Though Toth was unwilling to discuss any incidents during the meeting, he later affirmed that his query was in part prompted by council member Tim Pope's warning that he'd actively campaign against the November road bond election. However, Toth added he has been concerned about the question during on-going council discussions of an ethics policy.

"I know that all of us at least at one time or another have lobbled one another. I think this is human nature when you discuss an issue," he said. "If he's campaigning against the bonding, that's not really campaigning against the council. As for the ballot issue, I feel every council member has the right to support it or oppose it.

On Aug. 6, Pope was the only dissenter in a decision to place an $18.8 million, 20-year bond issue on the Nov. 6 ballot. He announced he would actively campaign in opposition to the ballot question. The tax hike would pay for eight miles of road paving and widening projects. Pope has said he particularily objects to the proposed $1.25 million paving of Eleven Mile Road from Town Center Drive to Meadowbrook Road, with developer Trammell Crow Company as one of its several beneficiaries.

Pope said he has contacted several community activists to see if they are willing to join him in fighting the bond election and has also attended meetings where he has independently discussed his

PACE joins fight against MRF

By SHEILA PHILLIPS Staff Writer

The PACE Membership Warehouse has joined ranks with the Novi Material Recovery Facility opposition, voicing objections to the solid waste authority's Haggerty Road site.

"PACE... strenuously objects to RRRASOC's (Regional Recycling and Resource Recovery Authority of Southwestern Oakland County) illconceived proposal to build a large trash transfer station on Haggerty Road across the street from PACE's Farmington Hills store," corporate President Charles Steinbrueck told city officials in a Sept. 24 letter.

"It is our understanding that this facility will process all the commerical residential garbage generated in the cities of Novi, Farmington, Farmington Hills, South Lyon, Walled Lake and Authority Director Lenora Jadun said that PACE's opposition is a result of anti-MRF/ transfer station propaganda.

"I wish PACE would meet with us face to face and discuss their concerns because we are willing to listen," she said. "My feeling is that their reservations are based on erroneous information." The authority already purchased a $30,000 option on a 30-acre light industrial parcel on Haggerty, directly across from PACE. But Steinbrueck urged officials to mandate heavy industrial zoning for the combination MRF/transfer facility, and exclude light indust-

Planning officials and assistant city attorney Dennis Watson are putting the finishing touches on a proposed zoning text change that will dictate facility zoning.

Indications from implementation committee members suggest that proposed wording will allow for light industrial zoning. After visiting similar sites, several commissioners said that they are convinced the facility can be located in light industrial as long as it is fully enclosed.

That wording would still require planning commission and council approval. The proposed ordinance is expected to go before both bodies sometime this month.

Jadun said that ordinance delay has caused tension among authority board members, and will push back the project at least six months. Authority officials maintain that they hope to rezoned for heavy industry. And Bill Barlow, Wixom's City Manager, says he believes the two cities could have worked out lingering points of contention over the industrial park and hopes the communities will continue to work together to solve traffic problems at Wixom Road and Grand River

This is a post-mortem of the Grand Plan, a far-reaching project which could have changed forever the heart of a community but which ultimately failed to win the support of the city council and those residents who cared enough to speak

Introduced publicly in November 1989 and laid to rest on Sept. 26, it started out as a "friendly" relocation program to help "non-conforming" businesses move out of Novi's center at Grand River Avenue and Novi Road to an industrial park at Napier, Twelve Mile and Wixom roads. Tax-abatements, cheap land and tax-free property swaps were among the incentives. So was the fact that the city had earlier rezoned the land as a special town center district, leaving an assortment of companies essentially unable to expand their operations.

With 33 acres cleared, Novi hoped to foster the growth of an oldfashioned downtown with residential, commerical and office buildings.

But residents in Novi's west end. as well as Wixom and Lyon Township, saw nothing "friendly" about the proposal and by early winter 1990 had come out fighting with a new activist group - Neighbors Against Poor Planning (NAPP). Townsend was a founder and

Schools to return special ed funds

By SUZANNE HOLLYER Staff Writer

The Novi Community School District will be required to pay back money it received from Oakland Schools for special education programs, but the district will not be among the worst hit by the unexpected cost.

Novi and 20 other school districts will be billed for money received during the fiscal years 1988 and 1989 that paid for local special education programs.

If "very tentative figures" hold true Novi will be billed approximately $120,000 compared to Waterford which will be hit with the highest bill of $900,000, said Regis Jacobs, director of special education for Oakland Schools.

"In some sense, this is like an error with your bank," Jacobs said. "We have to correct that." Superintendent Robert Piwko just received word of the error "We have not really had an opportunity to examine the full impact," Piwko said.

Most of Oakland Schools' funding for special education students goes to districts with programs for moderately to severly disabled students. These programs are called center programs and Novi is one of five districts that does not have a center program.

When the center programs and transportation costs are paid for, Oakland Schools budgets any extra money to local district programs for mildly disabled students.

Novi received money in the fiscal years 1988 and 1989 for local special education programs. The money was distributed after Oakland Schools received estimates from its local districts on the costs of the center programs. Jacobs said. When the local district's reported that their need was greater than estimated, it was too late. The surplus money had already been distributed.

Northville City police officer John Shier hopes to leave local teen-agers "Scared Stiff."

The officer was trained last week in a Ford Motor Co.-sponsored program to educate teen-age drivers about the dangers of drinking and driving. Officer Shier acts as the police department's school training officer, and has taught his own safety courses to driver education classes at Northville High School. He sees "Scared Stiff" as a valuable educational tool in the fight against drunk driving.

The program has its own script, he said, "but it gives you an opportunity to ad lib." While the program is hard-hitting, it does not resort to the "blood on the highway" scare tactics that some programs use. The program uses "no real blood and guts," Shier said. District 15 Senate race heats up

Many eyes in Michigan are on District 15, as Republicans pin their hopes and money on beating a 26-year veteran legislator, and Democrats campaign hard to keep him in place. Facing off on the Nov. 6 ballot are: incumbent Democrat Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills and two challengers, Republican Denise Alexander of Southfield and Libertarian Steve Silver of Huntington Woods.

Combined, the candidates are predicting they will spend upwards of a quarter of a million

Republican leaders say both the state and national GOP are putting big dollars plus a volunteer network behind their race to unseat Faxon, although they are coy about how much money will be spent. Alexander said she expects to spend between $120,000 and $150,000 in her election bid.

seat, as Republicans carefully eye their current majority there and look to legislative redistricting in the next two years. They believe they have a chance this year because the district has grown heavily in the western end in Farmington Hills and Novi during the past 10 years.

"Keeping Republican control of the state Senate is very important," said Dave Doyle, Michigan Republican Party executive director. The 15th is a

Since when did getting elected to \(\Gamma\) city council, or to any public office for that matter, eliminate one's First Amendment right to free speech?

If anything, an individual's "right" to express him or herself on political matters becomes more of a "duty" once Government elected. After all, that individual now represents constituents and should be arguing points of view all the more vociferously.

So the idea of actually restricting the speech of an elected official sounds pretty ludicrous, right? Not to Novi City Council Member Joe Toth.

city charter or state or federal law requires an elected official to be "politically In essense. Toth stated that he believes it is illegal for any one member of council to disagree with the majority of council and to say so. Now, maybe we are raising the issue. It seems out of characoversimplifying his statements, but not

His very words: "Individual council members, such as myself, may not necessarily agree with the city council's actions and decrees, but each of us are bound by our oath-of-office, the city charter, and various state and federal laws to abide by, and to respect the majority vote. I consider it unethical, morally repugnant, and a direct violation of the city charter and perhaps state and federal laws, for any council member to believe that they can operate independently and that they are not bound to support all of the legislative actions of their city council.

"The commitment to serve on the city council imposes some legal and personal restrictions that our council members may need to be reminded of from time to time. Individually, city council members are not required, by law or honor, to promote a council ruling. On the other hand, each dissenting council member is bound by their oath-of-office, the city charter, and possibly state and federal laws to not actively work against any council action or decree. This is not to say that each dissenting council member cannot explain, in a public forum or privately, their position and the reasons behind their individual vote on the matter. However, each dissenting council member cannot actively campaign against a city council decision."

In what country, Joe?

Now, it is pretty clear who this is aimed at - Tim Pope. Council Member Pope has said, from the very beginning of review. discussion over the road bonding proposal to appear on the November ballot in Novi, that he would actively campaign against it. And he has stayed true to his word. That no doubt rankles the majority of the city council, which voted to place the road bonding proposal on the ballot and would like to see it pass.

opposing the road bonding question. Toth has confirmed that Pope's opposition to the road bonding proposal is part of what led him to issue the paper. the passage of the bond would be better served to dispense with this ploy and but he contends there have been other incidents as well, though he has so far simply get on with the debate over the declined to say what they are. A refined slash-and-burn?

aware of what is going on in the world, you've probably heard about the on-going destruction of the rain forest in South America. Flick on your TV set for more than a few minutes and you are likely to see pictures of the Amazon Jungle being burned by the acre.

If you are like most Americans, you're a bit aghast when you think of the destruction. Yes, you understand that the Brazilian government was merely trying to ease urban poverty when it built a road through the jungle and began o encourage people to settle the region. And you understand that the slash-and-burn practice responsible for the destruction of so much forest is merely the settlers' way of clearing land for farming. Of course, the land doesn't make for very good farming, so it won't be long before the land is depleted and the settlers have to move off and slash-andburn some new section of jungle.

You may understand that these people are only trying to make a living, but it is still difficult to believe that they and their government would act is such an irresponsible way, not only chopping down so many trees it could Impact the atmosphere but pushing into extinction many of the species that inhabit that rain forest.

And if you are like most Americans living in suburbia these days, you probably pondered these thoughts in the living room of your home. . . your home that is maybe five or 10 years old and is located miles from the central city

True, the South American rain forest is more environmentally sensitive. But the key word there is "more." This area is also environmentally sensitive. Consider that, at last count, some 68 species of plants and animals were on the list of those in danger of extinction in Oakland County alone. Not six, not eight, but 68 species considered to be "endangered," "threatened," or rare enough to be "of

All this came to mind recently when I learned of a proposal by a Bloomfield Hills developer to build an 800- to 900-unit condo complex, a golf course and a hotel on land very nearby the Blue Heron rookery on the border of Wixom and Lyon Township. The herons are not endangered, but they are rare enough to have made it onto the federal protection list. And the 300 nest rookery in Lyon

Township is one of the largest in Michigan. State Department of Natural Resources officials say they believe the developer has done enough to protect the birds that they likely will not be affected.

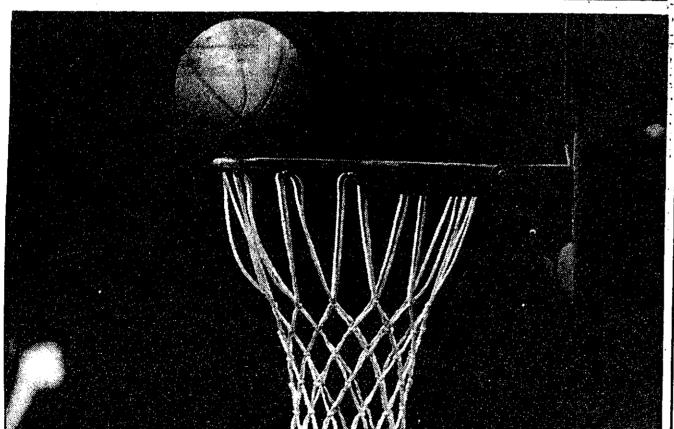

Still, Oakland County parks officials fear there could still be an impact. That's why the parks commission has obtained a $1 million grant to buy the land if the developer does not exercise his option. And environmentalists have sought unsuccessfully to get a development ban all around the rookery.

All this got me to wondering if our penchant for urban sprawl in this area was really much different that the destruction of the rain forest in South America. We aren't scorching the earth, true. Require the radio and TV industry (which uses the public airwaves only by public license) and browbeat the newspapers (whose income from political ads is already very small) to give to the two political parties X minutes of air time and Y inches of newspaper space. Bon-A-Rose

Motto is 'Nobody goes away hungry'

By P.J. Baker Special Writer

Homemade food and big servings are what makes the Bon-A-Rose Italian-American Restaurant, located at 56808 Grand River in New Hudson, stand out.

"My main thing is that I do not want people to go away hungry," said owner June Tyrell. She and her son, Joe, the restaurant's manager, opened for business the day after Thanksgiving in 1989.

Running the restaurant is a family affair. Aside from June and Joe, who has a degree in hotel and restaurant management from Michigan State University, June's daughter Kellie Krueger is the assistant manager and daughter Anna Hollman helps when needed. June's husband Joe Sr., an electrician, helped with the renovation of the building.

The Tyrells were finally able to buy the building in 1985, after being interested in it for almost 10 years. To raise some of the money to do the needed restoration they operated the Bon-A-Rose Gift Shop in the front part of the building.

"It took us two years to strip everything," said June. "There are no walls in this building, just masonry brick. There are no inside walls where you can put your heating ducts. I had a friend sew the covers for the ducts. We certainly wondered if it was ever going to come together for a long

The ideas for the decorations were mostly what was in her mind and the natural beauty of the building," explained Joe. "We kind of worked from there and tried to restore it to a little bit more rustic and natural setting." They are pictured on the back of the The food is all homemade except for the cannolis. June has been catering functions for years. She even catered weddings for her two daughters and her son. "I've wanted to own my own restaurant all my life, I guess. I never really thought it would be possible until we bought this building, however, June admitted, with some prompting from Joe. The menu is basically what I grew up with as a kid," said Joe. This is the kind of food that I've eaten all my life that she's cooked at home for all six of us kids." When people ask what we would suggest, it's funny," Anna said. "We've eaten it all. We suggest everything." June noted that her particular specialties are the dishes with sauces, such as lasagna, mostaccioli and spaghetti. However, Joe added that the meatloaf is a big seller. The name comes from combining the first name of June's parents, Bonaventura and Rosalia Maviglia.

menu along with other interesting historical facts.

During slow periods only the first floor is used, but on the weekends, business overflows to the upstairs. They serve a lot of business lunches during the week.

The second floor is mostly used for larger groups and special occasions such as wedding or baby showers. It holds up to 40 people.

*For dinner, the customers are mostly friends going out to eat, or couples going out together," said Joe. "Right now we're still in the stage where people know we're a new restaurant and some come from quite far away just to try us out. A few people keep coming back from South-field and Bloomfield. I'd say at least 50 percent of our customers are by word-of-mouth and people driving

The Cheney Country charmer ranch meets luxury and space

By James McAlexander

In this ranch design, space and luxury meet to mold this hangar-size, gold-plated showpiece into a home fit for any king with a sloped country lot.

In an architectureal version of piggyback, the two-story Cheney stacks the living area on top of a rec-room/basement, all with an elegant touch.

From the front, the home resembles a one-story ranch house. But beacuse of the sloped back yard, the Cheney shows both its levels only from the rear. Despite the vastness of this five-bedroomn home, the design offers intimacy, thoughtfully defined space and, of course, room for almost anything. This country charmer begins casting its spell as guests pass the bricked front porch, into the cavernous foyer, which boasts a walk-in closet and a half-bath.

The closet provides a wrinkle-free alternative to the age-old practice of heaping guests' coats onto beds.

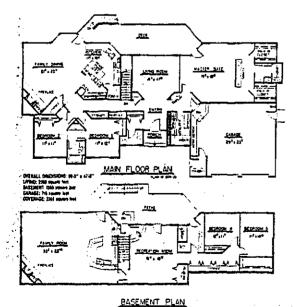

The half-bath means those in need will not have to take a tour of the house to find a bathroom. But if they did, they would marvel at a master suite that begs to be lived in.

The king and queen's chambers feature an island vanity with two sinks and a double walk-in closet. This level also houses two other bedrooms, a huge utility room, a living room, tons of storage and an enormous family-dining room-kitchen. Luxury defines the gourmet kitchen. An island range, eating bar and a full pantry enhance its versatility. Toss in a vegetable sink, and it's a seven-course meal waiting to happen.

Downstairs can accommodate a small army. For starters, a family room that is as big as a small house makes for warm memories and good cheer. It offers a fireplace and full bar.

The nearby recreation room—another giant-stands at the ready for a table tennis tournament. For the pillow fights and slumber parties, two other bedrooms and a full bath await.

For a study plan of the Cheney (209-23), send $5 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307 Cn, Eugene, Or 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Houses made from stone offer unusual features and history

By JIM WOOD

Stones are hard, stones are heavy. Stones resist the cold, heat and wet of the seasons. They resist fire and Indians, but apparently not ghosts.

Scattered about the county, not common but not rare, are homes with walls made of footand-a half-thick stone and mortar. Their solidity and variations of hue set them apart from familiar wood or aluminum-sided homes, and draw the eye as if to a natural feature of the landscape with corners and edges.

Set in a leafy glade, remote from the road and dappled with sunshine, they almost disappear as human artifacts.

Perhaps you have wondered what it is like to live in a stone house. Is it damper and colder, like a medieval castle? Do they make different noises at night than wood homes? Do they sink and sag more than wood homes? What kind of maintenance do they require? Do architects like to build them? Where do the stones come

Some came from nearby fields. Early farmers, especially in some parts of the county, must have sworn themselves blue as their plows broke blade after blade on fieldstones. Today, in areas like Chilson Road just south of I-96, stones from a size to fit the hand to half-ton boulders are used a hundred ways to enhance the setting of new homes. For almost two miles along Chilson, virtually every house has a rock garden, rock borders to flower beds, rocks buried in embankments for erosion control, rocks circling ponds, marking corners of driveways and property, even "arrangements" as lawn decorations, mailbox supports and impressive stone hedges.

But not in the houses. Brighton architect Tony Pucci of Architectural Group said, "Stone today is used only as face material," meaning it's cut into thin sections to be mounted on buildings like tile. "It's expensive," he said. "It takes real craftsmen to lay the material."

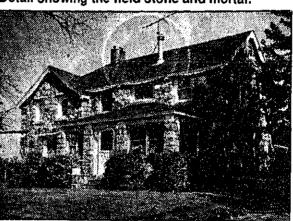

Stone might be nature's own, but it's not the ideal building material.

"Stone is more a durable material, not a thermal one," said Pucci. Fieldstone is not a particularly good insulator, but the mortar used is as much at fault, he said.

The thick-walled fortress look of the fieldstone house is necessary, said Pucci, "because they had to use that much thickness to make it stay together. It was a very laborious procedure," which probably led people to prefer more conventional wood construction, he said.

"Yet there is a quaintness with stone that goes back to the medieval, to the Norman and Gothic periods," he said.

Just north of Rush Lake on Pettysville Road, a driver's eye spies a remarkable round stone barn with rusting metal roof and a cupola on top. But looking further back off the road is something more remarkable: a gristmill built about 1845 by the original pioneer of the Pettys family, renovated into a comfortable home in 1972 by Leon and Lorraine Leutz. An old millwheel anchors a flagpole in front.

Before the Leutz's gutted it out for its present incarnation, in the years following World War II, the place was a summer home for Ralph Ottwell, inventor of the hot water car heater and friend of Henry Ford, according to Lorraine Leutz.

She tells you the foundation walls are two feet thick and a 11/2 feet thick elsewhere, that the first two floors are under water. She means the second floor is at the level of the millpond, a wall of the house comprising the dam. There are three levels and 3,300 square feet to the old mill.

"We intended to make it a restaurant," she said, her husband having just retired from the Navy. But that didn't happen and they decided to live in it.

She said it's cooler in the summer, living there, and not damp in winter. In fact they use a humiditler then.

· "I don't particularly like a stone house," she said, though. "I prefer brick."

More common than all-stone houses are stone porches and half-stone houses. A stone garage or two have been seen. And a beautiful. long, curving, two-foot-thick retaining wall can be seen at the Franklin Farm on Chilson Road.

Down in Hamburg is the historic Ken and Marie Lefstad home, a simple farmhouse said to have been built in the 1830s to withstand Indian attack and still haunted by the girl who poisoned her parents and later took her own life. The five-room stone building on M-36 just east of town is also reputed to have been a hideout of gangsters during Prohibition days. Basil Wiszczur, the Lefstad's son-in-law. vouches for the ghost he met on the stairs one night recently.

When the Lefstads bought the one-acre place in 1965 for $3,000, it was a ruin. Since, they have restored it completely, added other rooms and moved the old Hamburg Depot next to it.

Second-home market is active

By James M. Woodard

At this time of year, the vacation or second-home market is particularly

Many families recently enjoyed a great summer vacation, and the thought of owning their own vacation residence is very appealing. A personally owned cabin by a favorite lake or fishing stream. or condo or time-share unit at a preferred ski resort can spark powerful motivations.

Real estate analysts predict the second-home market will become even more active during the 1990s as baby boomers seek an escape from the pressures of high-level jobs and start planning for a retirement residence. They also want to take advantage of tax-deductible interest still available on mortgage loans for both primary and second homes.

Financing a second home is often more difficult than funding a primary owner-resident home. Lenders view a second home as higher-risk security for their money.

However, most mortgage lenders are very willing to provide second-home financing if the terms are right. That often means a higher cash down payment and slightly higher rate of interest.

Generally, lenders limit their first percent of 75 percent of the sales price. And no more than 15 percent of the price can be carried back by the seller or other investor as a second mortgage.

There are exceptions. It pays to shop around for the best possible financing

One way or another, an increasing number of American families will find a way to acquire a vacation home or timeshare unit. It's an important part of the "good life" in today's society.

That's the opinion of a growing number of families, according to a recent survey sponsored jointly by three major groups-American Resort and Residential Development Association, the International Foundation for Timesharing and the National Association of Realtors.

The survey and study concluded that many of the nation's recreational property owners tend to be middle-aged and generally have middle-range incomes. More than half the owners surveyed have annual household incomes ranging betwen $20,000 and $60,000.

The study estimates there are now 7.2 million owners of about 6.3 million recreation properties in the United States, with an aggregate value of about $892 billion.

The vacation industry, particularly mortgage loan on a second home to 70 the time-share segment, is definitely growing," said Arthur Simons, executive editor of Vacation Industry Review. a trade magazine published by Worldex

"Today's vacationing consumer expects a higher level of quality and more services than was the case in past years." Simons noted. "And they're receiving just that, particularly in major reso-

"Also, enhanced efficiencies in arranging for the exchange of timeshare units is adding to the motivation to purchase a time share."

Awholly owned subsidiary of Worldex Corp. is Interval International, a major exchange network with over 300,000 members and about 700 affiliated resorts in over 40 countries.

Referring to the recent survey, ARRDA senior vice president Tom Franks made this revealing observation: "If only half of those now expressing interest in buying recreational property do so, it is not inconceivable that by the year 2000, the industry would double."

Q. Are rental apartments generally considered to be good real estate investments?

A. Since legislation wiped out many of the tax advantages in buying and owningrental income property, apartments have not been viewed as choice investments. But that situation is changing. With increasing home prices in most areas, more families are seeking an apartment residence. But since developers have been cool on constructing new apartments in recent years, there is a serious shortage of apartment units. That situation is producing increasing rents and related increases in the value of existing apartment buildings. Thus, investors are taking a new look at the potential of apartments.

Q. Are Canadian real estate brokers experiencing the same problems as U.S. brokers?

A. Basically, yes. In some areas, their problems are more severe. In a recent survey by the Canadian Real Estate Association, it was determined that in 25 top metropolitan areas there was a 28.9 percent decline in the number of residential sales over the past year. Mortgage interest rates are generally over 14 percent. And an exceptionally large number of Canadian real estate firms are either folding or are in serious trouble. The survey results were reported in the trade publication, Real Estate In-

SLICE OF HISTORY: Trolley stop brings back pre-auto days/3D

DIVERSIONS: Harness racing season begins/6D

THURSDAY October 4,

Will the '90s be like the '60s?

Story by Cristina Ferrier

he '60s

The decade evokes many images. Soldiers in Vietnam. Anti-war protests at home. Powerful civil rights demonstrations. A young generation pulled together by its music and its causes.

The '60s ended as quickly as they began, fading into the '70s, the "Me Decade," and the '80s, which will probably be remembered as a decade of affluence and greed.

But historian Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. wrote that there are 30-year "cycles" in the history of America. His theory is that every 30 years the general attitude of the country shifts between two poles: from materialism, private purpose at home and a willingness to intervene in world affairs (conservatism) to a sense of selflessness and public purpose at home and an unwillingness to intervene in the affairs of other countries (liberalism).

Will history repeat itself in the '90s? Some say the shift has already begun.

Many of the elements seem to be reappearing. American soldiers are being shipped to Saudi Arabia while the evening news is beginning to show people protesting the U.S. involvement in the Middle East.

On college campuses across the country, students have recently staged such peaceful protests as sit-ins and barricading buildings over racial issues. Earth Day 1990 drew millions of people to various events, creating a new awareness of environmental concerns. And the most popular figures on MTV are those with a cause.

But Robert Briggs, a history professor at Schoolcrast College, said he doubts the '90s will be as socially significant as the '60s.

For example, he said, the Middle East situation is very different from the Vietnam conflict.

"It seems to me that the issue is more clear-cut this time," he said. "There's a determination on the part of the Pentagon not to repeat the mistakes they made with Vietnam."

One major difference between Vietnam and the current Middle East situation is that "the '60s had a drafted army and the '90s have an all-volunteer army. So only people who volunteered are potentially risking their lives," he said.

In addition, he said people see more reason for the American troops in Saudi Arabia than they did in Vietnam.

"It was never entirely clear that Vietnam was worth defending in terms of resources, whereas in the Middle East there is the oil. Essentially in Vietnam it was the Vietnamese fighting the Vietnamese. In the Middle East it's like we have a mini Hitler."

And this time he doesn't believe there will be as much time for an anti-war movement to develop.

"In Vietnam there was a slow process of escalation," he said, explaining that the U.S. would repeatedly attack, then pull back in an attempt to induce the enemy to give up and retreat.

"It came on slowly," he said. "In the fighting, Americans were being killed as early as 1959 or 1960 but it was only a few at a time. The Kennedy administration expanded it in the early 1960's, then with the Johnson administration it became more open. It was done in slow increments, always with the aim of squeezing the enemy.

"War came on very slowly and Americans felt a kind of betrayal at the sneaky way in which it was done. And the opposition had time to build."

In contrast, Briggs said, the current middle east crisis was very sudden. "And if war does break out it will break out suddenly," he said. "It will more likely be an attempt to completely destroy the enemy. It will be a more conventional type of war."

However, Briggs said he does not necessarily see a more patriotic attitude on the home front now than in the 1960s - at least the early 1960s.

"During the Vietnam era people also tended to be very supportive at first," he said. "But each time we attacked the support was less than before. Americans were being killed in Vietnam with no sense of progress or purpose.

"Clearly the longer this (Middle East conflict) goes on without some resolution, the less support there will be at home, particularly if fighting breaks out and Americans

> If Americans are killed in a "swift and total victory" Americans might be able to absorb it, he added. "But if it were to drag on like Vietnam, without some sense of resolution, American support of the U.S. action would dwindle and you would find George Bush becoming increasingly unpopular among Ameri-

As for the protests already underway, historians James Haskins and Kathleen Benson, authors of The '60s Reader, wrote that the peace movement born in the '60s never really died.

The Peace Movement continues today, primarily in the form of anti-nuclear protests and protests against nuclear power plants," they wrote.

> "Whenever the U.S. engages in military action abroad, however, the peace activists make themselves heard. There were protests against the U.S. invasion of Grenada in 1983, and in recent years there have been protests against the U.S. role in El Salvador and Nicaragua and the U.S. bombing of the headquarters of General Muammar El-Qaddafl in Libya." There were also visible protests when the U.S. invaded Panama in 1989.

"It is safe to assume that as long as there is war and as long as there is the possibility of nuclear disaster, there will always be a Peace Movement," they wrote.

'I think a lot of veterans of the '60s are vaguely nostalgic for the '60s," Briggs said. "Although why that is, I don't know. They want to have a cause - something to compare to the two big causes of the '60s, which were Vietnam and civil rights.

"But although we have problems, I don't think we have anything to compare to the '60s, There is racism, but it's not the same as what existed in the '60s. It's not nearly as bad. "And there are the other causes, like the environment or animal rights. But sometimes they seem to be causes for the sake of having causes. I call them 'surrogate causes,' " he said.

"It's not that those things aren't important, but they seem to be less important," he said. "They seem to be for young people who are not fortunate enough to have experienced the '60s or for veterans of the '60s who want to have Haskins and Benson agreed that "many of those who were activists in the decade feel a nostalgia for a time when questions of what was right and what was wrong seemed so simple," they wrote. "Many who are too young to have participated wish that they, too, could have lived through such a spirited time when it really seemed possible to change the world."

Meanwhile, many of those "veterans of the '60s" are proud to point out that we still live under the legacy of that decade.

"What the sixtles did, above all else, was to make it possible for people to ask questions about their lives, their values and their society and to challenge the things they did not like," wrote Haskins and Benson. "For the sixties generation and the generations since, it is a given that nobody can tell them what to do."

Top Girl Scout is a top volunteer By CRISTINA FERRIER Staff Writer

Juliet Stockhausen of Northville has a reason to be proud.

After all, she's earned a rare honor that places her head and shoulders above other girls her age.

Juliet, a senior at Mercy High School, earned the Girl Scout Gold Award — the equivalent of the Eagle Scout designation of her male (Boy Scout) counterparts.

Many girls get into Girl Scouting when they are young, but the major-ity drop out before reaching high school.

"And a lot of people that stay in Girl Scouts think of it as a joke," she added. "Alot of them don't take it real serious, so that cuts it down to a smaller (percentage who will win the Gold Award)." But Juliet stayed in Girl Scouts and took it seriously because she enjoyed the many opportunities it offered her.

"It never bothered me when people teased me about it," she said. "In grade school boys would call us the Green Beanies. A lot of girls dropped out. But it never bothered me."

As she grew older, the teasing stopped. "It comes to a point now that we're more proud of being Girl Scouts than ashamed, she said.

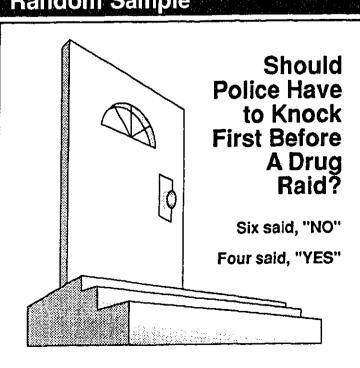

"When I got the award, the school announced it over the P.A. and for a week people kept coming up to me and saying. 'I'm so proud of you' and 'I didn't know you were still in Girl Scouts.

"I got more compliments in that week than I ever had before."

The Girl Scout Gold Award recognizes a Senior Girl Scout's committment to excellence as she develops skills and values to meet present and future challenges in her life. Juliet is one of 10 members of the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council who received

The art works in this impressive exhibit include 80 paintings and sculptures from the five museums: The Toledo Museum of Art, The St. Louis Art Museum, The Minneapolis Institute of Art, Pittsburgh's Carnegie Museum of Art and Kansas City's Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art. The works were chosen by University of Toledo art history professor Marc S. Gerstain of Ann Arbor, who chose from an estimated 200 works. Marry of them are from later periods of the artists' lives, and some are post-impressionist works, so they give depth and quality to the show. Brighton ends Novi's KVC football reign

Win streak halted after 16-14 loss

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Brighton's 16-14 victory over Novi on Sept. 28 put a stop to one of the most amazing streaks in local orep football history.

The last time a Wildcat team fell to a Kensingion Valley Conference opponent on the gridiron was Oct. 25, 1985. Since that time, Novi Coach John Osborne has presided over four straight conference titles and a 26-game KVC winning

But all those milestones came to a crashing halt on Friday in Brighton, and now the Bulldogs appear to have clear sailing towards the KVC crown - their first since We were hoping to prevent it - but it was not to be," Osborne said. "Near the end, we made it close and had hopes of somehow pulling it out, but we played with our backs to the wall most of the game." Great football dynasties die hard, and the Wildcats put on a spirited comeback — scoring all 14 points in the final period — but the once-beaten Bulldogs had the answers on defense for much of the game, holding the struggling Novi offense to just 131 yards. "We just haven't improved as much as we would like to, but we were outmanned in a few places, Osborne admitted. Brighton is a solid team all around."

The Bulldogs started strong in the first quarter, but botched several prime scoring opportunities On the first possession of the game, ailback Kelley Shaw rambled 86 yards for what appeared to be a touchdown, but the play was called back because of a clip. Shaw was still credited with 43 yards and Brighton eventually moved inside the Novi 13 before Eric Mathis forced a fumble and Murray Kam-

The only score of the first half came on a 57-yard pass play from Bulldog quarterback A.J. Larson to receiver Doug Gle in the second quarter. It culminated a four-play, 71-yard drive and the half ended

The Bulldogs responded immediately with an impressive scoring march of their own that set up what would eventually be the game-winning points. Brighton needed 12 plays to move 54 yards, and when the drive stalled at the Novi 5. Shaw booted a 22-yard field goal with six minutes remaining to increase the lead to 16-7.

"We needed to score quickly, instead it took us 10 plays." The onside kick failed, the game ended, and so did Novi's streak. "Our kids did a nice job of hanging in there at the end." Osborne

A non-conference victory late in the week doesn't seem to make up for a pair of prior in-conference first goal. Just ask Novi soccer coach Nick Valenti. His Wildcats downed Redford Union 3-1 on Sept. 28, but it came on the heels of a 5-2 loss to South Lyon and a 2-1 setback against Lakeland. As a result, Novi's overall record of 5-4-1 is much more impressive than the squad's 2-4-1 KVC mark.

The win over Union was actually much more of a challenge than expected because the 'Cats only dressed 13 players. Key players were missing, like Jack Abate (shoulder injury), Phil York (broken mose) and Joe Sinishtaj (illness). "We beat them 9-1 in a preseason scrimage, Valenti said. *But with just 13 players able to play, I thought we did reasonably well."

South Lyon scored in the first The Panthers scored the game's minute of the match but Novi's first goal at the 24-minute mark of Kazuteru Miyoshi knotted it at 1-1 the first half to take a 1-0 lead, but it midway through the first half after also seemed to wake up the Wildtaking a perfect pass from Eric cats — and junior forward Tony Wise in particular. Eagle cagers 2-1 in KVC

Could the Lakeland basketball team's tough non-league schedule be paying off? One might think so after the Eagles knocked off visiting Hartland, 64-53, last Thursday for their second Kensington Valley Conference win in three outings. Lakeland lost all six of its pre-KVC games last month, but apparently learned some lessons in the process. Competition against powers such as Clarkston, Oxford and Waterford Kettering prepared the Eagles for their league foes, Coach Sherry Bell believes. *Playing the type of teams that we played has to help," she said. "It's hard losing like we "Going against South Lyon's press was a perfect example," she added. "We lost the game (43-27 last Tuesday), but their press wasn't a shock because we had gone against Oxford and Kettering. Those two teams press as well as land's pressure. The locals not only kept their turnovers down, but they scored 16 more points than they had in any game all season. Senior center Stacey Dwyer had a career night for Lakeland, collecting 30 points and 18

"Hartland didn't have anyone to match up with Stacey," Bell commented. "We were able to get her the ball close to the basket and she hit her shots. She's really coming into her own." Also contributing for the winners was senior forward Jenny McBride, who had 18 points

Lakeland trailed by three points after one quarter, only to outscore Hartland 17-10 in the second stanza, 14-11 in the third and 18-14 in Ellen Surowiec's value to the Novi swim team was graphically illustrated last week.

The standout junior was ill and missed the Sept. 25 meet with Dearhom Edsel Ford. The 'Cats proceeded to struggle with just two victories in 12 events en route to a 116-69 defeat. Two days later. Surowiec returned against Garden City and was directly responsible for four victories in Novi's 131-49 wtn.

*Garden City was a little weak to begin with and they were undermanned because of sickness, so that had a lot to do with it," Wildcat Coach Larry Teahan explained. We had some good performances, but we were up and down in some areas." Surowiec's wins came in the 200-yard IM (2:31.41) and the 100 breaststroke (1:17.53), and she was a member of the winning 200 medley relay team (2:13.87) - along with

The seconds came from Kathy Gannon in the 200 freestyle (2:28.33) and the 500 freestyle (6:28.6), Bjerke in the 200 IM (2:41.57) and the 100 butterfly (1:12.14), Munger in the 50 freestyle (29.01), Amy Davis in diving (92.5). Huzjak was 8-for-14 through the air for 106 yards, but tossed a pair of interceptions and was held to a season-low 20 yards rushing. Teammate Bill Kelley gained just seven yards in seven carries. In the total offense department, Harrison had a clear advantage 295-131.

"I think the Northville coaches are class people and they're doing a good job," Harrison Coach John Herrington said after the game.

GOODBYE RANKINGS: Northville, now 4-1 overall and 3-1 in the WLAA, was ranked 10th in Class A prior to the game. The Mustangs also sat atop the Region Four MHSAA playoff rankings prior to the loss to Harrison, and are now certain to drop kie team in the Gulf Coast League. "I pitched three games (in the Gulf Coast League) and did pretty well," Dan said. They just wanted to see if my hand was still hurting and it didn't bother me at all."

To avoid the risk of reinjury before a full recovery. Dan returned home last week. They just didn't want to push it," he said.

He'll report to the Red Sox spring training camp in early March.

"It feels great right now," added Dan. *If everything turns out all right I hope to play with the Triple-A team next year.

"I'm till young and have a lot of time left to play baseball, but after missing this year I'll have to work twice as hard."

Walled Lake baseball fans probably remember Dan best from his high school success with the Warriors.

He was a four-year varsity player and helped pitch the Warriors to the Class A state championship in 1984 as a junior.

In his senior year the Warriors advanced to the district finals before being eliminated by Plymouth Canton. "I remember that game because a game in the bottom of the seventh in- started using me in relief." ning." Dan said.

He finished his high school career leased by the team. with a 34-6 personal record and was drafted by the Red Sox in the first round (21st pick overall) of the 1985 June draft.

Mike's future in professional baseball remains a question mark after being released recently by the Atlanta Braves' rookie team in Idaho

Mike signed with the Braves as a free agent in June of 1989 after pitching for the University of Detroit for three years.

"I started the year with the Class A team in Sumter, South Carolina," explained Mike. "I didn't start out too well and had some mechanical problems early, but I think part of the problem was that I didn't get very much work. I only pitched 24 innings."

Midway through the season he was sent to Idaho Falls where he joined the rookie team. He was used mostly as a reliever at Idaho, a role he just started to become accustomed

"I was a starter in college," Mike said. "I had one start (in Idaho Falls)

Mike was surprised he was re-

"They have a lot of pitchers out there (Idaho Falls) so they had to let someone go," he said. "I don't know why I went first. I was number one out of the bullpen. I started throwing pretty well, but only got in eight in-nings before they released me."

Mike will join his brother at Boston's spring training camp in March.

'I'll go to spring training with the Red Sox unless someone else picks me up," Mike said. "I hope someone picks me up. I love to play. I've been playing baseball all my life."

Mike feels the experience he gained while with the Braves will benefit him down the road.

"I don't know if anyone really knows me because I didn't see that much work," he said. "I'll be a year older and I've learned a lot. I'll get a new start with a new team and hopefully I'll earn a spot."

"He's a tough competitor," said Dan, of his younger brother. "There are no guarantees, but hopefully he'll make one of the (Red Sox) teams."
