City's plan for drain pond has subs up in arms

By JAN JEFFRES

Like several of her neighbors, Donna Kott added a sunroom to the back of her Cedarspring Estates home so she can enjoy the view of a tangle of woods screening Munro Creek from her yard.

Now she's just learned that some of those trees may fall to a new city detention basin, part of Novi's 1983 voter-approved stormwater management system.

Kott says she was shocked when the trunk-tagging began May 6. After she complained to city hall, she said, a letter was sent May 8 to adjacent homeowners.

"It looked like somebody came through and toilet-papered it," Kott said.

"I really love nature. It was just a little piece in my world. . . . No one had any idea that the City of Novi was planning a drainage area here."

Kott and a contingent of Cedarspring and Jamestown Green residents showed up at the city council meeting May 11. Even more attended Monday to voice their protests.

Just the day before, about 100 homeowners had banded together to form Concerned Citizens of Cedarspring Estate and Jamestown Green. Spokesperson Steve Lanham asked Monday that the council schedule a public hearing on the issue within 30 days and that all city documents on the project be made available to the group under the state Freedom of Information Act.

"We are concerned that our elected and appointed city officials are not fully aware of this issue or have chosen to remain silent in light of the impending destruction of this natural woodlands and wetlands area," Lanham said.

Heading their concerns are the threat to the environment, the possible negative impact on their property values and the public safety issue, he explained.

The city council has requested that an informational meeting be held sometime after June 1.

What's going on at the site now is just a survey, Novi's Director of Public Works Anthony Nowicki said, adding that he doesn't know how many trees would be lost but Officer Todd Anger shows off Novi's new black-and-white patrol car.

Novi police patrol cars go 'art deco'

By CRISTINA FERRIER
Staff Writer

The style has changed, but the colors remain the same.

The first of Novi's newly-designed police cars hit the road last week after the old logos were removed from one vehicle and replaced with the new. More newly-designed police cars will appear as the summer progresses and old vehicles are replaced.

The new design — white art deco lettering in a black bar that runs straight across the side of the vehicle doors — is the result of a group decision involving input from all over the police department, said Novi Police Chief Doug Shaeffer.

"We asked several companies to come up with new designs, but what we have now is really a joint effort," Shaeffer said.

He said City Manager Ed Kriewall expressed interest in updating the police car designs when Shaeffer first arrived last summer, then he and the rest of the department picked up on the idea.

"The city manager was interested in something different, and I was interested in doing something different and the guys (officers and other police personnel) were interested in having something different, so it all kind of grew," he said.

There were several different ideas and design prototypes floating around the department for a while, he said, and everyone interested provided input. The final design incorporated aspects of various prototypes as well as ideas from individuals.

The department also experimented with different colors, but "the majority of officers believed they should be black and white because after all, that's what a police car should be — black and white."

Shaeffer said he likes the new design. "I like them," he said. "I think when I first saw the basic design I wasn't too sure about it — it only had a single black band, we added the small lines — but when we started making the additions like the 9-1-1 information and the city logo it kind of came together."

The new police cars will be used in the Memorial Day parade. As older vehicles are taken out of service they will be replaced with new cars bearing the new design.

Shaeffer said he is considering submitting the new design for write-up in Law and Order, a police trade publication.

Area businesses get help with SAD

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

The Novi City Council has agreed to front $110,000 to get a special assessment district (SAD) for a sewer on Grand River Avenue going.

Twelve business owners in the area from Beck Road east to Kensington Construction say they can't expand without the sewer. Currently, the buildings are served by individual septic systems.

"I urge you to approve this issue. We are at our limit," said Joe Evangelista, of Tony Angelo Cement.

Novi may sell revenue bonds to help advance the project.

"I'm not in favor of delaying this at all. We've been approached by longstanding business-owners in the community who say they want to stay here and can't if they can't expand," Mayor Matthew Quinn said.

"We're only going to benefit when these businesses expand. Our tax base is going to go up."

The then-$260,000 SAD was approved by the city in 1987. But a sewer moratorium in the 1980s pulled the plug on the project.

Then Kensington Construction

filed a legal objection to the SAD to the state Tax Tribunal. Meanwhile, the city had already collected $50,000 of the SAD funds.

Kensington's share of the SAD is $110,000. The case is now pending before the Michigan Court of Appeals.

The court of appeals has a one-year case backlog. Assistant City Attorney Dennis Watson said, but the city has filed a motion for immediate consideration.

If Kensington loses its court battle, the firm will have to pay the city the $110,000. If it wins, the property is up for sale and Novi could adopt an ordinance requiring the new owner to pay the $110,000 if the company wanted to tap into the sewer line, Watson explained.

Council Member Nancy Cassis suggested the private sector find its own solution: "It's not unusual for property-owners to get together and say 'it's in our best interest to buy these property-owners out.'"

The Grand River businesses are represented by former Novi Mayor Gil Henderson, who works through the city's engineering firm JCK & Associates and is paid by the special assessment district (SAD) funds.

Planners settle on Expo rules

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

After a two-hour discussion by the public and Novi Planning Commission, the commission recommended approval of changes in a proposed Expo Center ordinance.

The major changes to the ordinance included a provision to allow the Expo Center to revert back to its current light industrial zoning. The Novi Expo Center building, located on Expo Center Drive west of Novi Road, formerly was the home of Mohowak Liquor.

An attorney for the Adell Children's trust fund, owners of the building, suggested the city enter into a restrictive covenant with the trust, which would remove the possibility of the facility reverting to a light industrial use after 10 years of Expo Center success.

In other words, attorney David Snyder wants to give the Expo Center 10 years to become stable as an exposition hall. If it does not, he wants the facility to be permitted for use as a light industrial facility. The agreement would not be part of the zoning ordinance, but a separate agreement between the city and the trust.

The idea met with a warm reception at the commission, but the Novi City Council still has final say on such an agreement. The ordinance faces review by council members, at least one of whom has been outspoken against permitting

"I honestly believe this issue will become moot. We are going to be successful."

Blair Bowman
Novi Expo representative

the building to revert to an industrial use if the Expo Center fails.

Snyder said the restrictive covenant agreement would be a compromise.

Blair Bowman, spokesman for the Expo Center, said he believes disagreement over the question is unnecessary. The Expo Center will not revert back to light industrial use unless it fails, he said.

"I honestly believe this issue will become moot. We are going to be successful," Bowman said.

Also speaking in support of the Novi Expo Center were representatives for the Novi Players, local businesses, the Novi Chamber of Commerce, the Motorsports Hall of Fame and Novi city government.

"This is the first time in five years such a concentration of business and the community has come forward," McLallen said.

Another issue addressed by the commission was parking standards for the facility.

In the past, the commission has debated how many parking spaces should be required per square foot of useable space in the center.

At the recommendation of consultants, the commission voted to require one space per 120 square feet of useable space. Up to 25 percent of the required parking can be located up to 3,000 feet from the center if a lease agreement is in place. Or the center can purchase land adjoining the Expo Center to be developed as parking if needed. The land-banking option can be used to meet up to 25 percent of the parking space requirement.

Commissioner Kathleen McLallen voted against the ordinance only because she does not support requiring a lease between the Expo Center and nearby parking facilities.

The off-site parking option is just that — an option. Expo Center developers need not take advantage of off-site parking. But McLallen said the lease requirement is burdensome.

"The regulations made me crazy. I'm not convinced they're there for positive reasons," McLallen said.

The ordinance passed by 7-1 margin with McLallen as the sole dissenter. The next step is review by the city council.

DR. WILLIAM BARR

Barr says he'll be busy in retirement

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Novi Superintendent William Barr plans to end a 42-year career in education that began as an eighth-grade teacher when he retires next month.

Barr, a Novi resident, has served as the district's associate superintendent and superintendent in his 20-year stint with Novi. In the past year, Barr has filled both positions while the school board sought to replace former Superintendent Robert Pitwko.

In his work, he has been involved in many aspects of running a school district. It is the diversity of the job that Barr liked the most.

In any given day Barr could be handling food service issues like what equipment to buy to keep the program running profitably.

But before he makes a final decision, a transportation issue might arise.

Barr not only must decide which buses to buy and how they should be maintained, but also what routes should be taken to get all kids to school in the fewest number of trips and whether or not boys should ride with girls on a field trip.

"I could write a book," he said. But before he writes a book, Barr has other events on the agenda following his June 30 retirement date.

"I'm leaving the country the day after the last board meeting."

Barr will visit Hong Kong for a Lion's Club International convention. He recently took over as the district governor for Oakland and

Would you support the implementation of an instrumental strings, Japanese or lacrosse program in Novi schools? What amount of money would you be willing to allocate for each? Would you support a higher millage rate to implement any of the above programs? Do any other areas of the curriculum need improvement?

I support the refinement of existing programs rather than the implementation of new ones for financial and practical reasons. Japanese culture, history, economics, etc. could be integrated into the social studies curriculum. This awareness is more beneficial than having the language taught. After the basic needs of the present band program (uniforms, instruments, etc.) are met, only then would I consider a strings program. I am a strong supporter of fine arts as a vital component of education. The present athletic facilities, indoor and outdoor, are inadequate. Additional coaches may be necessary for our existing offerings. I am in favor of the addition of lacrosse in the future.

JULIE ABRAMS

I cannot support additional programs when we might have to reduce or eliminate programs because of state-mandated funding reductions. All three programs are worthwhile, but on a year-to-year basis, would increase in budget, and I cannot imagine what they would cost as they grow in the district. This is a time to work on the basics, not start new programs with limited funding. It is counterproductive to create false expectations for our students, faculty and parents. I can see no justification for a millage increase to fund these programs. The curriculum at the high school is constantly being re-evaluated to prepare our students for after graduation. I am concerned about the middle 50 percent of the students who tend to slide along and graduate but really aren't prepared for the world of work. As we visit the

RAYMOND BYERS

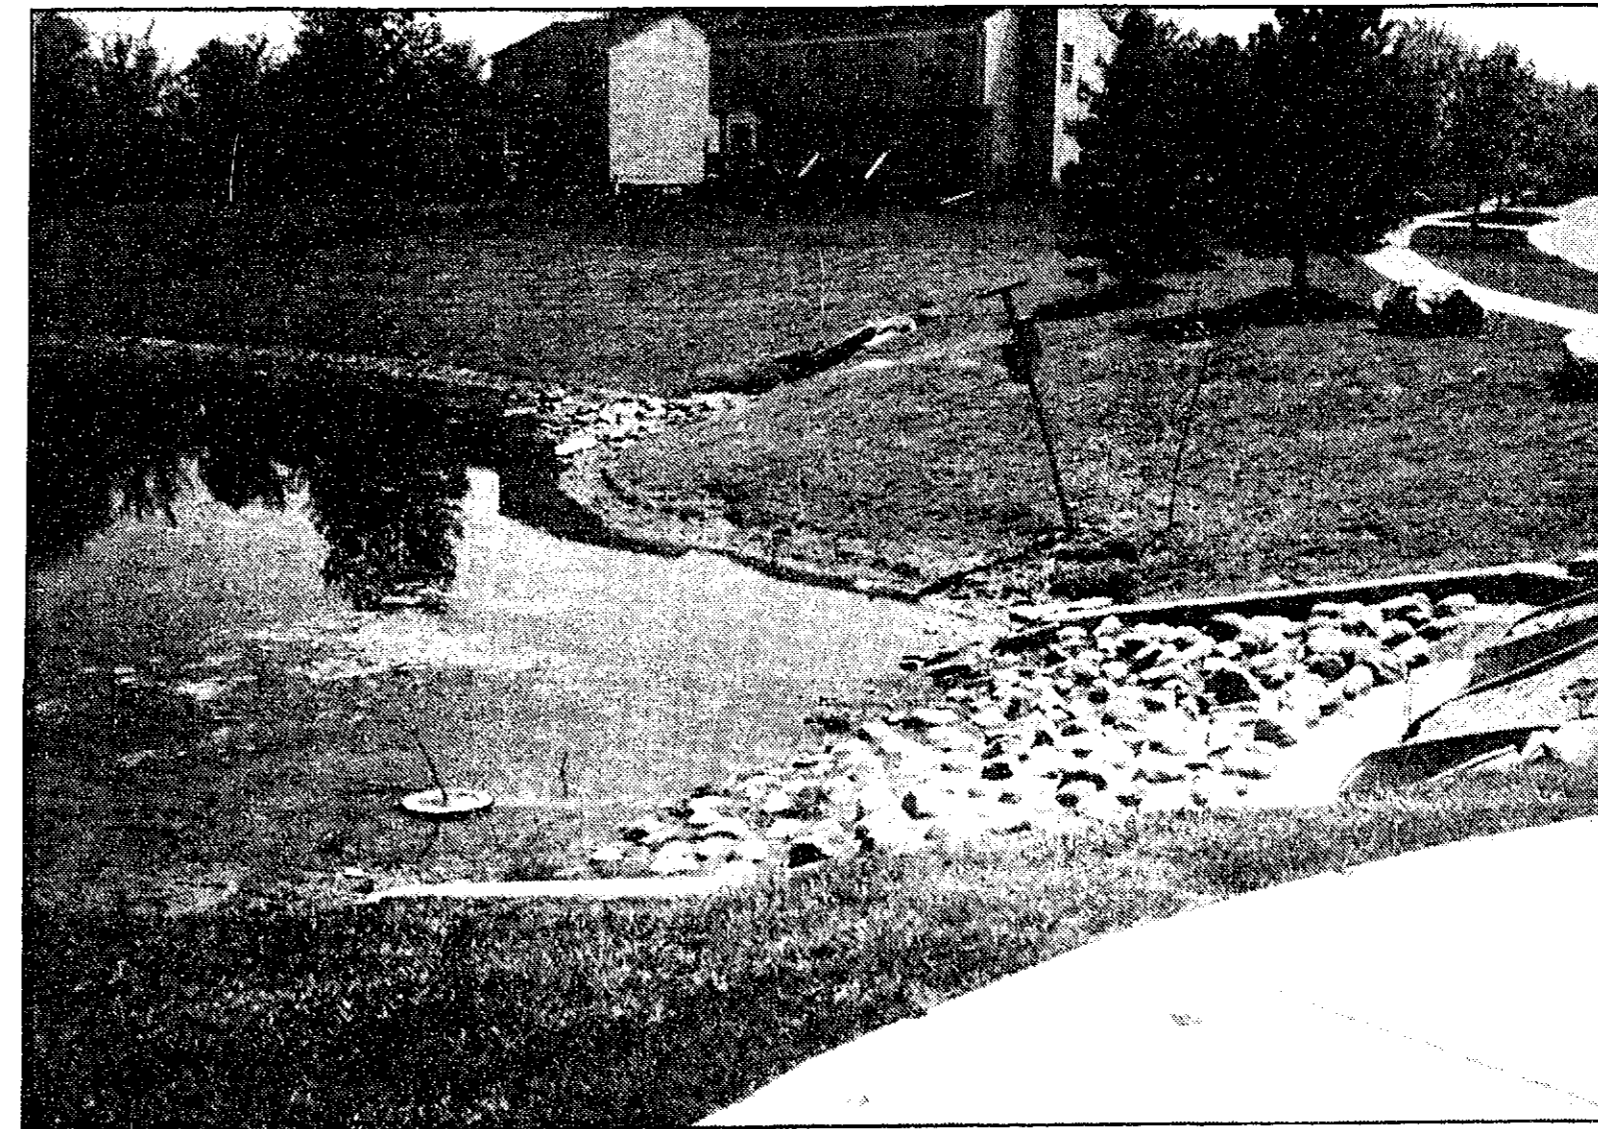

The development of any educational program is an evolutionary process. Novi's curriculum is assessed and evaluated on a rotating basis to meet content or interest changes and legal requirements. I support the implementation of new programs as part of a whole educational curriculum to meet the needs of our students. Research shows there is ample community interest and support to offer programs in instrumental strings, Japanese, and lacrosse. Last year as part of a cost cutting move, the board carefully reviewed minimum class sizes. The student interest level for these three programs far exceeds those guidelines. There are possible alternative funding sources, and the minimal cost to run these programs should not be singled out as a budget item paw.

City plans raise residents' ire

"maybe some might be." A completed draft plan for the basin is expected to be submitted to the state department of natural resources (DNR) by July 30, Nowicki said. The Cedarsprings basin on Munro Creek was originally scheduled to be built in summer 1983. At that time, the estimated cost of the project was $300,000. No cost estimate is available for today's project, Nowicki said. The basin was shown on the plat maps of the two subdivisions, Nowicki said. The city has owned all the necessary easements since 1984. In April, the city council approved an arrangement with Tri-Mount Land Development Company, developers of Walden Woods and the Yorkshire Place subdivision at the northwest corner of Ten and Taft. In exchange for permission to abandon a temporary stormwater detention basin there — and develop the site as two Yorkshire Place Number Three home lots — Tri-Mount agreed to pay Novi $100,000 to discharge undetained stormwater downstream into the city system. The funds are to be used to improve downstream drainage course improvements, which includes the Cedar Springs basin. Tri-Mount will not be required to proposed meeting with the adjacent homeowners will explain the plan and "if there's any way, address their concerns." Novi taxpayers this year will be assessed 76 cents per every $1,000 of state equalized valuation of their property for the stormwater plan. "The community-wide project has not been uniformly popular. Residents of Novi Township — Brookland Farms subdivision — have been fighting the city's similar designs for Miller Creek. Kott, a 20-year Novi resident, says she checked with the Novi building department before purchasing her current home four years ago and wasn't informed of the detention basin. "I was told it was woodlands and wetlands and now it's a drainage easement..." No one has told us a straight story," she said. Kott's neighbor Paulette Steinhof says she doesn't like the idea of expanding the Christina pond. "It really smells in the summer. It stinks. We really feel robbed. We none of us believe it's happening," she said. According to the 1983 stormwater master plan, after wetlands were filled to build Cedar Springs flooding at that time in the neighborhood was due to the large flow of off-site waters into the subdivision. In the 1970s, Novi required all new subdivisions to have on-site stormwater detention basins. In the mid-1970s, after Twelve Oaks Mall was built, problems with downstream flooding increased again, according to the 1983 report. The individual basins were described as "aesthetic and health hazards, as well as a form of consolidation of land that could be used for development. A wetlands resource study carried out in 1989 by the city's consulting engineers, JCK & Associates, shows that the Cedar Springs wetlands is a mix of trees such as cottonwoods, American elms, dogwood and willow. It's also home to plenty of wildlife: rabbits, raccoons, skunks, muskrat, opossum, heron, ducks and geese. Buyers of brand-new homes from the builder that they were told by the DNR told us if we complain loud enough they'll (the city) placate us and leave trees. They'll have all this water flooding from Taft and they'll kill it anyway," Kott said. "We were told by the DNR that if they let the water flow this way, the way they want to do it, our troubles just begun."

Novi Police arrest four at loud party

Police News

Novi Police broke up a loud party at a home near the intersection of Twelve Mile and Dixon May 16. Police estimated there may have been as many as 1,000 people there and cars were parked bumper-to-bumper along Twelve Mile from Novi Road to Tait.

The Novi Fire Department was also called to the scene to extinguish a large bonfire.

Four party goers were arrested for disturbing the peace after they shot obscenities at officers. The first to be arrested, a 24-year-old Westland man, was also charged with resisting arrest and faces a third charge of MDOJ (malicious destruction of property) to a police vehicle. After he was placed in the car he reportedly kicked at the inside of the back passenger door causing enough damage to keep it from opening and closing properly.

The other arrests involved a 23-year-old Northville man, a 22-year-old Livonia man and a 21-year-old Livonia man. Each reportedly yelled obscenities at officers and resisted arrest.

One of the Livonia men also faces charges of possession of narcotics paraphernalia, which police discovered during the man's booking process. He also faces indecent exposure charges for exposing himself to a female officer.

Several vehicles parked along Twelve Mile were towed away. While they were being towed, a Walled Lake police vehicle that was assisting at the scene was reportedly damaged when someone threw a beer bottle through a window.

FRAUD: Novi police are investigating charges that an unidentified woman used fraudulent prescriptions to obtain valium at Novi Drugs. A pharmacist at the store told police she has attempted to obtain the prescription by phone several times, and each time when he checked out the prescription it turned out to be false.

The pharmacist called police when the woman was in his store obtaining the prescription. Police arrived at the store as the woman was leaving, so they followed her and attempted to get her to stop. The woman drove several miles followed by the police car with lights flashing and siren sounding before she finally stopped in a parking lot.

Police arrested her on charges of suspicion of using fraudulent prescriptions. A search of her vehicle and clothing revealed several containers of valium obtained at Novi Drug as well as a Perry Drug Store in Farmington Hills.

The woman was discovered to be using a false name and address when obtaining the pills. Her vehicle was impounded after police discovered that the license plate was also invalid.

According to police reports, the woman is currently on probation for the same offense.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT: Novi police arrested two men fighting on South Lake Drive May 9 after they repeatedly abused obscenities at each other and at officers who arrived on the scene.

Novi officer Victor Lauria reported that he watched while one of the men took a stick and smashed two windows in the house they were standing next to as they argued.

Lauria reported that he warned both men to quiet down but they responded by continuing to shout at him. Both men were reportedly very intoxicated.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT: Novi Police May 16 responded to a complaint that a man was standing in the street with a butcher knife. Police would not release information on the location of this incident.

According to reports, the man was still standing in the street when police arrived at the scene, but no length of time was given. However, he reportedly told police he had cut his hand on the knife.

The man, who reportedly was highly intoxicated, told police that he planned to kill himself because he was depressed about a traffic ticket he received and was unhappy about life in general.

He then reportedly dropped to the ground and shouted obscenities and stated that he wanted to die as several onlookers watched. Police arrested the man and placed him in a patrol car.

The man's mother reportedly told police that he had ongoing emotional and substance abuse problems.

FELONIOUS ASSAULT: A Novi man told police that he was assaulted by two men driving north on Novi Road near Grand River May 16.

The man went to the Novi Police station after the incident occurred. Police reported he was gripping his elbow, which was bleeding.

The victim told police he was waiting for a red light at the intersection of Novi Road and Grand River in the far right lane, when a red semi-compact vehicle came up behind him at a high rate of speed, then locked the brakes, narrowly avoiding a collision with the victim's vehicle.

The suspects in the vehicle were two white males in their 20s. The driver was described as having scraggly, shoulder-length black hair and a thin black moustache. The passenger was described as having blonde hair.

The victim said the suspects moved from the right lane to the center lane and pulled up alongside his car, then started shouting obscenities at him. He said he ignored the men's shouting until the passenger yelled another obscenity, then threw an empty beer bottle at him.

He said the bottle broke against his left arm, cutting it in several places. He said his 5-year-old nephew was in his car with him at the time of the incident.

BREAKING AND ENTERING: The owner of Mr. Naturals pizza near Pontiac Trail and Beck Road reported that someone broke into his business and stole a beer and a drawer containing cash.

He told police he and the store manager entered the building through the front door to discover that someone broke in through the back door by prying it open, inside, he discovered the missing items.

CITIZENS WITH INFORMATION about the above incidents are urged to call the Novi Police Tip Line at 349-8887.

Novi Briefs

Correction: A Thursday, May 21 article in the Novi News incorrectly stated that Tim Pope did not support a motion to purchase semi-automatic revolvers for the Novi Fire Department. Pope did support this motion, which failed. He then cast an aye-vote for the 1992-93 city budget, which does not include the weaponry.

Commissioner resigns: One of the Planning Commission's newest appointees, Steven Gorgas resigned May 20. Gorgas said increased responsibilities at home and at work would not permit him to properly fulfill his commission duties. Gorgas' term was scheduled to run through July, 1994.

Dissertation recognized: Novi High School's Assistant Principal Jennifer Cheal was recognized for her doctoral dissertation. Cheal completed the dissertation at Michigan State University in June, 1991. It was selected as one of three outstanding dissertations submitted to the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development. Cheal presented her dissertation findings on the organizational climate in middle level schools at an annual association meeting in New Orleans last month.

Owners really burnt: Overall losses from two apartment buildings destroyed by fire at The Springs on Pontiac Trail Road have been appraised at $300,000. Novi Fire Chief Arthur Lenaghan said. The fire is under investigation by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department as possible arson. The developers, Ed Rose and Company, have had labor troubles, Novi police say.

"The electrical and plumbing was already done on one and the roof. It ran the loss up," Lenaghan explained.

"We've got it listed as suspicious. We have reason to believe it was not accidental."

Make way for ducklings: A Mallard mama nesting at Marty Feldman Chevrolet hatched 10 young-unions Monday, May 11. The dealer's staff had been zealously keeping an eye on the nest and worried about the welfare of the ducklings.

So they called Novi resident Laura Lorenzo to the site. Lorenzo has a permit from the state department of natural resources to rehabilitate wild animals.

"They knew there was no water on their property and the ducks would have to cross Grand River to get to the wetlands," Lorenzo told the city council.

"We walked them across Grand River and stopped traffic. I really appreciated the help."

Lone Star fire labeled suspicious

By JAN JEFFRES and CRINA FERRIER Staff Writers

An investigation is underway of a "suspicious" fire Wednesday at the proposed Lone Star B & B restaurant, sparked by a mop set alight and dropped into a stainless steel sink. Several "young people" were observed running away from the scene, according to witnesses, Novi Fire Chief Arthur Lenaghan said Thursday.

Although the vacant building, home of the former Rib And Egg restaurant, was filled with smoke, the fire damage was minimal, he added.

The incident is under investigation, and has been referred to Oakland County Arson Investigation, said Novi Police Chief Doug Shafer.

Shafer said Novi Police Officer Tom Orlowski spotted the fire while he was off-duty and called the fire department.

Shafer said Orlowski saw the two boys running from the building and saw smoke.

"He stopped, and picked up that there was a flame inside, so he called the fire department," Shafer said.

"He did not chase them. He was quite ill-prepared to chase the boys at the time."

Lenaghan said the fire is also suspicious because the building was not secured. "The back door was open. Witnesses had seen some people," he said.

"There's not a lot in terms of loss because everything is undergoing renovation. The call came in to the fire department at 9:32 p.m. and they had cleared the scene by 10:18 p.m.

The owners of Lone Star, Josif and Milica Jancevski and Milan Stevanovic told the city council they plan to spend $350,000 to renovate the site for the new Southwestern cuisine eatery.

The council recently re-affirmed their support for a liquor license for Lone Star, with the condition that they would re-examine the issue in six months to see if the facility is operational.

NOVI COMMUNITY SCHOOL DISTRICT NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES AND THE PROPOSED SCHOOL BUDGET 1992-93

Please take notice that on Wednesday, June 3, 1992 at 8:15 o'clock p.m. at the Educational Services Building, 25345 Taft Road, Novi, Michigan, the Board of Education of Novi Community School District will hold a public hearing on 1) the levying in 1992 of a proposed additional millage rate of 29.38 mills for operating purposes pursuant to 1991 Public Act 75 and 2) the Proposed School Budget for 1992-93. The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the levying of the proposed additional millage rate and the Proposed School budget for 1992-93.

The proposed additional millage rate would increase 1992 revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies by six and three tenths percent (6.3%) over the revenues that would otherwise be permitted by 1991 Public Act 75. In the event the proposed additional millage rate is not approved, the School District's revenues for 1992 will increase over those received during 1991 by three and nine tenths percent (3.9%).

The Board of Education currently has the complete authority to establish a levy of 29.38 mills in 1992 from within its authorized millage rate.

A copy of the proposed budget will be available at the Educational Services Building on Tuesday, May 26, 1992.

At the public hearing on Wednesday, June 3, 1992, the Board of Education will announce the date and location of the meeting at which it plans to take action on the proposed resolution.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Education.

SIGNED: CRAIG FOREBACK, SECRETARY, NOVI COMMUNITY SCHOOL DISTRICT (5/26/92 & 5/28/92 NN) BOARD OF EDUCATION

the NOVI NEWS Opinions

As We See It

Wahl should listen to constructive criticism

Let's face it, no one likes to be criticized. Even if it is fair and constructive criticism, hearing it is never pleasant. But none of us are perfect either, and there will always be valid criticisms to be had, improvements to be made... especially when it comes an issue like job performance.

There are two ways of handling such criticism. One is to listen to it and just plain old fashioned try to do better.

Or we can get totally defensive. This usually involves a good deal of denial—"there certainly can be nothing wrong with us or the way we do things." Any valid points have to be discounted as purely minor, mere nitpicking. And of course it works best if we can attribute to our critics an ulterior motive, a hidden agenda, some nefarious intent.

Of course the problems don't get solved this way.

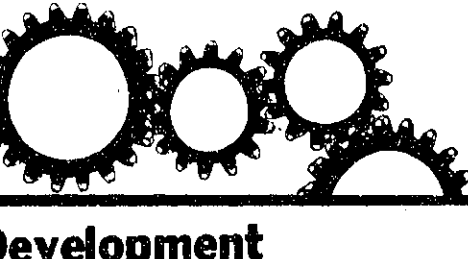

For the past few months, Novi officials have been all adrift with talk of how City Planning Department Director Jim Wahl has become a political target, how he is being harped on harassed by those who would do him in. This past week, it all came clear what has been going on.

Back in February, Planning Commissioner Judy Johnson penned a letter detailing what she saw as shortcomings in the performance of Wahl and his department. The letter was discussed in a circumspect manner by the commission in March, but what the letter said exactly was not known until the Novi News obtained a copy through the Michigan Freedom of Information Act last week.

Some of the criticisms were minor, such as duplication of paperwork, typos and out-of-order pages. But errors such as missing information, failing to check site plan extensions against existing ordinances and a failure to provide maps and graphics to the commission for meetings are not. These are more than just clerical irritations, they can slow down the work flow for an already busy planning commission. And as the manager of the planning department, it is Wahl's responsibility to get those glitches ironed out.

Other points were more important. The planning commissioners' complaint of a lack of leadership, poor administration and a proliferation of committee work for the planners.

Now it is difficult from this perspective to determine point-for-point which criticisms are valid and which are not. What is clear is that all the points raised appear to be fair items for discussion between the planning commission and planning director. If these are indeed problems, Wahl should indeed strive to fix them. No need to get defensive about it, just fix the problems.

One of the difficulties Wahl faces is that, as a government bureaucrat, he has several bosses. City Manager Ed Kriewall may technically be his direct supervisor, but a primary responsibility for the planning director is to support, assist and carry out the policies of the planning commission. We can think of few job duties more important for him than to be responsive to the needs and requests of the planning commissioners.

And if he isn't doing that job the way they want it done, we believe commissioners would be remiss if they failed to point it out to him.

Yet Wahl has reacted in a defensive manner. He tossed off the criticisms as minor, inaccurate and as being only one commissioner's opinion. He stated he believed the method of raising these complaints was inappropriate. Furthermore, he complained that the planning commission itself didn't do a good enough job at taking up items the planning department had prepared for it. And finally it appears that all the talk of Wahl's political victimization appears to have started with Wahl himself.

Nowhere in all this was there an admission on his part that some of the points raised might be valid, that he would fix those problems, or that he would even try.

We think Wahl needs to develop a little thicker skin. He should stop taking criticisms of his performance or his department so personally and just address the issues.

If he put as much effort into just resolving the problems as he has into defending himself, most of the problems would have gone away by now.

Ed Kriewall, too

While we are on the topic, we have a bit of constructive criticism for City Manager Ed Kriewall, too.

We've got a lot of respect for Kriewall. He is a good city manager and a good administrator. But he and his administration also often seem to have a communications problem.

Two more incidents occurred this past week to raise the point. One came out of the revelations about the Planning Commission criticisms of Planning Department Director Jim Wahl. One of the criticisms was a lack of leadership for the town center steering committee. Kriewall argued that wasn't true. Much, he said, was going on "behind the scenes." But how is the planning commission supposed to know that?

Another came up in the Cedar Springs Subdivision, where the department of public works is preparing to install a retention pond first planned for back in 1983. The DPW is now prepared to go ahead with the project, but the first residents learned of it was when trees were tagged there, apparently for surveying purposes.

In the meantime, the city has changed its retention pond design scheme, so residents don't know right now what the area is likely to end up looking like.

Is it any surprise Cedar Springs residents are up in arms about it, fearing the destruction of a natural wooded area bordering their subdivision? Were they expected to remember back to 1983? Were they expected to have read of the proposed retention pond on the stormwater map if they moved into the city later?

Residents have actually formed an advocacy group to protect their natural area. They've also asked for a public hearing, now scheduled for June.

But all that could have been avoided had the residents been informed ahead of time that the city was ready to begin the work.

DPW director Tony Nowicki explained that the reason for the lack of notice was that plans are still "too preliminary," so even the city wasn't sure what it was going to do.

This is not the first time we've heard of "behind the scenes" work and plans "too preliminary" to talk about. We heard these lines during the Grand Plan debate. We heard them during the Amoco Oil land-for-zoning deal. They were said of the tax increment financing proposal for a parking deck at the Expo Center. And we've been hearing it about efforts to buy parkland to replace Bosco Field. In every case, controversy has resulted.

Earlier communication probably would have avoided much of the controversy in each case.

We believe the city administration may be trapping itself on a number of these issues. It is fun to be "behind the scenes" mover and shaker, but when you are running a city, the public likes to have a say.

The solution is not complicated—we need earlier and better communication from the city manager and his administration.

Learning to work with wood

Phil Jerome

I've always had a lot of respect for Phil Morosco, but I didn't realize until recently just how deserving of my respect this man truly is.

Morosco, in case you didn't know, is general manager of Twelve Oaks Mall. What happened is that I had lunch with Phil and Elaine Kay, Twelve Oaks marketing director, at Toot Chee last Friday.

And, during the course of the conversation, we started talking about the little mundane tasks which we find that we enjoy.

I said that I derive a certain amount of pleasure from mowing my lawn. Kah confessed that she rather enjoys cleaning house. And Morosco acknowledged that he has become something of a gardener.

"I've already planted several hundred flowers this spring," he reported. "It's really quite relaxing to get outside and work on my flowers after I get home from work."

"I've even made my own wooden flower boxes," he added.

"You made your own flower boxes?" I asked. Impressed with anyone who can make things out of wood.

"Sure did," he said. "I just got out my power saw and..."

"You have your own power saw?" I asked.

"I didn't really go out and buy a power saw. I'm not particularly handy in the woodworking department," he explained. "It was a gift."

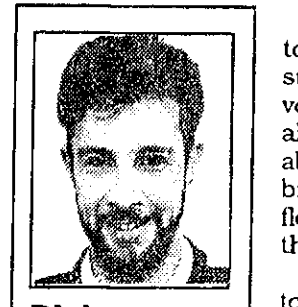

"What's so impressive about having your own power saw?" I interrupted Kah. "Lots of people have power saws?"

"At any rate," said Morosco, continuing his story about

Getting fired up for summer

Rick Byrne

Next to Speedweeks at Daytona, the late spring and early summer have to be about my favorite time of year. You can write all the prissy poems you want about spring being a time of rebirth, new love and budding flowers, but for me it means two things.

The pool is open, and it's time to barbecue.

I am a barbecuing fiend. When the weather turns warm, I'd write my newspaper articles with the edge of a charcoal briquet if I could. That's how devoted I am.

Every summer, one of your friends will tell you that he's knows the real secret, the inside info, on how to make the best barbecue. Truth is, like most things in life, barbecuing has no secrets. Practice makes perfect.

One summer when I was still in college, I tried to see how many meals I could barbecue in a week. My record was 15. I discovered all sorts of neat tricks for barbecuing just about anything. Baked potatoes, vegetables and meat were the staples, but the real trick was breakfast.

Through trial and error, I learned that leftover pie tins were great for scrambled eggs or pancakes cooked on a barbecue grill as long as the tin was doused with enough non-stick cooking spray.

My Weber kettle wizardry came in handy last summer when Novi got walloped by that big thunderstorm. When the power went out, my apartment in Woodland Glen was one of the last to have power restored. It took six days. I barbecued nine meals.

flower boxes. "I get out my power saw, place the wood on my saw horses and..."

"You have your own saw horses?" This time I was the one who was interrupting.

"What's so impressive about someone having his own saw horses?" asked Kah, an incredulous look crossing her face.

"Made 'em myself," said Morosco proudly. "It was easy." "I can't believe this conversation," mumbled Kah.

"Just went into the hardware store and got one of those little metal things."

"I know what you mean," I said. "It's one of those little metal things with the angled lines you can saw through to make angles."

"Yeah, that's it," he said. "What are those things called anyway?"

"Little metal things with angled lines is what I call 'em.'" "I don't know the technical name, but I know what you're talking about."

"Miter boxes," yelled Kah, her voice filled with equal parts frustration and irritation. "They're called miter boxes, for crying out loud. 'You two are really incredible, did you know that?'"

I think it was the vehemence of her outburst that caused us to stop and look in her direction.

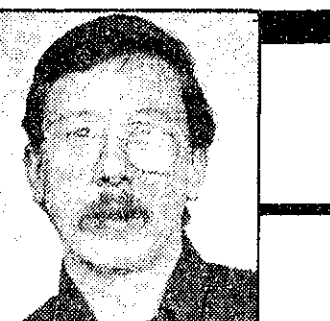

"Elaine, please," I said finally. "Phil and I are trying to carry on a conversation. I hope you're not one of those people who watches 'This Old House' on Channel 56 and thinks just anybody can do that stuff. I speak from personal experience when I tell you how difficult those things are to do, and I'm finding Phil's successful forays into the complicated world of advance carpentry extremely interesting."

"The angles on my saw horses aren't perfect," said Phil, resuming the conversation.

"Good grief," mumbled Kah.

In passing

'Lest we forget'

Barbecuing is definitely a man thing, too. I know that sounds sexist, but of all the barbecues I've been to, I've never once heard one of the women say "I'll fire up the grill." And of all the women I've known, I've never heard one speak of her barbecue grill as though it were a beloved child the way men do. Come to think of it, I haven't known any women who admitted they even owned a barbecue grill.

Men love to philosophize about their grills. I myself am enamored of what I call Byrne's Barbecuing Paradox: that is, when you think the coals are hot enough, they need five minutes more, but when you think your steak needs five minutes more, it's cooked enough.

Last week my best buddy came over and we did some male bonding around the barbecue grill. We cranked up some loud rock 'n' roll, mixed up some margaritas and roasted a few burgers.

Retirement

Barr will remain active with Lions

Macomb County. The volunteer position will fill Barr's days for the next year with about 350 meetings, organizing 52 local clubs and 2,200 local members.

"I probably won't even visit my own club next year," Barr said.

Barr also plans to become more involved in his son's travel agency.

And in his spare time, he hopes to use his 27 years of experience in contract negotiations as an arbitrator.

"I don't plan to crawl in a hole and die," he said.

Barr has been with Novi since it was a small community. Novi was "rurally oriented" when he came here, Barr said.

"It wasn't rural in the sense that people were making a living farming," Barr said. "There might have been an apple orchard or two."

The difference between Novi then and Novi now is like "night and day," Barr said.

"I think it's nicer now in many respects. The school district is substantially better," he said.

Incoming Superintendent Emmett Lippe will have to work hard to keep improving Novi schools. Financial problems will continue, Barr predicted, as Novi schools continue to grow.

"The growth is going to come, and it's going to come in an area where we're not currently equipped to handle it in terms of buildings and facilities west of Beck Road," Barr said.

"I've had people tell me they don't want to retire. I've had other people say they're just waiting to get the hell out of here. I don't feel either way. I'm ready to retire. I'm not sad that I'm retiring, but on the other hand I'm not going to come back every day just to see if everything is going alright."

William Barr
Novi schools Superintendent

State school financing concerns are not likely to be resolved in the next few years, Barr expects. But as bad as the situation seems now, it is no worse than in recent years.

"I don't think it's any better or worse. It has been in a confused state for 40 years," Barr said. "What we need is a benevolent dictator to make some profound changes as to how it should be financed."

That "benevolent dictator" could be a movement by the education community to recommend a school finance reform plan.

"The educational community could probably pass anything it wanted (through the Legislature) if they were all working together," Barr said.

Despite the state funding problems, Barr has saved the district untold dollars, according to one former school board member.

Former Novi mayor and school board member Gilbert Henderson had nothing but praise for Barr when Henderson told the school board in January that it would never know just how much money Barr has saved the school district over the past 20 years.

Current school board members also had only praise for Barr when accepting his retirement with regret at a meeting last month.

Barr has few words of wisdom to leave for Lippe and the new associate superintendent. His one bit of advice is simple: "pray a lot."

What will he miss the most?

"I don't know. I'll tell you next year," Barr said, adding that he is not particularly anxious to leave his position.

"I've had people tell me they don't want to retire. I've had other people say they're just waiting to get the hell out of here. I don't feel either way," Barr said.

"I'm ready to retire. I'm not sad that I'm retiring, but on the other hand I'm not going to come back every day just to see if everything is going alright."

Rotary Park to be part of annual Rouge Cleanup

There's two good reasons to pull on your sloppiest clothes and jump in and get your feet wet this June.

One is to help clean-up the Rouge River. The second is that the job will be done at the section of the watercourse which is at the new Novi Rotary Park at Nine Mile near Roethel Drive.

The Rotary has recently agreed to fund the development of the site. But volunteer labor is always welcome.

The annual event is scheduled for Saturday, June 6 from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Start the day out by joining the other volunteers when they meet 8:00 a.m. at Isuzu Diesel, 42775 Nine Mile Road between Novi and Meadowbrook roads.

Be prepared to work up an appetite. The Novi Rotary will be serving up a barbecue lunch after the workday is done. Local businesses have donated the goodies.

And make sure you wear old clothes that you don't mind getting mucky, including the protective necessity of long pants and long sleeves. Shoes or boots should have a sturdy sole to prevent punctures. There's no telling what you'll find in that river.

The Rouge winds approximately six miles through Novi. For six years now, the city government and volunteers have gotten together each spring to pull out logjams and several hundred yards of debris. The goal is clean water quality and a healthy environment.

If you want to sign up for the "job," call 347-0585.

The right glass puts some class in presentation

Sight, smell and taste are all involved in total wine enjoyment. To a wine aficionado, the proper wine glass is a tool used to harmonize the three elements. This tool should be transparent, colorless and unadorned.

According to legend, the first wine glass was fashioned by Aphrodite from a bubble of sea-foam she cut in half coming forth from the sea. Amusing possibly, except for one point made by the myth — wine glasses should be crystal clear.

The Bohemians and Venetians had a secret formula for tinting glass, and until the turn of the century, use of colored wine glasses was both fashionable and practical. Since winemaking techniques had not yet been perfected, wine of that era was cloudy and lacked eye appeal.

A basic all-purpose wine glass should have a minimum 8-ounce volume. This size allows placement of 2-3 ounces of wine in the glass allowing adequate volume for swirling the wine to volatilize aromatic components. Connoisseurs prefer larger sizes, particularly for red wines.

Sparkling wines have the most eye appeal. They should be served in a 6-ounce tulip or flute. These shapes allow the bubbles to rise slowly through the wine from the stem. Watching the tiny bubbles and formation of mousse (the slight head) is part of the total enjoyment.

Pink champagne is very popular. Pinot noir, used in all champagne, except Blanc de blancs, is a red grape. If the winemaker allows a period of skin contact prior to fermentation, or for a short period during fermentation, the resulting wine will have a slight blush. A hollow-stem flute is the perfect glass for pink champagne.

A wine carafe is utilitarian. Some older red wines need decanting. If the wine has been properly stored on its side, the sediment formed during bottle aging has collected there. The bottle should be turned upright several hours prior to decanting. Hold the bottle over a candle and pour the wine into the carafe. When the sediment approaches the neck of the bottle, decanting should be terminated.

Wells Cargo in Birmingham has a large selection of practically-priced stemware. A recent shopping trip uncovered the following: Champagne flutes and tulips for under $3; Auslese glass with a green stem, $3.97; Burgundy goblet, $1.73; Bordeaux or all-purpose 13-ounce, $1.77; and a wine carafe, $4.97.

The art of making wine glasses has reached an optimum state. For more than 225 years, 10 generations of the Austrian Riedel family have produced some of the world's finest wine glasses. Claus Joseph Riedel, a ninth generation family member, was the first glass designer to recognize the relationship between the size and shape of a wine glass and the taste of the wine in that glass.

To enhance the experience of drinking wine, several series of Riedel stemware are available matching the glass to the wine. The Overture series is priced around $8.50 per stem; the Vinum series begins at $15 and the Sommeliers series, the ultimate in fine, hand-blown stemware with a thin, polished lip can range as high as $70 per stem for the largest goblets. In phoning various merchants who carry Riedel glasses, we found widely disparate prices, so shop before you purchase.

Slades, Southfield; Studio 330, Bloomfield Hills; Cloverleaf Market, Southfield; and all Merchant of Vino locations carry Riedel stemware. It may be special ordered if not immediately on hand.

"The balance of these glasses is perfect," said Bloomfield Hills Studio 330 owner Randy Forester. "No other stemware showcases wine so well." We have used these glasses and we agree.

"The 22-ounce Bordeaux glass in the Vinum Series makes the perfect, all-purpose red wine glass," maintains Merchant of Vino's Mark Jonna.

LUSCIOUS LEMONS

Citrus puts zest into everything it touches

By DESIREE VIVEA
Copley News Service

There was a song that was popular a couple of decades back: "Lemon tree, very pretty, and the lemon flower is sweet, but the fruit of the poor lemon is impossible to eat."

While it's true that eating a raw lemon might make your mouth pucker, adding lemon to a recipe can yield mouth-watering results.

The lemon tree is native to Southeastern Asia, but it has made its way all over the world. Now, lemons are grown commercially in the small countries flanking the Mediterranean Sea and in California — the world's leading producer of this versatile citrus fruit. And while other fruits are seasonal, lemons are abundant all year.

Surprisingly, commercial growers do not start their orchards from lemon seeds, as you might expect. Instead, they graft lemon buds to the seedlings of other types of citrus trees, like orange and grapefruit.

Lemons have a long and fascinating history: included in shipboard supplies on long sea voyages, they provided vitamin C that helped prevent sailors from developing scurvy.

Lemons even served in the U.S. military in World War II. Pectin, a powdery substance derived from lemon skins and peels, was used by soldiers to stop wounds from bleeding.

Lemons also pulled double duty during wartime when paper cartons were sprayed with their pulp to resist oils. Such cartons were used to hold gasoline safely for months at a time, freeing metal for more important military uses.

In these health-conscious times, lemons provide a nutritious and weight-wise alternative to other flavor enhancers. Instead of drenching your salads in high-calorie dressings, try a sparkling of fresh herbs, a dash of fresh lemon juice and olive oil. Wedges or thin slices of lemon can provide a flavorful garnish to beverage and many of your favorite dishes, while grated lemon zest adds intense lemon flavor. Use a small hand grater or "zester," scraping only the outer layer of peel and avoiding the white "pith" underneath (this has a bitter flavor).

Lemons might be sour and impossible to eat on their own — but add lemon to recipes like one of these easy-to-prepare microwave dishes, and you've got a lusciously lemony winner.

Recipes in this column are tested in 625 to 700-watt microwave ovens.

Micro-tip of the week:

You'll get more juice from fresh lemons if you pick the skin several times with a fork, then microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting 15 to 20 minutes a piece. Let fruit stand one to two minutes, then roll on countertop, pressing down with the palm of your hand before squeezing. When juicing several lemons at a time, arrange them in a circle on the floor of the oven before microwaving.

MIDDLE EAST MEATBALLS FOR TWO

1/2 cup canned chicken broth
1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1/2 pound lean ground beef
1 clove garlic
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 1/2 teaspoons dried mint leaves, crumbled
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon fresh parsley
Hot cooked rice

Preparation time: 10 minutes

Cooking time: 8 to 10 minutes

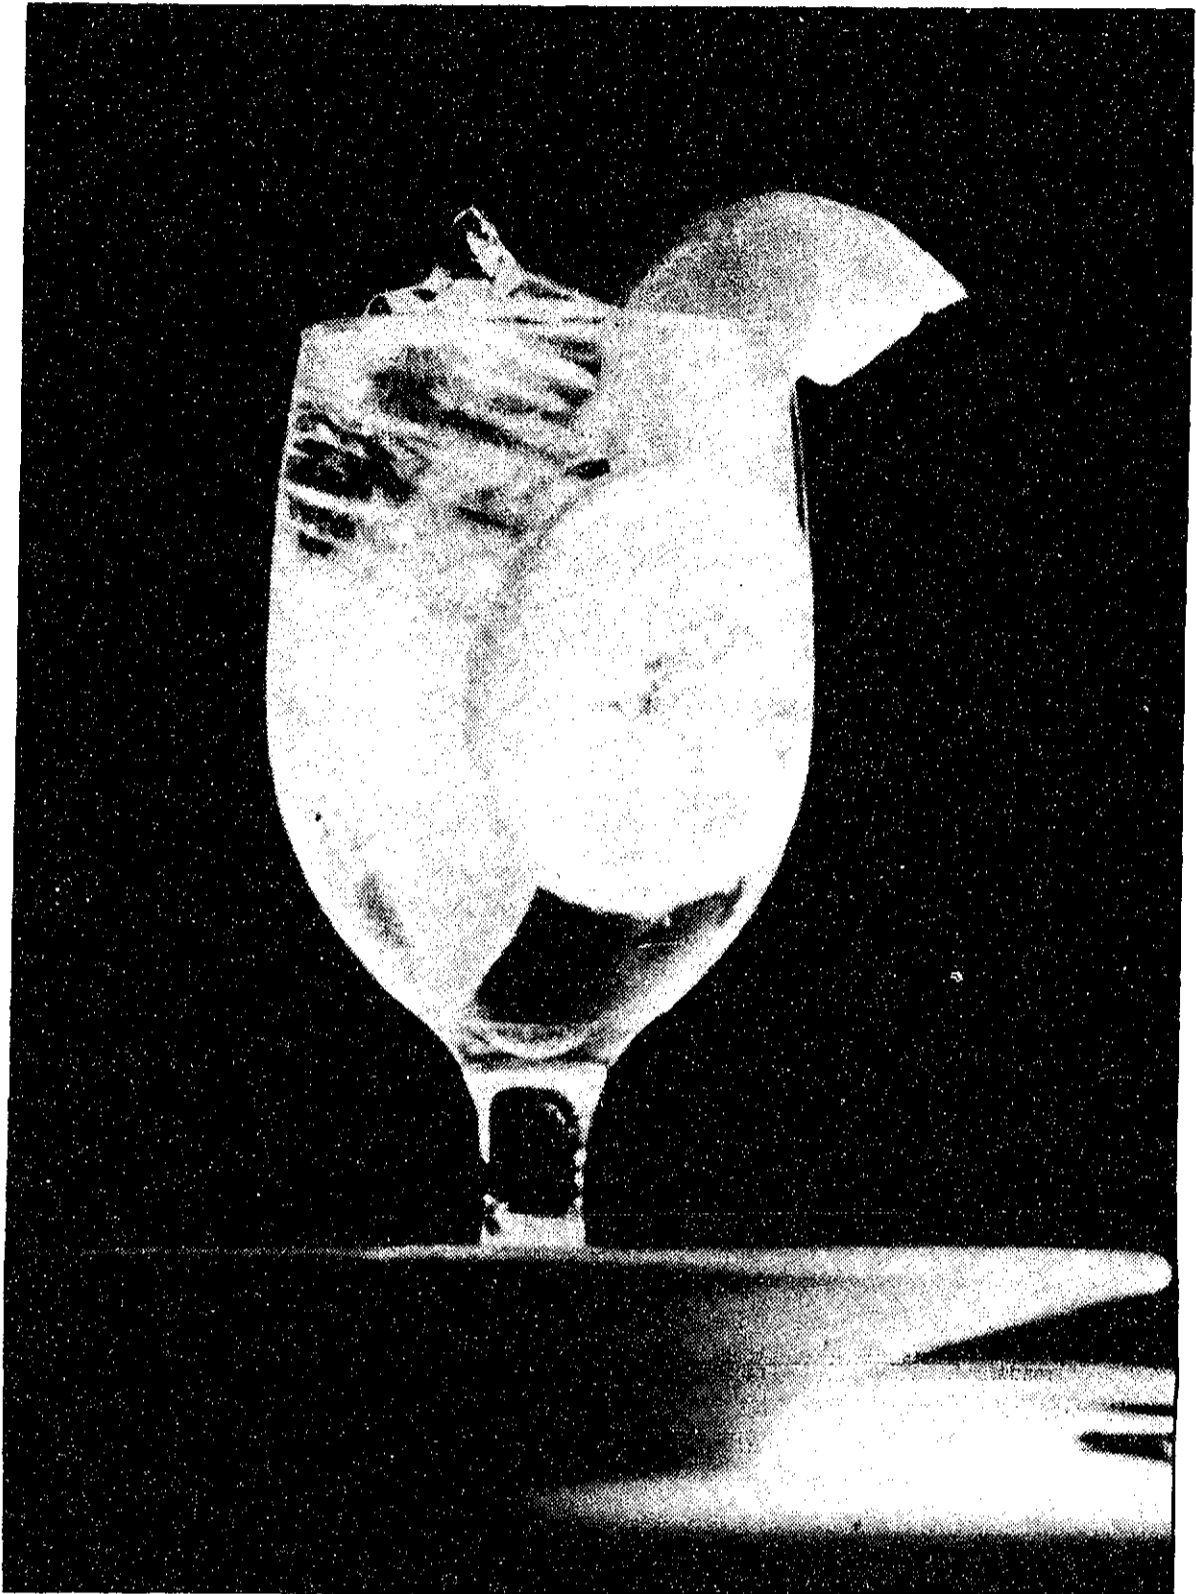

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power)

Combine chicken broth, lemon juice, cornstarch and salt in one-cup glass measure; stir. Set aside.

Beat egg until frothy in medium-size mixing bowl. Add ground beef, garlic, onion, mint leaves, flour and pepper. Blend well, then shape mixture into a dozen meatballs.

Arrange meatballs in circle around edge of large microwave-safe plate. Cover loosely with wax paper and microwave five minutes. Drain off juices. Turn meatballs over and rearrange; cover with wax paper and microwave one to two minutes longer, or until meat in center is no longer pink. Set aside.

Stir in lemon mixture well. Microwave 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 minutes, or until bubbly and thickened, stirring every minute. Add parsley and microwave 30 seconds longer.

A slice of lemon adds elegance even to a simple glass of water.

Arrange meatballs on serving platter over hot cooked rice. Drizzle lemon sauce over all. Serve immediately. Yields two servings.

CREAMY LEMON SAUCE OR FISH OR VEGETABLES

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup half-and-half or light cream
1 egg yolk
1/2 cup chicken broth
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon each dried parsley flakes and dried dill

Preparation time: 10 minutes

Cooking time: 2 to 4 minutes

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power)

Place butter or margarine in 1-quart microwave-safe casserole. Microwave 30 seconds to 1 minute, to melt. Add flour and salt, stirring to blend, then stir in half-and-half. Microwave 30 seconds to 1 minute, just until bubbly; stir.

Beat in egg yolk, then add chicken broth, lemon juice and seasonings; stir. Microwave one to two minutes, or until heated through and thickened. Serve with fish or vegetables. Yields 1 1/4 cups sauce.

LEILANI LEMON BARS

1/2 cup butter or margarine

1 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup light brown sugar, packed
1/4 cup flaked dried coconut
3 eggs
1 1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 cup flaked dried coconut
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon zest

Preparation time: 10 to 15 minutes

Cooking time: 7 1/2 to 10 1/2 minutes

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power)

Place butter or margarine in 8x12-inch microwave-safe baking dish. Microwave about 1 minute, to melt. Stir in 1 cup flour, brown sugar and 1/4 cup coconut; press into bottom of dish. Microwave 2 to 3 minutes, to set.

Crack eggs into medium-size mixing bowl. Beat well, then beat in all remaining ingredients. In that order, blending thoroughly. Cover bowl loosely with wax paper and microwave 3 to 4 minutes, or until mixture bubbles and thickens.

Pour filling over crust; spread out evenly with spatula. Microwave 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 minutes longer, or until set. Let stand on heat-proof surface until cool, then cut into bars. Dust with powdered sugar, if desired. Yields about two dozen bars.

Chicago was a success!!!

All of the team members received silver or gold medals. We are now qualified for Germany. The judges were some of the most critical chefs in the world. Their remarks and comments will help to make us better for the test coming up in October, Frankfurt. It will be here and gone before any of us realize what has happened. The week in Chicago was grueling. We worked late and started early. Most of us ended up doing some of our pieces over.

The kitchen that we cooked out of was on the 67th floor of the Sears Tower. Talk about a view. Magnificent.

The Metropolitan Club is part of Clubs of America and has sister clubs all over the United States. The Skyline and Renaissance are counterparts in this area.

The chef, his sous chefs and all of the staff were great. The area we worked was actually a "second" kitchen used mainly for large banquets and pastries. Chef Kim, the pastry chef, who usually has the area to herself and her assistant, Lindsey, had to cope with a dozen extra people in her area. They were angels. I'd have a problem with a supplementary bunch of chefs hanging around my kitchen. There wasn't enough they could do to help us.

On top of everything, this was one of the busiest weeks of the year for them. Fun after function. Everybody and their brother wanted a party, most of them vendors displaying at the restaurant show entertaining customers. The club was going 20 hours a day to keep up.

Everything was done quickly, quietly and professionally — very well managed. There was little that we wanted for.

One of the things that is very important when competing is to eat properly. Each team member was assigned a meal that was our responsibility. It was not to be fancy, but nutritious and healthy.

Marlo, our captain, made it mandatory that we sit and eat together at least once a day. It was a reprieve and communication session built into one.

I decided to not eat meat, drink coffee or eat sweets for the duration. I didn't miss any of them although my system was shocked with the amount of veggies and carbs for the first few days. My energy level was incredible, and I even lost a few pounds. No complaints about that. A good testimonial to the food value of pasta, rice and fresh vegetables.

On the last day before displaying we arrived at noon. We had to be at the convention center by three o'clock in order to set up our table properly.

All went well. The table was awesome. We received the highest award given at the show. Even after 40 hours we could not go back to the hotel to bed. We returned to the Metro Club and cleaned up the kitchen and thanked everyone for their help.

They had champagne waiting for us. A great group of people. By this time we were so wired that sleep was out of the question. After a shower we went to a corner grill for dinner.

The tension wasn't over yet as the awards would not be presented for another 12 hours. It was a rough night to sleep peacefully.

Needless to say, we were very happy with the results. The judges were quick to remind us that there is much room for fine tuning. So, even though Team Michigan did well, it's back to the shop with the focus on perfecting our food to the next level.

The week in Chicago was grueling. We

BARBECUE CONTEST: WDIV-TV Channel 4 and Chef Tom MacKinnon of MacKinnon's restaurant in Northville are organizing the first "Gourmet on the Go" barbecue contest. This fun, fast little contest offers big prizes to the best barbecue recipes. Just send in your favorite. And the word "barbecue" doesn't mean just sauce. It can be anything from a fish recipe to a vegetable to a dessert. Entries will be judged on overall taste, originality, ease of preparation and appearance. All entries must be postmarked by June 10, and sent to "Gourmet on the Go" BBQ Contest, P.O. Box 5270, Northville 48167. "Gourmet on the Go" is seen Fridays on the Channel 4 Newsbeat at Noon.

HANDS-ON CLASS: Schoolcraft College is accepting registrations for Hands-On Cooking for the Gourmet Cook. The three-week course prepares participants to create three buffets featuring recipes of Classical, American Regional and Southwestern Cuisine. Buffets will consist of appetizers, soups, salads, main entrees and desserts, and each person will be able to invite one guest to dine with them at each of the grand buffets. Participants should purchase a white chef's coat, and must have basic cooking skills. Space is limited. The course will begin Thursday, May 28. The fee is $307. Call Continuing Education Services at 462-4448 for more information.

RECIPES WANTED: A new feature is appearing in the Creative Dining section of this paper. Known as HomeTown Cooking, it will feature recipes contributed by readers. With that in mind, we'd like to take this time to ask that anyone with a recipe that they'd like to share with all their neighbors in the Northville/Novi area please send it, along with your name, address, and phone number, to HomeTown Cooking, 104 W. Main St., Northville, MI 48167.

Any recipe will do. Perhaps you have a dinner-time favorite, or a recipe for bread that's been passed down through your family for generations, or maybe just a good, fast work-night cost-cutter. Send it in, and we'll feature it on these pages.

MICHIGAN CULINARY TEAM PRACTICE: Before the Michigan Culinary Team enters the World Culinary Art Salon in Frankfurt, Germany, next October, it will have to hold some practice sessions. As such, chefs on the team will host practices, and display and discuss them with guests. The practices are open to the public at a cost of $30 per person, or $25 per person when purchasing four or more tickets. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres will be served. The proceeds will be used to raise funds to send the team to Frankfurt.

Sessions will be from 6:30-8:30 p.m. on the following schedule:
 • Monday, July 20, Renaissance Club, 259-4700.
 • Tuesday, Nov. 10, Victory Celebration, Detroit Athletic Club, 963-9200.

To purchase tickets, call the numbers listed above at least seven days in advance.

EGG CONTEST FOR KIDS: The Michigan Association of Poultry Industries in cooperation with the American Egg Board is sponsoring its eighth annual Michigan Egg Cooking Contest. The contest, which is limited to students in grades six through 12, requires entrants to produce a main dish entree using a minimum of four eggs or one per serving. Top finishers in the contest will earn $300, $200 and $100 for first, second and third place respectively. The winning Michigan entry will be sent to the national contest, which has a top prize of $4,000. Deadline for entry is June 1. For more information, contact Carl C. Hoyt, project coordinator, 3658 88th Ave., Zeland, MI 49464.

Family gets a kick out of this dish

Eating midweek, and even on the weekends is catch-as-catch-can for Jan Weicksel of Northville.

With two boys ages 12 and 9 — both very active in soccer — and two girls 4 and 2, Weicksel definitely fits the role of mother on the go.

"We have four kids, with two very involved in soccer as well as my husband," Weicksel says. "And it all happens at meal time. That makes it hard to make some real food. We eat a lot of hot dogs."

That's where her recipe for Pork Chops in White Wine comes in. Not only is it a simple recipe with a short list of ingredients that everyone is sure to have. It cooks up with very little effort.

After quickly searing the pork chops and browning the onions, they are seasoned and tossed into the oven for an hour and a half. "It's very simple," she says. "It doesn't take much time to prepare. It can fix it and have everything cleaned up before dinner."

Served over rice, with a tossed salad and a green vegetable like peas or green beans, Pork Chops in White Wine can be part of a well-balanced meal.

The recipe came from a cookbook assembled by a local school group when the Weicksel family moved west, where the family moved west, the recipe came with them. And Weicksel has since spread it around here too.

"We belong to the First Presbyterian church, and it's in their cookbook. I've put it in other community-type cookbooks, too," Weicksel says. The dish offers another big advantage for this big family. Even the finicky eaters in the clan like it.

"When you have four kids, and four kids like it, that's an endorsement," Weicksel says.

HomeTown COOKING

Jan Weicksel 'Pork Chops in White Wine'

pepper
 1/4 cup white wine
 1 teaspoon soy sauce

Combine white wine and soy sauce and set aside. Brown pork chops on both sides in butter or margarine. Remove to casserole dish. Sauté onions, place on top of pork chops. Sprinkle with flour, salt and pepper. Over this pour the combined wine and soy sauce. Cover and bake at 350 degrees F for 1 1/2 hours. Serve over rice. Boneless, skinless chicken breasts may be substituted for the pork as well.

Flavorful garlic has its drawbacks

The ancient Romans and Greeks referred to garlic as a "stinking rose" with powerful healing powers. In 1550 B.C., the Egyptians thought there were 22 different garlic-based formulas to cure ailments from body weaknesses, headaches to throat tumors.

The Romans treated garlic as a source of power and proposed 61 garlic cures. Garlic could supposedly cure ailments from hemorrhoids to snake bites. Probably the most interesting use for garlic was to use it to keep away vampires and other evil spirits.

Is garlic really an ancient wonder-drug? Today there are medical studies suggesting that eating garlic may reduce the chances of a heart attack, reduce cholesterol and blood pressure. These medical studies done in Europe used a highly concentrated dried garlic powder, and according to their findings, very few over the counter garlic supplements contain the herb's active ingredient, allicin.

These scientists warn that taking garlic is not enough to control cholesterol, on its own. If you're borderline it may be useful but not for those with severe cholesterol problems.

Beware of claims that garlic cures athlete's foot, hay fever, arthritis and many other disorders until more medical evidence is available. Large amounts of garlic can cause gas, stomach irritation, body odor and bad breath. Until the evidence is in, keep the garlic in the kitchen cupboard and not in the medicine cabinet.

Fresh garlic is available all year, along with granulated garlic, instant minced garlic, instant garlic powder, garlic salt and minced garlic in oil.

Preserving garlic from the garden can be very easy. The key to keeping it fresh is proper air circulation while it is hung to dry. Several plants with the leaves still attached can be braided together or tied together and then hung to dry. The garlic heads can be easily broken off for use in cooking.

When purchasing garlic, select heads that are large, plump, firm, crisp and free of soft spots or shriveled cloves. Buy heads that are sold loose rather than boxed; it is an easier way to tell if the head is fresh.

Store garlic in a cool, dark, well-ventilated spot rather than the refrigerator. Refrigeration tends to make them sprout. Garlic with soft, yellowed cloves or green sprouts should be tossed out.

Don't peel the cloves until you are ready to use them. Unpeeled, a head of garlic will stay fresh for weeks or can be frozen indefinitely in an enclosed freezer bag or freezer container.

Peeling the papery skin off the garlic clove is easy. Press the clove with the flat side of a broad knife or give it a good whack with the knife handle until it breaks the skin. Then, it will slip right off.

The pungency of garlic is determined by how finely chopped and how long it's been cooked. The smaller the pieces, the hotter the flavor; while the longer the cooking time the milder it becomes.

Baking garlic heads for about an hour drizzled with olive oil, butter and a little water will make them taste very sweet with the soft texture of butter. It can then be used as a spread for French bread or turned into a garlic sauce for beef or lamb.

Whisk some fresh garlic into leftover soups or sauces for a flavor boost. Drop a peeled garlic clove into French salad dressing and leave for about 24 hours, remove the clove, you'll enjoy the new flavor treat.

It has been said that if you rub garlic on the heel of your foot, it would be absorbed through the pores and eventually show up on your breath, so keep a check on the amount of garlic you use in foods. Friends may be offended by the odor.

Use lemon juice or salt to get rid of the garlic odor on your hands, utensils and counter tops. For garlic breath, you can try eating parsley, lots of (d) the chlorophyll it contains acts as a mouthwash, or make sure everyone around you eats lots of garlic then maybe no one will notice the odor.

Grains ease dependence on fats

In today's kitchen, vegetable shortenings have replaced lard. Foods are pan-fried in vegetable oil versus butter. And margarine is the everyday spread of choice.

Many of us have made changes like these in an effort to reduce animal fats, which are primarily saturated and, thus, have the potential to raise blood cholesterol. However, when vegetable fats are hydrogenated, they also become saturated.

Hydrogenation is a process of solidifying vegetable oils to form fats that are harder at room temperature, such as stick margarines and shortenings. Hardness of fat is important in preparing many food items, such as baked goods, sauces and desserts, because it provides a pleasing taste and texture. And a fat, such as margarine, is far more appealing than oil as a spread for toast. At the same time, however, fats that are hydrogenated, or made more solid, become more saturated and act similarly to other saturated fats in the body. Hydrogenated vegetable fats vary in their degree of saturation. The softer the margarine or shortening the less hydrogenated it is. For example, tub margarines are less hydrogenated than stick margarines. Squeeze margarines are even less hydrogenated.

Highly hydrogenated vegetable fat needs to be accounted for in the diet as saturated fat, containing long chain fatty acids. The growing popularity of whole-grain foods is a positive change in the diet of America, says Gunkler. Here are some easy ways to make sure you're getting plenty of whole-grain foods in meals and snacks throughout the day.

● Lunch — Use whole-grain pasta in soups and main dish salads. Make sandwiches with whole-grain bread and buns.
 ● Dinner — Include whole-grain pasta and rice in soups and main dishes. Serve whole-grain rolls.
 And for dessert, try this simple recipe featuring a delicious crunch topping. Layer cut-up fresh fruit, yogurt and Cereal-Crunch Topping (below) in each of 6 parfait glasses.

CRUNCH-TOPPED PARFAITS

Cereal-Crunch Topping
 3 cups whole grain Total cereal, slightly crushed
 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
 2 tablespoons packed brown sugar
 2 tablespoons peanut butter

Heat oven to 300 degrees. Place cereal in large bowl. Heat margarine in 1-quart saucepan until melted; add brown sugar and peanut butter. Cook and stir until well blended; remove from heat. Stir into cereal until cereal is completely coated. Spread evenly in ungreased jelly roll pan, 15 1/2 x 10 1/2 x 1 inch. Bake 10 to 15 minutes, stirring once or twice, until golden brown. Cool completely. Store in airtight container. 3/4 cups topping.

Midweek meals can cook up quick

Single-skillet stippers make midweek menu sense. Fast to fix and easy to clean up, they bring great taste to the table in record time.

Two new recipes from home economists at Uncle Ben's will help speed busy-day dining. Creative combinations of fresh and convenience foods, each recipe ensures fabulous flavor and easy preparation by starting with 100 percent natural Uncle Ben's Long Grain & Wild Rice Fast Cooking Recipe. An all-natural combination of long grain and wild rice with subtle seasonings, the convenient and versatile blend cooks in just 5 minutes. Combined with favorite seafood, meat or poultry and seasonal vegetables it becomes a light and satisfying meal.

WEST COAST WILD RICE SHRIMP 'N ARTICHOKE SKILLET
 1 1/2 cups water
 1 pound medium shrimp, cleaned & deveined (tails removed, if desired)
 1 package (6.25 ounces) Uncle Ben's Long Grain & Wild Rice Fast Cooking Recipe
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 1/2 to 3/4 teaspoon red pepper flakes, as desired
 1 can (14 1/2 ounces) artichoke to complete the dish, and lemon wedges, squeezed over individual servings, add a fresh flavor note. Jiffy Wild Rice Jambalaya tempts boneless chicken breasts with Long Grain & Wild Rice Fast Cooking Recipe, bright bits of green pepper, tomatoes and scallions. Finely chopped ham and garlic add distinctive flavor accents to the speedy, family-pleasing skillet dinner.

Combine water, rice, contents of seasoning packet, butter and pepper flakes in 10-inch skillet. Bring to a vigorous boil. Stir in shrimp. Cover tightly and simmer until all water is absorbed, about 5 minutes. Stir in artichokes; heat through. Cover; remove from heat. Let stand 5 minutes or until liquid is absorbed. Stir in sour cream. Sprinkle with cilantro and serve with lemon. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

JIFFY WILD RICE JAMBALAYA
 1 pound boneless, skinless chicken breast, cut into 1-inch pieces
 1/2 teaspoon paprika
 1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
 1 large clove garlic, minced
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 1 package (6.25 ounces) Uncle Ben's Long Grain & Wild Rice Fast Cooking Recipe
 1 1/4 cups water
 1/2 cup short, thin green bell pepper strips
 1 small tomato, cut into thin wedges
 1/4 cup 1/2-inch green onion pieces

Sprinkle chicken with paprika and cayenne pepper. Cook chicken and garlic in butter in 10-inch skillet until chicken is no longer pink. Add water, rice and contents of seasoning packet; bring to a vigorous boil. Add ham. Cover tightly and simmer 3 minutes. Stir in green peppers; cover and continue to simmer 2 minutes or until most of liquid is absorbed. Stir in tomato and green onions. Makes 4 servings.

TAKE VINCE AND LARRY'S CRASH COURSE IN SAFETY BELTS.

"As you know, Larry, pretty soon all cars will come with automatic safety belts or air bags — and I don't mean your mother-in-law!"
 "That's right, Vince, but these new automatic gizmos only do part of the job that you're from being a windshield warrior. You've still got to make sure your safety belt is buckled up."

"Larry, do you know what works best when they fit tightly?"
 "My Uncle Bernie's false teeth."
 "No Larry, safety belts. You've got to always make sure that yours is snug and that whatever safety belt system your car comes with is in a-ok-working order."

YOU COULD LEARN A LOT FROM A DUMMY. BUCKLE YOUR SAFETY BELT.
