School starts this year on Aug. 28

By MAUREEN NASZRADI Staff Writer

School bells will ring a week earlier this year — Aug. 28 for most students in the Novi Community School District.

Students in grades 1-12 will attend a half-day that Tuesday, then start their regular schedule Wednesday. Kindergarten and preprimary impaired students will begin classes Wednesday, Aug. 29.

In addition to the earlier starting date, the schedule for the 1990-91 school year features a longer winter recess — the break begins at the end of the day Dec. 21 and classes resume Jan. 7. In an effort to make parents aware of the schedule changes, district officials are mailing a "Back to School" newsletter to all Novi district homes, insering the newsletter in a Novi News issue and listing the calendar changes on the local community access channel.

Some parents already are aware of the calendar changes. Wayne Vicklund, whose son is an eighth grader, said he is unhappy the school now will start before Labor Day.

"I don't think (district officials) considered that moving the starting date could have an impact on a large number of people," Vicklund said.

As a single divorced parent, Vicklund said he, like a growing percentage of the population, had a closely detailed settlement for custody during the summer and holidays. Because enclosing another holiday in the school year cut into his visitation privileges, Vicklund said he renegotiated the settlement with his ex-wife.

John Swallow, assistant superintendent in charge of human resources, said the revised calendar brings the Novi district in line with other schools in Oakland County.

The calendars for the 1990-91, 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years are spelled out in the contracts negotiated by the district and Novi Education Association.

The Board of Education and the teachers' union last month formally extended and modified several aspects of the contracts, including the calendars.

The administration didn't feel (the calendar) was an issue," Swallow said.

The calendars planned for the next three years are very similar to what the district had prior to the 1988 school year.

Resonse times are under fire

By JAN JEFFRES Staff Writer

In calculating ambulance response times, the private carrier Community Emergency Medical Service (CEMS) and the Novi Fire Department are not of one mind.

In March — the only month used in Fire Chief Arthur Lenaghan's recent study — CEMS indicated the company exceeded 10 minutes in 2.5 emergency runs. Fire department officials found the company's ambulances arrived on the scene 12 minutes or later 10 times — about 20 percent of the calls for that time span. The delayed responses, he said, occurred at locations throughout the city.

We found that it may be necessary to question the validity of the information they were providing us," Lenaghan said. "The range was as high as 23 minutes in one case. That's not acceptable. They should be able to meet the criteria."

Novi follows state department of public health regulations which specify that an ambulance service should have response times of 10 minutes or less on 90 percent of its emergency runs.

The fire department has been independently monitoring CEMS response times since last Dec. 1, following several allegedly delayed answers to emergency calls. Firefighters on an emergency call are asked to fill out reports indicating when an ambulance arrives on the scene and the quality of service. Lenaghan said the city attorney is currently polishing up a private ambulance service guideline for Novi which CEMS will be expected to follow.

CEMS president Greg Beauchemin questions how the fire department arrives at its figures.

Police expand investigation

By SHEILA PHILLIPS Staff Writer

A police investigation into the wrongful death of a 70-year-old Novi Care Center resident, which was expected to wrap up last week, still continues.

"This investigation is just mushrooming," commented Lt. Robert Starnes, who is spearheading the inquiry into the death of Esther Tauren, There is a lot more involved than what we first thought.

The investigation began July 9, when Tauren, a former Farmington Hills resident, died while being fed her evening meal.

The Oakland County Medical Examiner listed aspiration of food as the offical cause of death. Police say the coroner found Tauren's airway completely blocked by food

The 70-year-old, who suffered from Alzheimer's disease, was also dehydrated at the time of death, police said.

Because of her condition, Tauren could not ask or reach for water and relied solely on the factiity to provide for her needs, according to family.

She had been treated for dehydration at Providence Hospital in Southfield and released July 5—four days prior to her death—according to her family and police sources.

Stames recently alerted the attorney general's health care fraud division about the case and said the department may ask for assistance. The Michigan Department of Public Health is already involved in the case.

City aids in video aimed at children

By STEVE KELLMAN

To most people, firefighters are life savers, heroes in red during times of

But tragically, one segment of the population often fears firefighters when they are needed the most.
As City Fire Inspector Robert Turner explained, young children some-times fiee from rescue personnel durng a blaze rather than running tow-

That's our worst nightmare, trying to find a child who is hiding." To help allay those fears, Turner has teamed up with Norm Fankell of Industrial Video Productions in Northville, and Rob Stenger, a communications major at the University of Iowa. The team has spent the last several weeks videotaping the North-ville City Fire Department in action. Their aim is to create a videotape that will teach children that firefighters are their friends.

Turner and Fankell first came up with the idea after a softball game in which the two friends played

"We were just having a couple of beers after a game and talking about video, Fankell recalled. We thought that would be a good tool for Bob to use. I guess the goal is to show that

Since then, the idea has grown into a safety video that could be used by fire and law enforcement person nel around the state. Stenger, who is completing a summer internship with Fankell's company, has taken over the filming and editing of the tape as a school project.

UNTIL WE FIND A CURE, THIS IS THE BEST MEDICINE

You know what they say about laughter. About sunshine. And about love. Thousands of children with neuromuscular diseases know, too - thanks to special summer camps sponsored by the Muscular Dystrophy

Each summer, MDA camps provide a special outdoor world-without-barriers to children disabled by neuromuscular disorders. Despite leg braces and wheelchairs, these children swin and fish. They go boating. They horseback ride. They have cookouts and crafts. And each youngster shares a special friendship with a voluntee counselor who works one-on-one with the child.

Summer camps are just one way MDA serves patients with neuromuscular diseases The Association also maintains some 230 clinics around the country to provide essential services like diagnosis, medical follow-up, physical therapy and counseling. And MDA provides orthopedic equipment and other aids for daily living, all free of charge to the patient and his family.

MDA receives no government grants or fees for services — its programs are funded entirely by private donations. For thousands of patients with neuromuscular diseases, you can be the best medicine. Please send a tax-deductible contri-
