The Reminder To Sponsor Holiday Art Contest

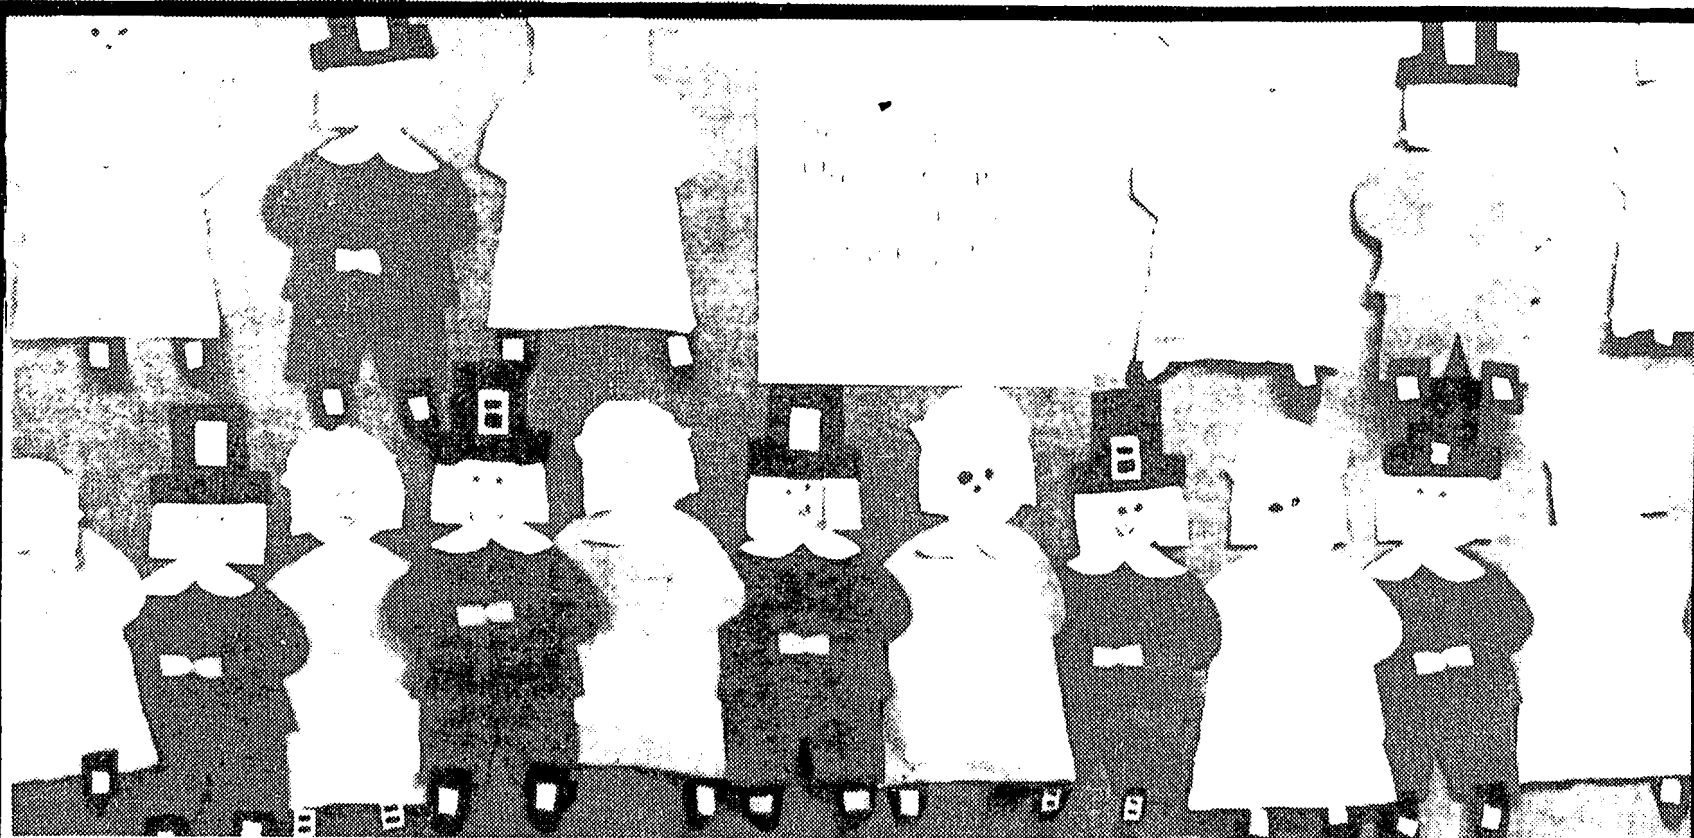

The Reminder is looking for young artists to help make our December 21 Christmas edition extra special. We're having a contest to see who can submit the best holiday drawing.

The contest is open to three age groups, one for children 5-9, another for children 10-14 and still another for "big" kids ages 15-18. There will be one winner from each group with one of the winning drawings used on the front page and the other two inside the paper.

Drawings submitted to the Reminder should be no larger than 10" wide by 11" high. Colors don't really matter because the paper is only black and white with one other special color for the holiday issue.

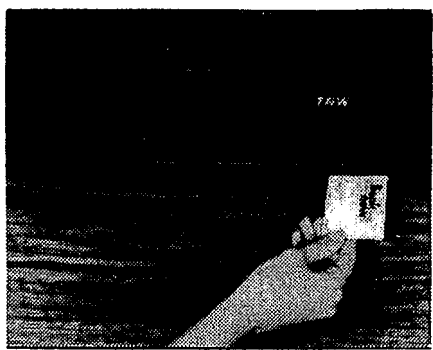

Prizes for the three winners will be two free passes to an area theatre, their photograph and an article about them in the paper, and, of course, their artwork featured.

To be eligible drawings must be received by the Reminder no later than Friday, December 15.

Mount Trashmore One Step Closer

About a month ago, I suggested to Independence officials in this column that they should look into the possibility of constructing a "Trash Nob" as a solution to their landfill problems. The City of Virginia Beach won all kinds of awards with their Mount Transmore, a huge mountain of trash landscaped into a recreational complex.

The City of Riverview, Michigan has gone one step further. They too have been working on a Mount Trashmore. But when it is finished, they expect to turn it into a ski complex to rival the likes of Pine Knob and Mt. Holly.

The Riverview ski complex, actually only a huge heap of trash, will begin operation next winter. The trash heap rises 95 feet above the ground and covers 65 acres at its base.

Walter Grogan, a resident of Clarkston writes:
"I still think this (a Mt. Trashmore) is the answer to trash disposal in Oakland County and someone should get our politicians interested."

It certainly deserves some study at the very least!!!

Independence Township trustee Michael Thayer has a unique problem. Newly elected to the township board he must now decide whether he should resign from the Clarkston Village Council, of which he is also a member.

Attorneys have assured Thayer that there is no "conflict of interest." Maybe in the official sense, there is not. However, I feel, it would be in the public's best interest if Thayer were to resign from the council.

Why? Issues will come before both the township board and the village council...possibly the very same issues. Sitting on both boards, Thayer would hold two votes. Also is it possible for a man with a fulltime job to do justice to both parttime positions?

I think not. Although, Thayer is very capable, hardworking and honest person, I feel he could represent the area better holding just one position, rather than two.

COMMENTARY

by Sharon Springborn

Some few years ago, back in the 50's (or, the days of innocence) 'dirty' books and magazines were relegated to the very back of respectable book and drug stores. And if you were one of those unfortunates who liked that type of reading material, you didn't go around blabbing your 'shameful' preference to anyone who would listen.

But, times have certainly changed, and people's views of 'dirty' books and their subject and/or subject matter isn't what it was, and the reading matter is no longer relegated to the back of stores.

In fact, those subjects have vaulted the gap from books to movies, but in movies, the things once looked upon as 'dirty', are now put out as 'art'. And no one need feel ashamed about going to view art, should they? After all, going to see an art film is about the same as going to an art museum to look at a VanGogh.

If this 'art' isn't enough to satisfy you, turn to your TV set, and get an at-home view of CREEPING PORNOGRAPHY. Really, the offerings on the TV are mild compared to what is in Playboy or at your nearest film house, but the explicitness increases with each new season's products.

In fact, if you watch all of the programs (like Three's Company or Soap), you'll be treated(?) to a non-stop parade of attractive, young females, in costumes that give the impression that the show's production company is running out of the money needed to buy costumes. And if this isn't enough, the females look as though their Playtex bra has run out of support, or, worse yet--they forgot it at home. So, they jiggle merrily through the hour, or half-hour, or whatever, solely to entertain those at home.

Goose Strangling Goes to DNR

Reminder readers who called the office concerning the reported goose strangling last October 27 at the Mill Pond will be relieved to learn that Officer Don McLellan of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, who answered a complaint about the incident, turned the report over to the marine division of the OCSO. They, in turn, contacted the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The DNR apparently has sufficient evidence and will prosecute according to McLellan.

The unidentified adult male who was seen snatching the goose from the pond, breaking its neck and then fleeing was recognized as one of the workmen on the Clarkston Mills project. His identity is known to authorities.

One caller told the Reminder the goose was a "mother" to the white farm ducks, three of which have since disappeared.

Of course, if the jiggling and scanty costumes fail to make up for the lack of a decent script, the writer(s) of the show can always throw in some lewd jokes, in hopes that someone's attention will be kept. Always good for a belly laugh or two are jokes about impotence, extra-marital affairs and homosexuality. And they're always more effective when delivered by an elderly woman who bears a slight resemblance to a prune.

But, if all of this fails to click, and keep the show alive and well, the double entendre--as delivered by one of the jiggly young ladies--can be resorted to, and the viewers' interest can be, hopefully, restored, and the Nielsen rating recovered for the week.

So, we've followed the advance of sexually explicit material from the very back of the drug store, into our own homes. And even though you may not feel that the material on TV is sexual in nature, I do, and I wonder--how much farther do we go from here?

"How Do I Give Comfort to The Terminally Ill?"

It is usually best to maintain the same closeness you have shared in the past. Your contacts with the person should be of the same type as they were in the past -- a phone call, short visit over coffee, a personal note -- whichever was your manner of contact before you heard of the illness.

If making a personal call seems difficult, perhaps a short note indicating "Word has come to me that you are ill. Please be comforted that you are in my thoughts and prayers."

Silence can often be interpreted to mean indifference to one who is ill. A simple note of concern and love makes an opening for a personal call at a time convenient to the sick person. That personal visit will surely prove a comfort to both parties!

And finally, that personal visit should be made just as you ordinarily might make. Don't change your personality or behavior -- rather "Be yourself." Bring news or items of interest into the conversation, all in a way to show you care.

temperatures prevailed over most portions of our 4-township area in October. Precipitation for the month ranged from 1.64 inches at Tipsico Lake/Rose Township to 2.95 inches at Elizabeth Lake/Waterford Township. Locally, the northern Clarkston station recorded 2.41 inches and the eastern Clarkston station recorded 2.14 inches of rainfall during the month.

Temperatures in October were much colder than normal in our area, ranging from a low of 23 degrees on the morning of the 17th to a high of 75 degrees on the 21st. The "mean" temperature for the month was 48.4 degrees, which is about 5 degrees below normal, producing 516 heating degree days for the month. "Degree day" data is used primarily as an index for heating (or cooling) requirements in buildings.

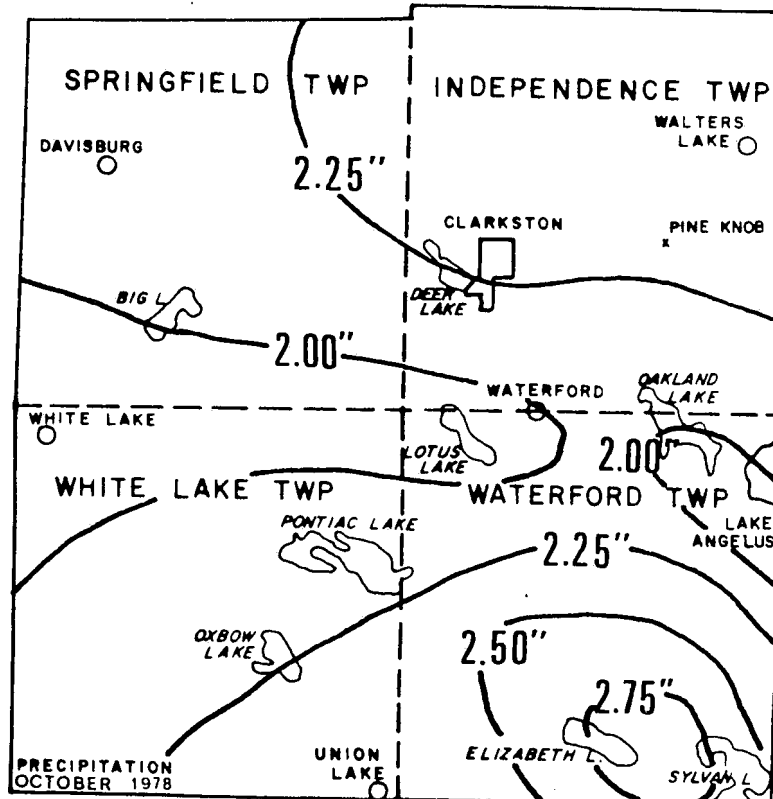

As an example, in March of 1978, we experienced 1145 heating degree days. When comparing the values for March and October of this year, we can say that we would have used a little more than twice as much fuel to heat out homes in March as we did in October.

The Clarkston area was surprised by the first snow showers of the season during the morning of Sunday, October 15. However, as of November 7, we had not yet received our first one-inch snowfall of the season.

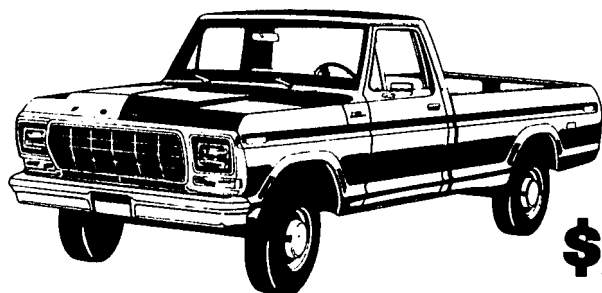

Based on data from the Pontiac area, the average date for the event is November 25. Last year we received our first one-inch snowfall on November 12, nearly 2 weeks earlier than normal.

Our first frost of the autumn season occurred on the morning of October 8, as the eastern Clarkston station recorded a low of 31 degrees. The growing season this year lasted 157 days, which is very near the average of 155 days expected for this area.

Our precipitation totals for the year, however, are still lagging behind normal. Through the end of October, most of the northern portions of our 4-township area were still deficient in precipitation by about 4 to 6 inches. (The rainfall map was prepared by Robert C. Davis and Susan E. Rosin, and was sponsored by Johnson and Anderson, Inc., Consulting Engineers.)

THOUGHTS 'N THINGS

The concept of a concentration-relaxation cycle for the use of our time is a common one, though sometimes those who practice it are not aware of the planning or purpose behind it. In the schools, recess or study periods break up other types of concentration periods because children need to shift their attention span quite frequently. In offices and other work situations, the coffee break usually ends periods of work concentration, and after the relaxation period is over, another concentration period begins.

The theory is a good one, because few of us can remain energized for hours at a time, and those who do, may suffer from exhaustion eventually. On the other hand, when theories are put into practice with human-beings, they often head for failure. We are individuals, and theories are the result of generalized thinking and planning.

We are all victims of such generalizations because so much of the work of a society depends on planning and structure. If each of our lives were highly individualized plans, designed just for us, society would become chaotic, or so the planners fear. We all feel the need for calendars and clocks to give us structure so that we can plan our lives in an orderly fashion, but a free society must remain aware of the structure which it lives by, or gradually lose its freedoms.

That is why it is so important for people to be self-aware, and conscious of their reasons for their actions and reactions. Self-knowledge is the most important guideline to be used in determining what is "good" or "bad" in society. Otherwise we too often contribute to the very ideas and theories that are "bad" for us personally.

Children, who are pliable, most easily fall into the patterns which have been set up by society. If they are raised on a schedule, they will automatically get hungry

That is why it is so important for people to be self-aware, and conscious of their reasons for their actions and reactions. or tired according to the position of the hands on the clock. Call it what you will, programed living or behavior modification, it is not too difficult for parents to set the "rules" -- the children will adjust to them. In fact, a great many adults are as pliable as children, in that they make every effort to adjust to the rule of others, with no questions asked. These people are "for" things, or they are "against" things, but never are quite sure why.

It begins in childhood, with parents who say "never mind why - just do it." The child learns to follow blindly when security depends on it. Accepting the word of those in authority, or those who are stronger, without asking questions, is a self-preservation technique that continues symbolically even after the child is no longer too little to fend for himself. What the parent forgets in this case, is that "authority," "bigger," and "stronger" can be applied to a number of people, thoughts, and feelings beyond the family, and the child can be victimized by such transference. Parents who cannot give a child a good reason for obeying a rule or rules, should question the rules themselves!

If a rule is valid, it will stand up under questioning. Children are able to understand the practicality of structure, and through the habit of parental explanations, will learn to question and explain, themselves, and transference will be avoided.

Sometimes it helps to visualize a concept, and this one of "following the rules for the sake of security" is an easy one. If you take an art-gum eraser to symbolize the individual, and an empty pop bottle, to symbolize society, and try to put the eraser into the bottle, you'll see the problem. Even if the eraser were smaller, you'd be trying to put a "square peg" into a round hole. The pop bottle, of course, symbolizes the security of society, and we humans are most comfortable when we are secure.

Joan Allen

By cutting, and rubbing, and shaping, we can work the eraser down until it will fit the opening of the bottle. In other words, we can modify the person so that it "fits" society, and can be the recipient of the promised security. The question is, is it worthwhile to do it? That of course depends on the value of the society, and the needs of the individual! It is very possible that society would be better off adjusting itself to the shape of the individual, but that is impossible when the society is as unyielding as the glass bottle we use as a symbol.

The reason for which a rule was created should be considered when putting that rule into affect. If the reasons are still valid, the rule is still valid. It's that simple a consideration. If the reasons are not valid, the rule will not be effective for long, unless there is absolute control of those people who are affected by the rule -- in fact, rebellion may be the result.

If we return to the consideration of the concentration-relaxation concept, it is easy to see how theory and practice can fail to work when the "rule" is more important than the reasons for it. The theory is that concentration should be broken up by periods of relaxation, for more efficient use of energy. In practice, however, if there is no cooperation in the program, it won't work. Employees who don't understand the reasons for the rule can sabotage it by working through a coffee break, and getting overly tired, or go shopping at noon, and be incapable of afternoon concentration.

On the other hand, understanding of the rule, the reasons for it, and expectations of greater rewards through increased production, can make the plan acceptable and successful, and the results can be well worth the time and effort of explaining the "reasons why."

There's good news to announce at Webco, the company that does the printing for the Reminder. A new press had to be installed at the company, bringing the total unit capacity up to 10.

And what, exactly, does this mean? Well, in language that anyone can understand, it means that Webco can now print more pages with more color than any other single width printer in the area. The page capacity is 32 broadsheet pages, or 64 tabloid pages, with 8 broadsheet pages of color, or 16 tabloid pages.

The new unit gives the company more capacity because the 6 unit press and the 4 unit press can be run separately, as well as together.

The purchase of the new press unit became necessary

Question Of The Week

by Sharon Springborn

For this week's question, we asked people who live in the Clarkston area if they feel that used car dealers, by law, should have to inform any prospective buyers of a "one owner" used car of any defects it may have.

Surprisingly, the response that we got was a resounding "Definitely, they should." No one stuck up for the poor, harried, used car dealers. In fact, one woman asked if I was calling from a dealership, and if so, she wasn't going to answer my question.

After some assurances that I was calling from a newspaper, the Reminder, Ruth Wagner told me that she had bought a used car in July, and so feels that a dealer should make a buyer aware of any problems that he's purchasing.

The next call made was to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas V. Walker, but their son, John, answered the phone. I asked him my question, to which he answered "yes", and then took an informal survey of his own. In this survey, he asked all the other folks in the house at the time the same question, and gave me seven answers he got, which were? "Right on"—and I believe that is affirmative.

Neither Lucretia Studt or Violet Vernon feel that a dealer's misrepresentation of an auto as "in good shape" is particularly fair to the buyer. In fact, Mrs. Studt looks on the whole thing (of dealers letting buyers know when something is wrong with the car) as a form of consumer protection.

Even though a law such as this "might be a hazard to the used car dealers, but it would certainly benefit the consumer. "Unsuspecting women, especially," is favored by Peg Sullivan. She was the only person who even saw the dealer's point of view, even though the consumer's view was the one in favor.

Sharon Turner was concerned that a used car purchaser may buy a defective auto, drive it from the lot, and find themselves stranded, with a broken down car, so she would favor a law that would force dealers to make prospective buyers aware of a car's faults.

"A person should know what he's getting into before buying something." So stated Donella Vogel, who was concerned mainly with protecting the consumer, or purchaser, of the car.

Presenting an even stronger point of view, Mr. Rollin Vess stated that "I think they (the dealer) should be prosecuted, or have their franchise lifted, or something. Because what we pay for is service, and we don't get it." Vess also said that he knows quite a few people who bought a used car, and none are satisfied with the after-purchase service they got on it.

Last Chance to Hear

Advisory Committee Report

Residents of the Clarkston Community School District will have one last chance to hear the report of the Citizens Advisory Committee on Wednesday, November 29, at 7:30 p.m. at Clarkston Junior High School.

The report, first presented to the school board in June, has been the topic of PTA meetings at the elementary schools since September and has been presented to the staffs of all elementary schools and the two junior high schools.

In a report to the school board last week, William Neff, who served as a liaison between the advisory committee and the administration, reached the following conclusions:

1. The parent meetings were poorly attended.
2. There were more questions asked about segments of the reports than there were opinions given regarding the options.
3. Option B (a new junior high school) drew more support than any other option.
4. Using Clarkston Junior High as an elementary school for grades 5-6 drew more support than its use as a K-6 elementary.
5. Concern was expressed over the need to renovate Clarkston Junior High prior to its use as an elementary school.
6. Interest was expressed in providing gyms and further facilities for existing elementary schools. This feeling was expressed by elementary staffs and some parents.

Due to the timetable involved in implementing the recommendations of the advisory committee, the board voted to begin by establishing an educational specifications committee to work with the architects as to what will be required in a new junior high school building. Another committee will look into the selection of a site for the school, while Superintendent Milford Mason will present the board with a list of school architects he would "feel comfortable" working with. Once the architect is selected, he will work with the educational specifications committee, to be headed by CJH principal Duane Lewis.

Mason told the board he felt the time had come to "chart a course of action." The main building of Clarkston Junior High School, originally the high school, has a cornerstone with the date 1929; its addition was put on in 1954. Since architects estimate the life of a school building at 30 years, Mason told the board the district was "living on borrowed time."

Survey Respondents Indicate School Space Not Critical

At the November meeting of the Clarkston School Board, Betty Haran and Dorothy Haase presented the results of a survey taken last spring by the PTA Council. Although the entire survey was not ready for distribution, the women briefly outlined some of the highlights. Of the 450 surveys mailed out, 259 were returned.

Respondents agreed 3-1 on the need for a balanced curriculum. Most felt there to be an adequate emphasis on the "basics," one third disagreed. All agreed on the need for art, music and gym in the elementary schools. They were evenly divided on the value of environmental camp.

Respondents were in favor of a competency test for high school students before graduation at a five to one ratio.

They reported most of their school information came from their children or from the newspapers. Most knew the teachers from conferences, fewer from newsletters. A high priority item was the need for more parent and community involvement.

As far as space and need for improved facilities were concerned, the respondents reported 2-1 the high school had sufficient space, 3-2 the junior high schools had sufficient space, while less than half felt there was sufficient space at the elementary level. In the case of Clarkston Elementary, they agreed 4-1 there was "plenty" of space.

A "slim" majority said they would pay for school improvements. Of those, half would approve one mill, the rest more than one mill.

On the subject of discipline, the majority felt it was sufficient, but many felt it was not enough. Some comments indicated a need for training in discipline. As far as playgrounds were concerned, many preferred greater supervision AND more equipment.

This Automatic Damper System saved an average 23.64%* on fuel costs in tests in Michigan homes.

Now it can save you a guaranteed (in writing) 15%, and up to 20%, 30%** and more in IN YOUR HOME!

GAS FLOW DETECTOR

The sole purpose of the Gas Flow Detector is to give the EFFIKAL unit absolute Safety. Even though the EFFIKAL unit in itself is safe, only with this detector can you get a POSITIVE FAIL SAFE system. When your thermostat calls for heat, the EFFIKAL will (1) Open, then (2) will energize the gas valve and (3) cause your furnace to begin its heating cycle.

When the thermostat is satisfied, the EFFIKAL will de-energize the gas valve and extinguish the furnace flame. Should the gas valve fail for one of a variety of reasons, then the Gas Flow Detector will keep the damper in the open position.

Now most damper systems claim the same safety results but EFFIKAL is the only unit that will also detect when raw gas is escaping. Even if the damper is closed the Gas Flow Detector will open up the damper assuring COMPLETE safety!

ACTUAL PROOF*

In testimony given before the Michigan Public Service Commission, Case number U-5272, March 18, 1977, it was revealed that through actual tests in 200 Michigan homes, the average savings with an automatic damper was 23.64%. More than that, of the 5 different devices and concepts tested, the automatic vent damper system gave the highest percentage of savings.

Alternative to Traditional Cooking Less Expensive

by Joan Allen

Generations of American wives and mothers have spent endless hours making stuffing, cooking potatoes and squash, cranberries, rolls and pies for Thanksgiving feasts. Generations of husbands, families, and assorted relatives have spent minutes in consuming the fruits of those labors, and then have headed for napping spots, while those same women did the dishes and put the left-overs away.

We, at the Reminder, felt that there should be some way that the women of the family could sit down to an instant Thanksgiving dinner with their families, and not have to face potatoe peelings and turkey carcasses at the end of the meal, so we went hunting at one of the local grocery marts, and came up with an easier answer to the holiday meal. Our plan to stay out of the kitchen anymore than necessary, turned out to be less expensive, and less energy consuming than the traditional approach, and so we want to share it with our readers.

Now, when you consider the savings in time, effort, and the high cost of energy, it is obvious that the Liberation list is far the better bargain! We recommend it! On the other hand, we think we'll probably go with the old plan!

The Surprise on Thanksgiving

by Jeff Billig
(A 4th grade student at Pine Knob Elementary)

One day I saw an old lady walk into the store. She was going to buy a turkey for Thanksgiving. She came over and looked at me.

She said, "My! What a good-looking turkey. I will buy it." She was so excited she dropped me in the cart.

I said, "Since she dropped me in the cart, I will have a big surprise for her tonight."

She went to the clerk, paid for me and then left. As soon as she got home, she put me in the oven. She turned the oven on to about 325.

I said, "Boy is it hot in here. I'll ask her if I can have a glass of water." So I opened the door and said, "May I have a glass of water please?"

The old lady took off her glasses, wiped them off and then put them on again.

"Can I?" I asked again. She got a glass, filled it and then gave it to me.

"Thank you," I said. I drank it and then I gave the glass back to her.

She said, "I better lay down. I'm seeing things." She went up the stairs and into her room.

I got some rubber and made it in the shape of a turkey. I put it in the pan and left.

In about an hour she came down. She took out a plate and put the turkey on the plate. She sunk her teeth in the rubber turkey. She spit it out on the floor and said, "I never should have left him alone."

Moral: Never leave your turkey alone or you might find a rubber turkey for Thanksgiving.

GARY DALE

Today spring returned, or so it seemed;
The sky was as blue as your laughing eyes.
I washed the clothes and they danced in the sun and wind.
When I came inside I turned the radio on full blast,
Driving the cobwebs from my brain;
Remembering how you loved days live this,
I spoke your name; and knew it was in vain.

It's lonely here in my house,
I've tried to read, to watch TV;
But nothing I do pleases me.
I wish you were here and we could talk,

I want to see your face and loving eyes,
To hear you laugh, and hear you say;

"Inequities Cause Financial Woe at Vocational School" ....Mason

Superintendent of Schools Milford Mason reported to the school board last week that certain "inequities" in the distribution of the half mill levied county-wide for vocational School funding continues to cause financial problems at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center currently operating on a "bare bones" budget. He did, however, assure them that steps were being taken to assure greater equitability among the four centers. Per-pupil funding presently ranges from as little as $600 to as much as $1100.

Mason explained that when the four centers first began operating money was no problem, centers had whatever they needed to pay for whatever programs they had. As a matter of fact, the Northwest Center did not use all of the county money it was allotted in the first few years and returned the balance to the intermediate district. Up until the 1976-77 school year, they operated within their budget.

The addition to the center was in progress when a "short-fall of funds" was deemed a possibility, but NOVEC was told to go ahead and open the six new programs. Oakland Schools suggested the shortage could be made up from next year's budget.

About $173,000 was cut from the 1978-79 budget resulting in the temporary elimination of one program because the instructor was leaving, the reading and math support teachers were transferred to other schools in the Clarkston system, and other cuts were made in many areas. "Basically we're not getting our fair share," Mason said, "But changes appear to be in the works."

In the past, he explained, some centers spent more than others and present allotments are based on past spending. The Northwest center had always operated in a "conservative fashion" at less than budget prior to the six new programs.

Mason maintains that sufficient money is being raised by that half mill to fund the four centers if it is distributed on a more equal basis. He has been assured by the Superintendents Committee on Vocational Education the matter will be resolved. He added he has received great support from both the Holly and Brandon superintendents, both of whose schools contribute to the Northwest Center.

"To Eat Them is Divine!"

Four "feathered friends" of Bob and Evelyn Reneaud's will have places of honor at Thanksgiving Day feasts this week. After all, who should have a more honored spot on that holiday than the noble bird around which the gala meal is planned and executed?

The Reneauds purchased their turkeys in June, and have been caring for them since then, but hardly consider them in the nature of pets, as they aren't very bright, according to their owners.

In fact, according to their raisers, the birds are stupid, and have to be taught to eat. They also have to be enticed to drink water, so coins or other shiny objects must be put at the bottom of their water pan to attract their attention, or they wouldn't even attempt to drink it.

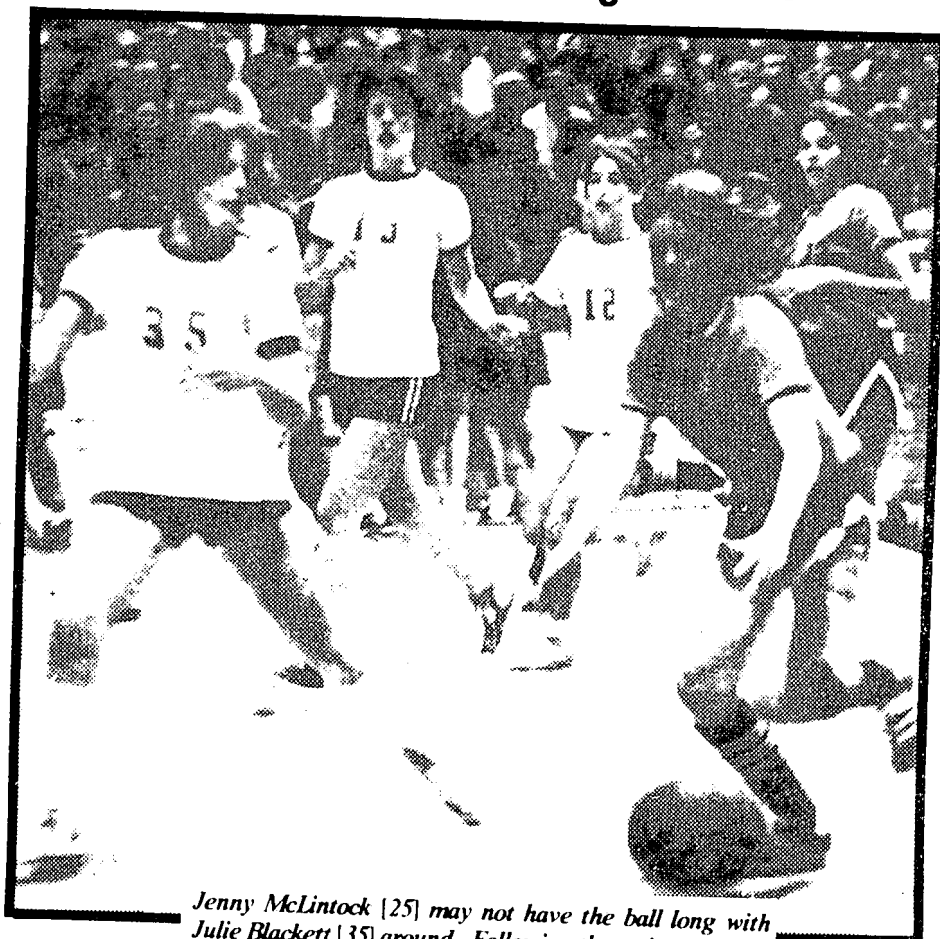

Though the young birds have to have their wings clipped so they can't fly away, the older birds have been allowed to roam around the yard. They don't seem to have sense enough to wander away, even this close to Thanksgiving.

In short, "to know them" is not to "love them" but to eat them is divine!

The Greatest Pumpkin Pie You Ever Tasted!

PUMPKIN PIE RECIPE

The students in Debbie Spencer's second grade class at Pine Knob Elementary were hard at work last week making pumpkin pies for their Thanksgiving treat. They wanted to share their recipe with Reminder readers.

PUMPKIN PIE

2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 1/2 C. pumpkin
3/4 C. sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. cinnamon

1/2 tsp. ginger
1/4 tsp. cloves
1 1/2 C. evaporated milk
1-9" pie shell

Mix filling ingredients in order given. Pour into pie shell. Bake on cookie sheet in preheated 425 degree oven for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake for about 30 minutes or until pie tests done with knife (knife inserted into center comes out clean).

Note: The only students who refused to eat their handiwork were those who didn't like pumpkin pie no matter who cooked it!

AN EXPERIENCE
WORSHIP AND PRAISE

"A Festival of Praise", written by Thurlow Spurr will be performed at Davisburg United Methodist Church soon.

The religiously inspired musical composition will be sung by Davisburg area residents Thursday, Thanksgiving evening (November 23) at 7:30 p.m.

The vocal group is composed of singers of various denominations who enjoy singing and giving praise to God.

Under the direction of Assistant Choir Director Cheryl Swift, the Choir has joined together, ignoring the denominational differences and competition that so often stifle cooperative religious community projects.

The choir wishes to extend an invitation to Davisburg area residents to come and join them in giving thanks and praise to God on this special day of Thanksgiving.

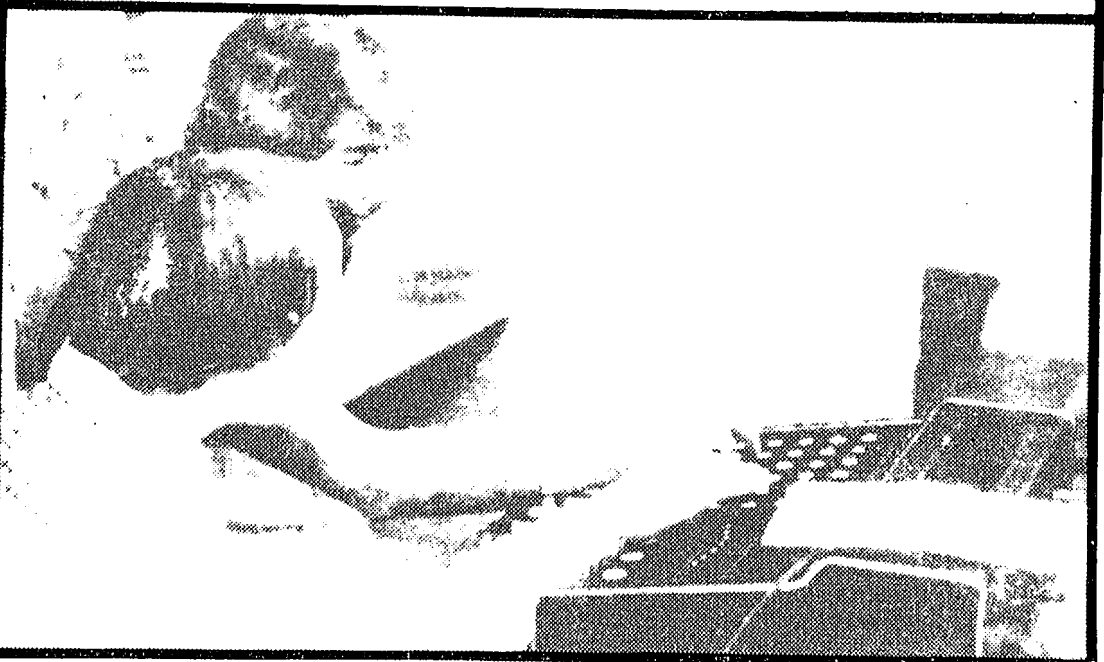

The group also performed "A Festival of Praise" for Pontiac area residents November 19th.

Location: Davisburg United Methodist Church

Crosshill and Davisburg Roads, Davisburg

Date: November 23rd--Thanksgiving

Time: 7:30 P.M.

ENERGY-MATE

Model 7825

Used as supplement for independent heating systems.

The ENERGY MATE is designed to be a supplement to your present heating system. It utilizes the same air ducts and chimney that your present gas or oil furnace uses. The forced air from the ENERGY-MATE activates the blower of your present furnace and circulates the warm air through your present furnace heat ducts.

When the temperature between the interlining of the stove reaches 150° Fahrenheit, blower will engage and continue to transfer the heat produced by the wood burner until the fire distinguishes and the inter-jacket temperature goes below 120° Fahrenheit. At this time, the blower will shut down.

Model - 7825

Model 7805 and 7806

The Parlor-Mate and Pressure-Mate fire-places will provide years of pleasure for all your family and they are beautifully designed to complement any home decor.

Because these units do not require extensive duct work, they are easy and inexpensive to install. They can be used as a slip-in for existing fireplaces, as a built-in for remodeling and new construction, or they can be installed as a beautiful freestanding fireplace heater.

These units are specifically designed to pressurize the home with a controlled flow of fresh, warm air. A thermostatically controlled, built-in fan kicks in at 140° forcing outside air through heat exchangers and an exclusive warming chamber. There the air is heated and gently pushed into the home to create a positive warm air pressure. This positive pressure heating is the secret of these units and therefore keeps cold air out, stops cold drafts, and distributes heat evenly throughout your home.

7805 and 7806 Pressure Mate Models

7800 Series

This advanced design wood-burning furnace ties into your present warm air heating system and will provide you with a savings up to 90% in fuel costs. This furnace converter is fully automatic and thermostatically controlled with automatic switchover to your present furnace if you should be gone for a weekend, or unable to add wood at 6-12 hour intervals as normally required. Remember it's completely automatic--NO ONE HAS TO BE THERE FOR THE CHANGEOVER. It even works during power failure on a gravity basis.

The hook-up is easy with all controls furnished along with two Honeywell thermostats and solid state electronic controls to assure even heat. All you have to buy is the correct length of thermostat wire and stovepipe.

7800 Series Four models available Used as independent or supplemental heating systems

Model - 7807

Each unit comes with a variable speed on/off switch to provide fan speed control, allowing you to obtain the right movement of air throughout your entire home. An internal damper system provides a second control for the rate of combustion. Wood consumption is therefore much lower and more complete than the ordinary inefficient fireplace.

These units are designed to heat your entire home, and they use up to one-third less fuel than the average fireplace. In fact they may save you as much as three-quarters of your present heating bill.

Parlor-Mate Model - 7807

Models 7848-B - 7836-B

This advanced design wood-burning boiler ties into your present hot water system and will provide you with a saving of up to 90% in fuel costs. The BOILER-MATE is fully automatic and thermostatically controlled, with automatic switchover to your present boiler if you should be gone for a week-end, or unable to add wood at 6-12 hour intervals as normally required. Remember it's completely automatic--no one else has to be there for the changeover.

This unit offers complete combustion with minimal ash removal during extended periods due to complete burning of wood and gasses. Secondary preheated air inductor burns off rich gasses normally lost up chimney in less efficient boilers. Higher efficiency means a very clean burning boiler with less creosote

Models - 7848-B - 7836-B Used as supplemental or independent hot water heaters

Just One of Those Days

He's fifteen, and he thought that he was the class clown. Substitute teachers were often his victims, and no nonsense was too much trouble to carry out, as long as his friends would laugh.

He was especially gleeful to discover a new young substitute in his English class on the second floor of the high-school recently. He had stepped into the room, and made a hasty exit -- then when the classroom was almost full, he ran the length of the room, yelling, "I'm going to end it all!" as he jumped out of the window.

The frightened teacher hurried to the window, only to discover him sitting on a ledge beneath it.

That evening, the teacher told her boyfriend all about the "monster" and what he had pulled on her, and it turned out that she had a chance to get even. Though the young man didn't know it, the substitute teacher was his older brother's new girlfriend, that the family was eager to meet. When she was "taken home to meet the boyfriend's family" one member of it was a lot less happy than the rest. Now that the family has found out about his shenanigans, he is going to have more than just one of those days!

What's Happening

"Magic" Joe Levine's new movie, is a picture you will either love or hate. It will either fascinate or repel you.

"Magic" stars Anthony Hopkins, Ann-Margaret and Burgess Meredith. It was adapted from a book by William Goldman. Goldman also wrote the screen play.

The movie is about a beginning magician (Anthony Hopkins) who has a very difficult time being successful until he incorporates a dummy into his act. With the addition of Fats, the dummy, the magician becomes suddenly famous.

Ann-margaret plays the high school sweetheart, whom the magician finds again. Their love story is beautiful yet bizarre.

Burgess Meredith is the magician's agent. Meredith proves again in "Magic" what a fine character actor he is.

I have no idea who played the dummy, but the performance was unbelievable. The doll resembled Anthony Hopkins and it's facial contortions were humanly uncanny. If you are a Charlie McCarthy or Chuck and Bob fan, you will appreciate the craftsmanship of the dummy in "Magic".

I don't want to tell you any more of the plot of the movie, for it will spoil it for you. I will warn you though-----"Magic" can be taken many ways; as a first class scary story, as a violent, sex-filled piece of trash; or as an insight into human psychology like you've never seen before.

I attended last Sunday, a very entertaining fashion show at Pine Knob Lodge. It was put on by the John Robert Powers School of Modeling. The show highlighted Powers Fall graduates.

The graduates modeled their own clothing because this fashion show was not just to show new styles, but to show what the graduates had learned.

They demonstrated still photography stances as well as run-way movement. Some of the most exciting moments of the show were skits done in mime by the models.

kDeana Gary of Ortonville was chairman of the fashion show. Deana also modeled, and was in charge of show production.

CVP Schedules Comedy Farce

"See How They Run," described as a comedy farce, opens Friday, December 1 at the Depot Theatre on White Lake Road.

Key figures in the merry mix-ups are a pair of old friends--an American actor and an actress. Clive Winton (Larry Bate) is now an Air Force corporal stationed in [seated left], Russ Inman or Al Bartlett? You'll have to "See How They Run" to find out.

England and Penelope Toop (Karen Sage) is the wife of a vicar. Their reunion is an innocent date but when they return to the vicarage, they become enmeshed in a dizzy dilemma that gets more involved by the minute.

Penelope learns that a sedate bishop (Pete Rose) is there waiting to offer her husband, Rev. Lionel Toop (Al Bartlett), a better position in the church. The complications begin when Penelope insists that Clive exchange his service uniform for clergyman's garb lest someone think their date was less than innocent.

The fun reaches hilarious heights as five men in clerical garb--one of them an escaped prisoner--present the problem of who is really who. Adding to the confusion is a teetotaling spinster (Pat Thomas) gets more than slightly tipsy, a Cockney maid's (Miriam Parr) imagination is stimulated by having seen too many Hollywood movies, and the bishop decides that everyone, including himself, is going mad. Other cast members include Chris Rose, Russ Inman, and Keith Conklin.

Play dates are December 1, 2, 3, 7, 8, and 9. The performance on Thursday, December 7, is a benefit for SCAMP. Tickets for all performances are available at Tierra Arts and Design or by calling 625-5716, the prize is $3.00. Show time is 8:30 p.m., except for the Sunday performance at 7:30.

Local development commissions can do a lot to improve the local economy. They are essential in luring new businesses and industries to a community. They can also be active in helping the community plan for new growth, for both business and residential areas. The function of a commission is to discover unfilled local economic potentialities and to bring them to the attention of entrepreneurs and business managers. Bringing in new business generally means an increase in value of all property in the vicinity. The catch may be the need to construct new municipal supports, i.e., sewers, roads, schools, extra fire and police protection, etc.

In a real estate transaction, every detail should be spelled out and nothing should be left to chance. To feel confident that every detail of your real estate transaction is being attended to with competence and efficiency, seek out the assistance of BOB WHITE REAL ESTATE, 5856 S. ## Clarkston Schools Hires a D.O.P.E.

by Carol Balzarini

William Potvin has been the Director of Planning and Evaluation, D.O.P.E. as he humorously put it, for the Clarkston Community Schools since last July 1. Since that time, he has taken advantage of opportunities to appear before group meetings in the community to explain his new position within the school system. He has previously been principal of Clarkston Junior High School.

Potvin explained the "overwhelming majority" of people he has talked to like the idea of his job, but he admits some aren't too happy about having another administrator. He emphasized, however, he is not a member of the central office administration; he is housed at the board office, but reports directly to Superintendent Milford Mason.

The best way to explain what Potvin is doing and why is to start at the beginning when Mason first became Superintendent of Schools.

Potvin explained that during that first year, Mason did a lot of listening. The superintendent's dialogue committee was established. More direct information was desired than had been available in the past and administrative accessibility was emphasized.

In that pre-millage election period, conclusions were drawn that a system was needed to keep the public informed about the strength and weaknesses of the system and "good hard factual information was needed," as Potvin put it.

Second, it was decided a model or plan was necessary to do this. School administrators wanted to shift away from reacting to situations as they developed to planning for them instead, thus the creation of the Director of Planning and Evaluation.

Workshops were held for board members and administrators where they assessed their needs. These led to goal-setting workshops with a steering committee following.

Money was available from the State Department of Education for school districts with average or less funds.

A plan was written and submitted, but the Clarkston school district was not selected for the grant.

In spite of this, the school board decided to go ahead with their plans. It was concluded that 1). the job should be done by one person rather than parceled out to a number of people and 2). it should be a fulltime job for three years whether or not grant money was awarded.

The board felt, too, that if the job, and Potvin didn't do what they were designed to do, the job would be eliminated.

Potvin, said, however, that he really isn't too worried about his future, because he feels there is a need for the job in spite of it being one more administrative

Where did the school system's goals come from? Since the concept of planning and evaluation is not a new one, there were many sets of goals already devised to look at. The one selected had thirteen easy-to-understand goals, each with sub-goals. These were modified to fit the Clarkston Community Schools. Modifying a set already devised left more time for evaluation.

The public will be asked to both rate and rank these goals because school administrators and the board have to know where to start. Every goal cannot be attacked at once even if the school system has unlimited resources. Potvin compared that problem with "ranking your children. You love them all. How do you decide which is more important?"

The results of that public rating and ranking will then be evaluated determining where the money will go next year, which programs will receive greater funds than others, Potvin explained. Once these areas of emphasis are determined, administrators will work toward those programs to be evaluated in the spring. What else will be evaluated? Just students and programs, Potvin said, but not personnel. The school system will get into a "good structured" testing program.

"If enough people give their views," Potvin said, "We'll have a much clearer picture of how the public sees the school system." He cited the example of space problems in the schools not brought out until recently, saying, "Our p.r. wasn't operating."

Everyone in the school district will be given an opportunity to respond, Potvin said, and it is hoped the majority will. How this information about the goals of the school district will be distributed is still being formulated. A steering committee of teachers, citizens, administrators and one board member has been set up to help formulate those ideas.

Forty Sign Up to Ski for New Clarkston Coach

Ed York is Clarkston High School's new chemistry teacher this year; he is also the new ski coach.

Although Richmond High School, where he previously taught, and Warren High School, which he attended, did not have ski teams only ski clubs, York said he is looking forward to coaching the fledgling team here in Clarkston. He has, however, coached both baseball and football.

York is pleased with the response from the students. Over 40 signed up initially, but that number has dwindled to 30 or 32, because of the expense involved and transportation problems. The final number will not be known until Monday, November 21, the deadline for buying racing passes at Pine Knob. Price of the pass this year is $110 with the racer responsible for the entire amount.

York has some of last year's skiers returning and thinks 15 or 20 kids would be an ideal number to work with, but said he certainly doesn't intend to turn anyone away.

At the present, he has the skiers running and playing soccer outside in good weather and running inside in bad, trying to build up their lower bodies. As soon as the snow comes and Pine Knob opens, he will concentrate on the basic skills on the slopes. Until then, he wants to keep them busy, interested and in shape.

York hasn't had a chance to assess the abilities of his skiers yet, but said most of them have indicated previous skiing experience. Many of them will use family passes rather than the more limited racing passes.

The $240 ski budget, York said, will barely cover gates for racing and some equipment, dues, and the cost of the district and regional meets in February, but that was all that had been allotted that sport this year.

About the winter season ahead of him, York said, "This year is just a learning year for me." He anticipates a lot of competition in the years to come, and will put a lot of effort in this year toward building a team.

York is single, lives in Orion Township, and graduated from Oakland University after having spent three years at Central Michigan University.

Quick Holiday Desserts Start With Candy

Every holiday season needs one spectacular dessert. Better yet, it should be one which is easy to prepare and waits in the freezer for a party of unexpected guests.

Such a dessert special is Noel Tortoni, a sumptuous blend of vanilla ice cream laced with rum extract, colorful "M&M's" Chocolate Candies and almonds. Sinfully delicious and elegant, it can be quickly prepared ahead of time and taken from the freezer for a grand finale to a wonderful dinner.

Decorative cookies also are holiday "musts." These can be made in no time using prepared mixes and the colorful "M&M's" Chocolate Candies which give easy, "instant" holiday dress-up touch to cookies and desserts.

Hot chocolate served in small cups can be sophisticated for adults and pleasing to youngsters. Hot Orange Chocolate takes but a minute to make by whirling the "M&M's" Chocolate Candies in a blender and adding grated orange rind and hot milk. The real chocolate flavor of the candies makes the best tasting hot chocolate ever.

NOEL TORTONI

- |   |   |
|---|---|
| 1 quart vanilla ice cream   | 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg                                       |
| 1/2 cup chopped toasted almonds   | 1/2 cup "M&M's" Plain Chocolate Candies                   |
| 2 tablespoons each of chopped red and green maraschino cherries, well-drained | Whipped cream   |
| 1 teaspoon rum extract  | Additional "M&M's" Plain Chocolate Candies for decorating |
| 1 teaspoon vanilla  |   |

Cut ice cream into large chunks and place in well-chilled bowl. Stir quickly until smooth. Stir in almonds, cherries, extract, and nutmeg, if used. Fold in Candies. Spoon into 2-1/2 inch square paper or foil baking cups in muffin pans. Freeze. Serve plain or top each serving with a dollop of whipped cream and a few additional Candies. Makes 8 servings.

QUICK HOT ORANGE CHOCOLATE

- |   |                 |
|---|-----------------|
| 1/2 cup "M&M's" Plain Chocolate Candies | 2 cups hot milk |
| 1/4 teaspoon grated orange rind         | Whipped cream   |

Place candies in blender container. Add orange rind and milk. Cover container and whirl until smooth. Pour into hot mug. Top with whipped cream and a slice of orange or grated rind. Make 2 servings.
