

Court case challenges housing regulations

By KATHY JENNINGS

The first lawsuit contesting Novi's authority to withhold a building permit under provisions of the housing compatibility ordinances was filed in Oakland County Circuit Court Thursday.

The suit asks the court to order the city to issue a building permit for construction of a home in Turtle Creek subdivision.

The lawsuit stems from a decision by the Zoning Board of Appeals to overturn decisions by the building official and Construction Board of Appeals to withhold a building permit.

Bell-Franquist, the builder, applied for a building permit and the reviewing officer determined the proposed home conformed with the review standards of the City of Novi, according to the lawsuit.

But Charles Kureth, president of the Turtle Creek Homeowners Association, filed an appeal with the City of Novi Construction Board of Appeals, challenging the approval of the building permit.

When the Construction Board of Appeals denied the appeal Kureth appealed to the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA). The ZBA subsequently reversed the earlier decisions and denied the builder a building permit.

"The denial was based upon the alleged reason that the City Council did not intend that the above cited ordinance should cross subdivision lines for the purpose of making measurements to the surrounding area to determine conformity with said ordinance," the lawsuit states.

In other words the lawsuit contends the ZBA ruled on the intent, rather than on the specific language of the ordinance.

Questions regarding construction of the home arose because of differences in opinion regarding whether homes within the "surrounding area" defined in the ordinance, but outside the immediate subdivision, should be included in calculations used to determine the size of neighboring homes.

Homes in Village Oaks were used in the calculations for construction of the proposed house in Turtle Creek.

Subsequently, the building department refused to issue a building permit to the Bell-Franquist Company.

The lawsuit also claims that the ZBA action and Building Official Earl Bailey's refusal to issue a building permit are "unreasonable, arbitrary, capricious and discriminatory...."

For that reason the ZBA's and Bailey's decisions are "invalid and unlawful," the lawsuit states.

The builder and property owner are "being deprived of their respective property rights and are being irreparably damaged by the illegal and invalid refusal to issue the permit."

The lawsuit contends the builders and the property owner are sustaining damages by the fact a house cannot be

Work continues despite orders

Stop work orders issued in the early morning hours last Tuesday did not stop construction on the four homes, as builders decided to proceed at their own risk following a hearing at city hall Wednesday.

The stop work orders were rescinded, pending outcome of a public hearing regarding the matter. After learning that builders must receive 24-hour notice before receiving a stop work order, city officials conducted a public hearing on the matter as required.

Three homes under construction originally were stopped because the builder added the size of the basement in calculations of the square footage of the house, while a fourth was halted as a result of an error in calculating the size of houses in the surrounding area. Building was halted after residents in Dunbarton Pines and Whispering Meadows complained to the city council that the homes in question should not have received building permits.

At a public hearing at city hall, the four affected builders appeared with their attorney. Facts regarding the matter and the possibility that the homes could be brought into compliance with the ordinance were discussed.

Builders reportedly indicated that expansion of the homes could be accomplished, but the work would be expensive, the design of the home would be lost and the marketability of the house would be severely restricted.

The hearing ultimately was suspended for seven days due to legal questions regarding the interpretation of square footage. Questions which could not be immediately answered were raised, so the city delayed action on the matter to

Mayor to be unchallenged, seven compete for council

There were no surprises when the deadline for filing nominating petitions for the Novi City Council arrived at 4 p.m. Friday.

Incumbent Mayor Robert Schmid will run unopposed in the general election.

The race for three seats on the city council, however, attracted a field of eight candidates. Incumbents John Chambers and Martha Hoyer are seeking re-election, but James Shaw, the other council member whose term expires this year, is not a candidate.

Joining Chambers and Hoyer in the race for the city council are John Clark III, Edward Leininger, Michael Navetta, Arlen Schroder and William Wineman.

All the candidates had announced intentions to run for office when they took out nominating petitions.

Two prospective candidates, who had taken out petitions without leaving their names at the city clerk's office, did not file petitions for nomination to the ballot.

As a result of the heavy interest in the council race, there will be a primary to narrow the field from seven to six. Novi's city charter calls for a primary election whenever the number of candidates for office exceeds twice the number to be elected to that office.

Since there are seven candidates for three open council seats, a primary election must be conducted to eliminate one candidate.

The primary election is scheduled for September 13. The general election will be held November 8.

Promoting communication is new union leader's goal

By PATRICIA N. BOWLING

The job qualifications for president of the Novi Education Association (NEA) are a demanding fare.

They include willingness to assume a great deal of responsibility; being clear-headed, reasonable and able to look at all sides of an issue.

The eligible candidate must have good leadership ability, be tactful, diplomatic and be representative of the whole.

"Do I have all these things? I don't know. That's just how I perceive the role," said 26-year-old Teri Moblo who recently assumed the position of NEA president.

Elected to a two-year term in May, Moblo claims her first two months in the many-faceted position have been almost like assuming a second job.

"The last two months of school — and this was the slow time — I had meetings two or three nights a week and phone calls constantly."

The pace can only pick up as the opening of school approaches, the seventh and eighth grade Social Studies and English teacher noted. In addition to keeping abreast of problems within each school building, Moblo is responsible for informing Novi teachers about decisions of the state and national education associations which may affect them.

"Teaching in one building is a very isolating kind of thing," she explained. "I want (teachers) to know I am concerned and I am accessible.... It's very important for every teacher in the district to be informed of what's going on."

The role also requires Moblo to serve as something of a watchdog over the teachers' contract, making sure it is followed appropriately. She listens to grievances, as well, and serves as a consultant to administrators when personnel changes are being considered.

Having taught in the Novi system only three years, Moblo said she feels rather inexperienced for filling the NEA president's shoes.

Prior to coming to Novi, Moblo had short terms in Flint and West Bloomfield schools, but was included in layoffs in both districts.

Within her three years in Novi, she has served as an NEA building representative for two years and has twice worked on the Novi curriculum council.

"Many people came to me and said, 'We think you have the qualities.... Now is the prime time for you.' I don't know a lot of people in the district, but I thought now would be the time. My services were needed."

She's carved a three-fold purpose for herself since taking the president's seat several months ago, the first being to foster open communication between teachers and administrators, and teachers and the community.

The second is to make sure the teachers are represented on the local, state and national level.

"It's my job to not only protect the teachers' interests, but to make sure their interests are heard."

City contract talks proceed

Contracts with two Novi city employee groups have been extended as negotiations continue, but a third is headed for mediation.

Contracts for each of the three city employee groups expired June 30. The three unions represent approximately 75 municipal employees.

Talks with Local 214 of the Teamsters have broken down. The Teamsters represent city clerical employees, mechanical aids in the police department, employees in the water and sewer department and DPW employees.

Despite the break in negotiations the employees are working under an extended contract.

At the last negotiating session with the city on July 5, an impasse was reached and both sides agreed to proceed with a state mediator. Mediation is scheduled to begin July 28.

All proposals previously discussed were withdrawn so the matter could be mediated.

Agnes Durbin, a union representative for the group which represents approximately 39 city employees, said wages is the major stumbling block to reaching an accord with the city.

"We hit an impasse regarding salary," Durbin said.

Assistant City Manager Craig Klaver, chief negotiator for the city, agreed that "wages is the major problem."

Meanwhile, Debby Ruby, a representative of Police Officers of Michigan, (POAM) clerk and dispatchers bargaining unit, said that talks for the 15-member group are proceeding after approximately five sessions with the city.

"Things have been satisfactory," Ruby said. "They have been moving. We don't have a package to take back to the unit yet, but things are almost wrapped up. We're progressing toward a close."

POAM Business Agent William Birdseye added that there has been a great deal of discussion in the clerks and dispatcher group about the addition of dispatching duties for the City of Novi.

"Allocation of personnel has been a prime topic with the dispatch and clerical unit," Birdseye said.

At the same time, talks with the POAM representing 21 Novi police officers are "still in the initial stages," Klaver said.

Residents question tax increases

By KATHY JENNINGS

Some Novi residents are wondering how their property values went down and their taxes managed to increase anyway, according to city officials.

Residents have been calling city hall to ask why their tax bills are up this year, while values on improved residential property (developed land) dropped an average of eight percent.

Elimination of a six percent factor imposed by the state to increase property values last year and a general decline in local property values by approximately two percent caused the decline in property values.

But residents have found that their tax bills are still higher despite the decreases in property values.

Finance Director Les Gibson said the reasons for the apparent contradiction are different depending on which school district residents live in.

But regardless of the school district, residents throughout the city will realize a tax increase as a result of an increased millage levy of approximately 2.09 mills.

The 2.09 mill increase breaks down to slightly less than 1.5 mills levied with voter approval in August 1982 for a citywide drainage program. The remaining .5 mill increase was required to offset declining city revenues created by the reduction in local property values.

More 'square footage' problems not anticipated

By KATHY JENNINGS

Novi officials do not anticipate a recurrence of the problem which resulted in the issuance of stop work orders last week to three houses under construction for non-compliance with the city's housing compatibility ordinances. It also will not be necessary for the city to go back and reject building permits it already has issued to other homes, city officials expect. In those homes where construction was halted last week the basement had been included in measuring the square footage of the house for comparison under Novi's housing compatibility ordinances. City Engineering Consultant Raymond Cousineau said the city has received plans for just three houses where the basements were added into the square footage calculations. "All of them were part of the early review under the ordinance," Cousineau said. Cousineau added that he believes the homes in question were built with basement calculated as square footage so that the builder could meet a commitment to deliver a specific size house to a purchaser. "We haven't seen anything like that recently," Cousineau said. "The stop work orders were issued last week the engineers have been asked to inspect the houses to determine the status of construction and whether the homes could be brought into conformance with the square footage requirements of the city's ordinances. "We found they may be able to be expanded, but it will be expensive," Cousineau said. "The builders have indicated expansion of the houses will impair the design of the houses and severely restrict their marketability." To date the engineers have reviewed approximately 100 homes under provisions of the new ordinances. Approximately 25 to 30 of them have been rejected. All but a handful of those plans have been revised to bring them into conformance with the ordinance, Cousineau said. Reviewing housing plans under terms of the city's two housing compatibility ordinances is just one review function undertaken by the city engineering consultants.

'The bottom line is we cannot make interpretations based on intent. We can't enforce intent. Where the ordinance is clear we have to abide by it, even if it doesn't meet the intent described by the council.'
— Raymond Cousineau, Novi engineering consultant

They also oversee land improvement permits, grading certificates, drainage review, field reviews, temporary certificates of occupancy and certificates of occupancy. Those reviews, done in conjunction with Novi's building department, are conducted by three Moshier-Kapelczak employees.

Reviewing plans for residential building permits under provisions of the housing compatibility ordinances now takes between two to four hours per house, Cousineau reported.

"In the beginning we had problems because in the early stages we tried to expedite reviews as the city requested. We went to the building department calculations were made they are part of the files. If they are not made, we took the square footage as it appeared on the building permit. If that wasn't available we went to the city assessor's files to verify figures.

"Our early mistake was we used building permit square footage because we felt they would be reasonably close," Cousineau continued.

"But we found there could be a substantial difference between the permit and the actual home size," Cousineau explained. "When you change the numbers and you have an ordinance that uses formulas to establish numbers to outline parameters, the ultimate number varies. When we received complaints we tried to determine the most reasonable and accurate square footage," he continued.

Cousineau went on to explain that interpretations used by the engineering department early in the assessment of housing plans were based upon "decisions of our own."

But as the reviewing process continued, the engineers discussed the interpretation of the ordinance with city administrators as well as the building department, Construction Board of Appeals and finally the city council.

"We needed to develop an interpretation to clarify the language of the ordinance. Some of the wording is quite ambiguous, but some is quite clear," Cousineau said. "We attempted to research the facts of the issue because there is so much controversy surrounding both ordinances and within my mind there is a wide variety of intentions among the council.

"In the end, after talking to all the different bodies, I had to make some decisions of my own," Cousineau said. "The bottom line is we cannot make interpretations based on intent. We can't enforce intent. Where the ordinance is clear we have to abide by it, even if it doesn't meet the intent described by the council."

Residents of Wixom's Village Apartments proudly display the "vegetables" of their garden toils

Tenants farm in the south forty

By LEANNE ROGERS

Residents of large apartment complexes are often viewed as transients. But someone apparently forgot to mention that to residents of the Village Apartments in Wixom, who are trying their hands at gardening at the complex.

"The garden makes people feel they are part of the complex," said social director June Hiller, who supervises the gardening with her husband Ray. "The enthusiasm from people has been terrific. There is great camaraderie among the people. They bring a cooler with cold drinks down and visit while they work."

Two areas, located on the western perimeter of the complex are gardened. "We call one the north forty and the other the south forty," commented Hiller. Currently there are 46 areas planted for gardening, each section being 25 feet by 20 feet. The plots are worked by individuals, families or in partnerships arranged at the initial meeting held to discuss the garden, Hiller commented.

"We put a notice about the garden in the newsletter that goes out to the tenants," Hiller said. "Last year we had a few people who gardened but the response this year was really surprising. I think some people saw the gardens we had last year and got interested. The economy was probably a factor also."

A lifelong gardener, Hiller said she started gardening on the complex's vacant land when she moved there in 1976. Her husband Ray, who she met at the complex, also began gardening, she added.

Jim Hobbie and John Taylor share a garden plot. "We got involved with the garden due to the escalating cost of foodstuffs and the staggering unemployment of the region," commented Taylor with a laugh. "You see by looking at us that we are starving," Hobbie chimed in.

The men agreed that they were gardening for enjoyment, working in their spare time. "There is a lot of work involved and lots of weeds. When we first had the soil turned over, we had to dig down three feet to get the weeds," Hobbie commented. "It is very interesting to see things growing."

Among the most favored crops are corn, tomatoes, cabbage, potatoes and lettuce. Some residents began their gardens with plants, others started with seeds.

"Most of these people are novices at gardening and they have really been having success," said Hiller. "We got started late because of the rains this year. We have had battles with cabbage worms and Japanese beetles. We also have had some problems with rabbits."

At eight years old Sarah Hubbard is one of the youngest participants in the gardening efforts. She proudly displayed the fruits and vegetables of her labor, her father Scooter adding that he handled the weeding chores.

"We are growing peppers and little (cabbage) tomatoes. We have garden beds I don't eat those because they are too hot," Sarah said. "We have a pond in the garden for goldfish. I hope we can get a pollywog-trog nest in there, too."

Tenants move around the various plots visiting with their neighbors, commenting on successes and problems in the gardens. "We have just over 2,000 residents in the complex. We have a lot of activities for people," Hiller said. "Not everyone participates in each activity so this is a way of getting to meet new people."

John and Betsy Knecht, managers of The Village, have been very supportive of the garden, according to Hiller. "We couldn't do it without them. They supply the hoses for us and the water for the gardens," she added.

Most people who began gardens have stuck with the project, Ray Hiller commented. "There have been a couple people who had job transfers and moved," he added.

One couple was apparently splitting up and abandoned its plot, June Hiller said, but other gardeners took over the work as a community plot.

Village delays award of bike path contract

Wolverine Lake Village council members decided last week to postpone a decision on selecting a landscape architect to design bike paths along Glangery Road and in Clara Miller Park until the August meeting.

The decision was delayed because only two of a needed three landscape proposals were received, according to Village Administrator John Bercholdt. "We are seeking a third proposal before we can look at making a decision on this," Bercholdt told the council on the July 13 meeting. The proposed plan calls for a combination of bike path/jogging trail/walking path, according to Bercholdt. Over $250,000 originally slated for study of road improvements in the village will instead be shifted to studies for the bike paths system. Bercholdt refers to the bike path system as a "satellite improvement."

Bercholdt added that there are insufficient Community Development Block Grant monies to complete the project, but suggested that the village proceed with the studies. In a related item council unanimously approved a resolution to expend $4,961 for park equipment in Clara Miller Park.

Residents tell city they prefer offices

Residents in Novi's Meadowbrook Glens subdivision have made it known that they would prefer property north of their subdivision be developed as offices instead of apartments. Novi Planning Board members learned recently that Meadowbrook Glens residents are concerned about plans to rezone the property directly behind the Marty Feldman Chevrolet dealership to a multiple-family designation. Residents told the planners they have "major concerns and reservations regarding the development of this property..."

They indicated they understand it is "standard practice" to buffer commercial property, such as the auto dealership, from residential property with multiple-residential land uses, such as apartments or condominiums. But residents told the Novi planners they would prefer to have offices used as a buffer instead of a multiple development.

Planning Consultant Charles Cairns said that rezoning the property to allow office use would require an amendment to the master plan, but added that he believes the rezoning may be feasible.

"It (an office zoning district) may be just as effective or more effective than multiples," Cairns said. Cairns added, however, that he could not recommend such a move unless other parts of the city master plan for development as offices were reworked. Cairns explained there is already a great deal of office zoning proposed in the area and to put more office land uses without taking it off in other areas would not be advisable.

"There are areas now proposed where I have reservations as to whether they will ever have office capability," Cairns said. "This may be a trade off" for areas with minimal chances of development as office. Cairns also said he is concerned about the potential for office development on property west of the C&O tracks on Twelve Mile adjacent to the freeway which is currently master planned for office use as an extension of office development foreseen in the regional center area west of Twelve Oaks.

Cairns indicated that there are circumstances which could result in the property on Twelve Mile developing as offices. If M-275 is extended and an interchange constructed at Beck Road, the potential for office use there is improved.

"What these people have proposed may have more office potential," Cairns indicated. Planning board members took the residents' concerns under advisement, but there was no formal action on the matter.

Action group is seeking millage

By LEANNE ROGERS

Members of the Lakes Area Environmental Action Group are seeking a November ballot question asking Commerce Township voters for a millage increase to fund development and implementation of a wetlands ordinance.

Group members appeared before the township board last week seeking a wetlands ordinance and an environmental impact statement on the Huron Valley Hospital project.

"The township board indicated that cost was a major problem on a wetlands ordinance, especially since the township environmentalist was laid off," Tim Carpenter said. "A full-time person would be needed to enforce the wetlands ordinance. That would mean a substantial cost to the township."

Although Commerce has unveiled millage available, board members have taken a position of not increasing the rate without voter approval.

"The board indicated that we should get petitions signed to show support for placing on the ballot," Carpenter commented. "We will be putting together information to be disseminated to the public about the wetlands ordinance and the cost for enforcement."

Supervisor Robert Long said development in the township had not greatly impacted wetlands so far. "I think the township has had more impact on wetlands than anything else with excavations and construction for roads," he added.

Although there is a state wetlands ordinance, Carpenter said it did not have enough enforcement power. "Also state bureaucrats don't know the lay of the land," he said. "They don't have the best interests of Commerce Township at heart."

The environmental group members are planning to offer their expertise in preparing the wetlands ordinance. Carpenter said model ordinances also will be examined, including ones from West Bloomfield and Orchard Lake.

"We will look at those ordinances in detail as well as the costs associated with the enforcement," he added. "If the ordinances are very similar, maybe we could share an enforcement person with West Bloomfield and Orchard Lake. I don't know if that is politically possible."

The Lakes Area Environmental Action Group was formed by residents opposed to the Huron Valley Hospital project, many residing in the Mount Royal Subdivision. Carpenter said the group is seeking an environmental impact statement (EIS) regarding the project.

"Ideally we would like the backers of impacted wetlands so far. "I think the township has had more impact on wetlands than anything else with excavations and construction for roads," he added.

Soft Shine Auto Wash on Novi Road was the scene of a breaking and entering last week, according to police reports.

The business was robbed of $139 in cash, according to police.

A Soft Shine employee reported the incident to police. He said a pair of windows had been broken when he arrived at work the next day.

He also discovered that the telephone in the office was off the hook and that the sound detector alarm had been unplugged. Police speculate that the alarm could have been unplugged by reaching through one of the broken windows.

A Novi resident's son chased, but was unable to catch, a suspected thief last week after he spotted him in the garage on the 4000 block of Guilford, according to Novi police.

Parks commission drops depot plans

The City of Walled Lake and Franklin businessman Larry Coe both want to see the Walled Lake railroad depot restored.

Both parties want to see the historical value of the building preserved. But both Coe and city officials this week claimed to be on the verge of owning the centuries old depot.

On Monday, the Parks and Recreation Commission decided to abandon its claim to the depot and recommend to the city council full cooperation with Coe.

Executives of Grand Trunk Railroad told the commission at its July 18 meeting that the depot and the railroad right-of-way on which it is located still belong to Grand Trunk until its general contract approves a sale.

"We accept the moral commitment (made to Walled Lake last April) to preserving the station," Grand Trunk Assistant Vice President George Stern told the commissioners. But Walled Lake officials do not have a written contract for purchase of the depot, he stated.

"The issue is not how far negotiations (with Walled Lake) went or whether there was a contract to sell the depot to Walled Lake for $1 or not. But the issue is what is best for Walled Lake," said Earl Obenhausser, Vice President of Grand Trunk's General Council.

Both Obenhausser and Stern said the

Sheldon advised to take control

In a first-time effort to detail administrative shortcomings, the Walled Lake school board told Superintendent Don Sheldon his poor annual evaluation was due to insufficient control over the district's "middle management."

"What we're really talking about here is command," said Trustee Merlin Reeds at the board's Sunday, July 17, study session at the Plymouth Hilton.

The eight-hour meeting — which according to Board President Mario Tozzi was held out-of-district to allow board members a "change of scene" — was called to review both the board's evaluation of the superintendent and its own self-evaluation.

Both evaluations were completed individually by board members, then compiled onto one form for presentation to the public. Those areas that averaged low ratings, or that were rated very high by some board members and very low by others, were reviewed and explained.

Discussion of Sheldon's performance consumed six hours of the eight-hour meeting.

In particular, the board expressed deep concern for the district's business and finance, where it rated Sheldon's performance about 2.6 (between poor and fair) on a scale of five.

"What has happened is not an evaluation of the superintendent in relation to the board on this item, but an evaluation of the superintendent because he hired a given individual," responded

Ultralight air sporting soars

By KEN VOYLES

One of the fastest growing recreational sports, ultralight aircraft, has been described by some as a menace from above.

But for Larry Markey, owner of the Ultralight Company and Sky Sport in Walled Lake, the sport has come a long way from its humble and noisy beginnings less than three years ago.

"Equipment has really improved in the last two years, making it a lot safer and easier for people to fly," he said. "It's a lot less expensive than owning a conventional aircraft."

Markey's business, Ultralight, is a dealership of Vector ultralights, while Sky Sport is an outlet for ultralight accessories such as instrument panels, parachutes, pontoons for water flight and skis for winter sojourns. His partner in business and flying is Marshall MacFarlane.

The sport which suddenly took about three years ago has gone through a progressive change in equipment, moving from lawn mower to snowmobile engines, for example. The 60 current manufacturers vie for the market, but only about six of them have a major hold on the trade, according to Markey.

"It's a complex sport to learn. When a person buys a Vector they get a kit, unless of course they want us to build it for them," Markey said. "When the ultralight is ready, it's part of our job as dealers to make sure it's flight-worthy and that individuals are trained."

Pilots of ultralights do not need a federal license. However, they are tied to an organization known as the Aircraft Owners' Pilot Association which oversees their use. Potential pilots are

Public hearing slated for new condo zoning

A zoning ordinance amendment defining a new residential zoning district designed to permit five story condominiums on the Pontiac Trail "Ponter Farm" property was introduced last week to the Walled Lake Plan Commission.

Under the proposed amendment, such buildings could only be built on property of at least five acres in size. The development would need access to a major road.

At the side, front and back of the development, buildings could be no taller than the building height to a single family residential area. For example, if a proposed condominium is to be 55 feet high, it must be built at least 110 feet from any adjoining single family residential property.

The amendment provides that at least one parking space for each living unit in a building shall be located within or under the building for which the parking is intended to serve. Other parking must be adjacent to the building and screened from view from all sides except the driveway.

The new zoning district, which was proposed by Walled Lake-based developer Roy Mercer, would permit construction of condominiums up to 60 feet high, but only under specific conditions.

Man's abduction story changes

In Novi

Further investigation by Novi Police into the alleged abduction of a Farmington man revealed that the man had not been abducted from a Twelve Oaks parking lot, according to police.

The man originally had told police he was abducted at gunpoint July 1 by a black woman from the Twelve Oaks lot and robbed of his automobile and $1,870 in cash.

During questioning by Novi detectives, the man changed his story and admitted that the incident did not occur in Novi, police said. He also admitted that the woman did not threaten him with a gun as he originally told police.

Police added that the incident took place along Eight Mile near Northland. The man admitted to picking up the woman on Eight Mile before driving to Detroit where he was robbed and forced out of the automobile.

A radar detector and a set of golf clubs valued at $525 were stolen from a Novi resident's 1982 Ford, according to police reports.

The incident occurred on the 2000 block of Talford during the early morning hours, said police. Entry into the vehicle was unknown. There was no physical evidence at the scene, according to police.

A $300 full bicycle was stolen from a Novi resident's garage sometime between June 8 and June 10, according to Novi police.

The complainant, a resident in the 4900 block of Cherry Hill, told police the bicycle was hung from hooks in his garage and that the last time he saw it was on June 8. Police are continuing their investigation.

A Novi resident's son chased, but was unable to catch, a suspected thief last week after he spotted him in the garage on the 4000 block of Guilford, according to Novi police.

The complainant told police that his son surprised the suspect just after the family arrived home on the night of June 10. The garage had been left open for about 10 minutes after the family arrived, said police.

The son gave chase as the suspect fled with a set of sockets and a tap-and-die set stolen from the garage, he told police.

The son had just left the family dog out when he saw a white male described as 19-20 years old, 5-7, medium build with straight collar-length hair, in the garage near a workbench. When the son gave chase he noticed an occupied van on a nearby street that left the scene shortly thereafter.

The tools were worth $800, according to the police report.

A 1977 Plymouth valued at $2,000 was recovered by Milford Police after it had been stolen from a Twelve Oaks parking lot, according to Novi police reports.

The vehicle was found near a gravel pit off Charles Lake in Milford. It had been forced and was a total loss, police said.

The owner of the vehicle told police he went to work at JCPenney's on the morning of June 13. When he got off at 7 p.m. the car was gone.

Milford police, not knowing of the stolen auto in Novi, found the vehicle at 6 p.m. the same day and entered it into the Lein machine.

In Wixom

About $900 in damages were sustained by a Wixom police car July 13 when it was involved in a three-car accident on Novi Road.

There were no injuries, according to police. The car, driven by a Wixom officer, was scattered about three feet from where Shaffer lay, said police.

The accident occurred July 7 at 8:45 a.m. on a clear day.

Detroit youth hurt in bicycle accident

A 12-year-old Detroit youth was injured on Nine Mile in Novi on July 7 when the bicycle he was riding was struck by an automobile, according to Novi police reports.

The youth, Nathan Michael Shaffer, was transported to Providence Hospital with incapacitating injuries that may have included a broken leg, according to police. He was released from Providence on July 10, according to hospital officials who declined to give further information relating to his injuries.

Police said no citations were issued because they were unable to determine which of the parties' accounts were correct.

The driver of the vehicle, Merlin R. Traub, 40, of Novi, was uninjured.

According to police, both Traub and Shaffer were eastbound on Nine Mile just west of Haggerty when the accident occurred. Traub told police he was "aware" of the bicycle and was passing safely when the bike veered from the edge of the road and struck the car near the right front fender.

Shaffer told police that he never veered from off the dirt shoulder along Nine Mile. Shaffer had been riding with a friend, who crossed the road, just before the accident, about three feet from where Shaffer lay, said police.

When police arrived at the scene they found Shaffer lying on the shoulder with what appeared to be a broken leg. Debris from the accident, including a broken car mirror and a broken bike mirror, was scattered about three feet from where Shaffer lay, said police.

The accident occurred July 7 at 8:45 a.m. on a clear day.

Novi churches will tender blood drive

Novi churches will sponsor a blood drive for the American Red Cross on August 3 from 2-4 p.m. at Faith Community United Presbyterian Church.

The churches hope to better their donations of a year ago when 24 residents turned out to donate blood.

Organizer Lil Perry said this year's goal is 60 pints of blood, but she personally would like to see 80-90 pints donated.

"If all the churches get their members out we can do it," she said. Perry added that the number of donors in the summer is usually down because of the number of people on vacation. However, the need for blood is on the increase because of the number of travelers on the roads.

Those interested in donating blood are asked to register in advance by calling Perry at 348-7916. Donors also can give blood without advance registration.

Sheldon told to take command

Sheldon to the board's sharp criticism of Assistant Superintendent for Business Russell Wright. Wright was hired in January to replace Harry Carlson who retired last September after 30 years with Walled Lake schools. Board members faulted Wright with untimely business reports, failing to establish an effective purchasing policy for school supplies and lacking expertise in the area of data processing.

But primarily the board was unnerved by Wright's handling of the auditing bids presented at the July 11 board meeting. Although the state legislation requiring the bids was passed in late March, Sheldon and Wright delayed the bidding procedure until July thinking pending legislation would soon exempt auditing from the bidding requirement. When they could wait no longer for the exemption legislation to pass, Sheldon said they put a rush on bidding 1983 auditing services. The three auditing proposals were presented to the board the same day bids were opened, but they came with a surprise three-year plan for auditing services through 1985, of which Sheldon admitted even he was unaware until the bids came back.

Sheldon noted the business office is in a state of transition and that, while there are admitted problems, progress is being made. Wright, he said, has the potential of doing a good job for the district.

"We aren't interested in potential," retorted Trustee Bonnie Venze. "The reason this is reflected on your evaluation is because you hired him."

"The evaluation of the person doing that job is going to reflect on you," reiterated Trustee Kenneth Tucker. But Sheldon balked at being evaluated for the performance of his support personnel.

Depot plan altered

"There's no question the depot belongs to the city," Dornan said last week. However, the agreement had not been signed or approved by either the city council or the Grand Trunk General Council, he conceded.

"I have an agreement yet to be implemented," he concluded. A letter from Grand Trunk officials in April "guaranteed" the city that any sale of the railroad right-of-way would not preempt the agreement with Walled Lake for purchase of the depot for $1, provided the city would move the structure from its present location, Dornan said.

Coe attended the parks and recreation meeting with his wife, Judy (who is the creator and founder of the Franklin Arts Council), to explain their plans for the Walled Lake to Wisom section of rail.

"The depot plays a real important part in what we do," Coe said, noting that the tax credit from his ownership of historic property will make his plans for the railroad possible.

Besides maintaining a local rail service for local customers, primarily Haggerty Lumber and Gay Toys, Coe said he believes the rail option will promote new industry in Walled Lake.

"This has affected me personally and professionally more than any one of you realizes. It's going to be something with which I will live for a long time... If I'm not going to be an individual in the district, I don't think I'd ever get a good evaluation."

"This is the crux of the problem," said Trustee Robert Cooper. "We do not evaluate anyone else in the district. I am unhappy about this whole financial (department). Something has to be done. Some heads may have to roll, but something has to change."

Other management problems cited by board members included an unaggressive approach in pursuing federal grants for the district and sharp differences in discipline between the two high schools.

"You need to demand the utmost from your staff, and if we're not getting it, we want to know why," said Trustee Patricia Jackman.

It also was suggested that it may be time to reconsider hiring an assistant superintendent to aid Sheldon in tighter, more demanding supervision of the district's middle managers.

In addition to delving into Sheldon's performance in relation to his staff, the board reviewed the marks it gave him on his performance in relation to the board.

Sheldon's lowest rating was in the area of providing information for his recommendations to the board.

"This is where we're having problems. We get to board meetings and we don't have the needed information," said Tozzi.

The deadline for staff to submit materials for the board's meeting packet has been the Monday before a meeting, Sheldon noted. "And frankly, we would accept materials up to Tuesday morning for packets going out Tuesday noon."

But recently Sheldon said he set this deadline back to Friday, giving his secretary more time to assemble the packets before the Tuesday noon mailing deadline.

The board suggested Sheldon be more demanding of people who request agenda items. Not only should they be required to meet the deadline or forfeit the opportunity to appear on the upcoming agenda, but materials should come to the superintendent's office complete with the necessary number of copies for board members, press and public.

To further alleviate the information problem, Tozzi said he has designed a new agenda format.

The agenda, beginning with the board's August 8 meeting, will include the topic for discussion (or action), a paragraph briefly explaining background, and a statement with Sheldon's recommendation.

Reviewing the session, Sheldon said in addition to delineating when he is reviewed and when his support personnel are being reviewed, the board could improve the evaluation form by being more specific on some items.

The board assigned Jackman the task of writing a list of objectives for the superintendent and board expectations to summarize the Sunday session. These will be presented at the board's August 8 meeting, she said.

"This has affected me personally and professionally more than any one of you realizes. It's going to be something with which I will live for a long time...."
— Don Sheldon, Superintendent

Novi answers residents' tax increase questions

During deliberations on the $4.5 million 1983-84 budget, city officials decided it would be necessary to raise the millage rate to offset declining revenues. To keep the millage rate at last year's level the council would have had to axe $24,000 from the budget. After debating the issue, the council cut $173,272 from the budget, but $38,000 was added back for property acquisition. The net reduction to the budget came to $289,300.

Other millage increases are the result of action taken by local and intermediate county school districts.

In the Novi Schools the millage will increase by approximately 1.04 mills. The millage was increased during budget talks when school board members approved a $10.3 million 1983-84 budget. During its deliberations, the board worked to make budget cuts "across the board" and at the same time avoid critically affecting educational programs.

Residents in the Novi Schools also are paying .875 mills for the Oakland County Intermediate school district — a tax which formerly has been collected in December. The .875 mills represents 50 percent of the total in intermediate school levy. The remaining 50 percent will be collected in December.

The total millage increase, when compared to last year, for a resident in the Novi School District is approximately 4 mills. That represents $4 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

For a homeowner with a home worth $60,000 and assessed at $30,000 the millage increase represents a total increase in taxes of $120.

In the Northville Schools millage levy increased by 1.25 mills to offset a projected reduction in revenues of $439,000. The Northville schools adopted a $10.4 million 1983-84 budget. During budget talks the board decided not to cut the spending plan, but used $780,000 in fund equity and raised its millage to balance the budget.

In the Northville School District, Schoolcraft Community College is collecting in July rather than December. The 1.92 mills collected by Schoolcraft will not appear on the December bill.

Altogether, Novi taxpayers in the Northville schools realized a 5.26 mill increase or $5.26 per thousand of assessed valuation. A homeowner with a $60,000 house assessed at $30,000 will pay nearly $160 more this July.

Residents in the Walled Lake School District were least affected by millage increases. The only difference in their tax bills is that 50 percent of the Oakland County school tax is being collected in July instead of December. Taxes on the remaining .875 mills will be collected in December.

The total millage increase for Novi residents in the Walled Lake School District is 2.3 mills.

For a homeowner with a home worth $60,000 and assessed at $30,000, the millage hike represents a total increase of $87.

Hardest hit were Novi residents in the South Lyon School District, where the school board collected half its property tax revenues in July for the first time this year. As a result, taxpayers will see a corresponding decrease in their December tax bill. Formerly, the full school tax was collected in December.

Together the increased millage for those in the South Lyon district comes to 19.93 or $19.93 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

Charter change opponent receives no support

By LEANNE ROGERS

A requested reconsideration of a city charter revision received no support from Wixom's City Council last week.

As a result, voters will be asked in November to consider revising the charter to create a city manager form of government. Council Member Wayne Glessner had requested reconsideration of the referendum. Glessner and Gary Lenz, who also has voiced opposition to the referendum, are both running for mayor in November.

"There has been a lot of rhetoric about this. What I am looking for is the bottom line," Glessner said. "It is specifically a problem in the city government. I would like to know what is. We need to study this and determine the roles and duties of a city manager," he said.

Establishing a city manager position is a philosophical question, Glessner commented. "People can vote a mayor out of office every two years if they aren't satisfied," he added. "The public can't replace the city manager. I don't like taking power from the people."

Under the existing charter, Glessner said the council could create the city manager's position. City Attorney Thomas Connelly agreed with Glessner's comment. He added the mayor would still retain power and authorize the manager, as with the existing mayor assistant post.

"I am not in favor of the timing on this, but I do support the city manager proposal," said Council Member William Wylie. "We would have to change the charter to define the manager's role," he commented. "We are not discussing a philosophical question on checks and balances."

Currently the city operates under a "hybrid" form of government, Wylie said, with the mayor and mayor assistant, who is the city administrator. "Having a city manager is not an odd form of government. It works very well in many mid-sized and small cities. Miami still uses a city manager," he added.

While a change in the charter must be carefully approached, Wylie said the charter commission could deal with potential collision problems between the council and manager. "I just don't think you are going to see collusion between the council and a city manager," he said.

After six years in office, Mayor Lillian Spencer said she found the mayor was no stronger than the city council allowed. "The council has to agree with the mayor," she added. "Things go along fine if the council agrees and there is intertwining with the mayor."

Although the mayor can hire and fire department heads and sign checks, Spencer said the council can overrule the action if it disagrees.

"If there is a disagreement among the council members, then there is no power," Glessner said. "There is no direction to the city manager." Wylie said Glessner was mixing direction and power. He added that direction is provided whenever the council votes.

In November, voters will also be asked to select a nine-member charter revision commission. Members of the commission would prepare charter revisions which would have to be approved by voters to be effective. If voters decide the charter revision is not needed, the commission members would not serve.

Schools seeking new administrator

Novi Superintendent Robert Piwko said this week the administration is first looking within its own ranks for someone to replace former Administrative Assistant Helen Ditzhazy. Ditzhazy's resignation from the district was effective July 13. She assumes her position as assistant superintendent with the Jackson school district this month.

Piwko said the position of director of special services was posted last week, with the deadline for application being this Friday, July 15. "Two or three" applications have been received from persons already working within the district, Piwko said.

The opening will be posted outside the district if a replacement is not selected from the in-district applicants.

Not much consideration was given to reorganizing administrative staff after Ditzhazy's resignation, Piwko said. In March Ditzhazy was assigned to assume the responsibilities of the special education director who resigned in December. The action disturbed parents of special education students who said the director of this program should have specific special education qualifications.

The individual hired to replace Ditzhazy will also oversee special education, as well as other special services such as testing, personnel services, counseling, music and physical education.

Piwko said he hopes to have someone hired "as soon as possible."

Howell interviews Wixom's assistant

Mayor Assistant Stephen Bonczek is one of six candidates being considered for the city manager position in Howell.

Bonczek, who has worked in Wixom five years, confirmed having applied for the job but refused other comment. Howell Mayor James Young said Bonczek had been interviewed by a three member committee.

"We had over 100 applicants for the job and have it narrowed down to the six remaining candidates," Young commented. "We have some more interviews scheduled and then we will spend a week and a half doing in-depth background checks."

Howell has been without a city manager since April 15. Young said he hoped the council would select a new manager at a meeting scheduled August 1. "Once the selection is made I would like to have the new city manager start as soon as possible," Young added.

Howell has a population of just under 7,000 people. Young said the previous manager received a salary of $32,000. Wixom is slightly smaller than Howell with a 6,705 population. Bonczek's salary is currently $31,122.

allow further review.

Assistant City Manager Craig Klaver, Acting Building Official Robert Shaw, Engineering Consultant Raymond Cousineau, City Attorney David Fried and building department employees Murray Goodrich and Terry Morone comprised the city's administrative panel hearing the issue.

City officials met Friday to discuss the matter and determined basements should not be included in the determination of square footage in accordance with the housing compatibility ordinance. They further decided the city should enforce that provision of the ordinance.

How the decision will apply to these particular homes will be resolved at a public hearing today (Wednesday). The hearing is scheduled to reconvene at 4 p.m.

In a related matter, the city has decided to move up a public hearing on proposed amendments to the housing compatibility ordinance originally scheduled for mid-August. The hearing before the planning board tentatively has been set for August 4.

Proposed revisions to the ordinance have been drafted by the city attorney based upon recommendations from the city engineering consultant and the residential plan reviewing agent for the city.

City Attorney David Fried said the zoning ordinance covers the question of the use of basements in calculating square footage, but the amendments have been drafted to "clarify any ambiguity that might exist."

Airport expansion talks studied

A meeting to discuss the proposed expansion of Spencer Airport and a proposed agreement dealing with annexations is to be scheduled between Wixom and Lyon Township officials.

Mayor Lillian Spencer said she would set up a meeting in response to a letter from Lyon Supervisor James Atchison. Council Member Wayne Glessner, chairman of the airport board, said he had asked for a meeting with three representatives of the township to discuss the airport expansion.

"I had a very productive meeting with a task force from Milford Township and asked for the same from Lyon," he commented. "The Lyon board indicated all the information was significant and they couldn't rely on one or two members to report to them."

As proposed, the airport expansion would include the addition of a 6,000-foot east-west runway and a 3,200-foot north-south runway. The new runways and taxi areas would be paved, replacing the existing east-west turf runway. The expansion would allow jet traffic to utilize the airport.

A topic related to the airport expansion is the possible annexation of adjacent township land by Wixom. Lyon proposed an agreement restricting annexations.

Council Member William Wylie said he would like to discuss the proposed agreement with Lyon officials. "It's a stupid proposal. Why don't you tell them that we don't want to discuss a stupid proposal," said Council Member Dennis Andrews.

Spencer indicated she would schedule a meeting with herself, Glessner and Lyon officials. She also said that she would have City Attorney Thomas Connelly review the proposed agreement and offer suggestions on tax sharing methods.

The state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) environmental study on the proposed expansion had been expected to undergo public hearings in July. DNR Environmental Liaison John Maidens said the document is now being produced and he hoped it would be ready for public hearing in August.

"It is a rather large document and we are putting quite a bit of effort behind it," he commented. "I am not sure when it will be done. We had a tentative timetable but we missed that. None of the work we are doing is planning or engineering. It is journalistic - editing and getting graphics."

After a public hearing is held on the project, the project will be reviewed by the Michigan Environmental Review Board, the state aeronautics commission, the federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and local government units.

Among the primary issues relating to the airport expansion have been the environmental impact of the project, particularly relating to a heron rookery located nearby.

Moblo to foster rapport

Residents do not really understand the role of the teachers' union, she explained.

"The teachers' union is not just for bargaining a contract... It's political, to a certain degree. We support candidates with an interest in education - not just people who think teachers should be paid more."

In addition, the union works for the advancement of education, Moblo said, noting the NEA's scholarships given each year to a graduating senior.

Her third purpose, Moblo said, is to do anything she can to aid Novi teachers in accomplishing the high standard of education for which Novi is known.

Although the new responsibilities seem to leave little time for anything else, Moblo maintains her priority is still in the classroom.

"I'm a teacher first. Being president of the teachers' union is a job I've assumed happily. But I'm still a teacher first."

Walled Lake firefighters regain waterball trophy

The Walled Lake Firefighters women's waterball team regained its championship title at the Waterford Township International Waterball Tournament last week, while the men's team finished fifth overall.

It was the fourth time in five years that the Walled Lake women's team has won the waterball trophy. They bested three other teams for the crown this year.

The team lost its title last year after three straight wins. A traveling trophy is kept by the winning team until the next year's competition.

Members of the women's team are Bonnie Kulkhni, Kathy Rock, Carol Benner and a borrowed player from Lake Orion, Kulkhni was the goalie, Rock was lead goalie and Benner was back-up.

The competition involves a tether ball strung along an 85 foot cable court 10 feet above ground. Points are scored for every second the ball goes beyond a designated point. A "pin" is obtained when the ball hits the other team's backstop.

The Walled Lake women won all their two-minute heats by pins.

Walled Lake's men's team "didn't do so hot," according to Dennis Flowers. The squad finished fifth after getting a bye in the first heat and losing the second heat by 1-5 seconds. There were 12 men's teams at the event.

The men's team included Flowers as goalie, Russ Kulkhni on lead nozzle and Richard Rock and Bill Benner as back-ups.

While the women competed in two-minute heats at 90 pounds of pressure, the men competed in three-minute heats at 100 pounds of pressure.

Firefighting teams at the competition included Waterford Township, Rochester, Lake Orion, Independence Township, West Bloomfield, Commerce Township, Walled Lake and a Canadian team from Ontario.

Reduction in cable rates emerges as top priority

A reduction in rates for cable television service appears to be the top franchising negotiation goal for the West Oakland Cable Authority, according to chairman Michael Dornan.

"It looks like the top priority is getting lower rates for service," commented Dornan. "The number two priority looks like consideration of Greater Media providing energy management."

Under the bid proposal submitted by Greater Media, the 40-channel basic service tier was offered for $7.95 per month. A 62-channel tier is offered at $9.95.

The energy management proposal was offered by Constar Cablevision, the second-ranked firm. Under the proposal, local government units and school districts would save money through computerized energy management via the cable television. Carl Plink, advisor to the West Oakland group, found that since a third party was providing the service under the Constar proposal, it could also be offered through Greater Media.

The delegates from the authority's nine member communities have submitted negotiation priority lists. The rankings will be compiled to establish priorities in negotiating the cable television franchise with Greater Media Cablevision.

Other priorities listed for negotiation include quicker construction completion, installation inspection and a rate guarantee. The authority is slated to submit a draft franchise to Greater Media on July 21.

"The prioritization is a slow process. I would like the negotiations to start July 28," said Dornan. Don Gillis, attorney for the authority, and Plink met with the authority in executive session last week to develop specific wording on the priorities which could be included in the draft franchise.

The franchise governs the operation of the cable system within the local communities similar to local controls over utilities. A currently unresolved question is whether some communities, including Walled Lake and Wixom, may require a referendum to approve a franchise.

'It looks like the top priority is getting lower rates for service.'

— Michael Dornan, Walled Lake manager

"We hope to have a final agreement with the communities by September," said Greater Media regional director Mac McCormack. "One of the major questions is the special elections. That would add maybe another 30 days before an agreement is reached."

The nine communities in the authority have agreed to negotiate cable services jointly after about two years of study. Greater Media, ranked highest among three bidding firms by Plink, was selected by the authority for franchise negotiations.

Based on the current negotiation schedule, Dornan said the first residents could receive service by January. McCormack's projection was similar as the bid service would be available 90 days after the start of construction.

Effective July 1, Greater Media opened temporary local offices at 3188 Martin Road in Commerce Township. The permanent location for an office is expected after the franchise is negotiated.

"We basically can't do much until we get a preliminary draft of the contract from the authority," said McCormack. "There are some things we can do relating to construction, though. We aren't sitting idly by. We are finalizing the location for the headend and hub sites, and contacting property owners."

Mobile home proposal discouraged by planner

Novi's Planning Board has taken a dim view of a request to extend the mobile home zoning district near Haggerty Road.

Edward Burger asked planners if they would consider rezoning property near Haggerty Road, south of the Highland Hills Estates Mobile Home Park, to a mobile home zoning classification.

It was the consensus of the planners that the property should maintain its current light-industrial classification.

Planning Consultant Charles Cairns commented that if property for mobile home land uses was needed the area "could be a good place for it." But currently the city has a large amount of property designated for development as mobile homes.

The property currently is proposed for industrial use. It is believed the land "could be the key to putting together the industrial plan due to its size," Cairns said.

"The area will need industrial collector streets. It's important in organizing an area. From a planning standpoint we would prefer to see the property be left for industrial use," Cairns explained.

Appet' teaser excellence

Tiny Milford restaurant expands to three levels

By ALICE DAVIES

The Appet' teaser restaurant in downtown Milford Village is a jewel of a surprise to anyone who has not yet discovered it.

For those who have watched it grow, the Appet' teaser is even more. It is a source of pride, a mark of what can be accomplished by good management and a creative approach.

It claims to "make ordinary foods extraordinary and our guests very comfortable for a very comfortable price."

It does.

Before its recent expansion to 127 seats, the Appet' teaser was a tiny, one-floor Main Street spot known for its excellent food and good service. People willingly stood in line, often outside on the sidewalk, waiting for a table.

Today, after extensive redesign, the Appet' teaser presents a sophisticated three-floor establishment with a basement wine cellar, suspended stairs that reach to third-floor skylights, exposed natural brick and stone, and a recycled exterior restored to its century-old facade.

Four years ago, owner-chef Chris Angelosante, 24, went straight from the New York Institute of Culinary Arts to this off-the-beaten-track location. First, with a partner, and then on his own, Angelosante and his wife, Susan, have established a reputation for excellence. He pushes both himself and his staff of 70 to produce that excellence. With a new liquor license, Appet' teaser now offers a full bar service, operates its own bake shop and prepares all dishes from fresh materials on a daily basis.

Angelosante cares about these details, but his real concern is how people are affected. "People—that's what it's all about," he says. "If people come out and have a good time, it's comforting to know you've done your job, you've met someone's expectations."

His menu shows this concern for personal service and taste. It can be an Italian Style sandwich, minestrone, chili or other homemade soup; a round, barbecue or steak sandwich; quiche, crepes or an Eastern Market salad.

"I like to see things perfect,"

Angelosante says. "Everything has its own level of perfection and that's always hard to meet."

Dinner choices range from outstanding seafood and pasta dishes to steak and ribs, with unusual side dishes such as tabouli, coconut shrimp, oysters Lauralla, Mutes ala Marinere, or

Monitoring system will ensure Youth Corps system operation

Michigan Youth Corps Director Doug Ross has announced a monitoring system for the summer jobs program that is designed to ensure that every Youth Corps worker has useful work to do and is getting the job done.

"The work of the Youth Corps has begun and we must make sure that it is work that is well done," Ross said. "We promised the youth of Michigan hard work this summer, and promised the citizens of Michigan that Youth Corps workers would earn their pay working for Michigan. We have designed a monitoring system to help us achieve those goals."

Ross said Youth Corps staff, including himself, and the staffs of state departments administering programs with Youth Corps workers will visit worksites across the state.

"Our goal," he said, "is to reach every site for an initial visit by the end of July. Making the Youth Corps work a large task, however, and one that must involve the citizens of Michigan as well."

"The Youth Corps staff is small. We haven't created a new bureaucracy to run the program. Therefore, we must depend on Michigan's citizens to join with us in making the Youth Corps a success for everyone."

Hoping to encourage public input, the Youth Corps staff has established a toll-free telephone number, 1-800-441-4110, specifically to hear public comments.

"With 25,000 workers at literally hundreds of sites throughout the state, we expect that problems will arise," Ross said. "We will seek to iron out any problem that comes up, whether it is inadequate work material, or poor supervision, or just answering questions the public may have."

Noting that citizens can help identify problem sites by calling the "Make It Work" phone number, Ross said "We need to hear praise as well. When a Youth Corps work crew is doing a particularly good job, we want to know about it and encourage other Youth Corps workers to improve by example."

Ross also explained the Youth Corps guidelines for resolving workable problems.

"If the problem is not resolved to our satisfaction within seven days, the site will be shut down and an effort will be made to shift the displaced workers to other Youth Corps worksites. Because of the short duration of this program, speed is essential in resolving these problems."

Youth Corps workers, he said, will be identifiable by the green-and-white Michigan Youth Corps patches on caps or hardhats.

"We want you to tell us what you see, whether it is a job well done or a problem we need to fix," Ross concluded. "Together, we will help Michigan work this summer."

Barbecues offer extraordinary picnic fare

Barbecuing is one of America's most popular outdoor activities ... and while the backyard version still rates number one in the hearts of many cookout chefs, portable picnic barbecues are gaining fast.

From campgrounds to beaches, backpacking to fishing, it's hard to resist the fascination of foods sizzling over hot coals. The new variety of portable grills lets you barbecue almost anything a bigger backyard grill could. Choose from smaller versions of the kettle cooker, covered rectangular cookers and small open braziers, in either charcoal or gas models.

Many portable grills, for durability and easy cleaning, have the same heavy-duty porcelain finish as the bigger grills. Stainless steel cooking grids are height-adjustable. There are vents for better temperature control than is possible with hibachis, and cooking areas also are larger.

Portables with lids help control flare-ups, keep smoke to a minimum, protect food from the elements and reduce the need for turning foods. Sturdy legs, windshields and lock-tops for easy carrying are other important features for more expert grilling at home.

Since there's a great variety of foods that can be barbecued to perfection on a portable grill, it makes sense to indulge in the wonderful flavor of foods cooked over charcoal, not only at home but away as well.

Tender marinated London broil, apricot-orange barbecued chicken and spicy barbecued ribs are only a few of the recipes developed in the Karo corn syrup test kitchens especially for barbecuing on a portable grill. To add flavor to poultry and to improve less tender cuts of meat, the recipes call for marinating several hours or overnight.

Marinades, which contain oil, herbs and spices, vinegar or lemon juice and corn syrup, penetrate meat fibers to help tenderize. In some cases the marinade is used as a basting sauce. The corn syrup in the sauce or marinade balances and blends the flavors and helps the sauce cling to foods, locking in important juices. It also provides the right consistency for barbecue sauces — not too thick or thin. To prevent burning, wait until the last 15 minutes of cooking to baste with the sauce.

To ensure successful outdoor feasts every time, the Barbecue Industry Association also recommends:

- setting up the grill on a flat surface, away from trees, dry leaves or brush.

- lining the bottom of the grill with foil so ashes can be wrapped in neat packages and disposed of when cool.

□ using a good charcoal starter when cooking on a charcoal grill — the new chimney charcoal starters are quick and reliable and, like the grills, are light and portable. Or, tote small bags of the convenient instant lighting briquets.

- using long wooden-handled utensils designed for the grill. Gloves and mitts come in handy, too.

MARINATED LONDON BROIL

- 1/2 cup light or dark corn syrup
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 1/2 cup soy sauce
- 1/4 cup corn oil
- 2 tablespoons prepared spicy mustard
- 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 cloves garlic, minced or pressed
- 2 pounds beef top round for London Broil

In shallow baking dish stir together corn syrup, lemon juice, soy sauce, corn oil, mustard, ginger, pepper and garlic. Add beef; turn to coat well. Cover; refrigerate several hours or overnight. Remove from marinade. Grill six inches from source of heat, turning and basting frequently with marinade, 20 to 30 minutes or until cooked to desired doneness. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

APRICOT-ORANGE BARBECUED CHICKEN

- 1 can (5 1/2 oz.) apricot nectar (about 2/3 cup)
- 1/2 cup light or dark corn syrup
- 1/2 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons corn starch
- 2 tablespoons orange juice
- 1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts

In 1-quart saucepan stir together apricot nectar, corn syrup, orange rind and salt. Stirring frequently, bring to boil over medium heat and boil five minutes. In small bowl, stir together corn starch and orange juice until smooth. Stir into saucepan. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil one minute. Grill chicken 6 inches from source of heat, turning frequently, 30 minutes. Brush with sauce. Grill, brushing with sauce and turning frequently, about 15 minutes longer or until fork tender. Makes 4 servings.

SPICY BARBECUED RIBS

- 2 sides (4 lbs.) spare ribs
- Water
- 1/2 cup light or dark corn syrup
- 1/2 cup prepared mustard
- 3 tablespoons vinegar
- 3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 to 1 teaspoon hot pepper sauce

Place spare ribs in large saucepot; add water to cover. Bring to boil over high heat. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 45 minutes or until tender. In small bowl stir together corn syrup, mustard, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce and hot pepper sauce until well blended. Drain ribs well. Brush with sauce until well blended. Grill ribs six inches from source of heat, brushing with sauce and turning frequently, 15 to 20 minutes or until browned. Cut into serving-size pieces. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SWEET AND SOUR PORK CHOPS

- 1 tablespoon corn starch
- 1/2 cup light or dark corn syrup
- 1/2 cup right wine vinegar
- 1/4 cup catsup
- 3 tablespoons soy sauce
- 4 center-cut pork chops (about 1-inch thick)

In 1-quart saucepan, stir together corn starch, corn syrup, vinegar, catsup and soy sauce until smooth. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Grill pork chops six inches from source of heat, turning frequently, 30 minutes. Brush with sauce. Grill, brushing with sauce and turning frequently, 15 to 30 minutes longer or until pork is tender. Reheat remaining sauce and serve with pork chops. Makes 4 servings.

INSIDE-OUT CHEESEBURGERS

- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup light or dark corn syrup

- 1/2 teaspoon dried basil leaves
- 1/2 teaspoon dried oregano leaves
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

- 1 pound ground beef
- 8 thin slices mozzarella cheese
- 4 tomato slices

In 1-quart saucepan stir together tomato sauce, onion, corn syrup, vinegar, garlic, basil, oregano, salt and crushed dried red pepper. Stirring frequently, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 15 minutes. On waxed paper form ground beef into 8 patties about 1/4-inch thick. Leaving 1-inch edge, place on each of the 4 patties 1 slice cheese, 1 slice tomato, 1 slice cheese. Top with remaining patties. Press edges together. Reshape by pushing edges toward center. Grill, brushing with sauce occasionally and turning once, 8 to 10 minutes or until cooked to desired doneness. Reheat remaining sauce and serve with burgers. Makes 4.

Rinse beans. In 4-quart saucepan place rinsed beans and 1 quart of the water. Bring to boil. Cover and boil 2 minutes. Remove from heat; let stand 1 hour. Drain. In 4-quart saucepan place beans, remaining 1 quart water and pork. Cover; boil 30 minutes. Drain. Return beans and salt pork to saucepan. Stir in 1 cup water, green pepper, onion, corn syrup, chili sauce, mustard and pepper. Cover; bring to boil, reduce heat and cook gently 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Uncover and continue cooking 30 minutes or until beans are tender. Makes 6 servings.

Summer basketball league is thriving

Basketball during the summer? It happens every week at Walled Lake Central High School from the third week of June through the second week of July as 12 teams, including the Vikings, participate in the Annual Summer Basketball League for boys and girls.

The league was organized five years ago by Ken Butler, coach of Central's girls' basketball team. Originally eight teams participated. That number has grown each year to the 12 teams participating this year.

"Nothing much happens in our two gyms during the summer so we thought a summer league would be very good, not only for the teams involved but for Central," said Butler, now in his eighth year as coach of the girls' team.

When Butler organized the league, it was the first of its kind in the entire southeast part of Michigan. "There are lots of summer tournaments but not many informal leagues like this," said Butler.

In addition to Central, the 11 other teams in the league this year are Brighton, Plymouth Canton, West Bloomfield, Lakeland, Holly, Marlon, Milford, Oxford, Kettering, Plymouth Salem and Farmington Our Lady of Mercy. Walled Lake Western under new coach Tom Steiner is also a member of the league.

The summer season includes 11 games for each team. Final scores and standings are not kept. Each team plays anywhere from one to three games a week during the five-week league.

"We play 10 minute quarters with the coaches as officials," said Butler. "At the end of four quarters we erase the score and the game continues." Each game lasts one hour and teams can get in up to seven quarters of basketball. "We think this has helped most of the programs involved including our own," said Butler. "During the summer there ment and play a lot of kids.

"It's a pretty relaxed league," Butler added. "We plan to keep it at 12 teams next year."

The league competition will be complete this week with games today (Wednesday), Thursday and Friday. There are no playoffs and no awards are given out. "This is strictly a chance for teams to practice and experiment," said Butler.

Butler added that there is a waiting list of schools wanting to join the league. "Our rule is if a team forfeits even one game they are out of the league," said Butler. "The league works out nicely. It's intense but relaxed."

Jerry Hyslop, head coach of Holly's girls team for eight years, considers his squad fortunate to be part of the summer competition.

"I'm glad we got in on the ground floor," said Hyslop. "It has been a tremendous boost to our program as far as preparation for the fall goes."

He added that the league gives his team a chance to look at a few good schools that Holly might not compete against during the regular girls' season in the fall.

"Ken runs a super program. It's well organized," Hyslop added. "Summer competition might make a difference in the real tough games we play in the fall, but it's hard to say if our won/loss record has improved because of it."

Novi's Martin places first in tennis tourney

Northville tennis players made strong showings at the Novi Parks and Recreation Junior Singles Tennis Tournament held last weekend at Novi High School.

Boys and girls under age 18 participated in the tourney, which drew 22 participants overall.

Breita Johnson, Northville's 13-year-old tennis upstart, took first place in girls singles.

Hot off her championship in women's singles at the Northville Invitational Tennis Tournament in June, Breita topped her 16-year-old sister, Sarah Johnson, in the final, 6-1, 6-3. The tourney drew nine participants in girls singles.

Northville varsity first-seed Arvind Sreedharan, 17, was beaten in three tough sets by 17-year-old Bob Martin of Novi, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3 for the boys singles title. Sreedharan finished second of the 13 entries.

The Johnson sisters and Sreedharan each took home trophies for their participation.

Novi National Stars beat Americans, 11-10

Bill Calhoun belted a dramatic three-run homer in the top of the ninth to give the National League All-Stars a wild 11-10 victory over the American League All-Stars in the Novi Youth Baseball League's Major Division last week.

It was the second four-bagger of the game for the hard-hitting Calhoun. Jim Reid and Glenn Bragg helped the Americans open up an early 9-0 lead before the Nationals came to life in the sixth and scored their first run. With Dale Lounsbury and Calhoun carrying the hot bats, the Nationals narrowed the gap to 10-7 in the eighth and set the stage for Calhoun's ninth-inning heroics.

Lounsbury singled home a run to make it 10-8 and Calhoun followed with his three-run shot over the centerfield fence to clinch the dramatic, come-from-behind victory. No-hit pitching by Neil Garry and Aaron Ball over the last two innings sealed the triumph.

Csordas, Joe Whitehead, Ben Glotzober, Mark Athey, Mark Clary and Ted Wartham contributed one-hit apiece to the 21-11 triumph.

Handling mound chores for the Nationals were Joe Whitehead, Brett Csordas and Mark VanAmejde.

The Americans were paced by Brian Bartz, Doug Cody, Matt Gdowski and Mike Kostik, all of whom collected a pair of hits. Darnel Krause contributed a four-bagger to the attack, while single hits were added by Rickey Timreck, Brad Lewis, Kevin Dumas, J.J. Mullet and Denny Moon.

Pitching duties for the Americans were handled by Brad Lewis, Rickey Timreck, Ed Heran and Darnel Krause.

MINOR DIVISION: Keith Yost delivered a three-run homer in the seventh inning to give the American All-Stars a 12-11 victory over the Nationals in the Pony Division All-Star classic.

It was one of four hits collected by Yost during the game. Mike Kramer also collected four hits in the contest. Mike Sellar made a game-saving catch in centerfield to help the Americans preserve the victory.

Collecting two hits apiece during the game were Andy Anderson, Clint Trombly, Ryan Kress, Brian Csordas, Jason Emery and Mike Dunn. Outstanding defensive plays were made by Scott Standish and Bill Lemley.
