Dr. Kevorkian helps Novi man put end to life

By SHARON CONDRON and JAN JEFFRES

The last minutes in the life of a 30-year-old Novi man were spent in a Volkswagon van parked on Belle Isle, where he committed suicide Wednesday in the presence of Dr. Jack Kevorkian.

Thomas Hyde, a resident of the was some type of de-Springs Apartments on Pontiac Trail, was suffering from Lou Gehrigs disease, a typically fatal de-generative disease of the nerve cells which control muscle movement.

Donna Wurth, assistant to Kevorkian's Southfield-based attorney Geoffrey Fleger, said that Kevorkian was at Hyde's side when he

"I don't know if he assisted him." she added. Hyde was the 17th person to successfully commit suicide in the doctor's presence. Assisted suicide has been ternporarily illegal in Michigan since a new law went into effect in February. Lou Gehrig's Disease typically leads to a wasting away of the muscles which control movement, including breathing and swallowing. while the victim retains awareness and intellect. Detroit Police Sergeant Christopher Buck confirmed that the Harbormaster's police found an unidentified body in a van parked on Riverview Street on Belle Isle Wednesday at 9:50 a.m. Buck said the cause of death is listed as unknown and the case remains under investigation.

body after a citizen called and tipped them off to its location. The sergeant wouldn't release the name

Buck would not confirm that Kevorkian was involved in the early morning suicide. "We do know there was a suicide, but we don't know that it was assisted," Buck said. Asked whether or not he knew if Kevorkian was involved, Buck said: We don't deal with speculations or allegations. We deal only in the facts, ma'am."

Wayne County Prosecuting At-torney John O'Hair said police investigators phoned his office around 10:15 a.m. Wednesday moming to tell him about the suicide. O'Hair said a police officer told him that they had a suicide they suspected Kevorkian was involved in.

O'Hair said the doctor owned the van Hyde's body was found in and they believe Kevorkian was driving the vehicle at the time of Hyde's

"Kevorkian was driving the van at the time, but the body had already expired," O'Hair said.

O'Hair said without the results of the autopsy prosecutors can't pinpoint Hyde's exact time of death, but the prosecutor did say he believes Hyde died on Belle Isle in the back of the van that was driven by Kevorkian

The prosecuting attorney said the cause of Hyde's death has yet to be confirmed but investigators on the case believe Hyde died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

"We won't know for certain what the cause of death is without the results of the autopsy, but we believe there was some type of device used that permitted the inhalation of carbon monoxide," O'Hair said.

The prosecutor said it could take two to three days to get the results of an autopsy back that would Police say they discovered the prove carbon monoxide poisoning.

Lee Headrick, an investigator for the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office, said the office would not research the incident until the police investigation is completed.

"If there were any felonies involved, we might get involved," Headrick added.

The penalty for assisted suicide, a feloney, is up to four years in prison and a fine of $2,000. The ban on assisted suicide, effective until January 1995, is being studied by the Michigan Commission on Death and Dying, which will report back to the state legislature.

The state suicide law was ruled as unconstitutional by a Wayne County Circuit Court judge after it was challenged by the American Civil Liberties Union. The law was reinstated by the Michigan Court of Appeals in June pending its final decision in the case.

The last time Kevorkian, sometimes called "Dr. Death," was present at a suicide was in May, when Detroit real estate broker Ronald Mansur took his own life.

City monitors low water pressure

By JAN JEFFRES

Monday, the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department delivered a pressure recorder to Novi to monitor how water is flowing through city lines. The end of a rather dry spell in July eased some worries about this summer's water pressure woes.

"We just had some hard rain last week. If we could just get rain every seven to 16 days, we'll probably survive. If we had a period of extreme drought and increasing high temperatures, it would cause some concern," Novi Superintendent of Public Works Bruce Jerome said.

The demand on the Detroit water system is going to be up and we're going to suffer." A few days in May, late June and early July the residents of the impacted areas experienced "extremely low pressures," Jerome said. Dry weather means users of the Detroit water system are doing heavy-duty lawn sprinkling. Typically, high elevation areas in the city have experienced low water pressures, particularly in parts of Simmons Orchards and Yorkshire Place. side-by-side subdivisions north of Ten Mile Road and west of Taft Road. Sarah Flynn Drive. Davenport Avenue and Freemont Drive are the streets experiencing the most water flow

Residents in the new Greenwood Oaks subdivision at Ten Mile and Beck roads are now also having water problems.

The developers of Greenwood Oaks had already applied for water permits before June 1990, when the Michigan Department of Public Health placed a moratorium on new water lines

Schools claim immunity in rape

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of articles dealing with two lawsuits filed against the Novi Community School District. ■ That the district and its employees are immune from civil liability in the case.

The suits say that the district was grossly negligent because it did not have a policy concerning school volunteers, one that required checks of their qualifications and background. If officials had made such a policy, and had checked Pelfrey, the suits continue, it's unlikely they would have let Pelfrey become a coach. Novi police dept. going to the dogs

Officer Mugsy and Officer Smokey joined the Novi police force last

Hey, don't laugh at their names. These are two tough, trained cops. Real animals.

Deal closed on land to rebuild wetlands

By JAN JEFFRES

Novi is exercising an option to purchase 59 acres of land on West Road to replace wetlands which will be lost to the 1990 road building

The city will hire a contractor to build the new wetlands to state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) standards, City Manager Edward Kriewall said. The work will likely be done in 1994, he added.

The land is on the east side of West Road and south of South Lake Drive.

The city council and the Dallasbased property owners, West Road Associates, agreed to a $650,000 purchase option for the site in April. The city council decided last week to go ahead with the deal. The option was not set to expire until Plans call for the building of 5.1 acres of wetlands to replace those lost to Taft Road improvements, as well as 3.2 acres of wetlands to mitigate losses created by the upgrade of Decker Road and the Twelve Mile Road expansion.

The DNR requires 1.5 acres of wetlands to be built for each acre of wetfectively nullify the effect of last week's

The state Legislature recently did no less than eliminate the property tax as the means of funding Michigan's public schools. The bill passed by large majorities in both houses and is expected to be signed soon by Gov. John

Despite the mind boggling implications of the action, lawmakers made absolutely no provision for making up the $6.3 billion that will be lost to school treasuries across the state. When asked how they thought schools could manage without an essential funding source, all they basically said was, "We'll find remust scramble for ways to compensate placement revenue later, before the tax cut takes effect."

Risk taking can be constructive at times, but we find this irrational move akin to going skydiving without a parachute and offering the reassuring words: "We'll worry about safety later, once ground zero comes into view."

The measure pssed by the Legislature was brash and unexpected (one columnist called it "craven"), and political years to reform the state's punitive proppundits have gone into a dizzying whirl of erty tax system, but nothing has been second-guess ruminating in an attempt accepted by the electorate. To break the to learn the real motive behind the frustrating impasse, elected leaders have apparently decided to force the issue by creating a crisis they have no

A host of theories have been advanced, one of the most plausible of which is that the measure was sponsored by Democrats in an attempt to call the bluff of Republicans. The ruse backfired when Republicans took the idea course of action? What if lawmakers are seriously, and by then the Democrats

This theory is given credence by the fact that Democrat Sen. Debbie Stabenow of Lansing, the early frontrunner for her party's gubernatorial nomination, was a driving force behind the legislation. Not about to be one-upped by his potential opponent on a tax-cut issue, the governor eagerly joined the game and pressed hard for passage.

We don't claim to know just what lawmakers were thinking in taking such a draconian step, but we have no problem joining educators across Michign in expressing complete incredulity at what has happened.

The defeated Proposal A, with all its flaws, was an infinitely more responsible proposal than this latest reform measure in that it contained provisions to recoup the monies school districts would have lost from the reduction in property taxes. Under A, public school districts would have received preplacement revenues through a 50 percent increase in the state sales tax.

By doing away with the property tax able reform plan?

Don't be convinced of blame non often referred to as "blaming the victim. That's what they call it when the perpetrator of some crime, or even just a cruelty, points to the victim and tries to argue that "something you did made me do this to you." Blaming the victim occurs so frequently that it has been the subject of numerous psychological and sociological studies. I formation about the phenome-

There is also a phenomenon I refer to as "blaming everybody else." That seems to happen with at least equal frequency. I think it is at least worth as much study by the experts. In the newspaper business, I hear it very often and I blame. So much do I hear it that I'm beginning to question the moral fiber of our society as a whole.

Take for instance Keith Sousa, who earlier this year was caught red-handed burglarizing a home in Plymouth all the way to Novi Road north of Twelve Mile. You've heard of the phenome- cials did nothing to protect her from a part-time swimming coach after she was sexually molested. Later, a second incident involved rape.

Now, the coach too has been convicted of the crime but the question before the courts is the lack of action by other school district employees. It is pretty reasonable for students and their parents to assume that the school district will do everything it can to protect students when they are in the school building. And the Carlescos are in essence alleging that in not protecting Vickt, they betrayed their

The school district attorneys are arguing back that they remember reading reams of in- weren't responsibile because she was a "willing participant.

I see this as pretty classic "blaming the victim." For one, there is no evidence she was "willing" to do anything. For another, the conviction of the coach on CSC charges means it's already been proven she was not a willing participant. Finally, at age 15 at the time, she legally could not have consented to anything.

The law says minors can't give consent, and that it is up to adults to know that. It's one thing when a sex offender hear it from people who agree that the victim really was to ignores that, it's another when school district officials ignore that and still try to blame the victim.

Three for three, a perfect score. And that's not even counting the defeated Proposal A, which we panned a few days prior to the June 2 statewide balloting. Are we on a roll or what?

But, before I get even more disgusting about how influential the paper has been under my direction, I should admit that there are two ways of interpreting this. One is that people read the paper scrupulously and meditate upon the unshakable truth of its pronouncements that's my personal favorite.

The other is that the paper's official positions tend to reflect the thinking of the majority of voters in the community. That one's not bad, but I like the other explanation

Well, it was a victory, and hear, but we're also capable of making up our own minds. Is it humanly possible to empathize with the guy who killed a police officer down in Texas and claims he was driven to commit the crime by rap music?

I endorse the movie rating system, music warning labels and the newly-instituted television advisory system, but I have a hard time faulting creative individuals who accurately read the public disposition and cater to it. So, after straying far afield with this one, it's time to come back to the original point. Do I take our responsibility to make informed endorsements seriously? Yes. Do the endorsements have an appreciable impact on the outcome of elections? It's doubtful.

calling it, isn't a single group or church. It's a movement. According to a public TV documentary, it dates back to the 1790s. It holds that what we know as the Bible is literally true, even in its primitive notions of astronomy, chemistry and geology. The approach is called "fundamentalist." The religious right took a terrible public relations beating in 1925 with the Tennessee trial of John Scopes for teaching evolution. According to its chroniclers, it retreated to an American subculture and was little heard from until the public schools on an equal footing with standard science. There was a flap over this in the be enough to shake the R.R. out of badmouthing Michigan Legislature in the early 1980s. When a group seeks to have its religious view passed off as science, then mainstream Americans need to be alerted. Second, it advocates a voucher system for fl-nancing schools. They want tax money to teach their brand of religion and, presumably, their brand of "science." Currently the Michigan Constitution, with 80 percent voter support, prohibits a voucher system.

Third, it attacks all state school curriculum legislation (except sexual abstinence), all state regulation of private schooling and the existence of the State Board of Education.

We Michiganians are proud of the fact that ours was the first state in the union to guarantee free public education as a constitutional right. We established a superintendent of public instruction in 1837 and a State Board of Education in 1909 to lead and supervise education. The Michigan Constitution contains broad protections for religion. That constitution and those institutions are under vehement political attack by one narrow group.

Fourth, the religious right is exploiting children and setting up principals in Michigan and across the nation to do what it failed to do politically - reintroduce its brand of prayer and Bible reading in public schools. Recall the Bloomingdale court fight over the portrait of Jesus. Note the efforts at graduation time to prompt kids to insert prayers into ceremonies.

There is no "live and let live" with the religious right. As we've seen from its savage attack on the Michigan Model, its tactic is to assert that a satanic "New Age" religion is being taught in the public schools and needs to be displaced. This is not a humble sect wishing to be left alone to worship peacefully in its own way. The religious right seeks governmental power: control of the science curriculum, use of tax money for its religious agenda and the scrapping of Michigan's historic commitment to public education.

That's just for starters.

N'ville schools to delay decision on budget cuts

By MICHELLE HARRISON Staff Writer

Maybe the final budget priorities for the 1993-94 school year will be approved at the Aug. 23 Northville Board of Education meeting. Then again, maybe not.

Although the board had anticipated making final decisions on its budget priorities, that won't happen at the Aug. 9 meeting.
"We really want to be in the position (where we can say) here are our recommendations, here is the financial picture we have," Supt. Leonard Rezmierski said. "I'd like to marry the priorities with the funding."

But until the state Legislature announces the provisions in the state School Aid Act, no such wedding will take place. That could be as soon as this month or as late as October.

Northville receives money from the state for categorical programs, services such as transportation, special education, food services and the gifted program.

Since the district is considered out-of-formula and receives 96 percent of its revenue from local tax collections, the district is not eligible for major funding from the state, unlike in-formula school districts.

Last year Northville received about $32.000 of its $23,941,747 budget from state sources. This year, anticipating it will have to pay added Social Security and retirement costs, the district set aside $465,000 in its preliminary $25,115,709 budget.

Rezmierski said he will announce date for a board study session at

Members will discuss budget priorities at that study session.

At that meeting, members also will read the letters that were sent to the district and review the public comments made at the July 8 public hearing and the telephone calls received before the July 12 board meeting, Rezmierski sald.

At the July 8 public hearing, about 20 people addressed the board. The pay-to-participate co-curricular and athletic program and Student Assis-

Monday evening's board meeting, tance were most mentioned by the audience as priority programs.

> The board held the hearing to garner public input on prioritizing the $1,367,131 in programs that were cut or reduced following the defeat of the 1992 millage election.

> Based on a 3-percent assessment cap, the board figured it would have over $430,000 in its general fund budget to work with. However, with the provisions of the School Aid Act still unknown, that figure is a question mark for school officials.

An even larger question is what the district will do in 1994-95 when it loses its local property tax revenue. Gov. John Engler is expected to sign a bill when the Legislature reconvenes this month which slashes property taxes by two-thirds. Both the Senate and House have approved the measure.

In May, the board approved two priorities, the recall of 16.7 teachers as well as additional teaching staff. and a portion of the strategic plan dealing with quality management.

New bakery set up shop in downtown Northville

By STEVE KELLMAN Staff Writer

It's been called the staff of life. But for Ray and Lorie Novelly, bread represents the beginning of a whole new livelihood in downtown Northville.

The former advertising executive and dental hygienist have decided to exchange the corporate grind for ground wheat, as owners of the new Great Harvest Bread Co. franchise at 139 E. Main.

Michigan natives, each 34 years old, the Novellys have spent the past decade moving from one job to another — from Detroit to Denver, New York City, Washington D.C., back to New York City and finally to

"We just got tired of the corporate lifestyle," Ray said. "We realized after 12 years that there was more to life than moving from position to position. "We lost the sense of community." They hope to rediscover that lost sense in Northville, by teaming with a bread company that prides itself on baking the finest and freshest product in the world. Great Harvest is a Montana-based firm which has risen to prominence by selling whole wheat bread made from grain harvested on the great plains of Montana, grain praised for its high protein level and low moisture. The flour for each day's bread is ground that day at each store from whole wheat berries, to assure that it is as fresh as possible. "From the moment it's ground, it starts losing its freshness," Ray

Ray first stumbled across Great Harvest at a store in Milwaukee, and was instantly "hooked," he said. The scents of baking bread brought back memories of neighborhood bakeries that he frequented while growing up in Detroit.

Lorie hopes their store will reflect elements of those old-fashioned bakeries. "It's the closest thing you can have to your own mom-and-pop business, but I think it's even better because you're with a bunch of people who have the same interests, she said. "It's like an extended family."

The Novelly's store will be the 60th location for Great Harvest, and the fourth in Michigan. While that seems like a lot, Ray noted that the company only grants five to eight franchises a year out of the 3,000 applications it receives.

Potential franchisees go through a rigorous screening process and are encouraged to take a hands-on approach to the business.

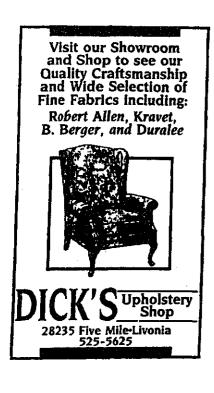

They really want a team that will work on the premises and be there daily," Ray said.

"Nobody cares about your business like you do," Lorie added. The Novellys spent months searching metropolitan Detroit for the best location for their franchise, conducting marketing and demographic studies before settling on Northville for one simple reason. "It had the strongest sense of family," Lorie said.

The couple plans to turn their Main Street store into an ongoing demonstration of the bread-making art, with rails instead of walls between the customers and ovens and a clear view of the five-by-twelve-foot kneading table.

SPORTING CHANCE

By MICHELLE HARRISON

Jeremy Lane has the potential to win at the 1996 Paralympic Games in Atlanta, Ga.

His mom and dad think so. The United States Cerebal Palsy Athletic Association (USCPAA) thinks so. But most importantly, Jeremy Lane thinks so.

"I want to win," the 16-year-old said. "I do better if there's someone faster than me."

When he's running and he knows someone's close to him, he seems to get that extra burst of energy," Jeremy's mother Darlene explained.

Jeremy is back in his Novi home following a week-long trip to Ball State University in Muncie, Ind. There, he trained with other USCPAA members in anticipation of the Paralympics, a competition styled after the Olympics for athletes who are physically disabled. He was the only athlete from Michigan selected to attend.

The training trip was not without injury, though.

"We were warming up by jogging 10 minutes," Jeremy explained. "Eight minutes into it and the ball of my foot started hurting. I stuck out the two minutes and I got a big blister on my foot."

Jeremy did learn some important techniques in preparation for the Paralympics, like the claw drill, where runners are trained to run on the ball of their foot instead of the heal.

Jeremy participated in the Cerebral Palsy Association's National Olympic Track and Field event in Hartford, Conn.

He won two gold medals - one each in the 100-meter dash and the javelin competitions - and a silver medal in the long jump event. He was also given a try-out in soccer and subsequently was asked to attend week-long soccer camps to establish a national USCPAA team for the Paralypmics.

Jeremy was born with cerebral palsy. His father Ken said, in essence, Jeremy had a pre-natal stroke which paralyzed his entire right side when he was born.

In the sports category, Jeremy is considered a CP7. A CP8 is someone with a very slight physical disability while a CP1 is someone confined to a wheelchair.

When he was in second grade, Jeremy joined the Tri City Seals, a physically disabled sports team based in Westland. He stopped temporarily in 1986 to play soccer and little league baseball and rejoined the team in 1988.

Jeremy competes or has competed in soccer, track and field, air riflery, swimming and softball events. Besides the Paralympics, the Northville High School student trains for USCPAA Michigan games once a year, the USCPAA national games held every two years and the Windsor Classic In-

"The Windsor games are interesting to go see because there are so many different (physically disabled competitors)," Darlene said. "When you see someone blind doing the running long jump or running track, it gives you goose bumps.*

Jeremy said blind long jump runners usually rely on a coach who yells "run" until it's time for the athlete to jump, or get their cues by counting steps. That's why sometimes on the loudspeaker they'll all ask for complete silence (when a blind runner is competing)," Darlene

During the fall, winter and spring months, Jeremy trains with the Tri-City Seals for two hours every Saturday morning. He also practices his shooting in the basement of his family's home. The 33-foot basement has a pellet trap, Ken explained. During the winter, Jeremy also practices his shooting skills at the Multi Lakes Conservation Club.

Jeremy will be a junior this year at Northville High School. He plans to pursue a musical career following graduation, hoping to play drums in a rock 'n' roll band. Since he can't use his right hand, he would like to follow in the foot steps of the drummer for the rock group Def Leppard, who lost one of his hands in an accident.

"I've always wanted to play . . . but I knew I couldn't until I saw him play the drums," Jeremy said.

Northville athlete Jeremy Lane just missed qualifying for the Paralympics in the air riflery competition, according to Masi.

"He has a great possibility for competing in '96 in Atlanta," Masi said. "There's a good chance he'll make the cerebral palsy soccer

St. Clair's a good sport

By DOROTHY NASH Special Writer

Can you plan a good summer vacation for yourself and still be a coach in Novi Parks and Recreation?

The answer is yes, according to DyAnn St. Clair, who is coach for a junior girls softball team, of which her daughter is a member. The team has 15 girls, ages 11 through 13. In addition, she is coach for her son's Tball team for boys in ages 5 through

The summer athletic season is from mid-June to the first week in August — after which time she and her husband and their children, packed well ahead of time, take off in a rush for a vacation.

How did St.Clair get herself into coaching? She said that as a basketball and softball player in high school, she had the interest. But it wasn't until she watched a friend coach softball a few years ago that it occurred to her, "I could do that, too."

So for three years now she has coached junior girls softball, along the office at 347-0400.

with two men who also have daughters on the team. Sometimes one or both of the men can't make it, she said, but it works out.

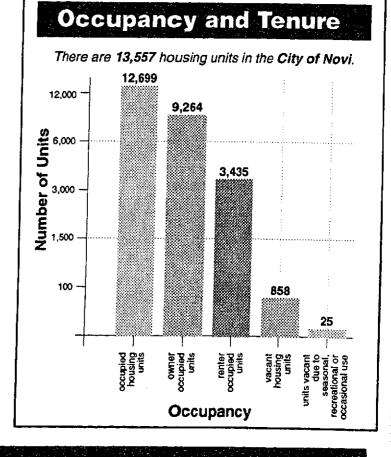

"Games are held on Monday and Wednesday evenings mostly at the schools," and they last from an hour and fifteen minutes to an hour and a half. "We arrive a half hour early to practice."

"Our team is one of the best," Coach St. Clair said, "and the kids" families come out to watch — 25 to 50 at a game," but, "I get so involved, I have little chance to look to see who's DyAnn St. Clair got into this because it's a favorite sport of hers, but, she said, she soon developed another reason. She's learned that "girls in ages 11 through 13 need to have their self-esteem built up. They need reassurance, and I hope I am making a difference."

Hey, Broadway might have its Tony awards, but they're nothing ompared to the Oskars.

"Each team member must do his own fund-raising," Darlene said.

Schiffman and her lead puppet, Coco the kazoo-playing monkey, will be featured in the Novi Arts Council's Showcase Series on Aug. 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Novi Civic Center Atrium. The series, which is free, is timed to show off the talents of local residents prior to Novi City Council meetings. A schoolteacher by profession, Schiffman shifted over to performing in the 1980, drawing on her lifelong background in music, song and dance. Her schedule this summer is packed with over 60 appearances, most of them at children's programs in Michigan libraries.

Schiffman now has a video out, A Warm Summer's Eve With Maureen and Coco which is sold and rented by Novi Video. She's also got a cassette, Sing A Little Hoppy Song, available at The Learning Tree store.

REAL ESTATE

Essay winner will get a luxury home in California

By James M. Woodard Copley News Service

Some creative home marketing techniques are surfacing in areas where sales are generally sluggish.

A prime example is a luxury home in the Cheviot Hills district of Los Angeles, near Beverly Hills. The home, with an estimated value of $800,000, is being marketed via an essay contest.

Entrants may submit an essay (up to 250 words), along with an entry fee of $100 and processing fee of $15.

The essays must address the guestion: Why do you want to win this home? When at least 6,750 entries are received, the contest becomes official. The sponsors want to see at least $776,250 before they commit to the deal.

A maximum of 8,500 essays will be accepted. That would generate a handsome $977,500 for the sponsors, with a sizable chunk invested in promotion.

The essay contest method of marketing the house is being promoted internationally, according to Katy Meador, a real estate broker and owner of Creative Property Marketing in San Francisco, producer of the project. It's already been featured on NBC-TV's Today Show, the CBS Evening News and other national media, Meador said.

Display ads are being carried in many magazines and newspapers, and 27,000 brochures have been printed and mailed.

Economy of space and money is highlight of Monarch

Bv James McAlexander Copley News Service

Compact enough to fit on a standard city lot, the Monarch is also economical to build and maintain. At the same time, the plan includes many of the features modern homeowners want.

The kitchen has a work island and pantry, for instance. The master suite is vaulted and has a private bathroom, and the garage has a space for a workbench and freez-

A covered porch, complete with wood dowels, posts and railings, sends a welcoming message to visitors. Planter boxes in front of the garage and an old-fashioned weather vane on the roof add to the visual interest.

Placement of the main bathroom, just inside the front door, allows children to dash in from playing without tracking up the rest of the house. Water closet and tub are separately enclosed and two basins are in the outer section. This enables three people to use the bathroom at once—a handy feature during the morning rush when everyone is getting ready to leave at ramily living takes place in the great room, a richly windowed space at the back of the home. The great room could be vaulted. A fireplace with a tile hearth faces into the family room.

The L-shaped kitchen is open to the dining room and a small utility room is tucked into an alcove that joins the kitchen to the garage. The room is brightened by a window with a shelf, handy for folding clothes or sewing.

Building a skylight into the covered porch in front of this window would bring in even more light. This plan is well-suited to the needs of young couples or singles shopping for their first home. But it also works well as a home for older adults who no longer need the space they did when they were raising children.

And since the interior is all on one level, the plan could easily be adapted for wheelchair accessibili-

The Monarch is also exceptionally private. Only the master suite has a window that faces the street. And since it's designed for construction over a full basement, space for storage and additional

GARDENING

Summer means gardeners are out there gardening. And that means there's no end of questions. Here are some answers from the Extension specialists at Michigan State University.

flowers in the evening? If I didn't look close, I'd almost think it was a hummingbird. It hovers in front of the flowers like a hummingbird. Is it sipping nectar? It sounds as if you've seen A. the hawk or hummingbird moth, which is also called sphinx moth. Their larvae are the plump green caterpillars known as hornworms. The tomato hornworm is probably the most familiar to backyard gardeners. These voracious worms consume tomato plant foliage in midsummer. In the adult stage, these caterpillars are the graceful hawk moths that you've observed slurping nectar from your garden

What's the walking stick insect look like? I don't think I've ever seen one.

Maybe you've A. never seen one because nature has done such a good job of camouflaging this insect. Unless it's moving, it does indeed look like just another twig. Walking sticks feed on trees and shrubs. Rarely, they are present in such large numbers that they consume all the foliage. The largest insect in the United States is a walking stick native to the South and Southwest that may reach 7 inches in length. Some tropical walking sticks can attain a length of about a foot. Those you see in Michigan are more likely to be in the 3- to 4-inch range.

What are those powdery white spots I see on melon vines and Illac bushes in late summer?

Those spots are signs A. of powdery mildew, a fungus that grows on many plants during warm, humid weather. The first powdery white spots may enlarge and merge to cover whole leaves. Severe intections can kill leaves, leaf petioles and young stems. Raking and destroying fallen leaves and debris in the fall may help reduce powdery mildew problems by reducing the quantity of overwintering fungus. Planting susceptible plants in a sunny area with good air circulation will allow leaves to dry quickly after rain or dewfall (moisture on the leaves is necessary for the fungus to get established). Avoid irrigation that wets the foliage late in the day or at night. In most cases, treatment with fungicides is not nec-

What's the difference between a millipede and a centipede? • They're both just creepy as far as I'm concerned. A. Millipedes ("thousand-legged worms") have tubular bodies with many segments and two pairs of legs on most segments. The legs appear to ripple in waves as they move. Millipedes. often curl up when disturbed. They range in length from less than 1 inch to more than 4 inches. They are usually dark colored. They feed on decaying plant debris. Centipedes ("hundred-legged worms") are also segmented, but they are flattened rather than tubular, and each body segment has one pair of legs. The centipede has a pair of poisonous jaws. which it uses to kill insects and other creatures. It will also bite to

How do I multiply my mum plants? I'm told early summer is the best time. Multiply mums by dividing plants. If you don't already have A. mums growing in your garden, you can start with hardy mums in pots. In either case, remove the plant clumps from the soil when new growth is about 4 inches high and after the danger of frost is past. Remove shoots from the outside of the clumps, making sure that each shoot has a good portion of roots. Set the divisions in a worked-up bed with the growing tip of each division just above the ground level. Plants started from divisions of established plants should flower this fall.

What are those funny bumps on my maple trees' leaves? Should I do something about them? "Funny bumps" on oak, ash and maple leaves, and swollen A. stems on goldenrod plants are just two examples of plant galls, abnormal-growths of plant tissues caused by insect activity. Leaf galls occur on a wide range of forest and landscape trees. They range in size from pinhead to golf ball size and occur in a wide variety of shapes and colors. Though galls affect the appearance of the plant, they generally don't harm its overall health or vigor, so there's no reason to try to prevent their occurring. Even if they were damaging, spraying after the galls appear would do no good — the galls are, after all, part of the plant, and no insecticide would remove them.

> What care do my strawberry plants need after I harvest

Fertilizing and weed control ★ are important after-harvest chores. Fertilizing before harvest results in soft berries and reduced yields. Fertilizing after harvest promotes growth to support next year's fruit production. Hoeing 2 to 3 inches deep around plants controls weeds and reduces competition for water, nutrients and sunlight. Keeping the soil loose also allows runner plants to root quickly. Water whenever natural rainfall doesn't supply 1 inch of water per week (2 inches on light, sandy soils). Wet the soil to a depth of 6 to 8 inches.

> What does the term "companion planting"

It refers to the practice A. of interplanting two or more crops. Reasons for doing it range from saving space by planting a quick-to-mature crop such as radishes between and around carrots, broccoli plants or hills of squash, for instance — to controlling insects to improving performance by certain crops by growing them near certain others. Research to test these last two claims has not had much success.

What causes big shifts in insect numbers? One year I couldn't find a cutworm in my garden if my life depended on it. The next year, I had to replant my peppers three times because cutworms kept nipping them off. It's the same garden - why the difference in cutworms?

It's hard to pinpoint A any one cause of an insect outbreak. Weather, the activity of predators or the lack of them - and disease outbreaks among pests or their predators can be factors. It doesn't take much of a change in the survival rate of eggs or larvae to cause a huge increase in the pest population. For instance, two moths mate and the female lays about 500 eggs. Only one male and one female need to survive out of those 500 to maintain the population. That is, 99.6 percent of the eggs and young can fail to survive without reducing the population. Decrease the mortality rate to 95 percent —that is, 5 percent of eggs and larvae survive and you multiply the total population by 12.5. With insects that have only one generation per year, it may take several years for an outbreak to develop. Insects such as aphids, which have multiple generations each growing season, can increase much more rapidly, reaching outbreak levels in weeks rather than years.

I use old hay and straw for garden mulch, tilling it in after the growing season (or in the spring before planting) to add organic material and nutrients to the soil. Do I still have to add fertilizer to the soil?

Probably. Even if your mulch materials were high in plant A nutrients (they aren't), it takes a while for these materials to break down to the point that the nutrients they contain are available to plants. In the meantime, the soil bacteria that do most of the work of decomposition may have most of the available nitrogen in the soil tied up, resulting in a nitrogen deficiency. Plants will grow poorly. Using a complete fertilizer before planting at the rate of 25 pounds per 1,000 square feet and boosting seedlings and transplants with nitrogen 3 to 4 weeks after planting should provide the nutrients they need for good growth.

When and how do I plant peonies?

Late summer is the best time. Planting in mid- to late August A gives plants time to get well established before winter. Plant peony tubers in well drained soil and full sun. Space them at least 3 feet apart. Place tubers in prepared soil so the uppermost "eye" --bud — is no more than 2 inches below the soil surface. Water and mulch with 1 to 2 inches of organic material (straw, ground corncobs, compost, etc.). Plants grown from tubers with fewer than three eyes may take three to five years to produce more than a few small flowers. Tubers with three to five eyes may flower well the second year after planting. The most common causes of failure to flower in peonies are planting too deep, insufficient sunlight and poor soil drainage (rotten tubers). Once peonies are established, they tend to be quite hardy and perform reliably for many years without dividing.

Chocolate shop satisfies Milford's cravings

By MIKE McGLINNEN Staff Writer

Milford's numerous chocolate fanatics will no longer need to travel to distant communities to satisfy their cravings, as the Main Street Chocolate Shoppe opened recently Just in time for the village's Sidewalk Sales.

Shop owner Cindy Jakey (also the owner of Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate) came up with the idea one day after observing the love of chocolate in her office.

"My husband was in here and he overheard everyone talking about chocolate. He asked me, 'Are people really that addicted to chocolate?" And they are," Jakey said.

Thanks to everyone's addiction, we have a built-in customer base." - Jakey said with a laugh.

Once Jakey had the idea for the store, she needed to find a company to provide the chocolate for the business. Since Jakey has no experience with running a retail business, this involved some research on her part. Jakey selected Truan's candies of Detroit as the main supplier for the "They were really helpful, the most helpful of anyone we contacted. Mark Truan helped us a lot. They delivered it and showed us how to set it all up in the display cases." Jakey said. Connie Grove, manager of the Grove.

Main Street Chocolate Shoppe, believes Truan's supplied customer recognition right from the start.

The line of candy we're carrying is very well known, especially among the older people. Everyone was very pleased with the taste of it," Grove

In addition to Truan's candies, the store offers fudge, suckers, Wunderbeans, imported candy, clusters. trufiles, cordials, creams and novelty items such as chocolate golf balls and candy dinosaurs, according to

When the store opened, the enthusiastic response of many residents demonstrated to Grove the need for a place like this in Milford.

"The response was wonderful. Milford welcomed us with open arms. The sales were just great . . . people were telling us how glad they are that we're here," said Grove.

The store is relying on word-ofmouth advertising at the moment.

We really had no exposure or advertising. A lot of people on the street were telling others to go see us. A lot of people were walking around with our bags, which is the best advertising we could have," Grove said.

The interior of the store is designed to remind you of an "old-time" candy store with its Victorian decor, said

The owner's dream is to keep this as people remembered candy stores in the past. This is not going to be a bulk food, help-your-self place, it is a we-serve-you type of place." Grove style outfits for the Milford Memories summer festival in August, which Groves anticipates will be busier than the Sidewalk Sales.

"If we can handle last weekend, we will be able to handle anything. We are looking forward to Milford Memories," said Grove.

After the busy activity on the weekend, business had slowed down drastically Sunday and Monday, Grove said.

"Yesterday and today are reality. I'm sure things will pick up on the weekend and after we are better known," said Grove.

NOVI'S STEVE MYERS, recipient of a Paul Harris Fellow Award for service in Rotary, attended the inaugural meeting of the Oakland County business roundtable on June 16 at the MSU management education center in Troy. Myers was chosen from among 350 applicants to become one of 125 roundtable members, the only paticipant from a Novi business.

The Oakland county business roundtable is the brainchild of L Brooks Patterson, Oakland County executive. The roundtable is cochaired by Robert Stemple, former GM chairman, and Dr. Patsy Fulton, Chancellor of Oakland Community College.

The roundtable is organized into 12 committees covering every area of business and growth in Oakland County. Myers is a member of the foreign trade and exporting committee, whose members also include Willielm Kast, president of the Michigan International Trade coalition, and Keith Crain, publisher of Crain's Detroit Business.

The roundtable is a coalition of business, education, and government. Oakland county is slated for growth of 16 percent in the coming decade, compared to 6 percent for the region, said Patterson.

We want the Oakland county business roundtable to be the mechanism by which we fine-tune the economic engine of Oakland county,* said Patterson before a full house at the inaugural morning meeting. Patterson called for five action-oriented suggestions from each of the 12 committees in 18 months, when the rondtable will be dissolved. "This will be our blueprint." beamed Patterson.
