses as part of an outdoor party. Offered are a free ice cream cone for dad, horsedrawn wagon rides, 20 percent off all chicken orders and an open house tour of the dairy plant.
 The latter is the last remaining operating dairy plant in Northville, which has connections with the milk industry going back a full century or more to the early days of condensing.
 John McGuire bought into the dairy in 1945, gave it its present name and moved it to 21300 Novi Road in 1965. He still owns the dairy, which is family-run.

The conductor on this train is catcher Carol Baaki, a South Lyon junior who in 1983 started for the third straight year. Baaki, who worked all winter with Wongstrom, made good contact all year, hitting .399 with only two strikeouts. South Lyon coach Jackson said Baaki showed a "tremendous amount of team leadership."

Of those, the seniors include Lisa Roselle, Lynn Byrka and Nancy Giagola. Freshmen this year were Karen Byrka, Pam Roselle and Cindy Wylie. The sophomores included Beth VanPutten, Betsy Giagola, Linda Roselle and Chris Wylie. Kris VanPutten was the lone junior.

"This is kind of unusual," said coach Sharon Young, "to have that many sisters on a team at once. I really don't know if their competing together has any bearing on how well a team jells and becomes a team."

"It's kind of fun to have so many sisters. The fights can be interesting," Young continued.

By far the standouts among all those sisters are Lisa and Pam Roselle. Lisa competed in her third state meet this year and freshman Pam experienced her first.

Lisa has competed with the Western team for four years as a long jumper and relay race runner. She also plays tennis in the fall and is a gymnast in the winter.

"If I didn't have sports I don't know what I'd do," Lisa said. And neither would Western, where Lisa is about to become the first-ever (boy or girl) 12-letter winner at the high school.

She started in track at Walled Lake Junior High, where she tried long jumping for the first time. She also ran cross country in junior high. Her top of 15-6 in the long jump still stands as a school record.

"One of my major influences was Ray Weston, a science teacher and my junior high coach," said Lisa. "He was my first coach and he helped me with the long jump."

As a sophomore Lisa went to the state meet but did not place. Last year she was sixth and this year she finished 10th overall.

Among her honors are all-conference awards as a sophomore and junior and all-division this year.

Her sister Pam also ran track in junior high, following in her older sister's footsteps. Pam competes in the high jump and runs hurdles. This year she did not place at her first state meet, clearing 5-1 before being knocked out.

at Western. She was also a member of the Western varsity volleyball team this year.

"We don't try to criticize each other because we compete in different events," said Lisa. "But being together on the team is a lot of fun."

Their sister Linda Roselle ran hurdles for the Warriors this season.

"Having sisters like this adds a new dimension to the team," said Young. "The Roselle sisters have been doing well all year. They are very supportive of each other. Linda is not quite the athlete the others are or at least she thinks she isn't. I happen to think she is capable of her sisters' achievements."

Young added, "It seems the better her sisters do, the worse she does. It's been a real struggle to keep Linda and show her that she is the equal of her sisters."

Lisa and Pam are also strong academic students at Western. Lisa plans to attend Michigan State University this fall and possibly run track, while sister Pam will continue playing volleyball and competing in track.

"Going to state this year was like a dream," said Pam Roselle.

As for the other sisters, all of them received varsity letters this year, except for Cindy Wylie, who sustained an injury in July.

The Giagola sisters, Nancy and Betsy, competed in distance events for Western this season. "Sometimes having sisters in the same events makes for more competition. It really depends on the kids. It has its positives and negatives," said coach Young.

She added that the younger Giagola, Betsy, "may do a little better with her sister out of the picture next year."

The VanPutten sisters, Kristin and Beth, also compete in the same events, sprint races, from the 100-yard dash to the half mile. "Both are good athletes and fairly equal," Young said.

The Byrkas, Lynn and Karen, are both hurdlers. "There is a difference between the two but it is very small. Lynn has helped Karen out a lot, I feel," said Young. "I expect Karen to do well in her junior year."

Chris Wylie ran sprints and middle distance races for the Warriors this year. "She'll get better," said Young. "Her sister Cindy is a good athlete. We hope she is healthy next year."

The coach added, "All of our kids are very close. They stick together, not so much as sisters but as teammates."

Sister acts highlight '83 Western

By KEN VOYLES

Walled Lake Western's girls track squad was a family affair in 1983 as five sets of sisters competed for Western under the coaching of Sharon Young.

All told there were 11 sisters on this year's team, including one that didn't see much competition due to an injury early in the season. Two of the sisters, Lisa and Pam Roselle, competed in the state finals Saturday, June 4.

The sisters include Lisa and Pam, along with their sister Linda, Kristin and Beth VanPutten, Nancy and Betsy Giagola, Lynn and Karen Byrka and Chris and Cindy Wylie.

Lisa was my influence," said Pam. "I liked to watch her compete."

Pam Roselle got involved in track after coach Young saw the athlete playing basketball in junior high. "She thought I had good jumping ability," Pam said. She still plays basketball, this past year with the freshman team at Western. She was also a member of the Western varsity volleyball team this year.

The mechanics on this train are the four infielders, who showed a lot of agility in the use of their hands.

At first base is Lakeland Junior Don Gemignani, a three-year starter who was also on last year's all-area first team. Gemignani ripped out a 411 batting average, with 16 runs, 21 hits, 15 RBIs and 24 walks.

Gemignani also sparked in the field, with 154 put-outs and a .958 fielding average.

At second base is South Lyon Junior Linda Garrett, who was named to the all-KVC second team. "She's a very quick fielder," commented South Lyon coach Jackson. "She's real good on covering for the force at second. I'm looking for her to be one of the team leaders next year."

Plugging up the shortstop's area is Walled Lake Western senior Kath Sidor, who hit .292 this year. Sidor's 30 hits helped this three-year starter maintain a .390 career average. In the field, Sidor had a fielding average of .882.

Cooling off the hot corner is Novi senior Sue Beckman, who rapped out 21

4 Warriors All-WLAA

Four baseball players from Walled Lake Western were named to the all-conference Western Lakes Activities Association team last week as voted by the coaches of the 10 teams involved in the WLAA's two divisions (Western and Lakes).

Making the 11-member all-conference team, top honors in the WLAA, were Western's senior designated hitter Rick Hunter, senior third baseman Mitch Pancy, senior outfielder Dave Meyer and sophomore pitcher Dan Gabriele.

According to Western coach Chuck App, Pancy received the most votes possible for the four infield positions that were selected. He also said that Western pitcher Guy Whittington was tied for the second all-conference pitching spot, but was named to the all-Western Division team instead.

Whittington, a senior, was joined on the all-Western Division team by senior outfielder Mark Johnson and junior shortstop Mike Bulgarelli.

Novi Jr. High softball outscores foes 101-30

Novi High School softball fans, be patient. Help is on the way.

For the second straight year the softball team for Novi Middle School South (grades 7-8) completed an undefeated season, finishing last month with a 24-2 wipeout of Livonia Stevenson.

The dominant squad outscored its opponents 101-30 this year, even more impressive than last year's 98-32, compiling a team batting average of .508.

The team was led by outfielder Vicky Kenbra at the plate, who hit .611 this season, with two home runs and 14 RBIs. First baseman Sandy Maloney scored 15 runs while hitting .537. Third baseman Joelle Hay clobbered at a .636 clip with two homers and 13 RBIs.

Outfielders Janice Swinehart and Laura Maloney hit .524 and .542, respectively, while infielders Jennifer Nameh hit .525, Laura Case .444 and Lisa McCarty .500.

Other contributors were .500-hitting catcher Kim Johnson, rover Jennifer Hughes, who hit .558, Brenda Phal .417 and Debbie Heath .333. Pitching depth came from Lisa Northrup and Mary Marcus, both outfielders.

The mound star for South? Jill Sobkow, who pitched with more than 1.33 ERA. Sobkow pitched with superb control, yielding only eight walks all season.

Visiting nurses provide medical help and more

By KAAREN PETERS

The hospital says you can go home, but you will need continued nursing care. You dread becoming a burden on your family and they're afraid they won't be able to adequately care for you. What do you do?

If you're lucky, your physician or a friend recommends the Visiting Nurses' Association. You not only get a good nurse — you get a teacher, counselor, advocate, resource person and friend.

In an age of increasing medical specialization and impersonal institutionalized care, the visiting nurse fills a void which enables the sick to be cared for at home with love and dignity.

Most patients are doctor referrals. Many are elderly. Some are terminal. All are under a doctor's care.

Originally a service for the poor, visiting nurses are now available for everyone. Up to 80 percent of the cost is covered by most insurance, including Medicare and Blue Cross. There is an "ability to pay" policy underwritten by the United Fund.

For 85 years, visiting nurses have been making house calls. They are problem solvers, doing whatever is necessary to provide their clients with the confidence, knowledge and resources to become as self-sufficient as possible.

It takes more than medical knowledge.

That becomes clear as Phyllis McNamee, team leader under the West Oakland Office, describes some of the roles she and her three nurses must fill as they work with patients and their families to develop individualized health care programs.

"A visiting nurse must be a natural-born teacher," Phyllis says. "Our main goal is to instruct the patient, often with family co-operation, to take care of themselves."

Phyllis also emphasizes the need for the visiting nurse to be a good listener — with the sensitivity to accept anger and frustration, to soothe the inevitable family tensions.

"A good nurse must also be comfortable with confrontation," Phyllis continues. "Sometimes you have to sit everyone down and find out why they are not following-up on the necessary care."

And, of course, the visiting nurse coordinates medical care, helping to keep the many doctor's appointments and medications straight, reporting to the physician on their patients' progress.

"Nurses have been practicing holistic medicine since Florence Nightingale," Phyllis says. "As a visiting nurse, we have to be aware of all the factors in our patients' environment that impact their well-being."

With her team, Phyllis covers an area including Novi, Northville, South Lyon and Wixom, putting more than 60 miles a day on her four-wheel drive Subaru.

Visiting nurse Phyllis McNamee with a patient

In a typical afternoon, she visited three patients in three hours and gave a vivid demonstration of what she meant by holistic medicine.

First stop was Willis and Ruth Dooley's neat home in the woods of Twelve Mile. A feisty gentleman in his early 70s, Willis has been knocked down, but not out, by two major surgeries in the last year. Phyllis has been his visiting nurse for 18 months.

"She's become like a member of the family," Ruth says. Willis adds that without her care he'd be back in the hospital.

With a lot of teasing and talk of gardens and wrens, Phyllis changes a dressing and checks an arthritic knee.

But she also listens to his frustration at the continued illness and tries to think of someone who could help him care for his horses.

"Anytime a nurse starts talking about the weather she's either overstayed or she shouldn't be a nurse," Phyllis says laughingly.

"It's vitally important to give emo-

Scholarship administration underway

The first meeting of the members of the Central Scholarship Funds, Inc. will be held on Monday, June 27, in the Walled Lake Western High School cafeteria. The agenda includes election of officers, acceptance of by-laws, acceptance of one or more existing scholarship funds to assist the administrator, certifying the application for tax exempt status and a number of other organizational duties.

The organization, a chartered not-for-profit corporation, is set up to create and administer both general and special purpose scholarships for students graduating from area high schools. The roster of corporate members already includes members of the Walled Lake School Board, elected township and state officials, teachers, counselors, parents of students and administrators at several schools and others interested in bettering the education of students.

Applications for membership in the corporation, at $5 per year, are available through the principal's office of both Walled Lake high schools and Keith Elementary School or the Funds' office at 2665 Westacres Drive, West Bloomfield. They will also be available at the meeting.

According to one of the original incorporators, Seth Lampe, the new charitable corporation will provide a tax deductible means for people who wish to contribute funds to assist the continuing education of our students.

One example, he said, is the Chris Lampe Memorial Scholarship Fund, one of the funds to be offered to CSF.

That fund invested the contributions from friends and fellow students of Chris. This summer it will be providing funds to sixth and seventh graders at Central High School from contributions to an existing fund, the Bernie Stafford Memorial, for students graduating from Walled Lake Western High School, new this year, may be ready for submission to CSF by the evening of the meeting.

Other funds are in discussion stages, Lampe said. "The goal is several by the end of this year, perhaps 20 by the end of next year," he said.

The Central Scholarship Funds, Inc. starting next month will be able to accept contributions for any existing fund, or aggregate small contributions in a general fund, as the contributors wish. Because it is an all voluntary organization, every dollar contributed will be used for the support of further education of local graduates.

Shape up with fitness class

Worried about trying on that bathing suit for a trip to the beach? Linda Malberger, director of creative fitness summer classes, says you can "add a feeling of energy and zest to your weekly routine as you shape up for summer by joining a Creative Fitness exercise and aerobic class."

Applications for membership in the corporation, at $5 per year, are available through the principal's office of both Walled Lake high schools and Keith Elementary School or the Funds' office at 2665 Westacres Drive, West Bloomfield. They will also be available at the meeting.

valuable. You have to draw upon so much knowledge that specialization is not helpful."

"You also have to know the resources of the community," she adds.

The last stop of the day emphasizes her role as community resource person.

When Ted Mink first came home, "I was scared," says his wife Betsy with a small smile. "One of the biggest problems was moving Ted between the wheelchair and the bed. Phyllis helped us get a hoist lift from the American Cancer Society and now I can manage alone when I have to."

Today Phyllis is teaching the privately-hired care giver, Charlotte Hudd, how to negotiate the wheelchair down two tricky steps to the sidewalk.

It's Ted's first time outside in the four weeks he's been out of the nursing home. The azaleas are in bloom and Ted, who was promised apple blossoms, accepts them as an adequate substitute. Eventually with the help of a ramp and a light-weight wheelchair the goal of the care trips will be realized.

But this trip is a short one, made a little awkward by a neighbor's car parked well over the curb. As Ted declares he'll have to talk to them about their parking habits, the advantages of home care become clear.

This way there is love, fellowship and the right to handle aspects of your own life. The isolation and impotence which intensify grief and pain are lessened.

The visiting nurse, by her genuine, personal and direct presence make home care possible and illness more bearable.

For information about the visiting nurse program, call 855-1666. Visiting Nurse Association also has a 24-hour direct response contact line which will handle referrals at 875-7736.

Couple wed in Walled Lake ceremony

Tina Soper became the bride of Ron Neill during a May 14 ceremony at St. Williams Catholic Church in Walled Lake.

Father Jerry Bechard celebrated the afternoon service uniting the couple. The new Mrs. Neill is the daughter of James and Margaret Soper. Her husband is the son of John and Pat Neill.

The service was a double ring ceremony and the parents accompanied their children up the aisle. The couple lighted a unity candle together. The brides brother Dennis Soper read the first reading, Connie Sacco read the second reading and the Prayers of the Faithful were read by Bob Campbell.

The bride wore a gown featuring a French lace bodice, and a floor length French lace skirt. She also wore short gloves, a pearl hat with trailing veil and carried three calla lilies with a white ribbon.

Attending as matron of honor was Monica Weatherly, sister of the bride. Serving as bridesmaids were Cyndie Campbell, sister of the bride; Loretta Neill, sister of the groom; Jill Branenburg McIntyre, junior bridesmaid; Jessica Soper, niece of the bride; and flower girl Heather Campbell.

Jeff Neill, brother of the groom, attended as best man. Ushers were Keith Stricker, Dave Weatherly, and Steve Taulbee.

Jason Soper was the ring bearer. The newlyweds greeted 170 guests at a reception at the Farmington Hills Holiday Inn before leaving on a seven day honeymoon in Paradise Stream, Pocono, Pennsylvania.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Walled Lake Western High School. The new Mrs. Neill is employed at Service Merchandise as a sight and sound manager in Novi. Her husband is employed by Select Machine of Madison Heights.

The couple will live in the Walled Lake-Nowi area.
