NOVI - Voters will be asked in November to consider a $4.3 million bond issue to acquire and develop parks and bike-pedestrian paths, as well as a millage to provide approximately $105,000 annually to operate and maintain the facilities.

City council members voted 6-0 to put the two ballot proposals on the November ballot as recommended by a Parks and Recreation citizen's committee. Together operational millage and the millage to pay off the bond issue total 1.5 mills.

From the 1.25 mills which would be levied for property acquisition and facility development, the committee estimates the city would spend:

• $1.4 million for construction of 18 miles of bike-pedestrian paths; • $985,000 for acquisition of six

• $900,000 to develop five existing parks and six new parks; and, • $200,000 for the Parks and Recreation share of a city maintenance facili-

The citizen's committee identified those areas as the top priorities in the implementation of Novi's parks and recreation master plan. Parks and Recreation Director Tom O'Branovic pointed out that although these have been identified as priorities, major facilities, such as a community in the proposal. "We expect those will be addressed as individual issues in the future," he said.

Additionally, the committee determined it will be necessary to levy approximately one quarter mill, which would generate approximately $105,000 annually, in order to properly maintain the new and existing parks and recreation facilities.

The program would provide for all the city's ultimate park land needs and nearly half the 40 miles of pathways called for in the parks and recreation master plan.

'We think we've come up with an exciting program," Committee Chairperson John Balagna said. "We're aware that increased taxes are not a number one priority on people's list these days. But we think we'll get a good reception for this program. We're asking the council for the opportunity to allow residents and voters the opportunity to approve this."

In detailing the proposal, Balagna said: "Bike-pedestrian paths are one of the most predominant needs identified by the committee."

With construction proposed by the committee, the city would have paths with a complete north-south route following Meadowbrook and Decker roads and an east-west route along Ten Mile to the property owned by Detroit Edison leading to Maybury State Park.

Novi won't enforce stop work orders

NOVI — Stop work orders again have been issued against four houses which were granted building permits although they do not meet requirements of the city's housing compatibility ordinances.

But the city has agreed not to enforce the stop work orders, pending outcome of an appeal by the builders before the Zoning Board of Appeals.

City officials indicated that although their attorney has advised them that three of the four homes could be declared in violation of the ordinances, the legal defense of that position would be extremely difficult due to the advanced stage of construction on the

Assistant City Manager Craig Klaver said that at a public hearing "the attorney representing the builders argued that his clients' had proceeded with construction in good faith based on the permit approval granted by a properly authorized agent of the city and that the three residences involving square footage in the basement had proceeded to the stage where a revision in plans was not economically feasible. "Further discussion of the fourth residence revealed that the project would comply with the ordinances by withdrawing plans and reapplying for a building permit. The builder indicated this was his intended action," Klaver

Joe Brett was discouraged.

Brett had been assigned the task of showing Novi's so-called Town Center Area to a developer who was interested in constructing a series of mid-rise apartment buildings - the type of development that Novi's planning board believes is critical to the future of the Grand River/Novi Road area. "You know what he said?" asked Brett rhetorically.

"He asked me why I was trying to interest him in Novi's garbage dump. He said he was talking about a first-class development and wanted to know why I was showing him this area with all its boarded-up buildings."

Brett's experience was enlightening. Although members of the "city family" can perceive the potential of the Town Center Area, the disparity between 'what is" and "what could be" is great. Sometimes it takes the unbiased eye

Charter change to hit fall ballot

NOVI - The prospect of a primary election to eliminate one candidate appears to have been the straw that broke the camel's back.

In August Novi voters will go to the polls to narrow the field of city council candidates from seven to six. And two years ago there was an election to eliminate one of three mayoral can-

To eliminate the need for conducting an election under such circumstances the city has proposed a charter amendment for the November ballot which would increase the number of candidates who must file nominating petitions before a primary election is re-

Currently, the city charter currently calls for a primary election whenever the number of candidates for office exceeds twice the number of candidates to be elected to that office.

The charter amendment, which will appear on the ballot as a result of action Monday by the city council, would provide that "whenever the number of candidates for nomination to any office does not exceed three times the number to be elected to that office, then, ... no primary election for nomination of candidates will be held.'' City Manager Edward Kriewall recommended the charter proposal. saying he believes it is consistent with the philosophy of the original charter commission.

'We've had obvious problems with the charter. This year it created a primary by having one more than six candidates," Kriewall sald.

He explained that under the proposed amendment there would have to be 10 candidates for three council seats before a primary would become necessary.

Kriewall said the ballot language was drafted after unsuccessful attempts to establish a citizens committee to look into the primary provision of the charter and other areas.

Council Member Ronald Watson asked if the possibility of eliminating the primary had been considered.

"There's still a potential need for it." Kriewali responded.

City Clerk Gerry Stipp reported that there were 17 candidates in the 1977 election for three seats on the city coun-

Ramp reconstruction concept okayed

NOVI — Novi's City Council approved participation in the cost of an expressway ramp redesign project, but made no firm commitment on the amount of money the city ultimately will contribute.

Novi's share of the $650,000 project could range from $50,000 to $200,000.

The ramp is designed to eliminate access problems in Section 15 - the commercial development across from Twelve Oaks Mall which includes the Sheraton Oaks and West Oaks shopping center. With traffic problems removed, development of the area is expected to proceed and ultimately a convention center creating more than 200 jobs is to be constructed. Funds for the project are being made available through the federal "Jobs Bill" program. Reconstruction of the ramp at Novi Road onto I-96 was one of eight projects to receive Oakland County approval. As a result Novi is slated to receive $364,00 in federal funds.

While council members indicated they will contribute financially to the project, they balked at the expenditure of $200,000.

Community Development Director John Hazelroth indicated the city may have to assume such a large chunk of the project cost as a result of an $150,000 expenditure which has been discovered since the original budget for the project was drafted. That money would go to paying back the state for compensation made to property owners when the ramp originally was constructed. Property owners were compensated when their property became land-locked as a result of the ramp construction. Now that the property is to be no longer land locked, the state must be paid back.

Council members questioned why it is the city's responsibility to repay the governmental agencies. They also suggested that property owners be asked to contribute to the repayment during negotiations on the project.

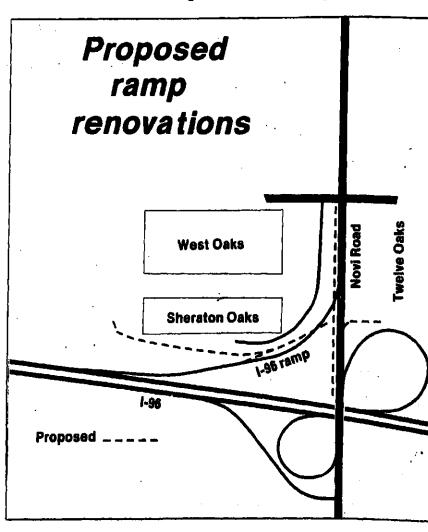

City Manager Edward Kriewall said that the administration understood they are to negotiate the repayment with property owners in the area. He also encouraged the council to agree to participate in the project although there are many details to be worked out.

"We are not making any guarantees." But we have to get the paperwork moving," Kriewall said. Based on the discussion here, we'll negotiate this. We'll return to the council before any funds are spent.''

Council members also indicated they expect a definite, binding commitment from Sheraton Oaks that a convention center will be built before the project

Hazelroth stated that no money would be spent on the project until such a commitment is received from the hotel

He further reported, however, that Sheraton Oaks has stepped up its plans to acquire additional property and continue its planning process.

Rare dogs win show honors

Once the mighty guard dogs of ancient Chinese emperors, the Shar Pei was hunted to near extinction when the Communists came to power. About 10 years ago, a number of Shar Peis were brought to the United States and bred. Today Shar Peis are safe from extinction. Indeed, the Shar Pei population in the U.S. has reached over 2.800 thanks to dedicated dog lovers like Matt Wright, a 1973 Walled Lake Western graduate. Wright and his wife Donna own two of the stout Shar Pels. His male, named

Soon Lang, already has won a best of breed title as a nine-month-old puppy an unheard of thing in dog show circles. Wright purchased Soon Lang (which means gentleman) in April of this year. By May, the puppy had earned enough show points to be called best of breed. Wright bought Soon Lang along with a smaller female Shar Pei, Soon Lee (which means good luck). Soon Lee is 71/2 months old.

"I was interested in the Shar Peis story," explained Wright. "They are still just coming around from near ex-Shar Peis - that's the challenge. "These are valuable dogs. Each one is worth over $1,000 and now that Soon Lang is a best of breed his stud service possibilities make him worth a great deal more," he added. Shar Peis are distinguished by the wrinkles which cover the entire body of a young pup. By the time they are 10 months old, most of the wrinkles are usually gone, except around the dog's head and chest area. These wrinkles, which gradually disappear as the dog grows older, are part of its anicent but a number of characteristics set them apart. The dogs must have a straight front, a big head, what's known as a meat mouth, a black tongue and a tail that curls or points upward. Soon Lang's first Shar Pel dog show was in April of this year. He took four firsts and one second against 100 other dogs. Then in May he competed in the largest Shar Pei dog show ever in St.

Louis and came away with 10 first

Walled Lake and Wolverine Lake residents are invited to step by the farm, have a holdeg, give the kids a balloon and allow Walled Lake developer Roy Mercer a few minutes of their time.

Mercer arranged the event, which begins at 3 p.m., to give himself the opportunity to explain on-site his plans for the Finiter Farm development.

Much concern has been expressed over the proposed beight of condominiums Mercer hopes to build on the property. Experience speaks loader the five-story height (42 (set) he proposes for the buildings.

Mercer also plans to demonstrate the distance his buildings used to be from

Chaplain Corps helps police serve public

NOVI - The time immediately after a fatal accident is filled with many responsibilities for local police. One of the least liked tasks is having to notify the victim's family — death notices in law enforcement lingo. Most police officers have had to go through the experience at least once, but in Novi, thanks to the existence of the Police Chaplain's corps, officers have been pretty much relieved of the responsibility. The corps, which was formed in 1978 by the city council, is designed to assist police officers in situations when it is deemed a member of the clergy should be present. The corps is used for accidents, domestic disturbances and suicides. The chaplains are on call on a monthly rotation and are available 24 hours a day. They are often used in the early mor-"Seeing that collar really calms people down in just about any situation," said Dale Gross, 39, a former sergeant with the Novi Police Department and now the pastor of the South Hill Baptist Church Now a part-time member of the corps, Gross was one of the original six members. There are currenty seven chaplains with another to be added shortly. When Gross left the force in 1976 to be ordained he was the commanding officer of the patrol division. At that time Reverend Leslie Harding of Novi's Hoy Cross Episcopal Church was appointed the department's senior chaplain. "We started talking about a corps in 1978 that would serve the police officers and the community as well," said Harding. "We've been fortunate in his community not to have had any officers seriously hurt on duty, but there's been plenty for us to do for the department and community." The current corps includes Gross, Harding, Richard Henderson of the Faith Community Presbyterian church, Thomas Scherger of Freedom Lutheran church, Father Kevin O'Brien of Holy Family Catholic church, Richard Griffith of the Novi United Methodist church and Austin Denny, the newest chaplain, of the Novi Christian church. The chaptains are on call - when one is needed

it's at the request of the patrol officer, according to Gross. "We are here to serve the needs of the police and also serve the needs of the community. The police initiate the call for a chaptain." he said. They are trained through the Michigan Police Chaplains Association, of which Gross is the current president. The clergymen learn to be aware of an officer's duties in any given situation and the potential stresses for an officer or victim's family. They also learn the department's policies and procedures and familiarize themselves with the "psychology" of the officer and even his squad car, said Harding. "We need to understand where an officer's coming from and the role he plays in the community. We are there for the officers." Harding said. As well as being on call, chaplains occassionally ride with an officer on regular duty. "It encourages interrelating between the officers and the chapiain," Gross said. When a death notice has to be made the chaplains are called in, if there is time, according to Novi Sergeant Ralph Fluhart. "We don't always have the time, but we prefer them to have the chaplains at least come along with the officer," he said. Fluhart added that for the first time the department used a chaplain on a domestic call just two weeks ago. "We found it worked quite well." he said. "This is not the type of thing you use every day or even every week, but when there is a need the chaplains are always there." Fluhart has been with the Novi Police Department 15 years. "Since just about day one we've had this kind of service but it wasn't offically organized until a few years ago," he said. "Before it was organized we had to track down a local member of the clergy — we never had anyone refuse back The chaplains are prepared to stay with a family and do whatever they can until the family's own clergyman arrives. If the family is without a spiritual leader the chaplains are prepared to respond to any future needs. Members of the corps also try to get other local clergy involved in their brand

"When I was an officer I always hated the thought of death messages," said Gross. "It's nice for officers to know we are on call and prepared to take that burden and allow them to concentrate on the other aspects of the work they do."

He added that when responding to an officer's request, chaplains come under the officers direct control. "We become his repsonsibility," Harding said. "We have no command position and do as we are asked. That's the way it should be."

Not all clergy are cut out to be police chaplains, he added. "We wear two hats so to speak by being there to help the officer and the community," Harding said. "Everyone involved is doing a tremendous service."

Novi patrol officers are quick to agree. "The more people who want to help me do my job, the merrier," said Novi Patrol Officer Tim McNamara. "It's a very good program. With a chaplain on hand we are freed up to do police work."

McNamara, a six-year member of the force, recalled an incident over two years ago when a woman drowned in her own bathtub just a few weeks before Christmas. "Right after we arrived the husband came home from Christmas shopping. It was quite sad. Father Harding arrived not more than a couple minutes later to help the husband while we tried to do our job," he said. "I'm sure

A chaplain corps isn't unique to Novi, but most police departments of comparable size are just now poking into a corps. "Departments are starting to realize that we can work together," said Gross. "I work part-time for the force so I can keep in touch with the officers. The best way to do that is keep my police certification."

Major police departments, such as Detrot, have their own full time chaplain. "We're not ready for that. The system we have in Novi works very well," said Police Chief Lee Begole.

The corps doesn't have a budget, but in-house services are rendered. For example, Gross as a Baptist doesn't normally wear a clerical collar, which Novi insists on when chaplains respond to a call, so the department footed the bill to outfit him.

'We want the community to know who we are. A suit and tie just doesn't do it - people think we're

As We See It

Depot committee deserves praise

It's unfortunate Larry Coe didn't happen along the notion of buying a railroad in Walled Lake

Coe. a Franklin businessman who has fostered the dream of owning a railroad most of his life, is working this week to close a deal with Grand Trunk Western Railroad for purchase of the tracks and right-of-way from Wixom to Haggerty Road. The purchase plan, if it is successful, includes the Walled Lake depot on Pontiac

Coe and his wife are an enterprising couple with grand plans for developing the depot as an historic site, perhaps to include a museum for Walled Lake artifacts. The stretch of railroad, almost six miles, would provide continued service to the few Walled Lake businesses which have utilized Grand Trunk's rail cars in the past. Part of the dream includes purchase of a steam engine for picturesque tourist rides orginating from the century-old depot.

If the deals go through and Coe's plans take the limelight in Walled Lake, somewhere in the background will remain a very interested, and hopefully very involved, parks and recreation commission and "Save the Depot" commit-

Shortly after Grand Trunk posted its intention of abandoning the Wixom to Walled Lake section of railway last spring, the city took an interest in preserving the little white depot building. Once the city had made an informal agreement to buy the depot from Grand Trunk for $1, provided it be moved off the company's right-of-way, the parks and recreation commission took up the banner for the project.

In September a "Save the Depot'' committee was formed, chaired by City Council Member Linda Ackley. Ackley faced two monumental tasks: planning for the transport and restoration of the fragile building, and raising money to fund the project.

For nearly a year she fought a "chicken and egg" situation. Planning the transport of the building took that interest.

down the tracks to the park behind city hall and attracting laborers to donate time and services for its restoration was difficult without the promise of funds for materials. Raising funds for materials was difficult without the promise of donated labor. Estimating a total cost for the project was difficult without knowing either of the Progress was slow, to be sure. But considerable efforts were made on the part of the parks and recreation commission and Linda Ackley. This spring design plans were being completed for the depot's new location and progress was being made on applying for an historic designation for the depot

And along comes Larry Coe. A man with a dream, and the money to back it. Both the commission and the Save the Depot committee had operated for a year under the assumption the city already owned the depot. But, in fact, the papers had never legally been signed and those who championed the Save the Depot efforts found themselves with few alternatives but to lend their support to Coe's scheme.

It was a fairly quiet and unprotested realignment. At a July 18 meeting of Walled Lake's Parks and Recreation Commission, Coe explained his plans for the railway and the depot. Later that evening, the commission voted to support Coe's efforts, as long as the city could have first dids on the depo should Coe ever decide to sell the the Depot committee should not be forgotten as Coe's plans unfold. The city is happy to have someone else funding the project, but the efforts already forwarded to preserve the depot have been commendable. Had the parks and recreation commission and Ackley's committee not taken the interest in the depot, the historic building might already have been destroyed by the time Coe took interest in Walled Lake's railroad.

By PATRICIA N. BOWLING

For months after my mother found out I'd be moving to Detroit, she was clipping coupons and advertisements from the back of magazines for attack resis-

Keychains with a can of mace attached, change purses with whistles and compacts with alarms - she found them all. I tried to explain I'd be relatively safe on the campus of Cranbrook School in Bloomfield Hills where my husband-to-be would be teaching, but she was convinced I'd need some sort of carry-along protection for my nighttime reporting responsibilities.

From Cranbrook we moved to the Village Apartments in Wixom where we've been living nearly one month. We're in building nine, not far from building 11, which, if you recall, was the scene of the most gruesome murder in that small city's history a couple

The July 13 edition was one newspaper I didn't

I have to admit it feels pretty eerie — building 11 is the closest this small-town Indiana girl has come to the scene of such violent crime. Not that Marion, Indiana, doesn't have its share of violence; it's just that it was never right down the street before.

The murder was grisly, but in the police reports there was something that disturbed me nearly as much as the murder itself.

A man across the court from apartment building number 11 told police he was awakened by loud noises shortly after 3 a.m. the morning of the murder. According to police, the neighbor "observed a man strike a woman, then drag her toward the bedroom." The drapes were then pulled shut, there was no further noise, and the man across the court went back to bed.

That part of the report stuck in my mind. A note left by Kent Byrd said he killed his girlfriend at 3:30

And the man across the court went back to bed.

I couldn't help but wonder if the results of that evening would have been different had a phone call been made to police shortly after 3 a.m. when a total of four different neighbors were reportedly awakened by the disturbance in building 11. One even reported he saw a man strike a woman and drag her across the

I also couldn't help but wonder if I would have called had I been one of the residents to observe the signs of violence in building 11.

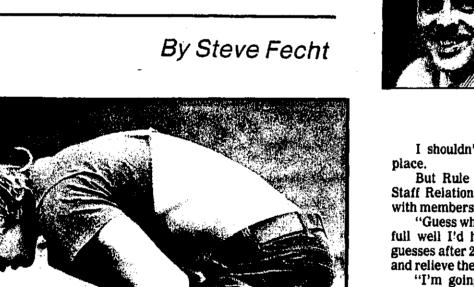

None of the nearby residents could possibly have imagined what was happening in that apartment. But surely, if someone heard a terrified scream it would warrant a call to the local police. If, after being awakened by a disturbance, someone saw a person dragging a body across a room in a nearby apartment, wouldn't that justify a call to police?

In small towns one of the things people seem to associate with "the city" is the occurence of violence in the presence of uninvolved, even uninterested bystanders. But Wixom is hardly "the city." Perhaps that's why those police reports of a couple weeks ago were so unsettling. They disturbed my sweeping generalization about what happens in small towns and what happens in big cities.

Those of us from small towns are rather prone to sweeping generalizations about big cities. I suppose that's why my mother worried so after learning my "Guess what?" I asked brightly, knowing full well I'd have to interrupt their feeble guesses after 20 minutes to tell them the news and relieve their anxiety. "I'm going to judge a beauty pageant

Now I knew that my staff of intelligent young women would never question my qualifications for judging beauty. After all, how can a man be surrounded by beauty all day and not learn to recognize it? What I had failed to perceive was the depth of their feminism ... the type of thinking that considers beauty pageants only slightly less odious than nuclear war. "How could you?" they asked in unison. "Where's your respect for women? How could you sit there and pass judgement on such an ethereal thing as female beauty while these women are paraded in front of you?" "Well, there's no bathing suit competition," I responded meekly, trying to assuage their fears and avoid further abuse. "And the contestants range in age from

I could see I was making slight progress so I continued. "It's sort of an inner beauty pageant. You know, we're supposed to judge the total woman. Physical beauty will play a part, but as far as I'm concerned intelligence, personality, education, vocational accomplishment and service to humanity will rate highest in my book.

'What I'll be looking for is the woman who's a credit to her gender and all humankind ... a woman who has her feet on the ground and her goals in the air ... a woman of intelligence who is forging new frontiers and creating a new society based on the principles of truth, justice and freedom for all."

It was a magnificent speech, and I could tell they were awed by the fervor of my convictions. Only one problem remains - if someone akin to Madame Curie doesn't win that beauty pageant Friday, I can tell I'm going to be in a lot of trouble.

Hoskinson indicated he did not see the area to the north developing as single family because of the wetlands. He speculated the multiple family development in the area would be expanded.

"Pressure will be brought to bear to rezone that multiple or high-density single family district, but we feel the multiple family district has been stopped. It has not been zoned single family so that the east side of Meadowbrook is protected with a liketype single family zoning. We feel its important to maintain this type of orientation."

But a majority of the planners indicated they ap proved of the churches plans as submitted and did not object to an exit onto Broquet.

Aruffo objected, saying, "I see real problems in the future from the community, which is this churches potential field for harvest, so to speak. I have heard from the community that residents are asking that this not be placed here this way. I don't favor the recommendation because of the placement of the parking and the driveway."

HARRY A. OSBORNE JR. of Novi has retired after 31 years with the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT). He is an engineering technician with the Utilities and Permits Division in Osborne joined the department in 1951 as a highway worker at the Brighton state highway maintenance garage. He later became an operator of highway maintenance equipment, stores clerk and field clerk at a freeway construction project office in Detroit.

He transferred to Utilities and Permits Division at Pontiac and then to MDOT's Metropolitan District office in Southfield. The division coordinates activities of privately-owned facilities within the rights-ofway, approves and issues permits for right-of-way and administers the state billboard control program. Osborne's work involves protection of state highway right-of-way in the four-county district of southeastern Michigan. A Detroit native, he served with U.S. Army Ordnance in Europe in World War II. He and his wife Winifred plan to keep their home in

Comerica offers plan SHRUBS to save for education

Comerica Incorporated announced availability of a new investment savings plan specifically designed to help families prepare for financing children's college education.

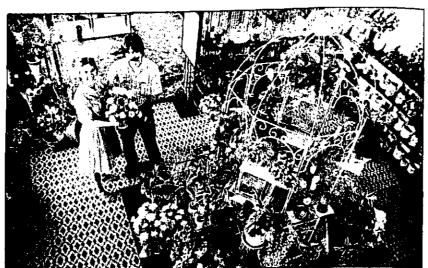

Called the College Fund, the program helps families set a savings goal and achieve it through several investment opportunities while considering their tax situation. Comerica says it is the first comprehensive college savings program of its kind offered by a U.S. bank. Four savings plans are offered, allowing consumers to choose one best suited to their particular family and financial situations. Factors considered in selecting a plan include the savings goal, whether the adult or child (who may pay little or no tax) is to incur the tax liability, and to whom the assets of the fund will ultimately belong.

Former residents of Southfield, they have recently moved to South Lyon. The Schraffenbergers purchased the flower shop from Arthur Nowicki of South Lyon whose late wife Mary ran it for many years.

A LANDMARK RESTAURANT at Ten Mile and Pontiac Trail in the center of South Lyon, now known as Jimmy's II, will change hands in a few weeks, pending transfer of the liquor license.

The new owers will be Gus Kokas of South Lyon and Gus Catsambas of Livonia, who are now operating the restaurant under a management agreement with present owner Jimmy Gibson. A contest has been launched to rename the restaurant, with the winner receiving dinner for four. Suggested names can reflect the location, the history of the area, fine food, family dining or whatever, according to Catsambas. Entries may be dropped off personally or mailed to Gus Kokas, Jimmy's II, 106 South Lafayette, South Lyon, Menu changes are in store, as well as some refinement of the decore and signage, according to the prospective owners.

"We will carry on the tradition of quality food in a wholesome family environment that the original James Gibson established here in the 1940's," said Catsambas. "But we're going to spice up the menu with some dishes that are more popular these days, like barbeque, During the transition in ownership, the restaurant will continue to serve breakfast, lunch and dinner, as well as the popular Sunday hotels in Greece, Libya and Canada before coming to the United States. He also owns the Livonia Inn at 35780 West Five Mile.

Kokas, 32, was associate chef to Catsambas at Livonia Inn prior to taking over Jimmy's II. He was previously at the Chambertin restaurant in Dearborn for four years, was manager of Gus's Restaurant in Briarwood Mall and owned his own restaurant in Flint.

CRISTALEEN ACADEMY of Dance and Music, located at 390 South Lafayette in South Lyon, announces a change of owership Westland resident Sandra E. Short joins Patricia Siegle of South Lyon as co-owner of the music and dance school. Short replaces Aileen Arledge in the partnership.

The business changed hands July 8, when Short bought Arledge's interest in the academy. Cristaleen Academy offers ballet, jazz, tap and aerobic dance lessons, as well as baton lessons.

Instruction is available in piano and guitar. Business hours remain the same, with the school open from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Short and Siegle may be contacted at 436-9501

Novi's IAN O'REAR, 17, is one of 80 hockey players from across the U.S. selected for an elite midget (15-16 before January 1, 1983) hockey training camp at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Boulder, Colorado, this

O'Rear, first line center and leading scorer of the national champion Compuware Hockey Club, is expected to be watched closely at the camp, which is a stepping stone to higher levels of competition

"Of the 40 players who were finalists for the 1984 U.S. Olympic team, we figured about 30 of them had come through our midget elite camp," reported camp director Frank Black. "From here, a boy could hope to be selected for the Junior Naional team, the National Sports Festival and eventually the Olympic hockey team."

Head coach of the camp is Lou Vairo, the 1984 Olympic ice hockey coach. Vairo and his assistants will be critiquing and grading the players' performances along with numerous scouts from both the professonal and college ice Wannakomback?

It's not all hard work for students at Camp Wannakomback, the special summer camp sponsored by the Walled Lake School Community Education Department. Every once in awhite the young campers take a break from their busy schedule of activities to rest under the trees (above). Breaks are short, however, as the students return to such activities as learning to make an outdoor barbecue pit. Shannon Mallast handles the shovel in the picture at left, as Christine Napora lends verbal support. (News photos by John Galloway) noon to 3 p.m.

The City of Wixom will have a ballot question on the City General Election, Tuesday, November 8th, 1983 which will ask for approval of a revision in the Charter for the City of Wixom, abolishing the position of Assistant to the Mayor and establish a City Manager form of government. The City Manager would be appointed by, and responsible to the City Council. The City of Wixom requires nine members to form the Charter Commission. The Charter Commission would revise the City of Wixom Charter to eliminate any sections therein which might prove to be in conflict with the establishment of a City Manager form of Government. The said Commissioners according to the statute, must be electors of the City of Wixom.

Nomination petitions for the City General Election to be held on Tuesday, November 8th, 1983 are available now at the City Clerk's Office, 49045 Pontiac Trail, Wixom, Michigan, 48098.

Quaker roots form Farmington heritage

Farmington was founded 159 years ago by five members of the Society of Friends (Quakers), who journeyed here in the middle of winter from Farmington, N.Y.

It was probably the lure of inexpensive land ($1.25 an acre) and the chance to build a legacy for his large family that brought Arthur Power, his sons John and Jared, and David Smith and Daniel Rush to this area in 1824.

This month, Farmington celebrates its founding 159 years ago.

This area today is very different from the area that Arthur Power found. Fortunately, many good historical accounts of Farmington's beginnings are available, including the Oakland County history published in 1970, the book by Lee Peel, and the diary of Arthur Power's son, Nathan, who joined his father in Farmington in 1826 at age 25.

These documents and many others give a remarkably clear account of Farmington's beginnings 159 years ago. By 1820, the government had made large tracts of land available to settlers. In 1823, Arthur Power came to the Farmington area and made arrangements to purchase large parcels of land in the area between what is now Eleven Mile and Nine Mile, along Power.

Power returned to Farmington, N.Y., and made arrangements for the trip west. He, his two sons, and the two hired men, Smith and Rush, left New York about Feb. 1, 1824 and arrived in Windsor on Feb. 15. Their mode of travel was apparently a sleigh drawn by a pair of

After a stop in Detroit for supplies, they traveled along Saginaw Road to Royal Oak and then to the small settlements then called Jenks, Sly, Durkee and Baker. Just before sunset the five arrived at their destination, and in what may have been a gesture of relief or happiness, they cut down one of the giant oak trees in a clearing. The location was about where Power and Eleven Mile

The settlers immediately built a log cabin and began clearing land, including a plot for Nathan Power, who had remained in New York with the rest of the cross today. The date was March 8.

ARTHUR POWER and many other early Quaker settlers are buried in the old Quaker cemetery, just south of Grand River. The two hired men went different ways. Rush apparently had an attack of plain homesickness and left a few weeks after he arrived.

However, David Smith completed a year's service to Power, bought some land and was still alive in 1877, when the Oakland County history book was first Power Road remains as a reminder of the founders of Farmington, as does Power Junior High School, named to honor the area's first teacher. Nathan Power. Among present descendents of Arthur Power are Eugene B. Power, former University of Michigan regent, and his son. Phil Power, chairman of the board of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Other settlers soon followed the Power

He left home at 14, returned to Farmington several years later and engaged in business ventures. He was elected to the Michigan House of Representatives and married Rhoda Botsford.

The Philbrick tavern, now a private home, on the corner of Power and 11 Mile, was once a way station for weary travelers. Although some historians disagree, others believe the tavern also served as a stopping off point for black slaves on the underground railroad who were escaping from slavemasters in the South.

For many years the Botsford Inn has been the gathering place for persons just traveling through or for those living in the area who are looking for historical surroundings in which to meet.

Travelers' refuge

Botsford Inn steeped in history

Botsford Inn in Farmington has a tradition of hospitality, having provided food and lodging to weary travelers for 147 years. It survives as Michigan's oldest country inn.

Originally built as a home in 1836 by Orrin Weston, it was converted into a tavern by Steven Jennings in 1841. The 16 Mile House, as it was known at the time, was the coach stop on Grand River, then a plank road built along an Indian trail to Lake Michigan and the juncture of the post road to Lansing.

The year 1860, just before the outbreak of the Civil War, saw the inn acquired by Milton C. Botsford, and it became a popular place for drivers and farmers traveling the route to the Dehall of the inn originally served as a public bar, called a tap room. It was separated from other facilities because it attracted the rougher types. Henry Ford bought the inn in 1924 and restored it in the manner for which he has become famous. Ford had taken a cause it played a part in his courting of his wife, Clara.

A SUITE of rooms on the second floor was kept for his friend Thomas Edison for his use whenever he came to visit. The original beds and dresser, of Gothic style in fumed white oak, used by Edison are retained in the rooms. The suite is available for occupants as are almost all of the inn's 62 rooms.

The John Anhuts, father and son, bought the handsome structure in 1951. They have since managed, maintained. modernized and added to the Botsford Inn. The West Wing extension was done in the same architectural style as the old inn; a modern banquet hall was an ingenious mix of old and new. Enter the inn through the colonial doorway. The porch is lighted with an early lanthorn lamp. The door with its original brass locks and knobs is flanked on both sides by leaded-glass panels.

In the tap room, now the entry hall, a collection of old machines and utensils is laid out on a table. Included are several types of coffe grinders, a cherry pitter, tobacco cutter, candle molds, iron trivet, bowls and even a collar crimper.

Hanging on the walls are a stagecoach jack for changing broken wheels. Several early tin lanterns, a copper hunting horn and 50 antlered deer head. Two flintlock muskets are on display; one is dated 1864, from the Civil War era. Glass display cases are crammed with jewelery, decorated silverware, glassware and bottles, knickknacks and sundry memorabi-

FURNISHINGS in the inn are from many places. An old heavy Chickering piano belonged to the sister of ill-fated Gen. George Armstrong Custer. A buffet is from the home of Gen. Robert E. Lee. A writing desk in the entry hall is from the Springfield, Ill, home of Abraham Lincoln, and is dated from the time of

Fascinating and beautiful objects abound in every room. Tables and sideboards of inlaid woods, a horse-hair sofa, four-poster beds, mahogany dressers, mirrors with heavy, carved frames all add to an air of rare charm and bygone clocks looks freshly made, though it is 18th century English. Another is a British-made 1875 clock from the hands of master Simon Willard, whose duplicated workshop is one of the feature buildings at Greenfield Village.

Willard was also the inventor of an ingenious rotisserie which can be seen in the tap room. The device was placed before a fireplace and coals were put into the bottom so that the meat could be cooked from two sides. The meat, hanging from a hook, could be turned slowly by a clock-spring mechanism for even roasting and then measured for shrinkage by a hand-held scale similar to the ones used by fishermen.

THE ORIGINAL kitchen has a fireplace of handmade bricks and a pair of massive andirons. It is equipped with a small baking oven for bread and pies.

Wide wainscoting, pegged floor planks, hewn rafters complete the traditional kitchen's appearance. A small section of the plastered wall has been left exposed to show the hand-split lathing which is part of the old structure. Woodenware and gourds, churn and scale are some of the old cooking utensils. Behind the old structure, the stable recently was converted into a banquet and reception hall for wedding parties and other large gatherings. The stable actually has been encased by the brick building in such a way as to preserve much of the atmosphere of the interior.

How newspaper serves community

Bloomer proudly sat back in his desk chair looking at the first edition of the Farmington Enterprise. He skimmed the pages looking at articles and advertisements, alike. It had been a struggle, but the first edition was out. It has been nearly 95 years since Farmington's own paper hit the streets. Ever since then, it has been chronicling the history of a proud community. Sitting in front of his electric typewriter, surrounded by 20th-century technology, the modern journalist wonders how Bloomer would feel about today's news-

Although the name has changed and format reworked to meet the needs of modern-day readers, the Farmington Observer & Eccentric is proud to identify its lineage to the Enterprise.

AS A MATTER of fact, the Enterprise name had such an impact that many people today still refer to the Observer & Eccentric as the Enterprise.

Bloomer was 33 at the time he rushed his first edition off the press and into the streets. He remained with the paper until 1898 when he moved to Sparta and consolidated the Sentinel and Leader newspapers. He died in 1909.

But Bloomer began a tradition of community journalism which still exists today. He believed in producing a newspaper which would serve the interests of the Farmington area while informing residents of matters in which they would be interested. Much of what he wrote in that first edition is pertinent today. "It is fair to judge of the intelligence of a community by the character of the paper it supports . . . What we wish then is that each one, when anything new or interesting comes to his knowledge,

Reading that first edition reveals both tenor and humor of the time.

A BLANK SPACE reserved for an adrtisement by Fred Warner is explained vay when Bloomer says Warner was o busy to make up the copy.

The mind wanders. Was Warner even en out campaigning? His political efrts eventually took him to the gover- participate in a singing convention at

He was the only Farmington resident to ever achieve such high political office. Politics, indeed, was a topic of the day as revealed in another short article.

"The Farmington Democratic Club. headed by the Redford Band, attended the great Democratic meeting at Pontiac." it says.

Obviously, objectivity wasn't what it could be in those days.

For those who wanted to spend time in a more leisurely fashion, they could bloom. The Young Peoples Circle was organized in the ME Church.

Although the world ran at a different pace, tragedy was still part of the scene.

Mrs. Anne Dewaters found the world situation to be untenable enough to put a .38 caliber revolver to her chest and pull the trigger. At press time she was in critical condition.

WR Anderson broke his neck while pitching cornstalks and James Clark "while maddened by drink," cut his mothers's throat. It took two officers to

At the beginning of the century, Walter Richards took over as Enterprise editor. But the competition was stiff.

Today, shadows of the old Enterprise still exist. On Farmington Road, south of Grand River stands the Enterprise building, now occupied by a bookstore.
