Harman breaks ground in Novi

Snow was on the ground, but it didn't stop Harman International Industries, Inc. from breaking ground Thursday on its new North American automotive headquarters in Novi.

"We're really excited to be here and be part of the resurgence in metro Detroit and the state of Michigan," said Phil Eyler, senior vice president for Harman.

New HQ

The new 188,000-square-foot building, scheduled for completion by fall 2015, is on Cabot Drive and will initially accommodate 750 employees. Developed by Northern Equities Group, the new North American automotive headquarters will anchor the 400-acre Haggerty Corridor Corporate Park. Harman forecasts it will add 250 more employees to this facility in coming years

Harman is an audio, visual, infotainment and enterprise automation group.

The city of Novi granted an eight-year tax abatement to Harman, which is a 50-percent abatement of the taxes on the new facility (but not the land underneath it) and new personal property. Harman will consolidate six of its seven existing southeast Michigan locations into one building on 16.5 acres at the northeast corner of M-5 and 13 Mile Road.

The Novi Public Library last year raised more than $4,000 for new technologies at the facility when it introduced a coupon book fundraising campaign.

But within six months, nearly all of the library's patrons had been tapped into.

This year, the library has taken that campaign digital, via My Coupon Genie, and library Director Julie Farkas is hoping 200 merchants will support it and 50,000 residents will look at the offers daily.

Novi vet is a Silent Hero

Anthony Mallia, a member of American Legion Post 346 in Farmington and a longtime Novi resident, received two awards at the Detroit Veterans Day Parade that honored his service and sacrifice during the Vietnam War.

He was recognized as a Silent Hero for his service by the Metropolitan Detroit Veterans Coalition and a certificate of appreciation was received for his service in Vietnam. He was in a group of 16 selected for the honor.

"It was surprising to be selected among so many deserving veterans," said Mallia, who served in Vietnam in 1971-72 and was awarded the National Defense Service Medal, two Bronze Service Stars and a Vietnam Campaign Medal.

"This is a big honor for me, but it makes me remember all of those I served with," he said of the award that recognizes his military and community service both during and after the war.

The Metro Detroit Veterans Coalition, in cooperation with the United States of America Vietnam War Commemoration, hosted the parade Nov. 8. It ended in front of Comerica Park with a ceremony commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Vietnam War, which like the Korean conflict sometimes gets overlooked.

Church hosts 'Christmas Around the World'

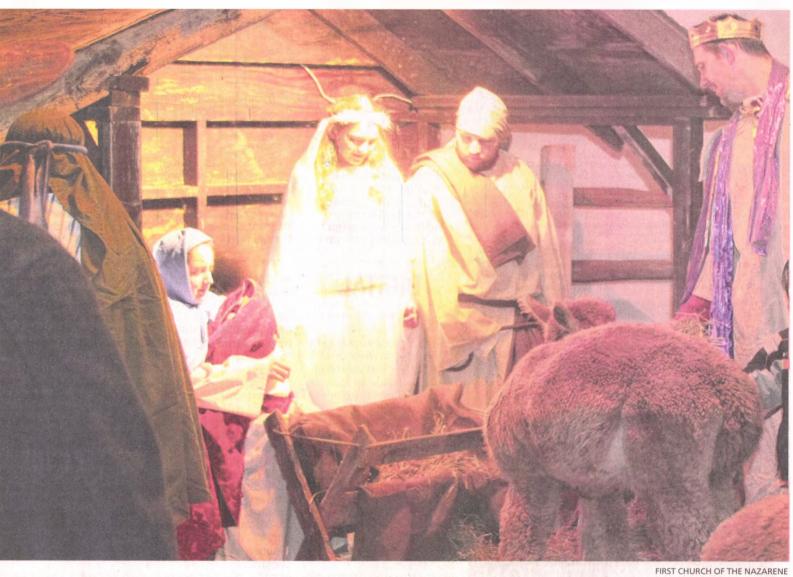

Thanksgiving is here and residents can welcome the next season by attending the festive and entertaining "Christmas Around the World" at First Church of the Nazarene, 21260 Haggerty, just north of Eight Mile, Novi.

The church is kicking off the Christmas season Sunday, Nov. 30, with an outdoor live nativity scene followed by carols and concert, cookies and hot cocoa. Admission is free.

Children will have the opportunity to interact with live animals from sheep to alpacas 4:30-6 p.m., at the live nativity set up at the church's main west entrance. Live nativity characters also will be on hand to welcome children and adults alike.

Then after enjoying the live nativity, guests will move inside for the 6 p.m. carols and concert a celebration of Jesus' birth from around the globe with a variety of music genres as well as multi-cultural and multilanguage music. Music will be provided by DFC singers and musicians and special guests, the Novi High School Singers, who will present songs from around the world.

The Novi Singers, Novi High School's top choir conducted by Claire Schurig, has been awarded the highest rating at the state level competition by receiving a superior rating through

One of the objectives of the U.S. American Vietnam War Commemoration was to thank and honor veterans of the Vietnam War, including personnel who were held as prisoners of war or it listed as missing in action. A big part of the day was hearing the different stories of those who served.

He went on to serve for three active years and 11 in the reserves as a computer operator. The war had a big impact on him, but it was one he couldn't talk about for more than 30 years. Through some help from the VA and different hat do I have to be thankful for?" the young man asked as he sat down in my office.

We all have much to be thankful for in Novi

Typically, students don't appear in my office unless they have done something wrong. So, in truth, he had a point.

But I didn't let the obvious get in my way.

"My guess is that you have a lot to be thankful for," I countered back. "I know that I do." And then I shared with this young high school sophomore the things for which I was thankful.

I am thankful for students. Every day students come to our schools full of energy and life. Students challenge and push the adults who work in those schools. Students keep the adults in schools on our toes. Students tell jokes we don't get, listen to music we don't understand, use technology we can't figure out.

But students also trust us, believing that we will help them prepare for their future. Students help us live for the present, but look toward the future.

Every day, the lives of the adults in schools are enriched because of their interaction with the students who come to those schools.

I am thankful for the parents in our community. It is true that parents are sometimes over-protective and that they sometimes believe their children more than they believe the adults who work with their children, but the parents in Novi are advocates for their children. The parents work hard to support their children and to support our schools.

Parents attend our parentteacher conferences, athletic events, concerts and recitals. But they also check MI-STAR for grade updates, read to their children every night and make sure that homework gets done.

I am thankful for our community. In our community, we have citizens, young and old, who care about our students. They support our students by voting yes on bond issues, saving cans and bottles for fundraising drives and turning out for the homecoming parade or the football game or the fall play or the winter concerts.

Our community through its businesses provides financial support to athletics, the arts, robotics and other co- and extra-curricular activities. Our community provides work sites for our student co-ops.

I am thankful for those that work for the Novi Community School District, dedicated people who understand the importance of their jobs. They train, they research, they spend time finding ways to get better.

The people who work for our school district care about our students. They want our students to have a high-quality educational experience and they understand that for that to happen they must do their job well.

The 10th-grade student who sat in my office was not overly impressed with my discourse on thankfulness - but it made me feel better.

It made me stop and think about how rich my life is and how much for which I have to be thankful.

Gutman and state Rep. Klint Kesto thanked and congratulated Delaney for her mature, swift actions that saved another person.

Catholic Central students create a mobile app for Apple

By Lonnie Huhman Staff Writer

A group of Detroit Catholic Central High School students took a successful project a step further and they can now say they've developed a mobile app accepted by Apple called Volunteer-Now.

VolunteerNow was first conceptualized under the name Community Connection by a team of five CC students - Andre Hijaouy, Jack Evans, August Butzke, Mike Ryan and Shaun Hannibal – as part of last spring's Mobile App Challenge.

The mission of VolunteerNow is to successfully develop a platform through which prospective volunteers can locate, track and save volunteering experiences. By simplifying the process of finding and storing volunteer experiences, it hopes to promote volunteerism within the community.

The challenge was hosted by Compuware, Inc. at Catholic Central High School and was open to all students. Throughout the contest, teams of students worked with industry professionals to conceptualize an application that would have a positive impact on the community.

The Community Connection application was awarded first place last March.

"This was a great educational opportunity. We had a lot of fun putting it together," Evans said. "Our mentors at Compuware were really helpful and they gave us the support to take our project to another step with Apple.'

The challenge's judg-ing panel included the Rev. John Huber, CC principal; Bob Paul, Compuware CEO and president and a CC alumnus; Matt Roush, a CBS Radio technology reporter and editor of Technology Report on WWJ-AM (950); Mike Cox, a CC alumnus and former Michigan attorney general and gubernatorial candidate; and James Brown, director, CW Professional Services, Mobile Solutions Group.

The winning team was called DirectriX and was one of five teams that completed the challenge. All the participating students were awarded summer internships at Compuware world headquarters in Detroit.

"We are really proud of them. This is an im-portant honor," CC com-puter teacher Gail Levens said.

After winning the challenge, the team spent the spring and summer assembling the proper specification documents in preparation for hiring a freelance software developer.

Earlier this fall, VolunteerNow had a pending approval in the Apple App Store and is launching it into the Beta Test phase at Catholic Central High School this winter upon receiving Apple's approval of the application.

Levens and Paul said this bodes well for the students' futures.

"With the massive proliferation of technology and the central role technology plays in the modern business environment, career opportunities in IT, particularly software development, are skyrocketing," Paul said. "In fact, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the expected growth rate for software development jobs from 2012 to 2022 is 22 percent, double that of all other occupations combined. As the largest IT company in Michigan, Compuware understands the vital role today's students will play in tomorrow's increasingly tech-driven economy. Programs like the Mobile App Challenge are important in helping introduce our young students to technology and the potential of a rewarding career in this rapidly expanding field."

Local organization unites piano teachers and their students

This is the time of year when many parents begin searching for a teacher for their child who has expressed an interest in learning to play the piano.

The Livonia Area Piano Teachers Forum is a professional organization that acts as a resource for piano teachers looking to enhance their skills, as well a piano students looking for the right teacher.

Founded in 1970. LAPTF members are teachers from all over the Detroit area, not just Livonia.

Its members have a variety of backgrounds and experience. The LAPTF meets monthly from September to May. Every meeting in planned well in advance, featuring guest speakers who share their expertise

This year's features include "How To Use Theory to Teach Interpretation" with Linette Popoff-Parks from Madonna University.

The year concludes with a recital by several of the members' students who have received awards for piano performance excellence.

Meetings are held at the Steinway Gallery in Commerce Township and Evola Music in Canton.

Students of LAPTF have the opportunity to participate in community outreach recitals, judged performance events for students at all levels, collaborative concerts and testing events.

Teachers interested in joining or visiting a meeting are encouraged to contact Vice President Alicia Operti at amoperti@gmail.com or membership chair Irina Semenova at i33002003@yahoo.com. Individuals interested in finding a piano teacher should contact Debbie Cox at dcgomsu@ yahoo.com for a list of referrals.

Hubcaps stolen

A car owner went to the Novi Police to report that his hubcaps had been stolen from his car while parked outside of Twelve Oaks mall.

According to the police report, four hubcaps (valued at $250) were taken. The vehicle was parked outside of Nordstrom, but it was not visible on the security camera. There is no information on a possible suspect.

Super drunken driver

The Novi Police arrested a driver for drunken driving after he nearly struck another vehicle.

According to the Novi Police report, the driver was stopped Oct. 10 on 10 Mile Road near Jamestown Circle after spotting the near miss. Police reported smelling intoxicants on the driver immediately upon making contact and after asking him to step out of the vehicle it was noted it appeared as if he had urinated himself.

The arrest was made Nov. 11 at the station on Six Mile Road. The 62year-old attorney was there to visit a client when police did a routine check on his identity. It turned out he had failed to appear in a Ingham County courtroom and had a warrant out on him from the Ingham County Sheriff's Department. The man was later

A Northville Township homeowner was at home watching TV when an unknown person struck a window on his house with a rock and shattered it.

The police report stated the incident occurred Nov. 14 at a home in the 48000 block of Stoneridge Drive. The rock did not go through the window, but did cause damage. There is no suspect at this time.

SEMCOG report paints stark picture of area's road conditions

Just how bad are roads in southeast Michigan? According to SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, they're not good at all.

Each year, as required by law, SEMCOG works with local road agencies to evaluate the condition of the major roads in the seven-county region. The preliminary results of this summer's work are in and they paint a stark picture.

Southeast Michigan has seen a staggering jump in the total miles of roads that should be repaired by completely tearing them up and rebuilding them from the ground up. Of the nearly 4,500 miles of major roads that were evaluated this summer, more than 1,900 miles need to be rebuilt, an increase of more than 500 miles compared to two years ago, when these same roads were last evaluated.

Give the gift of Dance!

Gift Certificates Available!

Another 1.900 miles are in need of preventive maintenance in order to keep them from also slipping into poor condition.

Only 650 miles - or 14 percent – are considered to be in good condition.

"People may want to blame last winter's weather for the rapid deterioration of our roads," said Carmine Palombo, deputy executive director of SEM-COG. "However, the weather simply exposed the real problem. Our state has been dis-investing in roads for years.

"If the Senate funding proposal is enacted, we will begin to see the condition of our road system improve over time. Unfortunately, if major funding increases do not occur, the decline in the condition of our roadways will continue," she added.

Area turkey farm owners pass on big bird for Thanksgiving dinner

By Karen Smith Staff Writer

The Roperti family of Livonia will dress 4,300 to 4,400 turkeys for Thanksgiving Day, but won't eat a single one.

The Ropertis, who own and operate Roperti's Turkey Farm at 34700 Five Mile, will have had their fill of the holiday bird by then, having taste-tested several smoked turkeys as they perfect the process for their customers.

Instead of turkey, they will eat crab claws, filet mignon and a pasta dish like lasagna, followed by key lime pie for dessert. "It's tradition for us," said Ferida Roperti, daughter-in-law of farm owner Christine Roperti. "We're so sick of eating turkey."

Christine Roperti prepares the filet mignon and pasta; the key lime pie comes already prepared from Florida along with the crab claws, which only require brief cooking in a pot of boiling water.

It isn't a sit-down meal at a fancy-laid dining room table like that in a Norman Rockwell painting, either. "It's grab and eat,"

Ferida Roperti said, because there are still chores to do: lots of paperwork, laundry, cleanup and the occasional customer to wait on who forgot to pick up their turkey the day before.

"We have to wash aprons, coats, towels. We're still doing that the whole next day," Ferida Roperti said.

They also sleep in Thanksgiving for the first time in many weeks or try to take a nap in the afternoon. Leading up to Thanksgiving Day, the family puts in 10- to 15hour work days every day. "We're just so dead tired," Ferida Roperti said.

But it's well worth the effort. Christine Roperti said she takes pride in delivering free-range, grain-fed, chemical- and preservative-free turkeys to her customers. just like those her father, Tom Roperti, raised back in 1948 when he started the farm. "I'm putting something good into my customers' stomachs," she said, adding the sales are all based on word of mouth.

Christine Roperti's husband, Wesley Bates, and two sons, along with Ferida Roperti, are also involved in the day-to-day running of the farm. The family sells almost all of its turkeys for Thanksgiving, freezing or smoking the few that are left over. There is little demand from the public for turkey for

"Wicked" ways at Twelve Oaks Mall

Winner of more than 100 international awards. Wicked is the untold story of the witches of Oz. Long before Dorothy dropped in, two other girls meet in the land of Oz. One, born with emerald-green skin, is smart, fiery and misunderstood. The other is beautiful, ambitious and very popular. Wicked tells the story of their remarkable odyssey, how these two unlikely friends grow to become the Wicked Witch of the West and Glinda the Good.

"The Wicked partnership builds on successful promotions done at several other Taubman centers," Twelve Oaks Marketing and Sponsorship Director Emily Taucher said. "We're delighted to be bewitched by Wicked this holiday season."

The American Red Cross asks eligible donors to give something that means something this holiday season - a lifesaving blood donation.

Blood donations often decline this time of year when donors get busy with holiday festivities and travel. Severe winter weather and seasonal illnesses, like the flu, can also have a serious impact on blood donations, but the need for blood remains steady. On average, the Red Cross must collect 15,000 blood products every day for patients across the country.

Novi's Casalou named new regional president of CEO of St. Joseph Mercy Health System

Novi resident Rob Casalou, currently president and CEO of St. Joseph Mercy-Ann Arbor and St. Joseph Mercy-Livingston, has been selected as the new regional president and CEO of St. Joseph Mercy Health System, based in Ann Arbor.

Casalou will be succeeding longtime regional president and CEO Garry C. Faja who will be retiring Dec. 31 after 32 years of service.

Since becoming president and CEO of St. Joseph Mercy-Ann Arbor and Livingston hospitals in 2008, Casalou has played a key role in the development of many innovative partnerships, including the merger with IHA Physician Group and a master affiliation between SJMHS and University of Michigan Health System which resulted in joint ventures such as the opening of an Acute Care for Elders hospital unit.

Under his leader- Casalou ship, St. Joseph Mercy hospitals have expanded outpatient services with a freestanding emergency department in Brighton, the new Center for Advanced Surgery health center in Canton and the new Outpatient Surgery Center at St. Joseph Mercy-Ann Arbor. The hospitals have also undergone significant renovation and upgrades, notably the 2010 opening of the North Tower at St. Joseph Mercy-Ann Arbor and the 2014 patient room renovations at St. Joseph Mercy-Livingston. Recognizing the role of fresh, healthy food in the healing process, Casalou spearheaded the development of the Farm at St. Joe's – the first hospitalbased farm in the U.S.

Before joining SJMHS, Casalou spent almost 20 years at St. John Providence Health System in various leadership roles. He was responsible for overseeing the construction of Providence Park Hospital in Novi, where he served as its president and CEO until 2008.

He earned his bachelor's degree in economics and master's degree in business administration and health care administration from the University of Michigan. He lives in Novi with his wife and three children.

Shoppers focus on small businesses Saturday

By Cal Stone Staff Writer

Small Business Saturday was founded in 2010 by American Express as a day to celebrate the local businesses that help make communities like Novi and Northville so special.

Sandwiched between Black Friday and Cyber Monday, Small Business Saturday encourages shoppers to patronize brick-and-mortar business that are both small and local.

"The Northville DDA is pleased to join American Express to encourage residents to shop local," said Lori Ward, Northville Downtown Development Authority director. "Their support of local small businesses helps to create jobs, boost the local economy and preserve the unique character of our community."

On Saturday, Nov. 29, consumers can stroll the streets of Northville, shop at their locally owned one-of-a-kind store, grab a bite to eat and enjoy the festive atmosphere. Ward said Small Business Saturday provides guests the opportunity to get their holiday shopping done, support their community and save, as many of the merchants will be offering special deals and promotions throughout the day. In addition, Santa will be in Town Square 2-4 p.m. to greet visitors young and old.

The city of Novi is well-known as one of Michigan's premier retail strongholds, anchored by Twelve Oaks mall, Novi Town Center, West Oaks and Twelve Mile Crossing at Fountain Walk. But while the majority of the stores in those complexes are big boxes and chains, the city is also home to quite a few mom-and-pop shops and small retailers.

Learning: TechShop offers place to build, grow business to members

By Julie Brown Staff Writer

Got an idea for business, but need space to work out the details? You may be interested in TechShop, near the Detroit Lions practice facility in Allen Park.

TechShop began in Menlo Park, Calif., some eight years ago, and has been in metro Detroit 2½ years. It's a do-ityourself fabrication studio whose senior account manager, Addie Langford, spoke to Westland Rotarians last week.

The member fee is $175 per month, Langford said, for the 17,000 square feet of work space, with additional space in the property. TechShop founder Jim Newton began in IT.

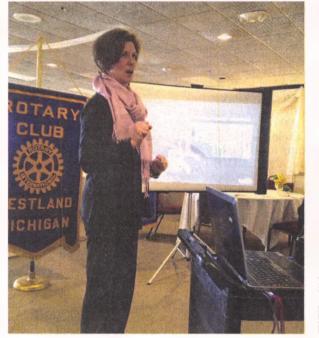

"This became his mission to get this off the ground," Langford told Rotarians and guests. Newton taught at community college and found his students retaking his classes for equipment access.

Langford displayed a PowerPoint of the computer numeric controlled equipment, with machinists, engineers and artists among Tech-Shop customers.

"You bring your ideas to the table," she said.

A class is first required for safety. Langford showed via Power-Point how the water-jet cutter can even cut granite.

Some woodworkers use the Allen Park Tech-Shop, which can also handle the custom packages that can make consumer products difficult to open. The plastic injection molder can be used for knobs, other controls, key-

There are also uses for electronics and software and the local site is launching a student robotics team, Langford said. She showed a slide as well of 3D printing and scanning, along with a laser lab for etched glass and more.

etched glass and more. The large project bay can accommodate cars, as well as a kayak.

"This is an exciting thing to come and watch," Langford said. "Skill sharing happens really naturally. There's this incredible exchange."

She added that referrals to incubators for business help are available at TechShop. Rotarian Earl Ludwig of Dearborn Heights, who arranged the visit, said, "It's all skill levels, from very basic."

Langford said Tech-Shop doesn't take any proceeds nor protect intellectual property, meaning your work must be able to be out in sight.

She showed a knitting needle gauge that has been developed: "She cannot make these fast enough."

The Square, Inc., mobile payment for smart phones came from TechShop in San Francisco. There was also a low-cost infant warmer developed.

"It's really meant for the Third World," Langford said, noting such preemies have much better survival chances if they reach cities.

The Allen Park Tech-Shop is in the Rotunda-Southfield Freeway area at 800 Republic Drive. For more, go to www.techshop.ws. The phone is 313-583-3831, email info.detroit@techshop.com.

Lingenfelter's Corvette manifold earns award

A panel of 35 top international automotive journalists have chosen Wixombased Lingenfelter Performance Engineering's new C7 Corvette inter-cooler manifold to receive a 2014 Global Media Award at the annual Specialty Equipment Market Association show in Las Vegas.

Representing more than 20 countries, the journalists reviewed hundreds of entries in the SEMA New Products Showcase to select the specialty equipment products that would most appeal to their home markets. The inter-cooler manifold from Lingenfelter was chosen for its innovative, lowprofile design which fits with a stock C7 hood and integrates neatly into the engine compartment. The new Corvette engine inter-cooler builds on the previous success of products Lingenfelter created for Gen 3 and Gen 4 engines and is designed for turbocharged or centrifugal supercharged applications of up to 1,200 horsepower. The prestigious Global Media

Award, introduced by SEMA in 2004, was created to highlight specialty equipment products to a growing audience of automotive enthusiasts around the world. According to SEMA research, more than 25 percent of the buyers at this year's SEMA show came from more than 100 nations outside of the U.S.

"We have seen a growing international interest in many of Lingenfelter's high-performance engine components and vehicles, and are pleased to be recognized by this group of very knowledgeable global journalists," said Ken Lingenfelter, owner, Lingenfelter Performance Engineering.

Lingenfelter and many other U.S. automotive aftermarket companies have participated in SEMA's international initiatives designed to support export relationships in a number of key global growth markets.

Area man still fixes typewriters for a living

By Elliott McCloud Correspondent

Chuck Theile has been living in South Lyon, just north of the downtown district, since 1998. A Wayne County native, he moved for his wife Cheryl, who was diagnosed with cancer.

She wanted to be closer to her family," Theile said. "We found a place in South Lyon.' Cheryl died in 2000, but Chuck and their daughter Kelly stayed.

"We just fell in love with South Lyon," he said. "Kelly went through school there. It's beautiful. It's home.

For South Lyon, Theile doesn't mind the hour drive to work.

He works for CCS Business Machines in Wayne. It's tucked in a neighborhood that looks like time forgot. That's fitting, because CCS is where Theile practices a trade that time has also forgotten. He is one of the last working typewriter repairmen

"It's ironic," Theile said, laughing. "In the army, I wrote code for computers that were as big as semi-truck trailers. Then I leave and go backwards into typewriter repair."

Theile left the army in 1972. His first job out was with the Ford Motor Co.

"I'd probably have a nice pension, but the idea of a trade that I could only use in a factory didn't sit right with me," he said

With the help of the V.A., he was able to quit Ford and complete a two-year apprenticeship at Wyandotte Office Equipment. There was no school for Theile. He had to learn on the job.

Lucrative work

A career as a typewriter repairman was as desirable and lucrative as any other. Yesterday's world relied on typewriters as heavily as we do computers today. "I always had work, servicing schools and businesses," he said.

He spent his summers stripping typewriters of oil and pencil shavings and restoring them to their original condition. Some machines Theile was required to essentially rebuild, of which he is still proud today.

"Other repair shops used to send us some machines, because not everyone could do what I did," he said, smiling proudly. "I'm amazed when I think about it. I'd like to do it again.

With his talents, Theile could move freely between jobs in Washtenaw, Oakland and Wayne counties. There was always an offer for more money or better benefits. He was even able to own his own business, C&C Repair.

"The other 'C' was for my first wife Cindy," Theile said. "I used to joke that I married Cheryl because I needed another 'C' for the business."

Theile closed down C&C after a couple of years. As for the others, Theile said that they have been long out of business.

"Not because of me," he said, laughing. "It's just the way it goes. The ones that live on are the ones that were smart enough to start selling something else.

By the mid-1990s, it became clear to Theile that he would need to find a new line of work. Businesses were switching over to computers. Schools were downsizing their writing rooms.

"Schools stopped teaching typing and started teaching classes on how to use computers instead," he said.

Theile never gave up typewriter repair. There was always someone with an old machine in need of fixing.

"I was lucky that I never was out of work," he said. But most of the repairmen he worked with have retired, switched specialties or died.

ELLIOTT MCCLOUD Chuck Theile of South Lyon has typewriters dating back more than a century in his workshop in Wayne.

Retro renaissance

Theile taught himself to use a computer. He attended printer and fax machine repair courses. When he came to CCS in 2007, it was as a certified technician. Typewriters were a niche thing he did on the side. But then he began to see a trend upward. A couple of typewriters a year turned into dozens.

"I turned around one day and started thinking, 'I'm witnessing a real renaissance here," he said.

There was a lawyer in Farmington Hills unwilling to part with his eight IBM Selectrics. Each required hundreds of dollars in parts and labor. "I told him that he should invest in something else, but he was adamant. He loved his Selectrics," he said.

Since then, Theile has done repairs for sportscaster Eli Zaret and Budd Lynch, the late voice of the Red Wings. Writer, critic and South Lyon native Bill Garwood also had his typewriter in. And Theile has repaired the machines of numerous local journalists who still love and use their machines, including this humble freelancer.

"Most (of my customers) are college students. Most probably never had to use a typewriter growing up. Yet, here they are," he said. He is surrounded by typewriters from as far back as 1906 and as late as 2006. He smiles when he says, "It really is amazing.'

Theile has no plans to retire. But when he does, he won't rule out the possibility of a small cabin business in South Lyon. "So long as someone wants them fixed, I'll do the job," he

During this special season, it's more important than ever to be a part of every celebration and conversation. At Personalized Hearing Care, we want to make sure you hear every moment of the holidays.

Give something that means something: blood

The American Red Cross is asking eligible donors to give something that means something this holiday season – a lifesaving blood donation.

Blood donations often decline this time of year when donors get busy with holiday festivities and travel. Severe winter weather and seasonal illnesses, like the flu, can also have a serious impact on blood donations, but the need for blood remains steady. On average, the Red Cross must collect 15,000 blood products every day for patients across the country.

Eligible donors with all types are needed, especially those with O negative, A negative and B negative. To learn more about donating blood and to schedule an appointment, download the Red Cross Blood Donor App, go to red-crossblood.org or call 800-RED CROSS (800-733-2767).

Upcoming blood dona-tion opportunities include:

Farmington Hills -Dec. 9, 1-6:45 p.m., St. John Lutheran, 23225 Gill Road.

Milford – Dec. 2, 8 a.m. to 7:45 p.m., Milford YMCA, 300 Family Dr.

Leo Clark, played by Keith Firstenberg of Livonia, and Jack Gable, played by Lance Allan of Farmington Hills, dress up as women in the farce, "Leading Ladies." The Farmington Players will present Leading Ladies, a farce described as a cross between the hit film Some Like It Hot and Shakespeare's famous comedy Twelfth Night, Nov. 28 through Dec. 20 at the Players Barn Theater, 32332 12 Mile Road, Farmington Hills.

"Leading Ladies is about the crazy things we do for love," said director Tony Targan of West Bloomfield. "Despite our best (or worst) intentions, love can make us behave like fools."

The show opens Black Friday night. It's a perfect way for families to unwind from holiday shopping and laugh like mad at the antics on the stage, Targan added.

The comedy focuses on a pair of struggling Shakespearean actors Leo Clark and Jack Gable who wind up dressing as women to try and steal the fortune of a dying millionaire. Their quest begins as they decide to impersonate her nephews and heirs "Max" and "Steve."

When Clark and Gable discover the nephews are actually nieces, they have no problem transforming to "Maxine" and "Stephanie."

"It's fun directing a fastpaced farce," Targan said. "It's like piecing together a rotating, three-dimensional jigsaw puzzle."

The main two pieces of that puzzle include Keith Firstenberg of Livonia as Leo/Maxine and Lance Alan of Farmington Hills as Jack/Stephanie. As their characters press on in drag, they fall in love with real women and find themselves frequently switching between their identities as both men and women.

As Ken Ludwig (author of Leading Ladies, Lend Me a Tenor and Moon Over Buffalo) has written, "There's a bit of the female in all men and a bit of the male in all females; it's just how we're made. To see it emerge full blown like that can be very funny and very joyous."

The fun only intensifies when the duo discovers that the dying heiress Florence Snider (Ellen Doman of West Bloomfield) is still clinging to life. Leo falls madly in love with Florence's niece Meg (Emilie Tole of Farmington) who's engaged to the local minister Duncan (Mike Gingerella of Royal Oak), while Jack meets his dream girl Audrey (Sarah Lovy of Berkley). Jim Snideman of Commerce Township plays Doc, the cantankerous country doctor, and Daniel Tarjeft of Southfield plays his son Butch.

Leading Ladies is sponsored by Cadillac Travel. Reserved seats are available at www.farmingtonplayers.org and at the box office, 248-553-2955.

HALL OF FAMER SILL IN THE GAME STILL

Farmington Hills bowler shares her expertise by coaching others

By Dan O'Meara Staff Writer

While her competitive career has faded to legendary status, Aleta Sill continues to make bowling a big part of her life as she impacts the sport in a different way.

Once one of the best female bowlers in the world, the Farmington Hills resident's passion is coaching others and teaching them to bowl.

Sill started doing that when she was still competing 26 years ago and she has made that her career since retiring from the women's professional tour in 2001.

She and business partner Michelle Mullen, also a former pro bowler, have operated Aleta Sill's Pro Shop at Country Lanes in Farmington and taught lessons there for the last 11 years.

A lot of practice and a lot of help made Sill a 31-time tour winner. She bowled 31 perfect games and is now a member of seven bowling halls of fame

"That's why we're so passionate here about coaching," she said. "If I didn't have the coaching that I had, I know I would not have been as successful as I was.

'I had coaches from the time I was 12 all the way through my career. In Indy Car racing, you have the pit crew and the driver. I feel like I was the driver, but my pit crew was great. They got me finely tuned and that's why I succeeded. That's with any sport. You'll never play at the highest level if you don't have eyes behind you.'

JOHN STORMZAND | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Gauging success

Seeing young bowlers she has taught put into practice what they've learned and do well is the reward for Sill. That has replaced the competitive fire and is the equivalent of her winning a tournament when she was competing.

"It's the best feeling in the world," Sill said. "When someone I've worked with says they won something or shot a big score, there's nothing like that feeling. It's way better even than my bowling.

"High school bowling is getting bigger every year in Michigan," she added. "We've had a (state) champion just about every year and that's like icing on the cake.'

Sill estimates she and Mullen have taught nearly 27,000 bowlers over the last quarter-century.

Young bowlers across the metro area are a large part of their clientele, but they're not limited to a geographic region. "We travel and do clinics," Sill said. "We'll go anywhere anybody wants us. Our name is getting out there more and more and we'll go to their centers. We travel all over the state."

The keys to success

Patience and the willingness to be coached are essential to becoming a good bowler, according to Sill.

"There are times and it's not just kids, it's adults - when you tell them something and it's uncomfortable, it's 'Well, I can't do that; that doesn't feel right,'" she said. "If you think you're going to take a lesson and all of a sudden go out and shoot 250, a lot of times that doesn't happen, because we have to change muscle memory. It takes time to make a change.

"You might not even bowl well for the first couple weeks," she added. "But when you get it, that's when we're going to get to another level."

Results are not Sill's immediate concern with a new student. She noted they often equate throwing a strike with making a good shot.

They might miss the head pin to the right and throw it in the gutter and I'll say it's a good shot because I'm not worried about the end result right now," Sill said. "I'm changing a technique.

"It's not so much score-oriented when we're making changes," she added. "We're not worried about score. That's what I have to dispel sometimes to make a change."

Get a (proper) grip

As part of her work in the pro shop, Sill also applies her years of experience to custom fit a bowling ball to a client's hand and delivery.

"It's an art in itself and essential to the sport," she said. "Our work is to make people understand it's not just three holes in the ball.

"And I've stayed up; I don't rest on my laurels.

I'm always willing to learn something," she added. "The bowling balls have changed a ton since I was on tour. It's just a matter of the hands you touch and understanding it, all the flexibilities. Once I get a ball on their hands, they see the difference.

"When a grip impairs your swing and we fix it, you can see how much better the swing gets by using less grip pressure.

No distractions

Surprisingly, Sill's best attribute as a bowler was not her physical game - the actual delivery of the ball – but her mental game, her ability to stay focused.

"I didn't have the best physical game, in my opinion," she said. "But this is what was good (tapping the side of her head). I could beat anybody who had a better physical game, because they didn't have the mental game I did. I could block things out; nothing could disturb me.

'People would always tell me I looked smoothed and everything. When I watched tape, I saw flaws. But I could repeat shots. If you can repeat, that's the name of the game. It's just repetitive motion and I could do that."

Sill is a left-handed, which often put her in the middle of an ongoing controversy in bowling.

"The left side of the lane has much less traffic, so the lefties always got a bad rap," she said. 'Right-handers were always complaining about the lefties, because we had it good on our side of the lane.

"If we didn't bowl well, it was because we couldn't adjust. If we did, it was because the lanes were walled up or set up for us.

"My motto was: 'I'm laughing and taking my money all the way to the bank. Complain all you want.' That just didn't bother me."

Early start on tour

Sill joined the ladies pro tour when she graduated from high school in 1980 and won her first tournament the next vear.

She struggled in 1982 and wondered if she should stay the course. She did and became the first female bowler to earn $1 million.

"One of the other bowler's mom gave me this quote and I said it all the time for years and years: 'I am a strong person. I accomplish all my goals with ease. God will take care of the rest for me," Sill said. "That year I won my first Queens title, which was a big paycheck in 1983 at $25,000. I was runner-up for Bowler of the Year. From then on, my career was pretty good.

"The last year was the worst year I ever bowled and it just soured me from bowling, period. I've never gotten it back."

Nowadays, Sill's bowling is limited to three games a week in league play during the winter months.

"It's just a fun league," she said. "I get out to socialize with my friends. Companies send balls and I test them to see what's good for in here. That's basically it."

Her favorite pastime will always be bowling and coaching affords her a means of staying involved.

"People just don't respect bowling enough," she said. "They don't think they need help. They think it's an easy sport and it's not.

'Can you imagine an Olympic athlete trying to do it on his own? It's impossible. Why should people think any different of bowling?"

Shop local on Small Business Saturday

National shopping initiative helps keep money in local economy

Purists will stay home Thanksgiving evening to savor time spent with family and enjoy a second helping of dessert, but many folks will clear the table, grab their coats and head out to the malls and major retailers for an early start to Black Friday.

Those who prefer to avoid the frenzy and the crowds have Cyber Monday, the digital equivalent of Black Friday, to do their shopping with a click of a mouse.

But in between what have become the powerhouse shopping days of the year is Small Business Saturday, a na-tional initiative to support local businesses which create jobs, boost the economy and preserve neighborhoods around the country.

Created by American Express in 2010, Small Business Saturday is held the Saturday after Thanksgiving during one of the busiest shopping periods of the year. First observed Nov. 27, 2010, it's a counterpart to Black Friday and Cyber Monday.

Small Business Saturday encourages holiday shoppers to patronize brick-and-mortar businesses that are small and local - and with good reason. According to Forbes, there are almost 28 million small businesses in the U.S.

More than 50 percent of the working population – 120 million individuals – works in small businesses which have generated more than 65 percent of the net new jobs since 1995. Approximately 543,000 new businesses get started each month. Seven out of 10 survive at least two years, half at least five years, one-third at least 10 years and one-quarter stay in business 15 years or more.

Keeping small businesses alive and healthy is important to local communities. Last year, millions of Americans shopped at independently-owned small businesses on Small Business Saturday, spending $5.7 billion that day, 4 percent higher than the $5.5 billion spent in 2012.

When small businesses are strong and growing, communities are strong and growing. Statistics show that for every $100 you spend locally, $66 stays in the local community. That means your dollars are helping to build parks, libraries and improve fire and police departments.

Small businesses have been the backbone of this country from its inception. Dry goods stores and millinery shops may have changed over the years, but the services they provide are still as important today as they were back then.

Communities like Wayne, Plymouth, Milford, Northville and Birmingham have downtowns filled with small shops, while newer communities like Westland, Novi and Southfield have created shopping districts that are anchored by regional malls. In all instances, the variety of goods and services rival what's available in big box stores and online this holiday season.

By all means, do your shopping Thanksgiving evening, Black Friday and Cyber Monday, but save some money for Small Business Saturday. Think local and support Small Business Saturdav.

Fossil fuel response

The recent letter from Jean Gramlich of the Sierra Club is quite interesting.

She talks about the dirty, nasty fossil fuels and nuclear energy and how they are hurting the planet.

Later on in the letter she states, "Our state has a rich manufacturing history and the infrastructure in place to be a leader in renewable energy generation which will create 44,000 jobs in our state, stabilize longterm energy prices, de-crease our dependence on fossil fuels and mitigate our impact on the climate for this and future generations."

Does Ms. Gramlich think wind will generate enough energy to manufacture these windmills and solar panels? Does she believe that the materials used to manufacture these products will just magically appear? What will we use to provide the energy to operate the plants to

The current NSA spying program is exact-ly the same. Government bureaucrats can spy on your phone calls, chats, Internet searches and emails. That's un-American.

State Rep. Tom McMillin, R-Auburn Hills, has a solution. His bill – HB 5420 – would protect the Fourth Amendment rights of Michiganders by banning Michigan state agencies from complying with the NSA's warrantless spying program.

Even worse, is that bureaucrats are beholden to special interest groups that seek to criminalize the rights of the general public.

This smacks of the Nazi regime of the 1930s. History is repeating itself. And not in a good way

Pointing out the foibles of politicians is akin to a perceived anarchy. We, as a free people, need to expose the abuses of those currently sitting in power. Of course, standing up for one's right will ultimately incur the wrath of paid-off judges and other politicos who have been bought and paid for by corporate interests.

Education 'reform' a disaster

Farmington Hills

Let me see if I've got this right. Milwaukee has had vouchers for 23 years and the United States Department of Education ranks them among the very worst urban schools in the country.

Sweden has had privatization and choice for 30 years. They rank below the United States on international testing and are in the process of changing to a public school system.

Chile was schooled in vouchers and choice by none other than Milton Freidman, the father of choice and vouchers. They are no longer financing private schools with public money. Both "No Child Left Behind" and "Race to the Top" have been abject failures. Yet, Detroit News columnist Ingrid Jacques, in the face of charter school failure nationwide, wants more choice and vouchers. Oh yes. On a recent international test that measured creativity and critical thinking, U.S. public schools did better than average. What passes for "reform" in this country is an unmitigated disaster. For too long, we have listened to corporatists, who wish to profit through privatization of American schools and a few wealthy and well-intentioned citizens who are unschooled in child development and how children learn (Bill Gates and Eli Broad). We need to look for improvement by emulating our high-performing schools (Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut) and Finland, a top performing nation that is subjected to standardized testing a grand total of once in the educational life of a student.

Political malpractice

President Barack Obama spends a lot of his time these days (when he is not playing golf) making partisan political speeches and attending Democrat fundraisers.

Obama's favorite political ploy is to blame House Republicans for failing to pass anything significant --- therefore, he has to take things into his own hands and effect, write his own laws to get things done (ignoring the constitution, of course). This is just a scam and an unparalleled political power grab. Here are some facts to consider. At the present time, there are more than 350 bills that passed the House of Representatives and are piled up on Harry Reid's desk waiting for a Senate vote (which Reid will not allow). 98 percent of those bills passed with bi-partisan support; 31 of those bills were written by Democrats. Please call and write your U.S. senators and congressman and request that they vote to sue and impeach President Obama on grounds of over-reaching his authority as president. Mr. Obama was elected president, not dictator or king . He says that the Constitution gives him power to "go it alone." I can tell you where the Constitution says the president does not have that power:

Article 1 Section 8 defines ("enumerates") all of the powers that the federal government, including the president or Congress, has. The 10th Amendment then says that if a power is not enumerated in Article 1 Section 8, the federal government does not have that power. Democrats and Independents must voice and be proud of President Obama's fine achievements. Sadly, they were not stressed during the mid-terms. Moreover, Reid knows that many of these bills would pass the Senate if he allowed a vote. At least 2/3 of these bills had at least 2/3 of the entire House of Representatives behind them. Bills that almost certainly would pass the Senate with big majorities would allow the construction of the Keystone XL pipeline, repeal the onerous medical device tax that no one likes, and toughen the sanctions against Iran.

Obama and Reid do not want these bills to be passed for their own political purposes forget what is best for America. Unfortunately, many Americans are unaware about what is really going on because the Obama-supporting mainstream media refuses to report these facts.

The only immediate solution for the American people is to elect a Republican majority in the Senate in the 2014 elections and remove Harry Reid from his obstructionist role. Then Obama will have to either sign or veto all the bills that will then be coming out of Congress, and his political scam will be over.

Our embassy in Tripoli, Libya, protected by 80 well-armed Marines, was closed and all personnel evacuated because of the threat of terrorist attacks. With seniors on fixed and diminishing incomes thanks to virtual zeropercent interest rates subsidizing government debt and Wall Street profits, the president's promise that electricity rates will "necessarily skyrocket" will put quite a damper on the golder years. Will there come a day when the president speaks in public without mocking or ridiculing something or someone? What's up with this "fundamental transformation" the president promised? I haven't heard any details. How about you? What will a transformed America look like? Will we like what we see? Without knowing the plan, how will we know when they've finished the job? Should we keep voting for the people doing it not knowing what we're going to get? So many common sense questions that haven't been answered. That alone says a lot. Julia Peterson, director of the Secret Service, resigned last week. The problem in the Secret Service goes much deeper than Peterson.

One prevailing issue, not mentioned by the partisan alarmist and talking heads, is the fact former President Bush removed the service from the Treasury Department where it had been for over 150 years. He then transferred the service to his newly created the Department of Homeland Security. Since this transfer, the Secret Service has lost its identity, mission and professionalism as well as being chronically understaffed.

Yes, the service currently is not functional and they only have to get it wrong one time and someone is dead. Instead of the usual Congressional investigations, blue ribbon committees and traditional Washington finger pointing, return the Secret Service to the Department of Treasury where it will not be lost in the vast bureaucracy of the homeland security department. Farmington Hills Who's suing whom?

I read where Republican members of the U.S. House of Repre-

wrong. He gave millions insurance. So scratch that.

All right, let's see what else they can sue him for. How about him pushing to make sure our auto industry didn't survive; he wanted our unemployed neighbors to lose benefits; he wanted college students to pay more for loans; he stalled the job and highway bills and, uh-oh, I have been informed that our president fought against all of those and it was the suers who own them. Now what? OK, he certainly signed on to give billionaires lower taxes, allow corporate leaders to hide profits and ship jobs overseas, right? Nope, once again his suers are behind those actions.

Well, I guess I'll see if I can sue the right-wingers and Tea Partiers in the U.S. House on behalf of all the sane people in this country that have been harmed. Also, gross incompetency and pandering for the rich should be included in the suit.

It's an empty feeling to be homeless hildren forced to sleep outside? That's cold. Today is Thanksgiving, yet across Michigan, far too many people are curled up inside cardboard boxes, worldly possessions on their backs, as they attempt survival on the night's mean streets.

Last week, I experienced for just one night – the agony , the agony of being homeless. It was cold that night – 7 de-grees. I did it as part of Covenant House Michigan's (www.covenanthousemi.org) mission to raise awareness and funds to help youth homelessness.

Covenant House, a faithbased nonprofit organization that provides hope to homeless, runaway and at-risk youth ages 13-22, offers more than shelter. With its educational and vocational programs - it offers hope and pathways to success.

The "sleep-out" event was co-chaired by Sue Snyder, Michigan's first lady, and Jacqueline Wilson, first lady of Wayne State University.

Since its inception in 1997, Covenant House has served more than 54,000 youth, helping re-direct them onto a path toward meaningful and successful adulthood.

Many friends and neighbors helped me raise more than $13,000 as a portion of the $250,000 raised to help people who are homeless.

Lessons learned

Memories of my being out for that one night: aches and pains and a bad cold. The human body is not meant to sleep on cold cement. It was difficult to be productive the following day without a hot shower and a comfortable night's sleep. Yet this was an experiment – a single night in a controlled, safe environment

I can't even begin to imagine the fear, loneliness, isolation and trepidation if this was your reality night after night, struggling to survive day after day.

It was an uncomfortable night, even though we were prepared with insulated boots, long underwear, gloves, winter hats and a coat that turned into a sleeping bag – produced by a formerly homeless woman

(www.empowermentplan.org/

Hard to imagine youth on our streets, lucky to have a flimsy jacket, a pair of Nikes and a baseball cap as their survival gear.

The physical discomfort also came with mental discomfort. Before we hit the street for the night, we shared dinner and a candlelight vigil with homeless youth who are nurtured, educated and sheltered by Covenant House. We heard stories of hurt, pain, substance abuse, violence, neglect and abuse speckled with hope, courage, perseverance, friendship and love. We learned there are multiple paths into and out of homelessness to hope and success.

Today there are more than 86,000 people who are homeless in Michigan. The reasons are myriad and include:

» lack of affordable housing

» inability to make a living wage

» mental health issues » domestic abuse » poor educational attainment and lack of marketable iob skills » prevalence of drugs, violence and gangs » an average income of a homeless Michigan family just $730 per month (www.thecampaigntoendhomelessness.org/) More than 600,000 people are homeless in the U.S. on any given night. Most (65 percent) were living in emergency shelters or transitional housing programs and 35 percent were living in nonsheltered locations.

Nearly one-quarter of all homeless people are children under the age of 18, one in 10 are ages 18-24 and two-thirds (67 percent) are 25 years or older, according to www.hudexchange.info.

Give thanks

The need is great.

There was no better reason to give thanks the next morning than waking up in my box - cold, disoriented but knowing my ordeal was over.

Today is Thanksgiving. A time to give thanks. I awoke after one night in a cardboard box, humbled and full of gratitude for all I have. To those to whom much is given, much is expected.

So hug your family, give thanks and give back.

Your generous donation of time or money will help provide shelter, food, clothing and educational and vocational programs to persons who are homeless.

Our children are a smaller part of our population, but 100 percent of our collective futures

OUR VIEW

Enjoy face time with an extra plate at the Thanksgiving table

All the hubbub about shopping and Thanksgiving Day isn't new to the holiday.

While this year some retailers are promoting special hours for early shoppers on Thanksgiving, others are declining what appears to be a growing trend. With a favorable response from buyers in priors years to opening on Thanksgiving, more retailers are responding by opening on the holiday or increasing the number of hours they are open. The enticement, of course, are special deals.

The enticement back in 1939 for President Franklin D. Roosevelt was not necessarily special deals, but the need to kick-start the shopping season – and the U.S. economy – by changing the date for Thanksgiving to the second to last Thursday in November.

That lasted until 1941; since 1942, the holiday has been celebrated the last Thursday of November, a date set by President Abraham Lincoln in 1863.

Maybe we should be thankful that there is a Thanksgiv-ing Day at all. The pilgrims had a pretty tough time their first winter in Plymouth, with more than half dying, according to various online websites. They could have been wiped out, if it weren't for the Wampanoag Indians, who traded their food in exchange for defense against rival Indian tribes

That first Thanksgiving in 1621 reportedly featured a lot different menu - no cranberries nor potatoes, for instance, but plenty of seafood - than today's feast.

What was the same was that the pilgrims had guests over, namely the Indians, and that it was a celebration to mark the pilgrims' first autumn harvest.

Those traditions continue today, as families pull up extra chairs and put a "leaf" or two in the table to extend its length and accommodate guests and special dishes, though not quite the five deer that the Indians brought to the original feast.

What has become tenuous for this holiday is the part about giving thanks and, for some families, that there is a Thanksgiving dinner at all. In this economy, even if you do have a job, it likely pays less or you are underemployed, meaning maybe not working full time or working at a low-paying job.

Enter Scary Mommy Nation. No, this is not some video left over from Halloween, it is a 501(c)3 charitable online organization that arose out of the concern of some mothers who worried that they would not be able to put much of anything on their Thanksgiving tables.

The result is that in just a few years, through online donations, the group has helped about 4,500 families survive Thanksgiving. Now that's talking turkey.

The number of those who could use some help, whether through a local church pantry or the more comprehensive Forgotten Harvest, can be overwhelming. But as Mother Teresa said, "If you can't feed a hundred people, then feed just one."

This Thanksgiving, there are families and individuals in our hometowns who would consider it a really big deal of a different sort to have a hot meal.

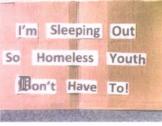

There is still time to make a donation to that food pantry or to extend an invitation to a neighbor to join in the family fare. There is always room for one more plate.

Thanksgiving continues to evolve. Most of the food we eat we have not grown or raised ourselves, but the constant and real point - of Thanks-giving is a celebration that involves family and friends.

And that is something to be thankful for.

After all, all that shopping on Thanksgiving would be pointless if there were no people to receive those gifts.

PREP VOLLEYBALL Novi's title quest blocked by Romeo

Milana's 29 kills denies Wildcats in Class A final

By Brad Emons Staff Writer

Jen Cottrill described her team as "relentless and fearless" and that was once again on display in Saturday's MHSAA Class A volleyball final at noisy Kellogg Arena in Battle Creek.

And although it battled from down two sets for the second straight day, Novi came up just short this time as Romeo, led by Gia Milana's match-best 29 kills, survived a tense five-set thriller to capture its first state title, 25-23, 25-22, 14-25, 27-25, 15-9

Novi, which finished its best season in school history at 54-6-1, nearly duplicated its stirring semifinal comeback from Friday, when the Wild-cats rallied from two sets down to stun Grand Haven.

But Milana, a 6-foot-1 junior committed to Maryland, asserted her authority in the final set as she came up with six kills, including championship point.

"That's pretty miraculous to do in the first place, at this point, at this place in the state tournament ... twice is a lot to ask," Cottrill said of the backto-back comebacks. "(Milana) came back in the front row at the end ... she's a great player, a phenomenal player. We don't have a lot of height and she's hitting the ball pretty high. We made some errors in the fifth set, too. But I'm proud of them. For a team to come back being down 2-0 two matches, in the state semis and finals, speaks a lot about their character.'

Cottrill tried to make defensive adjustments on the fly, but it seemed Milana was able find the floor enough times despite making 14 hitting miscues.

"The third set, she made a lot of errors and that allowed us to get some easy points to give us some momentum," Cottrill said, "but in the end she was just hitting around our block, hitting over our block and that's pretty tough to defend. It was that and, coupled with our errors, especially the

PREP VOLLEYBALL Wildcats stormed by Bucs in semifinals

Five-set win placed Novi in first-ever Class A final

By Brad Emons Staff Writer

It's still the middle of hunting season and the Novi volleyball team is closing in on the big game.

The Wildcats, making their first Class A semifinal appear-ance since 2007, earned a spot in Saturday's championship final for the first time in school history with a stirring come-from-behind, 18-25, 20-25, 26-24, 25-20, 15-12 victory Friday night over Grand Haven at Battle Creek's Kellogg Arena. In the other Friday semifinal, Romeo (44-8-1) dominated Temperance Bedford (71-6-2) in straight sets, 25-14, 25-23, 25-9, to set up Satur-day's championship final.

heading home early after Grand Haven (53-9), featuring four players standing 6 feet or better, dominated the first two sets.

BEMONS@HOMETOWNLIFE.COM

But in the third, the Wildcats were able to stay alive, taking the fourth set and closing it out in the fifth despite trailing 4-1 at the outset as junior outside hitter Paulina Iacobelli recorded the gamewinning kill, her team-best 21st of the match, to seal the victory.

Ironically, it was the first time all season that Novi had been down in a match 0-2. "I don't think we've been ever down 0-1," Novi thirdyear coach Jen Cottrill said. "I think we've always won the first set every match. A lot a character, a lot of fight. We work on it in practice, we do a lot of competition in practice to challenge us, to work and fight and have grit, grind it

Mustangs' Westphal repeats as state champion

Northville places ninth at MHSAA Division 1 meet

> By Brad Emons Staff Writer

There was no sophomore jinx this season for Northville's Laura Westphal.

The 10th-grader successfully defended her Division 1 state title in the 500-yard freestyle with a clocking of 4:54.46 at the MHSAA girls swimming and diving finals held Saturday at Eastern Michigan University's Jones Natatorium.

Westphal, who captured the title as a freshman with a time of 4:57.84, posted the top time in Friday's prelims (4:58.42) and was able to overhaul Saline's Alex McPherson (4:55.25) and Farmington Hills Mercy's Elysse Conn (4:57.89) in the final

"We knew it was going to be a little closer than last year," Northville coach Brian McNeff said. "She was actually in second place for most of the race. She has a great finish, though, and with about a 100 left she started to pull away. I knew they wouldn't be able to catch her after that. Her time was the 14th fastest in state meet history."

with 102 points. Saline edged Mercy for the team title, 267.5-262, while Rockford took third with 202.5.

The Northville sophomore added a third in the 200 freestyle in 1:51.62, with Waterford Unified's Maddie Wright taking first in 1:49.30.

'Laura had a great meet,"

McNeff said. "We decided to put her in the 200 freestyle instead of the 200 IM. We felt she could score more points that way. She was seeded 27th in prelims, so she really had to have a great swim to move up and she did. Getting third in that race was pretty impressive."

Westphal also teamed with Kelsey Macaddino, Alissa Moore and Gillian Zayan for fourth in the 200 freestyle relay in 1:38.55 (after going 1:37.89 in the prelims). Rockford won the race in 1:35.88.

And the foursome of Macaddino, Zayan, Nicki Pumper and Westphal placed sixth in the 400 freestyle relay in 3:33.90 after posting a time of 3:32.11 in the prelims.

Maccadino, another sophomore, went 57.85 to finish 11th in the 100 butterfly (after going 57.36 in prelims). Moore, a junior, added a 14th in the 500 freestyle (5:11.61).

'We didn't have our best state meet performance, but finishing in ninth place isn't anything to be upset about," McNeff said. "We are still a pretty young team, so we still have some time to accomplish

Area hoop teams anticipate start of 2014-15 campaign

Novi, Northville, Franklin Road in rebuilding mode

By Brad Emons Staff Writer

With the tip-off of the 2014-15 girls basketball season just right around the corner, Novi coach Bill Kelp hopes his young squad can adapt quickly on the fly in time for its season opener.

The defending KLAA Central Division champs, who finished 16-5 a year ago, lost four starters to graduation, including all-state point guard Kerri McMahan, who is averaging 11 points per game for 3-0 University of Akron.

The Wildcats' lone returning starter is 5foot-10 senior Alex Felice, who is joined by three other varsity returnees, including Kelsey Miller and Jenna Lowney, a pair of 5-7 senior guards, and 5-11 junior center Allie Lipson.

"The weakness is that we're young and inexperienced, so it's trying to catch the younger girls up," Kelp said. "We have volleyball girls (Emmy Robinson and Julia Lalain) in the (state tourney) run, which is a good thing, but we're also waiting to see those kids to see where we're at.

"I think the strength is that the young kids are learning quickly and they're open to learning and our seniors are setting a good example for them to pick up things quickly."

The Wildcats will launch their season Friday, Dec. 5, at home against Hazel Park, which is coached by one of Kelp's former players, Novi girls basketball will be led by seniors (from left) Kelsey Miller, Alex Felice and Jenna Lowney.

Jessica Haggerty. "She played for me my first two years as the women's coach and then came back and coached with me for a year," said Kelp, now in his 12th varsity season. "She is a teacher at Grosse Pointe South, but just got the head coaching job at Hazel Park this last summer." Meanwhile, Northville (15-6) lost four starters to graduation, including leading scorers Heather Randall and Gabby Mencotti.

Emily Maresh, a 5-11 senior center, and Jessica Moorman, a 5-11 sophomore guard, are the Mustangs' most experienced returnees as they combined for 12.9 points and 9.5 rebounds per game a year ago.

"We have the ability this season to not have to count on just one or two players to carry the load offensively," said North-ville coach Todd Gudith, whose team opens its season Friday, Dec. 5, at Dearborn. "But ultimately how we play on defense will determine how successful we are."

Gudith is giving the keys to the Mustangs' car this season to Mariah Modkins, a 5-2 freshman point guard.

"Though just a freshman, she possesses a high basketball IQ.,' Gudith said. "Our other freshmen, Roan Haines and Kendall Dixon, bring athleticism to the group." The KLAA Central race could be up for grabs this season.

"Within the division, Salem looks like the best team with their top two players returning and a nice incoming group," Gudith said. "South Lyon East has the best player back in senior and Central Michigan signee Gabby Bird.

"Novi graduated a lot, but they are the defending division champs and I know that they will field another strong team. (Livonia) Stevenson will bring in a lot of new players as well from a very good JV team last year. South Lyon has a new coach and it will probably take some time before they get accustomed to their new system. I think we are right in the conversation as one of the teams to battle it out in the division race."

Novi Franklin Road Christian (13-9), coming off its first Class D district title in school history, will certainly miss all-state senior guard Kristen Massey (now at Malone University). The 5-6 guard averaged 29.7 points per game and owns school records in scoring, rebounding and steals as well as the MHSAA record for number of free throws made in a season (213).

The Warriors, who play in the Blue Division of the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference, hope to get a boost from 5-11 sophomore forward Reagan Mumford, 5-6 junior guard Hannah Rayburn, 5-5 sophomore guard Danielle Fusco and 5-5 senior guard Katherine Larabell.

Second-year coach Tiffany Butler will also rely on 6-0 freshman center Rachel Bause, along with 5-10 forward Alexis Johnson, the youngest varsity player in the area as an eighthgrader.

Franklin Road opens its season Tuesday, Dec. 2, at home against Livonia Clarenceville.

'We will definitely be a different team than we have been the past few seasons," Butler said. "We are looking forward to an exciting and successful season."

CITY OF NORTHVILLE NOTICE OF ENACTMENT ZONING ORDINANCE #11-03-14Z

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Northville City Council has adopted Ordinance No. 11-03-14Z for the purpose of amending the City of Northville Zoning Ordinance. The ordinance amends Article 21 Signs, Section 21.01 Sign Regulations as it pertains to LED and electronic changeable copy signs. The intent of the changes is to clarify current regulations and specifically state that LED signs, electronic changeable copy signs, digital message centers, and illuminated channel letters are prohibited in the Historic District. The regulations also state that the Historic District Commission does not have the authority to approve these signs except in cases where they are historically compatible.

The ordinance was introduced for first reading on November 3, 2014 and was adopted by the City Council on November 17, 2014. The ordinance shall become effective on December 5, 2014. The complete text of the ordinance amendment is available for public review at the City of Northville Municipal Building, Office of the City Clerk or the Building Department, 215 W. He may be under the radar, but nobody could argue with the numbers Novi's Emanuel Jackson put up this season.

The 6-foot-1, 175-pound junior, who possesses great acceleration. racked up 2,002 all-purpose yards for the Wildcats while setting numerous school records in the process. He is the all-area Player of the Year.

The second-year varsity player rushed for 1,061 yards (8.0 per carry) and 16 touchdowns, caught 43 passes for 629 yards and five TDs and averaged 34.7 yards per kickoff return with a pair of TDs, including one of 94 yards.

In a 50-33 win against KLAA Central Division champion South Lyon, Jackson had 410 total yards and three TDs, while also racking up 358 total yards and three more TDs in a loss against state playoff qualifier Westland John Glenn.

"Emanuel is a phenomenal player and even a better kid," Novi coach Jeff Burnside said. "He's a great teammate. No one knows about him outside of our division and because we've been down for too many years. And he doesn't have the money to get to camps in the summer.'

But NCAA Division I schools are also starting to take notice, as Jackson visited Michigan State on Saturday.

Jackson has made current Novi assistant and longtime head coach John Osborne a believer, according to Burnside.

"John says he's the best he's ever been around and we believe he's a Big Ten talent, Burnside said of the all-KLAA selection.

Jodie Kelly and Lauren Korth added 13 and 11 kills, respectively, for Romeo, which finished 45-8-1 (including a pair of losses to the Wildcats in the Birmingham Seaholm tournament).

Korth, the setter, also had 43 assist-to-kills, while Katherine Betzing paced Romeo's defense with 20 digs.

Victoria Iacobelli, one half of the potent 5-foot-9 junior outside hitting twins for the Wildcats, finished with a team-best 19 kills, while sister Paulina added 14 kills.

Sophomore Alyssa Cummings, who came on strong in the third and fourth sets, also had 14 kills. Freshman setter Erin O'Leary finished with 47 assists, while senior DS Jennifer Kulie recorded 11 digs.

"They were just an amazing team," Milana said. "They fought. We knew they were going to come back and fight and they did. We had to fight back. We just said, 'Games to five, games to five, 10 and 15.1 That's all we had to do. We worked our butts off and we got it done."

When Victoria Iacobelli got hot on the offensive side in the third set with six kills and two blocks, the Wildcats seemed to carry the momentum into the fourth set, which was nip-and-tuck all the way.

Victoria recorded two big kills late, making it 25-24 and 26-25, in the fourth set. A Romeo violation forced the fifth and deciding set.

"I was thinking, 'We got this,'" Massab said. "I wanted it, nothing more. I wanted it so bad. That's all we could say, 'We got this. This is our game."

But Milana came through in the final set as the Bulldogs raced out to a 7-2 advantage and never let Novi get closer than two (8-6).

"We tried to move our block in more on her because she kept hitting a hard cross, so we wanted to force her hit line," Massab (5-4) said of Milana (6-1). "She's just a really, really talented player because she can move the ball around so well. And I think she shows a lot of leadership with her team. They played really well."

Cottrill also agreed that Milana was the differencemaker.

PREP VOLLEYBALL Wildcats' quarterfinal triumph sweet

Novi takes down Lapeer in three sets

By Brad Emons Staff Writer

Once again, Novi got contributions from a number of different players Nov. 18 to continue its run in the Class A volleyball state tournament.

The Wildcats overcame a tense first set and moved into the state semifinals for the first time since 2007 with a 29-27, 25-16, 25-22 quarterfinal victory over Lapeer at Midland Dow

Novi, which improved to 52-5-1, had four hitters with at least eight kills and four in double-digits in digs.

The reward was a date against Grand Haven, which advanced Wednesday with a 3-1 quarterfinal win over Mason (see related story).

"We haven't been there a lot and we're traditionally a strong program, so it's really nice all the work that they've put in," Novi coach Jen Cottrill said of the semifinal berth. "They've been rewarded for it. It's a great feeling.

The Wildcats found themselves down 20-17 in the first set, but rallied to pull even at 20-20 thanks to consecutive aces by Paulina Iacobelli.

After Lapeer (57-8-1) forced a set point at 26-25, Novi re-gained the lead 28-27 on a key block by senior Olivia Bradford. Freshman setter Erin O'Leary (38 assist-to-kills) then finished the job with a dink shot that touched the middle of the floor to put Novi ahead to stay in sets, 1-0.

During her two timeouts. Cottrill just tried to settle down her team.

"Just nerves, just trying to get them to calm down, take care of the ball a little bit better," the Novi coach said. "We gave them a lot of easy points and gave them some runs and momentum to stay in that game. But I think that we finally calmed down over the last five points and started to rally a little bit more and make better decisions and came out on little bit of time to make that adjustment, but once they started sealing that seam a little bit, we started to slow them down and get some touches on the ball.

However, it took a while for the Wildcats to adjust. And serve-receive seemed to be the biggest issue during the first two sets. "They (Grand Haven) are a great serving team," Cottrill said. 'I think we were just really rattled in the first two sets, because we couldn't play our system because we weren't passing well. So once we settled in there, we could play our system we could do what we like to do."

Senior libero Jordan Massab and senior defensive specialist Jennifer Kulie added 19 and 11 digs, respectively.

Sophomore middle hitter contributed eight more kills and three big blocks.

"It's really the whole team," Bradford said. "Our defense was great and our serve-receive was spot on tonight. It really got our options available. We move the ball around and it got our pin hitters going and our middles. It was really a team effort."

The first set, however, proved to be a bit dicey, to say her rhythm there." Lapeer had its chances in the first and third sets, but Novi was able to answer.

"They play phenomenal defense and they're smart hitters," Lapeer first-year coach Brent Maynor said of the Wildcats. "The (Iacobelli) twins hit a lot of roll shots that were catching us off-guard. We were on our heels and they were putting them short, so we didn't cover it very well."

Meanwhile, the Wildcats continue to put out a wellrounded attack.

"At some point you need everybody," Cottrill said. "If you're going to make it to Battle Creek you need the whole team to show up. We play nine players and we need all nine. Olivia (Bradford) is a senior and we're pretty low in contributing seniors, so for her to come out and have a big game was the key for us really because they hit to our pins, so we had it wide open in the middle. She took advantage of it."

And when things got tight in the first set, Novi was able to rely on its defense. "Just keeping the ball alive is what it takes at this point," Cottrill said. "It's the heart, it's the passion, hit the ball and don't let it hit the floor."

With the score deadlocked at 11-11 in the final set, Lachman went down with what appeared to be an ill-timed knee injury.

It's just spectacular. I think she calms everybody down, makes great decisions and doesn't panic. She's just awesome.

Victoria Iacobelli added 19 kills, including seven in the fourth set, as the Wildcats took a 19-16 lead and held off the Buccaneers, who were led by the dynamic hitting duo of Autumn Monsma (23 kills) and Emily Lachman (22 kills).

"They're great players," Cottrill said. "Actually the tape that we saw on them, they hit a lot of line and so we were blocking them there and they were killing us in our seams and cross court. My right two blockers are the freshman and a sophomore, so it took them a Nerves may have also played a role in the sluggish start.

"We tried to control them and prepare them, but it's still a big stage and bright lights," Cottrill said. "Grand Haven is a phenomenal team, the best we played all year. Awesome team, a great serving team and they were more calm to start the match."

Defensively, Novi senior libero Jordan Massab finished with a team-best 30 digs, while Paulina Iacobelli and O'Leary each added 15. Victoria Iacobelli contributed 14, while senior Jennifer Kulie chipped in with 12.

"I think we just scrapped," Cottrill said. "We let go of the Sophomore Ally Cummings and senior Olivia Bradford chipped in with eight and six kills, respectively, while senior Jennifer Smith had five to round out the Wildcats' offensive attack.

Novi, coming on strong during the final three sets, finished with only 20 hitting mistakes in 175 attempts, with 61 kills (.234).

"There were definitely nerves," O'Leary said. "This is a big stage, a lot of people. But I think once we got past that and started having fun, and playing our game. I think serve receive improved greatly by the end of the game. Once we started doing that it was great.

"We knew we could play a lot better. And once we won that (third) set, it just really confirmed in all of our hearts that we knew we could do it.

Grand Haven, meanwhile, hit 69-of-201, but had nine service errors. Ally Knoll, a 6-3 junior, added 11 kills. The Bucs got 60 assists from setter Katie Čole and a team-best 30 digs from Sophia Newhouse.

"It didn't come at a good time, but I think our team adjusted. We talked all year about how deep our team is. And I thought the kids that came in did a good job in that moment. And I thought our team did a great job responding in that moment and kept fighting straight through the end.'

But the Wildcats were able to elude the Bucs with their relentless digging (91 total).

"I thought they played great defense," Smaka said. "I think they did a great job taking us out of our system. They went short on us a lot and I think we could have handled that better. We had a lot of balls drop in front of us ... it's something we've worked on throughout the year.

"I thought we played tight the last couple of games. It was nothing to do with effort or anything else along those lines. We were just a little tight."

Brendan Hicks also tallied his first varsity goal in the final period from Kevin O'Connell and Anthony Solak to cap the Northville scoring. "One of our team goals was not to be scored on and even though there were times we didn't play as well, Chance made some big saves in the second and third periods," Northville coach Clint Robert said. Harrison (0-1). Alec Wells and Brad Hofelich each picked up four assists, while Nik Tewilliager also added a goal and two assists for the Wildcats, who enjoyed a 31-16 shot advantage. Baxter also had two assists as Novi led 3-1 after one period and 4-1 after two. Manny Legace Jr. went all the way in goal for the Wildcats.

"We played a really good game," Novi coach Mark Vellucci said. "We stayed focused the whole 51 minutes. We gave up two power-play goals, which we need to work on. Northville High 2012 grad Clare Naughton (middle) helped Aquinas College place ninth, the second highest finish in school history, in the 38-team NAIA Cross Country Women's National Championships held Saturday at Rim Rock Farm in Lawrence, Kan. Naughton, a junior walk-on who earned four varsity cross country letters at Northville, covered the challenging and hilly 5,000-meter course in 19:58 to finish sixth on her team and 184th overall. Naughton helped the Saints reach the nationals by taking ninth overall, including fifth on the team, in career-best 19:15 as Aquinas captured the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference title on Nov. 8 in Grand Rapids. She was an honorable mention all-WHAC selection.

Ocelots men's cagers survive Glen Oaks' surge

By Tim Smith Staff Writer

Young Schoolcraft players getting used to the college basketball grind were taught a lesson in what happens when assuming a game is well in hand.

An apparent blowout turns into a bit of a nailbiter

That's what happened Saturday afternoon, when Schoolcraft's men's basketball team led 74-49 midway through the second half, but needed to hold off a late uprising by Glen Oaks Community College to win 95-85.

'It's what having freshmen's all about," Ocelots head coach Abe Mashhour said. "Obviously, we're a very young team, so it takes some learning for them to understand they have to close out games a lot better.

"I thought we were terrific for 32 minutes, we played very well, we played hard. They need to understand that at this level, guys can make plays. Every guy on the other team's a good basketball player. That's why they're playing at this level."

Mashhour, whose squad improved to 8-1, attributed much of the momentum shift during the second half to players getting "complacent" and not protecting the basketball.

Leading the Glen Oaks charge in the final eight minutes was guard Christopher Harris (23 points). He scored 12 points including a pair of treys - as the Vikings closed the gap from 78-52 to 81-71

Glen Oaks (4-1) actually cut the gap to six points (88-82) with 46 seconds remaining before Schoolcraft's Lito Booth (23 points) made four consecutive free throws the boost the lead back to 10.

"I thought our inside people played very, very well," Mashhour said. "After the first eight minutes of the game, we did an excellent job of ... keeping them off the offensive boards.

"We did quite a few good things. Mashhour cited the play of 6-foot-6 freshman forward James Pruitt (Westland John Glenn).

"He stepped up for us. This was his first game where he played quite a few minutes," Mashhour said. "I thought he was terrific, did a lot of the intangibles, blocking shots, rotating defensively.

Schoolcraft built a 50-36 halftime lead, bolstered by back-to-back threes from the right wing by freshman forward Marcus Williams (19 points, a team-high nine rebounds).

Booth, a freshman guard, stopped-and-popped from the top of the key to expand the Schoolcraft advantage to 61-42 with 17:30 remaining.

Freshman forward Davon Taylor (seven points, seven boards in 18 minutes), a Canton alum, went strong to the rack for a layup.

With the Ocelots' quickness and aggressiveness paying dividends, a steal by Taylor in the defensive zone led to a put-back by freshman guard Ja'Christian Biles (15 points), making it 65-45 with about 14 minutes left. Schoolcraft really got it going for a minute or two when Biles threw down a pair of slams, sandwiched around a backdoor layup by freshman forward and Brighton alum Nathan Kamal, upping the Ocelots' advantage to a whopping 74-49 with 11:54 remaining.

Certified Pre-Owned Lincoln Vehicles are Luxury for Less at Varsity Lincoln

By Greg Mullin Staff Writer

Varsity Lincoln of Novi's Lincoln CPO-A-THON is on. The dealership offers no turkey, no stuffing, no pumpkin pie. Just great deals. More than 100 Lincoln Certified Pre-Owned vehicles are on-site, ready to drive off the lot, for as low as $12,995.

Hurry over to Varsity Lincoln these next three days to catch the deals:

» Friday, Nov. 28, 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

» Saturday, Nov. 29, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

» Monday, Dec. 1, 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Certified Pre-Owned Lincoln vehicles come with many benefits, including:

» A meticulous, 200-point inspection by factory-trained technicians

» 6-year/100,000-mile comprehensive warranty coverage » Complimentary roadside assistance

Customers spoke for themselves, detailing their experiences with the team at Varsity Lincoln.

"I have the MKS and I love, love, love the technology in it,' exclaimed Lincoln MKS owner Latanya Tarleton, who has been a customer at Varsity Lincoln for 16 years. "I get the best service here. I never have to worry about anything," she continued about her Varsity Lincoln experience.

"I have an MKZ from Varsity Lincoln; I've had it for about a year now. It's a beautiful interior, a beautiful exterior, it handles well on the road and gives me good gas mileage!" said Lincoln MKZ owner Gary Trudeau. "I love this place. I wouldn't even consider buying a car from anybody else!'

"I'm very, very satisfied — very happy with it," said Rich Lewnau, describing his Lincoln MKZ purchase.

Jason Towe told us why he got into a Lincoln, stating "I definitely love the comfort and the sportiness of the Lincoln.

A 2013 Lincoln MKX Ultimate FWD (Stk # 39131) is one of the more than 100 Lincoln Certified Pre-Owned vehicles on site for Varsity Lincoln of Novi's Lincoln CPO-A-THON.

The cost was a big factor for me, it was actually cheaper than my last car I owned, and I feel I'm getting a better quality car for what I'm paying!'

There are numerous benefits of purchasing a Certified Pre-Owned, including the outstanding warranty that comes with the vehicles," conveyed Jere Law, Varsity Lincoln's General Sales Manager and Pre-Owned Director. "The 100,000-mile free bumper-tobumper warranty that comes alongside all Certified Pre-Owned purchases is better than a new car warranty! Additionally, any time the vehicle is in for a service visit, you can receive a loaner for no cost, exclusively at Varsity Lincoln!"

Loaded with features, a Lincoln will satisfy any customer, Law explained.

'Certified Pre-Owned vehicles not only provide a peace of mind on the road, but also provides a combination of sporty and luxury. Benefits include FWD or AWD, EcoBoost, Navigation, Bluetooth, SYNC, an adaptive suspension, a panoramic roof, and heated and cooled seats for comfort, just to name a few," Law articulated.

'Drivers will also enjoy peace of mind from knowing that Lincoln vehicles will hold their value," Law said. "Any depreciation has already been taken on by the previous owner. Plus, the advanced styling and dependability are advantageous to a Lincoln vehicle's value."

"The warranty is the key with all these cars; with Certified Pre-Owned, you get the best from Varsity Lincoln," Law said. Certified Pre-Owned financing is available for as low as 0.9% APR.*

Varsity Lincoln is the number one dealer in the nation, based on 2013 Total New Retail Sales and Service Customer Satisfaction, per a Lincoln sales report.

"Leasing or buying from the number one dealer in the country gives you the best selection, price and service," Law expressed. "Our dealership is ready for any situation that may arise, whether it is special financing or a specific request. We can handle every unique situation.'

"Our customers speak for themselves and how their experience is. When you read the reviews our customers write online, you can see how happy they are before, during and after the sale," Law concluded.

*0.9% APR for 36 months on select vehicles for qualified customers with Tier 0-1 approval through preferred finance source. Offer subject to change at any time. See Varsity Lincoln for details.

Level One Bank agrees to buy Lotus Bank of Novi

Farmington Hillsbased Level One Bank has agreed to buy Lotus Bancorp of Novi The acquisition agreement follows the settlement of a March 2013 lawsuit against Lotus Bank — with a branch in Farmington Hills --- claiming that bank executives violated the Elliott-Larsen Civil Rights Act of 1976. In the suit, alleged racial behavior was claimed to have led to problems with a customer's commercial loan

The final purchase is expected in the first quarter of 2015, resulting in combined assets of about $800 million, as well as nine banking centers in southeast Michigan.

The final purchase depends on approval from Lotus Bank shareholders, as well as state and federal regulators. The boards of directors of both financial institutions have unanimously approved the purchase, which will include the acquisition of all Lotus stock by Level One.

The purchase is expected to strengthen Level One's reach in Oakland County and to solidify its commitment to community banking, according to Level One. Patrick Fehring, president and CEO of Level One Bancorp, Inc. and Neal Searle, president and CEO of Lotus Bancorp, Inc., issued the joint announcement Nov. 20.

Searles Fehring

Should the sale be approved, the merged bank will be one of the largest locally owned, independent banks in Oakland County.

"Lotus Bank's entrepreneurial culture and client base were closely aligned with ours, making the acquisition a natural fit," Fehring said. "This expansion will provide even greater capacity for us to serve our clients in the Oakland County region."

Founded in 2007, Level One Bank has completed two prior acquisitions in the past five years, including Michigan Heritage Bank in 2009 and Paramount Bank in 2010.

IKEA Canton manager Matt Hunsicker has said the store's success since opening in 2006 has ramped up efforts to extend the self-service furniture area "so it can hold more products and improve our customer shopping experience."

Roth said exterior construction should be complete by spring, with the new section opening next summer on a site where IKEA demolished the former ABC Warehouse store, which moved to the Ford-Morton Taylor intersection.

Roth said the "primary purpose" of the expansion is to create more space and increase availability of the company's products. Canton is home to Michigan's only IKEA store and draws customers from neighboring states and Canada.

Roth declined to say

SBA boosts dining out on Small Business Saturday how much of an investment the IKEA expansion means for the store, which has some 300 em-

Growth plan

The area being expanded includes space where shoppers collect flat-packed furniture to take home to assemble. The project also includes rearranging the customer service section and improving the homedelivery area.

IKEA's plans came with a $250,000 gift as Canton inches toward improving traffic-snarled Ford Road. Long term, the Michigan Department of Transportation has said the stretch of Ford Road in Canton, which has some of the state's highest-crash intersections, could po-

Roth, meanwhile, has said IKÉA's plans to expand the Canton store is an indication it will remain the company's only Michigan store for the foreseeable future, calling it "a great location and a great community."

In other development across the street, Canton Marriott Hotels has confirmed it plans to build two new four-story hotels northeast of the Ford-Haggerty intersection after demolishing the aging America's Best Value Inn & Suites.

Officials say the new hotels, with a combined 178 rooms, could open by late next year. Mike Abdulnoor, regional man-ager for A&M Hospitality, has said the new hotels will complement two others already on the site.

U.S. Small Business Administration Administrator Maria Contreras-Sweet announced that the federal agency is partnering with the National Restaurant Association to promote dining out Nov. 29 during Small Business Saturday. The partnership will amplify restaurants during the national push to support our nation's small businesses on the busiest shopping weekend of the year.

"Local restaurants pack a big punch to our nation's economy, as part of the economic powerhouse that is American small businesses. The restaurant industry is projected to add 1.3 million jobs over the next 10 years and to project 683.4 billion in total sales, equaling 4 percent of the U.S. GDP," Contre-ras-Sweet said. "The SBA is proud to partner with the National Restaurant Association to champion this great sector of American small businesses.

Dining out on Small Business Saturday will emphasize the accomplishments of small business restaurants across the country while encouraging consumers to patronize eateries in their neighborhoods. Restaurants are a significant factor in the nation's economy as the industry's economic impact is estimated at $1.8 trillion. Additionally, each dollar spent in restaurants generates an extra two dollars in sales for other industries, spurring economic activity in their communities and across the nation.

'Restaurants provide valuable jobs and careers for more than 13.5 million people and are strong economic engines in communities nationwide," said Dawn Sweeney, president and CEO, National Restaurant Association. "While the of restaurants, more than 90 percent, have fewer than 50 employees. The National Restaurant Association is pleased to join forces with the Small Business Administration to showcase the industry's critical role in overall small business creation."

Additionally, the SBA and the NRA are encouraging small business owners and community members to share success stories of restaurants in their areas on social media using the hashtag "#DineSmall." This will allow communities big and small to come together and show their support for entrepreneurs across the country.

To encourage not only the public to dine small, but also for restaurants to prepare for the busy day, the Small Business Administration will launch a social media campaign called #ShowUsYourMenu. Restaurants are asked to create a special menu for Small Business Saturday and promote it on Facebook, Twitter and other social media sites to spotlight their business and remind everyone to #DineSmall while they #ShopSmall.

Visit the Small Business Saturday website for a list of participating restaurants.

Holiday sales forecasts blend optimism, caution

Michigan retailers expect better holiday sales this year, their forecasts a blend of optimism and caution, according to the Michigan Retail Index, a joint project of Michigan Retailers Association and the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

While 63 percent project better holiday sales over last year, the average of all retailers' projections comes to plus-1.6 percent. Nearly a third (28 percent) expect their sales to increase more than 5 percent and 35 percent anticipate their sales will rise 5 percent or less.

Nationally, retail organization economists are forecasting holiday spending to increase about 4 percent.

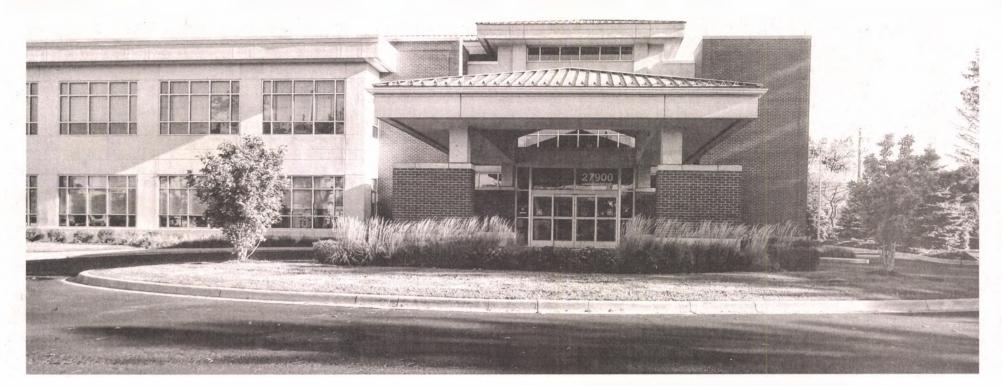

The Michigan Retail Index found improved sales for September. The monthly survey of MRA members showed 53 percent of retailers increased sales over the same month last year, while 35 percent recorded declines and 12 percent reported no change. The results create a seasonally adjusted performance index of 62.1, up sharply from 46.0 in August. A year ago September the Index stood at 52.8

Looking forward, 60 percent of retailers expect sales from October through December to increase over the same period last year, while 18 percent project a decrease and 22 percent no change. That puts the seasonally adjusted outlook index at 73.6, up from 70.6 in August. A year ago September the Index stood at 76.3.

suspicious of the other and there are even aspersions, which makes the whole competition more fun. And the stakes couldn't be higher.

The gauntlet has been thrown by Toyota as it hypes and ramps up introduction of the hydrogen-fuelcell-powered new car called Mirai -- Japanese for "future" -- that it unveiled this week at the Los Angeles auto show. Only a relative few will be available initially, and they're aimed mainly at California at first. Still, the move is nothing less than what Toyota called a "re-imaginat[ion] of the future of mobility" akin to the big bet it placed on gas-electric hybrid early last decade, which gave us the Prius franchise.

Mirai will feature a fuel stack that fits under the front driver and passenger seats and provides up to 153 horsepower, accelerating from zero to 60 mph in nine seconds. And Mirai will be able to serve as a mobile3 power generator in case of emergency.

Able to get up to 300 miles on a tank of hydrogen that can be refilled in five minutes, Mirai represents "a turning point in automotive history," Toyota CEO Akio Toyoda said in a videotaped statement for the launch. "A turning point where people will embrace an environmentally friendly car that is a pleasure to drive."

Elaborated Toyota Chairman Takeshi Uchiyamada, according to Forbes.com: "Prius paved the way by demonstrating to mainstream buyers that the future in mobility would include electric motors. The gas-electric hybrid technology in the first Prius blazed a new trail, that many critics said could not be blazed. The hydrogen fuel cell technology in the new Mirai will do the same."

Toyota wants to replace EV plug-ins with this.

Toyota's case is based on selling the new $60,000 Mirai beginning next year initially in California, where strict emissions standards and associated financial credits have begun to encourage the technology over battery-powered electric cars. Toyota itself has soured on allelectric vehicles in the few years since it forged a partnership with Tesla to supply the battery packs for an EV version of the RAV4 SUV, which is being discontinued, and then tacked hard toward hydrogen vehicles.

Other automakers, including Hyundai and Chevrolet, also have been developing and demonstrating hydrogen-powered vehicles for years. Honda actually is probably furthest along after Toyota, though the company just said that it's pushing back the introduction of its own such model to 2016 or so because it needs all engineering hands on deck right now to deal with the fallout from the Takata airbag debacle. Power-train supplier Bosch said fuel-cell vehicles will be commercially viable by 2025 in the US.

Among the other advantages of hydrogen is that it typically is produced by breaking down natural gas, which is increasingly abundant -- and cheap -- in the United States.

Will the new Toyota Mirai really bring the "future"?

stations.

And hydrogen power can be easily scaled up to larger vehicles, even semi-trucks, while larger batterypowered vehicles at some point don't make sense because they need ever-bigger, heavy batteries just to power them. It's the same problem that holds down the range of EVs.

Classified Advertising: 1-800-579-7355

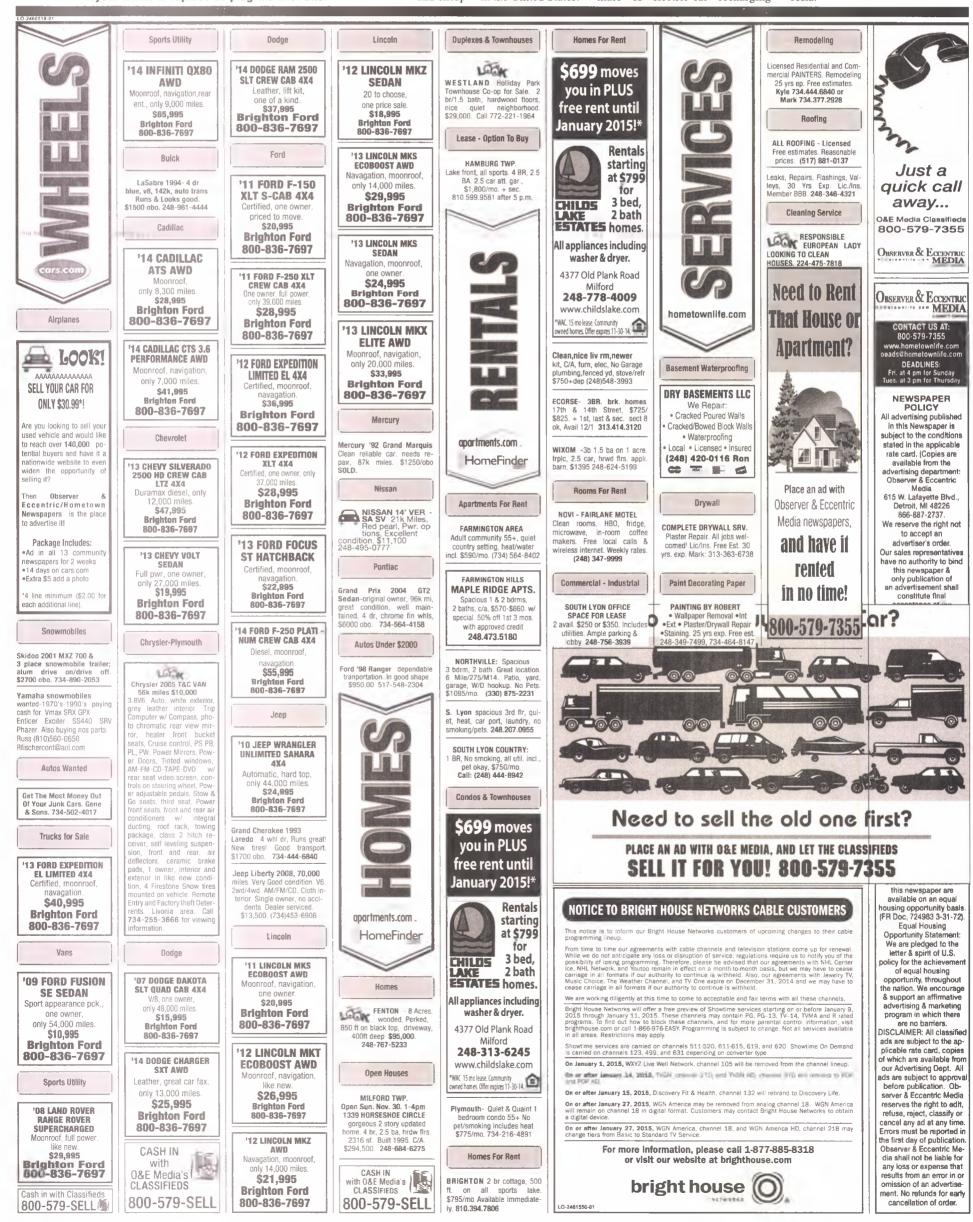

But if you talk with Tesla CEO Elon Musk, Toyota's hydrogenpowered dream is actually a fantasy over what he calls "fools' cells." He has noted the fact that hydrocarbon emissions currently are created by producing hydrogen fuel (though the forces of hydrogen imagine a future where wind and solar power is used to produce hydrogen for fuel) and that the difficulty and cost of spreading an infrastructure of hydrogen supply and "hydrogen filling stations" across the United States would far outstrip the cost and challenge that he's currently addressing: establishing a critical mass of electric-car recharging

Turning to hydrogen power, Musk and others argue, would simply replace one form of "range anxiety" for another, as hydrogen-powered vehicles could only be refilled at specific stations. EVs typically can be plugged in anywhere, though it can take several hours to recharge them depending on the current and equipment.

Despite its recent problems, it's difficult to short Toyota's bet on hydrogen in part because of other big wagers that it has won, including not only Prius but also its pioneering creation of Lexus, in the Eighties, which went on to dominate US luxury-car sales.

On the other hand, we all know that you don't want to bet against Elon Musk either. But that's sort of what Toyota did recently when it reduced its own minor stake in Tesla.

How to: Escape an awkward networking conversation

By Debra Auerbach CareerBuilder Writer

There's nothing worse than being stuck in an awkward conversation at a party with no escape. After several painful minutes of talking about the weather and the latest football game, you finally blurt out, "I have to go to the bathroom!" and quickly run away.

You can find yourself in the same situation at a networking event. Except at these, you have no choice but to act polite and professional, because important career relationships may be at stake. Conversations can hit just as much of a dead end, and without having a clear exit strategy, you may waste valuable networking time.

"The secret to exiting an awkward networking conversation is the same as the secret to getting out of anything you don't want to do: preparation," says Robby Slaughter, author of "The Unbeatable Recipe for Networking Events." Following this sage advice, here are some tactics for escaping those uncomfortable exchanges and coming out with your career connections intact.

The bait and switch

Want to get out of a conversation while still appearing helpful? Try handing the person off to someone else who is better suited to chat. "Use the downtime in the conversation to ask the person what they are hoping to get from the networking event, and facilitate an introduction to someone else who can help them," says Kristi Hedges, executive coach, leadership development consultant and author of "The Power of Presence." "For example, if they're looking for a job, introduce them to a recruiting friend or someone who has just found a job. When they are situated, you can warmly excuse yourself in order to catch up with some other folks there."

The concerned conversationalist

When you've reached the point of no return in a networking conversation, make ending the conversation about the other person -- how you must be keeping him from other important people, places or events. But be sure to close with a clear parting statement so there's less of a chance for lingering.

Sheila C. Sheley, president of Sheley Marketing, suggests using one of these lines:

• "You probably want to find a seat before they start the presentation. I hope you enjoy it.'

• "You should get in that line for the bar before it gets too long, and I should go return a call from my office. Nice chatting with you."

• "I'm sure there are other people here that you want to meet, so I'll let you continue your networking. Have a nice evening.

The open-ended closer

Another conundrum that comes along with networking is the inevitable exchange of business cards and the promise to keep in touch. But what if you don't really want to reconnect? "If the other person wants to continue talking later, but you aren't interested, sometimes you can respond as if you assume it is a general expression of interest and not a specific request," Sheley says. "You could respond with something like, 'Yes, it was nice talking to you, too. I'm sure we'll run into each other at another one of these events,' or 'Perhaps our paths will cross again soon and we can talk more about that.""

The "It's not you, it's me" approach The risk you run with "the open-ended closer" is that you're still leaving the door slightly open for another conversation. If you want to slam it shut, try placing the blame on your schedule or current career situation.

Slaughter gives these two examples of how to be direct with your rejection:

• "I appreciate your offer to meet up for coffee. But I respect you and want to be honest: I already have a trusted partner who works in real estate to whom I send all of my referrals. I'm sure there's someone in your network who has total confidence in your professionalism and does the same for you."

• "I'd love to expand my network, but I am completely booked up right now with current projects and am not taking any new meetings for the next six months. If you'd like to reach out to me in six months, perhaps we can get a cup of coffee then."

The written rejection

Meghan Ely, networking event regular and owner of OFD Consulting, a niche marketing firm for the wedding industry, has had success with this trick: "If the person wants to continue the conversation at another time but I have no interest, I will still exchange cards if they insist but will ask them to contact me directly. If they do reach out, this gives me the opportunity to be a bit more eloquent when it comes to my approach. With these scenarios, I would simply be polite but firm and say something along the lines of how I appreciate them reaching out, but I don't think my skill set/area of expertise, etc. would be of benefit to them."

The phone call fake out

This is likely a last-resort tactic, but if you've tried everything else and you still can't escape, you can always pull the fake phone call from a friend. "You can always recruit a confederate who knows that you are trying to escape a situation," Slaughter says. "They can call you on the phone and pull you into an 'important conversation.' Your ally can also rescue you directly: 'Mind if I borrow Fred for a minute? He's needed on the other side of the room.""
