NOVI — A 38-year-old Novi woman was killed Friday evening when the motorcycle she was riding collided with a trailer that had broken away from the truck to which it was connected.

Joyce Bedworth of 30055 Montmorency died when her motorcycle exploded upon impact with the trailer and burst into flames.

Police reported a stake truck pulling a trailer that carried a mulch spreader was northbound on Novi Road when a metal bar behind the hitch snapped, causing the trailer to break away from the truck.

The run-away trailer crossed the center line of Novi Road before it was stuck head-on by the southbound motorcycle. The motorcycle exploded upon impact.

Police reported that while several other vehicles were able to avoid colliding with the trailer, Bedworth apparently did not have time to swerve out of its path. Bedworth's motorcycle had just crested a hill when the collision occurred.

Heavy evening traffic on Novi Road was backed up by the collision which occurred at approximately 6:15 p.m., according to police. Police said one lane of Novi Road was closed for nearly four hours while they investigated the accident.

The driver of the stake truck, 28year-old Larry Napler of Belleville, was not injured in the accident.

Police explained the mulchspreader carried on the trailer is used by landscapers to spread straw over land that has been seeded. At this time there is no indication that either of the two drivers were speeding or otherwise violating traffic laws, police report. No citations have been issued and the matter remains under investigation.

Bedworth had turned age 38 the day of the accident. She is survived by two teenage sons, John and Tom.
Bedworth's death is the first traffic fatality in Novi this year, according

Spring clean-up

Sprucing up Lakeshore Park was the good deed performed by the Novi Girl Scouts last Saturday. Bethany Van der Hoff, 9, and other Girl Scouts brought rakes, hoes and shovels to the park to help prepare it for the summer season. The work day was the Scouts' way of thanking the community for its support of projects such as cookie and calendar sales.

Office park looks at various proposals

Gerak: 'We would have liked more.

By PHILIP JEROME managing editor

NOVI — "I'm pleased that it's done; I'm pleased that we got what we got; and I'm pleased that we're finally able to move ahead."

That's how Joseph Gerak summed up his reaction to the council's approval last week of a rezoning request that will permit expansion of the Orchard Hill Place office park at the Eight Mile/Haggerty Road intersection.

Gerak, a co-partner in Orchard Hill Place Associates — developers of the office park, admitted that he would have liked to have more property rezoned to an "office" zoning classification, but added that he's happy the extended debate is finally over.

Orchard Hill Place Associates had requested that 71 acres of land along the Haggerty Road corridor be rezoned to an office classification in their initial petition back in 1982.

The request stirred widespread opposition among residents in the adjacent Whispering Meadows subdivision and was turned down by the city council at a public hearing attended by more than 200 residents in August but were pleased to get what we got and will work with what we got.

Orchard Hill Place representatives subsequently met with residents in an effort to blunt opposition and submitted an amended request earlier this year.

After several public hearings and an amendment to the city master plan, the revised request was approved by the council last week.

Gerak said the initial rezoning has been pared from 71 to 55 acres. In addition, approximately 7½ of those 55 acres has been deeded to Whispering Meadows homeowners as a greenbelt buffer to the expanded office park.

"We would have liked more, but were pleased to get what we got and will work with what we got," said Gerak.

In the meantime, Gerak expressed optimism about the future of Orchard Hill Place and the Haggerty Road corridor in general.

Orchard Hill Place already contains three Fortune 500 companies — Hewlett Packard, Digital Equipment Corporation and Norris Industries, and a Hilton Hotel is currently under construction.

"The steel's going up fast," said Gerak about progress on the Hilton. "We've got double-crews putting up steel so we can meet our projected opening date of late-spring 1985."

The planning board recently granted site plan approval for a five-story office building immediately south of the Norris Industries site. The planners are scheduled to consider a request for site plan approval of another Orchard Hill Place building at their meeting tonight (Wednesday).

Gerak said the building up for approval on tonight's agenda is a small bio-medical research laboratory for

General Electric. "It's a computeroriented operation in a one-story building with room to expand," he Gerak said he is unable to discuss future tenants for the office park at the present time, but reported he currently is conducting negotiations with three Fortune 500 companies.

The Orchard Hill Place developer previously announced that Digital Equipment Corporation is considering expansion plans. Specifically, Gerak said the Massachusetts-based company is considering an "office campus" that would consist of five or six separate buildings on approximately 20-25 acres.

"I have no idea of what the status of that proposal is right now," said Gerak. "It's possible they may have bypassed us by now because we didn't have the zoning when they needed it."

He added, however, that he plans to meet with Digital Equipment officials in the near future to see if interest in the Orchard Hill Place site can be rekindled.

"It's a beautiful proposal," said Gerak. "I think it's the type of development that would be ideal for Orchard Hill Place and ideal for Novi."

Public views on plan to be aired

NOVI — Residents and property owners will have an opportunity to air their views regarding the proposed rezoning of the Novi Road/Grand River intersection at a public hearing tonight (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the lobby of Novi City Hall.

Rezoning of the intersection and the surrounding area is proposed in conjunction with implementation of the Town Center ordinance.

Currently, the majority of the affected property is zoned for general commercial land uses. Other portions of the property to be rezoned is currently zoned single-family residential, office service and light industrial.

A light turn out is expected as planners prepare for the implementation of the recently-enacted zoning ordinance, approved by the city council in February. Janice Rom of the city planning department predicted no more than 50 people would turn out for the rezoning hearing. Informational meetings on the zoning ordinance establishing the Town Center previously drew approximately 150 concerned property owners.

Since that time city officials and volunteers met with members of the business community to develop the zoning ordinance which ultimately was turned over to the city council for adontion

Rom reported she has received little response to the public hearing notices mailed to affected property owners. Rom also noted that callers have been more positive this time around. She said most of the inquiries she has received have been requests for additional information. Before previous meetings, Rom said she received a larger number of negative comments regarding the proposal.

Planners have explained that the short-range goal of implementing the Town Center ordinance is to discourage future development which is "out of character" with the Town Center concept.

The long-range goal is development of the Town Center area. An economic analysis, currently underway, is to determine the proper type of development to be encouraged in the Town Center.

Planners have stated the Town Center concept is designed to place people in what is now an underdeveloped area. Planners hope to achieve that goal by providing both offices and multiple family development (apartments and condominiums) in the Town Center.

The theory behind the proposal is that offices will generate people during regular business hours and multiples will generate pedestian traffic during the evening.

Council approves $5 million budget

NOVI — After several weeks of deliberations, a budget totalling nearly $5 million, up nearly $430,000 from one year ago, has been approved by the city council.

Council members voted Monday to approve a $4.9 million spending plan which calls for a small increase for taxpayers.

"We've been through extensive budget preparation process to arrive at this budget proposal and it has been successfully pared back," City Manager Edward Kriewall said Monday.

During budget deliberations council members cut approximately $73,000 from the preliminary budget.

The budget adopted by the council

The budget adopted by the council calls for collection of approximately $2.5 million in local property taxes, which represents 50 percent of all revenues. The city also expects to receive $1 million from the state.

A major expenditure in the coming fiscal year will be $2.3 million for the police department, approximately 47 percent of the total budget. General administration will use up approximately 10 percent of the budget or nearly $480,000.

In other expenditures, the fire department will spend seven percent of the budget, $351,000. Some $288,185, or six percent of the budget, will go to the building department. Together the planning board and community development budgets represent five percent of the budget, $234,000.

In order to balance the budget the city will use $565,000 of last year's $1 million fund balance. The city expects that at the end of fiscal year 1984-85 it will have a $482,000 fund balance.

The city levied 10.92 mills last years and will levy 11.03 in the coming fiscal year.

To collect property taxes needed to meet general fund costs the city will levy 5.4 mills, an increase of approximately .2 mills. The library millage also will increase .15 mills. But the reduction in millage levied to pay off city debts nearly offset the increases. As a result, the millage levy will increase just .11 mills.

For local tax payers that represents approximately 11 cents for every $1,000 in assessed valuation. For the owner of an $80,000 home assessed at $40,000, the .11 mill increase will increase his taxes $4.64 in the coming year.

Kriewall pointed out that during public hearings on the budget there were no adverse comments regarding the proposed spending plan.

"We feel comfortable that the budget presented is responsible and represents a 'hold-the-line' position," Kriewall said. "We did not increase any fulltime personnel, and that's the real controlling factor with regard to expenditures."

Mayor Robert Schmid said the budget represents a matter of compromises worked out through several budget meetings.

Council members voted unanimously to approve adoption of the 1964-85 budget.

Seats to Indy are still available

NOVI — There's still time to register for anyone who wants to travel with "Team Novi" to the Indianapolis 500 this year.

Thomas O'Branovic, director of the Novi Parks and Recreation Department, said Monday that there's still room for 10 people to attend the trip.

"We've got 10 spaces left and we'd like to get them all filled," reported O'Branovic. "It looks like it's going to be a lot of fun and it's also a unique opportunity to get an insider's view of the big

Businessman enjoys village

Wavne Yeokum. "I had been a draftsmen at General Motors. I had already decided I'd like to go into business for myself," commented Yeokum, owner of the Bubble and Squeak Tavern. "We liked the area and thought it had potential. I don't know why I decided on a restaurant except a good friend is in this business and has helped us a great deal."

Just over eight years later, Yeokum is operating a successful business and is being recognized for his contributions to the community. Among the activities Yeokum has been involved in are Muscular Dystrophy fundraising, the Chamber of Commerce, the Commerce Area Historical Society and the new Commerce Village Business Associa-

But Yeokum was not always as involved in community activities. "This (restaurant) was quite a switch for us. We did quite a lot of remodeling," Yeokum said. "We weren't wealthy so I had really put my lifesavings in for the downpayment. The first four or five years I spent trying to get the business going."

Yeokum, 46, was aided in starting the business by his wife, Lorraine. "My wife has been a big help. She used to work here every day with me," he said, "Now she is more behind-the-scenes planning menus and that type of thing. We feel we have been very fortunate really. Also, I now have employees good enough to leave the business for awhile (to be active in the community)." The first community event in which Yeokum was inolved was United Days, a fundraising event for Muscular Dystrophy. "I headed that for the village area," he com-

"It has been fun and I've met a lot of nice people," The new business group is aimed at beautifying the

Construction | helps boost tax revenues

WOLVERINE — Development in the Wolverine Acres, Wolverine Commons and Lakeridge subdivisions resulted in an increase in the village's state equalized valuation (SEV) for 1984-85. The rise in assessed valuation means the village will collect about $7.000 in additional tax revenue without having to raise the tax rate. Village Administrator John Berchtold told the council last week that the increased property tax revenue, along with a decrease in the cost of contracted services from Commerce Township and a slight increase in state revenues, all worked together to avert a miliage increase this year. Berchtold's proposed 1984-85 budget of $738,208 is built around the same tax rate as last year, 11 mills.

Novi studies sign changes

NOVI — An amendment to the sign ordinance which will permit the size of "For Sale" signs on certain types of real estate to be increased has been forwarded to the planning board for study. The city council last week directed the planning board to consider an amendment that will permit the size of real estate signs on "undeveloped parcels" of two acres or more to be increased to 16

All real estate signs currently are limited to six Fred Scott, past president of the Novi Chamber of Commerce, urged the council to permit larger signs

"We concur with the six-foot-limit on residential signs, but we take exception to the six-foot-limit on signs for commercial and vacant land," said Scott. Scott noted that speed limits are considerably lower in residential areas than in non-residential areas. It's easier to read a sign at 25 miles per hour

"For vacant and industrial property the sign has to include the size and zoning of the parcel, what utilities are available, the amount of frontage and whether the builder will build to suit in addition to the name and number of the Realtor," he said. "That's too much information to get on a sign of six

Council continues joint manager/treasurer post

In other budget action last week council tentatively approved budgets for the police, fire, public works and major road departments, as well as the sewer debt and refuse collection. # Merit system initiated in Wixom

WIXOM — Only minor changes were made in Wixom's 1984-85 proposed budget following study sessions last week, according to Mayoral Assistant

Keith Salo. Tentative salary increases for non-union employees were set under the new merit system. Salo said employees rated by their supervisor as satisfactory will receive three percent raises, five percent raises for above satisfactory and seven percent increases for workers rated exceptional. "These raises would be implemented as long as the employee is not below or above the minimum or currently above their maximum salary level so they will not get raises.''

Clerk June Buck and Building Official William Tyler are both listed as being paid above their salary levels. Buck received $24,857 in 1963-84 and has a proposed salary of $25,811 in the new budget. Tyler received actual pay at $26,250 last year with a salary set at $26,906.

An arbitration award settling police officers' contracts has not yet been made public. The patrolmen are represented by the American Federation of State. County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME). The contract award, accepted by the council last week, is expected to impact settlements with other union employees.

"We had a few changes in the budget. Under capital expenditures the council decided to put off a truck purchase until next year," Salo said. "They allocated half the $39,000 price this year." Wixom's State Equalized Value (SEV) is ex-million. The increase was attributed to a $4 million personal property tax increase on new equipment at the Ford Motor Company. Higher assessments also were reported on apartments due to an improved rental market.

Assessor John Sailer said he worked closely with Ford officials to reassess their personal property.

Expenditures for the 1984-85 fiscal year are set at $2 million, as are revenues.

The council held a hearing last week for public comments under the truth in taxation law. Under the law the city must maintain the same level of revenues or seek an increase at a public hearing. Since the SEV has increased the general operating millage would have been rolled back from 6.69 mills

Mayor Gary Lentz recommended maintaining the current levy which would result in higher revenues.

Under the city charter, the budget must be adopted by the second council meeting in May. This year the meeting will be held May 22. Salo said the council traditionally makes some additional budget adjustments at that meeting.

As We See It

Budget work fails to solve problems

Walled Lake City Council has had a harried three weeks of budget study sessions in preparation for adoption of the 1984-85 spending plan next week. The city's inability to settle labor contracts, a haphazard attempt at reassigning the responsibilities of the city treasurer and a lack of direction in solving water department funding problems — all coming to a head during this budget season — have complicated the process unnecessarily.

Because both police and department of public works (DPW) employee contracts remain unsettled, the "final" 1984-85 budget must anticipate these settlements without actually allocating salary increases. Muddling the budget further is the question of whether department heads, including City Manager J. Michael Dornan, should receive raises while employee contracts remain unsettled. Council Member Linda Ackley appropriately voted against all salary raises, including Dornan's, until contract negotiations are

But her fellow council members did not agree with her. Council last week approved the salary increase Dornan recommended for himself, but denied the one recommended for Police Chief Wilford Hook until negotiations are concluded. All of this confusion and finagling of salaries could and should have been avoided by timely union contract settlements. Not onhas the lanure to settle contracts placed employee relations at city hall in a deplorable condition, but the city's interests have been compromised by the repeated stalling of negotiations and the added legal fees for lawsuits and arbitration. A second difficulty has been deciding what to do with the responsibilities of city treasurer. Council took action in March to divorce the position from the city clerk. Although the division in responsibilities was logical, the timing was off and last week's discussion of the matter made this evident. Instead of studying the workload of all clerk/treasurer office personnel and then coming to a solution, the council suddenly divided the position and lumped the treasurer's position into the city manager's office. Dornan could handle the job until budget sessions

But after two and one-half hours of debating the matter last week, council determined they had neither the money to hire a fulltime treasurer nor the knowledge of their central office personnel to promote from within. They concluded Dornan would have to maintain the position, with some reallocation of responsibilities among other central office personnel, throughout 1984-85.

Finally, the council postponed until budget time a decision on water rates for 1984-85. In March council approved a set of "interim" rate increases to pull the water department past the anticipated year end deficit, but no further. The rates were set to expire in June so council would be forced to arrive at a longer term solution during Early this week, council had yet to decide how much of the city manager's proposed $323,000 water budget it would buy. Dornan's budget, a scaled back version of the city engineer's proposed $368,000 spending plan, included part-time clerical help for the water department, an increase of nearly $10,000 in engineering services and increased allocations for replacement and purchase of equipment.

If the council is satisfied with "interim" solutions to these problems for the purpose of 1984-85 budgeting, they will likely face the same problems in June next year. Sooner or later, "interim" problem solving in both city administration and the water department needs to be replaced with careful, long-term when a longer term solution would be decided, council reasoned.

Decisions on all these problems could only be haphazard when four week period. It appears council failed to set priorities before engaging in 1984-85 budget work. In one month, they have attempted to improve water department funding, to reassign the treasurer's position and to avoid raising taxes. The purpose of this commentary is primarily informational. At the time of year when school boards and city councils are adopting 1984-85 budgets, citizens should check fund equity. If it's more than 10 percent of the overall budget, it's probably too high. By the same token, anything less than that may enable repairs to be made without be an indication of financial difficulties in the future.

here, get out of my kitchen, get out of my life!" That is the sound of a young mother on the edge; an order issued after one of her toddlers got into the refrigerator one too many times. I hope she reaches her 25th birthday with her sanity intact. With three children all under three years of age the next year will be a challenge for my younger sister, Margie. I can say this with certainty because I returned Sunday from suburb of Los Angeles where I visited them for two weeks. Most of the time Margie is perfectly calm, insisting that people who shake their heads and say they don't understand how she does it are alarmists. But every now and then the strain shows on my usually unflappable sister. It's not that Margle's children are bad kids, they're just

Each morning, after breakfast they slowly opened the bedroom door, stuck their heads in to see if my eyes were open, and when I smiled at them they charged in, threw their arms around my neck and climbed on the bed. There they proceeded to bounce on me and my bed, until they tired of this amusing sport and went to find their mom.

At the age of two years and five months the twins are sometimes babies and sometimes little girls. They also are sometimes monsters. A favorite game is scaring people with their monster growl, a snarl they learned from Daddy. The girls can climb into anything. They don't use the potty chair for its intended purpose — it makes a better ladder. It is also great fun to pull Kleenex from its box one by one. And keeping food in the refrigerator is impossible now that they know how to open it. Sometimes the girls appear to be talking to one another in their own twin-language. It seems to be primarily a language of hilarious jokes. One will gurgle something to the other, prompting a shout of laughter from her twin.

While they don't speak much English they are making headway on parts of the body. Aunt Kathy taught them elbow. One word they have learned well is the all-powerful 'No.' a

Stephanie on the other hand will whine until she is completely dressed. She cannot stand to be without her diaper and will gladly trot off to get a fresh one

Christina is going through a particularly rebellious period. She wants what she wants right now and she's going to cry until she gets it. Margie has recently realized this is a battle of wills — if she gives in at age two she's going to have a problem for a long time. But it is difficult to listen to incessant crying for 20-30 minutes without simply giving the child what she wants. At the calm age of one year Forrest Jr., commonly called Buddy, is Margie's delight. When the twins' rioting gets to be too much, my sister turns to Buddy, who can still be soothed by diversionary tactics. Making faces at him brings a grin that lights up his whole face. Unfortunately, his favorite game is pulling all the pans from the kitchen cupboard and banging

It was during the second set of three boards that I began to take notice. The kid was smooth, alright. She handled herself well.

It wasn't until the third set of three boards that I began to get nervous. The kid was making moves I had never seen before. I'm good enough to get all the blue ghosts on the first two sets, but after that I just try to get through as many boards as I can - to heck with the ghosts.

But the kid was getting them all. Luring the ghosts down into the corner with a wriggle of her wrist, tapping the power dot and nailing the blues in quick order ... one, two, three, four -

By this time she had picked up 100,000 points. She hadn't lost a man. And she was still eating those potato chips with her free hand.

Realizing that something special was happening, I summoned the regulars — Big Joe, Ponch, Peaches, Mary Margaret. Word spread fast. By the time she finished, there were maybe 20 of us gathered around the Ms. Pac-Man machine. She seemed disappointed that she had only scored 160,000 points.

"Nice game, kid," I said in admiration as she moved away from the stool. "Don't forget your potato chips."

It was two weeks before any of us had the courage to play Ms. Pac-Man again. Kids can do that to you.

Evidence of Things Unseen

We cannot see the winds that blow, We can only see their power In trees that bend. In waves that flow Or clouds that whirl and tower.

We cannot see the power that flings A leaf away on high, Or that on which the eagle soars: While upward still, a man with wings Climbs higher in the sky.

We cannot see the force that moves The earth on which we stand. How great its strength On land and sea: We only know it proves

That faith is but the evidence Of things unseen or known, Like the harvest of a mystery seed That floats to earth alone.

We aren't aware that time has passed

Until the sun has set; The years go by Until at last Our life's decree is met

Charles E. Hutton The Katy-Dids

It's in the early Spring, When Katy-Dids awake. They yawn and stretch and blink their eyes, Then raise their voices to the skies. Little children hear them sing, Then help them with their songs, Until the shadows deepen. and the Sandman comes along They bow their tiny heads in sleep, While Katy-Dids sing on, and dream about their little friends Who watch over them, and keep.

Aita Lynch Dear Mom

I thought I ought to tell you Altho, I guess you know, iow much i really love you And want to tell you so.

Sometimes I don't exactly do The things you want me to.

I forgot to make my bed And didn't feed my dog. I spilled my milk And tore my pants. Fact is; quarreled with little John

You made my bed And fed my dog, Just like you always do. I feel bad, I really do.

Because, I love you Mom.

Alta Lynch Memories Of My Mother

I remember my Mother kindly, Like sunshine sprinkled with rain. She bore her burdens courageously, And never complained of the pain.

She cared not for life's great riches, Or glamour that came there-in. Prayed that God would protect us. And keep us safe in a world of sin.

And their gain. Looked at the fields and their harvest, Hoping they would feed us again. l can't remember a hardship or hunger, Through all those years. Only remember the sunshine,

She had no envy of neighbors or relatives

She tried to spare us the tears. I know she found riches in heaven: Money could never buy. For God, in his infinite wisdom, Has never let her die.

Alta Lynch Touched Two

The sun touches On all parts of the house With a lover's questing hands; Soothing and warming, Window to window Until, finally, A glow encompasses The two inside.

I Wish

I wish I was a bee. Or a butterfly or nymph. But, instead I am merely human. I wish I could be special

I wish I had some incredible talent I wish that I could be someone Quite different from the ordinary self I see reflected in the mirror.

> Anne Seebaldt Faulty Design?

Seeking truth, we find, by strange quirk of mind, that like rats in a maze. we're caught in a box named paradox.

Life's instincts are strong. Perspectives deceitful make right seem wrong and wrong appear right while fear of death blocks the life giving sun of our collective future.

For humanity stumbles toward self imposed night cause private obsession with outside intercession to save our "souls" from damnation, obscures our pressing need to renounce unspeakable greed and — exorcise demonic fears from our imaginations.

So now what I'd most like to know: Can thinking really offer hope, or will emotion's mighty surge drown sweet reason's gentle voice by one last mighty booming dirge?

R. F. Burlingame Where Is It?

"Where's the beef?" is a popular saying, But I've got one of my own. Where's the Spring, That's what I want to know How come it's still not shown?

Snow on the ground still, Winds that freeze. Heaven knows when I will Plant my peas.

Buds should be a-popping Buibs a-sprouting, Grass a-growing, Birds sitting sunning.

But listen .. A familiar noise in my ear, Oh, it's definite. Spring is here, Our sump pumps' started running!

Dear Friend

It seems like only yesterday when we were 3 feet tall. We had our great adventures with slides and swing and ball.

And then the years began to roll each faster than the other We loved and then we married then someone called us mother

Oh, how the years go racing on where did our youth time go? To stop and think about it would make us feel so low

We take a path and trod awhile, and then we take another. My life just took another turn My name is now "GRANDMOTHER."

America

Made by people with different faces, Coming here from many places; Looking for somewhere to stay, Starting new every day. Hoping their dream come true: People just like me and you.

Leanne Zawisa

When I felt my world come crashing down, I looked for you; but you weren't to be found. I needed you to be here at my side, Where were you; why did you hide? I thought you told me you'd always be near; I though you said I should never fear. Now I know how much you care: I looked for you; but you weren't there.

Out of Sight

fairy godmother's secret is out! Don't let that "magic wand" fool you! She's tried to make us believe that with a wave of that wand, she can turn pumpkins into carriages, mice into white horses and rags into white gowns. But we know she's just like the rest of us! When we want to turn a baby crib into cash... an older car into a new one... or change from sales clerk to doctor's receptionist... the only magic wand we hold in our hand is a telephone receiver and the only thing we wave is our index finger as we

Jeff Henry had a pair of hits and knocked in three runs. Mark Mamayak and Dean Nessen each had two hits, while Tom Menard contributed three RBIs. The Vikings scored five times in the second and six more in the sixth.

Scott Norris went the whole way for Central on the mound, giving up cix hits and three walks while striking out four. On May 9, Central lost to Walled Central, allowing only two walks and one earned run while striking out seven. "He pitched a nice game," said Butler. "He deserved to win it." The Vikings did win their final game of the week, a 10-8 victory over Livonia Bentley. Jeff Schneider smacked a two-run homer in the first, and Brian Harreld delivered a two-run single in the second to stake Central to a 4-0 lead.

NOVI - Marie Gannon of Novi, a organizing it into a recognized campus sophomore majoring in pre-optometry organization called "Helping Hands." at Ferris State College, has received the Vanderlaan Student Leadership and Service Award.

The award, started in 1976, is designed to recognize selected students who have demonstrated significant leadership ability and performed voluntary service to the college or community.

Gannon became involved as a volunteer at the Greenridge Nursing Home in Big Rapids by adopting two took over the Greenridge project, at Ferris State.

Gannon matches students with residents of the nursing home on an individual basis, devoting much time and effort to the volunteer project.

Gannon is active in intramural volleyball and broomball at Ferris. She serves on the dorm council, is a member of the Pre-Optometry Club and acts as a representative of Ferris' student body to St. Paul's campus parish.

She was nominated for the award by grandparents last year. This year she James Lehnert, a professor of biology Blood drives set at area schools

The Southeastern Michigan Red Cross Blood Services program operates on the principle of community coverage — that blood should be available to all members of the community who need it. The last thing a person should have to worry about when entering a hospital is whether bood will be there for his or her use

The concept of community coverage replaced a system used by the Red Cross of non-replacement fees and credits for blood donors and hospital patients. Under that system, hospital patients would be charged a non-replacement fee for each unit of blood used unless they had credit for blood donated either by themself, a friend or family member in his

The system was abolished to remove the burden of replacing blood from the patient and/or patient's family.

But community coverage will continue to succeed in providing 1,000 units of blood per day to meet the needs of hospital pattents only if every individual and every group accepts the donation of blood as a community responsibility.

Although everyone in the community is eligible to receive blood, eligibility is worthless unless adequate blood is available. Th only way it will be available is if people donate.

Blood can be donated by anyone in good health between the ages of 17 and 65 who weighs at least 110
