editor's note

Further inside this week's Reminder, you'll find an article entitled, "Everyone is a Winner". It lists the winners to be honored at this week's Community Awards dinner. It's a long list and includes many familiar names--names like Hallman, Kopietz and Place.

Keith, Joan and Don along with Al Carter, Jo Anne Mason and the SCAMP benefit will have many accolades bestowed upon them at the upcoming banquet. Honors that are truly deserving.

The Reminder would like to congratulate the winners and the nominees for giving so much of themselves and helping to make Clarkston a place in which we all can be proud of.

It's funny how no one seems to give a hoot about the Independence Township Police Advisory committee's report. They spent many long hard hours to find a solution to the township's police problems. Was it all for naught? I hope not. Their report should not be ignored.

What about this so-called gas shortage. I talked to a fellow editor and friend down in west Palm Beach, Florida. He says everyone down there is ignoring it. They don't believe it's real. Our survey of Clarkston residents (page 6&7) shows we aren't ready to believe a gas shortage is here.

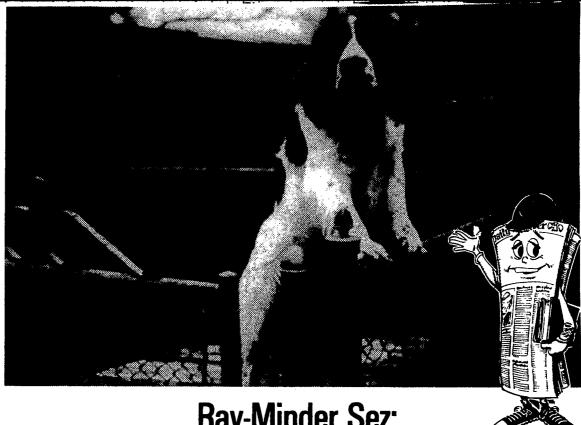

Being a good, upstanding American citizen, I'm suppose to warn all our readers that they better conserve all the gas they can. We're suppose to believe what our federal government is telling us.

Somehow, somewhere, I can't buy their rationale. I cannot believe the huge oil conglomerates that continue to make record profits year after year. Nor can I believe federal energy advisors that cried a false "wolf" once

I wish the feds would quit trying to scare us into fuel conservation and get on with more productive oil exploration. There in lies the answer to our energy

COMMENTARY

A 300 Mile View of "Operation Cleansweep"

by Betty Good

Like a big backyard freshly groomed and ready for company, Michigan's fields and woods and roadways have been raked and swept clean by hundreds of dedicated volunteers, working in communities all over the state, during the month-long "Operation Cleansweep."

The project was sponsored by Michigan United Conservation Clubs--in conjunction with local organizations--to determine the effectiveness of the returnable bottle and can law and to prepare for the celebration of "Michigan Week."

This account of a trip made the day "Operation Cleansweep" concluded, reports that the job was completed on time; and, in Northern Michigan, the welcome mat is out!

Traveling the 300-mile I-75 stretch from the Metro area to the heart of the North-"Boyne Country" -- one is impressed by Michigan's highly-efficient North-South highway system and the unspoiled beauty on both sides of it. Rich farm fields lay freshly-plowed and planted; the forests' trees have not yet leafed out-their pine-needled floors nourishing delicate new plant life, miniature jack pines and wild flowers. Nature wisely gave these a head start before the more mature trees foliate, blocking most of the sun's rays.

It's easier to spot the many species of birds still making their Spring migration, and unfamiliar whistles pierce the still, fresh air as they search for food before continuing their journey North.

Driving homeward with a newspaper on the car seat proclaiming "gas shortage may curtail travel", memories of World War II gas rationing days are revived. Conservation and recycling went hand-in-hand for those old enough to remember flattening and saving cans and purchasing gasoline with coupons.

Having observed first-hand the year-round process of Nature recycling itself--as well as the efforts of those who helped the cause--the beholder of the beauty in just the State of Michigan, alone, is led to ask: Is it not possible, perhaps, that a little self-imposed restraint and conservation might benefit not only we ourselves, but succeeding generations as well?

Two local citizens active in recycling and conservation projects agree.

Carolyn Place, of Clarkston, who is Coordinator of both the Independence "Bottles for Building" Program and the Oakland County Recycling Center "notices a difference" in her travels around Independence Township and Greater Oakland. She felt that the Spring

THOUGHTS THINGS

I don't often watch television during the day because I am absent-minded. I would forget to do anything else if I gave into the temptation to turn it on-so I don't. It's like not eating cookies, peanuts or potato chips when they are right in front of you. It's almost impossible to resist their "charm". I know some people are marvelous at saying "no". I admire them and respect them. I simply am not one of them. That is why it is so difficult to have our two older girls living at home and going to school. They have time off during the day, and they use some of it to watch television, and more of it to make cookies, popcorn, and the like. Sometimes I wish I were young

But, to make a long story short--if and when I am home, and the TV set is on during the day, I find myself fascinated by some of the best shows I've seen since the "boob tube" was invented. The trouble is that the audiences that watch them are often small, busy doing other things, and rooting for the wrong people. It all has to do with our tendency to have closed minds--and I'm as guilty as anyone else in that direction.

The other day, I walked through the living room just as a psychologist told an audience of women that children should not be spanked. He admitted that he had spanked his own children when they were young, and that he regretted it. The audience simply reacted in various negative ways to his statements. If there was anyone who agreed with him, that person or persons hid under the seats, and it was too bad. Psychologists are, after all, people and parents too. The views and opinions of other people do have an affect on all people--no matter how many degrees they may have hanging on their walls--and the audience may have made that gentleman a little less certain that he was right about spanking. That would be a shame!

Adults who deal with children must recognize the fact that being "small" does not mean the same thing as being "dumb." Hitting a three year old might appear to be a "safe" practice. It's when the three year old grows to be six feet tall that the problems arise. Fear of the parent's ability to inflict physical pain is hardly a detriment to a child who has long since begun to bend over to speak to the parent! It simply isn't a practical method of discipline.

Spanking is a minor form of abuse. It does not teach a child anything but fearful respect for people who are bigger and stronger, and that is a negative kind of respect. It teaches the child that "might makes right."

It sets an example that few parents really want to set, this hitting--or slapping, and it doesn't really solve anything. The trouble is that we humans so often have children first, and then worry about how to raise them.

We seldom approach anything else in life in a less organized or knowledgeable manner. The trouble is, that babies don't come with a set of directions attached! Then matters get worse, because the new parents may have just arrived at an age that they are beginning to develop a little confidence in themselves, and the frustration of parenthood destroys that shaky confidence. Way down deep is the feeling that it is the child's fault. It isn't surprising that the parents sometimes slip back into the childish reaction of "hitting." Children can't hit (their parents) back though, as other children did during childhood, so guilt sets in-and that seems unfair-it's a double negative. What a mess!

As I listened to the comments mady by members of the audience, and heard them insist that unless children were spanked they would grow up lazy and irresponsible, I began wondering about them. It seemed to me that because they spanked-they provided a logical reason for it, rather than the other way around. None of them had any grounds on which to base their premise.

The psychologist was trying to make the audience listen to themselves. He was trying to make them think, and to see that they had things turned around, and had no reasonable basis for their beliefs or actions. He was trying to tell them that there are easier and better ways to raise their children, but they wouldn't listen.

I know what that is like. Not when it comes to child-raising, because I wanted help with that. My stubborness is less involved than that. I learned to knit from a left-handed friend, so people tell me that I knit backwards, and that it is awkward and slow. Other knitters can't stand watching me, and often offer to "show me" the right way. I am fond of my knitting technique, so I stubbornly stick to it. I sometimes think that that is all that some of the spanking parents are doing--just stubbornly sticking to something.

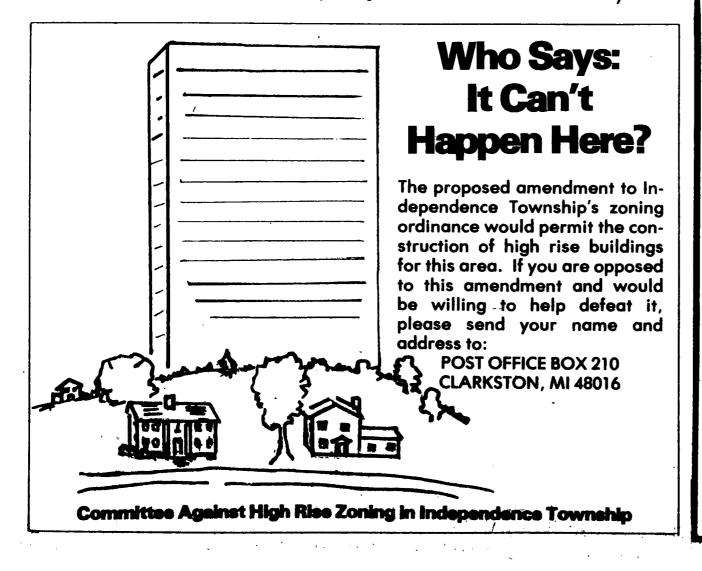

The trouble is that the kids, unlike my knitting, have the opportunity to "get even" with their parents eventually, and "ignorance" is no defense under the law of human nature!

Adults who deal with children must recognize the fact that being "small" does not mean the same thing as being "dumb." Hitting a three year old might appear to be a "safe" practice. It's when the three year old grows to be six feet tall that the problems arise. Fear of the parent's ability to inflict physical pain is hardly a detriment to a child who has long since begun to bend over to speak to the parent! It simply isn't a practical method of discipline.

So, what are the alternatives? Nothing fancy-just common sense, love, and clear communications. How about, "If you don't pick up your toys, I'll have to do it, because I get upset when everything is messy. That means that I won't have time to read you a story." That allows the child the freedom to choose to pick up the toys. If he or she does not make that choice, then it can be dealt with before the toys are taken out again.

Sound like a lot of fuss and bother? Not when you consider the fact that you're working on a relationship that will exist for a lifetime. It can be worth the effort.

Lewis E. Wint Funeral Home Clarkston

WHEN SHOULD FUNERALS BE PLANNED IN ADVANCE?

The most direct answer I can give would be "as soon as you're ready and able to do so", but of course this "readiness" and able-ness" is primarily a matter of one's state of mind, not just physical being.

The following poem (author unknown), makes a worthy statement.

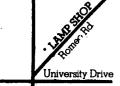

> Tarry not, make haste to put your life in order. Set aright, make amends before you cross life's border.

Since no one can say with certainty when the time of death is to come, the knowledge of being prepared is

With your comfort and peace of mind, and that of your loved ones uppermost in our planning, we suggest preparedness in your daily affairs. We also encourage you to demonstrate your foresight in pre-planning your funeral, sparing your family this task. By doing so, you are assured that your wishes will be made known and followed; that the services will be no less and the cost no more than you want them to be.

Regardless of how we feel about the rising price of gasoline, one fact is clear--all of us are forced to pay whatever the moving figures on those gasoline pumps tell us to pay. Recently, The Reminder asked people in Clarkston to voice their opinion about the price of gasoline, and to comment on what changes in their lifestyle, if any, these higher prices might bring. In on-the-street, random interviews, this is what they had

by Becky Roberts and Leona Hutchings

F. Strelchuk: Awful. I don't think (what we're being told about the shortage) is all true.

Mary Jaster: The prices are too high. I'll have to cut down on travel, I guess, and I hate that.

Carol Lindeman: It's a farce. I'm not going to be making so many trips up North.

Helen Colburn: It's going to be pretty terrible. Like everybody else, I think the price is unfair. Gas is selling in this country that we've had for a long time--somebody's making a huge profit. My husband works for a trucking company. Truckers can hardly afford to travel as it is. The rising price will just make Homer Biondi: I think the price needs to be even higher, so the system of supply and demand can find its own balance. My lifestyle won't be noticeably affected.

Clinton Pflaum: They should put the controls back on. If they leave it up to the individual oil companies, they'll charge as much as the traffic will bear, and it'll bear a lot. It won't affect my lifestyle, because I don't drive that "I think it's kind of funny, all these people driving their big cars. When the lines get long,% I'm going to drive by and laugh"- Nancy Rekawek

Richard Gunter: It'll affect my lifestyle a lot because I'll be living in Madison Heights. I'll probably start using the trains. I think the prices are O.K., as long as the money goes to the right place; but just for profits--I don't agree.

Dorothy Learning: It probably will change my lifestyle. It's too early to say, but who likes the price of gas, anyway.

Richard Rosner: I don't like it. It's going to make going on vacation more expensive. I don't think Carter is doing as much as he should.

Linda Cole: It's expensive. It makes it harder to get to work, because I live in Waterford, and work here.

Dan Griffith: I can't afford the gas. It's a crock.

Cathy Molburg: It's awful, but I haven't been any place I couldn't get it yet. I'll find out this weekend though, when I go to Illinois. It's a big ripoff.

Doug Nikkila: God gave us enough gas in this land. The big oil companies are just taking advantage of us. There's no shortage. They just wanted to up the price of gas thirty cents a gallon.

Nancy Rekawek: I own a little Honda, and I get forty miles per gallon. I think it's kind of funny, all these people driving their big cars. When the lines get long, I'm going to drive by and laugh.

Tom Lowrie: I own a business that has several trucks involved, and so far, I haven't cut down on any (gasoline) consumption. It would help if people would cut out foolish trips around the corner to the store.

Gene Pool: I'm rather confused as to the cause of the increase. I'm not sure whether or not there's a shortage. I wish there were some way to determine whether or not the increases are beneficial.

Local Twirlers Take State Honors

Students of June Lauer of Allen Road captured 4 of the 6 age division overall championship titles and 23 firsts in individual events in the DMA State Baton Twirling contest. That's a record never before matched by anyone. Mrs. Lauer is the former Purdue Golden Girl, DMA and USTA National Champion and Majorette Oueen of America.

Listed below are Mrs. Lauer's students and their achievements in the State Contest held recently at the Brandon Middle School. These winners will be competing in the Nationals held in North Carolina in August.

Stephanie Richardson, age 6 of Pontiac, took all firsts in the 6 and under division, automatically giving her the 6 and under divisional championship.

Melissa Richardson, age 5, won 2nds and 3rds to her sister Stephanie in the same division.

Monica Shram, age 6 of Clarkston, with less than a year's experience won all 3rds.

Lisa Jahn, of Ortonville, won all 1st and 2nds in the 7 and 8 year old division to make her 'runner-up' for that title.

Danielle Himelspaugh, from Clarkston, also a twirling newcomer placed 2nd and 3rd in all 7-8 year old state events.

Shannon Lang, of Walled Lake, won all firsts to capture the 9 and 10 year old championship.

Amy Dodge, of Holly, placed in the top 4 in the all events in the same division.

Meri Danek, of Linden, accumulated the high points in the 11-12 year old group to win the championship.

Lori Soules, of Linden, won the 11-12 state military strut championship.

Debbie Wert, of Pontiac, was runner-up in both struts and first in basic. An injured hand kept her out of other 11-12 events.

Kim Waugh, of Milford, placed 3rd in 11-12 year struts.

Keith Bosen, of Goodrich, won the 13-14 age division twirling championship.

Dawn Bator was runner-up to Keith in twirling.

Michelle Smith was runner-up in three other 13-14 year old events.

Diane Overcashier, age 17 of Waterford, won the Diane Overcashier, age 17 of Waterford, won the senior championship with the most accumulated points in the 15 and over group, and the military strut Grand Championship.

Laura Solakian, age 18 of Dearborn Heights, won the senior fancy strut title.

Marsee Burns, of Pontiac age 16, was the senior talent winner.

The Senior Twirling Team Champions are the "Contenders" from the Waterford C.A.I.

JUST ONE OF THOSE DAYS

We know some neighbors who started their marriage the way everyone should. They sat down and talked about all major issues that might arise, and decided how to handle them.

They started with a budget, and three separate checking accounts. One for him, one for her (she works full time too) and one for the house. When entertaining foolishly, or going out for a night on the town, they split the bills out of their personal "entertainment" funds. It worked well, and they were very proud of themselves, until just recently.

It seems that she made an error in her checkbook and overdrew her account. She was naturally upset and embarrassed, and asked hubby whether he would cover her overdraft, or whether she should take the money out of the house account. When he said "neither", because it wasn't his overdraft, or "their" overdraft, but only "her" overdraft, the system they had established began to break down!

He was only joking, and covered the OD, but she began packing to go home to mother before he broke down and told her. It all led, finally, to an emergency savings fund that either of them could draw from in case of emergency. They call it their "credit union" now, and laugh about it, but they both agree that it was Just One of Those Days when the best laid plans threaten to come to no good end.

Clarkston "Not in the Swim" Without Pool?

by Carol Balzarini

If two schools switch leagues as planned and another does the same as rumored, the Greater Oakland Activities League (GOAL) will be reduced to three teams although one other has applied for membership. One reason given for league-switching: no pool at Clarkston High School.

CHS athletic director Paul Tungate revealed in a recent interview, Bloomfield Hills Andover is definitely pulling out of the GOAL. They will play their last season in 1979-80. After that they will be members of the Southeastern Michigan Association (SMA) composed of Hazel Park, Ferndale, Royal Oak Kimball, Berkley, Southfield, Birmingham Groves and Troy Athens.

Two reasons were given for the change: transportation and facilities and sports offered. Andover reasons it will be closer to the schools in the SMA thereby saving transportation costs. They also wish to simplify athletic scheduling, they say, by having all sports with league schools. Most notable sports found lacking at CHS were swimming and gymnastics. These are considered independent sports, Tungate said, and can only be scheduled with schools offering them as girls golf is at CHS now.

The second GOAL schools applying for league change is West Bloomfield. They have applied to the Metro-Suburban League, but Tungate said their acceptance would be doubtful unless an eighth school was added at the same time. Scheduling is nearly impossible with seven schools. West Bloomfield has a swimming pool.

Rumors are circulating that Rochester High School, also with a pool, is considering leaving the GOAL for another league. Tungate speculated it could easily be the eighth team in the Metro-Suburban League.

Tungate has not been able to get Rochester to confirm the rumors. School officials continue to deny rumors they have applied for membership in another league and Tungate said he has no reason to doubt administrators.

At the same time Lake Orion High School has applied for membership in the GOAL and will likely replace Andover.

Of the six teams currently in the GOAL, three have swimming pools, three do not. In addition to Clarkston, Waterford Kettering and Milford are without them.

What does the possible loss of these three schools mean to Clarkston's athletic program?

Tungate said seeking good class A competition will increase the school's transportation costs. They will be forced to travel further to find good schools or to affiliate with a good competitive league.

A possible realignment of the GOAL is being considered to assure good competition but can only be considered "iffy" at this point. There's no real problem if only Andover leaves, but if other teams start leaving, Tungate said, "We have to protect ourselves."

Tungate conceded swimming is an important aspect in any school's athletic program according to his contact with other athletic directors. They have told him league membership for Clarkston would be no problem if it had a pool.

He said he himself was contacted about joining the Southeastern Michigan Association in January but that interest seemed to fade when it was learned there was no swimming program here. Tungate said the Rochester athletic director has expressed interest in the past in getting into a swimming program using the same old argument of ease of scheduling.

The possible pullout of three schools could leave only Kettering, Milford, Lake Orion and Clarkston. Kettering further compounds the problem by being in a district experiencing a declining enrollment. Tungate said he and CHS principal Dom Mauti will be meeting with their counterparts from these other schools in June to discuss the situation.

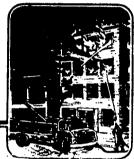

Does Tungate see some solution to the problem? The answer to that was "yes" qualified by "down the road."

Tungate is currently serving on the Community Center Study Committee with four others--Bruce Shull, Sue Bennett, Barbara Steele, and Dale Stuart. The five are in the process of investigating all aspects of establishing a community center in Independence Township including surveying land sites and visiting community centers in the surrounding area.

The committee came about as a result of a Jaycee survey several years ago in which respondents indicated an interest in a community center with two particular features: an auditorium and a swimming pool, both of which are lacking in the community for use by the Tungate sees the possibility of a cooperative arrangement between the school system, the township recreation department and the community center in the event the latter becomes a reality.

Irene McCabe just opened her doors on a new

the A & P Plaza at M-15 and Dixie Highway in Clarkston on May 14. Irene is a broker with a sales staff of 6 associates including 2 husband and wife teams. The entire staff assisted in remodeling and redecorating the office in its unique shopping center location.

Ms. McCabe views selling as a service in which she is informing and teaching homeowners. The staff is as interested in the young couple who are buying their first home as the more experienced buyer. She attributes her past success to this philosophy.

Ms. McCabe was previously with Broock Realty in Clarkston and was their top salesperson 3 out of the 4½ years that she was a member of their staff.

A 1½ year resident of Clarkston, she is the mother of 3 children. Her oldest son is in Guam in the Air Force, another son is graduating from Oakland University, and a daughter will be joining her in the office as secretary.

"Honesty is a very important word in my vocabulary and will be the most important word in the office too," Ms. McCabe concluded.

Trash Still Remains As Evidenced by THESE PHOTOS

Clean-up was made easier this year by the new returnable bottle law, and furnished a picture of the I-75/Sashabaw exit before it went into effect.

Asked about the recycling program, she replied: "Business is good. I'm very optimistic."

Volume of glass returned continues to remain high at the Recycling Center drop-off site at Dixie Highway and Mike Peters, Davisburg Jaycees Treasurer and Chairman of the Clean-up project in Springfield Township also noted that the job was easier this year. Many groups and organizations participated in "Operation Cleansweep" in that area; and "individuals and groups started working two to three weeks in advance", placing their bags of refuse out for Jaycee pickup on May 12th.

SAY YOU SAW IT IN THE REMINDER

Marlowe Landfill, in Rose Center, opened their facility to the public and the Jaycees that day; and many Springfield residents called the township for Jaycee pickup of large, heavy items usually presenting disposal

Peters said, "Next year will be the real test." He pointed out that this year's cleanup included "six months without the law.'

It is hoped the enthusiasm and spirit present during 'Operation Cleansweep" will continue.

If the gray-haired couple in the sky-blue Cadillac on I-75 were any indication--it will. Heading South from a Northern Michigan cottage, their car--traveling exactly 55 miles per hour-pulled a little open trailer containing one solitary plastic bag of garbage.

Using Solar Energy...

Come see how Detroit Edison is using the sun's energy to heat space and water in its experimental Jubilee Solar Home.

Visit the Jubilee Solar Home and see how Detroit Edison is experimenting with the sun's natural energy to help keep your future bright.

Fortunately, Detroit Edison customers have plenty of electric power available. Today, and many years into the future. It's a result of a lot of planning, development and investment and the fact that more than 84 percent of Detroit Edison's power is generated from coal, our nation's most abundant fuel. The balance is generated by other fossil fuels.

Looking far ahead, Detroit Edison is conducting research on other energy sources that may prove to be practical in our geographic area. While it may be some time before solar energy developments make possible economical applications for people's homes, the Jubilee Solar Home already will have begun to determine if the sun's energy may someday be a useful replacement for the oil and natural gas now used for heating so that these fuels may be saved for other uses where only they will do.

The Jubilee Solar Home looks like a traditional house. But if you walk around to the back you'll see the solar collectors on the roof. Heat from the sun is captured by the collectors, stored in the water, then distributed by air to heat the home. Solar-heated water also warms water for bathing, laundering and cleaning. Solar energy is expected to fulfill 20 to 30 percent of the space heating requirements and 80 to 90 percent of the water heating requirements.

On days when the sun doesn't shine or when more heat is needed, an energy-efficient heat pump moves the natural heat, always present in the outdoor air, inside the home. Electric elements provide additional hear as required. In warm weather, the heat pump reverses automatically for energy-efficient air conditioning

The Jubilee Solar Home is exceptionally well insulated to keep heat inside in winter and to make air conditioning more efficient in summer. Äll doors and windows, and even the fireplace, are designed to be energy efficient.

When you visit the Jubilee Solar Home, be sure to examine some of the new ideas in electric appliances and lighting selected for energy efficiency, convenience and safety. And note the interior lighting and outdoor security lighting system, designed to use little electricity.

Detroit Edison's Jubilee Solar Home was built by Fred Greenspan Development Corporation in cooperation with the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

Keeping plenty of power in your hands.

COMMUNITY AWARD WINNERS ANNOUNCED

by Carol Balzarini

Awards will be given at the First Annual Community Awards Dinner to people who were nominated for their service to the community in some way. They were nominated by both organizations and by individuals and represent government, education, public service and the arts.

Each nominating form overflowed with gratitude and appreciation for the services these people have rendered to their community as a whole and to certain aspects of community life in particular.

Although that night there will be one official winner in each category, there will be no losers. Each nominee is a winner just by virtue of being nominated.

The outstanding government official this year is Keith Hallman, nominated for his years of service first as a trustee of the Village of Clarkston and later as its president. It was felt recognition for Hallman's contributions was "long overdue."

The outstanding educator is Pat Loveless, coordinator of the SPICE program for the Clarkston Schools and assistant director of SCAMP, the summer program for handicapped youth. Loveless was described as an "enthusiastic, dedicated professional" as a teacher of emotionally impaired children.

The outstanding young citizen in Lynn Johnston, active in her church youth group, Youth Assistance, the.) American Cancer Society, and Muscular Dystrophy. She is also secretary of the Clarkston High School Drama Club and the 1978-79 Junior Miss. She believes participation is the key to good citizenship.

Joan Kopietz is to be honored for her contributions to creative arts in the community. She is a jewelry maker and owner of Tierra Arts and Design with her husband Buck. She is the force behind the temporarily "hibernating" Clarkston Community Arts Council which brought Artrain to the community twice. She is a member of the Oakland County Cultural Council after serving as one of its resource representatives. "Anyone who knows Joan knows he can count on her for creative, bright ideas and a lot of work to back them up." She is also the force behind the Village Business Association.

"Super Person" award goes to Al Carter who works with retarded adults at the Pontiac Retardation Center, helps with the Special Olympics, and is active in Youth Assistance in addition to his job with General Motors. He also has a rare blood type and is an exceptional donor. He has been called "a giving man..a faithful, energetic worker."

The distinguished service award for an individual willgo to Don Place, called both the "backbone" and the "best friend" of Independence Center. Place is the assistant director of special education for the Oakland Schools. He is active in his church, North Oakland Civitans, Band Boosters, SCAMP, Youth Assistance, and a number of organizations for the handicapped.

The distinguished service award for a group goes to the Clarkston Garden Club and JoAnne Mason for their efforts in horticultural therapy at the Ortonville Nursing Home. Mason took over the project four years ago with "much energy, enthusiasm and love and implemented a very organized program." She is a "special person" as far as many are concerned.

The distinguished service award for a project goes to the John Laffrey SCAMP Benefit successful in raising over $10,000 in each of its two unique affairs. They have been the result of "cooperation from community groups, private individuals, celebrities, and community people." The benefit itself is a "fun, one-day entertainment package."

Special recognition will be given to Leona Stelmach, Pauline Hodler, Dorcas Wolf, and Patricia Beach for years of service to Independence Center as volunteers, enthusiastic, reliable, and tireless. Ed Barnhard will be honored for being an "outstanding spokesperson for children with special needs" and his work with SCAMP. Village President Fontie ApMadoc is appreciated for her "many extra hours" spent working with citizens and attending meetings.

The Garden Club appreciates the efforts of Gini Schultz, the club's president for three years, in getting horticultural programs in the elementary schools. Louise rker's contributions to Youth Assistance were two years as chairperson and her dedication to programs designed to prevent juvenile deliquency.

Other outstanding citizens nominated for their contributions to the community were Sharon Hurlburt for her organization of the "picture lady" program at Clarkston Elementary and for furthering the project throughout the school system. Russ Inman was *ppreciated for his leadership as president of the Clarkston Village Players and for his "John Dough" fund-raising efforts to restore the Depot Theatre.

Jan Seifert, whose occupation was listed as "hardworker," is appreciated as an "outstanding leader for parents of children with learning disabilities." She was instrumental in the development of SCAMP and has chaired many of its projects.

Yvonne Wilson, home economics teacher at Clarkston High School, is appreciated for her work with the Color Guard for the past four years. Her supporters felt she deserved recognition. Clifford Chapman, CHS band director and instrumental music teacher, is appreciated for his tireless efforts with the students and his "ability to motivate.

Rebecca Harrold, vocal music teacher at Clarkston Junior High was nominated for "bringing a wealth of talent and creative ideas" to her students. She has combined drama and music in musical productions never before available to the students. She is appreciated for developing qualities of "poise, responsibility and self-esteem." William Genshaw, social studies and media teacher at CHS, "knows how to communicate with kids." He cares about them and helps them. He has the "unique ability to create an atmosphere of learning pleasure."

A NEW JUNIOR HIGH AND THE ELEMENTARIES by Carol Balzarini

According to William Neff, Assistant Superintendent of Elementary Education, Clarkston's six elementaries are in need of more space; the needs of some are greater than others. Space problems can be attributed to a number of factors: more kids, state-mandated programs, expansion of library facilities, and a greater awareness of the need for art and music in the curriculum.

If the proposed bond issue is approved by the voters on June 11 and a new junior high school is built, the present Clarkston Junior High would be used primarily as an elementary school. No specific plans have been made for it, however, since a new building would not be ready for another three years giving school administrators more than enough time to decide on its Neff said people have been so interested in the possibility of the school being used for another purpose, they have contacted him with suggestions for its use. Senior citizens have inquired about it because it's within walking distance for many of them. Other inquiries have been made about possible pre-school programs. The high school is interested in the use of its gym facilities after school. School officials themselves have eyed part of it as a district warehouse.

The latter, Neff felt, would be a plus for the district especially the elementary schools. Teaching supplies, books, and many other items are now stored in the individual schools whether or not there is sufficient space for them

Teachers could then order supplies as they needed them rather than at the beginning of the school year only. Neff said money could also be saved by buying in larger quantities than possible now. Taking the supplies out of the buildings would also increase teaching space in the classrooms.

School officials estimate a total of seventeen rooms in the six elementaries would be opened up if the present Clarkston Junior High were converted to elementary use. These would provide relief for programs which may currently be housed in substandard facilities, such as Title I and reading support, speech correction, the psychologist and the social worker. It could provide space for music and art or the gifted. It could also create additional classrooms to reduce class size or make additional classrooms for special education. Neff said what would be changed and where depended on the needs of each school at the time.

In response to a question of a school's recommended capacity versus its actual enrollment, Neff said a definition of that would vary from teacher to architect to fire marshal and to the program offered in any given room. He said it was a highly debatable issue.

Ideally, Neff said, teaching stations should be available for nine special programs in addition to the so-called regular classroom. Those programs are: speech, reading support, vocal and instrumental music, media/library, Title I, the learning resource teacher, the ! psychologist and the social worker. For the most part, recent changes in the elementaries have resulted in regular classrooms, special education, and libraries taking up most of the available space leaving nothing for the rest.

The following paragraphs briefly outline average class size in each school, how the fourth Friday enrollment compares to that the actaul enrollment in March, where and how special programs operate and how that school would be affected by building a new junior high school.

regulation-size classroom. When space problems became more critical, the Title I teachers were moved into the janitor's storeroom.

Vocal music, the LRC teacher, the school psychologist, the nurse and whatever screening is being done at the time all share another classroom.

Two or three new classrooms at the present CJH would reduce class size or create a music room or get Title I out of the closet. "And we still wouldn't be in fabulous shape," Neff said.

The average class size at Andersonville is 30, it has gained 15 students overall (half a classroom) since the fourth Friday count last September. "Overall" takes both incoming and outgoing students into consideration.

Andersonville is also one of three elementaries with portable classrooms, Clarkston and Pine Knob are the others. Andersonville's three house two kindergarten classes and a third/fourth split. All were purchased in 1975 for $25,000 each installed and equipped, the same today is approximately $32,000. Their life expectancy is 8-10 years and the conversion of the present junior high to an elementary would still not eliminate them, Neff

Bailey Lake - This is the largest elementary building with the largest class size averaging 33 students. Since last September, the school has gained 26 students nearly Bailey Lake has given up three classrooms to special education, it gave up its music room to create a classroom to reduce class size. Use of the present junior high as an elementary would bring back the music room and reduce class size somewhat. In spite of that Neff said he would still have no extra classrooms for new teachers to further reduce class size.

As far as special stations were concerned. Neff said Bailey Lake was in "pretty good shape." However, a flourishing glee club of 100 students has been reduced to 30 with the loss of the music room. There is no place big enough to meet.

The instrumental music teacher meets in the book storeroom but she can handle only 8-10 students and their instruments at a time. She teaches with a hand-held chalk board while sitting on a bookshelf, Neff said. To meet with the entire band, which keeps growing, she must use the hallway or the library thus closing it to all other classes. The library was once the school's large group classroom.

Clarkston Elementary - This school has two portables used for kindergarten installed at the same time as Andersonville's. The average class size is 28; it has gained 22 students since the beginning of the school

Constructed at a time when libraries were not considered a necessity, as many elementaries were, Clarkston Elementary gave up two classrooms to create one. It started out, however, in a hallway, then moved to a converted storeroom, on to one classroom and then to

There is no music room in the building. Sixth grade band students go to CJH. Movies for large groups are shown in the front lobby while the rest of the school goes about its normal routine.

Pine Knob - There are two portables used by kindergarteners, the average class size is 27, and the population has been stable for this school year.

Two classrooms have been given up to make a library, two more for special education. One classroom is used by the reading support teacher, the speech correctionist, Title I and vocal music. The psychologist frequently uses the kitchen to meet with students, Neff said.

Storage space for the school is in the hallways where anything may be found including food supplies and furniture. Instrumental music classes use the portables when the kindergarten is not there.

North Sashabaw - This is one of the new elementaries. Average class size is 28, a dozen students have been gained during the year.

The music room was sacrificed for a library. Two classrooms have been converted for special education use. Reading support, Title I and the nurse share a room. The multi-purpose room is shared by both vocal and instrumental music.

Neff said North Sashabaw is in "better shape than most."

South Sashabaw - Built in 1949, this is the oldest elementary building. Average class size is 30; the school has gained 14 students this year.

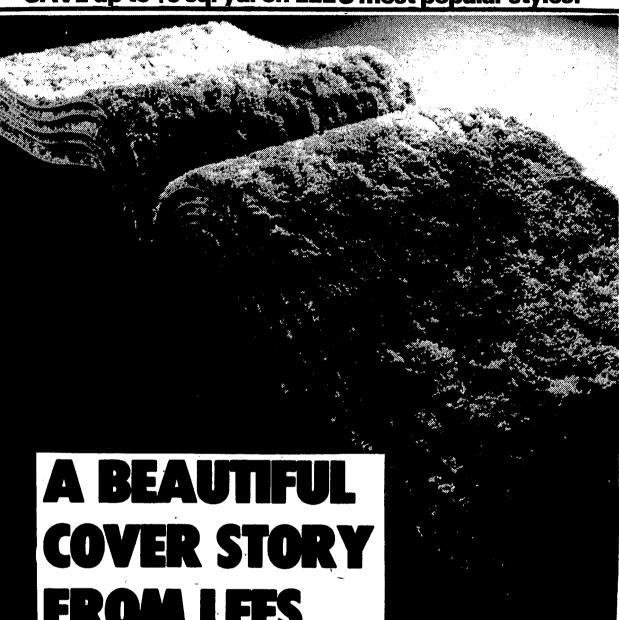

Discussion of this school evokes the greatest emotional response from Neff. "I could talk forever on this one," he admitted.

There are no empty classrooms here either despite the rapidly-growing Lake Oakland Woods and plans for other developments in the future. This school was to have been phased out once North Sashabaw was opened

"Sideways Kid" Gets Ready for Another Season

by Leona Hutchings

Since the day six years ago when William Barnard of Clark Road, Davisburg, bought his son Brian, then 13, a motorcycle it has been a family affair of racing.

Brian has just reached 19 and is well known in the world of racing as one of the top cyclist both on dirt and ice.

As a cyclist many of the races are invitational. Thus Brian has been up against the best at races in Saginaw, Allen Park, Muskegon and Florida.

Since 1976 Barnard has joined those racing on ice in the winter. In 1977 he won the National Indoor Championship. Racing on ice was born because of the short season for dirt racing in Michigan. He won the first winter race last year at Kalamazoo. Since turning professional he receives money for wins and few trophies, however, the wall of the family room is lined several deep with many beautiful trophies won over the years.

When racing Brian wears safety equipment consisting of a steel shoe over the regular boot on his left foot only. "You use a steel shoe when you put your foot down to slide, to prevent ripping the foot off," remarked Brian.

Other equipment consists of a custom padded leather suit, full facemask, helmet and heavy thick gloves while ice racing.

The need for good safety equipment reminds him of a racing incident in Illinois in 1978. On a half mile track he lost control of his bike, he slipped and fell into the path of another bike, putting him in the hospital with a bruised kidney.

Brian feels even more important than equipment is the experience gained over the years of learning not to fall. "You can't always prevent an accident but after riding most of your life, you learn not to fall."

Known throughout the racing world as 11 X, young Barnard races because he has always enjoyed the sport. Thinking back to when he was eight, when he got his first bike, he recalls the steady climb to being among the best on dirt and ice. He was the first on the circuit to use a four stroke engine. This type of engine helps to cut down on the noise and the emission levels. Barnard believes "the four stroke gives you better traction." The bikes also have special tires which have a No. 8 metal screw inserted by hand into them for traction when on ice.

Aside from engines and tires Barnard feels "cornering is the key to winning on ice." What you try to do when cornering is keep the bike up. That way you are maximizing the amount of tread area that is on the ice. Each racer designs his own tires that he feels does the job for him best.

Barnard keeps about twenty screw studded tires. His craftsmanship has kept him from crashing into arena walls and landing in seats. In three winters of inside racing he has had no real serious injuries. His pride has been hurt a few times like the time he got his bike hooked by another and a pant leg of his custom-tailored leather breeches was ripped wide open!

The coming months will find the "Sideways Kid", as Barnard has been nicknamed, out on the tracks of central and lower Michigan. He drew this nickname because of the position he keeps his bike when racing on the ice in closed arenas. Most of the money he makes at races goes to keep up the expense of the maintenance and traveling to races. He has both a 250 and 750 Honda and with 70,000 miles a year logged, this takes about $25,000 to maintain.

Local 4-H Youth, PARENTS ATTEND All Star Event

Marking another step in developing leadership among 4-H members was the purpose of inviting two young members and all youth who during the year of '78 and '79 had represented the Oakland County 4-H clubs either on achievement awards, judging teams, quiz bowl participants, representatives for kings and queens, officers of service club, livestock club or interstate exchange.

This event was started by the County Awards Committee. With the cooperation of County council, the Extension Staff and co-hosted with and at Pontiac Motors Engineering Cafeteria, a crowd of 250 parents and youth exchanged ideas and listened to Ms. Velma Linford.

Ms. Linford's speech was entitled "People Potential, America's Underdeveloped Resource." She stressed the opportunity for young people in America to help and lead others. She feels that as youth the opportunity to grow and build is here. Her parting words were "Go home, reach out and build, God bless you children."

in the late 1960's.

One room was given up for a media center but Neff said the students have really been "cheated" out of a library because that room also is used by Title I and special education, even though the latter requires its own larger space.

A room Neff estimates to be 5' by 7' houses speech correction, the social worker, nurse, and any screening. He said there is only room for two people at a time calling it a "disgrace" and "the pits," to coin a current

Many of the elementaries have no health rooms any more. If the kids get sick they are sent home as soon as possible. South Sashabaw's cot is in the hallway.

What is the office now was not originally intended as such. The principal can only see two or three people at one time. The secretary has less room than that.

Neff said the kids are in good shape because the school's staff works so hard to compensate for the limitations of the building itself. Their surroundings are brightened by artwork everywhere.

All elementaries must use either high school or junior high school facilities if any large productions are planned such as concerts. They must also compete for available time. They usually have no rehearsal or preparation time in the other building. Such inconveniences tend to cut down on large evening

Parent help, however, is on the increase, Neff said, with the "picture lady" program being the most structured. The murals at Andersonville are a good example also of parent involvement.

Clarkston Schools will begin a program next fall for teachers, administrators and parents training them to help in a classroom and, it is hoped, eliciting a better response from the schools themselves. The program will include how to train, how to recruit, and how to make the most effective use of aides and volunteers. Neff would also like to see senior citizens take part in the program. (Next week, Park V will deal with the question of money, what the proposed bond issue means in dollars and

Mel Larsen Featured Speaker

Mel Larsen, state chairman of the Republican Party, will be the featured speaker at the First Annual Community Awards Dinner to be held Thursday, May 24, at Spring Lake Golf Club.

Larsen said speaking about the importance of community involvement to a group of people being rored for their contributions to the community was "a little like talking to the folks who come to church." He indicated three important points were to be considered:

character, competency and contribution.

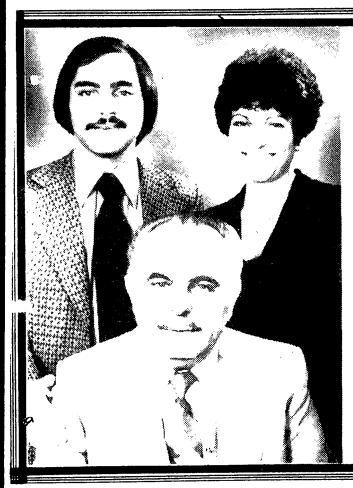

Larsen assumed his post as head of the Michigan Republican Party last February following his election at the state convention. Prior to that he had served three terms in the Michigan House of Representatives as legislator from the 61st district which includes Lake Orion, Oxford, and Pontiac. He was an unsuccessful candidate for secretary of state in the 1978 election.

Tickets for the dinner, a cooperative effort of the Clarkston Jaycees, the North Oakland Civitans and the Independence Township Michigan Week committee, are still available at Spring Lake, The Back Court at the Deer Lake Racquet Club, Tierra Arts and Design and the Clerk's office at the Township Hall. They are also being sold by Jaycees, Civitans and members of the Michigan Week committee.

A POEM FOR MEMORIAL DAY SORROW

Joe passed the lonely grave So many times Seldom stopping Why?

I've knelt in prayer Then turned away I'm afraid Why?

So long ago Too many tears Still unshed Why?

There is no shame in sorrow No crime in caring past the grave And so, I'll cry, and cry and cry And yet Why?

A large downpayment may have some advantages, depending on your personal financial situation. For one thing, the buyer may find it easier to obtain a loan. One may also be able to obtain a loan at a lesser rate of interest. Total interest expense, of course, will be lower and the equity in the home, greater. Statistics show that on a 25-year, 8 percent loan, every $1,000 of downpayment decreases the amount of total interest paid by about $1,310. If a larger downpayment is possible, it may be a good way to buy. Check alternative uses of available capital, however.

Financing is an important aspect in a real estate transaction. Successful financing arrangements is the difference between a completed real estate transaction and a lost purchase or sale. As a professional real estate office, BOB WHITE REAL ESTATE, 5856 Main' Street, next to the Clarkston Post Office, has the experience to advise the potential buyer as to the details involved in seeking out and arranging financing. Whether buying or selling, come to BOB WHITE REAL ESTATE. We get involved in successful real estate transactions. Open 9 a.m. - 9 p.m., till 6 Friday and Saturday, 11 - 5 Sunday. Telephone 625-5821.
