Is TV A Pied Piper?

Concerned and intelligent parents must deal with the impact of television on the lives of their children. By high school graduation students have spent some 11,000 hours in class and 15,000 hours in front of the TV. Clearly TV plays an important part in the development of young minds.

For those desiring more information on the effects of television, its program content, commercials, and its role in learning, please attend a film and presentation by the Committee for Children's Television. The Davisburg Jaycee Auxiliary is sponsoring this program March 20 at 7:30 p.m. at the Davisburg Elementary School, Davisburg Road, Davisburg. Everyone is welcome to this free presentation and refreshments will be served. Please try to attend.

March Ushers in Whirlwind of Entertainment

by Carol Balzarini

Whatever your taste in entertainment might be, the month of March has something for everyone. This weekend the Clarkston Village Players will complete their presentation of "Picnic," the grandeur of the Second Empire of France is at the Detroit Institute of Art through Sunday, March 18, the Clarkston High School production of "Annie Get Your Gun" will be presented the last two weekends of the month, and on Saturday, March 24, the second annual Country Music Spectacular comes to the Silverdome.

The Clarkston Village Players will wind up the six-performance run of William Inge's award winning play "Picnic" at the Depot Theatre on White Lake Road. Thursday night is a benefit performance for the Clarkston Jaycees and Jaycettes, the play continues Friday and Saturday.

Most people will remember the movie version with William Holden and Kim Novak as the drifter and the restless girl in a small town in Kansas who evoke a somewhat steamy response in one another quite apart from the heat of the summer weather. In the local production, however, theatre goers will see Russ Inman and Heidi Shuh heading a cast of talented amateur actors.

At the Art Institute, art lovers will find a fantastic collection of paintings, sculpture, furniture, photography, architectural drawings, porcelain and enamel, and gold and jewels, all on loan in a show depicting the art of France under Napoleon III, who ruled from 1852-1870.

Paintings by Courbet and Corot can be seen as well as early works of Degas, Monet and Manet before their association with the Impressionists. Perhaps the most familiar sculptor represented is Rodin. Furniture ranges from an opulent rosewood cradle, made for the Prince

Michael
Ferguson
will be missed
by Springfield
Residents

Springfield Township will miss the services of Michael Ferguson, a 16-year veteran with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, who died of a stroke while on duty in Springfield Township on Saturday, February 24.

He was 43 years of age, and was a very popular deputy who had been working in Springfield Township ever since they had had a contract with the sheriff's department. Ferguson was a favorite with the young persons residing in the community, also.

His file contains a departmental citation and many letters of commendation from persons that received aid from the deputy. Ferguson will be missed by the citizens of Springfield Township, as well as his fellow officers.

The citizens of Springfield have started a Mike Ferguson Memorial Fund for his family-his wife, Mildred and his 3 children. Accepting contributions to the fund is Charles Oaks at the Davisburg Marathon service station and all checks should be written for the Mike Ferguson Memorial Fund. In making the funeral arrangements, Fergusons family had requested the memorial contributions be made to the Michigan Heart Fund.

Ferguson was originally stricken at about 2:55 p.m. Saturday, approximately one hour before he was to get off duty. When he collapsed, Ferguson was taken to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital and was kept "alive" by machines until 4 p.m. on Sunday and his kidney could be removed to use for someone else. Prior arrangements had been made to use Ferguson's kidney, in the event that something happened to him during the course of his duties.

Michael Ferguson was born on February 11, 1936, graduated from Clarkston High School, went to work for the Oakland County Sheriff's Department in 1962, and died on February 25, 1979.

LETTERS FROM READERS

Please relay my thanks for the complimentary description to Mr. Edward Santala, whose letter appeared in the March 1 Reminder. Something a little closer to "Erma Bombeck" might have been more accurate, however; or so I thought as my elementary-schooler excitedly read the letter aloud at the dinner table!

It's a shame Mr. Santala missed the two outstandingly positive points put across in the original article "All in a Day's Work:"

(1) The customer loyalty that prompted a fifteen-mile drive on icy roads to the firm in his building.

(2) The friendliness and willingness of the townspeople to help a person find a firm recently moved into new quarters which--at that time--did not have a sign readily visible from the road.

Writers try to put their thoughts clearly on the line in words. What is "read" between the lines is controlled only by the reader's viewpoint. The directions I was given verbally--"Right at Dixie Highway and M-15"--are a good case in point.

THOUGHTS 'N THINGS

Last week I introduced the subject of jealousy. Since then, I have given a lot of thought to the subject, and to my acquaintance who feels that she has no friends because everyone she knows, is jealous of her big house, her mink coat, her Cadillac, etc. I say "acquaintance," though I used to consider her a friend, because I am in no way jealous or envious of those material possessions which seem to stand between her and the rest of the world. I am insulted by her accusations, however! I am also disgusted with her attitude toward other women. She has regressed since I first knew her, and is taking an "easy way out" of her personality difficulties, by blaming them on other people. As a result, she is turning off friendship in all directions, and becoming lonelier and lonelier. If she could take the responsibility for her own problems, she would realize that other people have always been around to offer friendship—but she is unable to accept it. It isn't "everyone else" who is making her unhappy, but simply one quirk in her own personality which is making a shambles of all her relationships. If I tried to tell her that, however, she would accuse me of being jealous of her. I would not be the first person who had tried!

On the other hand, I may be the only one of her acquaintances who would so painstakingly search for some glimmer of truth in her accusations. After all, aren't all women supposed to be jealous of a sister who has a full-length mink coat, a Cadillac, a big house, etc.? Am I kidding myself when I deny my interest in such things? Am I denying my own feminine nature? What is the TRUTH of the matter? (As everyone knows, I love searching out truths!)

Well, I had to first take a look at some definitions. I had always understood that "jealousy" was an emotion felt by other women when a well-shaped female took the attention away from the others. According to the dictionary, however, "jealous" is an adjective which means "being fearful of loss of position or affection."

Now, if one wants to discuss ENVY, one might get a little closer to the truth of human relationships. Envy is a noun which means "a feeling of discontent and resentment aroused by another's desirable possessions or qualities, with a strong desire to have them for oneself." It is rather clearly seen by this definition, that envy is a complete waste of time, of course. My own dealings with it boil down to these truths.

What a relief! I was not jealous of the lady in question. Her material possessions in no way threatened my loss of position or affection! Now, if she had claimed that all the women she knew who shared her same value system were jealous of her, I might have accepted that. If one's position and source of affection depend on one having the most expensive fur coat, the newest car, and the most expensive and the largest and most luxurious home, then one might be jealous of one who poses such a threat. I, however, am only jealous of those who are younger, and those who are thinner, than I am, because everyone knows that movie directors only look for that kind of female, and so, I have lost my position as "next in line" for stardom, and the affection of the movie-going public!

Now, if one wants to discuss ENVY, one might get a little closer to the truth of human relationships. Envy is a noun which means "a feeling of discontent and resentment aroused by another's desirable possessions or qualities, with a strong desire to have them for oneself." It is rather clearly seen by this definition, that envy is a complete waste of time, of course. My own dealings with it boil down to these truths.

Envy is an uncomfortable feeling. It should be "got rid of" as soon as possible.

The way to "get rid of" envy, is to arrange to possess those objects or qualities that one envies when possessed by someone else.

Joan Allen

Feature Editor

In order to do that, one must develop the same capabilities and skills and attitudes, etc. that the first person has. One must accept that person's "negatives" as well as their "positives."

The result of such analysis of envy is hard work, bent on attaining what one wants, or a gradual lack of interest in the possessions or qualities that one has formerly envied. The big question has always been, is now, and always will be, "Are you willing to pay the price for the possession or quality?" Anyone who really believes that anything is "free" in life is naive. Intelligence, talent, skill, luck, what-have-you, must be cared for and developed when they are recognized, and they must be recognized first of all. Recognition, in turn, takes time and energy. They take looking in the right place at the right time. And now that we have moved in a reverse direction, let us see envy and jealousy as they really are.

The emotions of envy and jealousy are nothing more than signals that inform us that danger to our self-preservation is present. They are as normal as blinking our eyes when there is a sudden light. They have the same purpose as any physical pain—they are warning signals that something is amiss. They signal "lack of confidence." The "pain-killer" is a dose of confidence. Find what you like to do best, and what you do best, and what brings you most favorable recognition in the eyes of other people. Do those things often (you'll get better and better at them) and you'll discover that you have no time to notice what anyone else has or does, because you'll be too busy "doing your own thing." My acquaintance is, in fact, a bit boring. That is what has caused her "social failures," and not what she "has." It's what she isn't—and that is "interesting."

The Washington D.C. Question

Washington, D.C.—Question: What is nine stories high, adorned with marble and teak, and more expensive than U.S. taxpayers can afford? Answer (according to Sen. John Chafee of Rhode Island): The new Senate Office Building, currently under construction.

"At $111 a square foot, construction costs of the Hart Building (as it will be known) are double those of commercial buildings in downtown Washington," Chafee writes in the February Reader's Digest. Among other deluxe features, the building will contain a $350,000 gymnasium, bringing the total of Senate gyms to three, and a $600,000 rooftop restaurant that, the senate figures, will bring the number of senatorial dining-room seats to 350—or 3½ seats per senator. The final price tag on the Hart Building, if cost overruns continue at present levels, will be well over $200 million.

This proved even too much for the House of Representatives. In a precedent-shattering move, it voted overwhelmingly in August to cut off additional construction funds by 245 to 153. Even so, the Senate was able to round up enough money left over from previous appropriations to continue construction into the new year.

Senate proponents of the edifice are confident that the House will vote the necessary funds to continue building the "Taj Mahal on the Potomac" now that elections are safely concluded and representatives are safe from voters' wrath.

Chafee examines two of the arguments they will use for completing the structure. One—the Hart Building will relieve overcrowding. The senator counters by quoting Chafee's Law—that staff expands to fill the space available. Twenty-five years ago, one office building housed 96 senators and all their staffs. With the addition of only four more senators, the Senate occupies two office buildings and half a dozen hotels, apartment and office buildings. Its employees now total 6500.

The second argument—that the Hart Building will be the final construction caper—Chafee refutes by saying the Architect of the Capital will then renovate the Dirksen and Russell Senate Office Buildings—to bring them up to Hart Building standards—and then proceed with "a master plan that pinpoints sites and gives estimated square footage for six more House office buildings and four more Senate office buildings that may be built in the future."

If Congress really intends to curb inflation, Chafee suggests that it start by calling a halt to unnecessary spending for luxurious offices for itself.

Fuel Efficiency Standards What Are Our Priorities

The Department of Transportation seems to be using a different set of national priorities from those of the President and the rest of the nation, when it comes to cars and fuel efficiency standards.

The Department recently made this point clear when it refused to give the auto industry three-years leeway in meeting federal fuel efficiency standards. In its decision, the Department decided that the inflationary impact—about $600 per car—was outweighed by the need to conserve energy.

The problem with the Department's decision is that realities have changed, and priorities have changed with them. While the energy problem is serious and cannot be downplayed, inflation is recognized as having the highest national priority.

There is a long-range energy problem, and we must work to develop new, virtually inexhaustible sources of energy. Yet, in the relative short term, there seem to be sufficient natural resources to meet our needs.

In contrast of this, we have a sustained inflation rate, over the past decade, that has approached double digits, and has halved the value of the dollar. It has played havoc with our national and personal lives, and has threatened the health of our economy.

As purely a question of priorities, the Department of Transportation's decision was off the mark. However, there are other factors that should be weighed more heavily in the decision.

Both General Motors and Ford said they will barely meet 1979 requirements of 19 miles-per-gallon, and there is no certainty that they can meet the 1985 standards of 27.5 mpg, because the technology may not be in the hands of every domestic manufacturer.

Further, by the Department's own estimate, the auto industry will have to invest $11.5 billion to achieve the standards. With Chrysler and American Motors having some financial difficulties, and the short-term future of the economy looking grim, these costs could pose serious problems for the auto industry. The result could be lost jobs, a declining rate of growth in the industry, and ever higher prices.

The auto industry reasonably asked for a three-year extension to meet the 1985 standards. While this would cause higher fuel consumption over those years, it would also lessen the costs to the consumer, decrease the financial burden on an industry that provides one out of six Americans with work, and allows more time for the technology to be adopted smoothly.

Government regulations are costly and in time of high inflation must be given serious consideration. Fuel efficiency standards were formulated by Congress at a time when priorities were different and energy saving was of prime importance. With time, the problem was put into perspective as the seriousness of the inflation rate and its impact became clear. The Department of Transportation's decision should have reflected these new priorities and granted the extension.

POTS AND LEACHING

by Bonnie Hale

When transplanting, select a container that is only one or two inches larger in diameter than the old pot.

There are many different types of containers and pots on the market from which to choose. Mostly it's a matter of personal choice, although there are a few points to remember.

Drainage holes are very important. If drainage isn't adequate, the plant can very easily drown. A hole can be drilled (use a ceramic drill bit) in glazed ceramic pots. Or you can add several inches of drainage material; small stones, gravel, or pieces of broken clay pots.

Plastic pots are a good choice for hanging baskets as they are light weight. Plants in plastic containers don't need to be watered or fertilized as often as plants in clay pots. Therefore you must be very careful when watering or fertilizing a plant in a plastic pot.

Clay pots are ideal pots, especially if you are relatively new to the art of growing houseplants. It's very hard to drown a plant in a clay pot (overwatering is the number one killer of houseplants). Because of their porosity, clay pots allow for the free passage of both water and air. In other words, clay pots "breathe" in and out water and air. They also "breathe" out fertilizer.

The "breathing" out of fertilizer is evident by the white film on the outside of clay pots.

All types of pots are subject to mineral build-up. A mineral build-up is caused by three things; excessive fertilizer, hard water and softened water. Mineral build-up, if not taken care of is detrimental to plants. In actuality a mineral build-up is excessive soluble salts in the soil.

Does your clay pots have a white crusty film on the outside of the pot? Is the soil white and crusty on the top? Is the soil hard? When you water, does the water quickly run through the planting medium, by-passing the roots? If so, you have a mineral build-up.

A mineral build-up can be prevented by watering thoroughly enough so that water always runs out of the drainage holes every time you water. Each time you water thoroughly the excess water carries the soluble salts out the drainage hole.

If you have a mineral build-up, take the plant to the sink and flush the soil with water. This process is known as leaching, and works like this; water is applied and allowed to drain off, water is applied again and allowed to drain off. In a bad case of mineral build-up it may take several applications of water and draining to remove excessive salts. Don't worry about drowning the plant, the excessive salts will do much more damage by burning the roots.

How often should you leach the soil? Let your plants and soil be your guide by watching for the white crusty film. Generally speaking, every couple of months I leach my plants.

Artist Registry Published by OCCC

The Oakland County Cultural Council (OCCC) was established in 1975 by resolution of the Board of Commissioners. It is the first and only such agency in the state of Michigan funded by local government and consists of twenty members, representative of all parts of the county who are interested in the cultural arts. Joan Kopietz, owner of Tierra Arts and Design in Clarkston, was named of these members last year after having served as a resource representative for both the Village of Clarkston and Independence Township.

One of the earliest projects of the OCCC was to prepare a registry of Oakland County artists, those people who actively participate in drama, music and the fine arts. The resulting registry, the response to numerous requests for artists to answer the needs of various individuals and organizations, was made available just last week. While including some 3,000 names, it is by no means complete. Subsequent editions will be more inclusive.

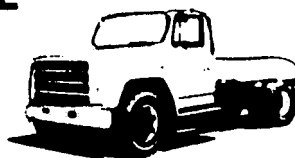

In the meantime, the registry should meet the needs of individuals, clubs, schools, art councils, or volunteer groups who are looking for artists. Copies of it can be found at the Independence Township Library and the Clarkston Schools administration building. Other copies are in the possession of Joan Kopietz, Carol Balzarini who represents Clarkston and Independence Township, or Sandy Webster, representing Davisburg and Springfield Township.

Knights of Columbus Fund Drive for Mentally Retarded

The fourth annual fund drive to assist the mentally retarded locally and in Michigan will be conducted by Pope John XXIII Council of the Knights of Columbus on April 6, 7, 8. Chuck Springer, council Grand Knight, announced.

Last year statewide the Knights of Columbus, a Catholic men's fraternal society, collected $483,933 in the three-day weekend drive. Locally $7,116.64 was collected and donated to Waterford Training Institute Oakland Association of Retarded Citizens, Pontiac Waterford Training Institute, Waterford Organization of Retarded Citizens.

Under the program, which is carried out in most of the 185 K.C. councils in Michigan, people are asked to donate money to the mentally retarded and are given a tootsie roll candy in appreciation of the gift.

Eighty percent of the net income from the donations is retained by the local council and the rest is forwarded to the State Council of the Knights of Columbus to meet expenses and make donations in behalf of all of the 63,500 Knights in Michigan.

The State Council recently donated $40,000 to the State Association for Mentally Retarded Citizens to aid the organization's citizen advocacy volunteer program. Other gifts also are being considered.

Citizens will be able to recognize the Knights and their helpers during the drive because they will be dressed in colorful hats, carrying canisters resembling a Tootsie Roll candy and wearing aprons emblazoned with "K of C Help the Mentally Retarded."

Congressman Broomfield Reports

Throughout the land, Americans have been sending a clear message that they are fast approaching the limits on the amount of taxation they can bear. However, for one sector of our population, our Nation's senior citizens, this limit was reached long ago.

One of the most burdensome and tragic taxes that this group of Americans has had to bear is the ever-increasing property tax.

With the impact of inflation forcing up prices on the basic necessities, such as food and clothing, many senior citizens who live on fixed incomes are finding it more and more difficult to pay the taxes on their homes—one of their most valued assets.

A national poll taken two years ago showed that only 5 percent of Americans over 65 pulled up roots and moved after retirement. Over half of America's elderly lived with their spouse in independent homes while one-fourth lived alone. The median income among the elderly was $4,800.

Perhaps one of the basic reasons why so few senior citizens moved, even with the hardships of a low income, inflation, and rising property taxes, is that for them, especially, their homes are more than houses. Their homes represent memories of family, children, community roots and long-standing friendships, and their sense of independence.

It is nothing less than a national disgrace when these people are forced from their homes because they could not pay their property taxes, or are forced to live at bare subsistence levels because they did pay their taxes.

To help correct this situation, I have re-introduced legislation to provide a partial repayment to low-income senior citizens of the amount paid in property taxes. The direct reimbursement would come from the Internal Revenue Service.

Basically, my bill would provide for monthly repayments of up to $40 as reimbursements for state and local property taxes to elderly homeowners whose annual household income is less than $5,000. This would mean that there would be a maximum repayment of $480 a year per qualifying household.

A large portion of this tax goes to pay for public education. By the time these citizens have reached 65 years of age, they have long ago paid their fair share of educating the youth.

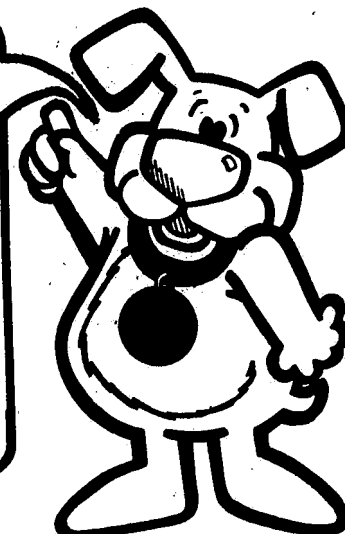

Our Nation's senior citizens have earned the right to relax and enjoy the remaining years of their lives in their communities among their friends. They should not have to worry whether they will have to move because they can no longer afford to live in their homes, or how they will survive if they choose to live in their community.

Two years ago, the estate laws were adjusted so that a spouse would not have to sell inherited property, usually their home, to pay the estate tax. It is now time to correct the tax picture so that senior citizens can keep and enjoy their homes in the first place.

Northwest Oakland County Council for the Arts is Formed

by Betty Good

It has been said that "from little acorns, mighty oak trees grow"; and, if that is true, Holly, Rose, Springfield and Groveland Townships should soon be a veritable "forest" of artistic and cultural endeavors!

On February 21, 1979, fourteen people representing a cross-section of those communities met with Marlo Bellanger, Coordinator of Oakland County Cultural Council, and Sandy Webster, Springfield Township representative to the same body, to form the Northwest Oakland County Council for the Arts.

With a charter organization that includes practicing artists and craftsmen, teachers, civic and recreation leaders, parents and businessmen, the group made an auspicious beginning. Officers elected include: Chairman, Irma Guthrie; Vice-Chairman, Ralph O'Reilly; Secretary, Gretchen Harrod; Treasurer, Judy Palmgren.

Maned Trustees along with the officers were: Sandy Webster, Jan Foon, Nancy Howerth, Eileen Still, Marilee Prescott-Smith, Angie Rhodes, Noni Acey, Maggie Cavanaugh, Anne Clinton, and Bob Mitchell.

A By-law committee for incorporation was also formed. The group's goal is to have a meeting with the general public within the next three months in order to incorporate their ideas as well.

Besides attempting to give better art representation in the Holly Area School District, which crosses township lines, by working with both the children and the Board of Education, the Northwest Oakland County Council for the Arts has three definite items on the future agenda. A showing of "Women's Works" down through the years will be held at Springfield-Oaks Youth Activities Center in the Fall. The newly-formed Council for the Arts, also, hopes to assist Rose Township with Rose Center Days. A Performing Arts program for next year is in the planning stages.

CORRECTION

The 4-H Workshop scheduled for the last weekend of March as listed in last week's Reminder, should have read, "Clowning Weekend set for March 30 and 31, 1979, at Springfield-Oaks Youth Activities Center."

arrest swing will continue.

"We took on 16 additional people," said Lt. George Gedda, commander of the Pontiac state police post, and "placed a priority on serious traffic violations. DUIL (drunk driving) is one of these. We're concentrating on that particular violation more because of its direct contribution to fatalities, which have risen."

Drunk driving's always been a problem, Gedda continued. "It needs to be addressed and put into the proper perspective, especially in our area where there are so many people on the roads."

Drunk driving arrests made by troopers from the Pontiac post, which serves a large part of Oakland County, were up 66 percent over the preceding year, according to statistics received by the Traffic Improvement Association of Oakland County (TIA).

At the Northville post of the state police, which serves portions of Oakland and Wayne counties, drunk driving arrests were up 93 percent in 1978 over 1977.

"There's definitely been an increase of drunk drivers on the roads," said Northville commander, Lt. William Tomczyk. "What's very shocking to me is the increase in the number of females. I don't have the figures right now, but there's no question in my mind there are more females driving drunk than there used to be. And there's also been a drop in the age group."

"It's too soon to see if the new law raising the drinking age is going to make any difference," Tomczyk continued.

Increased patrol coverage is the primary reason for the jump in arrests, he said. "In the past our patrols in Oakland County have been on a hit and miss basis. Because of additional personnel, we now have three cars on patrol in Oakland County 24 hours a day." Primarily they're for freeway patrol, but many of the arrests are being made on roadways going to and from the freeways.

"Drunk driving enforcement is an area I've always stressed with my people," said Tomczyk. "I tell them we know they're out there and it's up to you people to see that some type of action is taken to keep these drivers from injuring or killing themselves and others."

Capt. Paul Ruge, command officer of the Michigan State Police Traffic Service Division, said there has been an emphasis on drunk driving arrests with the additional traffic patrols.

"Past experience," said Ruge, "tells us that an increase in drunk driving enforcement results in significant decreases in the more serious accidents and fatalities."

Bruce B. Madsen, managing director of the Traffic Improvement Association of Oakland County, said TIA shares the concerns of state and local police in Oakland County over the number of drunk drivers on the roadways.

For recent years, statistics show that more than half of Oakland's fatalities were alcohol related.

This concern has motivated development of a "super DUIL enforcement program which TIA hopes to be able to launch soon," Madsen said.

Turkey Dinner by Masons

The two traditional 'turkey days' have already passed by for this year, and we're coming up to the ham-eaters festival-Easter.

But for those who really enjoy their turkey, the Clarkston Masons are having their Annual Turkey Dinner on March 11 at the Masonic Temple at 1 North Main Street in Clarkston. The dinner will be held from 12-3 p.m.

For the first year, an Art Review will be given by the Job's Daughters.

So plan to come to the Dinner on March 11, and you will enjoy some fine art along with your turkey!

Move Over
Susie

by Carol Balzarini

Those who know my friend Brenda, although I've never mentioned her by name before, know that she can make a story out of the most obscure incidents, like having her hair cut, or will do almost anything for a story. No one knows this better than her husband. He once dared her to go and get high, so she went up in a balloon.

Just last week he told her that if she expected to accompany the rest of the family to Mecca for Easter vacation, she might as well learn to ski. Mecca, you see, is actually Colorado and its environs where many skiers make an annual pilgrimage.

Brenda's family is no exception, although she can't for the life of her understand why anyone would spend a lot of money just to go from one snowy place to another especially when the snow will be disappearing here first. By the middle of April, they're more apt to be skiing through tulips than snow.

At any rate Brenda has always been one to rise to the challenge. She chose a warm sunny Wednesday afternoon before the onslaught of the ski clubs to go out to Pine Knob in search of some poor unsuspecting ski instructor for a lesson. Fortunately for her at least, the hill was deserted.

One thing Brenda discovered right away was that if a woman her age is going to try skiing for the first time she must be sure to pick a suave Austrian ski instructor. A little European accent and a lot of charm will make even the most hesitant female skier feel like Susie Chafee by the time the lesson is over.

Franz, who's from Salzburg, helped her find the right size boots and skis and poles. Then he helped her put her boots on. He even clomped out the door slowly so Brenda could keep up with him. He helped her put her skis on pointing out that the turned-up tips were the front not the back.

As he discussed the weather, Salzburg and a million other things, he had old Brenda slowly sidestepping up the hill. So charmed was she by the attention she wasn't the least bit terrified until Franz pointed down the hill.

Up and down the slope he patiently guided her until he decided she was ready for the rope tow, that harmless looking piece of clothesline making a continuous circuit the length of the hill. Brenda was told to take hold of the rope slowly and not to grab it. Nervous as she was, she grabbed and held on for dear life and nearly flattened herself in the snow. Her charming instructor praised her nonetheless for being a graceful klutz and they tried it again.

Finally she made it triumphantly to the top of the hill which to her looked like the top of the world, the lodge was so far away. Slowly Brenda traversed the hill (see, she'd picked up the right terminology already.) Turn and back the other way. Look out for that smart alec kid doing leaps and spins!

"Relax", the charming Austrian said. "I can't, I didn't stop in the bar first," she cried. "Don't wave your arms around," he said. "That's like telling a bird not to use her wings," she giggled hysterically.

By the end of the hour, Brenda emerged from her first lesson a tired, sore but semi-confident skier who could even negotiate the tow alone. She has only one problem now. She may be losing her reputation as the world's greatest non-athletic person, especially since she also took up racquetball the month before. Her husband chalks it up to middle age panic, her kids think it's just plain hysterical.

Personal Growth for Older Adults

The Continuum Center for Adult Counseling and Leadership Training will hold a program called Personal Growth for Older Adults on Tuesday afternoons March 12-April 30 at the Holy Spirit Church in West Bloomfield.

The church is located at 4800 Orchard Lake Road and the program is designed to help older adults explore the various options open to them during their mature years.

The program is free, and if more information is desired, contact the Continuum Center at O.U., or call 377-3033.

Teenagers Often Spurn Values of their Parents

One of the many crises families face with their teenagers is a sudden reluctance on the youngsters' part to attend worship services with their parents. Why do they spurn values they've accepted for so long, and how should their troubled parents handle the situation?

Alice Fleming, writing in the February Reader's Digest, says this form of rebellion is not uncommon—in many instances it represents young people's efforts to gain independence from the family unit. Handling the situation tactfully is a question of avoiding damned-if-you-do-damned-if-you-don't extremes. To accept the youngster's decision passively may mean that he or she will find a new, more destructive battleground, such as alcohol or drugs. Threats and ultimatums, on the other hand, may produce outward submission, but are unlikely to provoke a real change in attitude.

Dr. Robert Simon, clinical director of the Ackerman Institute for Family Therapy in New York, advises parents to take a firm stand, but to be prepared to lose. "Just say that you stand by your beliefs, but that you respect your youngster's right to make up his own mind."

Sometimes the son or daughter has a legitimate complaint, Fleming points out, and parents should take a careful look at their church and at themselves. A poorly led congregation or one that fails to meet the needs of teenagers can lessen a young person's interest in religion.

In addition, she writes, "Even young children can often sense the contradictions between what's preached in church and what is practiced at home." But if the family leads a moral life, it is very likely that the children will too—whether they attend church or not.

Rebellion against religion is often a temporary phenomenon that disappears with time and maturity," Fleming counsels. "But even if it doesn't, parents should try to make it clear that no matter how far their child strays from the family's faith, their affection for the youngster will remain unchanged."

Davisburg Methodist Church Has a Prayer Tree

by Kathie Dice

God is dead! This statement has been around for some years. The statement doesn't seem to hold any water for Davisburg United Methodist Church. Things are happening there that seem to reflect the opposite feeling.

After the trees and other Christmas paraphernalia came down lay leader, Ronald Swift, made a plea to the congregation; Swift stated that the sanctuary looked so bare and void. He asked for any ideas for decorating.

Swift said it was a frustrating thing for him, and he put in a lot of thought and searching. Finally he came up with an answer, a "Prayer Tree". Mr. Swift and his wife, Cheryl, had seen the idea in a magazine. It seems a hospital had used a tree in the lobby asking for any and all prayer requests to be pinned to its branches.

Armed with a chainsaw, Swift set out on a trek through his wooded property in search of the "perfect" tree. The tree had to be real, imperfect in shape and with all branches turned upward.

The tree was found and Swift said he was tempted to carry the tree on his back all the way to the church, but decided it was too far. Davisburg United Methodist Church now has its own "Prayer Tree". Parishoners were invited to write any prayer requests or just offer a note of praise on one of the provided hearts. The requests are now public and can be prayed for by all.

A long time dream has finally come true for D.U.M.C. member Raymond Biskner. For many years Biskner has wanted to light up the cross behind the altar with an eternal light and he has now completed the task, which adds a whole new dimension to the Christian Cross.

The youth of the church has also made banners which hang on the walls noting God's love and caring.

For about a month out of the year an Advent Wreath hands from an archway in front of the altar but for the rest of the year the hook is empty. This writer, just into macrame, decided that the hook needed a hanging planter on that hook.

Now there hangs a wander Jew, (in a Methodist Church?). Why not? After all Jesus himself was a wandering Jew.

THE ONLY INVESTMENT GUIDE YOU'LL EVER NEED

ANDREW TOBIAS' TAX-DEDUCTIBLE
BESTSELLER-
TO BE PUBLISHED BY BANTAN ON FEBRUARY 1

"So full of tips and angles that only a booby or a billionaire could not benefit." That was how The New York Times Book Review described THE ONLY INVESTMENT GUIDE YOU'LL EVER NEED by Andrew Tobias, a contribution editor on investments for Esquire.

Published as a Bantam paperback, THE ONLY INVESTMENT GUIDE YOU'LL EVER NEED is not a complicated text for the big-money investor, but rather a down-to-earth, informative and often funny guide for ordinary people. Tobias' book can help consumers fight the crippling effects of inflation, save them hundreds or even thousands of dollars in cash each year, and prevent them from even greater losses through dangerous investment schemes.

A runaway bestseller in its Harcourt Brace Jovanovich hardcover edition, THE ONLY INVESTMENT GUIDE YOU'LL EVER NEED sold over 130,000 copies and reached #4 on The New York Times bestseller list. It was also a Book of the Month Club Special Alternate selection and a Fortune Book Club Special Dual Selection.

In THE ONLY INVESTMENT GUIDE YOU'LL EVER NEED, Tobias gives such money-saving suggestions as:

- How to find out what tax bracket you are in (it's probably even higher than you think)
- Why you should not buy ordinary life insurance
- Why even a struggling college student should try to put $750 into a Keogh Plan-even if he has to borrow to do it.

- How to earn 30% to 40% on everything from mouthwash to tuna fish
- How to save up to 75% on brokerage commissions
- How to knock $50 off the price of your next car

- Why the commodities game, options and "special offerings" are mercilessly stacked against you from the start

- What 25 things you might not have thought of that could be tax-deductible (including this book!)

New York Magazine praised THE ONLY INVESTMENT GUIDE YOU'LL EVER NEED highly, saying: "Tobias' cool, readable style lays bare the rapacious scams of the Wall Street money men, and provides a conservative strategy to protect hard earned savings." And Barron's called it "the only investment guide many will indeed ever need."

Andrew Tobias is the author of The Funny Money Game and the bestselling biography of Charles Revson; Fire and Ice. Forbes called Tobias "one of the financial community's most pithily perceptive observers." Before coming to Esquire, Tobias was a financial writer for five years for New York Magazine. A graduate of Harvard College and Business School, Tobias has also been published in Playboy, Cosmopolitan, Fortune and Barron's.

Entertainment continued from page 3

Imperial, adorned with gilt and painted enamels to gilt chairs and sofas covered with the famous Gobelin tapestry. Photographs as much as 125 years old depict subjects from still lifes to nudes to workers constructing the Paris Opera.

Opening Friday, March 23, with a dinner theatre is the Clarkston High School production of Irving Berlin's "Annie Get Your Gun." The five performances represent the culmination of the efforts of some 250 students and faculty members who not only perform on the stage as actors, singers, and dancers, but in front of it as the musicians and behind it as the crew. Add to that the painters and sewers who created the costumes and scenery, the foods students who will prepare the dinner for opening night, the publicity people and all the rest who tie up all the loose ends and you have a highly cooperative effort.

"Annie Get Your Gun" is the unusual love story of Annie Oakley and Frank Butler, Shelley Glenn and Richard Harken, stars of Buffalo Bill's traveling Wild West Show, which opens with the rousing "There's no Business Like Show Business." Add singers, dancers, cowboys, and Indians and you're in for a treat.

That same weekend on Saturday, March 24, the Silverdome has scheduled what it calls the second annual Country Music Spectacular with 15 top country music acts. Heading the list of performers are Loretta Lynn, Conway Twitty, Jerry Reed, Johnny Paycheck, and Jim Ed Brown with Helen Corelius.

An interesting sidelight to the evening is that some of the show will be filmed to be included in the movie currently being made about Loretta Lynn called "A Coalminer's Daughter" based on her autobiography. Another performer sure to arouse interest in Ronnie McDowell, who provided the singing voice of Elvis Presley in the recent television movie about the life of the late singer.

McDowell and another country singer T.G. Sheppard, also an associate of Presley's, were in town last week to promote the country music spectacular at a press luncheon at the Main Event in the Silverdome. Interestingly, many of the questions asked of the two singers had to do with Elvis. They said later it didn't really bother them, they were both proud to have known Elvis and liked to talk about him.

Also on the bill for the evening are Jerry Lee Lewis, the Earl Scruggs Review (a little pickin' and strummin'), Stella Parton (Dolly's sister) and other well-known names in country music.

The best possible sound and visibility is guaranteed by the Silverdome because the event will be staged in the special mini-dome setting with a reserved seat capacity for 41,000 foot-stomper.

"I name three damned, Sister Therese. Your penance is nearly served. Then shall the minions of hell o'rstep these bounds. I, Charles Chazen, declare the moment at hand."—from The Guardian

Satan takes human form—in the person of Charles Chazen—to bring about the final, absolute destruction of humanity in The Guardian by Jeffrey Konvitz, the sequel to his 2-million-copy bestseller The Sentinel. The Guardian, a Bantam Original, was published as a Super Release on January 17, with a first printing of nearly a million copies.

All that stands between Satan and his goal is a blind, aged, crippled nun—the Guardian. When she dies, her guardianship must pass on to another, but Satan is determined that she will be the last sentinel at the gates of hell.

Drawn into this occult battle are an unwitting couple, Faye and Ben Burdett, whose journey through terror begins with a series of bizarre incidents in their West Side Manhattan apartment building—the fortress of the Guardian. A body is found burned beyond recognition, and freak accidents and a brutal rape take place.

As the novel reaches its unexpected and shocking conclusion, all the resources of the Catholic Church are pitted against a demon able to assume any form, who wields his supernatural power with terrifying abandon, and Fay and Ben—themselves guardians of a dark secret—discover that they have been chosen to play a crucial role in the struggle.

The Guardian is Jeffrey Konvitz' second novel. A film version of his first novel, The Sentinel, was produced by Universal Pictures.

The key advantage in buying land, of course, is the relatively high return that can be achieved over the long term on any sound investment in real estate. Also, by investing in real estate and making a profit on land, it is possible to get favorable tax treatments when the land is sold, since land profits are usually treated as capital gains. "Leverage" is also a benefit, for it is possible to borrow between 60 and 75 per cent of the cost of the property and thus tie up only a small amount of the investor's capital.

When considering a real estate investment a wise consideration is BOB WHITE REAL ESTATE, 5856 S. Main Street, next to the Clarkston Post office. We have had the years of experience, the professional training and the community knowledge that allows us to assist you in making a wise decision in your future real estate investment. ## How Good is Free Tax Advice from IRS?

The Internal Revenue Service will provide free tax advice to some 44 million citizens before April 15, but its information may only be worth as much as it costs--nothing.

Dr. Robert S. Holzman, professor of accounting and a specialist in tax matters at the University of Connecticut, charges that IRS agents and their publications frequently offer conflicting and erroneous advice, while accepting no responsibility for their actions: courts have repeatedly ruled that if a mistake is made, it is the taxpayer's fault.

Writing in the February Reader's Digest, Holzman says: "The shocking truth is that agency employees can and do make mathematical errors, distribute the wrong forms, offer incorrect advice, overstep their own bounds and even change the rules retroactively." In evidence, he cites among others a study made last year by the General Accounting Office, where staffers posed as puzzled taxpayers at various IRS offices and discovered an error rate of 13 percent.

Two examples illustrate the scope of misinformation the taxpayer is apt to receive:

"Your Federal Income Tax," published by the IRS, was distributed to 2.7 million individuals in 1977. In it, one couple found an example on deducting property losses closely analogous to a loss they themselves had experienced. Following the example, they claimed a casualty loss deduction of $2400. The IRS refused to allow the deduction and was upheld by a judge of the U.S. Tax Court, who explained: "such informal publication is not a source of authoritative law in the tax field."

In another incident, a taxpayer was notified that he owed additional tax. Since he wanted to have the matter reviewed by a U.S. Tax Court, he asked the IRS how much time he would have to appeal. Two different IRS representatives gave him the same deadline. When he filed, however, the IRS threw his petition out on the ground that it was late. The Tax Court concurred, noting that he should have been "capable of determining the 90-day period himself."

To its credit, the IRS has introduced a simplified short form that is less error-prone than its predecessor, beefed up its assistance centers and intensified its training program. But much remains to be done. "The agency should inform taxpayers in clear and unequivocal language that its employees can and do make mistakes," Holzman writes, adding that it should also warn them that the taxpayer will be liable for any errors made. It should continue simplifying its forms and improving its training programs to help reduce the rate of error. Finally, the Congress should produce a tax law written in such a way that average taxpayers can understand it and file their returns without professional help.

Foreign Investment in Agricultural Land Must be Disclosed

Mr. Keith Middleton, Chairman of the Oakland County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, wishes to bring to the attention of all investors in farmland provisions of the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act. This act requires all foreign persons who acquire, transfer or hold interest in agricultural land to report such transactions and holdings to the Secretary of Agriculture. The law directs the Secretary to analyze the information contained in the reports and to determine the effects such transactions and holdings have on family farms and rural communities and other purposes.

The above reports are to be made on an ASCS-153 form. This form may be obtained by contacting the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Office at 8326 Highland Road, Pontiac, MI 48054. The report must be made within 90 days after acquiring such interest or no later than 180 days after February 2, 1979 if the farm was owned on February 1, 1979. Failure to report could incur a civil penalty of up to 25 percent of the fair market value of the agricultural land on the date of the civil penalty. Foreign investors who fail to report or give false information shall be reported to the office of the Attorney General of the United States for civil action.

Buchana, Detroit lumber and coal dealer, started his trips in 1923 in behalf of the boys of the nation. Before his death in 1939, he had taken more than 500 boys on the trip.

I went to Alaska for the first time with Mr. Buchanan at the age of eleven, and still can remember the first day I left and when I returned, it was all like a dream. Will never forget the thrill of the trip as long as I shall live.

I do not want to make one cent for conducting these Alaska trips, only want to make it possible for other boys to enjoy the same experiences, I even pay my own way!

The steamer trip to Alaska is something the boys never will forget. They will see ice fall from the glaciers when the steamer's whistle blows, beautiful moving sunsets, and fjords rivaling those of Norway cut deep into the rugged mainland.

The entire three week trip will cover 8,000 miles and stopover at the famous Chateau Lake Louise in the Canadian Rockies. Also a trip to Seattle, Washington, Portland and Mt. Hood in the state of Oregon.

The trip starts from Detroit, June 25, leaving on the Canadian National Train, and will include stops at Toronto and Edmonton. A bus trip to Calgary, Banff and through spectacular Canadian Rockies, and reach Vancouver, B.C., we board the Canadian Pacific S.S. "Princess Patricia" for 7 1/2 day cruise to Alaska. The trip will take them along the Inside Passage to Skagway where they will board the White Pass & Yukon Railway, a narrow gauge train, for a trip up the Yukon along the trail of "98" to Lake Bennett. In Alaska the boys will visit Ketchikan, Juneau, Skagway, Wrangell, and also making stops at Bartlett Cove, guides will board the vessel to point out interesting features of the 50 mile cruise to Glacier Bay and return and Price Rupert, B.C.

Who may go? Any good boy anywhere in the United States and Canada, who has or is willing to earn and save at least one-third of the cost by his own efforts is eligible to go. The parents supply the balance. The purpose of the trip is to save for things worthwhile in life.

This is an all expense trip which includes rail and steamer fares, transfers, hotels, sight-seeing, all meals, all taxes and tips while with the tour. We have sleeping accommodations on the pullman train.

The cost will be $995 for boys under 12 years. The cost will be $1095 for boys 12 years and over.

The S.S. "Princess Patricia" is fully air conditioned, has solarium-ballroom-even a self-service laundry. The ship is 374 feet long and displaces 6,000 tons, and has 152 staterooms. I am told by the Canadian Pacific that these spaces go very fast.

What is necessary now is to let me know so we can reserve a berth on the steamer. Write now for an application blank.

Enclose $100 for each reservation. Sixty days before sailing, balance of passage fares will be collected. If your son decided not to go on the trip, all deposits and money paid in at the time would be fully refunded. The balance of the trip should be paid 30 days before departure.

If you have any questions, feel free to write or call me at Orlando 3-9123, Pontiac. Home address is 2295 N. Lake Angelus, Pontiac, Michigan 48055.

JV Win in Overtime --Their Champs Also

by Bill Grobbel

For the second year straight, the junior varsity team of Clarkston High School has won the Championship of their league.

In defeating Andover 58-57 in overtime this past Friday, they have clinched their league title, undisputed.

Andover won the jump and scored first, 20 seconds into the game; but Scott McKoin tied it up just 20 seconds after that, 2-2. After tight defensive and offensive play from both teams, the first period ended in favor of Clarkston, 20-15.

In the second period, however, Clarkston was held scoreless for the first 4:00 minutes. But it was Scott McKoin who pulled them back together on a long jump shot from the left side to sustain their lead 22-19. After many missed rebounds, steals, bad passes, etc., from both sides, the half ended 28-27.

In the 3rd period it looked like Clarkston had finally pulled together and taken control, leading 39-33 on an amazing falling down shot by Brad Beattie mid-way through the period (one of the 2nd. effort type of plays that saved the game for Clarkston.) The period ended with what appeared to be a firm lead for the Wolves, 44-38.

But in the 4th period, the game took another turn as Andover came alive outscoring the Wolves 10-3 in the first half of the period. Scott McKoin again saved the day on a diving steal which stopped the Andover surge. But Andover was in the lead 51-48, their first lead of the night.

With 2 minutes left in regulation time, Scott McKoin fired in 2 points on a fantastic pass from Doug Haggard (another tremendous effort) to give the "Cubpack" a 52-51 lead, but Andover came right back to score, and with 1 minute left, Andover lead 53-52. Scott McKoin again helps out shooting in a free throw with 55 seconds left to tie the score. Andover took the ball down the floor, and attempted to shoot an easy lay-up, but it was blocked by Ric Schebor who stole the ball and began to take it down the floor when regulation time ran out.

When regulation time runs out, the teams go into a 3 minute overtime period. The leader at the end of the period is the winner.

The overtime period began with a goal by Kic Schebor to give the Wolves the lead 55-53. With 1:20 left, they led by 4 points, 57-53; was this finally the lead that would win them the game? Nopt, not yet. In 1 minute Andover had tied the score 57-57. With 15 seconds remaining an Andover play fouled Doug Haggard, who fired in one of two free throws to give Clarkston a 58-57 lead. Andover attempted to shoot a long shot on the buzzer, but it was caught by Scott McKoin who again helped out. If there had to be one person picked from the Clarkston team to be congratulated, it couldn't be done. They all were super and I'm proud that I was able to know them this past season.

As their coach, Larry Mahile said, "This is the high event of the season. It's history that Clarkston rarely beats Andover and I'm extremely gratified for the way the guys played. They worked 3½ months and they deserve the recognition and glory of the league champions they are. This is the second year, we've won it, that's never been done before by a J.V. team from Clarkston."

Scott McKoin totally dominated the game with 40 points, shooting 16 of 22 from the floor and making 8 of 10 free throws. Coach Mahile complemented Scott, "Scott totally dominated the game. It's fitting that he played his best game as his last game in a J.V. uniform."

Other scorers were: Doug Haggard with 8 points, Gerry Tater with 6, Kic Schebor and Brad Beattie each with 2 points.

Their final recorz of the season is 14-6 overall and 7-1 league.

Little League Registration

Holly Little League registration, ages 7 - 17, will be held March 8th, 6:30 - 9 p.m. at the Community Education Building.

Fundraising Begins for New Church

Growth and development in the Clarkston area is affecting everyone including the members of St. Daniel's parish. From its beginnings as a mission in 1964 to its establishment as a parish in 1969 to the present, the number of registered families has grown from 200 to 659. The number of masses has been increased to two on Saturdays and four on Sunday.

Father Charles Cushing and members of the church's administration and councils had discussed the prospect of building a new church for some time but only began in earnest in January. Last week, coinciding with the beginning of Lent only by accident, the organized fund raising effort got underway.

The sacrifices of the Lenten period take on a whole new meaning as the established goal for St. Daniel's is 900,000 to fund a three-stage building program. Phase one involves the construction of a new church, phase two would improve and expand parking facilities and include some improvement of the present building, and phase three would build a rectory.

Fr. Cushing said that an architect had been retained to work with the parish council but that an architectural style had not been decided upon.

"It will be a fitting, elegant church structure which will lend itself to worship," he said. "It will not be a multipurpose building...but it will fit into the community."

An actual design was not drawn up before the fund-raising drive began to avoid a "hassle over the style before the money was raised," according to Fr. Cushing. Contributions should be made on the merits of the need for a new church rather than its appearance. Citizen input will come later.

Although the official drive will only last until March 15, it will be administered after that by a continuation committee. An optimistic Fr. Cushing would like to see groundbreaking take place in 1980.

Millionaires Party

When you watch a TV show concerning a big spender, or read a book about someone like Minnesota Fats or Nick the Greek, do you have fantasies about being a person who would bet everything on the turn of a card, or the luck of the dice?

If you do, then the Davisburg Rotary Club is sponsoring their Millionaires Party for all of the potential 'high rollers' out there in our community. This party, which will be held on Saturday, March 10 at Springfield Oaks County Park, 12451 Andersonville Road, was organized to benefit all of the High Rollers out there who can't afford to get to Las Vegas to gamble, but can make it to Springfield Oaks.

The party will be in progress from 8 p.m. until 2 a.m. on March 10 and one million dollars in fun money will be available. Beer and food will also be available at the party.

Door prizes galore will be given away, with the first prize being a color TV set.

So make plans to come out to the Millionaire's Party on March 10 at Springfield Oaks (in Davisburg, between Holly and Clarkston) and shoot craps, play roulette or Black Jack; or other games, and gamble to your hearts' content. But you don't need to be afraid to go home a loser, because at the party, everyone wins!

For advance tickets call either 625-3270 or 634-4453.

Meadow Brook Announces Schedule

Terence Kilburn, the Artistic Director of the Meadow Brook Theatre, has announced the 1979-80 season which will open on October 11, 1979 with Richard Brinsley Sheridan's comic masterpiece, THE SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL.

A World Premiere and a Michigan Premiere will highlight the forthcoming season. The World Premiere will be A SUMMER REMEMBERED by Charles Nolte and has been described as a comedy-drama about a midwestern family during the summer of 1938. Dr. Nolte, a professor at the University of Minnesota, has staged several of Meadow Brook's more distinguished productions including this season's THE CAINE MUTINY COURT-MARTIAL. His plays have been produced in New York, London, Stockholm, Berlin, Tel Aviv, Belgrade and Frankfurt as well as in Minneapolis.

Dr. Nolte also wrote the libretto for THE VOYAGE OF EDGAR ALLAN POE which was composed by Pulitzer Prize winning composer Dominick Argento. Last spring he completed the libretto for another opera, CARLOTTA, based on the life of the first and only Empress of Mexico.

The Michigan Premiere will be the bizarre British satire, ENTERTAINING MR. SLOANE by Joe Orton. Other plays to be presented during the next season will include YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU, A MOON FOR THE MISBEGOTTEN, OF MICE AND MEN, THE PLAY'S THE THING and CHARLEY'S AUNT.

Special Contests for Special People

Competition knows no ages or physical bounds and no where is there more (or better) competition than at the Special Olympics.

This year, the 6th. Annual Special Olympics will be held in Bay City, but the entrants will come from throughout this area in the State of Michigan. The Olympics will be sponsored jointly by the City of Bay City and by the Saint Patrick's Association, with the contest to be held the day after St. Patrick's Day.

The five mile cross country race will have its beginning in Essexville, with the finish line in downtown Bay City. A $5 entry fee is required, but included in this fee are a T-shirt, and refreshments after the race is over.

The runners in the race are split up into age classification, and there are about 35 people running in any certain classification. No one, regardless how they run, may be told that they can't compete in the Special Olympics.

"No matter how good or how bad you are; it's fair to say that you'll have competition," said Mark Van Hala, whose friend has a son who is going to enter the race.

The Special Olympics has been growing every year. Last year, about 600 people entered the contest and it's fair to say that that number will be topped this year. And Bay City isn't the only place that will hold a Special Olympics. On the contrary, many different places throughout the State of Michigan will hold races, etc., for special people.

And the winner of the contest won't have to be satisfied just knowing that he or she won the race. Many awards, such as 50/50 T-shirts, 35 trophies, and many ribbons and commemorative medals will be given away to the contestants who win certain divisions in their different classifications.

Just One of Those Days

The "just a few pounds overweight" gentleman states that it always happens, but the fattening "just one of those days" he ran into recently, was ridiculous.

It all started on Sunday night, when he decided that come Monday morning, he was going to begin his diet. His wife, on hearing the news, said, "but dear, tomorrow is bridge night at the neighbors, and you know she always fixes one of your favorite desserts!"

Monday morning, he ate a sensible, low-calorie, high-protein breakfast. Then he went to the office. At 10 a.m. his secretary entered his office, carrying hot coffee and a surprise. She'd dashed out to the donut shop and brought back two warm peanut butter donuts. His favorite!

What could he do after she'd gone to the trouble? He ate both of them, and decided he'd have to skip lunch. The boss called him, however, and invited him to lunch at a "great little restaurant." It turned out to be a two martini lunch.

In the middle of the afternoon, his secretary reminded him that a co-worker was leaving, and they were having a little farewell get-together. A very rich concoction was forced on him!

He arrived home to find his wife had fixed a meal to tempt him, because she figured he'd be starved after dieting all day. He didn't want to tell her the truth, so he ate the baked potato and hot roll along with the nice steak and salad, and washed it down with wine. He then went out for bridge and ate two servings of one of his favorite desserts, consoled by the fact that the "fat binge" wasn't his fault. Needless to say, he started his diet on Tuesday instead of Monday!

Concert at O.U.

Featured in a multi-media concert to be given on March 18 in Varner Recital Hall at Oakland University will be the difficult "Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion" by Bela Bartok.

Soloists at the 3p.m. concert will be Flavio Varani and Joyce Weintraub Adelson. Varani has been at O.U. since 1973 and is well known to local audiences and has performed with the Detroit Symphony.

Adelson is a Detroit native who joined the staff at O.U. in 1974. The artist has appeared with numerous other symphony orchestras including the Eastman-Rochester Symphony and the Boston "Pops", with Arthur Fiedler. David Daniels will conduct the percussion players.

The program will also include the premier performance of the one-act opera "The Tiny Closet," and "Music for a Farce" which was originally written by Paul Bowles for a never-produced Buster Keaton screenplay.

The music-comedy routine in "Music" features students David Pfeiffer, Flora McIntyre and Ann Reeves along with Stanley Hollingsworth, O.U. composer in residence. Everyone associated with the production has been involved in other productions or with other composers.

"The Tiny Closet" offers original music by O.U. student Mark David Gottlieb set to a one act play by William Inge. The guest conductor is John-Burton Yaffe, who is originally from California, and has served as the conductor for other companies outside his home state.

Antique Car Show

The honorary chairmanship for Concours d'Elegance, a classic and antique car collection to be shown August 26 at Meadow Brook Hall has been accepted by Lee A. Iacocca, president of Chrysler Corporation. About 100 cars from the years 1900-1924 will be displayed to the public on Meadow Brook's grounds on the campus of Oakland University.

Meadow Brook was originally the home of John Dodge and his wife Matilda Dodge Wilson, who played an integral role in the development of the auto industry and played a vital part in the early history of Chrysler Corporation. Dodge's motor car, which is now produced by Chrysler Corporation, contributed much to the automobile industry of Detroit and its neighboring towns.

Iacocca has contributed to the preservation of Meadow Brook Hall as a public historic site and he and his wife have chaired two of the Hall's major fund-raising events and are members of the steering committee for the Gilders of Meadow Brook Hall.

Committee assignments for the Concours d'Elegance, which is patterned after a prominent auto show at Pebble Beach, California, have been announced by Co-chairman David Hollis (G.M.) and Otto Rosenbusch (Chrysler).

Pictured is the C. C. Seeley Coal Office, Holly, of years ago. Son, H.D. Seeley took over the management to later sell the business to J. Lee Montgomery. Can anyone date this?

Notice the sign at the top of the building. It says: "Andrew W. Seeley Real Estate Exchange and Money to Loan." No carpet and potted plants in those days. It doesn't look like much overhead to run a coal office, real estate service and bank.

Follow the above chart and the chances are you'll never be caught short. Give your coal dealer a chance to serve you well. Order coal ahead of your needs.

Some people think that winters are longer these days. By the figures on the coal chart, left, it doesn't look that way. It shows that quite a bit of coal was bought in early fall and late spring, indicating that they had long winters too.

Both the picture and coal chart are courtesy of Lois Beardsley, Ortonville, who is a granddaughter of Caroline Montgomery.

CHS Win Finale, Named League Champions

With the sometimes over-enthusiastic support of the crowd, the Clarkston Wolfpack Express posted a 59-52 victory over Andover in their last regular season game.

The Pack scored first on a free throw by Tim McCormick, but Andover quickly scored and took the lead. By the middle of the period, Andover led 9-3, but it was Tim McCormick who broke their streak and set the team onto a wild scoring surge, scoring 10 points in 1:30 minutes to take the lead 13-11. The scoring in the 1st period was rounded off on a shot by John Sheldon who gave Clarkston a 19-15 lead.

Tim McCormick started the 2nd period with a bucket, 15 seconds into the period. Then Andover came alive and took the lead 23-21 mid-way through the period. It was Tim McCormick again who scored putting the pack in the lead 24-23 on a field goal and foul shot. But Andover came right back and scored 2 goals to lead 27-24 with 1:30 minutes left in the half. Not even the excellent shot by Greg Robertson with 1 minute left could put the Wolfpack back on top as the half ended (for the first time in nine games in favor of the opposing team) in favor of Andover 27-26.

Andover scored first to start the second half, then Tim McCormick put Clarkston on the Board to keep the Andover lead to 1 point. Then just 1 minute later following a field goal by Ed Haddad, Tim McCormick scored again to give the Wolfpack the lead 32-31. Mid-way through the period they gave themselves some breathing room for a few seconds, 36-33, but Andover fought back and before a minute had elapsed led again, 37-36. The next score by Clarkston was from the "Ice Man" Ed Haddad who scored 2 goals in 30 seconds to give the Wolfpack the lead again, 40-37. The period ended 42-39 in favor of Clarkston. The crowd showed its appreciation for the way the team had fought thus far by giving them a standing ovation as they walked onto the floor to start the 4th period.

Andover started fast tying the score at 47-47 with 5:20 remaining in the game. But from then on, it was all Clarkston. Tim McCormick, Ed Haddad, and Scott Curry combined to score 12 points in the final 4 minutes of the game. The final score was Clarkston 59, Andover 52.

In the lockerroom after the game, this reporter was surrounded by one very rowdy team of Clarkston basketball players. They bombarded me with comments like, "We won it for the crowd. Once we started we couldn't let them down," said Greg Robertson; Dino Rotundo said, "This game won us the championship, we've had a total team effort all year." "The crowd was our catalyst," Greg Robertson, again. John Sheldon added, "We dedicated this year to Dave Brown, who couldn't be with us because he moved to Florida."

Coach Gary Nustad had some comments, also. "Andover played the best game they were capable of playing. We were flat from playing Rochester. There was a big emotional letdown after we beat Rochester, but we played to win. I'm proud of the boys, they came through when the chips were down. It's extra sweet to win in Andover, because that's very rare for a Clarkston team to do. We appreciate the fans, they helped us a lot. Special congratulations to the seniors. It feels super," and he added with a smile, "it's time for dancing in the streets."

This victory won the Wolfpack the G.O.A.L. league title and an 18-2 season, 9-1 league. As Coach Nustad said, special congratulations to the seniors: Greg Robertson, Dino Rotundo, Reuben Hutchons, Scott Curry and exchange student Jussi Rantanen. But super special congratulations go out to Tim McCormick. His 34 points against Andover give him a season total of 625 points setting a new all-time record over Dan Fife's 613 points in 1976. Tim also had 13 rebounds and 4 blocked shots.

Also scoring was Ed Haddad with 9 points, Reuben Hutchons with 6 points, John Sheldon with only 4 points, but with 8 assists and 3 steals (not bad John), Greg Robertson with 4 points, and Scott Curry with 2 points.

Now that the regular season has ended, the Wolfpack will participate in a district tournament that will decide who is the best team in Oakland County.

He Scores! Reuben Hutchons scores with a lay-up

And Their Champs! Dino Rotundo (L) Nick LeKas (C) and Ed Haddad celebrate.
