ry in Thursday's Novi News on a grievance filed by etball coach John Cicchelli was misleading. ember Sandra Thornton did not vote on the mat- bsent from a previous hearing. The vote to deny -0.

Novi is looking for volunteers to pitch in for the 5th annual Rouge River Rescue on Saturday, June 2. Wear your grubbiest clothes, rubber boots and work gloves and sign in at 8 a.m. at the Novi Civic Center's multi-purpose room, where coffee, doughnuts and the day's assignment will be distributed. Novi school buses will take the workers to the river and back to the civic center for a free lunch provided by over 12 local restaurants and stores.

Tree limbs, logs and other debris will be hauled from the six miles of the Middle Rouge coursing through Novi. For information, call the Department of Public Works, 347-0495.

Volunteers are needed for the Northville and Northville Township components of the annual Rouge Rescue project. This year's project will be held on Saturday, June 2, from 9 a.m. to noon. Both Northville and Northville Township will work on the same project this year.

Volunteers should be at least 16 years of age or older unless accompanied by a parent. They should wear work boots, long sleeved shirts, and long pants, if possible. The clothing protects from poison ivy and scratches. Volunteers should report at 8:30 a.m. to the Northville Community Center at 303 W. Main to be transported to the site, as parking at the site is extremely limited.

Volunteers will assist in breaking up the logjams and removing them so that the flow of the river can cleanse the river by itself. Small hand tools will be available.

A lunch will be provided for the workers at the conclusion of the event. Donor restaurants are welcome again this year.

Volunteers are asked to RSVP to Northville Community Recreation (349-0203) prior to May 30 so that proper preparations for the event may be made.

To celebrate and highlight Michigan Week May 19-26, the Novi Public Library is pleased to present a folk concert featuring singer Kitty Donohoe on Thursday, May 24 at 7 p.m. at the library.

Donohoe will present a family style program of songs, stories, and folklore of Michigan and the Great Lakes region. In her music she is likely to touch upon ship wrecks, Michigan Indians, the logging industry, and other bits of Michigan history. She flavors her program with the music of the guitar, banjo, dulcimer, spoons, and the Indian mouth bow.

The program is geared to everyone, both school-age children and adults. All ages are invited to enjoy this musical program. The concert is free, but space will be limited. For further information, call the Novi Public Library at 349-0720.

J. Giordano Gallery, 426 S. Main St. in Northville, announces the presentation of a new exhibition entitled "Faces," featuring the work of award-winning Michigan artist Barbara Terry Roy. The exhibit will be displayed until June 2.

The exhibit features a variety of media including oil, oil pastel, pastel and mixed media, used to create portraits and studies of people in Roy's life. With a strong sense of color and design, the works show a remarkable ability to capture not only the likeness of the subjects, but go far to reveal the spirit of the subjects as well.

Grosse Pointe's Bellmor mansion, home of the 1990 Designer Showhouse.

Local firm struts its stuff

By LESLIE PEREIRA
Staff Writer

The owners of La Belle Provence of Northville designed a couple of rooms.

But these were not just any rooms. They were two rooms in Grosse Pointe's Bellmor mansion, the site of the 1990 Designer Showhouse which is on display for thousands to see.

"We were amazingly intimidated," said Leslie Benser Luciani about her initial bid for the chance to design the rooms. "We thought we would just go up and eat the little sandwiches, chalk it up to experience and go back to Northville."

However, to their surprise, Benser Luciani and her partner, Jennifer Tobias-Turner, received the go-ahead to bring their European country designs to life.

"We loved how they spoke in such detail of how they would do it," said the Junior League's Designer Showhouse director, Marilyn Bartley.

Of the 33 rooms in the Bellmor mansion, Bartley said the Flower Room received the most bids from designers.

"We had 12 designers wanting that room," Bartley said.

A major event in the world of interior design, this every-second-year event sponsored by the Junior League of Detroit attracts big name design firms from all over the Metro Detroit area to compete for the privilege of designing a room.

"During the last two weeks, one of us had to be there all the time," said Leslie Benser Luciani. "We were so sick of that show house we could have screamed."

Every two years the owners of the selected site agree to vacate their house for the duration of the show and all of their home furnishings are put into storage.

Currently, the owners of the mammoth Bellmor mansion, Richard and Kiki Herfert are living in a seven-room apartment over the garage.

Once the rooms are completely empty, the designers are allowed to go to work. The rules of the game permit the designers to do what they please within the structural limitations of the room.

"It is quite prestigious to be chosen," said Leslie Benser Luciani, co-owner of La Belle Provence. "We don't consider ourselves designers. It was a real compliment to be listed as a design firm in the (Detroit) Free Press."

Rather, Benser Luciani and Tobias-Turner are both lawyers turned entrepreneurs, and now designers.

The multi-talented pair opened La Belle Provence, a downtown shop which specializes in European country-style furniture, pottery, fabric and other accessories imported mainly from France, last November.

Despite their initial feelings of inadequacy, the responses Benser Luciani and Tobias-Turner have received for their month of work on their service bath and flower room designs have called their designs anything but amateurish.

"They did just a beautiful job," said Junior League Director Marilyn Bartley of La Belle Provence's Service Bath. "It has really been a favorite for a lot of people."

And it seems many of the hundreds of people ambling through the 33-room mansion have had similar impressions of La Belle Provence's two small rooms.

"We have already gotten one or two really large projects out of it that have already made it worth it," Benser Luciani said of the hundreds of hours and thousands of dollars she and Tobias-Turner spent on designing and furnishing the rooms.

Their designs relied heavily on the French country themes carried in their store. More specifically, they selected the "European Water Closet" as their theme for the Service Bath. Benser Luciani and Tobias-Turner decided to make a visual pun of the term "water closet" by actually setting an Austrian scrubbed-pine armoire (standing cabinet) around the toilet.

The designing duo thoroughly researched the background of Bellmor's original owners, the Moran family, and discovered their daughter, Serena, held a great Debutante Ball at the home. This tidbit of history supplied them with their secondary theme for the service bath.

A trompe l'oeil (pronounced trump-loi) seemingly three-dimensional painting on the wall by Northville artist Janisse Larsson revealed Serena Moran's party accessories — her gown, gloves, a bottle of perfume, a notice of the ball — all perfectly crafted to look as if they were actually sitting on a shelf.

Another prominent feature of their Service Bath was the brightly flowered Pierre Deux fabric that covered most of the walls. Although pleased with the final effect created by the fabric, Benser Luciani said it had been an improvisation to cover one of the room's defects — green tiles.

"The tiles really threw us for a loop — I mean they were downright ugly. We wanted to cover them," said Benser Luciani. However, she explained that when designing someone else's house, the improvements had to be only temporary — you could not permanently alter the house.

"I'm not even sure if I like my bathroom — I mean I love the fabric but I

Habitat protection up for review

Planners seek protection for wildlife, too

By SHEILA PHILLIPS
Staff Writer

In an attempt to protect Novi wildlife habitats, a special subcommittee will look at mortaring holes in the city's woodlands ordinance or creating a separate wildlife habitat-protection regulation.

The subcommittee will be comprised of three members of the Novi Planning Commission. The idea behind their second look is to ensure that local mandates are preserving wildlife and not just trees.

"The problem with our woodlands ordinance is that we haven't been looking at trees in terms of quality, instead we have dealt with them as if they are merchandise — like they are lumber," said planning commissioner Ernest Aruffo.

If Novi adopted a wildlife protection ordinance, it would be the first of its kind in the state. The city is only one of two communities exploring a wildlife protection ordinance, the other being West Bloomfield, according to Planning Chairperson Charles Kureth.

Kevin Clark of Wildlife Management Service said that woodland ordinances, which typically deal in numbers, help retain wildlife areas but don't ensure their continuance.

"Just because you are saving wooded areas doesn't mean you're saving wildlife," he said.

Clark said it is imperative that local woodland and wetland ordinances include some type of rating scale which vehemently protects high quality areas but allows developers to encroach somewhat on lower rated areas.

"It is possible to cut down low-quality trees or disturb polluted wetlands without disturbing wildlife," he said.

"You have people who are pro-development, you have people that are anti-development, but what people don't realize is that man-made changes don't have to be disruptive," Clark continued.

"Some protected-by-state-guidelines wetlands, for example, are so polluted that they don't support wildlife," he explained. "But other smaller areas of high quality go unprotected."

Superintendent gets straight As at school board

By MAUREEN NASZRAZI Staff Writer

A "banner" 1989-90 year in the Northville School District translated into a rave review for Superintendent George Bell.

The Board of Education awarded Bell all "excellent" ratings on his performance as chief executive of the board, as superintendent of schools and in achievement of goals for the school year.

The school board conducted the annual evaluation at a meeting Wednesday, open to the public at the superintendent's request. At their meeting tonight, board members are expected to ask the personnel subcommittee to meet with Bell about updating his three-year contract, which currently extends through 1992.

Bell, who came to the district in 1982, said Friday he was pleased with the board's consensus judgment of his performance as "excellent."

"The evaluation reflects the importance of good communication with the board," Bell said. "We have a very good communication line."

"That is the key component in the successful continuation of the kind of community support that we enjoy," he added.

The board called community relations one of Bell's strengths, adding that he is well-respected and very visible in the community.

"This has been a banner year for the schools and George and his team deserve much of the credit. I'm very proud when I talk about what we have done," said Trustee James Petrie, who submitted a written evaluation. Trustee Don Kloikenga also could not attend the meeting and submitted a written remark.

Board President Gretta Davis; Robert McMahon, vice president and chairperson of the personnel subcommittee; Carol Rahimi, secretary; Joseph Dunkerley Jr., treasurer; and Trustee Jean Hansen concurred that the 1989-90 school year has been very productive, due largely to Bell's overseeing adherence to the district's Strategic Plan.

Board members cited many examples of progress under Bell's direction during the school year, including completion of the bond issue, completion of a plan to open Cooke as a middle school and the successful formation of committees in each building to recommend program improvements.

The board members also praised Bell for placing student safety high as a priority, for his financial responsibility and for his careful review before suggesting the hire of Barton/Malow.

Application advice for gifted students

My daughter had a dream of attending a certain major university in the state and was rejected. She was rejected because her overall grade point average was not high enough. We were told she had missed the cutoff point. She wanted to go into journalism at that university. Her high school grades in journalism, English and related courses are excellent. She didn't do so well in math. We talked to a university admission counselor by phone, but it didn't do any good.

She has been accepted at another college but it wasn't her first choice. Why she could not have done? Why do colleges keep students from enrolling when they have outstanding grades in their interest area by using grades in an area they will never use for their future occupation?

The university you are referring to always has an overabundance of applications and can enroll an entire freshman class with 3.8 grade point averages, or better if they so desire. In your situation, your daughter had a 3.9 grade point average in English, journalism and social studies—the verbal comprehension courses. Her required math courses in high school showed a grade point average of 3.2. Not bad considering she took the more challenging math courses competing against future engineers and the like.

However, when we average her language arts/journalism area grade point average (3.9) with the math grade point average (3.2), it rounds out to about 3.55.

Compounding the issue were her college entrance SAT scores showing the same pattern, extremely high in the verbal comprehension area, but only very good in math.

Your daughter never is going to be an engineer, doesn't want to be a math major, yet her 3.2 in math screens her out from consideration. She wants to be a journalist, has a 3.9 GPA in journalism and related courses, has won numerous writing awards in high school and in university contests but doesn't fit the mold. Why?

It is easier to use the overall GPA and SAT results than to break these results down and review the results in relation to the student strength area and goal in life. It also is politically safer to screen out students by using an overall GPA and SAT score because of the huge number of applicants seeking admission.

Pragmatically, this particular university needs to demonstrate high entrance standards for government and private foundation grant purposes. And "changing long-standing universities' procedures is harder than moving a graveyard"—Henry Bragdon, 1917.

Your mistake is typical of parents who don't understand the application. Your daughter sent in her application without previous ground work. What she should have done and what others can learn from your experience follows.

She should have met with her high school journalism teacher and language arts department head, both of whom say your daughter is a "gifted and creative" journalism student. Then she should have set up an appointment with the powers that be in the journalism department and the school newspaper division at the university.

Hopefully, her high school journalism teacher, the department head and/or counselor would have gone to that meeting with your daughter.

Don't give up. Tell your daughter to have her best year in journalism next year. Consider this advice and then re-apply as a transfer student.

Dr. James Doyle is a former assistant superintendent in the Troy School District. Questions for this column should be sent to Doc Doyle, c/o Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 39251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Novi voters have elected official options in November

By SHEILA PHILLIPS Staff Writer

Novi voters will have several political options at the polls November 6, as numerous newcomers hope to unseat incumbents throughout the state.

One Novi Democrat, Robert E. Taub, 38, hopes to knock Rep. Willis Bullard from his 60th District throne, a seat he has held for eight years.

Taub, a Detroit bankruptcy attorney and active member of the Michigan Bar Association, says it is time for "new blood."

When asked about his chances in a Republican-dominated area, he replied, "I hope enough local homeowners are willing to put someone new in office, someone who shares their concerns."

"I think that the nature of elected offices is to get someone new every once in a while," he said. "Someone with new ideas, a new voice and new ears."

Taub, a five-year Novi resident, was actively recruited by the Democratic Party.

"The party asked me to run because I am an involved Democrat," he said. "I feel that Gov. (James) Blanchard will be re-elected and my political philosophies are in sync."

Taub holds an undergraduate and law degree from the University of Michigan.

Although a political newcomer, Taub said he feels in tune with area concerns.

Twenty-seven-year Northville resident Alfred W. (Bud) Smith Jr., 62, will be one of the dark horses trying to unseat the entrenched 28-year legislative veteran.

Smith is a graduate of New York University and holds two master's degrees from the University of Michigan, one in engineering and the other in business.

Although Smith's political resume may be short, he says he's not short on ideas.

"There are a number of areas I feel strongly about and that is why I decided to run," he said.

Taub is also a self-proclaimed advocate of lighter environmental regulation and stiffer drug laws.

If elected, Taub said he would act as a political sounding board for his constituents and act on their concerns.

"I'm willing to listen to what constituents have to say... I'd be there to represent the people, not to be a czar," he commented.

Bullard, R-Highland, said in announcing his candidacy that reducing property taxes and stronger environmental cleanup measures are among his priorities. He is seeking reelection to a fifth term in the House.

"As a property owner, I am as frustrated as the next person about our skyrocketing property taxes," Bullard said in a press release. "We must keep fighting to reduce them. If the Legislature is unable to provide relief, there once again may be ballot proposals addressing the problem in November."

Bullard also wants more legislation to help resolve serious environmental problems.

"If we want a habitable planet for our children, we must take major steps now to correct the damage done to our environment," the lawmaker said. "They include supporting and expanding mandatory recycling and finding alternatives to solid waste landfills. I am strongly committed to legislation that addresses these issues."

Four Republican senatorial candidates filed to run in the August primary for the chance to knock Democratic incumbent Jack Faxon out of the 15th district, which serves Novi, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Ferndale, Huntington Woods and Southfield as well as a portion of Northville city.

A copy of the proposed budget will be available at the Administrative Services Building on Wednesday, May 23, 1990.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the levy of an additional millage rate and the proposed School Budget for 1990-91. "The bad part of town." Abandoned cars scattered with crack vials. Bombed-out buildings. A neighborhood whose spirit is as broken as the blue of glass that dot the street. There are only two things you do if your neighborhood becomes a war zone: give up or take action.

The Philadelphia Story
One day in the "bad part" of Philadelphia, a neighbor complained to a neighbor. And then to another. And then to more. People didn't like their homes being "taken over." Feelings of helplessness and resentment turned to action. They went to the police for help. Soon a substation was established where folks could readily report crime. Weekly meetings began. Community watches started. Things started getting fixed up.

Vacant lots were cleaned up and fenced. Abandoned cars were towed away. Painting and repairing programs began. The neighborhood was cleaning itself up. The local 4-H Club even helped out up garden clubs where kids, teens and adults could work together on plants and flowers while talking over ways to crime awareness.

When people care and get involved, neighborhoods change. When a block doesn't look like a haven for crime and drugs, it won't be. And in this part of Philly, where once only apathy grew, even gardens now bloom.

This is only one success story of many. To find out what can be done in your neighborhood, write: The Neighborhood Watch, 1 Prevention Way, Washington, D.C. 20599-0001. And help.

Please take notice that on Thursday, May 24, 1990, at 7:00 o'clock p.m. at the Novi Woods Elementary School Media Center, 25195 Taft Road, Novi, Michigan, the Board of Education of Novi Community School District will hold a public hearing on: 1) the levying in 1990 of an additional proposed millage rate at 26.44 mills for operating purposes pursuant to Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982 and 2) the Proposed School Budget for 1990-91.

The Board of Education has the complete authority to establish that 26.44 mills be levied in 1990 from within its present authorized millage rate.

The maximum additional proposed millage rate would increase revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies in 1990 otherwise permitted by Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982, by 1.34 mills.

A copy of the proposed budget will be available at the Administrative Services Building on Wednesday, May 23, 1990.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the levy of an additional millage rate and the proposed School Budget for 1990-91. Not less than seven (7) days following the public hearing, the Board of Education may approve all or any portion of the proposed additional millage rate. This notice is given by order of the Board of Education.

Oakland County judges honored

Four Oakland County judges were among 25 state jurists named Michigan's "most respected" by Michigan Lawyer Weekly newspaper.

"I can't believe it," said Circuit Judge Edward Sosnick. "It's a nice honor. This is a very lonely job. You generally hear the bad and you rarely hear the good."

Sosnick, a Bloomfield Township resident, has been on the circuit bench for 16 months. Previously he served four years in the 48th District Court.

Sosnick told Lawyer Weekly his most satisfying moment on the bench was getting through his first district court case in 1984, the King Boots trial. King Boots was a Birmingham sheep dog that attacked and killed an 87-year-old woman.

The other three Oakland judges selected were Steven N. Andrews, Hilda R. Gage and Gene Schmelz. The 25 judges were selected based on a Lawyers Weekly survey of more than 1,500 of its attorney readers. Lawyer Weekly editor Dan Sharp cautioned, however, that judges in the populous counties had an advan-disproportionate amount of our time and energies," he said.

Gage said winning the Lawyer Weekly honor was a pleasant surprise. "When we sit up on that bench, it's isolating and we rarely get feedback."

Charles Clippert, Oakland County Bar Association president-elect, had high praise for all four Oakland judicial winners. "They're certainly all very qualified and highly respected judges," he said. "For the most part, (they're) hard working, intelligent people of integrity."

Sharp said most of the winners in his contest wrote "nice and pretty humble letters," but some had a small request. "A lot of them said, 'Gee, can you get me extra copies of your paper?'"

Andrews, a Bloomfield Hills resident, is a 14-year circuit court veteran and chief circuit court justice, was also very honored to have been selected. "It's seldom that we hear such positive statements."

Andrews told Lawyer Weekly the biggest problem facing his court is too many cases and not enough time to handle them. "Our criminal dockets consume an unprecedented and

Two of Schmelz's most satisfying moments as a judge, he told Lawyer Weekly, were swearing in his son, Kurt, as an attorney and having his annual picture on the bench with his granddaughter on his lap.

Judge Andrews, a Bloomfield Hills resident, is a 14-year circuit court veteran and chief circuit court justice, was also very honored to have been selected. "It's seldom that we hear such positive statements."

Police videotaping debated

Buck Rogers technology? Or a high-tech infringement on the constitutional guarantee against self-incrimination?

Thoughts on both came up when the Oakland County Sheriff's Department held a press conference recently to publicly unveil its Video Incident Capture System (VICS).

The system uses a miniature video camera mounted on the dash board of a patrol car that can capture on film much of what transpires when an officer stops a motorist.

Oakland expects to have 15 cameras installed on traffic and alcohol enforcement patrol cars by the end of the month, with others possible if the system proves successful.

The cameras, and a microphone attached to the investigating officer, will improve efficiency, particularly for drunk driving arrests, said Sheriff John F. Nichols.

what transpires during a traffic stop that can be used to show a judge or jury how the defendant behaved.

Such a record has been known to deter court action by arrested motorists, Nichols told Oakland County Commissioners when he asked for nearly $100,000 to fund the project.

Some defendants have been known to decide against contesting their arrest "once they saw the video tape and realized what they looked like," he said.

Commissioners authorized $98,700 for the project.

The videos also provide a safeguard for citizens by recording the officer's conduct, Nichols said. The videos are particularly useful in complaints of officer abuse or misconduct.

"Kind of Buck Rogers, isn't it?" Nichols said when his department demonstrated the system for the media. VICS has been field-tested in Oakland for about six months, said Sgt.

James R. Helligenthal, head of the department's traffic and alcohol enforcement unit. "Officers have adapted to it easily."

During that field test, VICS also generated its first court test. It involved a West Bloomfield Township man who was arrested in Commerce Township for drunk driving.

Helligenthal said he disagrees with contentions by the American Civil Liberties Union that the system borders on an infringement on protections guaranteed in the Constitution.

The ACLU and others are concerned that recording an individual without his or her knowledge or consent is a form of self-incrimination.

Helligenthal said VICS has been used successfully in parts of Texas, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Georgia and Indiana.

"It should be a valuable asset to road patrol," he said.

Kureth, who also works as an environmental engineer, agreed. "Intruding on woodlands is not necessarily bad as long as major portions remain intact and the more quality areas are preserved," he commented.

Clark stressed the idea of maintaining areas of diverse animal populations which depend on each other to survive.

"The trend should be not to look at endangered species but instead to look at the entire picture and maintain complete ecological systems," he said. "I think it is important to judge woodlands case by case and to have a master plan of critical woodland areas throughout the area.

"Obviously it is better to retain as many natural areas as possible but there has to be some give and take with developers that is why some type of rating system is important."

Several commissioners questioned the legality of rating woodlands on an individual basis. West Bloomfield currently has a rating system in place and is plagued with developer problems.

"There is always legal implications with broad concepts," commissioner

Kathleen McAllen commented. "The question is how to deal with developers who say, 'I meet the zoning requirements, so tough luck.'"

Kureth suggested working with developers by offering incentives to comply with any drafted guidelines such as tax breaks, density options or land donations.

The commission formed a three member committee of Kureth, Kathleen McAllen and Tom O'Branovic to look at the practicality of wildlife habitat protection and the best means of securing that protection.

don't know if I would want fabric three-quarters of the way up the wall in my home. It's not practical," said Benser Luciani.

And interestingly, tiles also became a bit of a nuisance in The Flower Room. But this time it was because they wanted them there.

"It took me like all day to do this," said Benser Luciani. "I had to wash every one by hand and place them. There were about 200."

The floor of the Flower Room they covered with terra cotta tiles and pieces of dried flowers strategically placed on the floor to give it an authentic, fresh-used look.

Their chosen theme for the Flower Room was "Summer Garden," and the multitude of Quimper Falence's "jardin dete" pottery filling the shelves and counters continued with that theme.

"Jennifer and I have never studied design but we know a lot about French furniture and accessories," Benser Luciani said.

But, the enthusiasm with which Benser Luciani spoke to each person who stopped by their rooms on the house-touring trail together with the intense thought behind every detail — the closet around the toilet, the fresh peonies flowers on the window sill — seemed to more than make up for any lack of designing experience she has.

Michigan is a nice place to live, but you might not want to work in retail here.

Wages and salaries for Michigan retail employees—from the top dog in the board room to the lowest stock boy—are generally lower than in other parts of the country, according to retail specialist Joseph Spinali of Roth Young in Southfield.

According to the Roth Young 1990 wage-and-salary review for retail placement, the state's retail merchandisers, personnel directors and advertising/sales promotion staff wages tend to fall on the low end of the scale. Corporate headquarters, store and department employee wages are also below the national average.

"I would say we fall in the low-middle to the upper end of the low-salary-and-wage scale," Spinali said. Only two segments of the retail market, according to the Roth Young study—finance/electronic data processing and human resource employees—approach the national average, he said.

Spinali said he isn't sure why retailers, controllers and computer systems managers are better paid than their other retail counterparts. Human resource managers fare better because of the abundance of unions and strict worker safety laws in Michigan, he said.

Which isn't to say the area doesn't have benefits that outweigh pay, Spinali said. "But from a strict wage-and-salary view, this area (pays) lower than the national average."

Richard Valade, partner-in-charge of the Arthur Andersen & Co. retail practice, said lower wages and salaries are primarily driven by this area's lower cost of living.

"I would have to agree (salaries and wages) are lower than other areas, but whether it's lower than any area in the middle I don't think can be said," Valade said. To attract employees, retailers on the east and west coasts must pay workers enough so they can enjoy a certain standard of living, Valade said.

Samuel Skeeghan, president of the Detroit-area office of Roth Young, said the lower wages are historically supported.

Prior to the purchase of Hudson's by the Dayton Hudson Corp., south-east Michigan had a significant retail corporate center. After the sale, the higher paid corporate employees—and those being groomed for those jobs—were moved to Minneapolis.

Hudson's strong presence prior to the move, prevented other retailers from entering the southeast Michigan market, Skeeghan added.

The only remaining local corporate headquarters, the Kmart Corp., has traditionally paid lower wages and salaries, Skeeghan said, with the exception being merchandise buyers who are generally well-compensated.

Skeeghan said employees in and near corporate centers such as New York, Chicago and Los Angeles tend to be higher paid than employees in other markets.

In addition to historical reasons, southeast Michigan salaries are lower because of a large work force, Spinali said. "There is a very high turnover in retail help at all levels, but there's always someone willing to take the job."

Adding to the problem of the larger work force is that for the past decade retailers have been trimming staff to do more with fewer employees, Spinali said.

Arthur Andersen's Valade, however, said the work pool is beginning to shrink. "That will undoubtedly drive wages up."

Within the past several years, employers have increased entry-level compensation above the minimum wage to attract employees, he said.

"As that goes up, it's bound to impact the jobs with higher responsibility," he said. Whether Michigan wages will rise to levels seen on the east and west coasts is uncertain, Valade added.

Roth Young's Skeeghan said several factors offset the area's lower wages. For example, the wage-and-salary surveys do not include bonuses, automobile usage or other forms of compensation.

Southeast Michigan has a comparatively low cost of living and a geography that lends itself to mobility, he said. "People don't realize how easy it is to move around in this area. You can work in a city, and drive to the country within an hour."

The best way to solve your weed and grass problems is to hit them where it hurts—in the roots—with ORTHO KLEENUP. Because KLEENUP goes all the way to the roots, it kills even tough weeds and grasses, so they can't grow back.

It's ready to use in a self-applier jug. Pick the KLEENUP solution that fits your needs. Then wipe out weeds and grasses, roots and all, guaranteed, or your money back.

AMARANTH grains date back almost 8,000 years. Cook amaranth seeds for pita/flatbread or pop them like corn for snack. They have more protein than wheat and are rich in amino acids. Use amaranth flour to make bread, biscuits, cakes and pancakes. To use for a yeast bread, combine with wheat flour because it is deficient in gluten.

Barley is another grain that has been around for thousands of years but still is unfamiliar to modern cooking. There is whole-hulled barley and pearled barley. The whole-hulled barley also can be sprouted and added to salads or ground into flour to make a Norwegian flat loaf. Pearl barley is less nutritious than whole-hulled, but still a good source of soluble fiber. Add barley to soups, salads and casseroles.

Kasha is roasted buckwheat that is dark in color with a strong nutty taste. It is used for stuffings, pilafs and soups as it complements meals of pork, beef, liver and lamb. The unroasted buckwheat is light and delicately flavored. Use it as a side dish for veal or fish; add to soups, souffles or vegetable, or grind into flour. Traditional Russian blinis.

Millet is nutritious for you and the birds. Millet has more protein than rice, sorghum, corn or oats. Use whole-hulled millet as an alternative to rice in casseroles, ground meat dishes, salads and stuffings. Puffed millet is generally sold as a breakfast cereal but can be used to add texture and lightness to puddings and breads.

We are all familiar with old-fashioned rolled oats or the quick-cooking rolled oats, but have you tried oat groats? Oat groats are whole kernels of oats and, unlike most other grains, are not refined so they retain most of their nutrients regardless of the form. Oat groats are usually cooked as a hot cereal or as a base for salad and stuffings or used for sprouting.

Quinoa is an ancient grain that is higher in iron than any other grain. It is a small pale yellow seed with a light fluffy texture and squash-like flavor. One nice thing is that it cooks in about 15 minutes compared to a longer time for most of the other grains.

bouleh. Couscous is finely cracked granules of wheat that have been steamed and dried. It is easy to prepare and substitutes for rice. For more flavor, cook grains in wine or vegetable, meat or poultry stock, rather than water. When making some of the grains that need to cook longer, make a double batch of rice for quick additions to soups, stews, casseroles and stuffings.

When making whole-grain yeast breads, blend buckwheat, barley, oat or triticale (which is a combination of wheat and rye) flours with all-purpose flour called for in a recipe. Keep whole grains tightly covered in a cool, dry place for up to five months. For longer storage, refrigerate or freeze.

These grains are not new. Most have been around for centuries, and are just now finding their way to the supermarket. Our interest in adding fiber to the diet, because of the health benefits, has renewed and aroused our curiosity about different kinds of grains. Try one, you may be pleasantly surprised how good it is.

Coffee makers leap into new age

Say good morning with style

No longer, it seems, are people satisfied with just a decent cup of java. We're in the '90s after all. If we're going to toss down something as unhealthy as a caffeine-laden cup of coffee it had darned well better be special. Right?

So we drink espresso. Or cappuccino.

Or at the very least coffee made from freshly-ground gourmet beans. And we process this gourmet selection in high-tech coffee makers that do everything from grinding the beans to brew the coffee in a ready-to-serve thermos.

That four-cup hotpot without a switch (to turn it off, you yanked the plug or even a "dial-a-brew" control may have been good enough to get you through college. But now that you're established you're ready to move up.

The choices are myriad and the prices are, well... you're going to throw $40-per-pound Jamaican Blue Mountain blend into a $15 coffee pot, anyway? At the Sharper Image store in Novi's Twelve Oaks Mall you can drop $169 for a combination coffee/cappuccino/espresso maker from Braun. The sleek Euro-style machine designed by Braun's Thomas Haslach comes in black or white and will brew eight cups said James Bobco, assistant manager.

The cappuccino portion of the machine includes a steamer valve to warm milk, Bobco said.

At Hudson's Oakland Mall in Troy, it's straight coffee most of the customers are after, said Joe Mariani, who works in the Marketplace department.

Just one of the new breed of high-tech coffee makers

The cappuccino seems to be for special occasions, or for people who drink an awful lot of coffee and want something different," Mariani said. The store's "bread and butter" coffee maker these days is a Krups before). Krups Thermal Aroma model is the one preferred by James Werthelmer, who owns the Coffee Beanery Ltd. franchise at Westland Center.

But Werthelmer said the machine—which was introduced last year and brews coffee directly into a transportable insulated carafe—hasn't been a big hit with customers. He's currently discounting it 15 percent from its $89.95 introductory price.

"What happens (with a non-insulated carafe) is that the coffee sits on the burner and begins to burn," he said. "But I guess people really like to see the coffee being brewed and you can't do that with this one."

The store also stocks a mill-and-brew machine by Hella that grinds the beans and then brews them. That one goes for $174.99.

Even the venerable and formerly low-tech Mr. Coffee has gone upscale.

The newest Mr. Coffee model, introduced in March, includes a microchip and high-powered heating element that will brew 10 cups up to 35 percent faster than previous models.

The Expert, as it's called, allows the user to constantly control the coffee temperature and features a pause-and-serve valve so you can pour a cup before the brewing cycle is complete.

The $79.99 (suggested retail price) machine also uses an environmentally friendly filter made from chlorine-free paper. The production technique requires half the number of trees to turn out the same number of filters as previous models, the maker said.

The only thing they haven't gotten rid of is Mr. Coffee himself, Joe DiMaggio. Thank goodness.

Alternative grains can make fiber fun

Are you trying to add more fiber to your diet and you're bored with bran and brown rice?

There are numerous other good grains that can take out the boredom. These grains can add taste, texture and more nutrition to meals. Besides whole grains, other good sources of fiber are fruits and vegetables.

Whole grains are not refined or only minimally processed so are nutritionally superior. They are virtually fat-free and low in calories. Whole grains retain more protein, fiber and trace minerals such as iron. By increasing your fiber, you gain a wide variety of health benefits. Fiber helps control weight, fight cancer, lower serum cholesterol, lower blood sugar and acts as a laxative. Add fiber to diet gradually and drink plenty of fluids so the additional fiber has something to absorb.

The unroasted buckwheat is light and delicately flavored. Use it as a side dish for veal or fish; add to soups, souffles or vegetable, or grind into flour. Traditional Russian blinis.

Millet is nutritious for you and the birds. Millet has more protein than rice, sorghum, corn or oats. Use whole-hulled millet as an alternative to rice in casseroles, ground meat dishes, salads and stuffings. Puffed millet is generally sold as a breakfast cereal but can be used to add texture and lightness to puddings and breads.

We are all familiar with old-fashioned rolled oats or the quick-cooking rolled oats, but have you tried oat groats? Oat groats are whole kernels of oats and, unlike most other grains, are not refined so they retain most of their nutrients regardless of the form. Oat groats are usually cooked as a hot cereal or as a base for salad and stuffings or used for sprouting.

Quinoa is an ancient grain that is higher in iron than any other grain. It is a small pale yellow seed with a light fluffy texture and squash-like flavor. One nice thing is that it cooks in about 15 minutes compared to a longer time for most of the other grains.

bouleh. Couscous is finely cracked granules of wheat that have been steamed and dried. It is easy to prepare and substitutes for rice. For more flavor, cook grains in wine or vegetable, meat or poultry stock, rather than water. When making some of the grains that need to cook longer, make a double batch of rice for quick additions to soups, stews, casseroles and stuffings.

When making whole-grain yeast breads, blend buckwheat, barley, oat or triticale (which is a combination of wheat and rye) flours with all-purpose flour called for in a recipe. Keep whole grains tightly covered in a cool, dry place for up to five months. For longer storage, refrigerate or freeze.

These grains are not new. Most have been around for centuries, and are just now finding their way to the supermarket. Our interest in adding fiber to the diet, because of the health benefits, has renewed and aroused our curiosity about different kinds of grains. Try one, you may be pleasantly surprised how good it is.

Souverain proves big isn't always bad

If you've been interested in wine for a long time, the name Souverain is familiar. If you're a collector, and you have any 1973 Souverain Cabernet Sauvignon in your wine cellar, you're in for a treat when you open it. Since 1986, however, there's a new Souverain—Chateau Souverain in Sonoma's Alexander Valley.

Let's take a moment to recapitulate some 45 years of California wine history with relation to Souverain because it is significant.

In 1943, the late Lee Stewart, an Armour & Co. executive, decided to retire to gentleman farming. After only one year at this Howell Mountain location, with its superb views of the Napa Valley, he caught the wine bug and Souverain winery was born.

In 1970, when Stewart retired a second time, he sold the winery to a group of investors who, in turn, sold a majority interest to the Pillsbury Co. (of Doughboy fame).

In 1972, the company built a larger winery near Rutherford and, in 1973, expanded to an additional facility in Sonoma County. By 1976, Pillsbury realized it was over its head in the wine biz and sold the Sonoma property to a group of North Coast grape growers, who ran it as a limited partnership until it was sold in 1986 to Wine World Inc. Nestle's U.S. wine company which also owns Bertinger Vineyards, Maison Deutz, Meridian and Napa Ridge.

Today, Stewart's original property on Howell Mountain is home to Burgess Cellars, the Rutherford Souverain project is now Rutherford Hill Winery and Sonoma Souverain is Chateau Souverain with some of the best values on the wine market currently.

If you're a wine consumer with corporate uneasiness, believing that big is bad, we'd like to introduce you to the quality, value-priced wines from Chateau Souverain.

After the purchase, Wine World Inc. pumped $2.5 million into Chateau Souverain for new equipment and hired Tom Peterson as the winemaker to use it.

Currently, the 100,000-case production comes from 108 acres of estate vineyards and 25 contracted growers. Peterson works closely with Chateau Souverain's vineyard manager seeking out the finest grapes from seven of the 11 appellations of Sonoma County to focus on production of chardonnay, sauvignon blanc, cabernet sauvignon, merlot and zinfandel.

A choice of grapes from multiple appellations offers a winemaker a palette of aroma and flavor nuances to enhance his craft. Peterson stylizes the wine using all the blending tools of his trade, but he contends, "I don't take the blacksmith approach to winemaking. I want the fruit to show in the wine. I don't attempt to pound it into something that it isn't."

Peterson's attitudes were showcased in a recent tasting of current and upcoming releases from Chateau Souverain.

The following wines are currently available. We've listed the upcoming releases also, and they are consistent with the wines currently available. They will, naturally, taste younger (because they are) and have some slight vintage variation.

1987 Chateau Souverain, Private Reserve Chardonnay ($14) has a multitude of stylish, barrel accents over gentle, delicate fruit components in the nose and on the palate. The Carneros fruit origins show through. It's full-bodied with a lingering finish.

1987 Chateau Souverain, Private Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon ($14) excels in very cool coastal areas like Carneros, where it develops a ripe, lemony spiciness. In the Alexander Valley and Chalk Hill regions of Sonoma County, chardonnay produces substantial wines of excellent fruit, acidity and structure.

The 1988 Chardonnay ($8.50) makes a good comparison between the style of a regular release and a reserve-style wine.

The 1987 Chateau Souverain Merlot ($14) showcases generous varietal fruit with a gentle herbal note, hints of roast coffee and toasty oak. The palate is well-structured with balanced fruit, acid and oak. The gentle herbal quality carries through from start to finish. The grapes for this wine come from both Alexander Valley and Knights Valley.

The 1986 Chateau Souverain Cabernet Sauvignon ($10) shows blackberry fruit, with subtle, delicate touches of vanilla and sweet oak. It's slight vintage variation.

The 1986 Chateau Souverain Private Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon. It's scheduled for release in January 1991 and, like a special event, demands a spot on your advanced-planning calendar. Only 1,500 cases were produced for full U.S. distribution.

Blended with 12-percent cabernet and fleshy after only five months in the bottle. Sporting blackberry and cassis aromas and generous intense fruit, this wine is sure to win rave reviews upon release. Pricing for this wine has not been set yet, but given the pricing policy of this brand in the past, it's sure to be a bargain in relation to the quality.

Do not disturb

A local firm helped save a little bit of wildlife recently. Workers helping to build a new strip mall at the corner of Grand River Avenue and Old US-23 in Brighton discovered that someone was living on the construction site — a colorful killdeer bird. To make sure the nest wasn't disturbed, the crew erected a safe zone. Above left, Carl Sutherland — who works for Brick Faced Concrete in Novi — puts the finishing touches on the barrier. Left, the adult bird fans its feathers. At top, the eggs that all the fuss was over.

Recognize America's Living Landmarks

From the towering 275-foot Giant Sequoia in California's Sequoia National Park to the relatively diminutive 20-foot Allegheny Plum in Virginia's Blue Ridge Mountains, America's living landmarks are an invaluable part of our nation's natural heritage.

That's why the American Forestry Association began The National Register of Big Trees in 1940. Today, as then, we encourage citizens across the country to find and recognize the largest tree of each species. With your help and participation, we can locate and protect these champions for future generations while fostering a deeper appreciation for trees and forests everywhere.

For information on how to measure and nominate a Big Tree, write: The National Register of Big Trees, American Forestry Association, P.O. Box 2000, Dept. BT, Washington, DC 20013.

America's Living Landmarks
Their preservation is every American's concern
