Robbers hold up pizzeria

NOVI — An armed robber and accomplice held the manager of Dominos Pizza at 41728 Ten Mile at gunpoint and stole approximately $1,550 during the early morning hours of Monday, February 26.

Responding to the armed robbery report, police were met by the manager, Joey Wilson, who said he had been robbed by two men wearing motorcycle helmets with the visors pulled down to mask their faces.

Wilson told police he was robbed while both Dominos drivers were on deliveries. Wilson was alone in the store and had locked the front door to count receipts at approximately 1:30 a.m.

According to reports, two white males appeared at the front door and indicated to Wilson that they wanted to order a pizza. Wilson unlocked the door and let the two men in.

Once inside, the suspects announced that they wanted his money. He gave them the money he had been counting, but the men were not satisfied. One pulled a gun, pointed it at Wilson's head and told him: "It's not enough."

Wilson led them to a lock box and told them more money could be found there. The two men then forced him into a restroom at the rear of the shop, slammed the door shut and wedged it closed with a step ladder.

A delivery person released Wilson from the restroom when he returned from delivering a pizza, and police were contacted. Wilson could not tell police which direction the men took when they left since he was locked in the restroom.

The manager reported to police that the two suspects took money from a desk and the lock box in addition to the cash they took directly from him.

There was no complete description of the men, since their faces were masked by the helmets. The first man was described as a white male, 5-8 tall and carrying a gun. The second man was described as a taller white male.

Turn-out very low

NOVI — It appears fate of a millage renewal request proposed by the Novi Community Schools will be decided by a light voter turn-out.

Superintendent Robert Piwko reported that by noon Tuesday approximately 200 persons had made it to the polls. Piwko said the heaviest turn-out comes between 5 p.m. and poll closing at 8 p.m., so it is difficult to accurately predict the size of the voter turn-out.

School district residents were to go to the polls to vote on a proposal to renew a levy of 10.5 mills for the operation of schools for the next four years. The 10.5 mills represents approximately one-third of the district's operating revenues. The millage cannot be levied again without voter approval.

Polls closed after The News' deadline Tuesday. Complete election results will appear in the March 14 edition.

Sometimes a difficult task can be a trying experience. Brad Ward, 5, lost his patience with the rooster he was sanding Saturday and decided to take out his frustration on the hapless bird. Brad

Group will protect land

By KATHY JENNINGS
 novi editor

NOVI — Financial incentives for preserving large stands of trees or other natural assets has been a well-kept secret for many years.

But a new Novi group is working to inform land owners that there's good reason to preserve property in its natural state.

The Novi Land Conservancy, a private, non-profit corporation, has been established to inform property owners of tax incentives and advantages that are available to people who donate their land to a conservancy.

"There are many different types of tax benefits — federal, state and local property taxes," explained Joseph Brett, vice president of the conservancy's board of directors.

"Each individual, depending on his circumstances, has to evaluate the tax advantage to decide how it can benefit him. The conservancy's job is to make the public aware that incentives do exist."

The group has been formed to preserve wilderness areas, wetlands, parks and playgrounds. Land donated to the Novi Land Conservancy becomes property of the conservancy, but donors have a say over the use of the land through restrictions they may put on their agreement with the conservancy.

For example, a property owner with 20 acres of property may donate the property to the conservancy and get a tax write-off for the donation. At the same time, he can maintain full rights of access to the property for life or restrict the use of the land. He also may donate it for a number of years then have it revert back to his ownership.

Conservancy members emphasize they are not in competition with the Parks and Recreation Department. People wishing to donate land will be

Distinguished officer named

NOVI — It was a year that Kenneth Meier will not soon forget — a year in which he delivered a baby in the family room of a home in the Meadowbrook Glens subdivision and a year in which he was named the "Outstanding Police Officer of the Year."

"I guess it was a pretty remarkable year," admitted the 28-year-old Meier, while sitting in the briefing room at Novi police headquarters Monday.

"Delivering that baby has to rate as the highlight of my career. I think it will always rate as the highlight of my career."

Meier has been a police officer for the past 5½ years, but only two of them with the Novi Police Department.

He became interested in a law enforcement career while attending St. Mary High School in Redford and became an officer as soon as he met age requirements.

"I saw police work as an exciting job, a job where you could get paid for helping people," said Meier, who looks more like an easy-going high school teacher than a rough-and-ready policeman.

"Several of my upperclass friends in high school went into police work, and they told me it was a pretty good job ... a job where you could make enough money to pay your bills without having to work two jobs."

After graduating from high school, Meier worked at the Chrysler tank plant in Detroit until he reached his 21st birthday, the minimum age for police officers in Detroit.

He attended the Police Academy and became an officer in Detroit, working road patrol, traffic and special operations — a section which led him to be assigned to Secret Service during the Republican convention in 1980.

When financial problems hit Detroit in 1980, Meier was one of the officers who was laid off. It wasn't until January of 1982 that he secured a position with the Novi Police Department.

"I worked as a court officer in Recorder's Court and sent out my application for every police officer's job that came along," he recalled. "I was one of more than 200 applicants for the opening in Novi and was fortunate enough to be selected."

Meier adds without hesitation that he would rather work in Novi than in Detroit. "The big difference is that you get to meet the citizens when you work in a place like Novi," he said.

"Police work in Detroit is criminally-oriented. In Novi, it's service-oriented. In Detroit all your time is taken up responding to criminal offenses; you don't get to meet the people like you do out here."

Meier minimized the suggestion that it's less dangerous to be a policeman in Novi than it is in Detroit. He admits to being shot at once while serving in Detroit, but says

Standards for aesthetics

By KATHY JENNINGS
 novi editor

NOVI — The first step in regulating the appearance of commercial, industrial and office buildings throughout the city will be added to the local zoning ordinance as a result of action taken by the city council last week.

Council members approved a plan that requires builders to use materials from a list of exterior building materials.

Builders are required to use 75 percent of the building materials described as "major materials." The remaining 25 percent of the building is to be constructed from the "minor materials" portion of the ordinance.

The list of allowable materials varies from one zoning district to the next. For example, major materials in commercial zoning districts are face brick; metal flat sheets; clap board; and clear, tinted and reflective glass. In industrial zoning districts, allowable building materials are the same, except there are more types of metal which can be used. In office zoning districts, builders also can use two types of pre-cast concrete.

To provide accents in the building facade, the ordinance includes a list of acceptable "minor materials."

Council members approved the revision to the zoning ordinance, replacing a listing of acceptable building materials some council members believed was too all-inclusive. The question of controlling the aesthetic appearance of buildings arose as council members continued their review of the rewritten zoning ordinance.

Under terms of the new ordinance, an applicant seeking tentative site plan approval also will be required to submit elevations of all four sides of the proposed building, as well as a design statement.

The design statement will have information regarding the general architectural design of the proposed building. The statement will describe the way the design and facade material will compliment existing or future land uses in the surrounding area.

With an elevation of each of the four sides of the building and the design statement, the city will be able to form an idea of what the building will look like before site plan approval is granted.

Planning Board member Lee Mamola, an architect who helped draft the list of acceptable building materials, told the council that the listing will serve primarily as a way to open dialogue with builders.

He explained that when builders come to Novi they will request a zoning ordinance. Questions will arise when they reach the section about acceptable building materials questions will arise and builders then will call city hall for answers. City administrators can invite the builder in and explain what the city is looking for in terms of building materials and design.

Mamola also emphasized the list of building materials is only the first step in establishing a review process that will encourage attractive buildings in Novi.

"We want to promote good design. We have to get away from promoting

State supports ramp re-design

NOVI — A plan to redesign the expressway ramp at I-96 and Novi Road to improve traffic flow has been recommended for rejection by the Federal Highway Administration, but state officials are still pushing for approval of the proposal.

The plans now are making their way through the Federal Highway Administration approval process. The plan was recommended for denial at the first federal review in Lansing. The proposal moves on to Chicago for further review.

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) has prepared a report explaining why the project should be accepted. That report also has been sent to Chicago.

"We're in support of the alternative plan we prepared based on the needs of the area," explained Mark Wartella, transportation engineer for the Michigan Department of Transportation. Wartella said MDOT recognizes improving traffic conditions on Novi Road is the key to development of the area and that many jobs would be created as a result of that development.

"The federal highway administration is protective of the interstate system itself — that's their job," Wartella said. "In as much as we've submitted a request regarding the proposal, it indicates we're supporting the project. It's our stance that it would be good for the state. But it's not up to us to interpret the FHWA guidelines. They have rules governing their approvals."

MDOT has requested approval of the plans and presented justification for approving the project, Wartella explained. The request was denied at the first level on grounds it would violate guidelines to maintain the integrity of the highway system.

The plan has moved on to the next level in the approval system — the Federal Highway Administration in Chicago.

The proposed ramp is designed to alleviate access problems in Section

Builder requested to revise proposal

NOVI — The planning board has withheld final site plan approval for a proposed addition to Ideal Accents on Grand River to give the owners additional time to consider the type of building materials.

Ideal Accents has requested approval to construct a 1,500 square foot addition to its existing 4,000 square foot building on the southwest corner of Grand River and Old Orchard Drive.

Ideal Accents is an automotive-related company which installs sun roofs and other auto trim accessories.

Planning Consultant Charles Cairns told the board February 13 that the site plan is in order except for plans to construct the addition with 12-inch concrete blocks.

"Since there have been objections to using this type of building material on exterior walls, particularly near residential developments, we are hesitant to recommend final site plan approval," said Cairns in his report to the board.

Basil Tomina, the engineer for the proposed addition to Ideal Accents, noted that the existing building is constructed of concrete blocks which have been painted yellow. He said the addition will be constructed of the same material and painted yellow to maintain compatibility.

However, planners urged him to reconsider the type of building materials that will be used.

Planner Judith Johnson noted that several residents have expressed concern over concrete blocks and said they would prefer a different type of building material.

Planner Joseph Brett suggested that the Grand River corridor will develop in the future and stated that construction of cinderblock buildings will set a bad precedent.

It would be to your advantage to change the building material," Brett told Tomina. "What goes in next door to your place will affect the value of your property."

The board subsequently voted unanimously to table action on the request for final site plan approval to give Tomina time to discuss the possibility of constructing the addition out of something other than concrete blocks.

Major drain project expected to move

NOVI — Problems which delayed construction of a major drainage project last year have been resolved, and city officials expect the project to get underway this construction season.

The drainage project, formerly known as the Patnales Drain, was stalled when the Army Corps of Engineers told the city it would not approve dredging plans south of Nine Mile.

The drainage improvement project has been approved by the Army Corps of Engineers and work could begin as early as April 1.

The project entails dredging Meadowbrook Lake, removing the dam in the lake, reconstructing the bridge on Nine Mile and some channelization south of Nine Mile. Underized culverts also will be replaced with four-by-24 foot box culverts.

Seiber estimated that the lake will be drained approximately six months while the city dredges 12-feet out of the bottom.

"The only remaining stumbling block is procuring easements south of Nine Mile."

Although the new plan addresses the concerns expressed by state environmental officials, it will not be as effective in controlling flooding as the original proposal.

Council eyes plans for special week

NOVI — Is participation in Michigan Week a positive way to promote the city? Or is it a week filled with for-city-officials-only events?

As Michigan Week and Mayor's Exchange Day approaches, those are the questions being asked by the city council. Council members, who cut Michigan Week from the 1983-84 budget during budget deliberations last spring, are having second thoughts about the decision.

Mayor Robert Schmid encouraged the council to reconsider its action, noting that it would be a mistake for a growing community to eliminate participation in Michigan Week.

"This is a vital program that helps put the City of Novi on the map and helps get information about the city flowing between communities," said Schmid in urging the council to consider participation in Mayor's Exchange Day. "The communities that cut this out are the ones that are heading down and taking a negative view of their future. It would be a mistake for a growing community to do this, especially in a year when we're celebrating our 150th anniversary."

"Mayor's Exchange Day is a good way to spread the news of the vitality of the community," added Schmid. "I think it has its pluses and very few minuses. We're foolish to do away with it."

Martha Hoyer noted that Michigan Week was eliminated when the council discussed ways to balance the budget without raising the millage.

Council Member Ronald Watson explained that the council was not opposed to celebrating Michigan Week, but had felt it would not be missed under the circumstances. "We seem to have established a set pattern for Michigan Week and most of the events are ignored," Watson said. "People have worked very hard to set these events up to no avail."

"We discussed that Mayor's Exchange Day is a very insular-type thing," Watson continued. "If it gets our name out, it's at a slow pace." Watson suggested the city try a festival or other unique festivities to get citizens involved in Michigan Week.

Hoyer noted the community used to be involved in Michigan Week activities, but there has been less participation as the city grew. "We used to have a potluck and the community all came to the Mayor's Exchange dinner. Now it's just for the council."

Schmid said he has participated in Mayor's Exchange Day activities both as a council member and mayor almost every year he has been on the council. "I can say without reservation that we do a lot of public relations work for the community. It becomes a topic for mayors' conferences and helps us become known as a city. Novi still suffers in that regard," Schmid said.

Council Member Edward Leininger said he supported public relations efforts. Leininger also suggested the city needed to do more to stimulate pride in the community.

Council members subsequently agreed by consensus to reinstitute Michigan Week activities and directed city administrators to find the money for the program in the budget.

Business secretary files labor lawsuit

WALLED LAKE — A memo to the school board from Assistant Superintendent Russell Wright concerning secretaries' wages in the business office prompted the secretaries' association to file an unfair labor practice suit last week.

Association representative Karen Flar said the suit alleges secretary Carol Sweeney was treated differently by the administration as a result of her involvement in filing a grievance against the district.

The grievance, filed in January by the Walled Lake School Secretaries' Association (WLSA), called for the school board to approve back pay for Sweeney. According to the grievance, Sweeney performed duties beyond her job description from November 1982 through September 1983 while Wright was developing a plan to reorganize responsibilities within the business office.

The board denied the grievance request, but in a subsequent vote asked Wright to review job performances over the past year to determine whether inequities occurred during the reorganization period.

Wright was to have reported to the board at its Monday, February 27, meeting, but the discussion was pulled from the agenda at the request of the WLSA.

"As soon as we got a copy of Wright's report to the board, we were very surprised," Flar said.

In his memo, Wright described his task as "traught with the potential for controversy." He noted the basis for wage equity in the secretarial contract and stated that two positions "appear to be classified incorrectly."

The head payroll clerk and accounting clerk both deal with large amounts of money on a regular basis and, therefore, Wright suggested they be upgraded to the highest classification.

"The school board should approach the secretarial association during the negotiations process, which will commence this spring, asking for such a change," he said.

"We're not opposed to people being upgraded," Flar responded. But the association is "very, very concerned" about concluding remarks in Wright's memo which imply dissatisfaction with Sweeney's job performance.

Wright said changes in Sweeney's position over the past year were "commensurate with those required of her as secretary to the purchasing agent."

After Sweeney questioned the workload, adjustments were made... so that she would be able to finish her work.

Wright said. Finally, he noted the workload requested of Sweeney was not "excessive" in his estimation and added that he was "disappointed" in her performance.

Flar noted that employees are entitled to a private meeting any time the board plans to discuss job performance. Therefore, Wright's distribution of the memo for discussion at a public meeting constituted an unfair labor practice, she said.

Wright had no comment on the memo or the unfair labor practice suit.

Hearings begin on Duff firing

WALLED LAKE — Hearings before an arbitrator began last week to determine whether former Community Education Director Robert Duff was justly removed from his position by the school board last November.

The school district presented its case against Duff during sessions Wednesday, Thursday and Friday last week. Duff's attorney, Harvey Wax, said the hearings will continue tomorrow, March 8.

Attorney for the school district Dennis Pollard maintained last week that Duff actively worked against the interests of the school district by his tolerance of and participation in a computer marketing business call JAB Computing.

Pollard revealed that an alleged vendor's agreement between Duff and JAB Computing was anonymously delivered to his law firm's secretary on September 1. The agreement was signed by Duff and former Community Education Regional Coordinator Jerry Beers, who spearheaded the formation of JAB. Pollard said. With the agreement was a cover letter from Beers explaining to Duff that he would receive a commission on a sale of computer programs to Cedar Springs School District (in the Grand Rapids area).

In his opening statement, Wax maintained that Duff not only did not ever become a vendor for Beers' business, but he further never knew of or permitted any wrongful conversion of school district assets. Wax said Duff never "knewingly lied or misrepresented any facts to the school district with respect to his involvement with JAB Computing or Mr. Beers."

Pollard explained that activities leading to the dismissal by the school board of both Beers and Duff began in the winter and spring of 1981. In an effort to update data control within the community education department, an Apple II computer was purchased with the permission of the district. At the same time, Pollard said, Beers was assigned the responsibility of developing software which would organize student scheduling and student transcript data.

Beers engaged the help of high school senior Brian Smithson, who initially worked without compensation as part of a special class assignment. When school ended in June, however, Smithson was paid on an hourly basis by community education to complete a course registration program and develop other programs, Pollard said.

"At some point during the summer of 1981, Mr. Beers and Brian discussed forming a partnership, apparently intending at that point to sell the software which Brian was being paid by the school district to develop," Pollard claimed. In the fall, Smithson programmed into the system a copyright statement for JAB Computing. The acronym JAB was representative of the first initials of Jerry Beers, Amy Snyder (secretary to Duff) and the community education department, and Brian Smithson, Pollard said.

The programs developed by Smithson were presented by Beers to the Troy School District in early fall, Pollard said. The Troy district subsequently purchased one of the computer programs, making the check payable to the Walled Lake School District.

Pollard noted that in a presentation to the school board in November, Beers noted there was interest among other school districts in the computer software.

"In substance, the board and the Walled Lake community (were) given a clear and direct impression that these programs were proprietary to the school district and that they would be marketed in its behalf to other school districts, with the proceeds... going into the district treasury," Pollard claimed.

But in March, 1982, Beers and Smithson filed a certificate of co-partnership with the Oakland County Clerk's office. The vendor's agreement signed by Duff and Beers was dated March 30, Pollard claimed. The sale to Cedar Springs School District allegedly was the first by JAB Computing. Pollard claimed Duff received a commission check for the sale.

Pollard further maintained that Duff's secretary also served as the secretary for JAB, typing JAB correspondence on JAB stationery during the winter and spring of 1981. In an effort to update data control within the community education department, an Apple II computer was purchased with the permission of the district. At the same time, Pollard said, Beers was assigned the responsibility of developing software which would organize student scheduling and student transcript data.

Duff and approved for payment," Pollard claimed.

Pollard also claimed that Beers threatened the community education secretarial staff when they complained about handling outside business calls for the department's administrators.

"Mr. Duff, the most senior administrator and head of the department, indicated his approval of Mr. Beers' response by saying nothing countermand or change Mr. Beers' reply," Pollard claimed.

Kratage will run to replace Long

By LEANNE ROGERS
news staff writer

COMMERCER — Robert Kratage has withdrawn a petition seeking to recall Township Supervisor Robert Long and announced his candidacy for township supervisor.

Kratage withdrew the recall petition February 29, two days before it was scheduled to be reviewed for clarity by the Oakland County Elections Commission.

In a letter to the commission, Kratage said he should not be part of a recall drive since he had decided to become a candidate for township office.

The recall petition charged Long, who has served as township supervisor since 1967, with failing to represent residents by using his office to promote township approval of the proposed Huron Valley Hospital on residential property he once owned.

Long sold the proposed hospital site to hospital-backers in 1967. Since that time Long has taken no public position on the hospital proposal and has abstained from voting on hospital-related issues.

The recall petition, which now has been withdrawn, also charged that Long had failed to represent residents and protect their drinking supply from potential pollution from the hospital wastewater treatment plant by refusing to support a citizen proposal to obtain an Environmental Impact Study.

Kratage, a local developer, said he was opposed to the treatment facility approved for the hospital but would seek similar approvals for property he owns in the township. "I am not an expert on water, but if the state says it is good for the hospital I want the same thing," he commented. "I am opposed to all these treatment plants, but if it will economically benefit me, I'll apply also."

Under the township zoning ordinance, hospitals can be permitted as special uses in residential areas. Kratage said he wanted the same density levels for developments on his property as permitted on the 154-bed hospital site.

Kratage also charged Long with conflict of interest over the approved township zoning ordinance. According to Kratage, the ordinance provision regarding special exceptions is directly related to Long's sale of the hospital site.

The zoning ordinance was developed by the planning commission and planning consultant.

Parents protest ending program

WALLED LAKE — Mothers of youngsters in the district's Head Start program packed the board's special meeting Monday to protest board action of a week ago withdrawing Walled Lake from Head Start.

After Director of Elementary Education Hugh Davies explained the program's uncertain financial status, the board at its Monday, February 27, meeting decided to conclude the Head Start program in June, at no cost to the district's general fund, if possible.

But Trustee Patricia Jackman explained to the mothers this week: "The board of education is not disinterested in serving low income children." Jackman said she would like to see the board investigate other pre-school program alternatives which might serve more district children.

Head Start is a 2 1/2-hour program four days a week for pre-kindergarten children. Program eligibility is determined on the basis of family income. Classes are held at Decker and Dublin elementary schools. Although there was only room for 45 pre-schoolers in the 1984 program, Davies said 120 youngsters were eligible.

"We need to look at a program that would serve all the children," Jackman suggested.

Trustee Martin Reeds told the mothers the board had ruled out the possibility of continuing Head Start next fall. He noted the difference between the district's fiscal year — from July to June — and the federal government's fiscal year — from January to December — has created problems when planning financing for the Head Start program.

"The board is interested in a program that functions smoothly, with some continuity. We can't do that with Head Start because the funding is so uncertain," Jackman said.

Director of Planning and Evaluation Sami Alan explained that the board adopts a budget for Head Start in June, but the district's allocation of federal dollars for the program does not come until months after the program has begun.

"We start on faith every year," he explained. The budget is submitted to the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency (OLHSA), which administers the federal dollars for the program. Davies said 120 youngsters were eligible.

Smaller water hike advised

By PATRICIA N. BOWLING
walled lake editor

WALLED LAKE — Too much, too quickly was the message council members gave City Engineer Alex Moseleit this month when they rejected his proposed 50 percent water rate hike.

The engineer's proposal was in response to a letter from the township water department deficit beginning this year.

The increases Moseleit suggested would have covered the anticipated 1984 deficit of over $52,000, provided new monies for repair and maintenance, and made the system independent of the city's general fund. But the plan would have nearly doubled residents' water bills.

At its Tuesday, February 21 meeting, the council requested the engineer devise a new proposal for rate increases which would cover this year's deficit only, leaving the resolution of other water department problems for future years.

City water customers should still expect their water bills to increase before the end of the year, but the amount of that increase has not been determined.

This week City Manager J. Michael Dornan proposed a package of water rate recommendations which included the following:

- Maintain the minimum charge of $8, but reduce the minimum gallons credit from 10,000 gallons per quarter to 8,000 per quarter;
- Increase the usage charge per 1,000 gallons over the minimum from 45 cents to 90 cents;
- Increase tap-in fees for new customers;
- Establish a new System Benefit Fee of $40 for each new customer.

COMMERCER — Residents can hear a detailed explanation of the proposed township-sponsored adult foster care program at a community meeting set for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 21, at the Richardson Community Center.

"We will be sending letters to community groups inviting them to the meeting," commented Treasurer Patrick Dohany. "We think this program puts the community back into community placement."

Under the program planned, the township will set up a non-profit corporation to operate adult foster care homes for the developmentally disabled. The proposal was recommended by an ad hoc committee on adult foster care chaired by Dohany.

Dohany: 'We think this program puts the community back into community placement.'

"We have identified a group of people through the non-profit corporation to provide accountability," Dohany said. "The clients will come through the Oakland County Community Mental Health Board. The buck will really stop here at the township. We have cut through a lot of bureaucracy."

"Temporary funding approval from the state Department of Mental Health has been received for the program. Two homes, each serving six residents, would be established under the program. A partial first year allocation of $108,000 would cover operation and maintenance costs for the home, outside daily programming, medical and dental care and a half-time community mental health board case manager.

The proposal was developed to provide local input into the foster care program. Local officials have com-

LCC grants Karner appeal for sale of outside liquor

By PATRICIA N. BOWLING
walled lake editor

WALLED LAKE — The Michigan Liquor Control Commission (LCC) has granted Copper Mug owner Joseph A. Karner permission to sell liquor outside his Maple Road bar.

"It's obviously politics," said Police Chief Wilford Hook, who strongly recommended the LCC uphold its denial of Karner's request. "Why ask for local police department input if you're going to ignore it in my opinion, it was a very unwise decision on the part of the liquor commission."

Karner plans to fence off two parking spaces on the east side of the building where he will place picnic tables for use by patrons when weather permits.

The LCC required there be no outdoor access to the area, therefore Karner must add a door on the east side of the building to service the proposed area. Because the door was not included in the plans Karner submitted to the Walled Lake Plan Commission, he must re-submit them for site plan approval, city officials said.

Last October the plan commission approved Karner's plan contingent on a favorable opinion from the police department on the safety of the outdoor sales proposal.

After re-examining Karner's request, the commission stated it was "convinced" that a well-defined and controlled outdoor service area would not be "more detrimental or disruptive to the neighborhood, the traffic flow of the area, or the youthful patrons frequenting the batting cage operation than currently exists," he added.

"It's being done all over the state," Karner said in his proposed outdoor service area. "There was no reason not to grant it. Personal feelings are not what it's all about," he added, explaining that "pressure groups" may have persuaded the city to argue against his request.

"I left the (appeal) hearing with the expectation the denial was going to be upheld," City Attorney John Donohue said. "To see this (decision) and the rationale behind it sort of surprised me," he added.

Donohue said the city has two options if it wants to appeal the LCC's decision. First, it could request a re-hearing before the commission. However, Donohue noted the LCC rules do not specify the right to request a re-hearing. Therefore, the commission could deny the city's request.

Secondly, the city could ask a judge in Oakland County Circuit Court to review the LCC's decision and determine whether it is reasonable.

Meanwhile, Karner said he will set up the outdoor sales area as soon as weather permits — if he receives city planning commission approval of the new site plans.

Tips for preventing home fires

WIXOM — Is your residence as safe as it could be should?

Probably not, according to the Wixom Firefighters Association, which will sponsor a special open house next Monday, March 12, to provide suggestions for protecting your residence against the dangers of fire.

The open house will be held at the Wixom Road Fire Station from 3 a.m. to 7 p.m. All Wixom residents are invited to attend the valuable seminar.

Members of the firefighters association will be on hand throughout the open house to show people what they can do to minimize the danger of fire in their homes.

Firefighters will demonstrate how to use fire extinguishers and make suggestions as to which types of extinguishers are most advantageous for use in homes.

Additionally, they will discuss the importance of smoke alarms and provide tips on where they should be located within the home for maximum protection.

The open house also will include a variety of information on other measures homeowners can adopt to promote the safety of their homes and individual residents.

For more information contact Fire Chief George Spencer at 624-9018.

Marathon scheduled

WALLED LAKE — Walled Lake Central students are asking the community to help them so that they can help others.

Central students will hold their eighth annual volleyball marathon on March 16 and 17, beginning at 4 p.m. and running for 24 hours.

The students have raised more than $118,000 for various charities during the past seven years. Proceeds from the 1984 volleyball marathon have been earmarked for the Michigan Lupus Foundation.

Marathoners currently are soliciting pledges from community members. Anyone wishing to support their efforts may call the school at 624-1523.

Lupus is a chronic, inflammatory, auto-immune disease, which means that the body's defense system attacks the tissues of its own organs.

The disease can range from mild to life-threatening and is often misdiagnosed. Lupus suffers from a lack of awareness and understanding, both publicly and professionally.

More information about the marathon or lupus can be obtained by calling 775-5310.

Meijer store near Novi slated to open by 1985

By B.J. MARTIN
news staff writer

NORTHVILLE — Construction of a Meijer Thrifty Acres shopping center is scheduled to begin this spring at the corner of Eight Mile and Haggerty Road in Northville Township. Opening is scheduled for the spring of 1985.

The Northville Township Planning Commission voted unanimously February 28 to grant final site plan approval for the 34.7-acre parcel on the southwest corner of the Eight Mile-Haggerty Road intersection.

"We have to secure the financing to develop first," said Meijer spokesman Dave Lukens last Friday. "But it's our intent to start construction this spring and open in spring of next year (1985)."

Developers project a trade area extending between six and nine miles in all directions except to the south — including Northville, Novi, Walled Lake, Wolverine Lake, Wixom, South Lyon, Farmington Hills, Farmington and Livonia.

To accommodate the extra traffic volume, Meijer developers will widen Haggerty to two northbound lanes and provide right turn lanes immediately to the north of each of its three Haggerty Road entrances.

While there had been talks about more extensive widening of Haggerty Road, Meijer officials were able to persuade county road officials the extra traffic volume would not justify imposing additional costs on the firm. Since long-range plans for Haggerty Road include extensive widening to the north and south regardless of Meijer's plans, Meijer representatives said they were reluctant to bear the cost of additional paving.

Meijer representatives had submitted final site plans in January, but township planners tabled approval until several issues could be studied by township and Wayne County officials.

The most thorny of those issues was the method of sewage disposal from the 185,000-square-foot building.

Developers had acquired the rights to the property in 1972 in anticipation of a major sewer route being built along Haggerty Road with public funds.

But successive sewer plans including "Super Sewer" were rejected, and Meijer developers decided to pump sewage into an existing gravity-flow system serving subdivisions located to the southwest and south in Northville Township.

But township planners, as well as residents attending the commission January 31 meeting were concerned about the potential hazards of the proposed high-pressure sewage line. A backup downstream, one resident noted, would result in major sewage flooding in subdivision homes.

The commission voted to submit the area would almost certainly occur after construction of the Haggerty sewer system. McNeely said Meijer's originally proposed route was "not an immediate concern."

Acting on the advice of Township Water and Sewer Commissioner Walt Holmity and McNeely, water and sewer commissioners recommended a compromise disposal plan.

Under the proposal, Meijer would pump into the existing township system until the planned major Haggerty sewer interceptor becomes available. Since use of the pump would likely be short-term, Meijer could use less expensive sewage disposal equipment than if the route were to be used permanently.

Meijer also has received approval from Wayne County Health Department officials to build a wet well and haul off the sewage by truck.

Tracks to be abandoned

By CHINDY HOGGSIAN
south lyon herald

WIXOM — Trains will stop running on the Grand Trunk Western Railroad tracks along a 3.8-mile segment between Wixom and South Lyon on March 14, following an Interstate Commerce Commission order approving abandonment of the line.

Grand Trunk Western (GTW) spokesman John David Williams said the federal regulatory agency authorized the abandonment February 13 subject to two conditions.

Included in the abandonment order were measures for the protection of railroad labor, Williams said. Protests had been filed during the abandonment process by the Railway Labor Executives' Association, the United Transportation Union and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Another stipulation of the abandonment approval is that the GTW right-of-way be inspected to determine whether the protected plant Cryptopedium candidum exists in the area. The plant, commonly called the small white lady-slipper, grows on the GTW line three miles west of South Lyon, according to Michigan's Natural Features Inventory plant ecologist Kim Alan Chapman.

Chapman notified the ICC of the existence of the legally protected plant species in a letter dated January 3. Chapman asked that the right-of-way be inspected for the species during the growing season, prior to removal of the tracks, in order to mitigate the damaging effects of track removal.

Stern told SEMCOG representatives February 2 that a subsidy of $109,780 would be necessary to maintain operations on the line. The cost to purchase the track was placed at $197,300, Stern said. He explained that both the subsidy and the purchase price were obtained by applying an ICC formula.

GTW slowly has been shedding unprofitable lines since mid-1983. On October 19, GTW tracks between Dabrowa Road and Lakefield were officially abandoned, making South Lyon the last stop on the Jackson subdivision line. The rails between Lakefield and Jackson were abandoned many years ago and the tracks have been removed.

Municipalities affected by the abandonment are Wixom, South Lyon, Lyon Township and Milford Township. Each community, along with rail customers located within them, filed letters of protest to the GTW abandonment.

They were joined in opposition by the Economic Development Corporation of Oakland County and the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG).

The abandonment of this portion of the GTW tracks comes as no surprise to affected parties. When the ICC ruled January 9 that an investigation of the abandonment request was necessary, GTW officials said the successful retirement of the line was a foregone conclusion.

GTW Vice President George Stern said the South Lyon to Wixom line lost $62,000 during the first six months of 1983. In a brief filed with the ICC by GTW attorney John Danis, the railroad reportedly lost $128,560 between 1980 and 1982.

Stern told SEMCOG representatives February 2 that a subsidy of $109,780 would be necessary to maintain operations on the line. The cost to purchase the track was placed at $197,300, Stern said. He explained that both the subsidy and the purchase price were obtained by applying an ICC formula.

As proposed, clients for the homes will be placed in the southwest Oakland township area. The proposals call for six of the 12 residents to be placed from state institutions. The remaining six would be placed from private homes.

Community Mental Health officials have indicated there would not be difficulty in finding clients who are from the southwest county area. There is a waiting list of clients seeking to be placed in foster care homes who currently reside with their families.

Various options are possible for obtaining a home, such as leasing an existing home or having a home built, which would then be leased by the non-profit corporation. Under state law foster care homes are considered single family residential zoning uses.

"Through this program we want to provide as much accountability as possible," Dohany commented. "Some proposals have been drafted and now we want to update people."

a certain type of material," Mamola said. He added that a well-designed building will look good with almost any kind of building facade, while a poorly designed building will look bad even with the best exterior materials.

However, as currently structured the ordinance does not control design.

Community Development Director John Hazebroth said the ordinance was prepared as a short-term solution to the problem of controlling architectural design.

"We thought we would institute these controls and by summer or fall we would come back with a refined ordinance," Hazebroth said. "This will give us as much protection as we can get. Later we can determine if we need professional assistance or a design review board."

Mamola said the ordinance as drafted does not require professional expertise to determine if a proposed building is in compliance.

township board adopts the ordinance after review and public hearings.

"It is best that I run for office. Then I can write zoning ordinances and make money for myself," said Kratage, who has been involved in disputes and litigation with the township for several years over proposed developments.

Although Long said he would not actively fight the recall, he did indicate he had changed his mind about running for re-election and will seek another term in November. Long has been unopposed for re-election since 1976.

The recall effort received backing from the Lakes Area Environmental Action Group, which was formed to oppose the Huron Valley Hospital and its wastewater treatment plant. The state Water Resources Commission recently approved the discharge permit for the facility.

Residents are continuing to fight the discharge permit issued for the hospital's proposed 100,000 gallon-per-day treatment facility. The complicated system includes ultra-violet light treatment, carbon and sand filtration and reverse osmosis.

Environmental Action Group spokesman Tim Carpenter said the group had not met in about a week. He said withdrawal of recall petitions coincided with the board's efforts to deal with residents' concerns.

"It is quite late in the game but at least they are making the effort," said Carpenter. "Our group did not get used by Mr. Kratage. I am sure he has his motives for his actions and we have ours."

The township board held a special meeting last week to consider a resolution asking gubernatorial and state legislative assistance to investigate the discharge permit. "We are waiting for some people to return from vacation so we can set a meeting," said Boyea. "We have plenty of time to file an appeal..."

New water rate plan requested

proposed the $450 System Benefit Fee for new customers.

Only a few residents attended the February 21 public hearing to comment on the proposed increases.

"I suggest you devise a way of making the debt on both water and sewer a part of the tax bill so that they become deductible on the federal tax form and the Michigan property tax credit," resident Sally Tucker said. "It's the only way you can get money back from the government," she added.

If the city were to take debt retirement fees off the quarterly water bill and add the annual payment to the tax bill, it would result in a tax increase of about 4.5 mills, Moseiff said. "I could accept one mill (on the tax bill) for water, but not 4.5," said Council Member William Roberts.

When council members began their review of the water department in budget sessions last June, they decided to eliminate the one mill (approximately $52,000) it traditionally allocated to the water department. By doing so, they avoided a tax increase this year.

During budget discussions, Moseiff noted that not all city residents are on the city water system. In fact, only about 1,300 out of an estimated 4,000 residents use city water. Yet the council was allocating one mill of everyone's tax dollars for the water system.

Therefore, non-users were subsidizing users of the system.

By scratching the one mill from the water department, however, the council created the $52,000 deficit it must now make up before the end of the year.

At the February 21 hearing, some council members expressed regret the one mill was removed from the 1983-84 budget.

"I feel, personally, I may have acted a little too hastily during our last budget session," Council Member Linda Ackley said. "Possibly in our desire to keep the millage down, we cut (the one mill) when we shouldn't have." Ackley suggested the council give "serious thought" to adding some general fund dollars back to the water system in the next budget session.

Roberts recommended that Moseiff devise a plan to cover this year's deficit only. "Further discussion of rate increases can be left for (1984-85) budget sessions when we can fully review and evaluate the water system," he suggested.

In related action, the council last month approved its first reading of an ordinance to make the water debt retirement charge applicable to all water customers.

The present city utility ordinance excludes Carole Acres subdivision and certain lots in Tri-A subdivision from paying the debt retirement fee.

Board eyes plan for access roads

NOVI — "Marginal access roads" might not mean much to the average citizen, but they're important to plans for development of the city.

And now it appears that city planners have discovered a tool for making "marginal access roads" become a reality.

City Attorney David Fried told the board February 15 that state statute permits planning commissions to create roads and "they can be marginal access roads."

In essence, a marginal access road is a road which runs parallel to a major thoroughfare. Purpose of a marginal access road is to reduce the number of curb cuts along a major road by providing access to a number of businesses via a secondary road with a single access point.

The roads are considered important to successful traffic movement because they reduce the number of places where turning actions can occur.

Planning Consultant Charles Cairns noted that the advantages of marginal access roads are demonstrated along Orchard Hill Road in the Twelve Oaks Mile and Northwestern Highway in Farmington Hills. On the east side of Orchard Hill Road there is no marginal access road; on the west side there is.

"whenever you put on the uniform there's an element of danger."

Asked why he thought he was named "Officer of the Year," Meier responded that it was because he's a very conscientious officer.

"When I'm out on the street, I'm always looking for things," he said. "I don't just wait for the next run from dispatch; I try to be alert...to call on my experience to spot things which will result in a good arrest."

"After awhile you get a feel for things which aren't right," Meier said. "It's a person's demeanor, the way he talks to you or the way he acts when he sees you coming."

Meier's assessment of his performance is verified by Lieutenant Robert Starnes, commander of the patrol division. "He's just an excellent cop," said Starnes. "He's very dedicated. He's one of the first ones on the road at the start of the shift and one of the last ones back at the end of the shift."

Meier said that "meeting people" is definitely the thing he likes most about being a police officer. "It's a good feeling to know that people depend on you," he said. "They expect you to be able to perform. And if you can't perform, you have no right being a police officer."

He also notes that a single police officer is merely a small part of a large team which must work together as a team. "It requires teamwork," he said. "From the dispatcher who takes the call, to the officer who responds to the scene, to the detective who obtains the warrant. Everyone has to do the job for a police department to function effectively."

Transportation center slated for Novi

NOVI — A sub-regional transportation center in Novi is being planned for the future by the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEM-TA). But local officials are scratching their heads over the proposal.

Oakland County Commissioner John Calandro recently told the city council he is not exactly certain what a "sub-regional transportation center" is.

Transit centers reportedly are drop-off points for passengers who take small buses to and from large buses that travel major arteries. But beyond that local officials know little about the centers.

Calandro said the transportation center is part of a package being proposed by SEM-TA in its 1990 transit plan. Under the plan, residents of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties will be asked to provide financial support for a regional transportation system.

"SEM-TA has had difficulties gaining concurrence from Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, so its making a lot of concessions," Calandro said. "They're working very hard to get this approved. I believe SEM-TA is coming out loaded for bear."

Before a transportation program is developed, Calandro said a transportation fund made up of tax dollars must be established. A referendum will have to be placed on the ballot to give citizens a chance to vote on the issue.

If Oakland County rejects the program, there would be no further SEM-TA services in this area, Calandro explained.

Calandro noted he was bringing the matter to the council's attention so it can have input at an early stage in the planning process.

"This is likely to become a very thorny issue," Calandro said. "I'm bringing this to your attention now because I don't know the timing on this yet. We need to begin thinking about our needs."

"We have to take an open-minded approach and see that we have input in the process. But we also have to see that our interests are being served," he added.

"I'd like to be able to support a regional transportation plan, one that serves out-county areas, but I have yet to see one," Calandro commented. "Calandro is a self-proclaimed SEM-TA critic. He maintains that the transportation authority has not served the needs of out-county areas such as Novi."

As We See It

City must review planning process

A thorough review of Novi's planning process needs to occur before there are any further embarrassments like the public hearing for the Orchard Hill Place rezoning request.

A majority of the planning board voted to recommend rezoning 71 acres of property at Haggerty Road and Eight Mile, although its planning consultant deemed it a move that would "destroy the integrity" of the master plan.

Planners cited valid reasons for recommending the rezoning, but the recommendation now is of sequence due to a break-down in the process.

The board learned one week later that they should have conducted a hearing to amend the master plan, amended the master plan and then voted to recommend the rezoning.

Board members were obviously frustrated by the fact they did not have the information they needed to intelligently deal with the matter. A number of them asked that the matter be studied further before action was taken.

Planners were further hampered by the knowledge that areas proposed for offices in the master plan are perhaps the weakest portion of the plan. Their consultant told them that he has been concerned whether the proposals for office development are logical and feasible since this master plan was adopted three years ago.

The situation becomes embarrassing when it is considered that it did not arise unexpectedly. Since a similar rezoning was rejected more than a year ago, it was understood the request would be represented in a modified form.

To be fair, planners have been absorbed with other important issues in recent months. The zoning ordinance re-write and the Town Center study have taken up much time.

But over the course of the year — between the first zoning request and the revised request from Orchard Hill Place, there should have been time to educate the planners on the method for recommending a rezoning that is not in accord with the master plan and preparing documentation for such a move.

That such documentation never materialized is indicative of problems in Novi's planning process.

It is time for the council and planning board to take a hard look at the state of the city's planning process. Both groups need to discuss planning priorities and directions.

The city needs to address a situation that has council committees and the planning board duplicating each other's efforts and at times working at cross purposes. For example, a planning board priority is to address architectural controls. Meanwhile, the council adds architectural controls to the zoning ordinance. In practice, there seems to be confusion over which body is responsible for what.

The situation probably is attributable to the fact that both the council and planning board are looking for ways to address development problems before they get beyond the city's control. Planning has become a combination of trying to encourage development, while trying to control it.

Preparing master plans for complete areas of the city, such as the Town Center, the Lake Area, Twelve Mile and the Haggerty corridor have increased the planners' burden. Regulating design and appearance of buildings has also been added to the process. At the same time the planners are expected to deal with routine matters of rezoning requests and site plan approvals.

The planning process has become a giant juggling routine, and as a result the jugglers are dropping a few things here and there. One step in addressing this is a review of the planning process, including a look at the amount being spent on planning, both for consultants and in-house personnel, to determine if the budget is realistic for the level of planning taking place.

A better definition of the roles of the consultant and in-house staff also is needed. At times it appears the relationship between the council and the consulting planner is uneasy. Council members should better define their expectations of the planner and then determine if those expectations are being addressed. Regarding in-house staff, the council should be aware that the responsibilities of the community development director seem to increase weekly.

As the work load continues to increase it will become more important for the city to have a well-defined plan for dealing with both the larger, citywide plans and individual planning matters. With the economy improving and the signs that development is rebounding, it is time to get the city's planning process in order.

Bad samaritan ruins rescue

Kathy Jennings

Only in Michigan could you get your car stuck in the mud one day, and the next day be worried about putting it in a snow bank.

While I never got stuck in a drift, my car did get stuck in the mud, back when the weather was warm enough for mud.

It's all because I was driving in Southfield. I should know better. When I got east of Telegraph Road my palms begin to sweat and my nominal sense of direction gives out entirely. But sometimes there's no avoiding it.

Having completed my business in Southfield I headed home. On my way back to I-96 I pulled onto Ten Mile and promptly got in the wrong lane. I was hemmed in by traffic on my left and changing lanes became impossible. So I drove across Evergreen and turned around, only to miss my lane a second time.

I pulled off Ten Mile, believing myself to be turning into a condominium complex. Somehow I missed the "Private Road" sign. As I tried to perform a U-turn in this rutted, mud quagmire the car became firmly imbedded across the middle of the road.

I tried rocking it, spinning it, gunning it. All it did was sink, up to its axles. So I climbed out and headed for a nearby gas station. Unfortunately, it was the self-serve type. No help here. The attendant suggested I call home for help. My plans are very resourceful, having learned to live under grueling conditions, but I doubt they would be much help in this kind of emergency. There seemed no point in calling home.

Instead, I called my investment counselor. This man makes approximately 30 cents a month from my investment, but he knows someday the novel will top the bestseller list, the royalties will start coming in and I'll be an important client. He graciously agreed to see what he could do to get me out.

Wixom to Southfield is a bit of drive. Ed arrived 40 minutes later.

The temperature was dropping rapidly as we tried to push and pull the Pinto out. It wasn't moving and Ed said he had never seen a car stuck quite so deep. I groaned. Before we were done there was mud all over the outside and inside of the car.

Fortunately, Ed had a resourceful friend in the neighborhood. He called Steve who agreed to bring wood and ropes to dislodge the car, although he "really didn't want to do anything."

We waited as the temperature continued to drop. Enter the wicked witch of Southfield. This irate resident came to help us push the car out, but she wanted us to know

'As I tried to perform a U-turn in this rutted, mud quagmire the car became firmly imbedded across the middle of the road.'

what an imposition it was. (By now the car had been blocking her private road for an hour and she was perhaps justifiably perturbed.)

This woman was convinced all it took was a little perseverance and we could move the thing. I told her the car wasn't going to move and she responded coldly: "Pray and the Lord will help you."

We pushed and pulled some more. Ed and I were willing to simply wait for help to arrive, but the woman was disgusted with our defeatist attitude. She knew if we simply pushed, the car would come out.

When Ed and I gave up she sat down on the grass next to the road.

Steve arrived. The three of them tried to lift the car, while I watched apprehensively. It didn't budge. Steve got out the ropes, tied it to the bumpers of our respective cars and gave me instructions. Back-up slowly, very slowly. The Pinto popped out of the quagmire. I drove it across the road without further mishap.

A tow-truck the irate woman must have summoned appeared as we completed the operation.

The woman departed, complaining bitterly. A person would have thought I blocked the road for nearly two hours to purposely inconvenience her.

Frankly, I was more shaken by the encounter with the unfriendly Samaritan than anything else in the mud-covered adventure. When people offer their assistance it is usually because they want to help, not because they want to get rid of you. When you believe in the basic goodness of most people, you're in for a few disappointments along the way.

But it's not realistic to believe most people are basically rotten, either. Each individual is a combination of both good and evil. How they behave in certain situations probably depends as much upon circumstance as anything else.

Expect neither the best nor the worst of people and you won't be disappointed when they grumble as they help you out of the mud.

Mr. B. goes outside without any problems. But once he gets there, he heads immediately for his favorite tree — a 40-foot evergreen along our property line.

When Bonnie's not inside, he can be found perched quietly in the uppermost limbs of the evergreen ... probably discussing the idiosyncracies of homo sapiens with his little feathered friends.

Golden Boys turning soft?

Phillip Jerome

I know what you're thinking. "Geez, but it's been a long time since Ol' Phil wrote about Bonnie and Clyde. I wonder how those characters are doing."

Good news, folks. In response to numerous requests, I've decided to give you an update on the latest adventures of the Golden Boys.

Actually, the news is not good. The problem is that B and C seem to be developing neuroses as they race through puberty into adulthood.

When last mentioned, the Golden Boys had been rescued after going AWOL for more than a month in those sub-zero temperatures during January, and our yellow-and-white orphans had been reunited.

A lot has happened since then. Most importantly, the Golden Boys have been neutered in accord with the best advice of the Humane Society.

The neutering had the desired psychological effect, making B and C less prone to stray away from home. However, the operation has had some psychological side effects, and that's what's got me worried.

For example, Clyde, the fearsome hunter, has grown particularly attached to a chair in the study. Mr. C appears to live in mortal fear of being forced to go outside. Everytime we approach the front door with that "It's time to go outside" look in our eyes, Clyde runs and hides under his favorite chair.

The problem with Bonnie is somewhat different, but no less unsettling. You remember Bonnie? The incredible hulk? The barbarian of the cat world? Well, Bonnie seems to think he's a bird.

Police renovation slows to standstill

WALLED LAKE — The third phase of city hall renovations — the police department — began with a flurry in January, but after a week of flying sledge hammers and dust, the renovating stopped.

Command officers moved into their new quarters — formerly the city administration office, but dispatchers and police officers still are working in the torn-up shell of the old department.

Particularly disturbing, they note, is the delay in finishing restroom facilities for dispatchers and officers. Both facilities last week consisted only of one toilet in the corner of the room, with no sink.

City Manager J. Michael Dorman said recently the delay is caused by the need to special order materials for the three new holding cells, which must be built according to state Department of Corrections regulations.

When all special equipment is received, the project will be completed with as much vigor as was displayed when the interior of the department was gutted in January, Dorman explained. It would not be cost effective to have one man completing small tasks a little at a time, he added. "It would be a disaster for the contractor to have one guy in there daily," he said. "When they come back to the site, I expect them to get in and get out."

Dorman said last week it would not be a problem to have the restroom facilities completed. Although he was aware police department personnel were discontent with the situation, he said he had not been formally notified of the problem.

"We would provide (the sinks) immediately if we were informed," he said.

Architect Larry Galyon said this week he really didn't know why the restroom facilities had not been completed. He said Dorman was to have met with the contractor on Friday, March 2, to discuss the problem. Work to complete the restroom facilities possibly will be scheduled for this week.

Villa gains crosswalk

WALLED LAKE — Residents of the Wallied Lake Villa soon will have an easier and safer pathway to the stores in Novi Square on Pontiac Trail.

According to Robert Hartman, property supervisor for the Villa, construction of a sidewalk running from the rear service driveway to Pontiac Trail is to begin no later than April.

When the sidewalk to Pontiac Trail is complete, the Oakland County Road Commission has agreed to install a crosswalk across Pontiac Trail for the seniors and other residents of the Villa.

Former Council Member Edward Horman, whose efforts prompted action on the sidewalk plan, said it is hoped the developer of Novi Square will extend the sidewalk across the front of the shopping center property, as well.

Horman also announced plans to obtain a bench for inside the mall area of Maple Plaza for seniors waiting for SEMTA buses.

Group preserves natural assets

encouraged to contact the city. But for those who, for whatever reason, do not wish to deal with the city, the conservancy stands ready to accept their property.

"We don't expect people to donate land to us for parks; that's the proper function of the city," Board Member Brian MacCormack explained. "What we're encouraging is taking a naturally wooded area and leaving it that way."

The group is a private business, not a governmental entity. However, a number of board members serve on city boards and the group says it will not operate as if it were in a vacuum. Instead it will do what it can to further city aims, without getting involved in the political arena.

Board President Nancy Covert said the group arose out of an awareness that if land were to be preserved in Novi it had to be done now, while the city is still largely undeveloped. A number of residents who had served on various city committees, such as the citizen's drainage committee and the Woodlands Committee, became aware that mechanisms were available for preserving property. Together they formed the core of the Novi Land Conservancy.

The Novi Land Conservancy has grown from a group of interested citizens in December to a full-fledged corporation in March. The group is proud that it has drawn successfully members from across the political spectrum, all of whom see the value in preserving Novi's open spaces.

The group also is made up of those versed in business, as well as concerned citizens.

"There's a strong element in Novi that's interested in conservation, environmental concerns and quality development," Covert said. She said the conservancy is a practical aplication for those people who want to see the city develop properly and their philosophies for its development are in place. We'll be explaining the tax advantages to the public and do anything we can to get donations. There are many people who've had property in the family for generations. They may have a special feeling for a certain stand of trees and would like to know it will stay there. But they also would like to realize a profit by developing another part of the property. We feel they can have both."

Property owners also will be encouraged to consider preparing their property for donation at a later date by planting trees and shrubs that will attract birds. The land then could be donated as a bird sanctuary, Brett noted. This and other programs will be detailed for property owners by the conservancy.

Brett said the group's major goal is encouraging the preservation of land. "Our mission is 'selling' this program. We'll be using publicity to make people aware these incentives are in place. We'll be explaining the tax advantages to the public and do anything we can to get donations. There are many people who've had property in the family for generations. They may have a special feeling for a certain stand of trees and would like to know it will stay there. But they also would like to realize a profit by developing another part of the property. ## Cable company purchases school site

WALLED LAKE — The school board has agreed to sell four acres of district property to Greater Media Cablevision for a one-story office building and 120-foot-high television tower.

Greater Media General Manager MacCormack said the cable firm will pay $6,000 per acre for the property at Wise and Commerce roads.

MacCormack noted the purchase agreement stipulates that the sale is contingent on site plan approval from the Commerce Township Planning Commission and Township Board. The firm plans to build a 7,000-square-foot office facility and a television tower on the southeast corner of the property.

MacCormack said plans for both the office and tower are expected to come before the township planning board in March. The tower is allowed on the property if Greater Media can get a special exception to the township's zoning ordinance. The planning board will hold a public hearing before approval is granted, MacCormack added.

Greater Media has temporary offices on Martin Road. MacCormack has said the central facility for the cable firm could not be located at that site due to technical problems.

The signal from the central studio facility becomes weaker as it gets farther away. Amplifiers are placed on the cable to boost the system. The extra 4.5 miles to the Martin Road location affects the ability to boost the signal to the western part of Greater Media's franchise area.

The four acres the board agreed to sell is part of a 34-acre parcel.

"One of the things we discussed was the possible impact on the rest of the property (by placing a television tower on the corner lot)," Superintendent Don Sheldon told the board. "The reactor said he doubted it would have any impact on the value of the rest of the land."

Greater Media will provide cable service to the cities of Wallied Lake and Wixom; Commerce, Highland, Lyon, Milford and White Lake townships; and Milford and Wolverine Lake villages.

The company hopes to have cable service operational and available to its first customers by early summer, MacCormack said recently.

Wildcat spikers post valiant bid

By B.J. MARTIN, news sports writer

The girls on Novi's varsity volleyball team might not like to think of it that way, but their performance in Saturday's Class B Volleyball District playoffs was absolutely stunning.

No, they didn't win the district championship. But playing the best they had all year, the Wildcats reeled off three straight tournament victories until losing 15-12, 15-7 to a fine Redford Thurston team for the district championship.

"The Wildcats even sprinted to a 9-5 first game lead over Thurston before the pressure of their third match of the day caught up with them. Thurston chipped away at Novi's lead, cutting it to 11-8. But after that, Sheri Lawton capped the game with a dunk and the Wildcats were in the final.

"To reach the semi-final, Novi pulled off a 15-10, 15-2 win at Detroit Renaissance on Thursday. By the time the final eight teams congregated at Novi High School Saturday, the Wildcats were breaking."

"I'd never seen them so determined," Gervasi declared. "They just wanted it so badly they didn't let anything stop them." Royal Oak Shirie sure didn't on Saturday morning. Novi whipped the Shiries 15-5, 15-10 behind superior play by Park Avenue's best setter — her setting was unnervingly precise and occasionally spectacular.

Gervasi then fine-tuned a recurrent problem for Novi — Ladywood's crosscourt dinks — and the Wildcats fought back with improved consistency.

Leesa Couch served five straight winners to tie the game and after that Novi was in control all the way. Mindy Park got the serve with Novi up 11-10 and reeled off four straight winners. Sheri Lawton capped the game with a dunk and the Wildcats were in the final.

"Thurston's a team that won't give up," Novi Coach Gina Gervasi agreed. "They had a couple really good players and we started to make mistakes and played kind of flat-footed until losing 15-12, 15-7 to a fine Redford Thurston team for the district championship."

"We played the same girls all day, and I'm sure they were pretty drained, especially after the semifinal."

Thurston won the second game 15-7 to drop Novi's final record to 1-2 in the 1983-84 season to 9-12.

The semifinal contest against Livonia Ladywood may have been Novi's best performance all season. Ladywood scored the first four points of the first game and went on to win 15-8. Novi threatened to boot the second game too, falling behind 5-1.

Warrior matmen fare well

Bob Rich and Matt Turner acquitted themselves nicely in the MISAA Class A Wrestling Championships at Lansing Eastern over the weekend.

Rich, the Warrior's outstanding 132-pounder, grappled to a sixth place finish, while Turner came within a whisker of placing in the 155-pound division.

"It was definitely the highlight of their careers," said Dick Watson, coach of the Warrior mat squad. "And they went out in style. They were a little disappointed, but overall they both had really good seasons at Western."

Rich opened the tournament with a 5-3 decision over Rockford's Bill McGraw, but then lost a heart-breaking overtime decision to Zac Tease of Bay City Western. The Warrior star was leading 12-7 with 15 seconds to go in regulation when Tease knotted the score and then went on to win 9-5 in overtime.

Rich rebounded to defeat Hazel Park's Terry Saylor 3-2 and Roseville's Ron Bordeaux 9-6. He then dropped a 7-5 decision to Mike Brady of Flint Kearsley which placed him in the finals for fifth/sixth place. Traverse City's Chris Kocks gained a 6-2 decision for fifth place, giving Rich a sixth-place showing in the state tournament.

In addition to his sixth place finish at state, Rich also established a new school record for most wins in one season. He finished the year with a 45-5 mark, breaking the old record of 43 wins in one season set last year by Aldo Buttazzoni.

Rich finished his prep career with a 68-22 record.

Turner got off to a slow start in the 155-pound division, dropping a 13-5 decision to Brad Morris of Warren Hot in the opening round. The Warrior standout battled back with a 7-4 decision over Randy Ambrose of East Kentwood and then pinned Lane Ideas of Grandville in 5:35. But his hopes for a top-six finish were ended when he dropped a 7-3 decision to Holt's Chris Leyner.

Turner finished this season with a 33-7 mark.

Warrior cagers come up short in WLAA title bid

By KEN VOYLES
news sports writer

It was a week the resurgent Walled Lake Western basketball team would just as soon forget.

Riding high after knocking off Walled Lake Central in the opening round of the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) playoffs, the Warriors saw their title hopes snapped as they fell to Livonia Churchill (64-61) on Wednesday and Livonia Stevenson (70-57) on Friday.

The setbacks gave Western a fourth-place finish in the WLAA tourney. Currently 10-10 overall, Western begins district competition tonight (Wednesday) at Lakeland against South Lyon. Game time is 7:30 p.m. The winner plans the winner of the Central-Milford game on Saturday (March 10).

"We just didn't get the shots when we needed them," said Coach Walt Boehm of the 70-67 loss to Stevenson.

"We played good defense, but missed a few of those easy baskets that always hurt you at the end," Boehm added. "Physically we're ready for the districts. I don't know if we're mentally ready. Our players have to get themselves ready now. It's got to come from the heart."

With Rob Wendland out with an ankle injury (possibly for the rest of the season), Western turned to Mike Cullen, Kevin Boyle and Dan Gabriele for offensive spark against Stevenson. Cullen, who notched 18 points in the loss to Churchill, again led Western with 20 points. Boyle, starting in his first game for Walled Lake, added 17 points, while Gabriele collected 10. Kyle Chura contributed seven points and Mike Bulgarelli had six.

"Cullen, Boyle and Bulgarelli all had good games," said Boehm. "We worked hard against Stevenson, but we needed to play consistent basketball, something we haven't done during the last part of the regular season." Stevenson, which defeated Western 79-52 back in December, took a 17-12 lead in the first quarter and then scored the first seven points in the second stanza to up their lead to 24-12. The Warriors fought back at the end of the half, hitting the last three baskets before intermission to make it 29-28.

Western suffered another scoring lapse at the start of the second half, failing to score until until the 3:33 mark when Cullen muscled his way inside. The Warriors fought back to within four points, 40-36, but the Spartans pushed their margin to seven, 47-40 with 1:28 to go. Boyle and Chura hit the final baskets of the period as Western closed to 49-44 with eight minutes to play.

Western struggled to stay close in the early going of the fourth quarter, but Stevenson held firm until the 2:28 when Bulgarelli brought the Warriors to within three, 60-57.

With 46 seconds remaining, Western still trailed by three, 66-63, but four straight free throws by the Spartans put them in front 70-63. Cullen hit a basket at 18 seconds and Boyle scored at the three-point arc.

Boehm said Western failed to "keep the momentum together" in the 64-61 loss to Churchill on Tuesday.

The Warriors led 22-15 at the quarter and 32-22 at the half before things fell apart in the third quarter.

"Churchill put eight points on the board in the first 30 seconds of the third quarter," said Boehm. "That stopped our momentum completely."

The Chargers went on to outscore Western 22-9 in the third quarter to take a 44-41 lead into the final period. Both teams scored 20 points during the final quarter as Churchill held on for the third-point victory.

Chura contributed 13 points to lead Western in scoring. Gabriele added 12 and Boyle collected nine points.

Viking five wins final two games

There's something about the Walled Lake Central cagers which seems to make them save their best for last — the fourth quarter.

In winning their final two regular season games, the Vikings used two strong fourth quarter performances to do the trick.

By beating Northville 71-41 and Farmington 59-50, Central goes into the MHSAA district tournament with a 13-7 record.

"We were spinning our wheels in the first half," said Viking Coach Steve Emert of the win over Farmington. "You have games like that. We maybe were just trying too hard." The Farmington game marked the final home appearance for Central's seniors.

The Vikings were also sporting new uniforms. "I was going to hold off until next year," explained Emert of the new look. "These kids have worked so hard. I figured what the heck, let's use them."

The score stayed close through the first three quarters against Farmington. Central trailed 43-41 going into the fourth quarter. The Vikings then scored the first eight points of the final quarter and never led by less than five the rest of the way.

Tom Cummings, apparently fully recovered from a knee injury, and Scott Norris each scored 14 points, while Chris Owens added 12. Central shot well from the field, hitting 21 of 41 shots. Farmington shot even better, hitting 94 percent of its attempts.

Against Northville, Clark Bock and Cummings led the Viking attack. Bock scored 20 points and grabbed 15 rebounds, while Cummings' totals of 17 points and 14 rebounds were equally impressive. Norris and Tom Menard helped out with 16 and 13 points respectively.

Central outscored Northville 29-23 in the final quarter to preserve the win. The Vikings connected on 29 of 41 free throws in the game, including 18 of 23 in the fourth quarter.

The Vikings were scheduled to attempt to add to their two-game win streak Tuesday night against Milford Lakeland in the opening round of the district tournament. The winner of that game plays Milford Thursday night at 7 p.m. Tuesday night against Milford Lakeland. The district finals are Saturday night.

Howell tops Wildcats to wrap up KVC crown

Howell clinched sole possession of the Kensington Valley Conference basketball title Friday by coasting past Novi 68-54 in the final regular-season game for both teams.

The Highlanders' one-two punch of Kurt Ford and Mark Redinger combined for 48 points. That more than offset the scoring of Wildcat center Dave Fisher, who hit 10 of 17 from the floor for 20 points, and point guard Steve Cody, who scored 15.

"We didn't play really poorly," said Novi Coach Ron Flutur, who has seen his team do that, too. The Wildcats committed a lot of turnovers — 23, but hit a respectable 24 of 54 from the floor and seven of 11 from the line.

But Howell, 13-1 in the KVC, was red-hot.

"This Redinger kid was shooting 20-footers from downtown — nothing but net," Flutur said. "And when we'd come out on him, they'd feed Ford inside. We knew we had to stop them and we just couldn't play after press time."

Novi pulled to within seven points with 7:06 remaining, but that was as close as they got.

Ken McKay, Steve James and Tully Gillick each scored six points. Gillick led Novi rebounders with 10 and Fisher added nine.

If Novi gets past Thurston, they'll play Detroit Renaissance on Thursday at 6:30 p.m. Oak Park, the top-rated Class B team, is the state, is heavily favored to win the district championship. The district finals will be played at Oak Park on Friday at 7:30 p.m.

with a 23-13 third-quarter scoring edge to gain control of the game.

"They were the best-conditioned team we've seen all year," said Flutur. "They just kept pushing the ball up the court constantly, same tempo all the way. It took a toll on our legs."

Novi got some offensive clout with Fisher's 15 points and nine rebounds, while Cody tallied 12 points and added six assists, five rebounds and three steals. McKay scored eight points.

But despite a size advantage, Novi took a beating on the boards, due in part to the absence of forward Steve James, who was sidelined with an ankle sprain. James saw limited action against Howell on Friday and will likely spend extra time on the bench this week as well with Novi track coach Bob Smith looking over Flutur's shoulder (James is Novi's best long jumper).

The Wildcats (7-13 overall, 5-9 KVC) compete in the Oak Park Class B district playoffs this week. Their opening game was played after press time last night against Redford Thurston (14-4).

"They're a real good team, but they're beatable. We'll need to play our best, be consistent and play good defense," said Flutur.

Novi's last game was Thursday night, a 70-67 loss to Farmington. The Vikings were scheduled to attempt to add to their two-game win streak Tuesday night against Milford Lakeland in the opening round of the district tournament. The winner of that game plays Milford Thursday night at 7 p.m. Tuesday night against Milford Lakeland. The district finals are Saturday night.

Novi hosts hotshot contest

The Novi Kiwanis and Novi Parks and Recreation Department will present the Pepsi Challenge/NBA Hotshot basketball shooting contest at the Novi High School gym this Saturday at noon.

Registration fee is 50 cents and trophies will be awarded to the top male and female finishers in each age group. All competitors will receive certificates of participation.

Here are the contest rules:

- Each competitor will be given one minute to dribble from half-court into shooting range. Shots may be taken in any sequence and points are awarded according to distance (lay-ups are counted lowest and limited to two). Bonus points are awarded for shooting from all six designated "Hotspots."
- Points are deducted for each infraction — walking, palming, double-dribbling, etc.

For more information on the contest, call the Novi Parks and Recreation Department at 349-1976.

Ford, Maresh place in state mat finals

Tim Ford, Steve McBride and Ed Maresh combined to give Novi its best showing at the Class B State Wrestling Championships since the mid-seventies last Saturday.

The three outstanding Wildcat grapplers combined efforts to enable Novi to finish 14th out of the 96 teams represented at the 1984 state meet at Ferris State College. Mt. Pleasant won the Class B state championship with 106 points. Eaton Rapids was second with 99 points.

Ford (48-1) finished fourth at 132-pounds, the best individual showing by a Wildcat grappler since Kevin Mills won the 126-pound title in 1978.

Maresh, only a junior, finished sixth in the 198-pound weight class.

Ford had to work hard for his fourth-place finish as everyone of his opponents in the state meet finished in the top six. Mt. Pleasant's Pat Boyd, undefeated in 47 matches this season, dethroned the Novi star in a rout to the 132-pound championship. Ford had to settle for fourth place after he was pinned by Fenton's Dave Wohlfert in the consolation finals. It was the fourth time this season that Wohlfert had defeated Ford.

Maresh (43-10) was Novi's busiest wrestler. He defeated Chippewa Hills' Ron Young 10-6 in the first round, but then was pinned in the quarterfinals by Brooklyn Columbia Central's Keith Cinci, who went on to finish second in the state. Maresh won a 7-1 decision to Pincenning's Dave Gill and won by default over John Giffel of Essexville Carver, but then was pinned by fourth-ranked Marty Hosson of Jackson Northwest in 2-15. Flint Cornum's John Ade then pinned a weary Maresh for the fifth place medal. In the regional, Ade had trapped Maresh with a 32-second pin — this time the big Novi junior lasted 2:18 before being pinned.

McBride, Novi's third state-qualifier, defeated Grand Rapids West Catholic's Paul Kenney 4-2 in overtime in the first round, but then took the short end of a 1-4 decision to Mike Linton of Battle Creek Central, who took second in the state at 167 pounds. Fenton's Russell Willett eliminated McBride's hopes for a medal by handing McBride a 7-1 loss.

Central spikers falter in bid for district title

The Walled Lake Central volleyball team was restricted by the injury of its ace, but came up just short at the MHSAA district tournament Saturday.

The Vikings reached the finals by downing West Bloomfield (15-6, 15-7) and Walled Lake Western (15-15, 15-4, 15-11) in their first two matches.

But that was the end of the magic as Howell banged out a 15-1, 15-7 victory over the Vikings to end district play and bring an end to Central's hopes in the post-season tournament.

"I don't know what would have happened if everyone had stayed healthy," stated Coach Mike Lindstrom, referring to the fact that his team had to face Howell without starter Patti Fitzgerald and with another starter, June Towns, suffering from a shoulder injury. "We stayed in there and fought for the first points of the match, then we sort of ran out."

Fitzgerald hurt her ankle in the third game against Western and was unable to continue. Up to that point, her serving and play at the net were just what the Vikings needed. Towns' hurt her right shoulder warming up before action began Saturday morning. She went on to play in all three matches, but was restricted by the injury. In whipping West Bloomfield for the second time this season, Central trailed early in both games but came back behind some strong hitting. Down 7-2 in the second game, Central's Shuana Anderson served eight straight points as the Vikings scored 13 in a row to advance.

Walled Lake Western defeated Holly 15-1, 15-4, to reach the semifinals against Central. The two Walled Lake schools battled back and forth in the first game as Central took a 15-11 lead before Western reeled off four straight points to claim the victory.

The Vikings whipped Western handily in the second game, building up a 15-2 lead at one point. The third game was another close one. Central led 10-5 before Western closed the gap to 10-9. With the score tied at 11-11, Central scored the next four points to reach the finals against Howell.

The season is not necessarily over for the Vikings. The team's final match of the regular season against Plymouth: Salem was snafwed out, and a make-up date has not been scheduled yet.

Swedish student studying at Novi

By SANDY ZGODA
news special writer

Mia Stephanson has light-green eyes, blonde hair and an infectious laugh. She recently turned 18, but she is far from a typical teenager.

Mia, who was born in Vasteras, Sweden, is attending Novi High School this year as part of a Rotary international student exchange program.

And she's fit in well, too, participating in a variety of school activities, including the Walled Lake volleyball team.

Her stay in the United States, however, is one of many in foreign countries. After being born in Sweden, she moved with her parents to Malaysia at the ripe old age of six.

After two years there, Mia returned to Sweden and went on to visit England, Australia, Russia — nearly every country in Europe. She has finally made her way to the United States, but only after a tour of South America.

Mia has spent the last three years in Brazil, where she completed grades nine, 10 and 11 in an American school.

David and Peggy Junker of Heatherwood have been Mia's state-side "parents" since she arrived in August, and they have shared ideas, customs and knowledge with her.

"We keep her around for the chocolate chip cookies she makes," teases her state-side father, a member of the Novi Rotary Club. But it's easy to see that the Junker family and Mia have developed a great deal of respect and affection for each other.

The Junkers are firm believers in the benefits of the Rotary Exchange Program. So much so, in fact, that their eldest daughter Cheryl postponed her senior year at Novi High School to study in Torino, Finland, this year.

"The program allows young people to become familiar with cultures other than their own," explains Mrs. Junker.

Since Finland borders Sweden at the northernmost tip, Cheryl plans to take a 10-hour train trip to visit Mia's parents in Vasteras.

Mia's father is employed by a large Swedish power company, which has sent him to spots all over the world. The Swedes are among the leading producers of hydroelectric power in Europe.

Mia has an older sister, a 27-year-old zoologist living in Australia, and a 22-year-old brother who serves in the Swedish military.

Other than their own," explains Mrs. Junker.

Since Finland borders Sweden at the northernmost tip, Cheryl plans to take a 10-hour train trip to visit Mia's parents in Vasteras.

Mia's father is employed by a large Swedish power company, which has sent him to spots all over the world. The Swedes are among the leading producers of hydroelectric power in Europe.

Mia has an older sister, a 27-year-old zoologist living in Australia, and a 22-year-old brother who serves in the Swedish military.

Nine months of military service are compulsory for all able-bodied Swedish males after they reach 18 years of age. Her brother's obligation was postponed because he was in another country at the time he reached his 18th birthday.

Unlike the United States, however, mandatory military service does not seem the cause of much controversy or protest among the Swedes for a couple of reasons.

First, nine months is a considerably shorter length of duty than is required by many countries, and, more importantly, Sweden has not been involved in a war for over 160 years.

It might be that Swedish youths are willing to help prepare for a war that their experience tells them will never come.

Although Sweden maintains a policy of neutrality in wartime and does not participate in peacetime alliances, the country does have a strong and costly defense program. But travel to Sweden and you will see no evidence of military plants and weaponry because the defense effort has literally gone underground.

Factories, lighter and fighter-bomber squadrons are buried in rock hangars. Rock pens house submarines, torpedo boats and destroyers.

Mass evacuation plans exist in every city and are well-known to residents. Buildings which today function as garages, gymnasia, restaurants and schools will be used as shelters in the event of war.

Although Sweden is flanked by the Soviet Union, Mia said her people do not fear the Russians to the same extent Americans do. She visited Leningrad and came away secure that governments may differ but people are much the same everywhere.

After graduating from Novi High School in June, Mia plans to return to Sweden and continue her education. Although school is optional after the age of 16, she is interested in natural science and would like to become a veterinarian. Education at all levels, including college, is free in her native country.

Local church sets services for Lent

Good Shepherd Evangelical Lutheran Church in Novi will celebrate Ash Wednesday with a special service tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m.

Services are held at the Novi Community Building on Novi Road between Grand River and I-96. Plans call for a church to be built at Nine Mile and Meadowbrook Road later this year.

Following tonight's Ash Wednesday service, Lenten services will be held each succeeding Wednesday until Easter. All services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

"Jesus' sufferings for us are too important to ignore or take for granted," said Pastor Gene Jakubke. "That's why Lent is such an important time for us."

Jakubke said the entire community is invited to meditate with the congregation on "the tremendous significance of Christ's suffering and death for us."

The engagement of Judy K. Piercy to Edward N. Brown Jr. is announced by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Piercy of Novi and Mrs. Dorothy Brown of Osceola.
