

Town Hall announces speakers

NORTHVILLE Actress Jayne Meadows will lead off Northville Town Hall's silver anniversary season October 10. The lecture series sponsored by Our Lady's League of Our Lady of Victory Church will be held at the Sheraton Oaks Nov. 10 and 11.

Following on November 14 will be singer-talk show host "Fat Bob" Taylor. Ronna Romney will appear March 13, 1986, with Steven Ford concluding the 25th year season April 10, 1986.

All lectures begin at 11 a.m. and are followed with celebratory luncheons, which are open to season ticketholders and may be reserved individually or by the season.

Season tickets for the series are priced at $25, same as last season, and will go on sale at the final lecture of the current series on April 18. Mail orders will be accepted after April 18 and may be sent to Mrs. Richard Lyon, Northville Town Hall, P.O. Box 93, Northville, 48167.

Luncheon reservations will be accepted after June 1. These are $11 each. Sandy Chouinard, this year's chairman, in announcing the anniversary lectures, said the Town Hall committee was pleased to host the special season with television, stage, screen and radio celebrity responses.

She noted that in response to many requests the season includes a return appearance by Taylor. For its anniversary year, Northville Town Hall also has selected a chairman, Rosemary Patarcha, who will be hosting the second two-year stint.

Here are backgrounds of the speakers in the benefit series. "Proceeds are divided with half going to Our Lady's League church projects and half to community organizations in the areas served by town hall."

JAYNE MEADOWS: Recognized as one of show business' most versatile talents, Jayne Meadows is known as respected for her polished performances. She was born in China, where her parents were missionaries, and moved to the United States as a young child. She began her theatrical career as a serious dramatic actress in the Broadway hit, "Spring Again," with Sir C. Aubrey Smith, going on to star in six more Broadway dramas before moving into her first comedy role, "The Gazebo," with Walter Slezak. It was the first of many roles that would establish her as a top comedienne. She recently won kudos for her role in the off-Broadway revival of "Once in a Lifetime." Her films include "Undercurrents" starring Katherine Hepburn and "The Killers" with Lionel Barrymore. She starred in most of the leading drama programs during television's golden years, including "The U.S. Steel Hour" and "DuPont Show of the Week."

She made frequent appearances on such top comedy-variety shows as "Hollywood Palace" and, of course, "The Steve Allen Show."

She has been Mrs. Steve Allen for 29 years. They have appeared in concert at Carnegie Hall and four frequently in their supper club comedy act. In recent years she has been a semi-regular member of the cast on the CBS daytime serial, "Medical Center," and has written a regular column for Carte Blanche magazine.

For her lecture Meadows recreates four of her favorite portrayals from "Meeting of the Minds," award winning television series in which she took such roles as that of Cleopatra, Florence Nightingale, Catherine the Great and Susan B. Anthony.

BOB TAYLOR: "Fat Bob" Taylor, who will be the only return guest on the Northville Town Hall and talking about his current experiences as host of WJLT's "Great Weekend" on Saturday Night. He has been heard singing the National Anthem at Tiger Stadium and the Silverdome for 14 years.

Taylor was featured in a construction job in Ann Arbor when he called J.P. McCarthy to complain about a flat note. J.P. asked him to do better and sing, then and there, "Vesti in Guba" from Pagliacci.

He did — and that's how Taylor recalls the beginning of his radio career. It was McCarthy who dubbed him "Fat Bob, the Singing Plumber." At that time he really was a plumber.

A native of Leamington, Ontario, he has lived in the Ann Arbor area since 1957. RONNA ROMNEY: Ronna Romney — writer, lecturer, politician, wife and mother of five — has been dubbed throughout Michigan for her church, community and government activities during the past 15 years. She was introduced to politics when her father-in-law, George Romney, ran for the presidency in 1968. She went on to campaign for Lenore Romney two years later when she ran for the U.S. Senate. In 1972 she co-chaired the Nixon campaign in her state. In 1982 she co-chaired the gubernatorial race in Michigan, raising over one million dollars. She was the Reagan-Bush finance co-chair.

At the beginning of this decade she was recognized as one of the "People to Watch in the Eighties" by Monthly Detroit.

She is co-author of "Giving Time a Chance," a book about making a success of marriage that has been widely acclaimed by a list of critics ranging from Jack Anderson and Ann Landers to Vincent Peale. Her new book, "Women in Power," will be out in the spring of 1986.

She served as honorary chair for the American Cancer Society in the Detroit Metropolitan area in 1984 and has been elected to serve as the national spokeswoman from Michigan by her fellow Republicans. She has just been appointed to the National Advisory Council on Adult Education.

Ronna and her husband Scott, a senior partner at one of Michigan's major law firms, live with their five children in Bloomfield Hills.

STEVEN FORD: Steven Ford, the youngest and third son of former President Gerald R. and Betty Ford, enjoys his successful, full-time acting career and still is portraying the role of Andy, which he created on "The Young and the Restless," CBS-TV daytime drama. Before becoming an actor, the tall, handsome blond worked on the professional rodeo circuit for two years as a team roper and later served as a commentator for professional rodeo games on cable network television.

He was born in Washington, D.C., when his father was a Congressman. He attended Utah State University and California Polytechnic University, where he studied animal sciences.

He has always loved the outdoors and in 1975 participated in a National Geographic study of grizzly bears, radio tracking the animals for three months in the Seapagoat Wilderness area of Montana.

Steven, credited with inheriting his father's direct and open manner, worked on ranches in Montana and Utah before his first acting role in "Cattle Annie and the Little Britches," starring Burt Lancaster and Rod Steiger. He says he "caught the acting bug" after six weeks of shooting in Durango, Mexico.

He sees a close relationship between politics and entertainment. "You're on all the time," says Ford, "campaigning is like being in a show that's had a long run." Life in the public eye during his father's presidency was good preparation, he says, for an acting career.

When he has time off from his television show, Ford spends time at his ranch north of Hollywood, or makes appearances on the speaking circuit. He relates amusing behind-the-scenes anecdotes about his days at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, and about his life in show business in post-White House days.

Walled Lake youth wins spelling bee

WALLED LAKE — Marc Elmer, an eighth grader at Walled Lake Junior High School, won first place honors in the Southeast Michigan Regional Competition of the 1985 Lawrence Institute of Technology and Detroit News Spelling Bee.

Elmer finished first out of 25 area participants in the regional competition. His winning words were "wherry" and "rapacious."

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Elmer. As a result of winning the regional championship, Elmer will proceed to the state championship competition which will be held at Lawrence Institute of Technology later this month. The state champion qualifies to compete in the 1985 Lawrence Institute of Technology and Detroit News Spelling Bee.

He was coached for the regional spelling bee by Nancy Wishart, an English teacher at Walled Lake Junior High. She has been a volunteer coach for Walled Lake Junior High spelling teams for the past 10 years and for the last four years for the Lawrence Institute of Technology and the Detroit News spelling bee.

Collecting for gain

The fact that collections of "things" do increase in value has had other retail ramifications. Although it was collectors who gave rise to such businesses as The Old Bulgar in Livonia, Just Coins in Novi and The Plate Lady, also in Livonia, the owners of those businesses acknowledge that a percentage of their customers is composed of people who buy things strictly for investment purposes.

"If a person's goal is to make money, we will steer them toward the types of coins we think will realize a good profit in future years. In fact, we only sell the types of coins which we think will appreciate in value and we would be willing to purchase back in a few years."

Mike Walsh, the owner of the Old Bulgar, which specializes in baseball cards and other sports memorabilia, believes most "collectors" do it strictly for the enjoyment.

"We get a lot of collectors when the coin markets are low because they can add to their sets at good prices," she remarked. "But it's also a good time for collectors. We think the gold and silver markets have just about bottomed out so it's a good time for investors to make their purchases before the markets begin to go back up."

"Originally, I was a collector," he said. "It was great to have old baseball cards and World Series yearbooks. But today I'm more of an investor than a collector. I buy things for my store because they will increase in value, not because they are something I want for my own personal enjoyment."

As a businessman who serves this specialized market, Walsh admits that his personal outlooks have changed considerably. "I bought plates just for the pleasure of collecting them," she said. "I enjoyed my hobby so much that I opened my own business."

City's SEV gets boost from boom

By PATRICIA N. BOWLING news staff writer

NOVI — New construction in the city contributed to a healthy growth in the city's tax base this year.

In addition to the Novi Hilton Hotel, which by itself added $15 million, new residential construction and across-the-board hike in commercial and industrial assessments helped boost the city's tax base 6.37 percent.

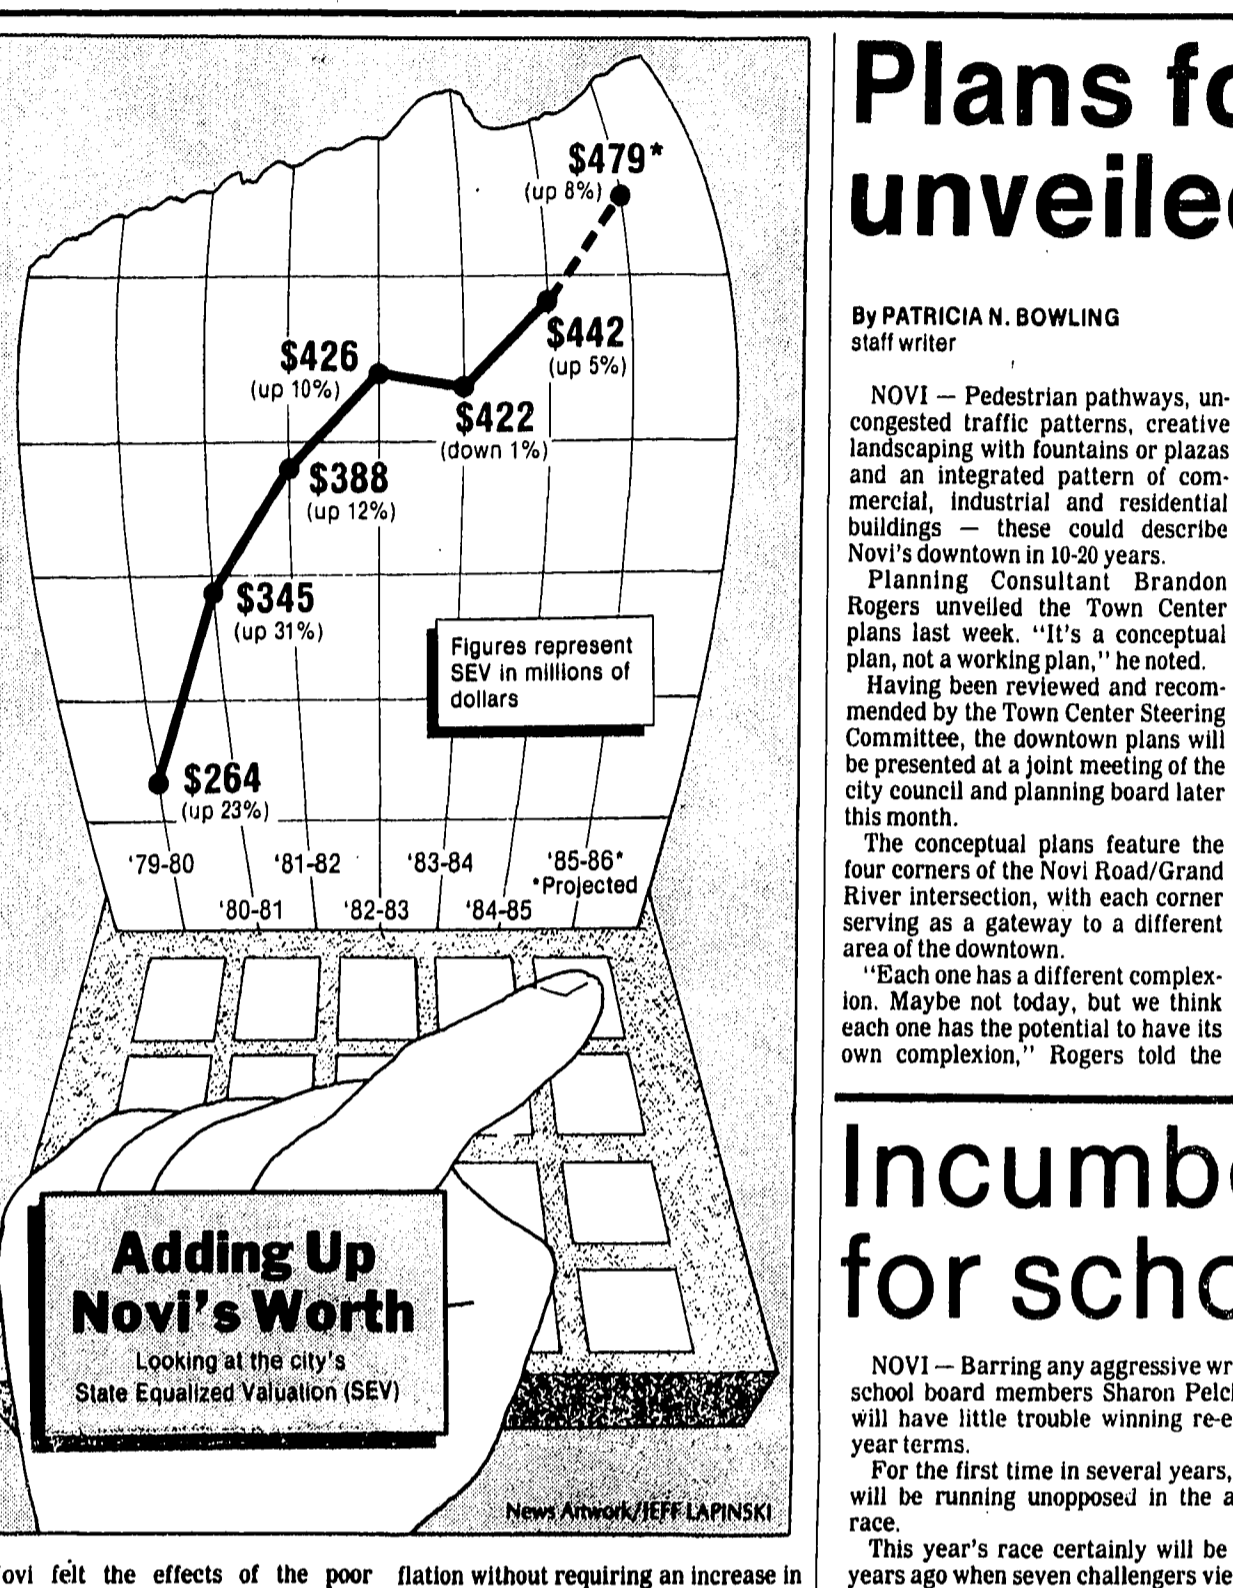

The tax base is figured by dividing in half the total value of all property in the city. This calculation is called the state equalized valuation.

The city reported a state equalized valuation (SEV) of $442 million for 1984-85. The projected SEV for 1985-86 has jumped about $37 million, to an estimated $479 million.

All commercial property values were raised 5 percent this year, according to the assessor's office. When applied to Twelve Oaks Mall, the city's largest commercial property, this 5 percent increase added $2.5 million to the total commercial property valuation.

A spokesman from the assessor's office noted industrial property valuations were raised 7 percent over last year.

New residential construction has helped boost the residential SEV. There were over 200 building permits for new houses issued in 1984, along with more than 20 permits for condominium buildings.

Novi felt the effects of the poor economy in 1983-84 when property values throughout the city dropped. Despite $19 in new construction, the city's SEV dropped $4 million. It was the first decrease in the city's SEV in eight years.

Novi felt the effects of the poor economy in 1983-84 when property values throughout the city dropped. Despite $19 in new construction, the city's SEV dropped $4 million. It was the first decrease in the city's SEV in eight years.

City Manager Edward Kriewall said last week the increase in SEV for 1985-86 enables the city to keep pace with inflation without requiring an increase in the millage rate.

The city council will review the budget in study sessions scheduled throughout April. The first session will be at 7:30 p.m. tonight (April 10) in the lobby of the library.

Plans for Town Center unveiled by consultant

By PATRICIA N. BOWLING staff writer

NOVI — Pedestrian pathways, un-congested traffic patterns, creative landscaping with fountains or plazas and an integrated pattern of commercial, industrial and residential buildings — these could describe Novi's downtown in 10-20 years.

Planning Consultant Brandon Rogers unveiled the Town Center plans last week. It's a conceptual plan, not a working plan, he noted.

Having been reviewed and recommended by the Town Center Steering Committee, the downtown plans will be presented at a joint meeting of the city council and planning board later this month.

The conceptual plans feature the four corners of the Novi Road/Grand River intersection, with each corner serving as a gateway to a different area of the downtown.

"Each one has a different complexion. Maybe not today, but we think each one has the potential to have its own complexion," Rogers told the steering committee Monday.

Rogers' associate Linda Lempe, who prepared the Town Center conceptual drawings, described each quadrant this week for the steering committee.

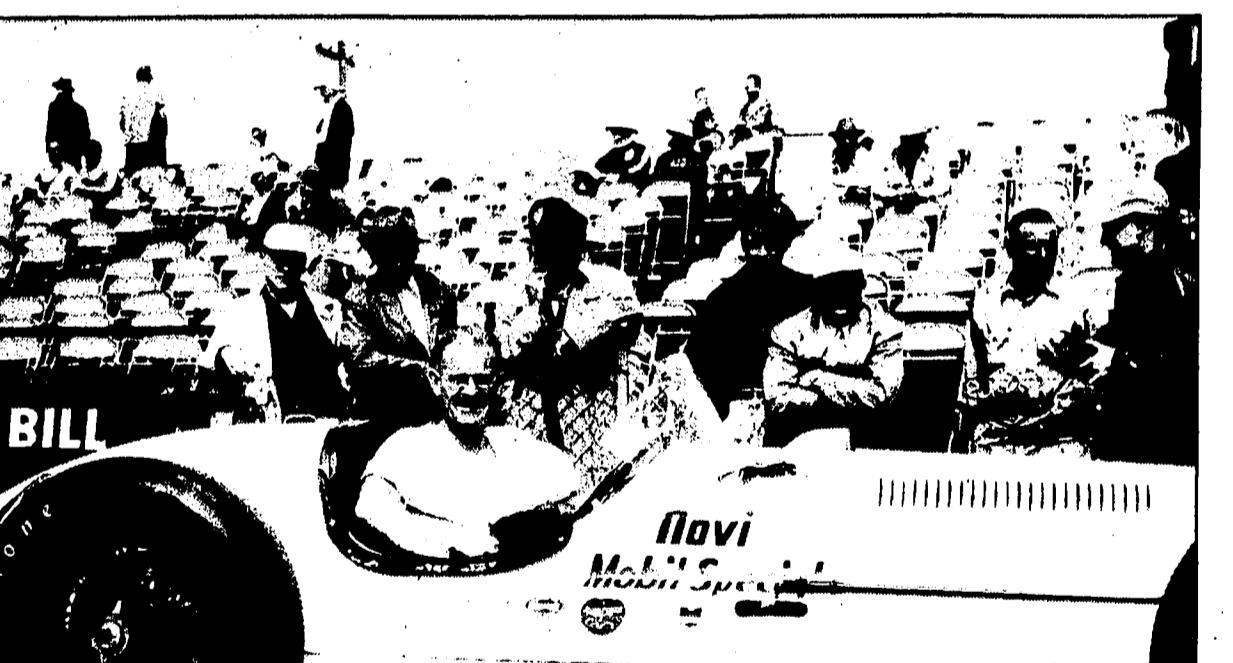

Currently, the general land use encompasses a mixture of unrelated buildings, from residential to heavy industrial. The proposed plan eliminates some uses and relocates others. Many new uses, such as an open-air market, a performing arts theater and senior citizen housing, are proposed. The end result, Lemke explained, is better land use in a more integrated district.

Auto aces talk about a museum

NOVI — An auto racing yearbook publisher, the executive director of Michigan Speedway Promoters and a "walking encyclopedia on the Novi race car" all gathered in Novi last week.

The three men — Dick Lee, Chuck McClung and Radio Gardner — joined Novi officials at the fire station on Grand River Avenue Tuesday to discuss the possibility of locating an auto racing museum in Novi.

Lee, publisher of the Michigan Auto Racing Yearbook, came up with the idea of a Michigan auto racing museum about three years ago. He contacted other racing enthusiasts across the state and in 1982 established the Michigan Motor Sports Hall of Fame.

The famed race car was powered by an engine manufactured by the Novi Equipment Company on Novi Road. The Novi Economic Development Corporation purchased the No. 9 Novi Governor's Special for the city in 1983 to use as a promotional tool. Purchase of the race car's engine was sponsored by the Delval Corporation.

High-rise approval hinges on district

NOVI — Before the Sheraton Oaks Hotel begins a proposed 12-story addition, the developer will have to guarantee the city that a convention center will be built on adjacent property.

The new requirement was included in a revised zoning ordinance amendment reviewed by the Novi Planning Board last week. The ordinance amendment, which would establish a convention center district, is scheduled for a public hearing Wednesday, April 17.

The district is being tailored by city officials to accommodate a proposed convention center development on property surrounding the Sheraton Oaks. The 12-story hotel addition proposed by Sheraton General Manager Gerald Abel is to be connected by a glass-enclosed walkway to a convention center. Southfield real estate broker Ken Rznick is coordinating development of the convention center.

Thieves net rich haul in jewelry

Novi Jewelry with an estimated value in excess of $20,000 was stolen during a break-in of a home on Thirteen Mile, according to Novi police reports. The complainants told police that unknown individuals broke into the residence on March 28 between 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. by breaking a rear bedroom window. Once inside the responsible parties removed various stereo components from a stand in the living room and several pieces of rare, expensive jewelry from a bedroom dresser. Also stolen was a 38 caliber Smith & Wesson revolver.

The thief apparently exited the residence through a rear door. Police reported finding the prints from a tennis shoe in the mud behind the home.

A 19-inch color television set was stolen from a residence on South Lake Drive near Mawlin.

The thieves gained entry by kicking in a rear door and then stole the television set from the living room before making their escape through sliding glass doors at the front of the house. The break-in occurred sometime between noon on March 31 and 2:15 a.m. the following day.

Value of the stolen television set was placed at $600.

Another color television set was stolen from another residence on West Lake Drive at approximately the same time.

The owner of the home told police he arrived home at approximately 9:10 p.m. on April 1 to discover that someone had used a rock to break out the window in the rear door.

In addition to the 19-inch color television set valued at $325, the intruders also stole a stereo receiver with an estimated value of $125.

The complainant noted that the responsible parties must have been frightened away as several items in the home were untouched and the thieves

Area Blotters

Some $200 in U.S. currency was reported stolen from a residence on Olde Orchard in the Olde Orchard Condominiums.

According to police reports, someone broke into the condominium on March 28 between 8 and 8:30 p.m. and removed the money from a bedroom. Several partially empty bottles of alcohol also were found to be missing.

Investigating officers said they found no signs of forced entry to the door wall or a locked room inside the residence.

Unknown individuals broke into the Speedway gas station at the corner of Haggerty Road and Fourteen Mile during the night of March 28-29 and removed a large quantity of cigarettes and candy.

Police arrived at the scene at approximately 5:20 a.m. to discover that someone had broken out one of the station's front windows. Officers also noted that several cartons of cigarettes and display items were found on the ground outside the window.

Inside the station, police found broken glass, candy and cigarette cartons scattered across the floor. They also found a piece of concrete that apparently had been used to break the window as well as a pair of white knit gloves. Two sets of muddy footprints — one large and one small — were found outside the gas station.

Two 10-speed Peugeot bicycles were stolen from the attached garage of a residence in the 22000 block of Chestnut Tree in the Village Oaks subdivision. The theft occurred March 29 between 8 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

The owner told police that someone gained entry to the garage and stole a 26-inch man's bicycle and a 28-inch woman's bicycle. The two bicycles had a combined value in excess of $500, according to reports.

Two BMX bicycles were stolen from a storage shed behind a residence on Montmorency in the Chateau Estates Mobile Home Park. The bicycles, which were valued at $250 apiece, were stolen sometime between March 25 and March 27.

Candy and soda pop were stolen from an unattached garage behind a residence on West Lake Drive sometime during the night of April 1-2.

The complainant told police that someone broke into the garage and stole nine eight-packs of soda pop and eight boxes of candy. The stolen goods were valued at more than $100.

Tools valued at more than $1,000 were stolen from a garage behind a residence in the 23000 block of Willowbrook. The theft occurred sometime between March 15 and March 25.

The homeowner told police that someone broke into the garage while he was away and stole two chainsaws, a 12-piece Craftsman tool set, a tool box and numerous hand tools.

A 1981 Chevrolet Monte Carlo was stolen from the driveway of a residence in the 24000 block of Willowbrook sometime during the night of March 31 and April 1.

The owner of the car told police she parked the vehicle in the drive at 6:30 p.m. on March 31 and discovered it missing the next day at 6:30 a.m.

A briefcase stolen from a car owned by a Cherry Hill resident was recovered the following day by a police officer.

The owner of the car told police he was unsure whether the theft occurred at his residence or his place of employment in Southfield. He said he became aware of the theft when he received a call the next morning from a Detroit woman, who said she had found the briefcase at Chandler and Woodward.

The man recovered the briefcase from the woman and told police that nothing appeared to have been stolen. Damage to the rear window of the car where the thieves had broken in was estimated at $60.

Some $720 worth of property was stolen from the car of a Northville man while it was parked behind the Sheraton Oaks Hotel on March 30 between 9 and 11 a.m.

The complainant told police he returned to the 1982 Buick Skylark and found that unknown individuals had broken out the rear driver's side window. Stolen were a 35mm camera valued at $400 and a $40 briefcase containing $300 in cash.

A pickpocket is believed responsible for the theft of cash and merchandise from a Walled Lake man while he was shopping at Twelve Oaks Mall on March 28 at approximately 8:30 p.m.

The man told police he arrived home after shopping at the mall to discover his wallet missing. He said he recalled that someone had bumped into him while he was at Twelve Oaks and theorized that he had been victimized by a pickpocket.

The wallet contained $250 in cash. Also stolen was a small gold lady's diamond ring valued at $240 as well as credit cards and various items of personal identification.

Area Briefs

STATE PURCHASE of the Detroit House of Correction for $6.7 million has received its first legislative approval from the joint capital outlay committee. In a separate action, funds to operate the prison on the Northville/Plymouth border were included as part of a $46 million supplemental appropriations bill approved by the full senate March 28.

TWO TEENAGE GIRLS were robbed at gunpoint by two women, one wielding a sawed-off shotgun, in a Birmingham parking lot March 25.

The two 16-year-old girls were parking their car in the city parking lot at Bates and Merrill at 3:30 p.m. when a small white car pulled up next to them, according to Birmingham Police Lieutenant Jack Kalfelisch.

The armed robber got out of the car, opened the passenger's door of the victims' car and leaned inside holding the shotgun. Her accomplice stood watch to make sure nobody witnessed the crime. The robbers threatened the girls, demanded money, snatched their purses and fled with about $100 in cash.

W. ROBERT DOCKING has been named superintendent of the Bloomfield Hills School District. Novi Superintendent Robert Piwko and Walled Lake Superintendent Don Sheldon had been among the 10 finalists for the post. Piwko withdrew from consideration after a first interview.

Docking, currently superintendent of the East Lansing Public Schools, replaces Fred Thorin, who sued the board for breach of contract after 15 years as superintendent when the board refused to renew his contract.

Docking will make $77,000 per year in total compensation — up from the $61,124 he makes in East Lansing.

THE BLOOMFIELD HILLS School board claims Superintendent Fred Thorin should repay $200 plus interest for pay increases he was given wrongfully. The claim is contained in a countersuit filed by the board in Oakland County Circuit Court.

Thorin's suit maintains the board breached its contract by not renewing it and seeks damages for his mental distress. He also sought a preliminary injunction to stop the board's efforts in trying to replace him. The injunction was denied.

The board's countersuit claims Thorin's annual increases from 1980 were improper because they were not approved by the board in open sessions.

APARTMENTS FOR 'YUPPIES' will not be constructed at Pontiac Trail and Halstead Road. The West Bloomfield Township planning commission has rejected a request from Place Construction Company to rezone 13 acres at the intersection from single-family residential to rental apartments.

The apartments were described by Place Construction representative David Master as "apartments for yuppies (young urban professionals) renting for $600 to $700 a month where the majority of rentals in the community are $1,000 to $1,500 a month."

The rezoning request was opposed by residents in nearby subdivisions where houses are valued as much as $500,000.

POLITICAL SIGNS will be permitted in West Bloomfield Township where the planning commission has recommended approval of new regulations.

If adopted by the council, the ordinance would permit political signs if a cash deposit of $250 is made to cover possible enforcement costs. Sign sizes, locations and heights are spelled out in the proposed amendment.

Since 1981 West Bloomfield has permitted political signs only at candidates' houses and in industrial zones.

A 184-UNIT APARTMENT COMPLEX has been proposed on a 15 acre site in Southfield on the north side of Civic Center Drive between Lahser and Berg roads.

The apartments are proposed for construction south of a 455 million, three-phase First Center office complex on 30 acres on the south side of Northwestern Highway between Lahser and Telegraph roads. A Marriott Courtyard Hotel is being developed on 4.4 acres west of the office center.

Woman charts course of early Indians

"Tonquish Tales," a story of early d'Etroit, pioneers and Michigan Indians, holds special interest for local readers as it traces the history of those American Indians who followed the Grand River trail to Plymouth Mound — the Potawatomi under Chief Tonquish.

The paperback-size volume is the work of Plymouth resident Helen Frances Gilbert, who points out she also is a Northville native who lived with her parents in a Victorian house on the southeast corner of Rogers and Main before the family moved to Plymouth.

The tales first appeared in 1982 as fortnightly columns in the Plymouth Observer and last year were compiled into a history of the American Indians who lived in this area.

"Any fair assessment of stories about the American Indian must take into account that we are exploring the history of a people who left us no written language," said Gilbert as she explains her aim has been to "humanize the Indians who lived in this area."

She points out that cultural remnants and sign language of the Indians have led at times to a variety of interpretations of the Indian.

"The Indian has often been misrepresented and misunderstood because of ignorance of his true condition and beliefs. And the plight of these naive Americans has been made worse by exploitation, political chicanery and selfish greed.

"A consistently more humane and reasonably truthful approach to the Indian is long overdue."

Helen Gilbert's history of the Tonquish Indians indeed personalizes these early settlers of the region. Readers will find it easy to picture such Indians as Shaman in Gilbert's narrative: "Alone on his tired, little Indian pony, limping along Pontiac's ancient trail the last Shaman (medicine man) of the Tonquish Potawatomi pondered his plight..."

The description begins a chapter (Old Shaman of the Tonquish Faces Governor of Territory) in which the medicine man was going to Plymouth Mound to install Tonga as the tribe's new chief.

For her book Gilbert has compiled an extensive bibliography of books about early Michigan Indians, Chief Tonquish, Cadillac's d'Etroit and Luther Lindote, a founding father of the City of Plymouth.

She also admits she haunts museums and libraries, and has done much research in the libraries of the University of Michigan and the Burton collections of the Detroit Public Library. She has interviewed such persons as Susie Pokagon, widow of Jewett Pokagon, a grandson of Chief Simon Pokagon.

Gilbert's acknowledgments include conversations with former Northville resident Marian Sober, an artist who was interested in the American Indian.

"Tonquish Tales" has been a retirement project for Helen Gilbert. A graduate of Michigan State Normal School, she received her master's degree from Wayne State University.

She taught journalism for 25 years after a stint on the Daylona Beach Journal and as a member of the public relations staff for Michigan Bell Telephone Company during World War II.

The book and her research, she says, rival duplicate bridge as consuming interests.

Her 172-page history of the Tonquish Indians was published in a limited edition of 1,000 for the Plymouth Fair Festival last year, and Gilbert is hoping it shortly will be going into a second edition. It was published by Pilgrim Heritage Press in Plymouth and is available by mail from P.O. Box 473, Plymouth, 48170. Locally, the book is available at Bookstall on the Main in Northville where it is priced at $6.50.

SADD kick-off

Members of Novi High School's Students Against Drinking Drunk (SADD) chapter warned fellow classmates about the hazards of drinking and driving in a school-wide assembly April 2. SADD's founding members (above) Michelle Kidd, Matt Kozler, Mark Boksha and Heather Bismack helped kick-off the group's first school-wide effort by inviting a host of guest speakers including the executive committee chairman of the Oakland County MADD organization (above) as well as Novi police and city officials. Novi High School's SADD chapter got under way in February and already has recruited some 100 students. Students currently are working on fundraising efforts as well as new ways to warn classmates about the dangers of drinking and driving — particularly as prom and graduation grow closer.

Every emergency deserves the experience of Providence.

Cuts, fractures, sprains, fevers and other minor emergencies happen when you least expect them. And when they do, you need quick, professional attention.

That's the reason Providence Hospital opened the Novi Emergency Care Center (NECC). It's conveniently close to everyone in the Novi, West Bloomfield, Northville and Farmington area. Even better, its team of medical professionals — including members of the Providence Hospital medical and nursing staff — is ready to assist you and your family 24 hours a day, every day of the year.

The NECC handles major emergencies, too. Its Emergency Department is every bit as complete as the one at Providence Hospital. Advanced life-support equipment like the new EKG heart monitor enable us to treat and stabilize patients with even catastrophic injuries and life-threatening illnesses.

Whenever you or a member of your family face a medical emergency — from a minor cut to a more serious situation — remember the staff, the facilities, the convenience, the 24-hour availability... and the experience of Providence.

New community center overdue

By PATRICIA N. BOWLING
staff writer

NOVI — The parking is limited, the lighting dull and the aesthetics less than appealing, yet thousands of people gather in the Novi Community Building each year.

Despite the drawbacks, activities are taking place at the former elementary gymnasium on Novi Road nearly every day. "It's an open facility. Anyone can use it," Parks and Recreation Director Thomas O'Branovic explained. And just about everyone does.

For example, the 2,500-square-foot building is used for senior citizen exercise classes three mornings a week. Karate classes meet Tuesday evening, Monday through Friday. The Oakland Livingston Human Services Agency (OLISA) maintains daytime office hours at the building.

Stage Productions uses the facility for rehearsals at least one night a week and holds its performances there on weekends, as well.

Each Thursday the VFW sponsors bingo at the community building. Friday and Saturday evenings often are booked for private parties such as bridal showers or wedding receptions. Sunday morning the Good Shepherd Evangelical Lutheran Church holds worship services there.

Some groups call six months to a year in advance to reserve the facility. The community building, O'Branovic said, is inexpensive — $100 a day for residents — and offers the only large meeting place for community groups in Novi. "Parks and recreation really doesn't run a lot of (activities) there," O'Branovic noted. Parks and recreation uses the community building primarily for special events, such as the upcoming Spring Sports and Recreation Equipment Sale April 20.

O'Branovic: 'Certainly with the availability of space (in the new facility) we will be able to do a lot of things... What we could do is limited only by our imaginations.'

"One of the problems with the building is, if you have one group using the building, that's it. There's only one room," he noted.

Other problems include little storage space, a slowly deteriorating tile floor and a kitchen that can be used only for serving because it is not up to code.

In addition, security has become a problem at the community building. "Being next to a school which is empty makes it difficult," O'Branovic commented. There usually is no full-time supervision while the building is in use.

Groups are required to clean up after their events, but this also is sometimes a problem. Some groups have left the facility "in a wreck," O'Branovic admitted.

But even without these problems, the city would be faced with the need to relocate the community center. The Novi Road property where the current center is located soon will be sold for development, O'Branovic noted.

"We'll try to work it out so we can stay there as long as possible," he said. But he anticipates having to find a temporary location for some activities until the proposed Novi Civic Center with its 20,000-square-foot community building is completed.

The new civic center complex is to be located between the Police Department and the Public Library off Ten Mile. Half of the new building will be devoted to administrative offices, while the other half will hold the community center.

A rough outline of facilities to be included in the new community center was presented at a public hearing last week.

The Civic Center Planning Committee, of which O'Branovic is a member, reported approximately 20,650 square feet in the new civic building will be devoted to the community center. It will include parks and recreation department offices, as well as Youth Assistance offices.

In addition, the committee has proposed that this center include a large multi-purpose room with a stage, a large meeting/activities room, a smaller meeting/activities room, a conference center with three conference rooms and a games room.

"Certainly with the availability of space (in the new facility) we will be able to do a lot of things," O'Branovic noted. Although it will be at least two years before the new facility could be built, O'Branovic already has begun to think about expanding parks and recreation activities.

"A preschool program will be a possibility," he noted. The provision of daytime care for youngsters would enable more mothers to participate in daytime programs, he explained.

"What we could do is only limited by our imaginations." Ultimately, O'Branovic said he would like to expand programs for all age groups.

Only one type of activity currently held in the Novi Community Building is likely to be limited or eliminated in the new facility. "The committee is leaning heavily toward eliminating private parties," O'Branovic noted. Although there will be a kitchen in the new building, wedding receptions, showers or other private parties and parties probably will not be allowed.

"We don't anticipate any real growth in staff," he commented. However, some part-time clerical or night staff may be needed because of the additional hours, he added.

The parks and recreation department plans to update a community survey conducted several years ago to determine new interests that might be served as the department prepares to expand into its new facility.

Area legislators take aim at smokers

LANSING — Smokers, watch out. If two Detroit area legislators get their way, smokers will be banned from indulging their habits in public places.

State Senator Jack Faxon (D-Farmington Hills) and Representative Justine Barns (D-Westland) are making another effort to legislate restrictions on smoking in public places. Faxon and Barns recently introduced Michigan Clean Indoor Air Bills in the state Senate and House simultaneously.

The bills provide for smoke-free areas in public places such as schools, stores, offices and other work places. Smoking would still be allowed in designated areas.

"It covers all public places," said Faxon. "All we're saying is that in public places there will be designated areas for smokers."

Already statutes either prohibit smoking or restrict it to designated areas in restaurants, supermarkets, hospitals and nursing homes, Faxon noted.

"We've already covered a number of institutions and places with other legislation," he said.

What Faxon's bill does is expand previous legislation to cover all public places, such as offices, public schools, banks, city halls, police departments and other facilities that serve the public.

If the bills become law, smoking restrictions would not apply to private schools, public spaces where employees are covered by union agreements concerning smoking and facilities which are used for private social functions.

Admitting his bill needs some refinement, Faxon said the bottom line is simply to protect non-smokers from having to endure a smoke-filled environment.

"Smoking is harmful. But that smoke is also harmful to non-smokers," said Faxon, referring to "second-hand smoke" which is causing non-smokers to develop health problems generally associated with smoking.

"If people want to die smoking, no one is stopping them," he said. "Rights to clean air are primary and paramount to our consideration."

Surprisingly, Faxon said a telephone survey conducted last year shows that this type of legislation is favored by both smokers and non-smokers. That survey showed that 82.5 percent of the respondents support smoking restrictions. Among smokers polled in the survey, 73.9 percent favor the proposed law.

If the bills become law, violators will receive a $25 fine, Faxon said. But "it's up to the individuals (in a public place) to expect the needs of their enforcement," he added.

For example, in an office where all employees are smokers, "no one is violating" and consequently there is no need for enforcement or the fine.

In any public place covered under the law, it is up to those in charge to determine whether a special space should be designated as a smoking area.

"It's an option (under the bill). You don't have to," Faxon said. Supporters of the proposed law recognize the variety of office settings. A bank, for example, would be considered a public place where smoking could be prohibited. But a private office within the bank where the manager may work could be a place where smoking is allowed. That's because the public would not readily walk in and through that area.

In states which have laws similar to what Faxon is proposing, there has been little need to slap anyone with a penalty for violating the statutes, he said.

"Enforcement of this type of statute, often causes a kind of rhabarbar. Under the 25-year-old law prohibiting smoking in elevators there have been few, if any, enforcement problems," he said.

"People don't smoke on elevators. People are law-abiding," Faxon said. In fact, in the state with smoking restriction statutes, Faxon continued, "there's been no evidence to show there has been any public resistance to these statutes. There's been no widespread attempt to violate the law."

NOVI — Paul Wingert, a cellist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and pianist Fontaine Laing will be presented in a recital in a public place at 4:00 p.m. Sunday, April 14, at 3 p.m.

The performance will be held in the Faith Community United Presbyterian Church at 4400 West Ten Mile. Admission is $3, and a reception will follow the program.

Wingert, a native Detroit, grew up in a musical family. He began his musical studies on piano at the age of five and began studying the cello when he was nine years old.

While in high school he studied with Oliver Edel, who was then professor of cello at the University of Michigan. Wingert soloed with the Cass Technical High School Symphony Orchestra, the Michigan Youth Symphony Orchestra, the World Youth Symphony Orchestra at Interlochen and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

As a high school senior, he participated in a master class conducted by Mstislav Rostropovich at the University of Michigan. He was the recipient of numerous awards and scholarships, including a four-year, full-tuition scholarship to attend the University of Michigan's School of Music.

While attending the University of Michigan, he studied with Samuel Mayes and was a member of the Toledo Symphony Orchestra.

Upon graduating in 1979, Wingert became a member of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and currently is principal cellist with the Dearborn Symphony.

He has performed locally with the Oakway Symphony Orchestra, the Dearborn Summer Symphony Orchestra and, most recently, with the professional atmosphere.

Novi Library will host music show Saturday

NOVI — To highlight National Library Week, the Novi Public Library will feature a special visit by singer-composer Diane Baker this Saturday (April 13) at 1 p.m.

Baker is known throughout southern Michigan for writing and composing musical programs with elementary school children. Through her Songs Alive program, started in 1974, she has created several school musicals on the subject of Michigan history such as the history of Ann Arbor, the city of Flint and a musical celebrating Michigan's lumbering era called "Timber."

Baker's program at the Novi Library will include group involvement with children and adults participating in singing, spontaneous improvising and learning to use an old-time rhythm instrument called a limbertory.

A limbertory is a whittled dancing toy with moveable joints. By tucking one end under your leg and hitting the other end with your hand, the toy dances and beats out a rhythm to accompany your songs.

The Saturday program is free and open to all ages. No registration is necessary. For further information, call the library at 349-0720.

Musicians wail away at Isolation Station

By B.J. MARTIN
staff writer

NOVI — With its day-glo orange exterior, neo-psychedelic sign and maximum-economy architecture, the Isolation Station at 41850 Grand River is exactly the kind of building city officials would prefer to zone underground.

To most people, it's just not an appealing-looking place. But to a musician, the rehearsal/rehearsing facility looks like a branch office of heaven.

Inside the unpromising exterior there's a professional-quality eight-track studio suitable for producing vinyl-ready recordings or demo tapes at an uncommonly low rate of $25 per hour.

As important, the Isolation Station provides a place where, for $10 an hour, a fledgling group can make as much noise and as many mistakes as it is able.

And there are no next-door neighbors to complain — hence the name of the business.

Masterminding the one-man operation is Steve Dansby, a Garden City native who took a chance on a rock 'n' roll career in the early '70s. His credits include a stint in the moderately popular band Centarus, performing with legendary drummer Bud Miksa, and recording dates with Foghat, one of the most successful hard-rock bands of the '70s.

While Dansby didn't get particularly rich or well-known, his 14 years as a professional musician did net him ample experience to draw on for his new business.

"It's something I've always dreamed of — having a place I could go and make music any time I wanted to," Dansby explains. "I get pretty hectic, because I'm interested in lots of different areas of the music business."

That's an understatement. Dansby is a talented producer, recording engineer, songwriter/performing artist and an in-demand session guitarist. He is moving into promoting acts, and directing demo videos, all the while encouraging local musicians to give their ideas a try.

He's run the Isolation Station since July of last year, shortly after it was converted from a truck repair shop. With some technical aid, Dansby did much of the work building recording and isolation booths plus various sound-enhancing modifications.

"The previous owners were about to get rid of the building, and weren't sure what kind of business would want it," Dansby says. "I thought it was a great location, right near the highway."

"I used to see a lot of these kinds of places when I was living in California," he adds. "But I know of only a few places around here that do this sort of thing."

"Everyone who's been in the business knows that one of the hardest things is finding a place to work on your music. So rather than doing it at somebody's house where your neighbors are ready to call the police, this is a place where a professional atmosphere."

Because Dansby is the sole operator of his business, the overhead is quite low, keeping his rates within reach of bands on a shoestring budget.

"I like it that way," Dansby says. "I'd like to keep the costs low, but many add on another studio or two. It's really a good bargain. If you're in a four-piece band, that comes out to $2.50 per hour per person for an hour."

Dansby said there is much demand for the studio at night ("A lot of people who rent time here have regular jobs and work on their music in their spare time, he says"). But he adds, "It's relatively easy to schedule time during the day on short notice."

Keeping up with the 24-hour nature of his business puts a bit of strain on Dansby. "Yeah, the other day I was here from 3 a.m. to 7 a.m., and sometimes I've had to stay here when somebody's booked the studio for a whole week or for a whole weekend," he says.

"You've got to hustle sometimes. You have to be on call."

A musician showing up at the studio has at his disposal a "house" drum set, amps, P.A., synthesizer, piano — even a refrigerator.

If the artist desires, Dansby will also help with arranging, producing, finding studio musicians, writing songs and even playing.

If he or she wants to record, Dansby will engineer a recording on eight-track reel-to-reel tape. Each of the eight tracks on the tape permit a musician to "layer" his music by recording up to eight separate instruments or vocal tracks on top of each other.

For example, the musician uses all eight tracks, playing one instrument on each, Dansby can then adjust the instruments' sound levels at the mixing board, giving each instrument the appropriate volume and tone.

The layered recording process is called "multiple tracking" or "overdubbing," and was pioneered almost four decades ago. Since that time, it has become the typical production style for popular records, but it is less common in jazz and classical recordings because of the different demands of those types of music.

Among the popular artists who often play all the instruments and sing all the lead and backing vocals on their songs through multiple tracking are Stevie Wonder and Paul McCartney.

Almost all hit pop records are now produced in 16 or 32-track studios, but Dansby believes in most cases that many tracks aren't necessary. "There's a group that was booking time at a really expensive 16-track studio who heard tapes we made here, and they all said ours sounded lots better," he says.

Dansby has occasionally arranged with QCA, a Cincinnati record-producing plant, the pressing of 45 rpm singles made from Isolation Station recordings. "We're able to offer musicians a package, where if they want, we can get QCA to print 200-700 singles for the group to pass around or sell."

Adding video to the capacities of his studio, Dansby feels, gives his business just one more dimension. "Groups can use video as a promotional thing, whether they're a wedding-type band or trying to make it big. It makes it easy for a band owner or record company person to audition the band," he explains.

For more information about the Isolation Station call 348-3470.

may add on another studio or two. It's really a good bargain. If you're in a four-piece band, that comes out to $2.50 per hour per person for an hour."

Dansby said there is much demand for the studio at night ("A lot of people who rent time here have regular jobs and work on their music in their spare time, he says"). But he adds, "It's relatively easy to schedule time during the day on short notice."

Keeping up with the 24-hour nature of his business puts a bit of strain on Dansby. "Yeah, the other day I was here from 3 a.m. to 7 a.m., and sometimes I've had to stay here when somebody's booked the studio for a whole week or for a whole weekend," he says.

"You've got to hustle sometimes. You have to be on call."

A musician showing up at the studio has at his disposal a "house" drum set, amps, P.A., synthesizer, piano — even a refrigerator.

If the artist desires, Dansby will also help with arranging, producing, finding studio musicians, writing songs and even playing.

If he or she wants to record, Dansby will engineer a recording on eight-track reel-to-reel tape. Each of the eight tracks on the tape permit a musician to "layer" his music by recording up to eight separate instruments or vocal tracks on top of each other.

For example, the musician uses all eight tracks, playing one instrument on each, Dansby can then adjust the instruments' sound levels at the mixing board, giving each instrument the appropriate volume and tone.

The layered recording process is called "multiple tracking" or "overdubbing," and was pioneered almost four decades ago. Since that time, it has become the typical production style for popular records, but it is less common in jazz and classical recordings because of the different demands of those types of music.

Among the popular artists who often play all the instruments and sing all the lead and backing vocals on their songs through multiple tracking are Stevie Wonder and Paul McCartney.

Almost all hit pop records are now produced in 16 or 32-track studios, but Dansby believes in most cases that many tracks aren't necessary. "There's a group that was booking time at a really expensive 16-track studio who heard tapes we made here, and they all said ours sounded lots better," he says.

Dansby has occasionally arranged with QCA, a Cincinnati record-producing plant, the pressing of 45 rpm singles made from Isolation Station recordings. "We're able to offer musicians a package, where if they want, we can get QCA to print 200-700 singles for the group to pass around or sell."

Adding video to the capacities of his studio, Dansby feels, gives his business just one more dimension. "Groups can use video as a promotional thing, whether they're a wedding-type band or trying to make it big. It makes it easy for a band owner or record company person to audition the band," he explains.

For more information about the Isolation Station call 348-3470.

"I like it that way," Dansby says. "I'd like to keep the costs low, but many add on another studio or two. It's really a good bargain. If you're in a four-piece band, that comes out to $2.50 per hour per person for an hour."

Dansby said there is much demand for the studio at night ("A lot of people who rent time here have regular jobs and work on their music in their spare time, he says"). But he adds, "It's relatively easy to schedule time during the day on short notice."

As We See It

Debate's missing, but benefits exist

There will not be a hotly-contested school board race in Novi this June.

The deadline for filing nominating petitions came and passed Monday afternoon with only two individuals — incumbents Sharon Felchat and Joan Daley — filing petitions.

Pelchat has served on the school board for 13 1/2 years and is seeking her fourth term. Daley has been a board member for the past 8 1/2 years and is seeking her third consecutive four-year term.

As a consequence, voters will find no competition for the school board seats on the June ballot, which will contain the names of two incumbents running for two vacancies — the ones created by the expiration of their current terms.

The situation is not unusual, at least in Novi school board races. There were three candidates for two vacancies in the 1984 school board race with incumbents Ron Milam and Norman Miller being challenged by William O'Brien. Even then it was not much of a race as O'Brien praised both his opponents for their performances as board members and barely campaigned for the seat.

The exception was in 1983 when the school board race attracted seven candidates, perhaps due to the fact that Board President Joel Colliard's decision not to seek reelection created a vacancy that was not being sought by an incumbent.

Prior to 1983, however, the situation was more or less what has occurred in recent years with incumbents running either unopposed or with only token opposition.

The general lack of competition in Novi school board races is an interesting phenomenon. Whereas board races in surrounding districts seem to attract sizable numbers of candidates and a variety of sometimes heated opinions on a variety of issues, school board races in Novi tend to be rather quiet affairs.

Although competition for board seats and healthy debate of relevant issues is a worthwhile exercise, we also perceive some major advantages to school districts in which voters appear satisfied with the way things are being run and educational concerns rate higher than political concerns.

Indeed, Novi residents — particularly the students — seem to be the beneficiaries of having a school district where administrators can administer educational policies instead of having to be aware of which direction the political winds are blowing. . . . and school board members can address educational issues instead of having to be concerned about which potential political candidate is waiting for them to make a slip of the tongue which can be exploited in an upcoming campaign.

The advantages might also be illustrated by Superintendent Robert Pivko's decision to withdraw from consideration for the position of superintendent of the Bloomfield Hills School District. Many would consider that position to be more prestigious than his current assignment, and certainly the salary is higher, but the Bloomfield Hills school board currently is involved in a dispute with outgoing Superintendent Fred Thorin. While the board and Thorin file suits and counter suits against each other, it is hard to believe that the quality of education is foremost in the minds of administrators and board members in that district.

In no way do we suggest that the situation is in Novi is ideal. Certainly it would be advantageous to have several candidates running for office and engaging in meaningful debate of relevant issues. Nevertheless, the community's apparent satisfaction with the way the school board and the school district are operating does lend itself to a situation where the quality of education can remain first and foremost in the minds of those individuals charged with making certain that students learn to the highest degree possible.

Real drama in staff meetings

I think they're crazy if they think people ordered cable TV to watch council meetings or some official reading them the minutes of this or that meeting on their local cable stations.

You want to televise something that involves the local community, yet still provides entertaining viewing? The solution is simple: broadcast the weekly editorial meetings here at the Northville Record/Novi News.

For video drama, I'll be we could outpull any council, board or commission meeting, and maybe Divorce Court and T.J. Hooker too. I can see it now. . . .

Watch an editorial meeting and it's: 'The turkeys really came up with a lulu last night, boss. They passed a law that requires lawns be mowed from right to left and all Democrats be branded with an D on their foreheads.'

Every week we'd open with some little "grabber." Maybe the first week it would show the first staffer walking in bleary-eyed Wednesday morning when suddenly the smoke detectors blast an ear-splitting siren.

The staffer doesn't react at all. Never looking up from his newspaper, he just calmly walks over to the kitchen and removes the coffee pot that's been left on all night. Freeze frame, fade to black and into the weekly intro.

The credits roll and the theme music starts up. Nothing bouncy like the theme from Cheers or Mary Tyler Moore. More like B.B. King's "Nobody Loves Me But My Mother and She Could Be Jiving, Too." On the screen we see the title, something like Danger: Deadline or Stop The Presses.

The theme music continues as one by one the stars are introduced: The Managing Editor (M.E.), The Editor, The Photographer, The Writers, and of course, their boss, The Receptionist.

As each name is flashed on the screen, we see little snippets of them in action: The M.E. playing Pac-Man. The Photographer haggling over doughnut prices at the bakery. One Writer trying to get his car started while his cute kid empties the contents of the glove compartment onto the floor. Another hiding her empty pop bottles behind a curtain. The Editor actually working. One Writer wrinkling her nose at another's ranch-style desk mess as if it were an open cadaver. Fade to black.

As the scene opens on the M.E.'s office as the staff files in with full-to-the-brim coffee cups, notes and copies

Help make coverage interesting

On a recent phone trip to San Diego, the young career woman sitting next to me obviously was working. She was preparing, explained, to attend an IBM seminar but over the weekend also was visiting west coast friends. It also developed that she and her husband were Novi residents.

Both are working in their careers, have no children, are apartment dwellers and both already had been to Puerto Valarta, Mexico — where I was headed for the first time. My tour group followed her right-on suggestion to eat at El Set, a mile and a half from town on the cliffs overlooking the beaches. (Now I could recommend also Chez Carlos on the hillside overlooking the lights of the harbour town at night.)

News photographer Steve Fecht has set a goal for all of us at The Novi News and The Northville Record: he wants to take more interesting pictures — pictures that tell a story. Recently, for example, instead of taking local Eagle Scouts receiving their badges, Steve and already is busy, I was interested in knowing why.

"We read it to know what's going on," she explained.

For those who produce local weekly newspapers, that's success.

The Novi News is local; it also is meeting oriented. We happen to believe, too, that our community is close enough to want to know who is running the (official) ships, who is volunteering, who is achieving — and who is just doing something interesting.

Sometimes, and particularly at this time of year, this policy can cause difficulties. It's club election time. Bringing requests for pictures of new officers. Schools and organizations are holding spring events — and all really would like to have their accomplishments noted pictorially.

But it was other information that was equally satisfying. She related that she is a subscriber to The Novi News. Since she and her husband represent a segment of our population that is not taking the paper for school news and imately 26.5 acres, including the 11-acre Novi Elementary School site.

The proposed project is described by the developers as an "off-price shopping center." City officials were so unimpressed about the proposal when it was presented in February, they decided to establish the Town Center Steering Committee to work with the developers to revise the plans.

Lenke has suggested a mid-rise hotel and office structures for the area, along with supporting restaurant and commercial uses.

Mayor Robert Schmidt, a member of the steering committee, immediately suggested the definition of "mid-rise" be limited to five stories. "This community, as of today, is a five-story community," he noted. To suggest anything other than five stories is a mistake, he added.

"I like the general, overall concept and the fact it's all knitted together," City Council and Steering Committee Member Ed Leininger commented. Committee Member Tom Marcus, owner of Marcus Glass, noted that business owners currently located in the Town Center will be concerned about what buildings are and are not shown on the map. The business owners already have "a bad taste in their mouths" he said.

"What we see (in 10-20 years) will be miles from this proposal. But it's a starting point," Committee Chairperson and City Council Member Ron Watson responded.

"It guides only two or three projects properly, it will be worth the investment," Rogers added.

Committee members expressed concern over the possibility of the first development in the Town Center being the proposed Weatherford Walker discount center.

"The first development will set the trend. We're really in a position to set the pace of what we want to see happen," Leininger commented.

Several committee members, including Leininger, said they did not want to consider the proposed discount center development. The committee unanimously preferred Lenke's proposal for mid-rise hotel and office development in the area.

Reason is needed

There is much talk of dreams in Novi these days . . . auto racing museums, a uniquely developed Town Center, convention centers and civic centers.

According to Planning Consultant Brandon Rogers, those dreams can become reality as long as they are "firmly rooted in what is existing."

The newest dream, that of an auto racing museum for Novi, was discussed in a brainstorming session last week. Initiated by Dick Lee, publisher of the Michigan Motor Racing Yearbook, the meeting generated enthusiasm among local officials. Later this month a committee will be established to investigate funding and determine the feasibility of having such a museum in Novi.

Gary Cooper draw, of course.

But I resisted the temptation and said simply, "I spend a lot of quarters on this machine, if that's what you mean."

"I want to play you," he said. "I want to see if you're as good as they say you are."

I declined the challenge. Not because I was afraid to pit my skills against his, but because a game of Ms. Pac-Man takes about 30 minutes. And with two good players going at it at the same time . . . well, you're talking an hour and I had already promised my wife I'd be home for supper 10 minutes ago.

It had all the flavor of a John Wayne western.

There I was, standing in front of the Ms. Pac-Man machine, when someone from out-of-town came up behind me.

"They tell me you're pretty good at this game," he said.

I was tempted to come back at him with something like, "Well, they tell you right, partner." All in my best Gary Cooper draw, of course.

Besides I had just plopped a quarter in the machine and wasn't about to blow off my game just for an opportunity to take on this out-of-towner . . . show him that we country folk know what to do in front of a video machine.

But that didn't stop him from watching me play and carrying on a broken monologue as I was whipping through board after board.

He said the best player in Detroit is a guy named something or other and that his hotshot averages about 190,000 per game.

I just stayed cool and moved through another board.

By the time it was all over I had chalked up a score of 178,900 — not 190,000, but my best score ever and good enough to at least be considered in the ballpark "with the best player in Detroit."

The out-of-towner watched in steely-eyed silence.

Finally, after my last man had bitten the dust, he gave me one last shot.

"You're definitely above average," he said. Under the circumstances, I took it as the ultimate compliment.

Amendment links convention center

Consultant Brandon Rogers last month. After the planning board reviewed the preliminary draft, Rogers revised the proposed ordinance amendment.

The most significant change was the addition of a section regulating the timing of the proposed development.

"According to the new provision, if anything other than a convention center is proposed within the convention district prior to the construction of a convention center, the developer(s) must 'provide performance guarantees to the city that the convention facility will be built,'" Rogers also altered the setback requirements from his original draft of the convention district ordinance.

"The consultant's initially proposed setback of at least 100 feet between buildings in the convention district. But Al pointed out this requirement might make it impossible to connect the hotel addition to the convention center with a walkway as proposed."

The revised ordinance amendment calls for buildings within the convention district to be at least 50 feet from one another.

"I would just as soon give the developer the flexibility to move the buildings around as needed," Planning Board Member Joseph Toth commented.

"I was trying to reduce the (building) mass of a convention center and hotel. I was trying to space out the density of the development," Rogers explained.

But he noted that centralizing buildings in the development is energy efficient for the developers, as well as time-saving for patrons.

Another change in the proposed ordinance requires special amenities for buildings more than 30 feet high. The requirements, several of which also apply in the city's Town Center district, include:

- Design that reflects "good urban design" and is compatible with other buildings on the site.
- Placement of art in a public area.
- Greater landscaping within parking areas, including traffic islands, pedestrian walkways and greenbelts. These landscaped areas must comprise at least 3 percent of the surface parking area.
- Sheltered pedestrian walkways interconnecting the building to other parts of the convention facility.

'City kids' welcome at this farm

By SHARON ROSE
news special writer

NOVI — Old MacDonald had a farm, but he didn't have anything on Novi's homesteaders, Margaret and Larry Schmidt. In fact, the Schmidts might have taught the old farmer a thing or two.

A visit to "Maple Woods Homestead," their cozy red house, five acres of land and all their creatures, great and small, is an interesting and educational experience which the average city-dweller shouldn't miss.

If you call in advance, Margaret will give you her grand tour, which includes introductions to and information about their big red pig, Miss Ralphina (watch out for her teeth), their sheep, Larry and Moe (Curly's in the freezer), and a bevy of darling baby lambs you can cuddle them and take home a sample of their wool to tuck in the toes of your ballet slippers.

There's entertainment, too. Maxie the wonder dog will show you how to keep the sheep in line, and some sassy geese perform a comical routine in which they honk menacingly, but retreat like cowards if you get too close. After a quick visit to the home of Mr. E. Bunny, you'll be ready for the maple syrup demonstration.

Margaret's story-style explanation of how Indians made the sticky stuff is enhanced by the backdrop of trees already tapped for sap, plastic cartons hanging from spouts, and enormous pans of the sap boiling furiously on an outdoor fire. Sample tastes of both sap and syrup are the perfect reward for good attention.

When the Schmidts moved to Novi 10 years ago, they were into alternative life styles. Margaret had grown up in a similar situation. "My mother always had a garden, chickens and ducks, so I was kind of inclined in this direction. But this is all new to Larry. Fortunately, he's very handy and likes working outdoors. He's adapted pretty well."

Schmidt: 'I try to be realistic about my animals. I think in terms of bacon for our freezer and potential wool markets.'

Margaret explained, "We try to live as simply as possible, and raise as much of our own food as we can." In addition to the animals, there is an orchard with cherry, peach and apple trees, and a vegetable garden. The Schmidts and their three daughters — Jill, 17, Anna, 8, and Sarah, 5 — heat their home with wood, even though they do have a furnace. "We turned it on once this winter, just to make sure it still worked," said Margaret.

Things haven't always been easy or gone smoothly. Experiments with a cow proved discouraging ("They're noisy and take up a lot of space"), their three little pigs escaped from their pen and terrorized the chickens, and the first attempt to establish an orchard were a dismal failure.

"The first time I made maple syrup, I tried to do it in the house," Margaret recalled. "We had rain in the kitchen — what a mess!" Perhaps it's Margaret's background as a teacher that prompted her to share their learning experiences. After obtaining a BS degree from Michigan State University, she spent two years as a Peace Corps volunteer teaching in Venezuela, then returned to teach in the Lakeview School District in St. Clair Shores for six years.

When Sarah attended Faith Community United Presbyterian Preschool recently, her teacher, Kara Furcht, asked if the class could visit the homestead. Since then, there has been a fairly steady stream of students and small groups taking Margaret's guided tour and learning about their self-sufficient lifestyle.

Margaret's tours are fun as well as educational, but make no mistake, homesteading is not for the lazy or faint-hearted. Before you put out a "For Sale" sign and start looking for a few acres, consider the "night watch," a 3 a.m. stint with sheep about to lamb, or the lambs themselves. They are adorably-leggy animals of fluff, but don't expect sentiment from Margaret. Forty minutes after they were born she was talking about lamb chops.

"I try to be realistic about my animals," explained Margaret seriously. "I think in terms of bacon for our freezer and potential wool markets." Indeed, she's vice president of the Michigan Black Sheep Producers, and aims to produce a good quality wool for hand spinners. "Next fall I should have some nice fleece to sell," she said.

"This winter she bought a spinning wheel and hopes eventually to learn to weave. "The spinning wheel is really just a teaching tool. I like physically active work. Someday when I want to slow down and sit more, I'll get better." Last fall, Larry and Margaret started Novi's 4H Club, and are active members. They especially enjoy the family type activities that membership provides, and the closeness that develops between children as they work on projects together.

In a remarkable piece of understatement, Margaret lists "never being bored" as a benefit of the homesteader's life. On the practice side, she admits that it's very satisfying to "look around the table at mealtime and realize that the only thing we bought is milk."

And there's the same sense of pride in their accomplishments. "It's exciting to learn first hand about the animals and orchards. I love what I'm doing, and I like to share what I've learned with others," Margaret said. "It's not the life for everybody. But it's for me." This year the Schmidts are charging $10 per group for the tour, and hold an occasional open house for individuals. Margaret also will bring the farm to you if the occasion warrants. She has developed a program which includes a "sounds of the farm" tape, slides, wool samples, sap and syrup tasting and a special visit with one of her lambs. For reservations call 949-1226.

Need a good investment? Start saving Barbie Dolls

Looking for a hot investment? Go no further than your children's toy chest. According to Alan Crittenden, editor of "The Almanac of Investments," Barbie Dolls, her friends and their accessories are the hottest investments, even better than Apple Computer stock. Any Barbie doll over 10 years old is valuable, said Crittenden, and those in excellent condition vary in resale value from $30 to $1,000. Prices for Barbie accessories also have risen at doll auctions around the country. $1,000 was paid for Tull's bedroom set. And $800 bought Barbie's stewardess outfits from the mid-'60s.

Milford man offers delivery to airport for area commuters

By MATT SEIDL

Detroit has one. New York has one. Chicago has one. And Los Angeles definitely has one.

Of course, the area of Milford, South Lyon, Novi and Northville also has one now.

The connecting link from the otherwise matter-of-fact communities is an airport passenger delivery service. Beginning last December, Milford resident Edgar Beatty brain-stormed with a few business associates and came up with the "Airport Special."

"The idea, or suggestion, really came from Barb Cien of the Howell Travel Service," Beatty said. "She talks to a lot of people who could benefit from something like this, so she kind of passed the idea on to me."

"We're still very much in the early stages, but we're confident of the potential here," he continued. "The idea is great; now we just have to adjust things so that the customers are accommodated."

Beatty, who owns a corporation called Edgar Beatty and Company, is very enthusiastic about his latest activity. Currently, though, he's in the middle of attempting to solidify a system.

The transportation is handled by a four-wheel-drive Chevy Suburban truck, which comfortably carries seven passengers. Beatty has two part-time drivers who have been transporting people to and from Metropolitan Airport since December.

"We have had a great deal of business yet, but the response from the people who have used our service has been very positive," Beatty said.

"We want to make this happen," he added. "Right now, we're usually running just one or two passengers at a time. In the future, though, we're interested in taking four, five or six at a time."

The main areas of concentration by Beatty and his team right now are Milford, Howell and Brighton. However, he says the service is unlimited and would provide transportation for any of the surrounding cities or villages.

A routine run, from Milford for example, would start with the customer calling for a pick-up, "preferably in advance," according to Beatty. Beatty then would notify one of his drivers, who would start the ball rolling.

In Milford, the pick-up place usually is the Milford Travel Service, but special arrangements have been made for disabled people and senior citizens.

From there, it's on to the airport. Beatty says that his service is full, providing luggage movement and "assistance in any way possible."

Airport Special also brings people home from Metropolitan. This is a process which obviously must be arranged in advance.

"When you're a young business, you have to be willing to try anything," Beatty admitted. "We'll do pretty much everything right now. We need to find out what people's needs are and work up from there."

"For instance, if we're picking you up at Metro and your plane is late, we'll wait two hours if we have to. A major company, let's say in New York, would be very positive," Beatty said.

MANY ARBOR DRUG STORES now have the latest trend in vending machines — video tape dispensing machines.

Arbor Drugs recently installed 12 video machines at various store locations in the area. They include Arbor of Northville at 133 East Dundar, Arbor of Walled Lake at 1192 West Maple, Arbor of Milford at 963 Summit, Arbor of West Bloomfield at 4389 Orchard Lake Road and Arbor of Livonia at 28598 Seven Mile in Livonia.

By fall, all Arbor Drug locations will have a video tape dispensing machine in an effort to further customer service.

The easy-to-operate video machine accepts Mastercard and Visa credit cards. Price to rent a tape is $2.99 for the first 24 hours and $2 for each additional day, which, the firm states, is very competitive and requires no membership fee. Once a week the machine receives new and current selections, plus selections of classic Hollywood movies.

She was contacted to analyze prehistoric plant remains recovered from a series of excavations which came about because a dam was being built that would eventually flood a number of culturally significant archeological sites. The excavation was a federally-funded attempt to lessen the damage to these sites.

Ford Research Engineer Joe Byars checks the windshield's performance in a cold test room

Ford introduces new windshield option

A new, clear, electrically-heated windshield has been developed by researchers at Ford Glass Division for introduction later this year on the 1986-model Mercury Sable and Ford Taurus, according to D.E. Siddall, general manager of Ford Glass Division.

Based on technology developed for solar-control architectural glass, the optional InstaClear windshield clears away ice and frost within two minutes and relies on a metallic coating applied directly to the glass.

Siddall said Ford tests show that the InstaClear system can remove a tenth of an inch of heavy windshield frost at a temperature of zero degrees Fahrenheit in two to three minutes without the aid of windshield wipers. Defrosting a conventional windshield with only the car's defroster-blower takes 15 minutes or more.

"As more and more car owners have an opportunity to use this type of electrically-heating windshield, we expect it to become almost as popular as today's heated rear window," Siddall said.

Although both the heated InstaClear windshield and heated rear window are designed to produce the same result — a frost-free, fog-free view — each system uses entirely different technology.

A typical automotive windshield is actually two relatively thin sheets of annealed glass sandwiched around a sheet of clear vinyl. Glass Division engineers have applied an ultra-thin (100 billionths of a meter) of silver and zinc oxide to one of the inner surfaces. A thicker band of silver is painted around the perimeter of the windshield to serve as a conductor. Two wires at the base of the windshield attach to the car's alternator. With a flick of a switch, the metallic coating transmits heat throughout the windshield, clearing away frost within minutes.

Heated rear windows, on the other hand, depend on small conductive ceramic lines printed on a single sheet of glass. The printed circuit would interfere too much with visibility for use on the windshield.

"The new windshield should make safe winter driving a lot easier," Siddall said. "We eventually plan to make it available for all car models, and we also are looking at some retrofit applications."

Although 1986-model prices have not been established, the InstaClear option is expected to carry a suggested retail price of about $250 at introduction. It will be produced at Ford's Niagara Glass Plant in Canada.

"This new feature isn't meant to replace a conventional in-car defroster system," said Siddall. "A blower still will be necessary to help clear side windows and maintain visibility while the car is being driven."

The current system isn't Ford Glass Division's first experience with heated windshield technology. A similar option was offered on some luxury models between 1974 and 1976. At the time, thin sheets of gold-coated polyester were sandwiched into the windshield. The gold sheets, however, were difficult to work with and the overall price was nearly twice the amount of the new option.

Road builders cite employment levels

Some 1,200 more workers were employed on highway construction in 1984 than in 1983, according to figures obtained recently by the Michigan Road Builders Association (MRBA).

The MRBA said highway and street construction contractors had a total employment of approximately 4,900 on-site employees in 1984, an employment gain of 32 percent over the course of one year.

The MRBA's figures show that approximately 7,700 on-site employees worked only 4,922 million hours in this area of construction in Michigan in 1983. It also was the year with the highest unemployment rate for the industry. In 1983 employment was down 25 percent from 1980 which was a good year for highway and street construction and repair.

In comparison, 1984 was only two percent below 1980 when approximately 5,000 on-site employees spent 6,576 million hours engaged in the construction of highways, roads, streets and bridges. Nearly 6.475 million hours were worked by on-site employees in the industry last year.

"These figures only take into account on-site employee hours for work on public construction projects, such as repair to primary and secondary roads and bridges. It does not take into effect the additional employment of private construction projects."

Lawrence Martin, executive director of the MRBA, said the figures demonstrate that the highway construction industry is back on its feet. "We are almost back to the employment level the industry had before the recession."

"The increase in state and federal funding provided these needed jobs. This has had a great impact on reducing unemployment in the state."

Strings come attached to 'zero coupon bonds'

Sales campaigns for houses, cars and furniture using "free" or "bonus" zero coupon bonds frequently are misleading or neglect to inform consumers of potential "traps" related to the securities, according to the latest edition of Investor Alert, a quarterly publication of the North American Securities Administrators Association (NASAA) and the Council of Better Business Bureaus (CBBB).

The Alert explains: "State securities regulators and Better Business Bureaus have observed a disturbing new trend in 'zero-based' sales campaigns which frequently fail to inform consumers of the current value of the bonds, tax consequences, possible liquidity problems and the extreme susceptibility to interest rate fluctuations when 'zeros' are redeemed prior to maturity."

Investors have purchased zero coupon bonds with a total face value of more than $100 billion in the last two years. The Alert illustrates the problems with "zeros" used to hype sales of houses and other items. Several states have recently banned or sharply restricted the use of zero coupon bonds to promote retail sales.

"The Alert highlights potential problems with the use of zero coupon bonds as sales promotions and provides a checklist to avoid these pitfalls."

The Alert also states that "zeros" are just like any other investment and recommends that the following steps be followed before a decision is made to buy or sell:

- Determine the current price of "zeros" offered as sales promotions.
- Find out about the tax consequences of the "zero" offered.

"Don't be misled by the words 'government-guaranteed' or similar phrases."
• Remember there is no such thing as a free lunch.
• Ask about the markup if you're buying the "zero" bond from a broker.
• Get access to information about the resale market for the bonds if you are planning to sell prior to maturity.
• If the "zero" is offered in a sales promotion take the time to contact your state securities regulator.
• Contact a tax advisor if you're getting a "zero" with a new house.
• Remember that all bonds carry the risk that the bond issuer may not be able to pay the face 10 or 20 years down the road.
• "Zero coupon bonds are not the same as the air conditioners, china sets and Las Vegas trips that retailers sometimes use as 'freebies' to entice customers," said Thomas Ashcraft, Detroit BBB President. "A zero coupon bond is an investment and should be dealt with as such."

Firm delivers to airport

more than likely move on to its next customer."
"The drive from Milford is 45 miles, compared to 54 from Brighton and 57 from Howell."
Airport Special does not run on a schedule, either. "The crew has been on the road during all hours of the night, something that is a must in this field, according to Beatty."
"The current cost for a one-way trip is $25 per person. If a family is involved, however, Beatty says there usually is some type of special rate.
As for the types of people who are taking advantage of the service, it has been fairly wide-spread. Business-oriented people are the most common, but there has yet to be a trend.
"We're just trying to run the service like an old-fashioned American business," said Beatty. "We want to give people their money's worth, and do things according to the way they want it done."
"We also want to give the service a home-town flavor. We kind of want to personalize it."
If all goes as planned for Beatty and Company, it sounds as if the ride to Metro may be a little special.

Existing home sales rebound to levels reached during 1980

Existing home sales are continuing to rise, according to Metro MLS which reported that the 1,560 sales during March represented the highest month since May 1980.

The 3,594 sales by members of the multiple listing service in the first three months of 1985 marked the best first quarter since 1979.

March sales also showed a 27.6 percent jump from February and ran more than 10 percent above a year ago. The average price for the month at $61,599 dropped from the record $62,945 posted in February, but the quarterly average of $61,347 was up six percent from 1984.

Indicating continued improvement in the sales picture is the fact that the number of listings in demand that remains to be satisfied. Many so-called 'bought' homes have held off home-buying decisions, but many are now ready to move into the market from a position of affluence. They will be a strong factor in the market, particularly toward the higher end of the price scale.

Also demonstrating the increased strength of the existing home market was a near 30 percent drop in listing withdrawals and price reductions from 1984.

"Mortgage interest rates are continuing to fluctuate only slightly month by month and show no clear upward or downward trend," said Robert F. Craver, Metro MLS president. "With no imminent prospect for solution to federal deficit problems, buyers apparently are not looking for a significant decline in rates and increasing numbers are making their move now."

"Unless rates do jump sharply, we see continuing growth in the housing market," Craver continued. "The long recessionary period left a lot of pent up demand that remains to be satisfied. Many so-called 'bought' homes have held off home-buying decisions, but many are now ready to move into the market from a position of affluence. They will be a strong factor in the market, particularly toward the higher end of the price scale."

KOHL & KOTSIS
Associates in Law... and Life

Story by Patricia N. Bowling
Photos by Steve Fecht

NOVI — Chrysanthe Kotsis and David Kohl are partners — partners in career, in marriage and in parenting. She was a 1976 cum laude graduate of the Detroit College of Law. He graduated from the same school a year earlier. "That's where we met," Kohl explains. They started their careers together in a Southfield law firm and soon established the ground floor of their partnership, becoming husband and wife in 1977. They tried a few cases together as a husband/wife team in those early years. "But that was before we had any kids," Kohl notes. If the remark contains any nostalgia for those less complicated years, it is only slight. Kohl, 37, is positioned on the edge of the sofa in their two-story Village Oaks home, springing nonchalantly to his feet every so often to retrieve John, a rambunctious three-year-old. Coming from a family of six children perhaps helped prepare Kohl for the nonstop activity in juggling career, marriage and family. Their first child, Rebecca, came along about three years into their careers. Kotsis had no intention of abandoning her practice in small business, corporate and domestic law, so she adjusted her work schedule to accommodate the baby. "With long hours the week and on Saturdays, I decided not to go back (with the firm)," she explains. After a few months at home with the baby, Kotsis started working on her own. In January 1980 she opened a private office at Maple and Telegraph in Birmingham. "Becky came with me to the office a lot," she recalls. "I kept a playpen in the corner." Whenever Kotsis had court appearances, Becky stayed with her grandmother less than a mile away in Franklin. Now a lovely six-year-old with her mother's dark hair and eyes, Becky still makes regular visits to her mother's law office. "We're together a lot," Kotsis says with an affectionate smile at Becky. "And she's real good at the office." Becky says she likes spending time at her mother's office. When asked if she'd like to be a lawyer too someday, the six-year-old issues an unequivocal, "Yup." Becky's brother, John, also was a familiar figure in his mother's workplace. He was born in April 1982 just five days after Kotsis completed a court trial. "My client was just hoping I wouldn't have the baby before the case was finished," she recalls. Ten days after John's birth, Kotsis was back in court again. What would push most women to the edge of sanity Kohl handles with alarming ease. The reporter suggests that balancing the responsibilities of professional, wife and mother must be an onerous task. The 34-year-old shrugs. "You just kind of juggle a lot of things at once," she explains. "I take out Monday mornings for John," she notes. From 10-11:30 a.m. she participates in the Novi Community Education "Time for Two's" program. Then she takes John to the Growing Place day care center. Meanwhile, Becky is in kindergarten at Village Oaks Elementary. A special bus takes her from the school to the Growing Place, where Kotsis picks up both of them around 6 p.m. "That's the Monday-Wednesday schedule, Kotsis explains. The Tuesday-Thursday-Friday schedule calls for the children to spend the day with one of their grandmothers. With her mother in Franklin and Kohl's mother in Northville, trustworthy child care is always nearby. "I also have three sisters within a mile radius. It helps in an emergency. They've all been real supportive." Obviously, there is not always someone around to help out in emergencies. One day last month Kohl headed out on an appointment and discovered his car had a flat tire. Kotsis just happened to be at the office with the children, and she agreed she would drive him to his court appointment. Unfortunately, the judge was late for Kohl's court hearing and Kotsis had to leave for her own appointment in Farmington Hills. John stayed at the court with his father, while Becky hurried off with her mother to Farmington Hills. Left in the courtroom with his three-year-old son, Kohl waited for the judge to call his case. When the matter finally came up, Kohl headed for the front of the courtroom, as John called out from the rear, "Daddy, where are you going?" On more normal days, if Kohl is home by 7 p.m. the family has dinner together. But since opening the new office in Novi Community, his hours have been ending in double digits most days. "We're not yet to the point of having a secretary. There are a lot of busy things to do. It's making for long hours now," he explains.

The housework gets done according to need — primarily when company is expected, Kohl adds. In traditional fashion, Kotsis takes on all cooking and laundry, while Kohl claims the lawn and garbage responsibilities. "Once in a while he's been known to scrub an occasional floor," Kotsis adds. Kotsis adds the children to bed around 9 or 9:30. "That's when I do the wash and get ready for the next day. I return (business) phone calls between 9 and 10:30." Weekends could hardly be called leisure time for Kohl and Kotsis. She is president of the Women Lawyers Association of Michigan and edits its newsletter. She also is a member of the Oakland County Bar Association and checks a boxload of bar exams twice a year. Both are members of the State Bar Representative Assembly, which requires trips to Lansing two or three times a year. "We did go to the show last night. I think it was the first time in about a year," she notes on this Saturday afternoon. Kohl adds they have a video cassette recorder and cable television and, therefore, a lot of their "leisure" hours are spent at home. The year typically includes a family vacation to Florida and a ski weekend — mom and dad's one weekend by themselves. Among their circle of friends are two other lawyer couples, "with the same hectic schedules and demands," they note. As Becky and John get older, the daily routine is picking up an increasing number of new commitments: Campfire Girls, swimming lessons, community education programs.

TAX TIPS

LEE E. HOLLAND, C.P.A.

CREDIT FOR CONSERVING ENERGY

The cost of energy will probably continue to be one of the major items in your family budget. For this reason you may have installed one or more energy-saving devices in your home. If you have installed any of these devices, you may be eligible for an energy credit deduction on your income tax. For instance, if you have installed components up to a maximum credit of $300. This would include a long list of items, in fact everything you've done to seal out cold drafts and cut down in the use of heat, hot water, and electricity.

If you've invested in one of the renewable energy resources, such as solar or geothermal energy, windpower, or hydroelectricity, the new IRS rules allow you to claim a credit equal to 40 percent of the first $10,000 spent on renewable energy sources. This would give you a maximum credit of $4,000.

Whatever you have done to conserve energy will have a stultifying effect on your income tax. For a review of these and other ways in which your income tax can be reduced, call us for an appointment.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe. It contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss! Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree? Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee!

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or your return. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

$19.95 — 30 day supply, or $35.95 — 60 day supply. Order immediately by sending a check or money order to: DYNALABS, 270 No. Canon Dr., Ste. 1255 (Dept. U-2) in Beverly Hills, CA, 90210. ## Auerbach addresses Town Hall

NORTHVILLE — Sylvia Auerbach, a woman who writes and teaches about money, will be the final speaker in Northville Town Hall's 1984-85 series at 11 a.m. April 18 at the Sheraton Oaks Hotel in Novi.

Auerbach, an editor and writer for Publishers Weekly and for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, has written two books on the techniques of managing money.

Town Hall chair Sandy Chouinard, in announcing Auerbach's appearance in place of Bess Abell, who canceled, says she is delighted to have Auerbach. "She's warm, she's intelligent, but there's not one ounce of pomposity in her body," she reports.

Auerbach was educated at the University of Pennsylvania, Columbia and the London School of Economics. Her books contain pertinent, practical facts and suggestions to help women master the techniques of managing money. "Your Money, How To Make It Stretch" was published in 1974 and was generally designed for young people. "A Woman's Book of Money," a guide to financial independence, has a publication date of August 27.

It includes sections on job and salary discrimination, marriage, divorce and widowhood, part-time jobs, having your own business, credit, taxes, insurance and wills.

This year Auerbach also will be teaching a course on money management to couples because her students have been taking their children to the home to read to their husbands.

The mother of two sons, Auerbach is married to Dr. Albert Auerbach, a biologist whose work in the field of heart pacemaker patents in their homes by means of a computer and telephone hookup.

Tickets for the 1985-86 silver anniversary season with Jayne Meadows, Bob Taylor, Ronna Romney and Steven Ford will go on sale the day of the lecture. Price remains at $29 for the series.

One can only wonder what was going through the mind of three-year-old Sara Freels when she wandered across a sign apparently marking the abode of Mr. E. Bunny recently. Sara ran across the celebrity address while on a field trip at Maple Woods Homestead in Novi with her preschool classmates from Village Oaks Elementary School. In addition to finding the Easter Bunny's home, students got to pet various farm animals and see how maple syrup is made while on their field trip to the Wixom Farm.

School announces winners of contest

WALLED LAKE — Three Walled Lake Junior High School students have been named local winners in the 16th annual America & Me Essay Contest sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance Company.

Mary Chuhran finished third. Lisa Amati finished second and Robert LaPointe came in third. Nancy Wisbart, an English teacher at Walled Lake Junior High, was coach for the contest.

Chuhran is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chuhran. Amati is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Art Amati and LaPointe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale LaPointe.

All three received award certificates for their achievement. As the school's first place winner, Chuhran's name will be engraved on a plaque for permanent display in the school.

In addition, her first place essay now advances to the state level competition from which the top 10 essays in Michigan will be selected.

The top 10 statewide winners, who will be announced in April, will receive plaques and U.S. savings bonds ranging from $20 to $1,000. The top 10 winners also will be honored at a banquet in Lansing and a meeting with Michigan's top governmental leaders.

A team of finalist judges that includes Governor James Blanchard and Lieutenant Governor Martha Griffiths will determine the top statewide winners.

The topic of the 1984-85 contest was "My Hope for America — And How I Can Help Achieve It." Following is the text of Chuhran's winning essay.

"My hope for America is one that has existed since the signing of the Constitution; freedom, peace, and the assurance that the children that I may bring into the world will receive more than what I have had. All Americans should ahead a day when the troubles of preceding times are solved. We hope for enough to support and care for our families, no matter who are, how we look, how we act or speak, or where we come from.

"I hope that one day my children can look to me for answers to the uncertainties of their future. I hope that this nation learns that we cannot forge ahead in technology when we still lag behind in humanity. This country cannot solve problems that may develop in the future when problems such as poverty still remain. I hope for a nation that can no longer fall back on words such as prejudice and minority, and an America that does not kill for an unknown cause.

"Even in such times as these, we, as a nation and as individuals, have that resource which the top 10 essays in challenges facing America. Work, commitment, belief, and having the courage to strike out on our own when others blindly follow are the main components to salvaging the hopes and dreams of our founding fathers. I can only hope that when the time comes for those of my generation and myself to take on the problems of modern day America, we will have learned as much to do so.

"We must, though, never look away from that responsibility. For if we do, even for a fraction of a moment, the possibilities of this country to become as truly great as it was destined to be, will slip away until all we see is its shadow."

Associates in life

Working out of the same office as his wife became appealing. "We help each other out. . . We have our own caseloads," Kohl notes, explaining that they are not law partners in the legal sense but rather law associates working from the same office.

"It might work out," Kohl comments. Things sort of happened without any great master plan behind them."

Thinclads show promise despite loss to Harrison

NOVI — Their record will show a 10 1/2-31 1/2 loss to Farmington Harrison in the season-opener last Wednesday. But Novi's men track team won't be an equally important meet — even if it didn't count.

"The guys were feeling pretty dejected because the score was so lopsided," said Novi Coach Bob Smith. "But I told them they reminded me of the team I had in 1981. We won two meets that year, but those same guys two years later were 1-11."

"To prove my point, I compared our freshmen and sophomores' times and distances with those from the 1981 team in their first meet. It turned out that this year's team would have won 73-44. I think the guys who are freshmen and sophomores on the team now have the potential to be as awesome as that '83 team."

As an example, Smith pointed out that Novi's hurdlers scored no points at all against Harrison — but he noted that four Wildcats recorded better times as freshman than had record holder Dan Senda: Matt Stahr, Mark Schaper, Ron Fritz and Travis Rayburn.

"That was happening all over the place," Smith said. "In just about all the events except middle distance, this year's team is stronger."

In reality, Smith did get a few strong showings against the Hawks. Joel Frazz was a double winner, taking first in the long jump with a line leap of 18-6 1/2, and also winning the 200 meters in 25.5. "That was an exceptionally good time considering how windy it was," Smith added.

Brian Schram picked up Novi's only other first of the day, winning the high jump at 5-3. Strong winds held down the heights, but Stahr added a second at 5-2 and Mark Williams finished in a tie for third at that same height on jumps.

Tom Marcus, running at only 85-90 percent efficiency because of an ankle injury, took second in his only race of the day, clocking a personal best 1:17.4 in the 100 meters. Paul Sumner added a second in his first 400-meter race ever, with a time of 58.84.

Tim McBride cleared nine feet for a second place in pole vault, a feat Smith called "a pleasant surprise. If he can keep doing just that, he's going to pick up a second or third in every meet," Smith added.

Frazz Samsom placed third in discus with a 107-7 effort, his personal best by 12 feet. Also taking thirds for the Wildcats were freshman Craig Cowden in the 1,600 meters (5:01.2), Pat Parsons in the 3,200 (11:39.7) and McBride in the 800 (2:21.33).

All of Novi's relay teams ran into trouble. The 4x100 and 4x200 relay teams had problems with baton exchanges, while the longer-distance relays suffered from the need to "save" individuals for other events.

"The relays are going to give us some problems this year," Smith said. "But we're going to take some lumps this year, just like we're going to lump them next year. It goes in cycles."

Novi's second meet takes place next Tuesday, when the Wildcats host Pinckney (9-1). "Harrison has a pretty good team, but I think we'll do a little better against Pinckney," Smith said. "But we're going to take some lumps this year, just like we're going to lump them next year. It goes in cycles."

Novi's first Kensington Valley Conference meet will be at home April 18 against Brighton.

Harrison girls run past Wildcats

NOVI — A 73-55 loss to Farmington Harrison might not sound like an auspicious way to start the season. But Novi's women track team actually were pretty darned good last Wednesday.

"The Wildcats' ranks were thinned by short-term injuries and illnesses for the meet, but the remaining athletes turned in surprisingly strong showings in failing to the Hawks in the non-conference season opener for both teams."

"The meet wasn't scheduled really well — there was a soccer game running on the infield at the same time," said Novi Coach Chris Ceresa. "But after the meet, their coach came over and apologized for the way the meet was run, and he congratulated our girls for presenting themselves with a lot of class when they had every right to complain. I felt pretty good about that."

Taking firsts for the Wildcats were Kris Hudart in the mile more time 6:14.2, Patty Lenaghan coasted to an easy win in the 100 in 13.5, and freshman Tammy Onofrey posted a win in the 330 hurdles, winning in 32.0.

Ceresa: 'The meet wasn't scheduled really well — there was a soccer game running on the infield at the same time. But after the meet, their coach came over and apologized for the way the meet was run, and he congratulated our girls for presenting themselves with a lot of class...'

Novi took firsts in three of the four field events. Debbie Vosie led a 1-2 effort in shot with a heave of 28-4. Onofrey took first in high jump with a 4-5, and Amy Rodgers won the long jump with a leap of 14-6.

Sherry Lawton cleared the high jump qualifying height of 4-5 for second place. "Sherry probably could have gone higher, but with her bad knee, I said it was probably better to rest it," noted Ceresa. "We were assured of a 1-2 finish anyway."

Vosie's 80-1 loss in discus placed second, and Kelly O'Neill added a second in the shot with a 27-11 put.

Lenaghan added a second in the 220 with a 28-8 clocking, and Sally Szuma's 67.9 placed second in the 440.

Other firsts were freshman Kelli Rolles in the two-mile (13:25), Andrea Dicola in the 800 (2:56.1), Heather Litman in the 100 (14.8), Kristy Yodzevic in the long jump (13-4) and Melissa Welke in the discus (72-0).

Of those finishing out of the point-scoring, Maureen Devlin turned in one of the afternoon's most stirring efforts, clocking a personal best (by more than half a minute) in the two-mile with a 13:28.

Novi's 440 relay team was the only point-scoring relay, with Sheila Clark, Carol Isham, Jennifer Bonkowski and Onofrey clocking a first-place time of 56.5.

Novi now gears up for its first home meet, against Pinckney, this Tuesday. Novi has topped the Pirates in both of the teams' last two encounters and is looking to extend the streak.

Mound corps holds key for Novi nine

By B.J. MARTIN staff writer

NOVI — Gar Frantz knows he's stepping into some big shoes over at Novi High School.

Bob Weinburger had become something of an institution as head coach of Novi's varsity baseball team. Weinburger was a whiz at motivating his squad, an adept tactician who was extremely well-liked besides. Then last year, he resigned to devote more time to his family, and Frantz advanced from coaching the junior varsity.

It looks like Weinburger picked a good time to leave. In a recent pre-season workout, Frantz accidentally was clobbered near his right eye by a stray baseball. When he sat down last Friday to talk about his squad, Frantz still was sporting a scar where he had been stitched shut. "It's nothing," he insisted.

"I feel pretty confident with this bunch of guys," said Frantz. "We've got some power and some good speed — I've got nine guys who I can let go (steal) and feel pretty confident they're going to make it."

"But we don't have one returning pitcher who's thrown more than 12 innings of varsity ball. So I'm not making any predictions. It's too early to tell."

PITCHING: While the Wildcats' depth has prevented Frantz from giving anyone a "lock" on a position, he said he is leaning toward Ray Samolin, Jeff Tanderis and Matt Spicer as his regular starters.

Samolin, a junior, was 6-1 on Novi's junior varsity last year and at 6-5, 300 pounds, he's a menacing presence on the mound with a snappy fastball.

Tanderis, a starting catcher for the Wildcats last year, also possesses a cannon arm. If his control improves, the tall sophomore could be a big winner this year.

Spicer, 1-0 as a junior on last year's varsity, is Novi's chief "finesse" hurler. "He doesn't have overpowering velocity," Frantz said, "but he's a good pitcher. Really competitive and smart. It's nice to have him. I know I can count on him to come in and throw strikes."

BULLPEN: Much depends on how non-conference mound duties narrow down the field, but Frantz is leaning toward experienced senior co-captain Bob Hudart, junior Greg Giorgio and possibly Spicer for most of the work. Other possibilities are juniors Andy Trombly, Keith Motyka and Kirk Shaw.

CATCHERS: Tanderis and senior Andy Lenaghan will do almost all the receiving this year. Hard-working Lenaghan possesses the quieter glove and good speed on the basepaths, while Tanderis has the better arm. Motyka looks a possible backup behind the plate.

INFIELD: Senior co-captain Bill Ritchie, a second-team All-KVC pick last year, likely will be the regular first baseman. "Bill's the toughest out on the team," Frantz said. "He's been hitting the ball really well this spring."

The team's only left-hander, junior Paul Sprainitis, gives the Wildcats some depth at first, as do several of the candidates for a regular third-base job. Steve Cody, one of the team's best glove men, will work at shortstop and second base. At 5-7, the speedy senior possesses a small strike zone and a good, compact swing. If his batting eye improves, he could develop into a threat on offense as well as defense.

Tall junior Steve Shankel, younger brother of Novi alumna and softball pitching star Cheryl Shankel, has been one of the team's steadiest hitters this spring, and is the leading candidate at second base and sometimes shortstop.

Like the Detroit Tigers, the Wildcats have a surplus of third basemen. There's Shaw, a sharp glove man with a good arm, and there are more: Spicer, Trombly, sophomore Joe Miskovich, and possibly Tanderis or Ritchie.

OUTFIELD: When he's not pitching, Bob Huotari will likely hold down centerfield duties. In left or right, Bob's brother, junior Bill Huotari, Motyka, Giorgio, Lenaghan and Sprainitis could all take a shift.

Novi opens its season at Walled Lake Central Monday. The Wildcats' home opener is scheduled for Thursday, April 18.

MHSAA to address grid playoffs

CADILLAC — Two controversial issues regarding high school athletics will be on the table when the Michigan High School Athletic Association's Representative Council gathers for its annual meeting here May 5-8.

The council, the MHSAA's rule-making body, will decide whether to expand the current eight-game per class (32 teams in all) football playoff system.

The council also will decide on whether to impose a rule forbidding high school gymnasts to compete outside their high school schedule during the three-month season. This ruling would have a profound effect on United States Gymnastic Federation (USGF) club gymnasts.

The football playoff issue has been a source of controversy since the inception of the state playoffs in 1975. Last year, the Representative Council voted down a proposal to expand the playoffs to 32 teams per enrollment class, or 128 teams total.

This year's proposal will most likely be for a 16-team per class format or 64 teams in all.

The MHSAA surveyed its 713 member high schools on this issue between February 15 and March 15. Of the 580 respondents (570 of which offered football), nearly 69 percent indicated they were in favor of expanding the playoffs to 16 teams per class.

The schools also were asked how they would go about scheduling the playoff games if the format were expanded. Nearly 25 percent thought it best to use the ninth date on the schedule as the first playoff date, leaving those teams not making the playoffs to schedule the final date on their own.

Another 23.6 percent thought it best to begin the season one week earlier.

McKenzie: 'We're hearing that many of the principals handed the survey over to the football coaches and let them fill it out. Many superintendents, we understand, are upset with their principals for voting to expand the playoffs.'

"The Representative Council has been asked to make a choice as to expanding the football playoff system," said MHSAA Assistant Director Warren McKenzie. "They weren't about to make that decision without knowing how the high schools felt. That was the reason for the survey."

But, McKenzie added, the survey results are a bit cloudy.

"There are real mixed feelings about this," he said. "The survey was supposed to be filled out by principals. We're hearing that many of the principals handed the survey over to the football coaches and let them fill it out. Many superintendents, we understand, are upset with their principals for voting to expand the playoffs."

"The gymnastics issue is no less complex. The MHSAA's gymnastics committee, comprised of state gymnastics coaches, has asked the Representative

Council to consider a ruling that would prohibit gymnasts from competing outside the high school schedule during the three-month prep season (which runs from January through March).

Rita Kinnell, president of the Michigan High School Gymnastics Coaches Association, will speak before the council during the May meeting.

"This all started about 10 years ago with ski teams," Kinnell said. "The skiers asked the state's permission to ski outside of the regular season because of a lack of snow and other things. The state granted permission and thought it fair to grant the same option to all individual sports, like tennis, swimming and gymnastics. It's been with us since."

But Kinnell and other coaches feel it's time that rule be changed because the influx of "club gymnasts," gymnasts who compete USGF and high school simultaneously, has eroded the team concept of high school gymnastics.

"Right now, high school coaches are having a tough time getting the talented club gymnasts to practice. There is extreme pressure to allow the more talented gymnasts to practice at the club and that's not fair to anyone," Kinnell said.

"The concept of team is what high school sports is all about," she added. "The talented gymnasts still need to practice with the team to feel a part of it. Otherwise, it's just a farce."

If the rule is enacted, many club gymnasts will have to decide between high school and USGF competition. Most of the state's top high school gymnasts, like Novi resident Barrie Muzbeck, who competed at Walled Lake Western, compete at the club level.

"If this rule is put in, the level of high school gymnastics will go down," said Kevin Watson, head coach at the Farmington Gymnastics Center, where Muzbeck practices. "All they will be doing with this rule is cutting their own throats. Fifty percent of the really good high school gymnasts are in clubs."

As far as not attending high school practice, Watson said only the very best gymnasts (like Muzbeck) are asked to practice exclusively at the club.

"With Barrie, we need to work on more specific things like compars and things like that — we need to work on higher-level skills. Most club gymnasts aren't at Barrie's level and I let them attend high school practice. It's not a big problem," Watson said.

Watson declined the proposed rule would probably affect the lower level club gymnasts, the Class I and Class II gymnasts whose club seasons coincide with the high school season. The top-level or Elite Class club gymnasts like Muzbeck would not be greatly affected.

Cohen brothers swim to more honors

NOVI — The amazing Cohen brothers have done it again, stroking their way to 10 state championships in the USS Michigan Boys' State Swimming Championships at Schoolcraft College on March 22-24.

Jon Cohen, 14, was the standout swimmer at the state meet, sweeping honors in the 13-14 age group by taking seven firsts, and setting three state records in the process. He was the high point champion in the 13-14 division with 43 points more than his nearest competitor.

In addition, he posted five "national reportable" times. A national reportable time is the swimmer's time is forwarded to the national record chairman who compiles a list of the top 16 swimmers in each event and each age group in the United States. The list is published in "Swimming World" magazine.

Jon won state championships in the 200 breaststroke (state record and national reportable time of 2:14.0), 400 individual medley (state record and national reportable time of 4:18.51), 1,000 freestyle (state record and national reportable time of 9:45.68), 1,650 freestyle (national reportable time of 16:22.9), 500 freestyle (national reportable time of 4:47.96), 200 freestyle (1:48.71) and 200 individual medley (2:02.03).

Jon was not the only Cohen to shine at the state championships, however. Brother Steve, 12, took runner-up high point honors in the 11-12 boys' age group with three firsts and two national reportable times.

Steve won state championships in the 500 freestyle (national reportable time of 5:09.66), 200 individual medley (national reportable time of 2:12.01) and the 200 freestyle (1:56.63).

In addition, he also took championship medals swimming in the finals of the 100 freestyle, 100 individual medley, 100 butterfly and 100 breaststroke. Steve has the fastest times in the state in his age group for the 500 freestyle, 200 freestyle and 200 individual medley.

Steve recently received recognition from the national United States Swimming group in the form of a pin (national age group champion) and national record certificate for his first place in the United States record setting time for 11-year-olds of 2:30.12 in the 2,000 freestyle.

Jon and Steve are the sons of Bob and Cyndy Cohen and attend Novi Middle School South. They are members of the Bulldog Aquatic Club coached by Brad Brockway.
