100 years from now... it will not matter what my bank account was, the sort of house I lived in, or the clothes I wore... but the world may be different because I was important in the life of a child.
— Elanna Szabo
(artist and former Milford resident)

This year the Meadowbrook Country Club again held a golf invitational its members have played in for the last 26 years. It was on the same course, they played the same game, many wore the same visors, and there were even a lot of the same women who have played year after year.

But one thing was different. "This is the first year we played for charity," said Ann Beason, a club member and organizer of the July 25-26 event.

Beason said she was approached by Ladies Chairperson Call LaRiche and asked to organize the invitational this year. She and another member, Sandi Bonamici, teamed up to brainstorm for a tournament theme and came up with the idea to run it as a charity benefit.

Bonamici developed the event's logo, "Have a Heart," and it stuck. From there, Beason went about researching several different charity organizations and selected the five she felt would be acceptable to most members.

"The ones we selected were all big names so it would be difficult for people to say no," said Beason, who added that all of the fundraising events were optional.

The golfing event raised $1,055 from a raffle for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, and $313 for both the Make-A-Wish Foundation and the Tri-City Seals Physically Disabled Sports Team.

Additionally, players were asked to bring in a new sweatshirt on the first day of the two-day event which would be donated to the St. Vincent Sarah Fisher Center for unwed mothers and a new child's toy on the second day. The toys were collected for the Toys for Tots program which gives new toys to needy children at Christmas time. About 66 sweatshirts and over 100 toys were collected.

Most members agreed that the new fundraising aspect of the invitational did not alter the actual event but simply added a special element.

"I think it is wonderful," said member Jan Jensen, who played in her 12th Meadowbrook Invitational. "I think to grant a wish is a wonderful cause."

Jensen was referring to the Make-A-Wish Foundation, a non-profit organization that grants wishes to terminally ill children, one of the organizations which benefited from their unique fundraising ideas.

One money-making mechanism used by tournament organizers was allowing members to buy Mulligans. In golf, a Mulligan refers to a bad shot, when the club knocks the ball, and a "Mulligan" is allowed to give the golfer another chance. Tournament teams were given a choice of two

Police eye suspect in hold-ups

By SHEILA PHILLIPS
Staff Writer

Last week's armed robbery at Novi Drug in Peachtree Shopping Center is linked to a September 1989 theft at the Perry Drug store across the street, according to police.

Class-II prescription drugs were stolen at knife-point in both incidents, and no cash was taken.

"We are pretty sure it's the same guy," said Det. Ralph Fluhart. "We showed a composite of the Perry Drugs suspect to the victims at Novi Drug and they said it was the same guy."

At approximately 3:30 p.m. July 23, the suspect, who matched the description of the Sept. 28 culprit, stole an undisclosed quantity of Class-II prescription (narcotic) drugs at knife-point from Novi Drug.

The method of operation in both incidents were almost identical, according to police.

"The guy said about the same thing in both robberies," Fluhart said. "He told the pharmacist that he was a junkie, he needed a fix, that it was probably obvious by the way he was shaking, and to give him all his Class-II prescription drugs or codeine pills."

Police also suspect the same knife was used in the two crimes. Victims describe the weapon as a kitchen knife with a serrated blade.

In both cases, the suspect fled on foot. However, police are still unsure if an escape vehicle was parked away from the crime scene in either incident.

In the Perry Drug crime, a witness saw a light-colored Oldsmobile speed away from the area but it is still uncertain if the vehicle was tied to the crime.

Commission okays budget

By SHEILA PHILLIPS
Staff Writer

The Novi Planning Commission has been forced to do some belt-tightening in response to a 9-percent budget cut by the City Council in a late-night session back in May.

The commission finalized its 1990-91 work program July 18, subtracting $17,400 from its proposed project list in order to stay out of the red.

The group originally asked council for a $197,400 allotment but got only $180,000, which was $5,000 less than its 1989-90 budget.

Still counting: Although Census Day, April 1, has passed, the Census Bureau has initiated a follow-up procedure to ensure an accurate and complete count called the "Were you Counted?" campaign. This campaign marks the last opportunity for households and individuals missed in the count to participate in the census. The bureau will make available a one-page, abbreviated census form. Anyone missed in the census should complete and return the shortened questionnaire to the address indicated on the form. Call toll-free to answer the census: 1-800-999-1990; or for the hearing impaired, 1-800-777-0978.

The commission is seeking belongings of pre-1900 Novi residents, including photographs, farming and household implements, diaries and letters, as well as items documenting pre-1950 village, township and city governments and local events. This would include memorabilia of the Walled Lake Amusement Park and Casino and anything related to the REO Speedwagon fire truck, including service manuals and equipment.

In addition, the commission is also interested in talking to people who lived in Novi prior to 1950, to collect local oral histories. Contact Kathy Mutch at McGrew at Nationals: Fourteen-year-old Novi tennis sensation Mark McGrew did not officially place at the Boys-14 National Clay Court Championships held July 15-21 in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., but he played very well nonetheless.

Because of a paperwork snafu, McGrew entered the singles portion of the tournament as an unseeded player. As a result, he faced high-seeded Mark Warknen of New York in the first round and fell 6-4, 3-6, 1-6. However, McGrew fought his way back in the consolation round to win five straight, including three against competitors from talent-rich California and two from Florida, another district featuring very talented players.

McGrew was then ousted from the double-elimination tourney by third-seeded Chris Lopez of Florida 1-6, 6-1, 1-6. In a field of 128, McGrew wound up placing somewhere in the 17th-to-24th slot overall.

McGrew and doubles partner Brad Mendelson (Akron, Ohio) entered the tournament seeded 13th and advanced to the Round of 16 before falling to the eighth-seeded team from Puerto Rico 6-3, 6-2.

Board will hear call for bond issue Thursday

By MAUREEN NASZRADI Staff Writer

The Novi Board of Education Thursday is expected to act on the superintendent's recommendation to hold a bond issue election in September.

Dr. Robert Piwko, superintendent of the Novi Community School District, said the board will discuss setting a Sept. 25 election date for residents to vote whether to issue bonds to fund the construction of a "link" between two district schools.

The proposed instructional/technology link between Novi Meadows and Novi Middle School was one of the alternatives recommended by the district Facilities Committee, formed in the spring of 1990.

The committee was asked to address the increasing population of Novi Meadows, Novi Middle School and Novi High School. Committee members discussed separate additions to each building, the addition of common facilities, building new, separate facilities, as well as several options for the expansion of the physical education and athletic facilities at the high school.

The committee's final report concluded there was need for both educational and physical education facilities and urged the board to act in what it considers the best interests of the community.

Piwko said Monday the board is expected to proceed with only the educational facility for now. The board will review the recommendation for the high school, he added, possibly placing that proposal on the ballot in the spring.

"We know that the need at the grade 5-6-7-8 levels has to be addressed," Piwko said. "This is a priority."

"We need to get it under way so it will be operational by the beginning of the school year in 1991-92."

"It appears that we are again in the fortunate situation that we will not require additional millage."

Dr. Robert Piwko Superintendent, Novi schools

The proposal connects the existing schools on the Tall Road site where several portable classrooms currently are located. Piwko said the new facility would eliminate the need for relocatables.

A concept drawing shows additional classrooms, a large-group instruction area, a technology center and a science lab. Piwko said the plans emphasize technology because "it's very obvious that is the direction we're going."

The Facilities Committee's final report listed several advantages and disadvantages of the link.

For example, the fluctuating school population could be accommodated more easily with "floating" classrooms. Staff and facilities could be shared. State-of-the-art equipment could meet the needs of 10th- through eighth-graders in one facility.

Disadvantages the committee cited include more expensive operating costs (than separate additions); schools could lose their individual identities; community access to athletic fields behind both buildings would be restricted and transition anxiety for children from fourth to fifth grade may increase.

The school district must seek voter approval to sell bonds because it is the tax dollars generated by the debt millage that go toward repayment of the bond amount as well as the interest on the bonds.

The school district issues the bonds to the bidder that offers the lowest interest rate to the district. As said, Superintendent William Barr said.

Piwko said that he does not expect that the district will have to raise the millage rate to fund repayment of a new bond issue.

Based on the current repayment schedule, Piwko said that the district would be debt-free by 2003.

A number of bond issues still are outstanding, Barr said. Past projects funded by that millage are the purchase of sites, construction and equipping of the middle school, Village Oaks Elementary, the high school and Parkview Elementary.

$4 million and $6 million. For the 1990-91 school year, the district is levying 3.10 mills toward the debt fund. The district in 1989-90 levied 3.55 mills.

Barr said the district's debt millage rate has been decreasing for two reasons. First, the district's debt obligation was scheduled to diminish as the bonds matured.

At the same time, the State Equalized Valuation — by which the millage rate is multiplied — has been increasing in the Novi district. When a constant millage rate is applied to rising property values, revenues increase.

Based on the current repayment schedule, Piwko said that the district would be debt-free by 2003.

A number of bond issues still are outstanding, Barr said. Past projects funded by that millage are the purchase of sites, construction and equipping of the middle school, Village Oaks Elementary, the high school and Parkview Elementary.

"It appears that we are again in the fortunate situation that we will not require additional millage," he said.

The number of mills that the district will levy depends on the bond dollar amount that the board decides to pursue, Barr said. He said his guess for the project cost is between

Parental support is the key to a student's success

Q: I teach high school Social Studies. I love teaching and I work at it. Sometimes I get upset for constantly being blamed for the lack of student achievement on national standardized tests. Some of my students don't do their homework, don't bring their books to class making me feel like a babysitter at times. I believe there are other factors that impact student achievement. What are the major factors that influence student achievement? Are teachers entirely the blame?

A: To answer your question, I reviewed the research on non-

Instructional or non-teacher influences on high school student achievement. The major finding didn't surprise me at all; some of the other findings did.

Students who perform well in school are raised in homes by parents who are supportive of their children, yet demanding. They encourage and expect academic achievement by their children and are able to transmit this expectation in a loving, caring manner.

They have kept involved in their school one way or another. At a minimum, they, at least, attend their children's teacher/parent conferences. These parents know what's going on. Whether they like it or not is another issue.

We've all heard of the great impact of peer group influence. Well, peer influence, according to this major study, was found to be far less influential than the parent influence over the "long haul."

Indeed, the peer group influence that was observed (except in totally alienated adolescent groups) tended to encourage their friends to achieve rather than discourage or bad-mouth student achievement.

So we shouldn't lay the blame on youth as each previous generation historically has. Indeed, it seems the only time our youth are of any value is when there is a war to fight.

Most interesting is the impact of the single parent or working mother. In regards to their children's achievement, Generalities are often made because "Johnny" doesn't achieve because he is a product of a working mother or single parent.

Again, it was found that if the working mother and single parent were actively involved in their children's schooling, were supportive yet demanding of their children and encouraged and expected achievement, their children were successful. This finding should alleviate some of the guilt trips I've heard from working mothers. Or establish that working is no excuse for not seeing to it their children do their homework.

Part-time employment seems to carry an academic price for many students. In general, those students who work more than 15 hours a week (especially on school days) are adversely affected in their academic performance. This was especially evident for the sophomores and juniors who then struggle as seniors to improve their grades for college entrance or just to graduate.

The Japanese, whose students score very high on international standardized achievement tests, in general do not let their adolescents work. They are students first and expected to study approximately two

Convictions earn award in Wixom

By SHEILA PHILLIPS Staff Writer

Wixom police officer and Novi resident Alan Blaschfield received a distinguished service medal for spearheading the investigation into an alcohol-related accident which led to several landmark criminal convictions.

The Wixom officer received the coveted medal last month at the annual police chief's conference. He was one of 18 officers from over 500 departments bestowed with the distinguished service distinction.

"Officer Blaschfield did a bang-up job and we are all real proud of him," Wixom Police Chief Lawrence Holland said.

Although Blaschfield is equally proud, he maintains that it is the story behind the award that is important, not the medal itself.

It was 8 a.m. Easter Morning 1988 when an intoxicated 18-year-old lost control of her vehicle and plowed into a nearby tree at 75 miles an hour.

"Arriving at the scene that serene morning was one of the strangest experiences I ever had," Blaschfield commented.

To demonstrate the velocity at impact, the vehicle's engine was thrown 2 1/4 feet backward into the passenger compartment and a tire securely fastened in the trunk flew into the back seat.

"The worst thing is that the accident shouldn't have happened. It was purely alcohol induced," the officer said.

Twelve beer cans, eight of which were empty, were found inside or near the car, according to police reports.

"One of strangest things about the accident scene was that the 23-year-old, who was the only one able to walk, was found trying to throw the beer cans away from the car," Blaschfield said. "He was cut up badly and bleeding, but all he knew to do was get rid of the evidence."

The 18-year-old was hospitalized for internal injuries. The 14-year-old passenger ended up in a body cast and the 23-year-old passenger suffered arm and facial lacerations from being thrown through the vehicle's windshield. All three were legally intoxicated at the time of the accident. The trio involved in the accident, all of whom were from the Walled Lake/Wixom area, attended a Wolverine Lake party the night before the accident. Admission was charged, which is not allowable without a liquor license, and numerous minors between the ages of 14 and 20 were present.

The testimony gathered by Blaschfield during the follow-up investigation resulted in felony convictions of the Wolverine Lake party-thrasher and the man who bought the party's half-barrel of beer, and knowingly sold admission tickets to minors.

The 18-year-old driver, who was without a license, was convicted of two counts of felonious driving and sentenced under the youthful training act.

A Walled Lake party store was also convicted of four liquor law violations in association with the accident. The Hop-in on Pontiac Trail sold beer to two of the individuals involved in the accident three times during the night. Based on the convictions, the store had its license suspended for six months.

The 18-year-old and 23-year-old purchased three 12-packs from the store between 12 a.m. and 6 a.m. and were visibly intoxicated at the time of each sale, according to the cashier's police statement. In addition, the final sale also took place between 2 a.m. and 12 p.m. on Sunday morning, which is prohibited by law.

On top of having its liquor license suspended, the store was fined $2,000 and forced to donate an additional $2,400 to the Walled Lake Western substance abuse counseling center — which is the first time in state history that this type of financial community service was mandated.

The store clerk was convicted of two misdemeanor charges, selling alcohol after hours and selling to visibly intoxicated persons. He was sentenced under the youthful training act.

These convictions send a message that we are willing to go beyond just writing the accident report in alcohol-related accidents and find out who is responsible," Blaschfield said.

Tollgate Farm makes renovations

By JAN JEFFRES Staff Writer

Developers who grumble while going through Novi's planning review process might envy Tollgate 4-H Education Center.

Because the historic farm at the corner of Twelve Mile and Meadowbrook Roads is affiliated with Michigan State University, the state constitution allows facility expansion and renovation without local government approval. And plenty of plans are in the works for the complex.

"The university is not subject to local regulations of its properties. Generally speaking, the university attempts to meet the basic requirements of the community it's in. Usually we try to be sure we at least meet comparable standards," said Sally Harwood, MSU assistant general counsel.

At present, the new conference rooms — which will hold a total of 60 people — will be used for workshops and weekend training, frequently conducted by MSU faculty members. Also in the works this summer are a series of nature trails which will be open to the public. The trails will include interpretive stations on topics such as the environment, forestry, wildlife and land management.

In addition, the 142-year-old hay burn will be cleaned up and remediated for use as a games and activities center. Eventually, Tollgate hopes to winterize the barn and purchase a portable stage for theater programs, Schneider said.

Next year, a $2.5 million in-door horseback riding arena and stables are planned to augment the existing equestrian program for handicapped children. This would be built at the north end of the property. About 1,000 to 1,500 children are expected to participate per year.

The third phase of construction — within five years — calls for a conference center facility which could hold up to 300 people, including overnight accommodations. Furthermore, Tollgate's master plan calls for a biodome, a geodesic dome in which an ecosystem would be developed to demonstrate the results of changes in earth's biosphere. The dome would include a pond for aquaculture studies.

The center also has long-range plans for a computer lab and a video production studio where educational programs would be prepared for broadcasting throughout the state by satellite.

Schneider has been keeping Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall and Community Development Director James Wahl posted about the expansion.

"The process we agreed on with the city manager and the planning director was that we would be very happy to share with them the information and the plans we have been doing on the site for them to comment on. We want to do that in the interest of cooperation," he explained.

"The city has no complaints on that score. They're really working closely with us," Kriewall said.

A 35-year-old Walled Lake man was arrested July 21 at 2:38 a.m. on Seven Mile near Haggerty.

A 17-year-old Redford woman was arrested July 14 at 5:41 a.m.

A 38-year-old Northville man was arrested July 16 at 1:04 a.m. on southbound Northville Road south of Seven Mile.

A 38-year-old Farmington Hills man was arrested July 20 at 2:09 a.m. on Six Mile near Haggerty.

An unspecified person was arrested July 21 at 3:25 a.m. on westbound Seven Mile near Insubrock.

INDECENT EXPOSURE AT MEJER - Northville Township police received a report that a white male in his 30s, 5'11" with red hair, exposed himself in the Mejer parking lot July 19. The incident occurred at 4:10 p.m., and the man reportedly left the scene in a black 1987 Ford Escort GT.

LARCENY FROM A VEHICLE AT MEJER - Northville Township police investigated a report of larceny from a vehicle at Mejer, 20401 Haggerty, July 18. The driver of a 1987 Pontiac said someone purloined out the driver's door lock and stole a car radio. The incident occurred between 10:45-11:15 a.m. in the northwest side of the Mejer lot.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY - A Cold Spring Drive resident told Northville City police he was assaulted after a traffic altercation July 23. The resident said he was followed home by a man and a woman in a van after passing in front of the van on Eight Mile Road. He told police the man grabbed him by the tie and punched him in the face three times, and that the woman hit him with a coffee mug. Police saw cuts around the resident's eyes and on his lip, and a welt on his back after the incident.

Police traced the driver using the van's license plate, and interviewed him by phone. Though he admitted following the Northville man home, the driver claimed he was grabbed from behind by the Northville resident after an argument in front of his house.

The Cold Spring Drive resident told police he would talk to the driver before pressing charges.

MAN ARRESTED FOR WRITING BAD CHECKS - A 53-year-old Northville man was arrested July 28 for writing a check on a closed account. He was released on a $100 bond. According to the city police report, the man wrote the check at the Northville Wine Shoppe Sept. 1, 1989.

MOTORCYCLE STOLEN - A Suzuki motorcycle stolen from behind an Allen Drive home was found in a field in Novi, according to Northville City police reports. The white and red off-road motorcycle was stolen sometime between 9 p.m. July 24 and 1:30 p.m. July 25, and found July 28 by Novi police.

FOUND PROPERTY - Northville City police retrieved a purple bicycle from a yard on South Rogers Street July 26. Anyone wishing to claim it is asked to call the Northville City police at 349-1234 with a more detailed description.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234, Northville Township Police at 349-9470, or the Novi Police Tip Line at 349-8887.

north end as well as solutions to those problems, but the bulk of the forced budget cut, dropping from $19,000 to $10,500.

However, Commissioner Charles Kureth said this cut will not have significant impact on the study.

"We will still be able to identify the problems, we will just have to wait until next year to handle the solutions," he said. "The public should have input into what solutions are chosen and that discussion would have put us into next year anyway."

Other budget slashes included a $2,900 cut from conferences and workshops, $2,000 off the implementation of the urban design plan and $3,000 from the natural resource design plan implementation.

A marketing study on the financial feasibility of the controversial River Stroll project was also a subject of debate. Although commissioners were aware of council skepticism about the project, they elected to retain the $5,000 earmarked for the study.

Other significant untouched line items include $76,000 for consulting services, $10,000 for zoning map amendments, $7,500 for information publication, $12,000 for Town Center planning, $12,800 for an off-street parking study, and $5,000 for a marginal access road study.

charities to donate the $626 raised by Mulligan sales.

"I had many women come up to me after and say 'We have never been to an invitational where we could leave and feel good no matter how we goled,'" Beason said.

The overall winner of the tournament was the team of Doris Spengler of West Bloomfield and her partner, Nova Flaherty. Other winners were: First flight - Julia Letier of Northville and her partner, Colette Chermant; second flight - Jo Flora of Novi and her partner, Sharon Potter; third flight - Kathy Letier of Livonia and her partner, Pat Gale; and fourth flight - Fran Tisdale of Farmington Hills and her partner, Pina Moran.

But, according to Beason and the other players, the big winners were all of the women who put their time, energy and hearts into the event and the children they helped.

Armed robbery

In the latest robbery, the suspect fired on foot and eluded police as well as a tracking dog. He was last seen running into the woods just north of Ten Mile.

The suspect is described as a 5'-9" to 5'-11" white male. He is in his mid-to early 30s, or possibly early 30s, with dark curly hair and a thin build (see composite).

He was last seen wearing a plaid shirt and black jeans. In the first crime he was wearing a baseball cap, but not in the second incident.

Police believe the two drug thefts are isolated incidents. No known crimes in neighboring areas match the same method of operation.

At present, the police had not uncovered any solid leads in the case. If anyone has information regarding either incident, contact Det. Raph Fihart or Det. Jack Grubb at 248-7100.

Skin care shop is Twelve Oaks' water wonderland

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

It's no secret that water is essential to life, and a new store in the Twelve Oaks Mall is hoping that its wares become equally essential to your life.

The store is H2O Plus, so named because every one of the 100-odd skin care and bath products sold by the store is water-based.

"The whole concept is based on a hydrogel formulation," says Jenny Easdon, manager of the Twelve Oaks store. "All the products are meant to hydrate and soften dry skin. It holds in the moisture naturally. It's a progressive alternative to skin and beauty care."

H2O Plus is the first company to depart from the oil-based tradition of skin care. The hydrogel is a state-of-the-art formulation conceived by Cindy Melk, executive vice president and creative director for the chain of 14 stores. The hydrogels are blended with water and botanicals (herbs, flowers and plant extracts) in everything from moisturizers to cleansers to protective sun care.

"Water is nature's only form of moisturization," says Melk. "The hydrogels attract, absorb and hold moisture to your skin for up to 8-10 hours."

For the uninitiated, hydrogels are a mixture of carbohydrates that act as sponges, and almost instantly attract water. They've been in existence for some time, but this is the first time they've been used in such a broad line.

Though it took nearly two years of development and consultation with chemists to bring the products of H2O Plus to market last October, the idea was Melk's alone. She was frustrated with the veritable tidal wave of unsatisfactory skin care products she encountered when shopping.

"I was the ultimate consumer," Melk says. "If you get together with 10 women, you get the same response across the board. The bath and skin care industry is confusing, intimidating, there's a lot of marketing talk, it's extremely overpriced and they use excess packaging."

She adds that she found ingredients and benefits of the popular department-store brands either misleading or non-existent.

"People are reading packages now, wanting to know what they're getting," says Melk. "They're real ingredient-conscious. My company says, 'Please, read our product labels.'"

In addition, Melk boasts that her products sell for 15-20 percent less than the popular skin and bath products. She can afford to undercut the major brands on price because H2O Plus uses a minimum of packaging (making the products a little more environment-friendly, as well).

"We're taking an honest approach to what we sell," Melk says. "The packaging is clear and simple, and the product is colorful. It's a minimalist approach to skin care. The look is exciting without being excessive. I don't think you have to sacrifice one for the other. What you see is what you get."

And what you see is quite attractive. From the moment you step past the store's wave-like display window, you are deluged with pleasant colors. Yellows, greens, blues and oranges beam from the backlit shelves.

The decor itself is a metaphor for the products - clean and simple. H2O Plus to market last October, the idea was Melk's alone. She was frustrated with the veritable tidal wave of

Don't think the store is just rows of jars and tubes, though. Accessories like bath robes, shower kits and beach balls add a whimsical touch to the store. You can even purchase your own rubber duckie.

The staff is pleasant and knowledgeable. Says Easdon, "We all receive three days of product training with a trainer from H2O Plus. We all come from skin care backgrounds, and that's the kind of person we look for to recruit."

For men, there are shaving products, including a foamless shaving cream. There are skin moisturizers and therapeutic cleansers with the more masculine citrus ingredients.

Kids and babies are covered, too, but for a real treat, check out some of the H2O bath and shower luxury items. They indulge and pamper the skin, and despite the luxury moniker, not a single item costs over $15.

Manager Jenny Easdon stocks the shelves at H2O Plus.

Bringing out the best in sales force

When a salesperson's planning or persuasive skills need improvement, his or her "natural" selling style must first be identified. This is done by evaluating a series of specific abilities that the salesperson normally demonstrates on the job.

Planning-related abilities to be analyzed include the following: product knowledge, territory or market control, pre-call or pre-selling preparation, time management, and overall planning capabilities.

Evaluation of persuasive abilities is focused in the areas of customer knowledge, the selling and buying process, communication and securing buying action and personal impact.

Based on a model developed by Finn and Staunton, there are several selling styles.

The "involve" style of selling sums up a salesperson with a low aptitude for planning and greater persuasive powers. This type of salesperson is disorganized and appears not to have his act together. He depends on charm rather than logic, important product features, and related customer benefits to win sales.

As a result, he often gives inaccurate information, with a majority of his sales either falling through, being revised or resulting in customer dissatisfaction.

A salesperson with "direct" style shows a tendency to have better planning skills. This creates problems because the salesperson is perceived by customers as being inflexible and impatient when the sales interaction does not progress as planned.

The "type" of salesperson is also not attuned to his customer's needs and is reluctant to explore product or service-related alternatives when appropriate. Even though he may know everything about the products and services being offered for sale, his approach toward customers is generally cold and impersonal.

The "intermediate" style represents average sales capabilities in both planning and persuasion. While skills in these areas are developed enough to allow a salesperson to handle himself or herself adequately in most sales situations, he does not possess the qualities to produce outstanding results.

A thorough examination of the planning and persuasive skills listed earlier should indicate which specific abilities require further improvement.

The most desirable style of selling is one that represents the ultimate balance of planning and persuasive power.

A salesperson who functions in the "motivator" style is organized, analytical, well-prepared and knowledgeable, determines and understands his customer's needs, communicates well and is oriented toward end results.

When implementing the balance of power approach, sales training can be directed to each salesperson's real needs. Ultimately, it is much more likely to produce the increased sales and profit growth your business strives for.

Novi is Oakland's mobile home capital

By SHEILA PHILLIPS
Staff Writer

Novi is the mobile home capital of Oakland County with a total of 1,902 sites. The city also has the second highest number of mobile home sites in the tri-county area behind Canton Township, which has 2,590 units. These were the "travelling" results of a recent inventory of Oakland, Macomb and Wayne County mobile home sites conducted by Novi Planning Consultant Brandon Rogers. The study was prompted by Paragon Properties' lawsuit to force Novi's sixth mobile home park Paragon won its case on July 17 and plans to add at least 100 units to Novi's mobile home tally at the corner of Napier and Twelve Mile. However, the city will appeal Oakland County Circuit Judge John N. O'Brien's verdict to grant the required mobile home zoning. With the existing five mobile home parks, the city already has "more than its share" of sites, according to Rogers. The number of mobile home parks in Novi is very revealing but when you add the number of multiples, existing and planned, the combined total of units exceeds the number of single family housing units in the city, Rogers said. He predicts that the ratio will swing back in favor of single family housing over the next few years because nearly all the city's multiple (RM) zoned land is already occupied. But Novi will still get some additional multiples under its planned urban development (PUD) option. Both Maples of Novi and Sandstone, the city's approved PUD projects, propose multiples. Rogers said that having a large number of multiples and mobile homes is not "necessarily bad," despite the fact he recently said during the Paragon trial that three mobile home parks adjacent to each other had a "ghettoizing effect." "It is important that a city have a balanced mixture of housing types because everyone has different incomes and not everyone needs a four-bedroom house with 2 1/2 baths," he maintained. Rogers could not answer whether Novi has too many mobile home parks or multiples, saying that a community's appropriate housing mix is a subjective judgement. Areas without lower priced housing options force their senior population to move out of the area, yet over half of Oakland County's municipalities choose not to have a single mobile home site, he commented. Communities without mobile home sites include the City of Farmington, Bloomfield Hills, Birmingham, the City of Rochester, Milford Village, Wixom and Wolverine Lake.

Architect's role should be clear

Before you approach an architect to develop plans for your dream house, think about your goals for the project, the Michigan Association of Home Builders advises. What kind of design and materials do you envision? Does your budget match your aspirations? While your architect will help you think your project through, you should have a general understanding of your goals and resources to help you select the architect who's best for you.

Look at parts of projects similar to yours that you especially like. What is it about them you find appealing? Contact the owner and ask which architect they selected and why. Names and addresses of architects are available from the Detroit chapter of the American Institute of Architects. Keep in mind that some architecture firms specialize. Interview several architects. When talking to candidates, ask to see photographs of projects they have worked on that are comparable to yours in size and type. Ask for names of owners you can contact. Ask to meet any other members of the design team who may be involved in the project.

You should walk away from your meeting knowing how the architect expects to work with you and other members of the team. What does the architect see as the most important issues or considerations? Is his style and approach similar to yours? Do you feel good about the architect as a person? Is the "chemistry" right? Don't hesitate to ask questions. Think of the architect as a professional who will bring experience and specialized knowledge to your project.

Once you've found an architect you feel comfortable working with, sit down and discuss exactly what services will be needed. Some owners bring their particular expertise to the owner-architect relationship; some will need step-by-step guidance. Basic architectural services include: schematic design, design development, construction documents (working drawing, specifications and contract), bidding and negotiation (contractor selection), and construction contract administration.

But the architect may be helpful in other ways such as providing financial feasibility studies, assisting in site selection and zoning applications, exploring energy-saving systems, providing landscape and interior design and helping you through the approval process required by many local jurisdictions.

The complexity of the project will often dictate the level of service supplied by the architect.

The formal agreement between you and your architect — the owner-architect agreement — spells out what both you and the architect expect from the professional relationship. If you've agreed to a list of services and discussed the budget, the formal agreement should follow without difficulty. Be sure to show the agreement to your lawyer before signing.

How much money an architect receives depends on how much work he does — the more complex or experimental the project, the more you should budget for architectural services.

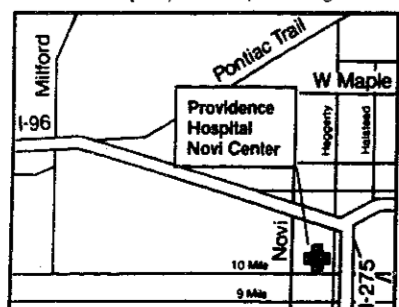

Architects are sometimes paid a percentage of the construction cost. Other times, they charge an hourly rate and can estimate the total hours required to complete your project.

Music for the masses

DSO's flutist says classical music should be for everybody

"Music is for everybody. It belongs to everybody, and it's accessible," the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's principal flutist, Ervin Monroe, says emphatically.

"You don't have to take five years of college to be able to enjoy what you're going to hear. And when you talk down to somebody — there's no reason for it."

Monroe, being interviewed in the Troy house he shares with his wife, Susan, and their children, made it apparent that this belief is rooted in his childhood, his more than 25 years as a musician and teacher and his experience as past president of the National Flute Association. With a hint of a Southern accent, he recounted the obstacles and lack of educational opportunities and accessibility to classical music he encountered growing up in Niceville, Fla., as the youngest of six. He revealed how his love for the flute helped overcome these obstacles and opened opportunities, making him one of the most successful flutists in the country.

In the great room, a fire blazed in the fireplace on a chilly spring evening as Monroe sat talking to a visitor. A tall man, Monroe is a gregarious host with an open manner.

"His mother, a school teacher and 'real music lover,' gave him a piccolo when he was 10. However, the instrument proved defective. Though she was the family's sole supporter by then, she agreed to buy him another instrument and told him to pick one. Realizing there wasn't a flute player in the Niceville Elementary School band, he chose flute. Immediately, he 'loved it, and decided that was it.'"

By 12 he said, "I was so serious about making this my occupation in life, I went to find out where you go to make a living playing flute. So I was told, you play in an orchestra."

"Since there weren't concerts where he lived, he saved the money he earned at his job and bought a hi-fi set. 'I went to a Fort Walters Beach record shop and told the guy I wanted to play in the orchestra and wanted to hear orchestral music. I had never heard orchestral music in my life.'"

"The salesperson recommended Brahms' Second Symphony, Beethoven's Third Symphony ('Eroica') and Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony with Beethoven's Fifth on the flip side. 'Still to this day I never get tired of Brahms' symphonies,' he said.

"The Second Symphony I used to turn up — wide open — when I would get home from school," Monroe said. "I was the only one there and I would just blast it out into the woods. We lived in the woods. I would go out and run with my dogs. You could hear it through the woods."

Meanwhile, at that time in the mid-1950s, what Monroe could listen to on late-night radio was jazz from New Orleans and rhythm and blues, including B.B. King "long before he became popular," on a black station out of Galveston, Texas. Today, he likes playing blues.

"His 'first real exposure' to orchestras also came the summer he was over's Third Symphony ('Eroica') and Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony with Beethoven's Fifth on the flip side. 'Still to this day I never get tired of Brahms' symphonies,' he said.

Paraphrasing his friend, flutist James Galway, he said, "Playing all the time is the best exercise. The flute is a very physical instrument. It takes more air than a trombone, because the way the sound is produced on flute you lose a certain amount of air. Part goes outside of the instrument and part goes in."

"Tests show the closest comparison to the amount of air used by the flute player is that used by the tuba player."

"As a result we do have to work constantly building up our lungs, and you do that on stage. Breathing and exhaling, you're exercising your lungs like crazy. 'Part of my job is a certain amount of responsibility to the public — to teach. It's up and above what we do on stage... we have to be evangelists in a sense. We have to spread the word — it sounds corny, but it's true. We owe that to the arts. We love it and we better let someone else know about it.'"

He said he's learned that symphony orchestra concerts have "got to appeal to everybody. This is music. If the music doesn't appeal, you didn't do something wrong, or you didn't perform very well." He said that if those unschooled in classical music "go with an open mind. They should enjoy it."

"Something should fascinate or electrify them. You've got to leave them feeling good. When someone buys a concert ticket, this is their night out. They are taking their families out. I don't care whether it's Beethoven, Mahler or Eric Clapton, you go to a concert to have an experience and I would like them to go out of there with a thrilling experience."

This summer, Monroe will be prominently heard in Beethoven's "Leonore" Overture when it is performed by the DSO at Meadow Brook on July 5 and 8. During the regular 1990-91 season he is to be featured as a soloist with flutist Jean-Pierre Rampal.

Summer list includes old favorites

By now, you've probably read several lists of what's au courant for summertime reading. I know I have. You can be sure that I look forward to these snippets of information every vacation season, hoping they'll put me onto something I haven't yet heard about that will make for worthwhile reading during my favorite time of the year — and they almost always do.

For this column, however, I thought I'd put together a slightly different kind of list. After a recent afternoon at my favorite library, and a look through my own bookshelves, I found a dozen "golden oldies" that aren't on any current publishing lists but which definitely make for fascinating reading nonetheless. What's more, you can get every one of them simply by handing over your library card. Also, most are in paperback, and consequently make great traveling companions.

So if you're looking for a good read in the coming months, consider:

- "Diamonds Are Forever: Artists and Writers on Baseball" (1987). Contains essays, poems and random thoughts of American writers on "the thinking man's game." Supplemented generously with fine illustrations by noted artists. You can almost taste the hot dogs and hear the c-r-r-r-ack of the Louisville Slugger as you settle back with this highly attractive book, edited by Peter Gordon, Sydney Waller and Paul Weinman.

- "A Kiss is Still a Kiss: Roger Ebert on the Movies" (1984). Film critic Ebert writes not of movies here, but of film stars. In his lively, conversational style, he records observations on such diverse personalities as Mel Brooks, John Wayne and David Bowie. There's even a brief chapter on Muhammad Ali. I'm not sure what it's doing in a book on film folks, but it's fun to read anyway.

- "Night Shift" (1976). In the opinion of a book columnist we all know and love, these lusciously terrifying short stories, written in the days before Stephen King became Stephen King, are far and away his best efforts ever.

- "Twice Over Lightly" (1972). Take an unusual tour of New York with actress Helen Hayes and writer Anita Loos. Pay a visit to Bellevue Hospital at night, take a cruise aboard one of New York's famous garbage scows, drop in on His Honor at Grace Mansion, experience Thanksgiving at the Louisville Slugger as you settle back with this highly attractive book, edited by Peter Gordon, Sydney Waller and Paul Weinman.

- "Angle of Repose" (1971). If you're looking for something a little different, try this oil-bean Western by Wallace Stegner. Stegner puts his emphasis on his unforgettable characters and not on a lot of shoot-'em-up, cowboys-and-Indians fodder.

- "Little Big Man" (1964). Told by the fictional Jack Crabb (who claims to be the only non-Indian survivor of Custer's Last Stand), this novel by Thomas Berger is another oil-bean Western and makes thrilling look at the Old West.

- "Overdrive" (1981). If you think you're busy, read this diary-like account of a week in the life of William F. Buckley, Jr. No wonder he ended up in a hospital bed on his last visit to Detroit. Apolytited. Photos.

Parent's role is key in child's success hours a night under the supervision of their mother.

"Therefore, student achievement is a shared responsibility of teachers, parents, students, and of our overall educational system. Educators are not entirely to blame but we are on the front line. And it is difficult to hide when your rear end is what everyone else is looking at.

Your biggest problem, after 25 years in education, is to not become bitter and burn out. I have to believe you have had many successes; that is, those students who have come back to visit you and, in their own way, said 'Thanks.' Many were positively distracted, uninterested adolescents in your class, and are now successful in ventures you couldn't envision. All educators have had these successes. So get ready for September, like Poltergeist, They're Coming Back!

"Cancer is contagious." Some people believe you can "catch" cancer from another person. That's a myth. It's not true. Cancer is not contagious and cannot be spread from person to person by sneezing, coughing, kissing, or in any other way. Find out what you can do to protect against cancer. Call the Cancer Information Service.
