An estimated 500 people attended the groundbreaking ceremony for the new St. James Roman Catholic Church in Novi Saturday.

The celebration included an ice cream social, with ice cream and rootbeer donated by A & W. "A lot of people brought blank-

State representatives were deadlocked Tuesday for hours over the school aid bill, but after two votes they eventually passed the funding plan which cuts millions in state aid to districts. For Northville and Novi Public Schools, both out-of-formula districts, the news was startling.

Estimates supplied from the Oakland Intermediate School District indicate Novi schools could see a loss of $1,112,000 in recaptured funds and another $369,000 in social security.

The bill will have an equal impact on Northville schools.

Northville Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski was disappointed at the outcome of the House's vote to pass the bill, 56-49.

"I'm disappointed because in our analysis we could not find many positive things for Northville Public Schools in that plan," he said Tuesday night. Now we will just have to do the best we can."

Preliminary estimates indicate Northville could lose an additional $100,000-$410,000 in state aid as a result of the bill passing. But those figures are inconclusive and are subject to futher analysis of the bill and its impact, district officials said.

Northville district officials were hopeful the bill would be over-

"it's a whole new wrinkle." Rezmierski said. "We lost the 2-1 credit (for tax base sharing) which for us means anywhere from $54,000 to $108,000.

"It just adds insult to injury," Rezmierski said. We have set aside $500,000 for this kind of thing now I'm just hoping we can make it on

When asked if the House's approval would mean more cuts for Northville, Rezmierski was hopeful but not assured.

After the fund-raiser, the Detroit Catholic Archdiocese approved the building of the new church, awarding the congregation with a church budget of $2.5 million.

The new church will include an office complex and multi-purpose area as well as a traditional sanctuary. The building itself will be "traditional, but quite distinctive," Cronk said. "It will be a square building with a tower in the center and four gables coming out from the corners, each of which is an individual room. The round towers in each corner give it the distinctive look," he explained. The church is designed to hold as many as 900 people, so it will keep up with Novi's growing population. But initial seating in the building will hold 500 people.

Another striking feature of the new building will be four very large round windows of faceted glass and "a real baptismal pool in the original Christian tradition," Cronk said. The architect for the new St. James Roman Catholic Church is Jack Brown Associates, and the

As We See It

Cooler heads must prevail in M-5 debate

Whoa, folks, Slow down, Let's stop and talk . . . and think a bit before things

Novi City Council's action last week to reject the Michigan Department of Transportation's latest plan for mitigation of wetlands to be destroyed during the construction of the proposed M-5 Haggerty Connector project has brought a swift and angry reaction. It has gone so far that this week one member of the Haggerty Road Connector/M-5 Support Group has threatened to recall the six council members who voted to reject the

On the one hand, supporters of the M-5 project need to recognize that council's action was not really out of line. Ultimately, what the council seemed to want was a face-to-face conversation with state policymakers - local representatives and senators, as well as the head of the MDOT — rather than just the bureaucrats before they give in on what has been a major issue surrounding the highway construction. Council members seem to want a chance to hold state policymakers' feet to the fire before they'll go along with state's contention that the wetlands cannot be mitigated in the Novi area. In that sense, they indeed seem to be doing the city's bidding . . . and we'd expect no less of them.

On the other hand, the umbrage taken by supporters of the M-5 project is neers, still contending there is no affordnot unjustified either. City council had able land in Novi which could be conindeed promised to take no action unless verted to wetlands. They looked it notified members of the support group ahead of time. And then council turned around took up the issue in the early morning hours of its council meeting, after most residents had long since gone home or turned off the city council cablecasts and gone to bed.

Several of those very same council members have been critical of the city administration of late for its communications problems. But when they went ahead and voted on the resolution even though there had been no notification of the meeting to the support group - and no, just adding the item to the agenda as a part of the city engineer's report does not do the job — these members fell into the same trap. They too failed to communicate.

What's needed at this point is a face-to-face meeting with the state policymakers . . . a well-publicized meeting that all interested parties can attend. The MDOT engineers may indeed be able to make a compelling case that the mitigation cannot or should not take place locally. And if the MDOT can indeed prove that to be the case, then council should go along with a plan that is a cerns. Building wetlands on the shores worthwhile alternative.

But council should have the opportunity to make sure all local options have been considered and studied. And they should indeed hold the state's feet to the fire in an effort to get that mitigation

At issue here are the 44 acres of wetlands that lie in the path of the Haggerty Connector. Under federal, state and local laws, those wetlands have to be replaced whenever a construction prolect destroys or disrupts a wetlands area. There is a darn good reason for it. In this barriers are that important. At this society, we have long since stopped thinking of wetlands mere swampland, right buy out of those folks living on good for nothing unless they can be filled Summit Drive, and then selling the and built upon. That was the prevailing homes to buyers who know the road will thought about wetlands up until the '70s be placed there and that they'll have to and '80s, but we have since come to realdeal with the noise problem. ize that wetlands serve some very impor-

humble opinion, that made this country great. Perhaps no other portion of the Constitution, perhaps no other part of government policy or law has been fought over as often, as vocally or as vehemently as the Bill of Rights. These ten amendments have always been controversial.

Nonetheless, the Bill of Rights gave us as individuals protections not only against government abuses, but also against the will of the majority, which can sometimes be just as intrusive.

What was really unique, and so worthy of celebrating. about the Bill of Rights was that it was the first time a nation had set down in writing the idea that individual rights and the protection of those rights should be a top priority in the running of a country. Two hundred years ago, it was a radical idea.

Reading up on the topic recently. I ran across an article in a trade publication known as U & lc called Freedom & the Bill of Rights After 200 Years," by social historian Stewart Burns, Ph.D. He made some interesting comments that put me in mind of some points about suburban communities like Novi that we at the News have been harping

The Bill of Rights was enacted by Congress and ratified

This is a very special Fourth by the states only as the result of pressure from less welloff citizens who believed that without such protections. the new government's democratic priniciples would never be realized. . . " he said. Going on, he concluded that. The worsening economic crisis of the 1990s which affects people of color most severely but is hurting the white middle class as well, will hopefully catalyse a growing awareness of the need for an expansion of economic and social rights in order to foster economic and social justice in an era of

> That of course reminded me of the recent discussion over minority populations in Novi, and how the city has worked to make sure members of minorities feel comfortable coming here and living here. It reminded me of Mayor Matt Quinn's recent commentary that the only barrier standing in the way of anyone living here in Novi, white or a member of a minority, is an economic barrier.

Well, that is no small barrier, folks. With the average price of housing in Novi reaching upward toward the $120,000 mark, you need to have an annual income of nearly $40,000 to live here. That not only cuts out the poor, that cuts out much of the middle class. Not only can minorities not afford to live here, who statistically make less than whites, neither can many senior citizens or even our own young adults, who will have to get their careers established before they can hope to make that much money.

It makes me wonder if we in Novi haven't taken advantage of the opportunities the Bill of Rights has afforded us. and then set up barriers to those who haven't fared as well. It makes me wonder what the founding fathers of our nation would have to say about the direction Novi is headed as a community.

Have a nice Fourth of July. I hope you enjoy it. But I also hope that after the festivities and celebrations are over, we in Novi can begin to set about the task of making Novi accessible to all who want to live here.

Maps improved, not perfect

Pat Nowak wasn't just trumpeting bureaucratic air when he said Michigan's 1992 transportation map is improved.

The boss of the state Department of Transportation said there are more than 300 changes, and pointed out a few. But his press release didn't point out the biggest change of

No picture of the governor.

Richard For the first time in a generation. at least, MDOT's map has no color photo of the chief executive. The Great Lakes State is rare if not alone in the nation in that regard.

John Engler often accused his predecessor, Jim Blanchard, of using state publications to trumpet himself. There's a puffy message about our 11,000 lakes and 3,200 miles of shoreline with Engler's scrawl, and that's all. The big news is that Michigan has turned the corner in admitting we have a treasure in our 2.7 million acres of National Forests.

Until 1962, our maps showed the National Forests in a green tint; then they mysteriously disappeared. For a dozen years I griped about it. The bureaucracy gave conflicting reasons for eliminating them. Nearly all states I have visited and studied show National Forests on their maps. Colorado would be nothing without them. Even Indiana and Illinois show them. Michigan's four National Forests - Ottawa and Hiawatha in the UP. Manistee and Huron in the northern lower - have 80 campgrounds that are, on average, better maintained than State Forest campgrounds. But for 30 years, state government has refused to admit the edstence of National Forests. Our freeway welcome centers at ates non-auto transportation modes. MDOT's new map also shows the route of the car ferry across Lake Michigan from Ludington to Manitowoc. Unlike maps you buy in the gas station, MDOT's map is distributed free. Some two million copies have been printed for $430,000, equal to the salaries of 10 state legislators and a much better deal.

Average cost is 21.5 cents apiece. For the first time, MDOTs map is printed on recycled

I've come across travel books and calendars about Michigan that were printed on other continents. Not the MDOT map. Once again, the printer is Michigan Litho Inc., of Grand Rapids.

Or send a post card with your full address to: MAPS, MDOT, PO Box 30050, Lansing 48909. And ask 'em to show the National Forests next time.

County to buy rookery for park

By LAURIE O'DELL and MIKE MALOTT

Although plans have been in the 148-acre parcel just west of Wixom into a park, Oakland County officials finally completed the land purchase

Novi parks commissioner Phil Koneda heralded the land purchase, but said it will not impact Novi's plans for future parks purchases. The commission recently adopted a resolution supporting the purchase of the land by the county.

Earlier this year. Novi had discussed proposals to buy a park in and Lyon Township. The regional park would have served residents of all three municipalities. The firm's $11,520 fee was the second lowest bid. A lower bid, submit ted by JCK & Associates, the city's consulting engineer, was eliminated at the recommendation of City Attorney David Fried.

The building - which will provide 2,000 square feet of office space will be adjacent to the city's existing Department of Public Works facility on Delwal Drive, just off of Eleven Mile Road. Plans call for a brick facade rather than aluminum siding which is compatible with the standards of Novi's town center.

The structure will also house a climate-controlled radio shack to be used by Novi and possibly Oakland County. This is part of the city's investment in upgrading its emergency communications system.

Nordstrom Samson's $11,520 fee is 4 percent of the estimated construction costs of $288,000. In addition, the firm may submit for proposed reimbursable items of up to $5,500. The company's hourly rate is as high as $34.

Mr. Schwaller was correct in saying the lacrosse equipment had been purchased prior to the school board's approval for implementation. All currently owned equipment has been paid for not by Novi Community Schools but by the families involved in the program. The future funding for lacrosse is still up in the air. Don Sill brought forward to the school board a proposal for funding not only lacrosse but other sports which would help to keep the school budget in line. We believe that the board has ta-

Homeowners seek relief from river

By JAN JEFFRES Staff Writer

Nine Taft Road families inundated with flooding problems are hoping the city's pockets are deep enough to finance $8,000 worth of improvements to the Middle Rouge River.

In the spring, some say the high-water situation is so bad that their sinks back up and their toilets don't work.

The city engineers and the Novi Stormwater Management Financial Review Committee are not recommending the project, which they predict will not bring adequate relief to the residents.

The question is expected to be brought to the city council later this month.

Tom Steffler, a spokesperson for the homeowners there, says the problem is worsened by the waters released upstream by the Walled Lake-Novi Wastewater Treatment Facility on West Road. This effluent is swelled by overflow from Walled Lake and storm and run-off waters entering the river.

In May 1991, the city council asked that permits for a culvert and a dredging of the Middle Rouge River be applied for to the state Department large storm events," he added. The floodwaters are highest from February to May, Steller says, and may rise up to as much as 18 inches. When the water sits in their backyards, it interferes with the septic fields and floods basements. Showers, sinks and tollets back up, Steffler said - and sometimes don't work at all.

"The stormwater management committee's attitude was the homes are on a flood plain and

City engineers told the council last year that the proposed improvements would not cure the flooding but take the situation back to the way things were before development picked up in 1978. A proposed North Novi detention basin is expected to take care of some of the problem, but that project isn't expected to be on line until 1994 or 1995. Steffler says he feels the city should have expanded the water flow capacity downstream from the treatment plant. By releasing water down the existing waterway, no consideration was given to the people down the stream," he said.

"It causes a lot of problems for us. Nothing's been done. Every year they say to be patient, wait. We're looking for short-term relief with the culvert. "It's not the ultimate solution but it's a step in

Local student travels to India in footsteps of missionary ancestor

By JANE F. CLARK Special Writer

Slight and slender, with large expressive eyes, Trudy Williams looks more like a ballerina than a second-year world history student at Taylor University, a small Christian school in Upland, Indiana, one hour north of Indianapolis.

The 19-year-old daughter of Pam and Stan Williams of the Novi area recently returned from a one-month stay in Raj Nandgaon, a city in one of the middle providences of India.

Williams' intent was twofold: She wished to retrace the footsteps of her great-grandparents, Edith Jane and Ross Willobee, who were missionaries there at the turn of the century; and to teach and refine Engish to Hindi-speaking teachers at the Wesleyan Mission School, where all subjects are taught in English since it is the language of international trade.

Through her affiliation with Highland Park Baptist Church in Southfield, Williams was invited to stay with Rebecca Bibbee, a missionary in charge of the school and leprosy hospital.

"In a country one-fifth the size of the U.S. there are 18 major languages with over 800 distinctly different dialects, so it is extremely important to be able to communicate in one language, English, to ensure the progress and future of India. At this point, they even have translators at public meetings," said Williams.

Since 85 percent of the people practice the Hindu religion, it is really extraordinary that anyone converts to another religion. Less than 1 percent of the northern portions and 20 percent in the south are Christian. Additionally, Hinduism is so pervasive that even trucks have a picture of a god or goddess on the roof of the cab and an offering of flowers is often placed before yet another picture on the dashboard.

"Caste is supposedly illegal," said Williams, "but if you are not in the right caste or social strata, you may not be able to get a job or house you want. Furthermore, if you marry someone from a lower caste or convert to another religion you lose your entire family. The loss is felt more keenly than it might be in most cultures because they are very family-oriented. and all members live together in narmony, even the extended lamily, which is incorporated into the household. Indeed, the children take care of their parents until they die, and that is one of the reasons the male child is so important, since he is the provider.

They are very patient, enduring people," said Williams, and they do not complain about their living conditions. They are very poor but incredibly generous, and share whatever they have in little gifts of tea, vegetables, ballpoint pens and spices to chew as breath freshener. Also, they really like Americans and are fascinated by light-skinned Caucasians.

"Currently they are in the cool season. Cool to them is 70 degrees," she said with a laugh. "Everyone is wearing sweaters and scarves. I wonder what they'd think about our Michigan winters and the 11-inch snowfall I missed while I was there.

The heat in summer reaches 120 degrees and no one goes outdoors between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Due to the lack of refrigeration, they don't drink iced tea as we do, only hot."

The food was mainly American, since the cook was raised at the mission. Meals consisted of chicken, vegetables and potatoes. Heat and air conditioning were non-existent. Running water was available only two hours per day, at 4 a.m. and 8 p.m., so buckets would have to be filled for drinking, cooking and bathing. "Showers" were taken by cup and water. Electricity is random and unreliable, so it is necessary to shop daily for food. But although that is a time-consuming chore, it also affords a chance for socializing, as people catch up on news of family and friends. When asked what she missed the most during her travels abroad, Williams replied, "Besides my family and friends? Believe it or not, orange juice. I think I experienced more culture shock when I returned than when I arrived in India. The abundance of goods, services and choices is simply overwhelming."

One of my fondest memories," recalled Williams "was meeting a very old gentleman who had been taken in as an orphan by my great-

All of this leaves a question: Would she like to become a missionary? "I have always been intrigued by missionaries; people who left their families, friends, homes and countries with familiar comforts to live in other cultures and at times, endure unbelievable hardships.

"My great-grandfather was only 39 years old when he died of Blackwater Fever, an illness that mainly affected Caucasians. Since it was the custom in India to cremate, and for the Christians to place the wrapped body directly into the ground, my great-grandmother had the newly installed doors taken down to make a casket for him. And just two days later, the window boards had to be pulled down to make a tiny coffin for her

2-year-old son, leaving her with two daughters, 6 and 8 years of age, to

At this point in time, Williams said she has not yet received the calling, but the option is definitely open.

For now, a slide presentation of her adventure and a 2,500-word paper on the history of women missionaires in India done as an independent study, will keep this soft-spoken, articulate young woman busy in the foreseeable future.

Blood bank volunteer gives victims a chance

Tve given four and a half gallons." It's the other part of her Red Cross blood-bank volunteering that, she said, isn't easy - coordinating the blood bank. And she's been doing that for about 15 years.

Temporary donating sites are designated by Red Cross field representatives to be set up in schools, industrial plants, offices, churches - one day for six hours, each with times convenient for the setting, times which may start at 7 a.m., 9 a.m. or 2 p.m.

Each site must be staffed with volunteers to register donors, to escort them to the nurse's donating area, and afterward to keep a watchful eye on them while serving them orange juice and cookies.

The canteen part, Pyett said, "is like being a waitress, and it can be really tiring because you're on your feet all six hours."

Pyett and two other women provide continual volunteer staffing for sites in the Northville area, sometimes three or four of them in a month. And they do it by having each woman assume responsibility for a four-month period.

She said they have a card file of available volunteers to call to help staff a site, but finding enough volunteers available for a particular time isn't always easy.

She runs into things like "won't get up at 7," would rather do it on a weekend," or "have to get my husband's dinner."

"It's a lot of telephoning and organizing." Anne Pyett admitted, "but it's very worthwhile, and this is something I can do and not on a weekly

G: Any good ideas for family fun over the Independence Day holiday?

A: On July 4 in New York City there's a spectacular display of fireworks over the Hudson River, as well as an excellent five-day lestival called OpSail.

The festival runs July 3 to July 7. It will involve 200 ships arriving in New York Harbor. On July 4 they will sail under the Verrazano Narrows bridge, pass the Statue of Liberty and move through some 40,000 spectator boats on the way to the George Washington Bridge.

At Ellis Island the ships' captains will participate in a ceremony displaying the flags of their countries from 100 years ago. July 5 and July 6 the tall-masted ships will be open the public.

Meanwhile on land, an annual holiday street festival will run in Lower Manhattan on Water Street from Fulton to Battery Park. Finally a ticker-tape parade for 5,000 visiting ships' cadets will move from Battery Park to City Hall.

For further information on the festival call OpSail at (212) 912-1234. Information is also available from your local travel seum of Salvador Dali's works in Florida?

A: St. Petersburg is the home of the Salvador Dali Museum, which houses the world's largest collection of works by the Spanish surrealist.

On display are oils, drawings, watercolors, graphics and sculptures from Dali's early period, starting in 1914, to the '70s. Born in 1904 Dali emigrated to the United States at age 36 and became famous for bizarre, nightmarelike imagery — and his equally bizarre lifestyle and persona. The Dali museum, which is open daily except Monday at 1000 Third St., also catalogs the artist's ventures in films, advertising and ballet stage sets. For further information contact the museum at (813) 823-3767. Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Q: I am a non-smoker with children and am tired of having to breathe cigarette smoke while on vacation. Any tips for me?

A: The Smoke Free Travel Council, an organization that promotes smoke-free travel, has begun publishing a newsletter called Breathe. It is designed to inform the public of destinations that offer a smoke-free environment. That includes transportation facilities, hotels, motels and restaurants. More and more popular vacation spots are realizing that travelers, especially with children, do not want to breathe secondhand smoke. For instance, in response to public demand Walt Disney World has expanded the number of smoke-free buildings at its Polynesian Village Resort. For further information, including subscription orders, contact The Smoke Free Travel Council, 78-365 Highway 111, Suite 361, La Quinta, Calif.

Q: I've heard of something called the "cabbie luggage scam," What is that?

A: It's an unfortunate situation when a tourist, unfamiliar with the city, gets into a taxi to go to a certain hotel. The cabbie drives to a busy street corner, presumably the location of the hotel. The rider pays the fare and exits. A bogus porter, actually in league with the driver, grabs the tourist's hand luggage and runs away. Meanwhile, the cabbie zips off into traffic, never to be seen

Senior fares hiked by airlines

By GENE and ADELE MALOTT New York Times Travel Syndicate

When the recent U.S. airlines' fare wars finally settled down, TWA and America West emerged as the two carriers that are by far the most senior-friendly. Indeed, they are the only companies that did not hike

American Airlines started the brouhaha in April by announcing a new four-tier rate structure that was meant to "simplify" the nation's airfares. In the midst of all the publicity it was generally overlooked that simplifying fares for most consumers meant raising them for mature travelers.

rates on special senior travel coupons to 24 percent.

To stay competitive American had to roll back its plan to increase the price of senior-discount coupons by 36 percent. Other U.S. airlines wouldn't go along. But most airlines did follow American's lead in canceling the 10 percent across-the-board discounts offered in the past to travelers as young as 50. The senior coupon books airlines have offered have allowed travelers age 62 and older to fly between cities on a carrier's domestic route at a superbudget cost. Last year that amounted to less than $200 per round-trip. "The Mature Traveler's" annual 1992 summary of "Airline Deals for 49ers-plus" is based on the new senior rates, deals and programs announced as of June 1. The report documents the licking the airlines gave mature travelers. Here are some highlights: ■ While making 20 percent to 50 percent cuts in regular fares, American Airlines put a new price on its Senior SAAver Coupon books: $984 for a book of eight tickets. That amounted to a 24 percent increase for seniors. Last year travelers paid only $791 for the same coupon book.

■ TWA was the only airline to hold the line against American's move against mature travelers. TWA retained its 10 percent senior-discount program and refused to raise senior-coupon rates. Their prices for a book of four coupons - no book of eight has ever been offered — are still at last year's cost, $436.

For more information write for a copy of the Mature Traveler special report, "Airline Deals for 49ers-plus." It details all senior-discount programs on both domestic and international carriers. Send $4 to The Mature Traveler, P.O. Box 50820, Reno, Nev. 89513-0820.

Tips on safe sun exposure given

Ideally, people automatically would don widebrimmed hats and log-sleeved shirts to protect their skin from damaging ultraviolet radiation that can cause wrinkles - and skin cancer.

Many people are willing to risk skin damage for a bronze glow. But healthy skin doesn't have to be sacrificed for a healthy look, according to dermatologists at the University of Michigan Medical Center. Moderation is the key.

People who strive for a rich, deep tan are really pushing their skin, the dermatologists say. And while dermatologists at the U-M Sun-Damaged Skin Program don't promote tanning, they do offer advice for those who can't resist the sun: If you must tan, don't burn. Sunburn is the higher the SPF, the higher the protection level. Sunscreens are available in three basic formulas: Para-aminobenzoic acid (PABA) or PABA derivatives; non-PABA chemical sunscreens, and thick ointments that physically block the sun, such as zinc oxide. Zinc oxide is most commonly used on small trouble spots, such as the nose. ■ Don't count on sunscreens for full protection. An extremely high SPF doesn't guarantee longterm protection. Home-swapping provides great vacations

By James M. Woodard Copley News Service

It's summertime, when the livin' should be easy and fun.

It's also a time when many people seek a way to enjoy an affordable vacation. But too often the realities of economic life dash hopes of a vacation respite at a faraway point.

Before giving up that dream of a super vacation, consider this possibility: The home you now own and live in could hold the key to a memorable sojourn in a new and exciting locale. And it won't even involve an equity loan.

Instead of paying a high daily or weekly fee at a resort or hotel, simply trade a short-term residence in your home for a like-term of residence in a home in your targeted vacation area. The "your home for mine" concept is simple, but is working with increasing frequency.

For example, Steve and Leslie Bennett of California traded one month of residency in their home for the same time period in a comfortable home in a small town in France. The couples also traded their automobiles during the one-month period. "It worked out very well," Leslie Bennett said. "The French couple even gave us the use of their boat and we cruised to many fascinating fishing towns in the area and had some great experiences.

The trading of homes sparked a long-term friendship with the French couple. They continue to correspond.

Joel and Caren Adelman have enjoyed positive experiences by trading homes. Their trades have involved homes in England and France. In both cases, they traded cars as well as homes.

"We found the foreign couples to be very respectful of our property. and the overall experience was very positive," Joel Adelman said.

Both of these couples arranged their home trades through Intervac. an international home exchange information service based in San Francisco.

The firm does not make arrangements for individual trades, but provides three directories per year, listing information about houses that are currently available for trade. The directories are sent to Intervac members, who join for an annual fee of $45

Other firms provide more personalized service for each homeowner wanting to trade homes, but these services cost up to $500.

"Even though there's no methodical screening of applicants, we've

DREAM HOME: The Chatsworth

hutters on the windows, brick detailing, and turned columns on the porch give a colonial flavor to the rambling, ranch-style Chatsworth. Vaulted ceilings in every room but the kitchen add to the open airy feeling and make this spacious home seem even larger than it really is. And at nearly 2,500 square feet, it's already plenty big. In this plan, family living areas, with the exception of the living room, are all to the left of the entry. Bedrooms are to the right. Two closets line the entry hall. Flames in the see-through fireplace can be enjoyed from either the family room or the large, skylit country kitchen. African violets and other tropical plants thrive in the garden window in front of the kitchen sink. The window offers a rear view, across the deck as well.

French doors in the nook open onto the covered front porch, and a built-in desk provides space for keeping household business organized. One really unique feature is the fold-down ironing board, in the kitchen instead of the utility room. Another is a roll-out pantry that allows cooks to take a set of shelves to wherever the items are needed.

The utility room is nearby, and includes a counter for folding clothes. Both the utility and a small bathroom are also convenient to the two-car garage. The garage includes space for a recycling center, storage and a workbench.

The sumptuous owners' suite is at the far end of the house. Luxury features here include a huge walk-in closet, and, in the skylit bathroom, twin vanities, an oversized opaque glass shower and an extra-large spa tub with a planter window. A door in the bathroom opens onto a rear deck. This access becomes even more important if there's a backyard

The other three rooms share another skylit bathroom. If all three rooms aren't needed for bedrooms or for accommodating guests, one or more can be used as a study, home office, hobby room, art studio, media room, or you-name-it. If a basement is not included, either the living room or foyer can be expanded.

Thriving herbs

By C.Z. Guest Copley News Service

Growing herbs is a cinch as they'll even thrive in poor soils with ample watering. However, for the best crops, the secret is when to harvest. Most herbs can survive on poor, stony ground, but few can handle waterlogged soil. Ideally, they do best in light, open soil that is well aerated yet able to retain nutrients and moisture. To help your plants thrive. prepare the soil in early spring by eliminating weeds, improving drainage, enriching the soil and covering it with an organic matter, like mud. Potted grown plants can be planted almost immediately in prepared soil.

Fresh leaves can- be harvested for immediate use at any time during the growing season while evergreen herbs, such as thyme, can be picked throughout the year, although new growth should be given the chance to harden before winter sets in.

Collect leaves in the morning after the dew has evaporated. Leaves are most sweet and tender when the plant is young up to flowering time. Be gentle with the leaves, taking care not to bruise or crush them. Pick only healthy ones without yellowing. blemishes or insect damage.

The best time to harvest a herb plant is just before the flowers open. If you want the green parts only, cut back annuals 3 inches above the ground, but take no more than a third from perennials.

Flowers are best collected at midday in dry weather. Pick them just as they open fully. Treat all flowers with great care, avoid wilted or damaged ones, particularly if you wish to crystallize them. Once picked, keep your flowers loose in open containers; keep in mind they bruise easily.

Q. I want to make my own brooms. Is broomcorn difficult to grow?

A. No, broomcorn is as easy to grow as sweet corn. In the spring, after the soil has warmed up, plant the seed on hills 12 inches apart, or 4 to 5 inches apart in rows. Cut the heads about three months later, when they begin to fill out but the seeds and sweeps are still green.

Fully mature broomcorn will have red heads, which makes an attractive broom but, unfortunately, the fibers the kind of experience that shows he knows how to run a business?

Triple A Student Painters is the answer.

It's not so unusual to find students painting houses to earn money for school, but usually that means working for someone else for low wages. If ise may be called on to paint a home, a student tries going into business for himself, he runs into the problem of obtaining insurance, bonding and Triple A Student Painters, a national franchising organization, takes care of all that. The manager of the Northville-Novi area franchise is Chris King.

"People have come to know Student Painters as a reliable, inexpensive, professional paint contractor," said King. "Every year we complete commercial and private home lobs ranging from $100 to $100,000. But we didn't grow to be this big on our rate, professional job all at student reputation alone."

With the backing of a national organization, Triple A Student Painters can offer liability coverage up to $1,000,000 per claim. All painters are covered by workers compensation as well.

Student Painters was founded in 1980, and from the very beginning Where can a college student earn the company realized the benefits of training. Managers attend training seminars to learn not only the techniques and requirements of painting. but how to hire and motivate workers

King said he is well-versed in meeting occupant notification rules for condominiums. progress reports for property managers and interval schedules for institutions.

It's not unusual for Triple A Student Painters to land institutional jobs because the work can be bid at a lower rate. But quality isn't sacrificed according to King.

"Student Painters is very affordable because you are receiving a firstprices," he said. "More recently we have adopted the slogan 'SOQNOP,' which stands for Sell on quality, not on price."

So committed is the company to a quality job that the national organization backs every job with a twoyear written guarantee. If the paint fails within two years, due to flawed material or workmanship, Student Painters will repair the failed area at no cost to the customer.

And despite the low cost, students do earn pretty good money for college. Most earn around $3,000 to $4,000 for a summer's worth of work. That, according to King, makes customers feel good about hiring Triple A Student Painters.

"Our customers find great satisfaction in the service we provide and in knowing that they've assisted a young profession in continuing their education."
