Women's Club Cookbook A Big Success

According to Bev Shaver, the Clarkston Community Women's Club cookbook, "Clarkston Favorite Recipes" was a group decision, and a group project.

"Up to now," said Bev, "we'd always sold calendars, and we got tired of selling them; so, it was unanimous, everyone just decided on a cookbook."

After the decision was made, getting the recipes became the club project. Letters were sent out to friends, relatives, and neighbors, asking that recipes be returned to club members.

Jazz Band to Perform at Silverdome and Davison

The Clarkston High School Jazz Ensemble has a busy week coming up. On April 15, they will be performing at the MSBOA Jazz Festival at Davison High School. April 16, they will be appearing at the Pontiac Silverdome to play for the opening home game of the Detroit Express Soccer Team. April 18, they will be giving a concert at the Clarkston High School Auditorium at 8:00 p.m.

The high school Wind Ensemble will be competing at the State Band Festival in the Ann Arbor Area Division on April 29. They qualified for this event because of their Division I rating at the District Festival, March 18. This is the First Division rating at the high school in three years. This is similar to a league championship.

The color guard competed April 8, in the Mid-West Innervation Color Guard Finals at Racine, Wisconsin. They are busy preparing for the Michigan Color Guard Finals to be held at Clarkston High School on April 22.

SCAMP Mothers to Hold Rummage Sale

SCAMP mothers who are busily sorting and pricing what donations they have already received are urging area residents to do their spring cleaning as soon as possible and send those items they no longer need to the SCAMP rummage sale scheduled for April 21 and 22 at the Campbell-Richmond Post of the American Legion on M-15 in Clarkston. Hours of the sale are from 9-5:30 on Friday, and 9-4 on Saturday.

Contributions may be dropped off at the Post on Thursday, April 20 between noon and 5 p.m. Items may also be given to SCAMP workers beforehand or arrangements can be made for those items to be picked up. For information or pickup, call Jan at 625-4066, Sallie at 625-5490 or Linda at 625-8358.

This is the third year for the rummage sale designed to raise additional funds for the support of the summer camp program for handicapped children in North Oakland County, which needs $28,000 to operate this year.

The first rummage sale netted just over $1,100, last year's figure was about $900, down from the year before due to a drop in donations.

This year's sale in addition to the usual clothing, toys, household goods, and baked goods will feature commercial electrical supplies and the popular wooden spools formerly used to hold electrical wire.

Local closets, basements and attics may hold useless items for their owners but certainly not for SCAMP. They will accept almost any item although they admit that the donated pony several years ago was their most unusual contribution.

Sports Scoop

I added a few new words to my vocabulary this past week. I witnessed a young man doing an "endo" over the "woop-de-doo" on his "Cow." Now, that may seem a bit foreign to some readers, but in the world of Supercross Racing it is the common lingo. "Endo" is crashing over the handlebars of a motorcross bike, and "Cow" is the psuedo for the brand, Kawasaki.

The event was the third annual Motor City Supercross Championship, a two-day sports spectacular at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Supercross is one of the most physically demanding of all motor sports and I must admit one of the most exciting spectacles in racing that I have ever witnessed.

Hundreds of yards of dirt were dumped on the same playground the Detroit Lions use for their pigskin contests. The dirt was spread around and a course so demanding and treacherous was born that just pulling up to the starting line qualified a rider for hazardous duty pay. Only a highly skilled rider could negotiate the 3 1/2 to 4 foot jumps, the sharp turns and sweepers (wide turns that can be made with some speed) and the woop-de-doo, an unevenly spaced series of medium sized jumps of dips and rises in rapid succession.

The bikes are specially designed for the rugged built tracks weighing about 230 pounds and standing 3 feet tall by 6 feet long. They are equipped with a powerful highly tuned 2-stroke engine, special suspension system and knobbies, special tires with large rubber cleats to improve traction on the dirt.

"Hurricane" Bob Hannah was the top rider in both days of racing. I now know why he's known as "Hurricane." In the final race Saturday night he was not in the Hole-Shaft position (a fast start, taking the lead at the start of the race). He came from the 20th spot to 3rd place in the sixth lap, whooshing to 2nd place in the 7th lap and taking the lead by 5 seconds from the 13th lap to the finishing 20th lap. The crowd went "bananas" and the scoreboard did likewise as it flashed, "It's time for the Hurricane to hit."

I nearly missed one of the spectacles of Saturday night's event as I was checking the plumbing. I returned in the nick of time to witness a "streaker" testing his abilities on the race course. He didn't totally meet all the qualifications as he did have his shoes and socks on and was wearing his watch to check his timing, I suppose. Stadium security personnel quickly whisked him away, but not before he retrieved his clothing and quenched his thirst after his physically demanding feat.

Sunday was another super day with some popular personalities appearing. Detroit Lions running back Dexter Bussey and his son and 1976-77 MVP Charlie Weaver welcomed the crowd to Pontiac and the Silverdome and invited them to the 1978 Lions season. Honda Odyssey all-terrain vehicles warmed up the track for the day's races by running a short race of their own.

Four heats were run the same as the previous day's races. The first five in each heat advance to the finals and the next ten go to the semi-finals. The fourth heat was an "on and off the edge of your chair" affair as #7, Tommy Croft of San Diego, California on a Honda overtook Gary Semics of Laguna Beach, California in the last lap to win the heat.

It seemed like a replay in the first of the two semi-final races. Danny LaPorte of Yucca Valley, California jumped from second place to third and back to second. He red-lined (maximum engine performance) his Suzy (psuedo for Suzuki) and finished first. Riders 1 and 2 advanced to the finals. The next 10 run in the Consolation Race.

I nearly had a coronary during the consolation race when "Jammin" Jimmie Weinert surged on his Cow from last place to finish third, beaten by John Savitski on a Yammie (Yamaha) in the #2 spot and Mark Robillard taking first on his Suzuki. Weinert acquired his nickname because of his consistency of going into the first turn on the course as fast and hard as possible.

The final lap of the final race was a seesaw of position jockeying. Bob "Hurricane" Hannah was "asleep on the line" but rose to the #2 spot by the sixth lap. Hannah and Kent Howerton were really "smoking it" for 9 laps when "Hurricane" Hannah's engine stalled but only for a second, and able to keep the lead spot. At one point early during his lead, he took his hand from his Yammie handlebars and waved to the crowd. Another Yammie rider, Mike Bell, shut the door on Howerton in the last lap to finish second.

This was my first experience at seeing a hot shoe getting hole shot and jamming to shut the door when a tank-slapper caused him to endo on the whoop-de-doo only to have his pit tootsie tell him his knobbies were bad on the marbles and stutter bumps and he was lucky he didn't do a flying won his turnip.

forum Thoughts 'N Things

a page designed to stimulate opinion

By Joan Allen

It is difficult to teach children that hard work and faith eventually pay off if parents aren't really certain that they themselves believe it. Our society still gives lip-service to such principles, but from every direction comes evidence that the principles are no longer considered valid. Some of the fault can be laid at the feet of science. In its desire to study man in his simplest form, it has made us aware of the least we can be. Unfortunately, religious philosophy, at the same time, has become less powerful. Once the leading proponent of the highest state that man could aspire to, it, too, has all but been overpowered by an attitude of sympathy or apathy toward factors that lead to failure.

In our eagerness to extend sympathy and understanding to those who fail to live up to what they might be expected to be, we forget that man is capable of free will, and often will succeed only to the degree that is expected of him. We, therefore, often destroy initiative and ambition, with our well-meant solicitation.

Where once we admired honesty, responsibility, and patience, we now seek to expose the feet of clay of those who display such attributes. We are convinced that such people are hypocritical, and we are apt to exaggerate every symptom of humanness in order to make it proof of weakness or duplicity, while we underrate all signs of achievement of what used to be considered the common virtues.

And then, we wonder what is wrong with the young people of today, and our society in general.

We are a success-oriented society. We want, and expect, our children to be more successful than we ourselves have been. We give lip-service to the principles of honesty, responsibility, and patience, and yet, we fact the fact that those principles may hinder success on many levels of life. We can't deal with that, and so we deliberately turn our backs on these dual pressures which our children face. It is no wonder that many of our young people, faced with the fact that the cheat and the thief are smart enough to get things for nothing, rebel at "keeping their noses to the grindstone." They learn a great deal from observation, and our sophisticated communication's systems bombard them with proof that a lot of people are getting rich with little or no effort. All the squeaking wheels are getting the oil, while the "good guy" keeps beating his head against a brick wall.

It isn't right. We know intuitively that it isn't right. On the other hand, the many voices that reach us each day convince us that we are too small and too vulnerable to make ourselves heard. We wonder if we shouldn't join "them" rather than fight a losing battle.

We are the victims of future shock, now. Life is noisy and busy. We jump out of bed when the alarm clock signals us, and we run through the day. We never accomplish the things we feel we must accomplish, and never go to bed feeling that we have done everything there is to do. Old friends drop by the wayside, old talents become rusty, old skills go unused, and old knowledge goes into the dead file of our memories. We don't have time to think!

There is a solution to the rat-race. We adults must begin the resistance movement, and we must encourage it in our children. That is, if we really believe that it is possible for man and society to be greater than what is least expected of them.

One of the problems we face is that we have been unprepared to deal with the fast changes, and the challenges that have been thrown at us. Parents are frustrated by the arguments they find themselves involved in when they try to talk principles, values, and moral standards to their children. The rugs of religious philosophy and thought have been pulled out from under us, and have been replaced by the romanticism of the "here and now," the "happening," and the brief "encounter." Drama, fiction, and even the neighbors extoll their virtues constantly. Not only do we find ourselves being brainwashed by the messages, but we see our children being controlled by them. We have been taught that it is intelligent to be open-minded, but we too often confuse open-mindedness with empty-mindedness, and we worry silently.

The younger generations have always tested the beliefs of older ones. It provides them a chance to work out life's problems on their own. When it has improved and refined adult thinking, it has been valuable. The only difference today is that that testing used to be done after a child achieved adulthood, and it was based on a solid foundation of philosophy that was taught at home, in the schools, and in the churches. Today's children too often have no education in philosophy, values or principles of any kind. They only know what they see and hear. They have very little inner life because they are too busy concentrating on the external one, as are their parents.

It is never too late as long as there is life, however. Free will allows us to start anew when and if we choose to. We are each an education for those who come in contact with us, just as those we come in contact with add to our education in regard to people and life in general.

In order to change ourselves, and have a positive effect on others, we must put our "inner space" in order, just as we deal with the space which surrounds us. We need learn nothing new, but can apply the same principles we use in cleaning and redecorating our houses. It is all a matter of the sorting out of clutter, reorganization, painting, polishing, repairing and recovering.

To begin with, we must make three lists. On the first one, we will list all the things that make us the happiest. The beautiful things, the comfortable things, and our "security blankets." Then, on the second list, we must list the things that we dislike, and that make us unhappy, or interfere with our success. The things that seem to always be in our way, and that we stumble over.

On the third list, we will list all the things that are just there. Practical things that aren't especially attractive, but might be useful "sometime," or have been gifts from others, or just left over from an earlier time. Those things that we don't use, but are too good to throw out, come into this category. They are all possibilities that might allow a different arrangement, or brighten up a dark corner. Since the items on this list are less apt to be regarded emotionally, they are the first ones to concentrate on. All of them, however, will eventually end up on the first or second list, or be thrown out. Getting rid of the clutter can now be accomplished. Everything is sorted into three piles, and we are ready to deal with them. (To be continued).

SPRING CLEANING:

Car care: Replace filter. A dirty filter reduces the engine's efficiency and costs more in gas use.

A well-tuned car gives as much as 6% better mileage. Stash a few cloves in your car ashtray to absorb odor.

Always carry a few clip type clothes pins on trips to hang skirts and slacks from hangers in motels that are stationery. Also use to hang overnight washables in the shower.

Prolong the life of your road map by scotch-taping the main fold seams on the back side.

Use vinegar from a spray bottle to remove residue from car windows and chrome parts. Use a plastic scrubber if necessary to remove deposit, then dilute vinegar with water and clean windows as usual.

Steve Dice

in 1978

In his book, "1984," George Orwell described conditions in our country as they would exist if trends current at the time of writing were to continue.

Among the atrocities he made note of was the "Memory Hole" - a hole into which information offensive to "Big Brother" (Orwell's label for the government) was thrown away to vanish forever, allowing history to be more conveniently rewritten.

It appears that the "Memory Hole" is already in existence. Those people at the federal level responsible for keeping records of federal government documents have been told to remove and destroy the results of a study that disagreed with the administration's stance on energy.

It seems that an energy research and administration study called "MOPPS" estimated that potential energy resources are in fact available to satisfy projected energy needs in this country, if the price of energy is allowed to increase. This is in total disagreement with the administration's stance that the resources for our future needs just aren't there.

So a second study was made and, lo and behold, with the same results. This country has all the energy resources it needs, according to the "MOPPS" report, if only the price paid to those mining and manufacturing the coal and oil and so on rises.

The word came down for a third study, and can you believe it, the results were the same. If the price on fuels is allowed to rise, it will become financially feasible to obtain all the energy resources this country needs for quite a while.

Being that the administration in Washington has long been clamoring for energy conservation practices and higher taxes to discourage the high use of fuel, a factual report from a federal agency stating that the fuel is out there if the price is right caused some embarrassing contradictions. As a result, the following memo was issued:

ATTENTION DEPOSITORY LIBRARIANS:

The Department of Energy has advised this office that the publication Market Oriented Program Planning Study [MOPPS], Intergrated Summary Vol. 1, Final Report, December 1977, should be removed from your shelves and destroyed. The publication was shipped on S/L 10,558 (2nd shipment on February 7, 1978), under Item Number 429-P (El.18: 0011/1 (D)). We are advised the document contains erroneous information and is being revised. Your assistance is appreciated.

J.D. LIVSEY,
Director, Library and Statutory
Distribution Service (SL)
U.S. Government Printing Office
Washington, D.C. 20401.

It is highly doubtful that a factual study could be made three times and still be considered erroneous. It is more likely that the report just did not support the administrative policy on energy conservation. So down the "Memory Hole" it went.

Our weatherman is Robert C. Davis. Bob, an Ohio State graduate in Geology, makes meteorology [the study of the earth's atmosphere, especially weather conditions] an almost full-time hobby. Bob has generously agreed to share his knowledge with Reminder readers, so watch this column for the latest FORECAST.

by Robert Davis

March was quite a topsy-turvy month in our area, as we experienced a wide variety of weather events. We saw thunderstorms on the evening of the 20th, a freezing rainstorm on Easter Sunday, and also 7 days of measurable snowfall during the month.

Precipitation during March in our 4-township and surrounding area (including the melted equivalent of snowfall) ranged from a low of 1.78 inches in Union Lake to a high of 2.90 inches at Pontiac/Elizabeth Lake. The northern Clarkston station reported 1.99 inches and the eastern Clarkston station reported 2.05 inches for the month. Most stations in our area reported near normal precipitation during March.

Temperatures during March were much colder than normal for our area. Based on data from the eastern Clarkston station, the daily mean temperature for the month was 28 degrees, which is nearly 6 degrees below normal per day.

The highest temperature recorded during the month was 55 degrees on the 31st, while the lowest was 7 degrees below zero, recorded on the morning of the 2nd. Morning low temperatures were below zero on 4 different occasions during March. We also broke a string of 40 consecutive days of sub-freezing weather with a high of 34 degrees on the 6th.

During March, our area received about 4 inches of snow, which is about 2 inches below normal. Our seasonal snowfall total through the end of March is now 63 inches, which is about 32 inches above normal (nearly double what we normally receive).

Our snow cover disappeared just before Easter, although some areas of drifted snow had not yet melted as of the end of the month.

Now that spring has officially arrived, we are now also entering into the peak tornado season here in Michigan. The greatest tornado activity in Michigan occurs during the months of April, May and June. If you should find yourself in the path of one of these vicious storms, you should know instinctively what to do.

In office buildings, you should move to an interior hallway on the lowest floor or to the designated shelter area. Keep away from windows, which may shatter and pepper you with flying glass.

In your home, the basement offers the greatest safety. Seek shelter under sturdy furniture if possible. If your home does not have a basement, take cover in a small interior room such as a closet or bathroom or under sturdy furniture. Again, stay away from windows.

If you have some time before the tornado strikes, open some windows at each end of your house. This will help to eliminate the explosive potential created by the sudden and intense low pressure of the tornado and the higher pressure inside your home.

In schools, whenever possible, follow advance plans to an interior hallway or to the lowest floor. Stay away from auditoriums and gymnasiums or other structures with wide free-span roofs; these areas are very likely to receive heavy tornado damage.

If you are in your car and you see a tornado, drive away from the tornado at a right angle to its movement, in order to get out of its path as quickly as possible. The average forward movement of a tornado is about 25 to 45 miles per hour, so you can theoretically outdistance a tornado in a car - as long as you don't run out of road! If the tornado cloud grows larger and darker as you drive, you are obviously going the wrong way!

If you find yourself out in the open with only your legs for transportation, you should lie flat in the nearest depression, such as a ditch or ravine. A large road culvert also offers good protection. However, a word of caution: tornadoes are often accompanied by heavy rain and hail, so be aware of possible flash flooding if you seek shelter in a ditch or culvert.

Radio and television stations will keep you informed about tornado watches and warnings. Just remember that a Tornado Watch means that you should "watch" for the possibility that tornadoes may form, while a Tornado Warning is warning you that tornadoes have been spotted in the area and that you should take cover.

In summary, when you have to take cover from a tornado, you want to find a low area under something sturdy and away from windows where you will be protected from falling and flying debris.

Can Funeral Decisions Be Made Wisely Under Stress?

Not always - which is why we recommend planning your own funeral. Caught up in grief and stress, some people may be emotionally unable to cope with making funeral arrangements effectively. They may be tempted to proceed with more costly arrangements than they should. It should be noted that the psychological value of the funeral has no relationship to its costs. Planning such arrangements may eliminate the possibility of such over-spending. Planning can be accomplished in advance of need, in an atmosphere uncharged with the emotionally distressing circumstances of bereavement. For details of planning funerals, call us - or stop by for literature.

1977-78 BASKETBALL RECAP...

The Oakland Press recently announced their selections for the All-Oakland County high school basketball team. Players were also named to all Class A, Class B and Class C-D teams. Steve Evans of Clarkston was named to the All-Class A first team. Tim McCormick of Clarkston received honorable mention. Evans and McCormick were also selected for the First Team of the Greater Oakland League. Clarkston's Matt Wenzel received honorable mention, not receiving quite enough votes to qualify for the first or second team.

TRACK AND BASEBALL PREVIEW

Even with only a handful of experienced members on his track team, Coach Errol Solley of Clarkston is anticipating a lot of back up from the sophomore members.

Among the seniors, John Baker looks to be one of the most outstanding sprinters. Baker played the running back position on the championship Clarkston football team.

Half-miler Matt Harris should position well with his past experience in cross-country running.

In the pole vault positions are seniors Bill Singleton and Craig Grabow. Grabow has had a cast on his wrist for several weeks and won't know until later this week if he will be able to vault in the first tri-meet with Lake Orion and Rochester Adams on April 13. Tony Thompson will be a shot putter with Nick Kolas as discus thrower.

Junior Greg Ryeson injured his ankle in practice last week which may inhibit his sprinting for the first few meets. Ryeson is one of eight Clarkston tracksters who qualified to run in the Mansfield, Ohio relays 4/4/15. This is the biggest meet this side of the Mississippi with five states and Canada and over 3,000 athletes participating. Sophomore Mike Ulasich, a sprinter in the 100-yard dash also received an invitation to Mansfield.

Other outstanding sophomores are Gentry Ellis running the 1/2 mile, Mark Foohs on the high hurdles and Ron Tompson at the pole vault position.

Coach Solley feels the only really tough season contenders will be Milford and West Bloomfield.

Clarkston's baseball season opens at home on April 17 with Waterford Mott. Although Coach Paul Tungate will have few proven experienced players returning, he is anticipating the district championship. If that will be a reality, it will be Clarkston's 4th straight. Their record last year was 15-10.

Returning will be Tim Birtsas at the mound with a 9-3 record for last year. Craig Czinder will be a pitcher and catcher. Tim Fogg will play the outfield and relief pitch.

Several hopefuls from the JV team include Bill Kratt and Don Sharp at third base and relief pitching and Randy Phelps catching and in the outfield.

Following the opener with Waterford Mott, Clarkston will meet Lake Orion (away) on the 18th, Rochester Adams (away) in a double header on the 19th and Brandon (here) in a double header on the 22nd.

Energy Outlook:

Returning to Normal.

The nation's longest coal strike has now become history and shipments of coal are returning to normal. For Detroit Edison customers this means you have all the electricity you need, but we hope you will continue to use it wisely.

Unlike many other states, Michigan was able to avoid mandatory power cutoffs through careful planning and the cooperation of business, government and consumers. By buying electricity from outside sources and by burning alternate fuels like natural gas and oil, Detroit Edison was able to stretch its supply of coal and help avoid shutdowns and layoffs. Of course, this was more expensive and the costs will be reflected in higher electric bills for April, May and June. For the average customer using 500 kilowatt hours, this could amount to between $2 and $3 more than billed in March.

The recent crisis once again points out the need for energy consciousness on the part of everyone. So while coal is beginning to move again, Detroit Edison would like to remind all its customers to use good judgment in their use of electricity. This especially holds true for major energy users like refrigerators, furnace blowers, air conditioners and electric clothes dryers. The more wisely these appliances are used, the more the savings in energy and money will count up.

Detroit Edison thanks you for your cooperation during the coal strike and reminds you to save where it really counts. The power is in your hands.

Preserving Our Past

by Carol Balzarini and Sue Basinger
 The inspiration for American architecture until the last half of the 19th century depended largely upon borrowed motifs - Georgian, Greek, Gothic or French. An elaborate mixing of these and other styles, called eclecticism, was often the result.

While each individual style or adaptation was praised, in its turn, as honest and tasteful, none was truly American, although the earliest homes in the colonies and the simplest local adaptations of some styles may be the exceptions. Otherwise, American architects were concerned with the reproduction of foreign styles.

The increase in the number of professional architects and the sophistication of building skills and materials by the late 1800s allowed for the development of freer, more American styles - Stick, Queen Anne, and Shingle.

The dates given for the Stick style are 1855-1900 (later in this area). An almost completely American style, it did not attempt to duplicate architecture from any other time or place, but, instead, allowed architects to experiment with available techniques and materials. Called "honest" because materials were used for their own properties and not with the pretense of being something else, the characteristics of the style include tall proportions with steep roofs, complex floor plans, irregular silhouettes, projecting eaves, verandas, and, most importantly, stickwork. This stickwork consisted of boards which suggested the actual structural frame of the building laid over the walls of board and batten or clapboard.

The Queen Anne style, 1875-90, a contemporary of the Stick style, shares some of the same characteristics but again depended on foreign inspiration. Thought to be the result of the popularity of the British government, buildings at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876, the actual associations with the English Queen Anne style were vague, at best. The style, at its best, was called exuberant, picturesque, and eclectic. At its worst, critics called it confused and dizzying.

As with Stick style, more thought was given to the practicality of the floor plan. Instead of forcing the needs of an American family into the conventions of, for example, a temple, the exterior grew out of the interior plan. Another contemporary result of this thinking was the Shingle style, 1875-90, found only in New England.

Other characteristics of the Queen Anne style include multiple roof shapes (gables, dormers, turrets and bays), a variety of textures (shingles, brick, stone, smooth boards and lattice), porches with delicate spindlework and horizontal bands, windows in many forms (leaded, stained, and large expanses of plate glass), and colors in bold contrast.

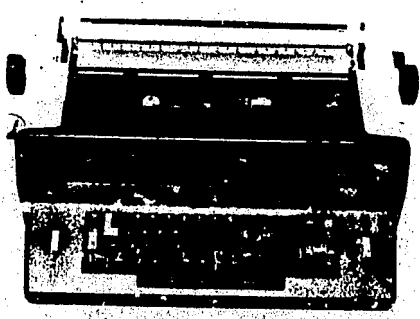

This home on East Washington, built in the 1890s, shows the influence of the Queen Anne style. The wide veranda extends along two sides of the house. The scalloped shingles contrast with the horizontal clapboard on the first floor. The gambrel roof, with dormers, allows for increased space on the second floor.

Built in 1908, this large home on Main Street has changed very little since that time. Another example of Queen Anne, it has an irregular plan with a high steep roof, a turret, wide verandas, and a bay window on the third story in the front. Scalloped shingles and latticework provide a contrast to the horizontal clapboard.

Know-It-All, Grow-It-All

by Bonnie Hale

Recently I had the opportunity to talk to one of the most knowledgeable people in the plant world. His name, Norman Frell. His job, Superintendent of Horticulture at Cypress Gardens in Florida. I would like to share with you what will be one of my most memorable experiences.

While walking through the 115 acres of garden, I was in total awe of what one could see. A Cypress tree that is over 1800 years old, 27 different varieties of palms, papaya trees, coffee trees boasting bright red beans, banana trees laden with fruit, and hibiscus growing rampantly among the grounds.

While talking to Frell, one of the first questions that came to mind was how could we achieve such luxuriant growth of our plants in a climate that offers four seasons. The answer is that we can, but only in the home.

On a much smaller scale, you could create a tropical garden outside during the summer months by moving the plants out. To do this, you would have to acclimate your plants first by placing them outside in a sheltered location after the last frost. Gradually, day by day, move the plants into the sun.

By using some of the most common plants like schefflera, palms, dracaena, dumb cane, citrus trees that could either be purchased or started from seeds,

The wishing palm, as the name denotes, is said to make dreams come true for anyone who stands under the tree.

split leaves, selloums, coffee and tea trees, and maybe even a banana tree purchased through catalog companies, you could create a small scale garden as one finds at Cypress Gardens. Of course, we could never expect our scheffleras to reach a height of 25 feet as they do in the gardens, but we could realize one of several feet after a few short years.

Even Florida has some nights when the mercury drops to bone chilling records and artificial means must be put to use. While talking to Frell, the question arose as to how could you possibly heat 115 acres of open space. I was totally dumbfounded by his answer. Two thousand force draft oil heaters and as many natural gas heaters are put to use at an enormous expense of $100 a minute. And to think our heating bills are high!

The most common houseplants making up the most distinguished borders also caught my eye. I'd like to share with you some of the ideas that I mentally made note of to try.

Spider plants make a very nice border for areas that are backed up to grass. Asparagus ferns with its trailing fronds looked very graceful spilling over the edges of a break wall and in some of the raised beds.

The aluminum plant (pilea cadieri) which makes an eight inch stocky, dense border was used quite often throughout the garden.

Although we don't have the year-round summer-type weather that Florida has, similar borders could be made up to suit our needs. The above plants (plus many others) could be planted in 4 or 5" pots and sunk into the ground after frost. In the fall, before frost, the pots could be lifted and brought inside for winter decoration. Or they could be given away as gifts.

Bother Me!

by Mandy Mitts

Dear Mandy,

I would like your opinion on a running argument with my teenage daughter. Every afternoon, she dashes in from school, throws down her books, turns on the television set, and watches a soap opera. I look forward to the time when my family arrives home each day, and am anxious to hear about the day's events at school and at work. I say her actions are rude and inconsiderate. She says that everyone at school watches the program and other mothers don't mind. What do you say?

Fed Up!

Dear Fed Up,

We human beings sometimes need time to "shift gears." Perhaps your daughter needs the opportunity to make a transition from school life to home life, and relaxing, while watching the program allows her that chance. If she is a good student, and reasonably sociable the rest of the time, I would not nag her about it. Perhaps you need more interests of your own. Why don't you plan to use the time her program is on for doing something special yourself? Perhaps you would enjoy the program yourself if you worked on some needlework at the same time. When we show consideration for the other members of our family, they often show us more consideration in return.

Mandy

Dear Mandy,

My husband and I just returned from a funeral out of town. I know that black is not necessarily worn at funerals anymore, but this was for a young father and husband who had been ill for sometime, and his widow wore a yellow dress and the children bright colors. We were shocked. Wasn't this out of place at a funeral?

Old-Fashioned?

Dear Old-Fashioned,

The young widow's choice of clothes for the children and herself requires no explanation, but it is possible that her husband did not want her to dress herself or their children in mourning - or they may have worn the clothes which he liked to see them in. At times of grief and loss, few people think of fashion or the impression they are making, and the clothing the mother chose may have been chosen with no thought for anything except the loss of her husband and the children's father. Another possibility is that the family is religious enough to be happy that his suffering is over, and confident that there is life after death, and are not in "mourning" as some people view it.

Lance Van Natta was formerly manager of Holly Greens Golf Course and is now at the Flushing Valley Country Club. Linda Van Natta was employed in Fenton at the office of Alton McKee, CPA.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William Dennis of Hubbard Drive in Clarkston. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. N.C. Van Natta of Davisburg.

Standard Federal Opens Branch

Standard Federal Savings has opened a new branch office at 5673 Dixie Highway in Waterford. The new branch office presently is in a temporary facility located in the Waterfall Shopping Center while the permanent office is being constructed.

According to Tom Brecht, manager of the new office, "We are looking forward to serving our customers in the Clarkston-Waterford area. We are providing complete mortgage processing and closing service to better serve the mortgage financing needs of this community. Standard Federal Savings has been the number one residential lender in the Metropolitan Detroit area for the past four years. We feel we can continue this record by extending our services into this fine community."

Stern Heads Business Association

Laurie Stern of Country Greens was elected chairperson of the Village Business Association at their recent meeting. Assisting her as vice chairperson will be Joan Koppitz of Tierra Arts and Design. Claudia Jakus of the Clarkston Travel Bureau is the new secretary-treasurer.

The Association also set up a calendar of events for the next five months. These events, for the most part, will be held on the first weekend of each month.

Spring Stroll - May 4, 5 and 6.

Artrain Days - June 1, 2, and 3.

Fourth of July Celebration - July 6, 7 and 8.

Farmers Weekend - August 3, 4 and 5.

Village Days - August 31, September 1 and 2.

Craft and Cider Festival - September 22 and 23.

Next, club members, with Bev directing them, sorted all the letters, checking for errors, and even tried some of the recipes. Members of the group marveled at the fact that an equal number of recipes for vegetable, meat and dessert dishes arrived (though there was no stipulation that donated recipes fall into a particular category).

When they were through collecting, they sent all their material to the printer. They obtained the name of a printer from a cookbook a club member had, because they liked the work and, at the end of approximately 120 days, their first order for 500 books arrived.

Most of that first order of 500 hundred books have been sold already and members will take orders for a second printing if there is enough interest from the community. For information, please call Dorothy Lowe at 625-5239.

Tracy Shaver

Someone's in the Kitchen

Tracy Shaver of Clarkston is "in the kitchen" today, and wants everyone to try her favorite recipe, taken from the "Clarkston Favorite Recipes" cookbook, compiled by the Clarkston Community Women's Club. It's a delectable dessert called Hershey's Bar Cake, and was submitted to the cookbook committee by Kathy Fritzinger.

HERSHEY'S BAR CAKE

5 Hershey's plain milk chocolate bars
 1/2 cup (5 1/2 ounce can) Hershey's syrup
 1 cup butter or oleo
 2 cups sugar
 5 eggs
 1 tsp. vanilla
 3/4 tsp. baking soda
 1 cup buttermilk
 2 1/2 cup cake flour

Melt chocolate bars in syrup over hot (not boiling) water. Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy, add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Blend in vanilla and chocolate. Stir soda into buttermilk; add alternately with flour to creamed mixture. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed; pour into greased and floured 10-inch pan. Bake at 350° 1 hour, 20 minutes. Cool in pan; remove and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Poet's Corner

There is a time
When big straw hats,
And cold puddles
And baseball bats
And robin's return
And garden spades
Make winter memory
Quickly fade.

There is a time
Of daffodils
And budding trees
And allergy pills
And castor oil
And animal birth
And thoughts of love
And greening earth.

There is a time
When clothes don't fit
And if there's mud
You'll step in it.
When it's cleaning time
And taxes are due
And a strange fever
Improves your view
Of man, and beast,
Of everything.

This side view from still another Queen Anne house, this one on the corner of Main Street and Miller Road shows the delicate spindlework which is typical of the style. Other important characteristics include the irregular plan, multiple roofs with dormers, a variety of textures [shingle and clapboard], a two-story bay window [another in the front of the house], and a variety of window shapes. All provide a picturesque effect.

Serving Oakland County Since 1932

This Clarkston home, built in 1884, has horizontal bands of spindlework on the front porch. The steep roof, wide eaves, and two-story bay are also typical of Queen Anne as well as Stick style. The overlaid sticks in the gables, while seeming to relate to the structural elements [as in Stick style], may have been meant to simulate half-timbering, an English detail often used with Queen Anne.

Also located on Main Street, this home is similar to many in the area built in the early 1900s, showing a complex roof of steep gables. The facade is formed by a wide two-story bay with overhanging eaves. The diagonal stickwork and variety of window forms are typical. The porch treatment is recent. The stickwork found on this particular house may be seen as scalloped shingles in others in the village.

Reader's Review

Haywire
Bantam Paperback

In "Haywire," Brooke Hayward has written the tragic account of her family in what appears to be the unemotional objectivity of someone narrating a travel story. The reader can only guess at the total emotional shock which she has experienced, and is left to wonder how she managed to escape the emotional trauma which led to her brother's and sister's confinement in mental institutions.

The book is a triumph in courage.

Brooke's mother, the extremely talented Margaret Sullivan, and the children's father, Leland Hayward, agent and producer, had everything that money could buy, and the three children, Brooke, Bridget, and Bill grew up in a make-believe world, except for such "realistic occasions" as this one, excerpted from the book:

"Don't look," said father without turning around. "Think about something wonderful. Vanilla ice cream with chocolate sauce..." Behind us there was the loud thump of the axe, chickens squawking, Bridget and Bill squealing. I looked back again. The body of mother's chicken was flopping all over the coop, headless, with fountains of blood spurting out.

"Let's walk up to the house," said Father, shaking his head.

The eventual divorce of the parents seems inevitable; Miss Sullivan's suicide is expected; the emotional problems of the two smaller children is unsurprising; but the tragedy of the 21-year-old Bridget's suicide is difficult to forget.

An alternate title might have been, "How Not to Raise Children." The book, however, should greatly appeal to the stage-struck. There is humor, and the three Hayward children, together with their playmates, Peter and Jane Fonda, are amusing in retrospect. One also gets some "behind the scenes" looks at Henry Fonda, Jimmy Stewart, and the like. "Haywire" is a most unusual book.

Dr. Raymond Mayor conducts Stop-Smoking Clinic

Smokers Learn How to Quit

by Dedra Lozier

The Independence area unit of the American Cancer Society sponsored a Stop-Smoking Clinic last week at Clarkston High School.

The clinic was a project organized by Doris Leach, an active Cancer Society member.

Robert Beattie, President of the 14-month-old unit said, "We are basically an educational tool for the Cancer Society."

The unit supplies area doctors and schools with educational materials on cancer.

Pharmacists are given pamphlets to include in customer prescription bags.

Beattie added, "We need volunteers to drive therapy patients to hospitals for their sessions." To volunteer services, call 623-7000 or 625-2200.

Another goal is to organize free pap-clinics with the help of churches, womens' clubs and local Jaycees.

A Bike-a-thon is planned for May. Junior and senior high students will help raise funds for expenses such as building rental and pamphlets.

The American Cancer Society offers a program through their Speakers' Bureau on "Cancer Most Common in Women" and "Cancer Most Common in Men."

The Bentley program is geared toward informing elementary students on the hazards of smoking.

The five-day stop-smoking plan is a program of group therapy, films, lectures and buddy system (for moral support).

Highly acclaimed internationally, this plan was developed by the General Conference of Seventh Day Adventists in Washington, D.C.

Riverside Seventh Day Adventist Church in Pontiac presents the program in this area.

Dr. Raymond Mayor, a member of Riverside Church, has instructed the Clinic since 1965.

A staff member of Pontiac General and inactive member of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Dr. Mayor donates all his instruction services to the clinics.

Some of the habits smokers change in this program are:

- (a). Avoid spiced foods
- (b). Eat plenty of fresh fruits and juices high in vitamin C.
- (c). Get plenty of fresh air and go on walks.

A "buddy system" is where the smoker has a friend to call when they feel they are losing willpower, preferably another program participant and not a spouse.

The American Cancer Society indicates that smoking causes cancer in several areas.

Cigarette smoking is causally related to lung cancer in men and women. In comparison to non-smokers, average smokers have about a nine to ten fold risk of developing lung cancer.

The relationship of the smoking of pipes to the development of cancer of the lip (oral cancer) appears to be established.

Other diseases occur due to smoking.

Smoking is the biggest cause of chronic bronchitis and increases the risks of dying from it.

Expectant mothers who smoke run a risk of having undersized babies. Physical and emotional development of the child can be affected, also.

In addition, women who smoke during pregnancy are more likely to have a stillborn infant, or a baby who dies soon after birth.

For more information on the Stop-Smoking Plan or any cancer related programs call Robert Beattie at 625-2200 or 623-700, Doris Leach at 625-3861 or the Independence Area Cancer Society at 673-8600.

The Cancer Society invites everyone to participate and attend meetings at the Board of Education Building on Clarkston-Orion Road every fourth Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Public "office hours" conducted by Oakland County Commissioner Robert H. Gorsline (R-2nd District) will be held on Saturday, April 22 in Davisburg and Holly.

The purpose of the sessions is to give residents of the Second Commissioner District an opportunity to talk face-to-face with their representative to the County Board of Commissioners.

The public sessions will be held as follows:

9:00 a.m. Holly Village Council Chambers
504 East Maple, Holly

Gorsline said the sessions will resume their normal third Saturday of each month schedule on May 20.

Bullard Files for School Board

Rockwood W. Bullard III, 33, attorney with the Bloomfield Hills firm of Patterson and Patterson, Whitfield, Manikoff and White, filed nominating petitions Monday afternoon for the Clarkston Board of Education election June 12.

He seeks the seat being vacated by David Leak, long-time member of the board whose current four-year term is expiring. Leak, who served as board president for several years, has declined to seek reelection for personal reasons.

Bullard, a lifelong Clarkston resident, resides with his wife, Mary Jane, and their two daughters on West Washington.

A 1962 graduate of Clarkston High School, Bullard served with Military Intelligence in Viet Nam in 1968 and 1969. He received his BA degree from Wayne State University, Detroit, and his legal education at New England School of Law in Boston.

Bullard is a member of the Oakland County and American Bar Associations, the State Bar of Michigan and the District of Columbia Bar.

Letter to the Editor

The Knights of Columbus Pope John XXIII Council #5436, Clarkston, want to extend our appreciation to all the residents of Waterford and Independence Townships for their most generous support of our Mental Retardation "Tootsie Roll" program, held on Friday and Saturday, March 17 and 18. We also want to acknowledge the owners and managers of the many business places who so generously gave our solicitors permission to solicit in front of their respective stores. Springfield Township Annual Meeting

There was no hot time in the old town hall at this Year's Springfield Township annual meeting. Less than twenty five people attended, there was no controversy to speak of, and the meeting was relatively short.

The supervisor's report, treasurer's report, fire department report, building department report, library board report, and parks and recreation commission were read. The central theme running through all these reports seemed to indicate that the township is growing rapidly and that demand for services and operations is growing and currently being met.

Salaries were increased for township employees. Supervisor's salary went from $14,500 to $17,400. Assessor's salary went from $14,500 to $17,400, clerk's salary went from $14,000 to $15,400, and the treasurer's salary went from $12,500 to $15,000. Trustees pay as well as Board of Review and Building Department pay was increased.

The total budget for fiscal 1978-79 will be $348,825.00, representing a $96,494.00 increase over the 1977-78 budgeted figure (actual expenses in 77-78 were $285,110.98.).
