CLARKSTON

n the north end of Main Street at On the north end or want to the edge of town sits a pretty, pink house with quite a history. This lovingly preserved home was spared the wrecking ball several years ago as it was carefully moved to make way for the Farmer Jack strip mall which now sits on the corner of Dixie Highway and White Lake Road.

The home was built in 1876 by Ephriam and Jane Petty Addis, son and daughter-in-law of pioneers Peter and Mary Addis. Peter and Mary came to Independence Township in 1836 and settled on Waldon Road. They were farmers, as were most of the early settlers here, and they were lucky enough to be successful!

A devout man, Peter contributed $500 to the building of the old Methodist Church which still stands on the corner of Washington and Buffalo streets. He also planted all the fruit orchards in the Waldon Road area, and it is from these orchards, as homes and subdivisions were built in that area, that the streets took their names (e.g. Pear, Snowapple, Peach

Ephriam was only a month old when his parents came to Clarkston from New Jersey. He grave in Charles New Jersey. He grew up in Clarkston, and at 20 married Jane Petty, then 18. Like his father before him, Ephriam struck out for new territory, taking his wife to Saginaw: Unfortunately, after living there several years, Ephriam's and Jane's young son died. They brought him back to be buried in the Addis plot in Lakeview Cemetery, and Jane refused to return to the wild north. So Ephriam built her the house at the corner of White Lake and Dixie, and became a successful farmer like his father. His farm stretched along Dixie Highway from White Lake Road almost to Maybee Road, stopping about where the McDonald's restau-

Since the township's two police mil-lages are due to expire in 1998, voters will be presented with a millage renewal for police operating funds on the

Nov. 3 ballot.

At a rate of 2.7264 mills, the renewal would combine the two police millages into one at no increase to township homeowners and would be levied for a period of four years

"It's the same millage that people are paying right now ... and it's critical that it's passed," said Township Super-visor Dale Stuart.

Lt. Dale LaBair of the Independence

Township Sheriff's Substation, also said the ballot proposal is a critical

"With the exception of federal grants, this is our entire police budget," he said, adding that the community's general fund does not cover police services.
"It's the whole ball of wax," added

LaBair. If the renewal fails to pass, would be in deep, trouble ... we would just close up shop.

Under the miliage rate, a resident with a home with a taxable value of $100,000 — which has a market worth of about $200,000 — would pay about $272 annually In addition to funding services provided by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, the millage covers facility and clerk costs, and enables the township to provide crossing guards, LaBair

Currently, there are 22 staff members from the sheriff's department on duty in the township, including one lieutenant, two sergeants, 15 deputies. three detectives and one police-school district ligison, LaBair said.

While approval of the millage is crucial, voters can rest assured the mil-lage is set at an appropriate rate with economy and efficiency in mind, Stuart

For Kenwyn Chock, the school's physical education teacher — and first swim coach — getting CHS and the community into the swim of things presents a thrilling opportunity and the fulfillment of a personal goal. She's ready to create a splash.

Council opposes school boundary plan | New truck restrictions aim to protect city roads

By passing the two more ordinances in an ongoing plan to maintain and protect the city's roads, council members empow ered police to penalize truck drivers who do not follow motor vehicle code standards.

Following the second readings of Ordinance 127, Motor Carrier Safety Rules, and Ordinance 128, Commercial Vehicle Size, Weight and Load, the council voted unanimously to adopt both proposals.

Sometimes the strangest things can happen during drama

Just ask Clarkston resident Tammy Thompson how her Oakland University drama class altered the course of her career and brought performance back to the forefront of her life.

After reading plays during the class, Thompson was approached by her classmate Lisa Mazar, a singer with the Detroit-area blues band Stoney Mazar and the . Westsiders, ... She asked Tammy could sing.

And sing, they did.

"Our voices just blended really nicely, said Thomp-"She son. asked me to come up and sing with the band."

Stoney Mazar and the Westsiders came together two years ago as a four-piece blues band. Founding members include Dave . "Stoney" Mazar on lead vocals, rhythm guitar and harmonica, Jeff Varilone on drums, Kevin Carey on bass and vocals, and Steve Isner on lead guitar.

Within the past year, Lisa Mazar and Tammy Thompson joined as back-up singers and select vocalists, followed by Bob Wilson on harmonica. Now solidly seven members, the band has begun to play at various sites around the Detroit area, bring-ing traditional blues back into style.

Whether they perform for a crowd of two or 200, the energy and excitement shines through in their sound, And Thompson has found herself in the middle of it all.

They're a professional band," said Thompson, 37. "It's just staying on my toes to keep up."

Thompson has been singing for as long as she can remember. But within the Clarkston community, she works as a pompon coach and substitute teacher at Sashabaw Middle School. Thompson formerly had her own cable television show, "Tammy's Tidbits," and she's no stranger to performance. She has noticed parallels between her work teaching and the time she spends per-forming

From their signature four-part harmonies to Mazar's multi-octave singing style, Stoney Mazar and the Westsiders hint at what's in store for the Detroitarea blues scene. "We're a show band," said Wilson. "We're more than an ordi-nary blues band."

PROPOSAL B IS BAD PUBLIC POLICY

Lostramid all of the heated debate on the moral issues raised with Assisted Suicide is any reasoned, civilized analysis of Proposal B. The specific issue before the voters is whether Proposal B should be adopted, and that is where our focus should be as we approach

We, the undersigned, believe that Proposal B is bad public policy for Michigan. No matter how one feels about Assisted Suicide, we urge Michigan voters to VOTE NO ON PROPOSAL B for the following reasons:

A. This is a BADLY WRITTEN piece of legislation that requires state health officials to regulate an 11-page, 12,000 word suicide law, with oversight regulated by a committee "who is not opposed to...(assisted suicide)" and ...not open to inspection, and are not subject to the Open Meetings Act...or the Freedom of Information Act...".

This bill allows the out-of-state relatives of any Michigan resident to make use of our access to assisted suicide. Do we want Michigan to become the "SUICIDE CAPITAL?"

We must protect our uninsured, disabled, elderly, and minorities from being made to feel a "DUTY TO DIE" instead of a "Right to Die".

PAIN IS CONTROLLABLE. We need to continue to ENCOURAGE the development and use of pain medication and therapy to relieve the pain of the suffering.

We do not want to give HMO's or Medicald a new way to cut cost by ENCOURAGING DEATH over costly treatments or pain medication as Oregon Medicaid has already done.

We already have the RIGHT TO REFUSE any extraordinary MEDICAL TREATMENT. We have the right to receive maximum pain management. Proposal B adds nothing to our right to control medical care, except, of course, the right to kill.

G. We do want to become like Holland, a country the size of Michigan, where euthenasia is quasi-legal they EUTHENIZE OVER 11,000 PERSONS PER YEAR, of which fully 1/3 are nonvoluntary. The legal definition in the Netherlands has been expanded to include such things as mental illness, permanent disability, and even simple old age.

H. In the United States legalizing "voluntary active euthanasia (assisted suicide) means LEGALIZING NONVOLUNTARY euthanasia. State courts have ruled time and again that if competent people have a right, the EQUAL PROTECTION CLAUSE of the United States Constitution's Fourteenth Amendment requires that incompetent people be "given" the same "right"

YOU DON'T SOLVE PROBLEMS BY GETTING RID OF THE PEOPLE TO WHOM THE PROBLEM HAPPENS. The more difficult but humane solution to human suffering is to address the problems.

Candidates quietly duel in race for Senate seat

BY GARY WINKELMAN STAFF WRITER gwinkelman@oe.homecomm.net

The race for Michigan's 16th District Senate post has been a low-key affair, generally free of the ill will that surrounds many political contests. In fact, incumbent Mat Dunaskiss, a Lake Orion Repub-lican, and his Democratic challenger, Clarkston attorney Michael Odette, haven't attract-ed attention to themselves with any brash personal charges or counter-attacks which often make headlines.

Accordingly, the campaign, which ends with Tuesday's election, has been quiet and uneventful. The most visible evidence that a campaign is even under way, perhaps, are the political signs dotting the landscape along heavily traveled roads like M-24 through Orion and Oxford townships.

The incumbent's election signs proclaim "Dunaskiss delivers" while Odette's signs ... well, none have been spotted around here. Yet despite the muted tone of the campaign, the candidates each have their own concerns and message. In anticipation of the Nov. 3 election, The Eccentric asked the candidates about their top four issues. The 16th District covers much north Oakland County, including the town-ships of Orion; Oxford, Addison, Oakland, Independence and Springfield, and Rochester and Rochester Hills.

Mat Dunaskiss

One of Dunaskiss' priorities is what he calls the wise stewardship of new state money. He favors implementing, "wise spending programs and projects with new money for the foads coming from the federal govern-ment and the state government," as well as "monitoring and implementing priorities for the new bond money that will come from the Clean Michigan Initiative, also known as Proposal C, which is up for voter approval on Election Day.

Proposal C is a $675 million bond issue that would finance environmental and natural resources protection programs intended to clean up and redevelop contaminated sites, protect and improve water quality, pre-vent pollution, abate lead contamination, reclaim and revitalize community waterfronts, enhance recreational opportunities and clean up contaminated sediments in lakes, rivers and Dunaskiss said he also wants to ensure that municipalities and local groups know how to utilize the money....

A second priority for Dunaskiss, if re-elected, is to continue building on successes in education, such as "more choice and empowerment for parents and children in their schools." He said he likes the beneficial aspects that Gov. John Engler's charter school initiative has encouraged. He cited Lake Orion as a place where conditions have moved in a positive direction because some of the district's individual elementary schools have developed "a personality of their own.

I want to build on the concept of schools of choice and that dol-lars follow the child," Dunaskiss

He also supports a get-tough policy for classroom troublemakers in order to "provide safer schools where teachers can teach and students can learn."

Cutting taxes is also on Dunaskiss list of goals. He sup-ports the governor's plan to cut the state's income tax rate from 4.4 percent to 3.9 percent "to reduce the burden on Michigan's citizens.

Furthermore, Dunaskiss said trimming the tax rate is one way of limiting the scope of government. "If you continue to lower the tax rate, you lower the amount of money you have to spend on bureaucracy, he said.

Finally, Dunaskiss is urging civil service reform to "create a system that is not so burden-" some to the implementation of state policies" and is "more responsive to Michigan taxpay-

His goal is a streamlined government that's more efficient and less bogged down in bureau-responsive as it could or should be?" he asked. "What fundamen-tal changes can be made to make government work better?"

Michael Odette

Odette, an attorney and for-mer Oakland County Sheriff's deputy, said his main issues include taxes, campaign finance reform, crime and prisons and education.

He opposes principles that would tamper with traditional school funding mechanisms.

While my opponent wants to undermine public education by providing private schools with not compete with public educa-tion," Odette said. "Let's support and improve public education, not hurt it. Public funds should go to public schools."

Regarding topics such as crime and prisons, Odette points out that his background as a deputy sheriff gives him the experience of actual crime-fighting experience and draws a clear distinc-tion between he and Dunaskiss.

"My opponent has repeatedly voted for the building of more. prisons. Prisons are very, expensive and costly to operate," Odette said. "They also are not a cure to criminal activity; prison often times creates a career criminal. By requiring alternative sentences such as mandatory education and work programs we might accomplish better

Consistent with the relatively subdued political race he is running, Odette said he is concerned about the issue of campaign finance reform.

My opponent has accepted campaign funds from the utilities he is supposed to be regulating," Odette said in reference to Dunaskiss' position as chairman of the Senate's Technology and Energy Committee.
"I believe this is a serious conflict of interest. I have pledged to accept no campaign funds, 100 percent PAC free, I have returned thousands of dollars. My loyalty will be to the citizens of my district not special interest

Finally, like his opponent, Odette said taxes are an important issue.

"My campaign motto has been less government is better government," he said. "On the issue of taxes I sound more like a Republican than a Democrat. A few years ago I had a personalized license plate that read NO

"When elected I will do everything possible to reduce the size of our government. Thirty-eight state senators and 110 representatives is a prime example of large government. Reducing the size of our Legislature and considering a part-time, one-house providing private schools with degislature would be a good tax monies. I believe we must start."

The event will be hosted at the Mt. Zion church, 4900 Maybee Road (off Clintonville Road), in Clarkston!

The play, written by Fred Eastman, is about a 1928 family's response to a sudden inheritance left by an eccentric uncle. Woven throughout the play is the presence of an elderly tinker, who works on the hearts of the family as much as he does the grandfather clock he is commissioned to repair. The play is composed of clever dialogue and is

County considers child care facility for employees

By Barb Pert Templeron , STAFF WRITER

The possibility of offering Oakland County employees an opportunity to enroll their chil-dren in a child care center located within the county complex are moving along, albeit a bit slowly. A plan calling for a $1.6 million renovation of the former Chil-dren's Village facility has not been approved but will go to the Planning and Building Committee on Dec. 1.

A special task force that. includes five county commissioners was formed to address the need for a child care facility nearly a year ago, Commissioner Lawrence Obrecht said his concern that a facility offer a topnotch program that is preschoolbased prompted him to immediately volunteer for the commit-

Object recalled that the idea of establishing a child care center for employees first surfaced in the county some 15 years ago but nothing really happened with the issue. In recent years the county has discovered that the lack of such a facility was contributing to the loss of employees. Many of those workers were specifically employed in the information technology areas, Obrecht said. "When we did exit interviews we found out that 10 percent of them left because working for the county wasn't convenient to child care, not just right here but in this surrounding area,"

Obrecht said,
"It's a challenge to attract qualified candidates without providing some creative and innova-tive benefits and child care is a big issue," said John McCulloch, chairman of the county board. "In my other life as a CPA, I see. with my clients and actually parents across the board, that child care is a great concern.

Additional research by the task force showed county employees were missing three days per year each in order to cover unplanned child care

"When you look at those numbers you really come; up with "Little Rascals", chain were some big numbers overall; 1's among the stops for the group.

'it's a challenge to attract qualified candidates without providing some creative and innovative benefits and child care is a big issue.

John McCulloch —Chairman, Oakland County Board of Commissioners

Obrecht said.

"So once we got wheels and things came to the front burner we decided we had to find a space."

What they found was the facility formerly utilized as the Children's Village at the county complex. The building already has several amenities that lend itself to use as a child care center including size appropriate rest rooms and drinking fountains. The center was used as a deten-tion facility for youths under 18 until a new building was recently opened near the county court-

Once the site seemed feasible, the task force, anticipating the services needed by those using the center, decided to recom-mend an addition to the build-ing. Their proposal calls for a phase one remodeling of the existing building and a phase two 5,000-square-foot addition.

The fact that the county has no plans of going into the child care business on its own prompted officials to hire a consulting firm to assist them in locating a private vendor. AmeriCare, which operates hundreds of its own centers, has served as a consultant to the task force. AmeriCare is well known in the child care field and monitors many aspects of the centers across Michigan including licensing and costs associated with their day-to-day operations,

Obrecht said. In all, the task force members visited five Michigan sites to consider ideas for a county child care facility. The UAW plant in Flint and a local center in the

"We want national certification for the facility which a whole lot of centers don't have, Obrecht said, "And personally I want all the teaching materials and the philosophy of the organization in front of me before I make a decision.

When the task force put out feelers requesting prices from vendors they were surprised to find most of the quotes were a hefty $180 a week per child.

Nobody here is willing to set a price of $180 but that seems to be a number vendors are hang ing their hats on," Obrecht said, "No one is interested in building a facility with that kind of cost. The employees can't afford that

Added McCulloch: "If the rates are going to be above the market rate it's not going to be real attractive to our employees

Any child care center established for employee use won't be subsidized by the county, however. Employees will incur all the costs for the service.

"The county is the third largest employer in Oakland County," Obrecht said. "We'd be talking about using tax dollars to offer the employees a subsidiary for something like this so that's out of the question." "We want to be cost conscious because we will already be using the taxpayers' money for the expenses to upgrade a facility," McCulloch said. "And while we are willing to undertake the project in providing a facility, the cost to the provider of the services will be passed to the

For now, the task force will sit down with vendors to see what can bejdone to bring costs down to an affordable rate, Obrecht

Another cost concerns McCulloch has about the project is the $1.6 million price tag that's being currently presented for the renovation and addition. He is bothered by the fact that several major leaders in the child care industry have said they have never spent more than $1.1 million to open a center.

"I want to know why it would Please see CHILD CARE, A7

Each has a new pet program. Both favor continuing to police local governments obedience of the "sunshine" laws. Both emphasize consumer protec-tion. Both oppose Proposal B physician-assisted suicide, and the death penalty. But the two attorney general candidates differ sharply on handgun permits, the scope of the job and whether there's a role for the state in the University of Michigan race bias case. Here's where they stand:

Pet issue

Q, Jennifer Granholm's pet issue is a bill to make it a crime for anyone – not just an educator or social worker – to fail to come to the aid of a child being attacked or abused. Com-

Smietanka: "It's an overextension. For example, if a person in a Kmart sees a parent, or an apparent parent, spank ing a child and they think it might be child abuse, are they and all the others standing in line going to be committing a felony by not reporting it to

View of job

In answering a variety of questions, they showed they have different views of the ttorney general's job. Smietanka's first "to-do" would be joint state-local-federal task forces to go after "street gangs that are multi-county and multi-state. 'I have prose cuted street gangs in my 24 years. If we don't prosecute them, in five years we will be negotiating with them because they will become the power structures in our cities."

Oakland Schools, whose administration building is already part of the county complex, may also play a role in the development of the daycare center. They have shown an interest in taking part in the plan and the possibility of the project becoming a joint venure is still being considered, McCulloch said.

While the task force awaits the approval of its renovation plan, members will continue gathering information to support the possibility of a child care facility at the complex.

Obrecht said a questionnaire asking employees whether they would be willing to commit to utilizing such a facility at some reasonable cost, $140 per week for example, will be sent out

The center will offer space for 100 children, with 18 of those spots designated for infants.

We want to satisfy the board of commissioners that this is § good project," Obrecht said And I'd like to see us moving toward approval to renovate this right now. We really need to start on the facility now regardless of whether it's going to be used for a child care center or not. The building hasn't been updated since the '40s."

COMMUNITY VOICE

Be sure to vote

Here are our picks for local races

t's essential that Clarkston-area residents exercise their right to vote Tuesday. Not only does the November general election ballot carry significant state proposals and races, it carries important local proposals and races as well.

Over the past few weeks our reporters and editors have been interviewing local candidates and proponents of local bond proposals. Our purpose was twofold — to prepare stories for our news pages and to form an opinion on which candidates and proposals we think deserve endorsement.

Following is a list of the candidates and proposals we support. We have limited our endorsements to contested races.

U.S. Representative Dale Kildee should be re-elected to represent the 9th District in Washington. Kildee is an anomaly in Washington; he disdains partisanship and focuses on getting the job done. We have occasionally disagreed with his decisions, particularly on spending and on what appears to be an automatic reticence to cut taxes, but he comes by his decisions honestly and through careful consideration.

His constituent services are exceptional and his role in Oakland County, which is hardly his home base, has been admirable.

In the past decade; Kildee has faced a variety of opponents from the GOP; yet, he remains in office.

The reason for this is simple: Unlike his opponents, who continually try to paint himinto the "tax and spend liberal" corner, voters see Kildee for what he really is: a hard-working, dyed-in-the-wool centrist with a sound ethical and moral base who recognizes that there are some things worth spending money on, but who has a practical nature as well.

That's a legacy that many public officials would do well to emulate.

State Senator Matt Dunaskiss is still the best person to represent the 16th District, which includes all of Independence and Springfield townships and the city of Clarkston. Dunaskiss, a Republican, is running against Mike Odette, who is running as a Democrat Dunaskiss is as Republican as they come conservative to the core. He is consistently conservative on issues like taxation (bad) to education (good, but in need of reform), environment (balance it with personal property rights) to roads (we need to fix them as costefficiently as possible).

Indeed, his voting is consistently in line with the GOP, which makes him well-suited to represent the 16th District, a largery conservative district with a heavy Republican make-

Politically astute, Dunaskiss knows what works and what doesn't, knows who to talk to and who not, and knows how to get things done — a skill in itself. He is also not above, it seems, self-evaluation. He had a problem, he recognized, he addressed it.

Dunaskiss has a plan for the future. One of the next big tasks facing the legislature is the the state's electricity industries. We're not certain we agree the industry needs to be deregulated, but having been through the process with the telephone industry bodes well for an attempt to deregulate the electricity industry. We hope he puts what he learned to good use.

Issue two may be equally important. Dunaskiss said he supports term limits, but ecognizes that with it comes a potential problem — a weakening of the elected representative form of government. As citizen legislators ducks with less ability to compel civil servants to respond to issues. Limiting the terms of legislators is only half the process of government reform, Dunaskiss contends. If our elected representative form of government is to thrive, civil service reform is essential.

His recognition of this as well as his depth of understanding on many issues, shows an insight that should serve the state well.

David Galloway, a state representative who was term-limited out of office, is our pick for District 2 of the Oakland County Board of Commissioners. District 2 includes all of Springfield Township and the northern half of Independence Township. A Republican, Galloway has extensive experience as a public servant, having served four years as a trustee on the White Lake Township Board and three terms as a state representative. He is knowledgeable about the political process and the issues facing Oakland County. As a Pontiac police officer for 25 years, Galloway has a special interest in reducing crime and easing overcrowding at the jail — important issues in growing northern Oakland County. In addition, he is a business owner who is sensitive to the needs of business people.

Springfield Township bond proposition — We urge a yes vote on this local ballot proposal, which asks voters to approve the sale of $4,5 million in bonds for constructing a new civic center. Springfield officials have proved themselves in the past to be prudent in managing the townships finances. This instance is no different. There is a definite need for new facilities. Both the township hall, located in downtown Davisburg, and the library, located on Andersonville Road, were built more than 100 years ago. Neither is adequate — in terms of space or technology — for a growing township entering the 21st century. Township officials have been planning for a new civic center for some time. In fact, they have saved $1.3 million toward a new facility. That, to us, shows both how prudent they have been and how earnest they see the need for a new facility. The bond proposition would result in a modest tax increase for residents. Officials estimate that they will need to levy .85 mills, which translates into 85 cents per $1,000 of taxable property value, or $85 annually for a home with a market value of about $200,000. We believe that's a bargain for a new civic center and library.

Independence Township bond proposition — It's critical that Independence Township residents vote yes on this local ballot proposal, a renewal of up to 2.7264 mills for four years for police protection. Without it, the township would essentially have no police protection since the millages fund the lion's share of the police budget. The renewal would combine two police millages due to expire this year into one at no increase to township homeowners. It would be levied for a period of four years. Under the millage rate, a resident with a home with a taxable value of $100,000 – which has a market worth of about $200,000 – would pay about $272 annually. In addition to funding several personnel provided by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, the millage covers facility and clerk costs, and enables the township to provide crossing guards. Currently, there are 22 personnel from the sheriff's department on duty in the township, including one lieutenant, two sergeants, 15 deputies, three detectives and one police-school district liaison.

Prop B a selfish solution

What will we learn from the physicianassisted suicide option in the country of the Netherlands?

What started out almost exactly as Proposal B, after 20 years, has now become elderly people being killed without their permission. Doctors can and do decide to kill their patients. Lives are considered, at some point, no longer worth anything!

If Proposal B were to pass, it would become acceptable for a person to make a "rational decision to commit suicide." At the present, that is still considered nonsense. A rational person does not decide to commit suicide; if they do, something is terribly wrong,

In the Netherlands other people are making those decisions. Years ago they crossed the line by someone deciding for another that their life was no longer worth anything.

Once that line is crossed, namely, "My (this) life is no longer worth anything? and that becomes acceptable --- as it most certainly will, what government agency, or insurance agency will become the one who decides who will live and who will die?

Already there is talk in the medical profession, "Most medical costs are incurred in the last year of a person's life, let us contain the rising costs of health care

Already there is talk of a "person's duty to die after the age of 75." Already in Oregon insurance companies are encouraging, and gladly paying for, euthanasia as a method of dealing with medical costs. ... If readers believe such things will not happen in America they are naive fools.

Sadly we have become (to a large degree) a nation that wants convenience, that wants a quick solution, that is selfish. Killing another, regardless of how it is packaged, is a quick, convenient, selfish solution. It dehumanizes another. It says, "You are no longer worth anything."

If "B" were to pass, that is what we would become.

Vote no on B.

Rev. Michael Klafehn Clarkston

Proposal B is bad policy

ote no on Proposal B. Every vote is a reflection not of what we a want to be. For nearly a decade the philosophical debate over assisted suicide has raged in Michigan. That debate no longer matters because we are now faced with a specific proposal to regulate killing in our state. That is Proposal B. Whatever your views are on assisted suicide, Proposal B is bad policy for our state.

It is claimed that Proposal B would allow mentally competent, terminally ill people to kill themselves via doctor prescribed lethal dose. Such is not exactly true. It is far more permissive, premised on regulation in secret by the government. Government regulation in secret is the basis of tyranny.

There are many flaws in the very complicated proposal, but I will mention only two. First, the proposal would allow mentally ill or depressed people to kill themselves, as long as a single psychiatrist surmised that the decision to die was not caused by the mental illness or depression. This is a huge loophole, ripe with abuse. Approximately, 90 percent of all suicides involve depression or mental illness. Eyen the Oregon law — they are the only other state with assisted suicide vents the mentally ill and depressed from being killed. Proposal B allows it.

Second, Proposal B perpetuates a dark veil of secrecy over the entire assisted suicide process. Information is power and Proposal B gives the government control over all of it. Of course, the entire initial killing all takes place in secret. Even on the death certificates of the people killed, the cause of death will not be assisted suicide, but the terminal illness they allegedly had. This is mandated government lying. Nor will autopsies be permitted. Nor is any information concerning assisted suicide who is being killed and why — ever to be available to the public.

Nor will there be any legitimate oversight. Proposal B sets up a taxpayer-funded over-sight committee made up of 17, people who all must favor assisted suicide. They are required. to review a random sample of killings every year, and write certain reports outlining compliance with the paperwork requirements of Proposal B. It is unclear what will be in these reports because they are prohibited from including any identifying or specific information. The real cause for concern is that every-thing the oversight committee does is in secret; they are exempt from the open meetings act, FOIA, all of the safeguards that required government to be open and accountable. Finally, after a certain period of time Proposal B requires all information reviewed by the oversight committee to be destroyed!

I am not making this up, nor is this some slippery slope argument. Rather this is precisely how Proposal B is intended to work. It is written to allow the most vulnerable to die and to prevent any oversight whatsoever. In the light of day Proposal B violates even the most basic principles of our country. Please yote no on Proposal B because it is bad policy, bad for the vulnerable, and bad for anyone who believes government should be open and accountable to us all.

POINTS OF VIEW

Treats galore: The trick won't be on me this Halloween

ith Halloween and its coinciding activities approaching rapidly, I find myself in a curious state of participatory limbo. Mine is the age at which trick or treating tests the limits of social acceptability, and the decision. whether to involve myself in this year's festivities weighs heavily on my mind. The voice of common ideology, and even that belonging to some of my peers, suggests that now is the time to retire my costumes. The other day I was discussing the matter with a maddeningly beautiful girl in my psychology class, who savagely criticized me for even considering going out to trick or treat. "You're practically old enough to buy cigarettes," she stated in a flagrantly condescending manner. "Wouldn't you say it's time to stop knocking on doors asking for candy?" I conceded that she had a point. Admittedly, I've past my Halloween prime. I no longer look cute in a shark costume and the playful, juvenile hijinks I once so enthusiastically advocated no longer seem even remotely appealing.

Yet there is still temptation. I have this mysterious notion that I'm going to wind up ditching whatever social or domestic plans I have for Saturday night, choosing instead to go out and ... ask my neighbors for junk food. The basis for this suspicion is my deep, genuine, insatiable passion for candy I love candy. Specifically, I love pastel-colored chewy, fruit-flavored candy. Wholly void of nutrition, it. manages to be an indispensable cornerstone of my diet, and a constant means to joy and gratification. Instan-taneous gratification! Consuming an exorbitant sum of candy yields a guilty pleasure sort of like listening to the Beach Boys: You gain absolutely nothing, but have a sensational time in the process,

So containing myself on Halloween might prove to be impossible. The prospects of having a pillow case full of fantastic sugar-loaded elation at my disposal, gained solely through the generosity of others, is stout enough to overwhelm whatever resistant efforts I may try to mount. I'll throw together some outrageous ensemble, hit the streets, mingle for awhile amongst the elementary school crowd, then go about my business in the most efficient possible manner.

Should anyone accuse me of being too old, I'll tell them that I'm actually an 8-year-old boy suffering from a ruthless pituitary disorder. Or maybe I'll just tell them the truth. I like masquerades, and I like candy, and I like holidays, and I like myself. So why not trick or treat? To let something as meaningless as age prevent such a riotous good time reveals a character flaw much more sinister than imma-

Michigan voters likely to split ticket this election

o here we are, less than a week before election day in what certainly will go down in the histobooks as among the most-bizarre elections in Michigan political history.

I'm obliged to warn readers of this column: I've got more than an acade mic interest this time around. I'm on the ballot myself, running for re-election to the University of Michigan Board of Regents.

Earlier in the campaign, when it became clear that Geoffrey Fieger was making no headway against Gov. John Engler, lots of politicos were thinking in terms of a historic Republican tidal wave sweeping the ballot from top to bottom.

But things can change quickly in politics. The GOP leadership in Congress overreached in trying to milk the impeachment proceedings against President Clinton. To their surprise, the national news media discovered most folks beyond the Beltway were more interested in appropriations and policy — the stuff of governing than in Monica Lewinsky. And Fieger figured out how to quit shooting himself in the foot every time he opened his mouth

So my guess is this: After people get through doing whatever they're going to do for governor at the top of the ballot, they'll go back to being the kind of sane, rational, ticket-splitting voters that Michiganders have always

For example, even though Gov. Engler has a big lead, Democrat Jennifer Granholm is running a very strong race against Republican John Smietanka to succeed "eternal". Attorney General Frank Kelley. Tve seen no evidence that any incumbent mem-bers of Congress, Republican or Democratic, are in trouble. With term limits retiring two-thirds of the old members, nobody knows much about anybody who's running for the State House of Representatives

So voters are going to be scanning down their ballots, looking for sensible candidates from either major x party and splitting their tickets accordingly. For competent candi-dates of both parties, who find themselves condemned to relative anonymity, the challenge is to find ways to cut through the information vacuum to find ways to inform voters that there are pockets of sanity and competence well worth searching out:

It was ever thus in Michigan, at least since the 1964 election, when Democratic President Lyndon John son carried Michigan by more than one million votes over Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater, while Republican Gov. George Romney trounced Neil Staebler, his Democratic opponent, by nearly 400,000. That's a swing of 1.4 million votes, a veritable orgy of ticket-splitting!

In fact, the Michigan data were so remarkable as to form the basis of an influential book, "The Ticket-Splitter, written in 1972 by V. Lance Tarrance Jr. and Walter DeVries. They argued that American voting patterns, historically oriented toward straight ticket voting, had changed in the 1960s, giving rise to wholesale ticket-splitting.

A just-published book by Tarrance, "Checked & Balanced: How Ticket-Splitters Are Shaping the New Balance of Power in American Politics. confirms the trend. Nearly 70 percent of voters surveyed told Roper Center pollsters that they "typically" shun straight-ticket voting.

There's another factor, too, in the rise of ticket-splitting: The mechanism of the way people cast their votes. In the old days, when people voted with machines, it was easy to vote a straight ticket. You pulled the lever at the top of your party's column on the ballot. Not only did this cast your ballot for all candidates of your. party, but the mechanics of the voting machine physically prevented you locked you out — from voting for any candidates from the other party.

Today's machines, either the optical scanners or the punch card, subtly promote the process of working down the ballot — line by line, page by page, office by office — scrutinizing the candidates and voting back and . forth between parties. Sure, with either machine, you can vote a straight ticket by marking the box at the top of the ballot.

But with both punch card and optical scanner machines, you can vote straight and then yote for one or two candidates from the other party and have those votes count.

I'd guess this election will produce lot of split tickets, just like most Michigan elections, where a basically sane electorate searches down the ballot for sensible candidates, regardless of party. But, whether you vote straight or split your ticket, it's very important you remember to votel

Police miliage vote critical n Nov. 3, Independence Township voters are going to be asked to renew the current millage rate for sheriff services. This rate is the amount you have approved in past elections as it has been rolled back by the Headlee Amend-ment or Truth in Taxation. This millage allows the township to provide you with 24-hour police coverage by 15 deputies, three detectives, one school liaison officer and three command personnel for a total of 22 personnel. By contract-ing with the sheriff's department for this service, we are able to provide you with the most cost-effective police service available. It also provides you with the most modern, best-trained and most effective police service available anywhere in the state.

Your township board has also been able to stretch your tax dollars by obtaining a grant from the federal government and the state that has allowed us to add three additional deputies to what we had previously contracted, increasing your protection while saving you about $200,000 per year.

It is critical that this millage is approved. It represents our entire revenue to operate police services.

When you realize that the owner of a $100,000 home is paying about 75 cents per day to have this valuable protection, I am confident you will agree it is a bargain.

County budget surpluses. Each year county tax revenues rise as a result of property tax assessment increases. The Republicans have not cut the tax rates enough so that revenues equal expenditures, thereby resulting in a balanced budget. We should do one of the following: one, cut tax rates to make the budget balance each year, or, two, change existing law to allow surpluses to be used to improve county road and drain systems. Jail officials stay on their toes to keep inmates behind bars

By Barb Pert Templeton Staff Writer

CAlthough several Michigan County jails have recently released some inmates early due to overcrowding, the fact that Oakland County hasn't followed suit certainly doesn't mean it has beds to spare. Make no mistake, Sheriff's Department officials say, there isn't any room at

"Oakland County has been chronically overcrowded for the last 15 years," said Ann Russell, corrections administrator. "I think the confusion came about when Macomb and Wayne were enacting the emergency overcrowding, early release of some of their felons while we worked to outsource our prisoners to other county facilities that have extra space. Allegan County, Clinton County and even a few facilities north of Alpena help service Oakland County jails overcrowding prob-"We have always outsourced to this point but that is not to say that it (early release) couldn't happen here next month," Russell said. "At times it gets very competitive with the other county jails to find places to outsource our inmates, too."

which housed 1,804 inmates as of Monday, has been experienc-ing a swift rise in its population. The jail has a 1,816-prisoner capacity, a number that includes both men and women.

prison population at any given time," Russell explained. "And the women's facility is also chronically overcrowded.

Finding a way of keeping prisoners in custody to complete their sentences is a top priority for the Sheriff's Department. Over the summer, the county was able to reduce its outsourc ing as the jail population dipped, but officials currently have 40 prisoners housed elsewhere and anticipate that number to grow over the next few months.

"The numbers really change on a daily basis and we've been as high as 80 to 90 prisoners housed out county," Russell said.

Harmless fright is at heart of Halloween scary stuff: Halloween dec-

■ Holiday prompts many to search for the big scare. Why is it that we are sometimes driven to seek out fear?

By Stephanie Angelyn Casola STAFF WRITER scasola@oe.homecomm.net

The feeling creeps up slowly from your toes, trickling up your spine until you clench your knuckles white, open your mouth and release a bellowing scream. Fear — we all experience it at one time or another. But Halloween provides the chance to embrace it, to celebrate it, without the actual possibility of harm. Whether that means dressing up in ghoulish costumes, terrorizing the neighbors for candy, or setting fire to a perfectly harmless pumpkin, the day of the dead is just around the corrors.

But why is it that we enjoy being frightened? "It's exciting," said Peter W. Keelin, a licensed psychologist in Clarkston, "There really is no

If you see someone coming at you with a chainsaw that has no chain on it, he said, you know you won't get hurt. However, it causes the same stress chemicals to be released into the bloodstream as in times of true danger

People like that excitement," said Keelin. Mark Rood, 12, said he likes to be scared around Halloween because he enjoys that rush. The best scare, he said, comes from giant haunted houses where thrill-seekers dodge "hands that grab you," "people screaming right in your face," and "chainsaws."

Safety a priority at trick-or-treat time

scasola@oe.homecomm.net

As the little ghouls and goblins head to the streets in search of free candy this Halloween night, local police and businesses remind them to stay safe.

"Operation: Night-Stick," a program designed with safety in mind, will again be in effect. The Clarkston Police Department sponsors this program which supplies green fluorescent glow-sticks to trick-or-treating youngsters in the Clarkston area. The glow-stick alerts drivers to the presence of children as they pass along the streets.

Clarkston Police Chief Paul Ormiston got the program started last year as a safety precau tion for children in the area. He described Halloween night in Clarkston as "wall-to-wall kids." He has been known to direct traffic and help youngsters cross busy intersections on Halloween.

"It's neat to see all the little glowing lights bobbing around,"

All who intend to trick-or-treat

All who intend to trick-or-treat in Clarkston are welcome to visit the policesidepartment, located at 375 Depot Road, to receive their own free glow-stick.

Rudy's Quality Market, at 9 S.
Main Street, co-sponsored the program last year. Christopher Thomas, co-owner of Rudy's, said "Operation: Night-Stick" went over well in the city last year.

over well in the city last year.
"It was a good thing for the neighborhood kids," said Thomas, "I think this year will be even better."

High visibility for costumed kids isn't the only safety tip for the spookiest night of the year. Sgt. Pat Miles, of the Oakland County Sheriff's substation in Springfield Township, empha-sized the need for parental supervision of children, both during trick-or-treat and afterward.

"Parents should take a good look at all items," said Miles.

"And drivers should watch for kids running around." Some basic rules for children and parents to consider can help re a safe Halloween:

Wear costumes or articles of clothing that are reflective or light in color, so you remain visible to motor vehicles.

Make sure the clothing is. flame-proof and short enough to prevent tripping.

Children who choose to wear masks with their costumes, should make sure they can see clearly through them. Wearing make-up is a safer alternative.

Check for traffic before care fully crossing the street at night. Cross at crosswalks or well-lit intersections. Walk along paths, instead of roadways.

Young children should be accompanied by a parent, older sibling or guardian.

■ Do not carry sharp objects. Costume accessories, like swords can be constructed out of card-board. Carry a flashlight and travel in groups.

If you trick-or-treat after dark, go to homes with outside lights on,

Try to stay in familiar areas of the city and visit the homes of family friends. Children under 12 should carry some form of identification with them, in case they get lost. ■ While in costume, stay away from family pets; they might not recognize you and could become frightened.

■ Before eating any Halloween candy, examine it. Be sure the wrapper is securely fastened and the item does not show signs of tampering. Discard anything with a torn wrapper, gers are designed to slip over human fingers — the better to scare you with

They are the legacy of a former neighbor's twisted sense of humor (more about her later) coupled rith my young son's ensuing phobiá about witches

While they tend to haunt me year round when I am cleaning (they turn up in the darndest olaces!), for some reason, they really do a job on me during the month of October. So far this month, I have discovered them behind the piano under the bar, in the crayon box, in my kitchen catch-all drawer, and on the front porch along-side the floor woodwork.

Occasionally, I I catch our new kitten batting one about - apparently unfrightened by their warts and red pointy nails or their potential for wreaking havoc We came into witches' fingers ownership several years ago after I succumbed to a whole lot of begging on my son's k part. At the time, he needed 10 black ones to accompany a creative costume he intended to wear to his kindergarten Halloween party

Since a shopper couldn't buy only black — or only 10 for that matter - I had to send away for a catalogue finger order that would, when it arrived, accommodate seven-and-a-half witches. But that's assuming that they have 10 fingers, like the rest of us.

The fingers arrived one dreary fall afternoon, wrapped securely in plastic and surrounded by enough padding to stuff a living room chair. We had a lot of fun, initially, taking them from their box and pretending a lot of really silly things which I won't go into

Have you ever had a neighbor whom you really wanted to, well ... oh, don't tempt me to write it!

The neighbor who forever changed my son's childhood who stood my maternal instincts on end -(and a mother at that!) who lived down the street from us and who thought it would be clever to dress up as a very effective witch and charm the neighborhood children as they went trick-or-treating.

Hunched, green and uglier than usual, she ensconced herself in front of a house that was playing one of those screaming tapes. When my son - 2 at the time and extremely sensitive and I came naively along seeking candy, she jumped out at us waved her arms over his head and, in gen-eral, thoughtlessly cared the bejeebers out of him.

After that, my son began obsessively drawing witches. Soon, we had hundreds of witches (and some of them were quite good). There were witches to the right and witches to the left, witches flying forward and witches flying in threesomes, witches in profile and witches in silhouette. (I have, in my mothering, burned more witches than did the fools at Salem, I'm sure.)

There is a lesson here and that is this. You never know how some little innocent gesture on your part may significantly influence the life of another.

Someday, when my son is a famous cartoonist drawing witches for Disney movies — and once I have swallowed my anger might feel I owe my old neighbor a word of gratitude.

Meanwhile, I'm thinking about pitching those pesky witch fingers. Except for maybe one. When I offer her that word of gratitude, I'm going to use that one to make a really big point! Happy haunting!

day. The sun was shining and the gusty wind was playfully tossing the multicolored leaves into the sky. While some couples were enjoying a mid-day walk, others were taking advantage of the unseasonably warm weather to get some much needed yard work done.

Most of that beautiful Saturday I had spent in the house cleaning and sorting through miscellaneous belongings, trying to decide what would stay and what would go. It was time to get the house ready to sell. After 12 years of calling this house Thome," it was time to tidy it up, wash windows and shine her up for her big debut.

From one room to the next I moved, trying to view the rooms as if I had never seen them before. I tried to determine what looked fine and what should be packed into boxes and put out of sight. After having my kids clean their rooms, I inspected and recleaned them myself. With garbage bag in hand I moved from one-room to the next, picking up pieces of broken toys magazines that didn't quite fit in the magazine rack, notes that had come home from school and found a permanent spot on the kitchen counter. With great satisfaction, I slowly filled the garbage bag with the little pieces of life that could be discarded.

After each task, I placed a check mark on my list — a list which had been prepared months earlier. At the top it said "Things to do before Selling " Many of the items had been checked off during the line, but now, the day before the "For Sale" sign was to go up, a few remained. "Wash windows, wash kitchen ceiling, polish voodwork..." Most of the items left on the list were things that should be done on a regular basis, but, due to a hectic schedule and a lack of interest, things that rarely seem important enough to command my attention.

As I moved from room to room, vacuuming, washing, dusting, polishing, I thought of the process as a necessary chore. I couldn't think of selling the house until it was clean and, after all, selling the house was an important part of moving into our new home. The excitement of building a new house had been practically all I had thought of Realizing that the day was passing quickly and the heautiful weather which had been commonplace during the past months would quickly become as rare as an Indian head coin made me check my list again. Surely there was something on the list that could be done outside. Indeed there was, toward the bottom stood the words "Paint playhouse." After check-ing the collection of half-full paint cans in the basement and locating the two with the right colors, I ventured into the backyard, paint brush in hand.

The playhouse looked sad. It had been built as a second birthday present for my now 13-yearold son. I can remember the weekend we bought the kit and brought it home. He was so excited. Although he had been told that Daddy was much too busy that weekend to build the playhouse, my son still envi-sioned the picture of the play-house on the front of the "Handy Hut" box popping out, ready to

The disappointment on his face was more than I could stand. I decided to build the playhouse myself. After all, it was a kit. How hard could it be? I worked on that playhouse the entire weekend and late into the night on both Saturday and Sunday. When my son awoke on Monday morning, his playhouse was done, except for the shingles. which my husband put on the next weekend.

The colors of the playhouse matched the colors on our home. It had little shutters that swung open and I installed a real telephone (which had been a free promotional gift). We built a flower bed on one side of the house which contained a little bush like the larger bushes around our home and a sandbox on the other side with a little bench, just the right size for a 2

As I sat there, on that warm autumn day painting the little house, I could practically hear that toddler's voice as I remembered the first time I had pain ed it. "When can I play in it? Is it almost done?" The excitement and anticipation of the little boy eagerly awaiting his own little house seemed to still be blowing in the breeze

As I painted the brown trim next to the windows, I could see the pretend tea parties at the little table and chairs that once sat in the house where roller blades and skate boards now stand. As I dug the weeds out of the sandbox and poured in the new bag of sand, I remembered the minia-ture construction zone my boys had made with their little trucks and sand sifting tools. I rememhered the days when I came home to find all the neighbor kids playing in our backyard, even though my kids weren't

The days of tea parties and sandbox cities are gone. They've been replaced with paintball wars and lazer tag. The little playhouse has turned into a spot to keep water guns and half-deflated footballs. The cute little swinging shutters were used to build a skate board ramp and I

The little playhouse looks rice again with its new coat of paint and clean sandbox, but painting it was one of the toughest jobs on my list, Some little pieces of life are hard to discard even though they have really been gone for

Family Court forum is Nov. 5

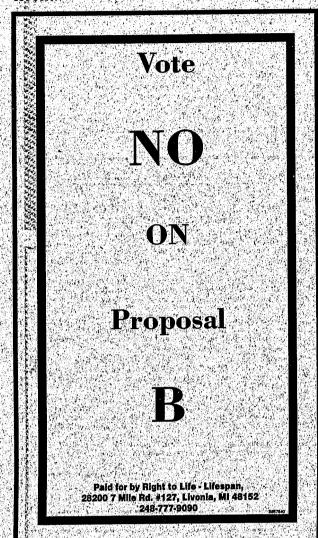

"The Family Court One Year Later: Success or Failure," will be the topic of an Oakland County Bar Association seminar on Thurs-day, Nov. 5. It will explore operations of one of Michigan's most far reaching court reforms.

The session will run from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Cakland Bar Center, 1760 S. Telegraph, north of Square Lake Road, Bloomfield Hills. Pre-registration at $50 for members is recommended. Prices are $55 at the door and $70 and $75 for non-members.

Speakers will include Chief Circuit Judge Edward Sosnick; family division Judge Joan Young; Joseph Salamone, Oakland County Friend of the Court; and Robert L. Ingham, family division adminis-

They will discuss specific recommendations from several sources, including the annual bench/bar conference and individuals.

"It's harder but we have been successful in outsourcing some of our females out of county," she said, The Oakland County Jail cur-rently houses 225 female inmates. That number includes 24 in the work release program, 185 housed in the jail and the remaining 16 outsourced to facilities in other counties.

Once prisoners, both male and female, have been transferred to another county; they generally finish their sentence at that location. Upon their release, Oakland County incurs the cost of proyiding the inmate a bus ticket back to the county.

ticket back to the county.

Agreeing to play host to felons from larger county jails can be financially lucrative for the smaller county facilities, Russell said. For example, Allegan County currently has 20 inmates from Oakland County and collects $35 per day for each prisoner.

prisoner. "Overall, it costs us $73 a day to house each prisoner here, and of course Allegan's costs would day, he be more than $35 per day, but prison they want to give us a competitive rate," Russell said. "We also take on the costs involved in transporting the prisoners to the outsource site.

oners to the outsource site.

Picking up the tab for the confinement and transportation of felons who might otherwise be released early due to crowding is just another option the Sheriff's Department has in housing its growing prison resulption. prison population.

In addition to the main jail, the county has three different facilities at Brown Road that serve as satellite locations for housing prisoners A minimum security boot camp houses 60 inmates, a Trustee Camp houses 150 and the Frank Greenan medium security facility has a capacity of "All of our satellite sites are at capacity right now," Russell said, "And every day there is movement involving the inmates as they go back and forth between our jail and those facilities."

Other efforts aimed at accommodating the jail's growing population include the 1989 opening of a 488-bed addition to the main prison facility.

"That probably, for a year, relieved the overcrowding problem, but things soon went back to beyond capacity numbers.

Full house: The Oakland County Jail, which housed 1,804 inmates as of Mon! day, has been experiencing a swift rise in its population. The jail has a 1,816prisoner capacity, a number that includes both men and women.

■ 'We have always outsourced to this point, but that is not to say that it (early release) couldn't happen here next month. At times it gets very competitive with the other county jails to find places to outsource our inmates, too.'

Ann Russell Corrections administrator

Current plans which call for the medical examiner moving from the administration building in January will mean some addi-tional space for housing inmates, but the total number of new cells will be less than two dozen.

The plan calls for the Sheriff's adminis trative offices to be moved into the vacated medical examiner offices. Then the old administration offices will be converted to an observation unit with 20 additional cells and a direct observation unit for offi-

Those showing bizarre behavior or suicidal tendencies will be housed in these cells," Russell said. "We don't have enough cells to accommodate these prisoners so having these cells will eliminate the need to have individual officers assigned to watch prisoners in a one-on-one basis."

The new observation unit is scheduled to open in July 1999.

Phone customers cautioned about scam

BY PAT MURPHY STAFF WRITER

Ameritech is aware of — but not overly concerned about — a scam that could prove expensive for businesses in Oakland County and elsewhere.

It's the "dial 9, 0 and #" scam under which businesses might unknowingly make one of their phone lines available to an unauthorized, outside caller who can charge long distance phone calls to the company,

The scam works like this: An outside caller phones somebody at a business, falsely identifying himself or herself as an Ameritech employee. The caller asks the person to press a series of digits — in this case 9, 0 and # on their phone to test the line.

"We've had calls about this scam for about a year," said Ameritech spokeswoman Sara Snyder, "But most of those calls have been from media people, We haven't had a lot of complaints from customers. I think there was a story about the scam on the Internet." Snyder said Ameritech had not received any complaints from any business that had actually been charged for unauthorized long distance phone calls.

A lawyer in Bloomfield Township, however er, called The Eccentric Newspapers to com-plain he had received a call from somebody who said they were running a check on his phone lines. Instead of dialing "9, 0 and #" as instructed, the lawyer, who asked not to be identified, said he called Ameritech.

Ameritech acknowledged the scam was possible, the lawyer said, and the company confirmed the possibility of unauthorized phone calls being billed to an unsuspecting business.

Snyder said Ameritech is currently unaware of this scam causing problems. But the potential is there, she said.

Consequently, Snyder had a note of cau-

TIPS TO AVOID TELEPHONE SCAMS

Ameritech has no way of determining the impact, if any, the "9, 0 and #" scam has had on customers in the metro area, according to spokeswoman Sara Snyder.

In March, however, Ameritech's Chicago office issued a news release acknowledging the scam and warning customers about the potential for trouble.

The release notes that Ameritech representatives do not have to call customers to test a line because lines can be checked for trouble remotely.

Ameritech also issued some tips to business customers to better guard against this scam and others that con artists

■ Educate employees about "social engineering," that is somebody calling them at work posing as an employee or somebody familiar to the company. Often citing specific information about the company to establish false credibility, the caller asks the person to dial digits connecting them to an operator or outside line.

■ Instruct after-hours cleaning person-nel to guard against answering the phone. ■ Remember that phone company rep-resentatives will never ask you to provide confidential personal identification num-tion to customers, commercial or residential. "Ameritech will never say we are checking or monitoring lines and ask you to call," she said. "We have the most sophisticated equipment available, and we do not need a cus-tomer to call us in order to run a check."

Map out or chart phone usage during month or quarter. Once a company establishes a pattern of usage, unusual spikes, possibly indicating illegal usage, will be easier to identify.

■ Encourage employees to keep calling card numbers, access codes and passwords confidential. /

Limit phone access after hours.

■ Work with your voice mail provider to assure your system is secure.

Change any default passwords provided by telephone equipment manufac-

■ Exercise caution when returning pager or Caller ID numbers that aren't familiar. Some seemingly innocent numbers actually may be very high-priced international numbers set up to gouge callers. Examples are numbers that begin with area codes in the Caribbean such as 242, 246, 264, 268, 284, 345, 441, 473, 649, 664, 758, 767, 809, 868, 869 and 876.

tance phone calls on their bill, it still has recourse, Snyder said. "The company should contact its phone company and discuss the problem and circumstances," she said. While most companies have their own policy for dealing with unhappy customers, Ameritech reviews each case on an individual basis, Snyder said.

OAKLAND DIGEST

Birmingham

The Birmingham Area Cablecasting Board has pulled the trigger on the formal franchise renewal process with MediaOne in'a move that it hopes will speed up a resolution of the longstanding negotiations.

Although the communities Birmingham, Beverly Hills, Franklin and Bingham Farms previously authorized the formal action if it was deemed necessary, attorneys want those communities to ratify the resolution passed last week by the board, said its chairman, Stephan Hall.-- MediaOne has until Dec. 1 resent a formal proposal. The Cablecasting Board has been in negotiations with the firm for more than a year.

MaryEllen Dohrs made it her mission in life to remedy the dry white meat problem. And her mission has been accomplished.

Dohrs, a Troy resident, has invented a poultry roasting rack that turns the bird upside down (or rather right side up,) allowing juices from the backbone to cook into the meat. With the help of her neighbor, marketing director Guy Williams, Dohrs made a deal with Farmer Jack to carry her rack just in time for the holiday season.

Southfield

The Southfield school district will open the doors of each of its schools for the second annual alldistrict open house from 2-4 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 1.

The event is designed to showcase the programs at each school and attract and keep students in the public school system. Each school will offer building tours, demonstrations, informational tables and performances.

Wolves meet Dragons with playoffs on line

For the first time in at least several years, the Clarkston-Lake Orion prep football game has more meaning than just a heated rivalry, with playoff implications for both teams hinging on this season finale.

By Brad Kadrich bkedrich@ôe.homecomm.net

Ordinarily, Clarkston-Lake Orion is enough of a rivalry to make it exciting.

Throw in a shot at a league title and state prep football playoff implications, and suddenly the Game of the Year takes on a whole new meaning. The Wolves and Dragons hook it up Friday in their annual season finale, and the game has more meaning than any in recent years. Lake Orion (7-1 overall, 3-1 Oakland Activities Association Division I) can claim at least a share of the OAA I title with a win, The Dragons also lead their Class AA region in playoff points. Win, and the Dragons

Clarkston, on the other hand, sits 6-2 overall, 2-2 in the league. It would take a string of upsets - Troy, Lake Orion and Rochester Adams would all have to lose - for the Wolves to garner a share of the league title. But a win - combined with a loss by at least one other team ahead of them in the region - could get Clarkston into the playoffs, For their part, the teams are trying to treat it like any other game, despite the meaning. "It's (for) a league title, but we're approaching it the same (as any other game)." Lake Orion coach Chris Bell said. "Clarkston is a very good football team, and we know that."

In addition to all the league and playoff implications, it's also the last game of their careers, unless they make the playoffs, for the seniors involved in the

"." It's not just Lake Orion," Clarkston coach Kurt Richardson said, "It's the last game for the seniors. That's pretty emotional, whether you're playing Lake

The game itself should be an interesting contrast in styles. The Dragons employ a high-octane passing offense featuring senior quarterback Darren Tooley and wideout Adam Eldridge. Lake Orion also has a capable runner in Steve Seargeant, who has shown Rochester Adams and Troy Athens, among others, that he can help Lake Orion control the ball.

But the most impressive part of the Dragons' game might be their defense. Led by transfer student Tim Clouse and juniors like Zak Keasey and Matt Wohlgemuth, the Dragons have stifled just about everyone. They gave up

Wolves upend Adams for district title

BY DANIEL STICKRADT STAFF WRITER dstickradt@oe.h

In the back of his mind, Clarkston soccer coach Dan Fitzgerald was all set to schedule a date for his team's post-season get-together where everyone on the Wovles' roster could hand in their uniforms. Therefore, it comes as no surprise that his team's 2-1 district final upset over Rochester Adams was the biggest in school history.

We've won a couple districts in the '90s, but never where we'were a heavy underdog. So, with that in mind, I'd have to say that this is probably the biggest win in this program," offered Fitzgerald "Adams came in ranked very high in the state, they beat us earlier in the season; and we had a sub five-hundred record. This was a very big surprise.

Adams, ranked sixth in Division I, had recently captured its second straight Oakland Activities Association Division I title, while Clarkston had struggled to a fourth-place finish in the OAA Division II. But thanks to first-half goals from senior midfielder Tom Dews and senior forward Eric Klemm, and stellar defen-sive play from senior Russ Parrott and junior Mike Tharrett, the Wolves were

Athens tops Wolves in OT

BY BRAD KADRICH

For the first 32 minutes of Tuesday's Oakland Activities Association Division I basketball game, the Clarkston Wolves kept trying to hand a win to Troy

In the final four minutes, the Red Hawks graciously accepted it.

Athens, the division leader, outscored Clarkston 13-4 in an extra session, pulling away to a 39-30 overtime win on the Wolves' home floor The Wolves, who led the defensive battle just twice, committed 26 turnovers and suffered through a poor shooting night that allowed the Red Hawks, who weren't exactly burning up the nets, to "No offense to them, but we beat ourselves." Clarkston coach Ann Lowney said. "They beat us in overtime, but we beat ourselves in the first 32 minutes. It looked like the Wolves would pick up the win despite the erratic play when senior guard Deana Kanipe nailed a short baseline jumper with 1:51 left in regulation to put Clarkston up 24-20. But Jessica Haney converted a threepoint play and Olsen drained a 3-pointer around a pair of free throws from Kanipe

Both teams missed last-second shots. and the Red Hawks then took over in overtime. Clarkston scored just two field: goals - one from freshman Kave Christie with 2:31 left, the other a leaner in the lane from Kanipe with 22 seconds remaining

Meanwhile; Troy Athens used free throws to pull away. Sarah Moulik, Olsen and Chrissy Irwin each hit a pair, and Olsen added another with 2.8 seconds left to close out the scoring. 💠

"There was a tremendous momentum": shift," Lowney said. "I think we just wore

The Wolves played a tremendous defensive game, particularly on Athens's Julie Wartchow in the post. Wartchow finished with 15 points, but got nine of them from the free throw line and was never really an inside factor before foul-ing out in the fourth quarter. In fact, the Red Hawks hit just two field goals in the entire first half - a 6-: pointer from Marisa Eubank with 1:05 left in the first quarter and another 3-pointer, from Janelle Olsen, 1:25 into the second quarter. The teams were tied, 8-8, at halftime.

Clarkston was led by junior Rachel Uchman, who scored 11 points, including all eight of the Wolves first-half points. She also grabbed 11 rebounds. Kanipe also scored 11 points, while Christie finished with six. Corinne McIntyre had seven rebounds.

The Wolves travel to Rochester Adams to play the Highlanders today (Thursday), then travel to West Bloomfield Tuesday. Game time both nights is 7 p.m.

Jolly Juniors: Clarkston's boys' cross country team, led by the junior running pack that includes (in no particular order) David Sage, Kevin Breen, Chris Weber, Matt Haver, Dan Burke, and Brent Quantz and baseball playerJohn Drallos has enjoyed a good deal of success this season:

Youngsters keep Wolves on their feet

When the 1996 crosscountry season started, Clarkston boys coach Mike Taylor quickly became excited about his freshman

Last year Clarkston, placed fourth at the Holly regional, missing the cut by about a dozen points. Although this particular

The top three teams, plus the top 10 individuals not on qualifying teams, qualify for the state finals on Nov. 7 in Brooklyn. An additional fourth team can also qualify if they place four runners inside the top 20 at the regional, but that has happened only twice in Michigan during the past decade, the last being the West Bloomfield, girls squad in 1991.

"The guys will all have to go out and run smart and competitive races," said Taylor. "We have a lot of teams to worry about. Every second and every place will count in this region, One point could make the difference because there will be some good teams going home empty-handed."

The Wolves know the feeling of disappointment after last year's shortcoming and are ready to make a strong showing at this weekend's regional. "This will be the big test for us," said Sage, who has the fastest time of the group this year with a 15:47 clocking, "We all understand what's at stake."

Clarkston was considered one of the top teams in Oakland County heading into the season, and despite not cracking the state's top 10 list, the Wolves have really hounded the competition on this side of town.

Gawecki, a 5-foot-8 senior for-ward from Lake Orion, had her want from Lake — pouring in career-high 15 points with 14 rebounds four steals and three blocked shots — in leading the Dragons to an impressive 62-39 Oakland Activities Association Division II road win over Bloom-

Gawecki created plenty of space in the paint for 6-foot senior Jennifer Johnson, who collected a game-high 25 points to go along with 12 rebounds. Senior guard Libby Nelson also had a fine floor game for the Dragons (3-12, 2-6) with four points and 10 assists.

"I think I had more success because I played against a bunch Gawecki. I think the whole of players that were close to my team had a lot of energy out size," said Gawecki. "I'm one of and playing with Jennifer Johnson, they guard her pretty close. Tonight, they left me open, so I was able to kick it back out or I could take it in myself. And when they collapsed on me, it left Jennifer Johnson wide open and I dished it in to her."

The last time these two league rivals met, Lahser generated an uptempo offense and held on for a one-point victory over Lake Orion. But the Dragons slowed it down this time around, and the Knights had problems on the assult as they shot just 10-50 from the field.

"I think we play better with more of an uptempo style," said Lahser coach Chris Drogosch. "(Lake Orion) slowed it down we had a hard time penetrating against their man-toman.

The Knights did keep the Dragons from scoring during the first 1:55 of the third quarter, but Lake Orion closed out the third period with a 8-3 mini-run before cruising to the victory.

Junior guard Cassie Yonick led Lahser (8-7, 4-3) with 10 points, while sophomore guard Vanessa Thompson had six points, five rebounds and four steals, and junior forward Karla Hudson collected five points and 11 rebounds for the Knights.

"We are a young team, but we have been playing very well as of late," said Drogosch.

Not bad for a group of six juniors and one senior standout baseball player.

"We do have kind of an unusual group," said Taylor. "It's not very common that a team is led by six juniors and a baseball player. But they are all good kids. Winter is approaching quickly and it's time to blow the dust off those skis and equipment. As with many sports, the cost of equipment has skyrocketed. Pine Knob and other area ski patrols are assembling ski swaps as this time, affording many the opportunity to ski at reduced equipment costs.

Swaps offer thousands of skis, boots, poles and clothing. For snow boarders, the swap has a special area set aside in this fast growing market. Some of these skis have never been skied on before and are from area deal-

Pine Knob's ski swap is 9 a.m to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 30, and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 31. Want to get rid of it?

We can't blame you.

How about joining the 3-2-1—SOLD! club?

If you've been out in the garage, down in the basement or up in the attic recently and said to yourself, "Gosh, I'd love to get rid of some of this stuff, but it would cost too much to advertise it?" Our 3-2-1—SOLDI offer is just what you need when you have things to sell for under $200,

Here's how it works:

1. You get 3 lines to describe your item (remember, you have to be asking less than $200)

2. You get to run your ad for 2 days (one week) 3. You get 1 low price just $19.95.

Call us today.

You could say our 3-2-1 plan is as easy as 1-2-31

We're a whole lot closer to home.

Whether you're looking for a job or looking for someone to help you get the job done, your Hometown Classifieds are the place to look:

Let's face it, if you're hiring these days you know how hard it is to find just the right person. You don't want someone from three counties away who has to spend hours battling traffic—not with the weather they're predicting for this winter.

You want to look for people right here, maybe not in the neighborhood, but close enough to arrive fresh and ready to work.

It's the same when you are making a job change. You want something close enough to keep you out of the '90s gridlock that's going on out there.

You want enough time in the morning to get a calm start and you don't want to spend half your paycheck on gas. You, too, would probably like something close to home.

Well, we have the answer for you.

Hometown Classifieds—the classifieds in The Observer & Eccentric, HomeTown, and Mirror Newspapers is an employment powerhouse.
We list hundreds of jobs; many of them are right in your own backyard!

We've put them online, too, so you can access them anytime at oeonline.com

It's a wonderful thing!—thousands of employers and employees getting together through our Hometown Classifieds.

You could be one of them!

Don't sign contract blind

Q: I own a lot and am interested in building a house on it. I was approached by a builder who suggested that I pay for construction financing through an affiliate and he wants 11-1/2 percent for construction financing.

I haven't signed the contract yet and also he wants to put a mortgage on my present home for the sale proceeds on the new home. Is this an up-and-up arrangement?

A: Unfortunately, I have had to counsel several clients who have come to me after signing what I would consider an unconscionable building contract for the construction of a home.

In these contracts, the builder, in effect, gets all of his money up front by providing a construction loan in the full amount through an affiliated loan company to the builder. The contracts typically require substantial interest payments well in excess of the going rate without any assurance in the contracts as to when the house will be com-

It again manifests the ever-present maxim that it is absolutely essential for anyone, either buying or building a house, to have an experienced real estate attorney review the purchase or building contract before it's signed.

There are too many unscrupulous builders and/or sellers who are taking advantage of naive purchasers who then find themselves in overhearing contracts without any real recourse.

Another provision to look out for is a mandatory arbitration clause, which keeps the purchaser from pursuing the unscrupulous buildenor seller in court, from seeking all damages which the law allows.

Before you fall in love with your dream house, as Sandra Marshall might advise you, take a deep breath and find out if you're truly compatible, Marshall, 41, who works at an information technology company, suffers from a condition she knows as multiple chemical sensitivities.

In more than two years of searching for a house to buy, Marshall had to walk away from some she really wanted but knew she couldn't live in.

At one point, her hunt for the healthy house took her to a property in Farmington about a mile from downtown, "A nice little ranch," Marshall said, "three bedrooms, basement, wood floors, openfloor plan."

There hadn't been any recent major renovations, which could present dangers to her from certain ingredients in some of the fresh building materials.

She was ready to put in her offer, at the asking price because she was so eager to own the house, but an item on the seller's disclosure form stopped her. She learned that monthly for the previous year the interior of the house had been sprayed for carpenter ants.

been sprayed for carpenter ants.
Giving up the house, she said, "was heartbreaking." The problem, she said, wasn't the ants but the residue of the insecticide, which could linger for an indeterminate period, maybe forever, and make her ill.

Marshall's home search has been aided by her agent, Carole Glass of RE/MAX in the Hills, Bloomfield Hills. Glass said she made a detailed log of Marshall's special requirements.

When Glass comes upon a house listing that fits for size, location and price, she then has some detective work to see if it meets the other needs. Generally, Glass said, houses built between 1960-1980 seem more likely to be OK for Marshall because of the construction materials most commonly used in that period.

Marshall isn't unique in her reaction to allergens, toxins and other poisonous substances, although no estimates seem to be readily available as to the percentage of the population which shares her condition and its related difficulties. But those reactions and difficulties don't go unnoticed.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency operates an Indoor Environmental Program in which Eric Glatstein is an engineer in the Chicago regional office.

regional office.

"It's really important to think about biological contaminants," he said. For example, he said, consider the value of "minimizing conditions that promote information on the subject of healthy house is available from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, Environmental Assistance Division (MDEQ, EAD), P.O. Box 30457, Lansing MI 48909-7957.

The U.S. EPA, Washington, D.C. 20460 publishes The Inside Story/A Guide to Indoor Air Quality which lists many publications and books such as the Nontoxic Home: Protecting Yourself and Your Family from Everyday Toxics and Health hazards, by Debra Lynn Dadd.

The American Lung Association, (800) 543-LUNG, offers a home air pollution brochure, according to MDEQ; EAD.

It appears that there are four categories of concerns for Marshall and other sufferers:

other sufferers:

What the house is built of:

■ What chemicals or other substances have been applied in or around

■ What possible hazards, such as high-tension power lines, are on the property's environment; and

■ What additional life forms have moved in with the humans.

Construction matters are of great interest to Stephen D. Paul, manager of occupational safety and health with Clayton Environmental Consultants, Novi.

Paul's job is "industrial hygienist" work, he said, which is "anticipating, recognizing, evaluating and controlling stresses where people's health can be adversely affected by chemical, physical or biological agents."

Formaldehyde, Paul said, is a carcinogen and can occur in many substances: The danger, he said, is the "out-gassing," the dispersal of formaldehyde's toxic fumes, from some types of insulation, from some composition wood products; even from synthetic materials used in furniture and from some wallpapers and wallpaper pastes.

Asbestos, Paul said, is hazardous if it's breaking down and getting into the air flow but should be left alone if it's intact, "Don't disturb it," he said, "if it isn't deteriorating" especially if it's wrapped with some type of "skin."

wrapped with some type of sain.

If you want to go buggy about what can bug a house, talk with Terry Baker. Baker's job with Sanit-Air in Troy, is "environmental microbiologist." After you thoroughly clean your home, he said, he can come in and find the dust that's still there and show you what's living in it.

Is this the world of dust mites about which we've been hearing increasingly frequent warnings in recent years?

"Smaller," Baker said. "Critters onemillionth of an inch." Among these (brace yourself) are microscopic bacter in that live on and in your body. "The ones in your gut," he said, "help you digest your food."

When you're taking an antibiotic, he said, the helper bugs get massacred by the medicine and without them you get an upset stomach.

Gastrointestinal disturbances, as well as flu-like joint and body aches, are among Marshall's reactions to various chemical and biological triggers she has run into during her home search.

She's learned to let the covered ceilings and ceramic tile wait while she goes to the basement to check for signs of mold. Meanwhile, she continues to live at her family's West Bloomfield home, known to her as nontoxic.

"The first place to look," Baker said, "is where there might have been moisture damage," which then could produce mold growth. Check, he said, around the sump pump, look for evidence of sewage backup and for masonry and concrete problems.

"Look for rust, for water damage on drywall and in cool, dark places for molds," he said.

"Both Glatstein and Baker urge good ventilation to help cure or ease some of the problems. "As we make our homes tighter to conserve energy," Glatstein said, "we lose the turnover of air" that can help dissipate some of the gases.

Baker recommends frequent replacement of highest quality furnace filters. Electronic filters, he said; should be cleaned every two weeks because the accumulator cells fill up rapidly, making the system nearly pointless.

Another sufferer, Linda Weiss, 59, is now in her healthy dream house in Ann Arbor, free of chemicals and away from high-voltage wires she believes are harmful.

She tells of fleeing her home in Franklin because, she said, "The wealthier the neighborhood, the more insecticide they tend to use."

Bug spray from a neighbor's yard, she said, floated onto her organic garden and "contaminated our food supply." Because of the outdoor chemical being sprayed, Weiss said, she could spend in more than five minutes at time in her own yard, risking a sore throat and a headache that could last for manyidays.

Weiss suggests that lookers ought to check the home's landscaping for wood chips where, she said, ants dwell happily.

Phone hotline will provide lowest rates

Are you looking for a new mortgage? If so, there is a new service that's free for consumers that will help you eliminate the hassles when mortgage shopping. This free service is designed to help consumers save time and get the low est mortgage rates available. They also try to match you with th

mortgage lender that best meets your mort gage needs.

This independent information service, which is not affiliated with any mortgage lenders, has a network of more than 50 mortgage professionals (with the number growing every day). The network has a variety of lenders that specialize in just about every typ of mortgage program available.

The 24-hour hot line service will also be available soon to consumers on the Internet. Until now, the hot line phone service has been primarily marketed toward Realtors, builders, financial planners and their clients.

The nice part about this service is that mortgage rates are updated daily and sometimes hourly. Until now the only way for consumers to get up to the minute mortgage rates is to call each lender themselves. With mortgage rates changing daily, timing becomes very important when it comes to locking in the lowest rate, before they change again. Unless you're making 10 to 15 calls a day to mortgage lenders, you are left having to rely on the media as your source for rate updates, the rates available in the media are usually updated once a week. This is OK if your not applying for a new mortgage today, but if you are, you need the most current and up-to-date rates available, so you can make an educated decision comparing apples to apples.

When calling the 24 hour hot line's 800 number, the caller is greeted by dive person. The caller is then asked to answer a few short questions that focuses mainly on their specific mortgage needs and preferences. After two-three minutes, the phone call is completed. Within a short time (usually two-three hours) the caller is contacted and referred to the mortgage professionals who have the lowest rates and fees and the mortgage program their looking for.

Finding the best deal with so many mortgage lenders to choose from is not easy. If this free service can help you, get a 1/4 or even an 1/8 percent lower rate or save you on some closing cost, fees, it is more than worth the time it takes to make a phone call. On a $100,000 30-year mortgage, a 1/4 percent lower rate could save you more than $6,000 over the life of the loan.

You can reach the mortgage rate hot line by calling 1-800-797-3297.

Home sales hot for foreseeable future

New home sales will sustain their unprecedented pace for the foresecable future, say principals of a leading lender to homebuilders. Despite some recent stock market upheavals, the demand for new residential construction shows as signs of tangening of

The bull market for securities may finally have peaked, but this turn has n't affected the fervor for new housing units. We see people taking money out of the volatile stock market and putting it into the perceived safety of a long term investment in their homes, and suffan Auslander, co-president of Takiw Residential Inc.

Nationwide, new housing starts should reach 1.5 million units this year, the strongest in more than a decade. "The spec home builders we finance are often finding their product is selling out before completion," says Bill Foster, TJ&W co-president. "There's a huge pent-up demand for new homes."

Much of the nation's housing stock was built in the 1950s and early '60s, Foster-explains, and is perceived by buyers as functionally obsolete — well out of step with today's lifestyles. "Most of today's buyers want new homes," he says, "They would rather move into a new spec home than put up with the miseries of extensive renova-

In addition, many markets are in the beginning of a housing recovery. Supply of new homes, severely constrained because lenders had been unwilling to lend; is increasing, and homebuyers are responding in force.

And they show no sign of stopping.
"Continued strong employment levels and low mortgage rates have encouraged existing homeowners to trade up and renters to buy," says Auslander.
"With mortgage rates dropping, even more people can buy the homes they've been striying for."

...but, we'll bet someone does.

Is your attic or basement or garage filled with stuff you don't want anymore? Maybe you don't have anything quite as weird as our toy Martian, but like most of us, you may have some odds and ends you can do without.

Our 3-2-1—SQLDI offer is just what you need when you have things to sell for under $200.

Here's how it works:

1. You get 3 lines to describe your item (remember, you have to be asking less than $200) 2. You get to run your ad for 2 days (one week)

3. You get 1 low price—just $19.95. You could say our 3-2-1 plan is as easy as 1-2-31

Cold weather furnace scams

JOE GAGNON

A few months ago I was introduced to a lady by the name of Evelyn Stern from Call for Action who works out of the offices of WXYZ-TV. Eyelyn has become a weekly part of my radio show and spends a few minutes each week describing what's happening in the world of rip offs.

You only need spend a short time listening to this lady before you can feel the emotion and caring this person has for others. Call for Action is a national organization which helps consumers throughout the country and they really have a good pulse on what's happening nationwide.

Her most recent alarming story was about a lady who spent $12,000 for a furnace installed in her home. The normal price should have been about $2,000, but this consumer fell for the old scare tactic used by the few unethical heating companies that get rich

They will tell you that the furnace has a hole in the heat exchanger and carbon monoxide is filling your home and this can kill you. They'll tell you that the safest thing you can do is spend the night in a hotel rather than staying in your home and while you're away, they'll install a new furnace and take care of the problem. To sum it all up, they will scare the pants off of you and keep the change you left in the pockets. As Evelyn said, "Please, stop and think, and use good judgment when and if this should happen to being ripped off by some heating company. Sometimes the company names are the same as last year and before or a new name comes up which used to be one of the old names. Either way, we know if happens in the heating industry and we also know that it is the few who make the whole industry look bad. I can assure you that the majority of heating companies are good, hard working guys who run an ethical business. The point I'm trying to make here is that you as a consumer must be sure you're dealing with one of these whenever you have a furnace question.

Every year without fail, we see or read stories about several consumers :

Advice: Get more than one estimate on replacing your furnace. If you have been told you have a leak in the heat exchanger, call the gas company to check it out. If you happen to fall for the old con job, call another company on the phone and ask what the price is for a furnace to match the square footage of your home. A good heating guy will not scare you, he will help you with the least inconvenience to your time and money

This is now October in Michigan and most of you have turned the furnace on and everything seems to run fine. In a few weeks the temperature will tumble down into the 20s and thousands of you will be calling a heating company because the furnace won't heat the house. You may go several days with not enough heat in the home because the heating industry can not handle such a great influx of service calls all at one time. If your furnace is four or five years old, I doubt you will have any trouble. If it's over five years old I suggest you have it checked and lubricated every two years. If its over 10 years old I suggest you have it looked at every year.

I'm sure all of you who entered our Scarecrow Contest are very anxious to know if you won! Well, I wish there could be a first prize for everyone, but you are winners in my eyes for entering.

But I'll not waste another minute to announce – drum roll please .:

WHIRST PLACE: Mary Ann Flores of Canton. SECOND PRIZE: Doreen Walkuski of Livonia.

Mary Ann will receive a $100 gift certificate and Doreen will receive a $50 gift certificate, both generously given by English Gardens. Many thanks to English Gardens! The winning photographs will be displayed in their West Bloomfield store on Orchard Lake Road.

Mary Ann named her scarecrow "Crow Boy" or she says, "The kids refer to him as pothead because his head is made with a clay pot." She used mostly recycled materials and he carefully guards her garden.

als, and he carefully guards her garden.

Doreer fashioned her scarecrow from tin and named him "Tin Pan Man." She says, "He has no heart, brain or courage but when the breeze starts blowing and he starts his swinging dance all the critters of the city go looking for another back yard restaurant." She plans to retire him amongst their young apple trees in the north woods deer counter.

A special accolade goes to Norine Ladd, also of Livonia. Her scarecrow was inspired by the book "Scarecrow" by Cynthia Rylant and is a great replica of the one on the cover of the book, which she will read to her chil-

Her creation will be donated to a second-grade class in a school where the stulents will make their own garden to surround it, Cynthia made a little mouse for the hat and a crow sits on the shoulder. She said, "I will make another, maybe for another school or maybe for my garden – or maybe both."

Sara, Mark, Paul, Kristen, Philip, Alice and Mary Rockwell of Farmington Hills worked together to make "Mr. Scarecrow" out of old wood. "We clothed him in painted old rags and clothing and put it in the garden." He helped keep the birds away, but not the groundhogs, squirrels or weeds. They added, "We were the best scarecrows, we spent most days just checking out the gardens and butterflies." Young and old, it was our intent to get many generations involved in this project. I believe we succeeded. We do appreciate all of you who submitted photographs. Each scarecrow was very clever and it was difficult to choose the winners. Submissions came from as far away as Irons; also from Plymouth, Waterford, Farmington Hills, Troy, Milford, Royal Oak, Walled Lake, Detroit and Lathrup Village.

There are some wonderful ideas about making scarecrows that may help when we run this contest next year, from the book "Scarecrows, Making Harvest Figures and Other Yard Folks" by Felder Rushing ($19.95, Storey). It's filled with many pictures of unique 'scareys,' made from such things as pots, rags, straw, paper plates, gourds and other neat stuff. Directions for each design are easy to follow and complete, including how to support the figures in various ways. Learn the low-down about a bottle tree – a fun and unique project that could take many months to complete, not a scarecrow, but interesting anyway.

Enjoy Year-Round," by Erin Hynes (Rodale, $27.95) is for those who have little time to spend in the garden and want to enjoy, rather than be a slave to it. Hynes shares tips from successful gardeners, tells how to develop a garden that is easy-care, i.e. low-maintenance lawns, easy seed planting techniques, mulching magic, watering the correct way, easy weed and pest control, and many other practical ideas. A short chapter is devoted to each plant category with descriptions of plants that require little care. Good, practical information.

"Bringing a Garden to Life," by Carol Williams (Bantam, $22.95) gently guides the reader in proper gardening techniques and shares the soul of gardening. All facets are covered: vegetables, flowers, trees, shrubs, herbs, bulbs, compost and tools. She writes about moving plants around more often than is necessary. "Plants, unlike furniture, are not things, but beings with their own intentions to which attention must be paid ... but arrangement needs to be implemented slowly, bit by bit, bending to the season of each plant. The reader will learn that making the garden is as important as having it.

Lindeedsthedeading "fat lady" in the Midnigan Opera Theatre's upcoming production, "Luci di Lammermoor," has the syelte sexuality of a popdiya more in the tradition of Mariah Carey or Celine Dion.

While the talent - oh, my - has the same awesome girth, there's a decided angelic resonance traveling the up and down road to octaves seldom

The title role of Lucia in one of Donizetti's finest operas opening this Saturday at the Detroit Opera House will be shared between two of the opera world's most promising and winsome coloratura sopranos, Sumi Jo and Youngok Shin.

Not only do Sumi and Youngok alternate performances in what is acknowledged as the most demanding acting and singing role for sopranos in the classic opera repertoire, they're both from South Korea, and even went to the same performing arts

They're only separated by a few years, slight differences in style, and the Atlantic Ocean. Sumi makes her home in Rome, while Youngok, a graduate of the Julliard School of Performing Arts, lives in New York

The Korean press has billed the shared performance at the Detroit Opera House as the equivalent of Pavoratti meets Placido Domingo: A broader perspective of the opera, however, indicates that the better metaphor might be that "Lucia di Lammermoor, is like a United

"An opera is not a mystery movie," "We know the story before hand. What's interesting is how the story reveals itself."

A night to remember

The story of "Lucia di Lammer moor" is similar to "Romeo and Juliet." There are, of course, a few plot twists and melodramatic dirges that offer an operatic indulgence to the theme of forbidden love.

Set in the late 1500s Scotland, the opera revolves around Lucia's love for a man who is the sworn mortal enemy of her brother. In fact, she is secretly betrothed to the proclaimed enemy of her sibling,

As far as wedding nights go, this one is unforgettable for another reason altogether. Filled with anguish and rage, Lucia goes mad and mur-ders her new husband. (So much for seeking counseling.) The "mad scene" is the operatic Meadow Brook Theatre pre-sents "The Miracle Worken" through Sunday, Nov. 15 at Meadow Brook Theatre in Wilson Hall, Oakland University, Rochester Tickets $24-$35, call (248) 377-3300.

By Mary Jane Doerr Special Writer

Meadow Brook Theatre's "The Miracle Worker," is a gripping look into the intimate lives of a dysfunctional post-Civil War Alabama family coping with the impossible. An acute congestion of the stomach and brain has left an infant daughter with two crippling disabilities. Now the unruly blind, deaf and mute 7-year-old is ruling the household with food throwing tantrums and screaming fits. The family placates her with candy. Miracles, like beauty though, beholder. This wonderful William Gibson classic gets its impact through the close up and personal view of the miracle that took place between the unmanageable, and anything but dumb Helen Keller and the indefatiga-ble Annie Sullivan. Meadow Brook Theatre's production gets its impact from Lauren Dowden's prominent portrayal of the Irish Annie, Helen's famous and once blind teacher. Dowden gains favor with the audience with her humorous manner of saying her lines and the favor of the Kellers (skeptical of the Annie's tough love approach) when she teaches Helen to fold a napkin. Dowden is spontaneous in the way she plays the famous dining room scene with Stacle Guerreso as Helen: Her responses to Peter Aylward's harsh Captain Keller are well timed.

Chris Ann Voudoukis foils these two with a soft version of mother Kate. As the sarcastic brother James, Adam Rochkind is a solid force that finally brings about the turning point in the plot. Sandra Love Aldridge makes a kindly maid. Ashley Calhoun, Garrett Gooch, and Lujuana Lightfoot as Martha, Percy, and Juanita add a light hearted charm to the story, softening its severity. Katherine Hardy, Katle Johnston, and Claire Kander as the three blind children are worthy of mention.

Unlike in the intense 1962 film, this Meadow Brook produc-tion, with its homey Victorian setting by Peter W. Hicks, and Debra I. Wicks' direction, dwells on the captivating reality of the story, benefiting from the play's infallible theatricality.

old Guerreso is the heart of the story. She must learn only one syllable to one word for this entire role but acting out Helen's aggression is demanding.

Guerreso does it with static eyes, an expressionless face, darting movements that startle and lots of screaming. Later in life, Helen herself turned all that screaming into audible speech to become a world famous lecturer - after she graduated from Radcliffe College with honors.

The miracle in this play takes, place when Helen conceptualizes the relationship between finger spelling and objects, which unfortunately takes place behind the well instead of in front of it where everyone can see Guerre-so. Despite that, she turns those few moments, when Helen identifies the spelling of water, into a Kleenex moment.

something to say." A recent coup came this past winter when nationally recog-nized playwright Lanford Wilson brought his new play "Book of-Days" to the Purple Rose for its debut production. The Garage Theatre has a history as well.

This building has been here in Chelsea for 70 years. In the 1920s, it was a garage to store Oldsmobiles as a dealership owned by Jeff's grandfather. Then it fell out of the Daniels family hands and was a plumbing company, a pizzeria and a bus and truck garage," Ribant

"They only heard the Cypress Hill point of view. A lot of things have been said and done. I had been away from the hip-hop scene for awhile. I thought maybe it was time to show up a little bit and let people know I'm still around and that I'm up to a bunch of other things."

"I had to start with the Cypress Hill album." "IV" is a bone-chilling album of graphic street scenarios shrouded in gloomy soundscapes of hip-hop, rock and jazz courtesy of DJ Muggs (Lawrence Muggerud). Rappers B-Real (Louis Freese) and Sen Dog trade off on songs such as the gangeta homage "Steel Magnolia" and "Looking Through the Eye of a Pig."

"Muggs is the one who puts-together all the music. I just showed up and wrote verses and stuff to songs. That's my part of it. In my other band, I'm more directly involved in writing the music and formatting and all Still, Cypress Hill works as a cohesive unit, Sen Dog said.

"We don't jam anything that nobody else digs. If somebody's not vibing into it, we usually don't go with it. It's like, here's a track and if I'm vibing with it really strong or if I have a medi-um vibe, I have to perform on it."

Sen Dog wrote seven songs with Cypress Hill and five of them ended up on "IV."

Hopefully on the next album, I'll have more of a bigger role vocally and things like that."

After burning through a sold-out Smokin' Grooves show at Pine Knob in late July, Cypress Hill is returning to play the 1,000-capacity St. Andrew's Hall. Although unaware that his band is gigging at a small club, Sen Dog said he's thrilled to do that.

"I'm not really directlyinvolved in the gigs and stuff like that. But that's a cool thing to do. It's cool to do the big arenas or the small stadiums or whatever. But when you get down in front of the small joint like it used to be in the early days, that's cool."

For Sen Dog, it will even be cooler to do his own thing and tour with SX-10.

"It's a total live thing," Sen Dog said of SX-10. "We bring the guitars and drums and everything. We get hard at times with the raps but it has a real "70s metal feel with a bit of funk and rap in there. That's the formula I mass."

In contrast, DJ Muggs is the sole provider for music for

If you're looking for a fitting way to celebrate Halloween, but are tired of the haunted house scene, the Bonstelle's chilling production of "Dracula" will envelop you in a masterfully performed tale of the forces of dark-

A powerful opening show, "Dracula" is a strong harbinger for an exciting Bonstelle season. Talented, intense acting and frighteningly realistic staging and special effects combine to produce a riveting, chilling drama.

In Steven Dietz's adaptation of the Bram Stoker novel, Dracula is seduced by thoughts of London where he feels the teeming populous will provide easy succor for his bloodthirst. As his dark curse begins to enfold its initial victims, braye but unknowing humans try to use rationality and faith to conquer the evil they know is infiltrating their security and threatening their survival "Dracula" is both philosophical and visceral. We hear impassioned discourse, then are swept into the frightening calamity of bloody assaults and battles perpetrated by the incarnate forces of evil. The result is a deliciously suspenseful play that thrills and moves its audience.

Bonstelle's strong cast brings the fear and vulnerability of the story to life. Maribeth Monroe brilliantly blends impetuous strength and sensuality to create a powerfully sympathetic Lucy, the passionate young woman first victimized and seduced by Dracula, Monroe shows that even the strong are overpowered by Dracula's evil ends.

Schoolcraft's 'Night Watch' a thriller

Schoolcraft College Theatre presents "Night Watch," Lucille Fletcher's suspense drama, as a dinner theater 6:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, Nov. 6-7 ($19) in the Waterman Center. The show begins at 8 p.m. in the Liberal, Arts Theatre; and theater only 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Nov. 13-14 ($8), on the campus at 18600 Haggerty Road, between Six and Seven Mile roads, Livonia. (734) 462-4596. BY BOB WEIBEL SPECIAL WRITER

If ever there was a suspenseful thriller about which you could say, don't believe a thing you see, and much of what you hear, until the very end, then "Night Watch" is the show. The current dinner theater production at Schoolcraft College keeps the audience guessing about what's really going on from the eerie beginning to the climactic finale.

The setting is an elegant Man-hattan townhouse (nicely executed by scenic designer Timothy Amrhein). Elaine Wheeler, a hopeless insomniac, is having a pre-dawn smoke as a storm rages outside. She sees, or thinks she sees, a dead man in the window of a building across an alley. Later, she sees another body and unexplained shadows behind the window shade,

The police find no bodies and are skeptical of her story. Her husband suggests psychiatric treatment. Is she crazy? Is she up to something? Why won't any-body believe her? Are they trying to get rid of her?

Professor James Hartman's taunt direction keeps us guess-ing. Especially good is his choice of haunting synthesizer music, It sets the right mood and takes us into the catacombs of Mrs. Wheeler's disturbed mind.

Brenda Lane, in the role of Elaine Wheeler, more than meets the difficult challenge of playing a woman who appears to be slowly losing her mind. The strain in her voice, the tension in her body, the looks of despair build naturally and convincingly into a solid, terrific performance.

Brian Taylor, in his 10th performance at Schoolcraft, does his usual fine job as her seemingly sympathetic husband, John Wheeler. We learn he is having an affair with her best friend Blanche Cooke Tiffany Byars is generally effective as Blanche, but could be more of a schemer, Benjamin Karl, as Curtis Appleby, creates a most interest-ing odd-ball neighbor, who wanders in at the strangest times with the strangest comments. Good stuff: Charles LaCroix, in his stage debut, displays natural stage presence as Lt. Walker. His no nonsense approach to solving murders is the underpinning for the final scene.

Rory Asher is very good, espe-cially his New York accent, as police officer Vanelli. Matt Havaich comes on strong as Sam Hoke, owner of a local deli.

Sarah Rae Frame scores as Helga, the suspicious German maid who always seems to be eavesdropping in the shadows. Joyce LaSala gives a smooth seamless portrayal of Dr. Lake, who has come to analyze Mrs. Wheeler's problems.

It is the breathtaking final 90 seconds, however, that make "Night Watch" a satisfying theatrical experience. It's fun being fooled by a clever playwright (Lucille Fletcher of "Sorry, Wrong Number"), and hearing audience comments on false clues that are suddenly washed away like sand castles at the beach. "Night-Watch" it turns out, is about immutable psychological truths of human nature and reinforces, i the notion that "Hell hath no. fury like a woman scorned" except perhaps a woman betrayed.

They are Jew haters, and their ignorance is potentially as dangerous as the maniac whose armies are pillaging Poland when we meet them in December, 1939. They are, you see, Jews themselves, but the blood of Abraham that flows through them is thinner than their chicken soup - if they ever attempted to make any But wait! "The Last Night of Ballyhoo" is a comedy ... really. Not with "Hogan's Heroes" fun war laughs, but with the kind of down-home humor you'd find poking out from under the mes-sage in a show like, say, "Driving Miss Daisy." No wonder, for both were written by Alfred Uhry, and "Ballyhoo" is given a warm, rich and heartfelt treatment by director Nick Calanni and his uniformly skilled JET cast.

It's tree-trimming time in Atlanta, even in the Freitag/Levy home, one of two Jewish households on the block. Beulah "Boo" Levy (Evelyn Orbach) insists that still-unmarried daughter Lala (Peggy Johns) Campbell) take down the star, but rationalizes the tree itself: Christmas is just another American holiday if you leave out that silly stuff about Jesus." Lala, meanwhile is all aflutter about the biggest thing to hit Atlanta since General Sherman – the world premiere of "Gone With The Wind." "Clark Gable," she gushes, "is less than five miles from this home!"

Of greater urgency to Boo and er slow-witted sister-in-law Reba (Mary Bremmer) is THE social event of the season, Ballyhoo, when prominent Jewish youth from all over the South converge to dance and roast wienies (not Kosher ones, we bet). Perhaps Lala, in her Scarlett O'Hara hoop skirt, will at last find her Rhett. And maybe there'll even be someone for smarter cousin Sunny (Carey Crim).

down from Brooklyn to work for Uncle Adolph (Philip Fox). But. not if Boo can help it. Joe is "the other kind" — a descendent of Jews from east of the Elbe River, which apparently separates more than just Germany from Czechoslovakia. Joe realizes he's a stranger in a strange land, telling Sunny "You smell like a rose, and I smell like a salami sandwich."

JET's "Ballyhoo" is a ball, as much a tribute to its cast as to its script. Orbach and Bremmer are Lucy and Ethel with a drawl, so wonderfully matched are they Feisty Orbach truly is, as they call Boo, "The Jewish Tallulah Bankhead." Bremmer is Aunt Bea with grits for brains.

Campbell's Lala, if she'll accept the compliment, isn't quite frumped-up enough to warrant the old maid treatment; but she hits home when kvetching to her cousin, "God didn't give you one Jewish feature, and look at me!" Crim's Sunny is just that, with an ever-present smile masking a cloudy future. Fox is

That someone just might be everybody's loyable uncle of Joe Farkas (Scott Screws), just grandpa, an appropriate patriarch, but there's a monster at work here who would cast out another Jew because he's not, in; its strictest geographical sense, a 🛴 landsmann (fellow countryman)

Scott Screws has the show's meatiest role, and he stacks it, high like corned beef on rye: With back arched, not looking for it a fight but not about to retreat. from one, he challenges these Southerner's rights to even call; themselves Jews. "I can't hide; being Jewish," Sunny objects. "So; howcum you try to camouflage it so much?" he replies, more hurt. than angry. Jim Shanley as Lala's intended is a funny redhaired redneck, oozing charm

Yes, "Ballyhoo" is a ball. At times it's a Nerfball, with an airy Southern manner that even has Lala exclaiming, Scarlett-like 'Oh fiddle-dee-dee." But mostly it's a hardball that's thrown right down the middle of the plate, making one wonder into how many "other kinds" we can ultimately divide ourselves.

outright farce, at times (although moviegoers certainly shouldn't expect "Schindler's List" with pratfalls). It is remarkable, in fact, just how many different emotions this film can evoke at once. In that respect, I have never seen another movie like it. The story, which occasionally feels like a fairy tale, begins on a sunny day in 1939, in pre-war Tuscany where, aside from some stony monuments praising Mus-solini and "Fascista Perfetto," everything looks about as pretty as a storybook confection. Guido (portrayed flawlessly by Benigni himself) and his friend, tle down through the sun-dap-pled hills, headed for a date with destiny, since the brakes have failed on their car, and who knows where they will end up? At the end of their wild ride, Guido, an apolitical Italian Jew encounters the beautiful Dora (a beautiful Nicoletta Braschi). Even through Dora is a schoolteacher, the playful, imaginative Guido sees her as a princess. Even though she has merely fallen from a barn loft and landed on top of the hapless Guido, he insists that she has plunged from the sky. Later, as their paths cross again and yet again, and the eventually ride away together (on a green-and-our disbelief in a large set of highly unlikely circumstances, "see" through Guido's enchanting imagination. (It's important to remember that this story is told through Guido's son's eyes and through memories of what his father has related.)

But, while this story may have about the aura of a fairy tale now and then, it is not a fairy ale. When the clown prince and his princess ride away together on their curiously colored horse, the story does not end. In a sense, it is just beginning.

A bit jarringly (one of the film's few rough spots), we jump ahead several years and find Guido and Dora married and the parents of a small son, Giosue

the elfin, rubbery faced Giorgio

Cantarini). Guido has realized his dreams of owning a tiny bookshop, but fascism and war have thoroughly infected the land now and, one day, with horrific suddenness, he and his wife and son are hauled away, via a monstrous, nightmare train, to a nameless concentration camp. ("We'll take the bus back," he assures Giosue.)

Guido, being Guido, strives then to turn the unspeakable into the inventive, to "free" Giothrough his imagination. He insists to the boy that the camp it part of a never-ending game 're all players," he says. "It's well-organized." (In one of the film's most powerful scenes, he purposely mistranslates the rules of the so-called "game", as they are sternly spewed out by

To realize his film, Benigni (who co-wrote the script with Vincenzo Cerami) worked with famed cinematographer, Tonino Delli Colli ("Once Upon a Time in America," "The Name of the Rose"), and designer/costumer Danilo Donati. Both manage somehow to bring a kind of magic lushness, even to the more

STAFF WRITER hgallagher@oe.home

Writer-director Todd Solondz the anti-Hollywood filmmaker. His movies represent every-thing Hollywood tries desperately to ignore. While Hollywood is about daring, glamour, beauty, glitter, and fulfillment, even under the worst of circumstances; Solondz is about the homely, the alienated and the emotionally choked While Hollywood can make a comedy where the "nerds" tri-umph, Solondz makes movies that know better

Solondz's "Welcome to the Dollhouse" was a refreshing break from the usual gilded memories of childhood, with its dead accu-rate view of tacky New Jersey suburbia and geeky young peo-ple pushed aside by most of their peers and family "Happiness" follows some of those same themes into a disturbing look at dysfunctional

This is a movie that will offend many people. In fact, parts of it will offend almost everyone. But there is no denying that Solondz's films generate the ner-yous laughter of recognition and evoke a strange sympathy for the lost souls he presents. "Happiness" concerns∉three

New Jersey sisters and the tangled lives they lead. Joy (Jane Adams) is 30, living in her parents house and going from one bad relationship to another. She is a sweet but very confused women with aspirations of being a singer.

Sister Helen (Lara Flynn Boyle) is a writer, with an outwardly high opinion of herself who is actually tormented by her shallow writing, Sister Trish (Cynthia Stevenson) seems to have it all - big suburban house, three children, a professional psychologist husband. She is just happy, happy, happy.

Veteran actors Ben Gazzara and Louise Lasser play their divorcing parents with their own problems down in Florida.

Around the three sisters, Solondz takes us on a perverse view of suburbia under the mat. Helen is getting obscene phone calls from Alleh (Philip Seymour Hoffman). Allen is an overweight, shambling, sexually repressed young man who lives a nowhere life in the apartment next door, going through the phone book and calling women at random to threaten them with sexual mayhem. Meanwhile, an overweight woman in the same apartment house with secrets of her own (Camyrn Manheim) seems attracted to Allen.

Joy breaks off a relationship with one man (Jon Lovitz, in a brutally blunt opening scene) to take up with a Russian gangster emigre (Jared Harris).

But the most disturbing of all Trish. Her husband Bill, Allen's therapist, is a pedophile. Dylan Baker gives an emotioncompulsive, obsessed child molester who stakes out his son Billy's friends as victime, going so far as to drug their food.

A devastating scene near the end has attracted the most attention and is one of the most uncomfortable scenes you're likely to see in a major film release. Bill explains in bitter and blunt language his obsession to his troubled 11-year-old son, who is struggling with his own sexuality. Baker and young Rufus Read bring depth and sorrow to this scene, but it is almost too painful to watch.

The strange thing about Solondz films is that they are so hilariously funny. He has an ear. for inanity, an eye for tackiness and a sense that our worst nightmares and hangups are funny to everyone but us. His portrayal of New Jersey as an outpost of bad taste Hell should help keep down the population of the misnomered "Garden State."

The sexual scenes are distasteful more than pornographic but they take up too much of the film's focus. Though sexual hangups are certainly a core part of our existence.

Still Solondz is an interesting director who seems to have a strong ethical point of view under all the dark humor and perverse behavior. His films seem to say, "Hey, look at us, we're human, too!"

Nobody in Hollywood is making movies like that.

Dale Chihuly has been called "Washington's best known native son." Chihuly has been said to be the world's premiere artist in the glass medium. He recently visited the campus of the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit to give a demonstration of his tech-niques. Although Chihuly himself is no longer able to create his pieces alone, he works through teamwork, but that is not something new to him. While studying in Venice, Chihuly has been said to have, "Absorbed the single technique that the Venetians has guarded so jealously for so very long, one that would revolutionize the new American glass movement: teamwork." While using teamwork it has been said Chihuly has created

When I asked Gerry what she thought of Elmwood, she quickly commented, "Elmwood has some of the finest examples of monument statuary. The cemetery itself is incredible, it contains wonderful pieces of history. It becomes very easy to see the different periods of art by the way families decided to memorialize their loved ones. This cemetery is not creepy as most people expect a place such as this to be. Elmwood is actually a very beautiful; tranquil setting with wonderful pieces of art." All this and more on Back-

Songwriter has fun with 'Lilith' at his 'Frasier Fair'

Humor is no stranger to singer/ song-Steve writer Poltz, His songs with his band the Rugburns cover the ABCs of love and treehugging hippies. On his solo album "One Left Shoe" (Mercury), he compares his love to Impala So, it's good to know that he's keeping his humor in check with an all-male singer/songwriter acoustic tour he has dubbed "Frasier Fair." (Get it, Lilith, Frasier,) But the basis behind the tour isn't so funny. It's the bookend to Lilith Fair, celebrat-ing the male singer/songwriter.

"The women have opened the door for men, No male singer/songwriter has broken big. There have been bands but no, males. It's an homage to it (Lilith Fair). It's a compliment to the fact that the name has pecome a household name. Five years ago, nobody knew who Lilith was except for a character on television," Poltz explained.

A few women, however, took offense to the name.

"I think they've had one too many cups of coffee. They're (Lilith performers) our older siblings, I think it's more of a way of praising them. Gee, I should be one of the spin doctors for Clinton, I can put a positive spin on everything. Too bad I can't put a positive spin on the Padres get-ting swept in the World Series."

The tour he dubs "Frasier. Fair" visits the 7th House in Pontisc on Wednesday, Nov. 4, with Poltz, former Toad the Wet Sprocket frontman Glen Phillips, Pete Droge and punk legend

Poltz created the idea for "Frasier Fair" after touring with fellow singer/songwriters Rufus Wainwright and Lisa Loeb.

"I decided to get four guys together and get out on the road and put together a show. We could fill bigger venues than we would normally play that way." All he needed was a line-up.

Records offices where the former X member was visiting friends. He was introduced to Droge through friends, and he and Phillips share the same booking

Droge, on the road supporting his rocking third album "Spacey and Shakin'" (Epic), said it's nice: to tour with peers,

"It's not only cool to watch them play every night but it's cool to sit in the van and talk about music, the music business and your career. It's been really enlightening and educational." said Droge, best known for his song "If You Don't Love Me, I'll Kill Myself" from the movie "Dumb and Dumber." "We spent 14 hours in the van yesterday John talked about life in the movie business, because he's been in a few films. Glenn talked about his experienced with Toad the Wet Sprocket. We talked about what we wanted to own guitar strings, loading our own equipment. It's nice to get away from that rock star mentality. It's fun to get back to basics," Droge said.

There's no star treatment here. "We're all existing on a very DIY (do-it-yourself) level. There's

The tour comes at a perfect time for Poltz. He's about to head to Australia to open for ex-girl-friend and songwriting partner Jewel, (He co-wrote "You Were Meant For Me" with her.) And a second song from his album, "Good Morning (Wakin' Up With You)" will be featured in the Fox television show "Party of Five.".

Now that he's organized a way of bringing attention to male singer/songwriters, Poltz has a goal.

"My newest goal for the next five years is to maybe have two kids. I'll name the boy Trailer and the middle name Park, so he'll be Trailer Park Poltz. I'll name the girl Flower and her middle name Pot, so she'll be Flower Pot Poltz. They'll be the cutest kids. They'll have Kool-Aid stains on their lips, and eating Slim-Jims and drinking All he needs now is to find a Horror film aficionado Rob Zombie isn't too pleased with the caliber of movies released recently in that genre - "Scream," "Scream 2," "I Know What You Did Last Summer," or "Urban

"I don't like any of that stuff. It's just a bunch of kids waiting to be stabbed," Zombie said. So, this Halloween the White

"I love so many of them that I don't have one particular favorite. The last one I saw was cool. It was "The Legend of the

Combustible Edison wants out of lounge

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO Staff Writer cfuoco@ce.homecomm.net

. The Millionaire doesn't want to sound like "the misunderstood pop star" but he's frustrated with people stuck in the rut of the lounge culture

One of my feelings about the swing movement is it's great that people are learning how to dance. But how come nobody makes up their own steps. They just learn the ones they saw in the Gap ad. Somebody had to make up that one," The Millionaire explained.

"We're hoping that we're calling on people to progress. We're hoping to open up this sort of for-gotten byway of American culture and rehabilitate its reputa-

When the martini lounge soundtrack band, who scored the music for the Quentin Tarantinoproduced "Four Rooms," toured overseas, it noticed that fans weren't trying to latch onto some lost culture. Listeners just took the music for what it was. They accepted Combustible Edison's high class ways of sipping martinis and dressing their best. "We just don't feel anymore a part of that (the swing movement) than anything else. All-along we've been trying to propel certain values and qualities of things, stylistic affectations. But predictably that's showbiz. You hook on to the stylistic thing. You glom onto that first, and then it (the music) sinks in,"

Just then, the musician with the bald head and sharp nose, stops. "I feel embarrassed doing a lot of these interviews because I feel like I sound like one of the most odious byproducts of popular culture. I don't want to sound like the misunderstood pop star. The audience are fools. They don't understand my art,' "The Millionaire said.

"But with that mania, that's not what we mean. Obviously we're not making ourselves clear. That's the problem with human communication in any form. But that's fine, you know. I'd take that over anything else on the radio. Better jump, jive and wail than Stone Temple Pilots.".

In an effort to steer away from hat, Combustible Edison that. brought on board producer/engineer John Holbrook, who mas-tered The Who's "Tommy," and Jimi Hendrix's "Electric Ladyland," and "Scanner" who served as "dubmaster-general" to work on its latest album "The Impossible World" (Sub Pop). "For us, this whole record was like starting all over again. When we first started, we didn't know how people would react to it. We didn't know if anybody would like it. It was extremely possible that nobody would like it or us. That period was, at least an emotional holocaust," The Millionaire explained.

"But things turned out great. Now we've had lineup changes and we're drastically tinkering with the formula. If we wanted to make a commercial move, we would have done the exact opposite of what we did. We're trying to strip ourselves of all these retro associations. We didn't like them in the first place. But we could have cashed in and played them up completely."
"The Impossible World" marks

the first time that Providence, R.I., based Combustible Edison used outside producers.

and he'd do things to them (the songs). Usually, we're like, 'Ch great.' But this time we said, You guys are the pros. Make a lot of suggestions. We're paying them so we were a lot more open to making charges in our songs," The Millionaire explained.

."Unlike any of our previous records, this one was written exclusively to be a record first We'd figure out how to play it

The result is a seductive, hypnotizing blend of science fiction and baroque stylings. Com-bustible Edison fans will be able to take in the sonic landscape of smooth sounds on Friday, Oct. 30, at the Mill Street Entry. Despite being a little jaded about his band's trendy followers, The Millionaire is looking forward to hitting the road. "That's where we make our liv ing. Being at home is like being under siege. Economic sanctions were imposed on us," he said

Combustible Edison performs Friday, Oct. 30, at the Mill Street Entry below Clutch Cargo's, 65 E. Huron St., Pontiac. Doors open at 9 p.m. Tickets are available at Ticketmaster for the 18 and older show. For more information, call (248) 333-2362, (248) 645-6666.

Detroit's Opus One reliably impressive for over a decade

By Eléanor Heald

· Zagat restaurant survey dubs Opus One "reliably impressive," additionally rating food, service and decor in the extraordinary to perfection class. Opus One is truly one of America's top restaurants and for suburbanites, a destination:

Detroit's renaissance is happening. Live theater and opera play to full houses. You now need to reserve early for best seating in Detroit's upscale restaurants.

Opus One, however, takes the hassle out of a night on the town with dinner and live theater packages including complimentary shuttle service. |Packages are available and are listed in the accompanying box.

When Opus One owners Jim Kokas and Ed Mandziara opened on Aug. 27, 1987, they served dinner to 52 people; all but two were invited family and friends. The next night, nine dinners yere served. Today, the weekly average is 1,200 meals. From a quiet beginning, the visionary owners have built a reputation. on high quality for both food and

The owners, along with maitre d' and wine steward Chip Fater run the front of the house, mak-ing sure that each diner's experience is first rate. From the oneof-a-kind Palladiana marble floor in the entry and bar to the 14foot dining room's intricately vaulted ceilings, you get the immediate impression that there's something special here.

Pastel dining room colors come alive with a combination of Tivoli, neon and incandescent lighting. Beveled mirrors and etched artglass sparkle while accenting rich, traditional thy Giznsky, a Johnson & Wales (Rhode Island) Culinary Arts graduate, has been with Opus One since it opened, working first in the capacity of sous chef and promoted to executive chef Cooking since age 17, Giznsky a Michigan native, considers his specialty area soups and sauces. His Corn Clam Chowder is only one of his Opus One signatures. Using the highest quality ingredients, Giznsky's plates are artfully designed, but not architecturally overdone with towers and such. While creative, they signal a respect for natural ingredients with each plate garnish impacting the overall palette of flavors experienced.

Chefs who like to hunt wild turkey and deer in the wilds of upper Michigan as Giznsky does, generally know what to do with specialty cuts of meat. Giznsky does! Whether it's sauteed wild ■ Pike Street Restaurant — 18 W. Pike Street, Pontiac (248) 334-7878, while remaining committed to its new California theme, has again reorganized at the helm of its kitchen. Owner Jim Fitzpatrick named Randy Garver as executive chef and Tim St. Peters and Matt Piasecki as sous chefs.

Twenty-six-year-old Garver earned an associate degree in Culinary Arts from Schoolcraft College, Livonia, in 1994. He credits his Schoolcraft instructors Chef Dan Hugelier and Chef Joseph Decker as inspirational.

Prior to Pike Street, Garver as the executive chef at Capital Grill in Somerset Collection, Troy. At Pike Street, he plans to augment the California theme by tying in regional and seasonal

He cited Seared Pork Loin with Sweet Potato, Caramelized Onion Salad, Horseradish Slaw and Brandied Fruit Sauce as an example of a dish filled with autumn flavors. "My concept of California cuisine is that anything goes as long as all the fla-vors of the dish work together," he remarked.
