Its Loss a Tremendous Blow

To us, i.c. was one of those unique entities of this area that show how much our residents care.

Disturbing news was learned last week. The Board of Directors of Independence Center have decided to close up shop.

That's a shame! Independence Center through its many services has helped hundreds of people during its existence. Many of those people were in emergency situations and had only i.c. to turn to.

Furthermore, i.c. has been the home for many auxiliary services like youth assistance, health programs, Civitan and others. It had become a tradition to look to i.c. for most any volunteer program.

It was no secret the Center was knee-deep in problems of all types. Financially, the Center always seemed to be coming up short. Volunteers were becoming more and more difficult to find and it is easy to ascertain why board members might be getting upset with the whole situation.

But to disband the entire operation--that's going to be one helluva loss. The Reminder would like to see a reconsideration of the decision. To us, i.c. was one of those unique entities of this area that show how much our residents care. Its loss will be great.

Is This Independence in Independence Township?

Letter To The Editor:

It was my privilege to attend the October 4 Planning Board Meeting; upon entering the meeting room, I took a seat next to a lady and gentleman, wishing to conserve seating room, I no more than sat down, when I was approached by a young lady with a green bag.

When I informed the young lady that I did not wish to be so identified, she politely told me to move over to the other side of the room, because that was where the opposition was.

I thought to myself-Is this Independence in Independence Township? And muttered some loud disgust after which I had empty seats on both sides.

But this did not deter another young lady from offering to tag me.

And still another young lady approached me with the message that "When Mr. Lochrichio speaks applaud as loud as you can."

"Indeed" is this Independence? The whole show put me in mind of "King Midas and his Knights and Servants."

"Having several of his infiltrate the Supreme Court, the King instructed them to make sure that they observed his marked subjects, so that they could be adequately rewarded, for their faithful support."

And during the subsequent discussion pertaining to the so called "Gold Mine of Taxes" the township would get from the King, a voice from the darkness said, "But Gentlemen 75 cents per residential tax payer would be more than that"

And I thought to myself, "Indeed-even $75 per taxpayer would be considered cheap; by the people who have been offended by the noise of Pine Knob and the people who have been forced to drive 8 to 10 miles out of their way to make it home on certain nights during the summer.

"And most of all by the people of the township who over the years have given of their time, money and talents."

To create an atmosphere of Community Pride and Serenity that permeated to the farthest corner of this township and area."

People of Independence Township I implore you not to let this wave of exploitation take over your township.

There is no road back, you cannot change the past, so please vote "No" on Proposals "A" and "C" and yes on Proposal "B". "They shall not overcome."

Davisburg Couples Celebrate 60th Wedding Anniversaries

Dear Editor:

Saturday, October 6th, 1979, the Davisburg gave a joint surprise 60th Wedding Anniversary Party for John and Unice Tremper and Herman and Ella Jaenichen. Incidentally they were both married on October 27th, 1919. And both Buddy John Tremper and Herman Jaenichen are World War One Veterans and Ella Jaenichen was a nurse in World War One. And to put the frosting on the cake, Ivey Young baked a very unique cake, it was in the shape of the Bible and inscribed on it was A happy 60th Anniversary to John and Unice Tremper and Herman and Ella Jaenichen, and it was very delicious. And Mrs. Mable Clark presented them both with a beautiful anniversary. And also a coincidence Buddy Herman Jaenichen and Sister Unice Tremper were born on the same January 18, 1895.

AIRPORT '79 A look at the Midwest's Second Busiest Airport

by Mike Wilcox

You don't have to travel to Chicago or Detroit to find a busy airport. The Oakland-Pontiac Airport in Waterford has over a thousand operations daily and is ranked second to Chicago's O'Hare, (the busiest airport in the United States) in the Midwest.

How did the relatively obscure airport earn this ranking? According to David VanderVeen, Director of Aviation for Oakland County, which owns the airport, Oakland-Pontiac has shown a pattern of steady growth for several years, growth not only in number of takeoffs and landings, but growth in facilities the airport has to offer.

The Oakland-Pontiac Airport has four runways, a high intensity approach lighting system, modern guidance and control systems and complete repair facilities.

That's a far cry from the one hangar-160 acre air strip that was built by the City of Pontiac in 1928. Even then, however, the airport seemed to be destined for greatness as it became the very first airport in the nation to receive a rating certificate.

The largest of the four runways is over a mile long and can accommodate aircraft as large as DC9's and 727's. A smaller runway runs parallel with it. An additional two runways east of the main runway are available for smaller aircraft during crosswind positions.

Equally impressive is the sophisticated equipment found in the control tower. The top three floors of the tower are leased by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA). According to Chief of Operations at the tower for the FAA, Kyle Kiefling, the government is spending nearly $150,000.00 to update the already top notch equipment there.

Emergency capabilities have been a pet project of VanderVeen and his staff the last couple of years. He points proudly to a generator, that although not pretentious is what VanderVeen calls the most significant improvement the airport has made in a long time. It, said, VanderVeen, "will insure continual airport operation, even in the most adverse weather conditions."

Over in the maintenance building, Pete Zemelis, with a crew of eight men, has responsibility for fire prevention and maintenance of the entire complex. Their fire apparatus is capable of putting out the largest aircraft fires.

The garage stores several pieces of snow removal equipment including what Zemelis calls the finest single piece of snow removal equipment in the county. His crew offers 24 hour snow removal service and Zemelis claims he cannot ever recall the airport closed because of snow in the past seven years.

Also signaling extensive growth is the number of auxiliary services and businesses that have cropped up around the airport. According to VanderVeen these businesses along with the airport employ about 500 people.

They include repair and maintenance facilities for engine, airframe, avionics and instruments; itinerant and long term parking; restorations, parts and supplies for general aircraft; fuel; and aircraft sales.

Cessna, Beechcraft and Piper sell airplanes at the airport much like your local Chevy or Ford dealer sells cars, with one exception. Some of those planes (jets) can cost over $6,000,000. Another auxiliary business called Lycon Aviation restores and sells World War II planes.

Licensed flight schools are everywhere. One has a large variety of schools to choose from for single and multi-engine aircraft, as well as commercial and helicopter flying.

Several charter firms operate from the airport. Charter and contract services include air freight ranging from single to large four engine and jet aircraft.

Many times well-known entertainers scheduled for The Silverdome or Pine Knob and land and take-off at the airport. It's much closer and less hectic than Detroit's Metropolitan Airport.

While there they might choose to dine at the Meridian

Restaurant, that not only offers an excellent view of landings and takeoffs, but features comedian Bob Posch for entertainment.

The airport's latest development is what they call Astropark. Astropark is actually an area designated for corporations to build their own facilities for housing of their own aircraft and aviation divisions. The corporation subdivision has already picked up clients like Budd Corporation and Williams Research.

When finished Astropark should significantly increase the number of planes housed at the airport. Currently over 500 planes, many of them owned by businesses, call Oakland-Pontiac their home. Dozens of hangers house the planes along Airport Road.

Although accidents are a "dirty" and often times fatal word to airport managers, VanderVeen wasn't hesitant in noting there are occasional crashes at or near the airport. The most recent he recalled was the death of attorney Paul Valentino in Springfield Township. He also recalled a plane that missed the runway and landed in Pontiac Lake last year.

VanderVeen is quick to add however, "Flying is mile for mile the safest of all transportation." Take this intersection for instance (Airport and M-59), he said, I bet there are many more accidents at the intersection than at our airport.

In explaining why his airport is number two in the number of operations (landings and takeoffs), in the Midwest, VanderVeen said Oakland-Pontiac caters to business and private individuals whereas an airport like Metro is almost exclusively commercial flights. He said he was losing one of his flight controllers in the tower to Metro. That, he and other controllers laughingly called a demotion, because even though Metro is large in size it doesn't match Oakland-Pontiac in the number of operations.

Clarkston Enrollment Declines For Second Straight Year

Down 45 from 1978

According to the fourth Friday count, the one that determines the amount of state aid the Clarkston Schools will receive, the total number of students has declined for the second year in a row. This year's elementary and secondary count stands at 6,818, down 45 from last year's official count.

Added to this figure for a total of 6,855 students to qualify for state aid are 37 more to be found in adult education, both at the high school and the vocational school, the pre-school children at Sashabaw Junior High, and a number of private school students at the vocational school.

Overall, according to Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara, the major difference appears to be in the number of twelfth graders listed in last year's count, 571, and this year's entering kindergarteners, 373.

Other figures comparing students by grade from last year to this show an increase in every grade except the two top ones which declined. Heaviest increases are found in grades 7-9.

Superintendent Milford Mason told board members there was no way to predict "in-migration". He added that some people expect an "incline" in enrollment in the next few years. There were 189 new students entering the system from last year's count to this year's.

Elementary enrollments have declined for each building except for Clarkston Elementary which has 15 additional students. The total elementary decline is 84 students.

Both junior high schools have registered an increase in the number of students, CJH is up 5 while SJH is up 56. The high school population decreased by 22.

Schools Fight Rising Energy Consumption, Costs

Bill Dennis, director of transportation for the Clarkston Schools, reported to the school board last week on the district's efforts to conserve energy in the past three years, efforts prompted mainly by increasing energy costs.

Dennis said each building has conducted its own energy audit in anticipation of the availability of federal funds for conservation efforts.

He also said that not only has the amount of energy consumed been reduced but also the amount of money paid out for that energy.

To comply with governmental requirements, thermostats in the Clarkston schools have been set at 65 degrees in the secondary buildings and 67 degrees in the elementary buildings. Non-compliance could result in ines.

Because of the problems with temperature control and sixth grade Andersonville students housed there, Clarkston Junior High will be allowed the 67 degree setting. Observing the 65 degree limit are the administration building and special services.

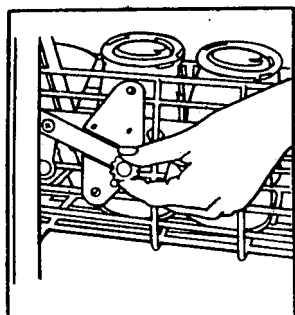

Dennis said adjustments, changes and repairs to existing equipment had paid off "significantly", and that almost all immediate and inexpensive adjustments have been made. He cautioned board members the district would now have to look at the costlier items.

He also suggested an increased effort in student orientation toward energy conservation. For a start, it was suggested students dress for the cooler temperatures.

FORECAST

by Robert Davis

Cold, Snowy Winter Ahead

by Robert C. Davis

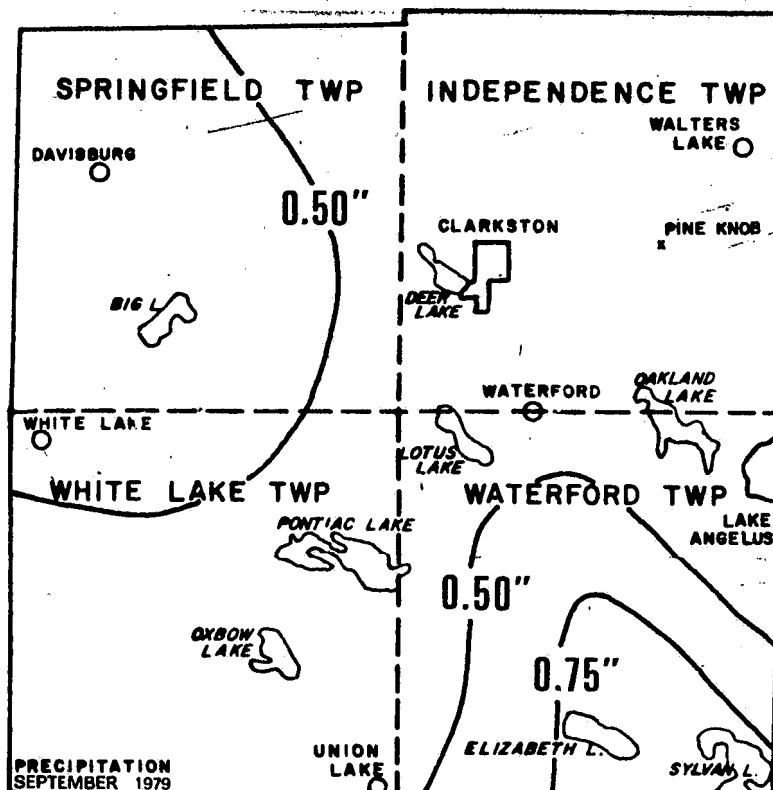

September was a vacationer's delight all across southeastern Michigan, as sunny and dry conditions persisted during most of the month. Rainfall was quite sparse, with totals ranging from only 0.14 of an inch in Rochester to 1.20 inches at Ypsilanti. Locally, the northern Clarkston station received 0.45 of an inch, and the eastern Clarkston station received 0.43 of an inch of precipitation during September. All volunteers within our 4-township area received less than one inch of rain during the month with the majority of that total occurring during the evening hours of the 13th and early morning hours of the 14th.

Temperatures during September were only slightly below normal. Based on data from the eastern Clarkston station, temperatures ranged from a low of 35 degrees on the 23rd to a high of 85 degrees on the 5th. The mean temperatures for the month was 62.1 degrees, which is less than one degree below normal.

With summer now officially over, what can we expect during this fall and winter? Gazing into my crystal ball, I see below normal temperatures and near normal precipitation for the fall, followed by another very cold and snowy winter season. I expect that this coming winter will be very similar to that of last year, with snow staying on the ground throughout most of the months of December, January and February.

A review of this past year's weather to date brings to light some interesting and unusual statistics. As I mentioned in last month's report, we have experienced only one day of 90-degree weather this year. This tendency towards cooler weather is highlighted by the fact that temperatures have been below normal in all but one month (March) so far this year. But one of the most curious aspects of this year's weather has been the limited number of thunderstorms. Our area normally experiences about 35 days of thunderstorm activity during the year, but this year (as of the end of September) the Clarkston area had only experienced 13 days with thunderstorms. Before closing, I would like to welcome our new volunteer, Carl R. Stapleton of Rochester to our rain gage network. (The isohyetal map was prepared by Robert C. Davis and was sponsored by Johnson and Anderson, Inc., Consulting Engineers.)

Hotel Hits Snag When ZBA Asks for More Information

by Carol Balzarini

Richard Schmaltz and the Let The People Speak Committee struck out in Oakland County Circuit Court last week as Judge Robert Webster declined to halt local governmental processes and grant their request for an injunction. The group had sought to delay any action by the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals before the special referendum election scheduled for Tuesday, October 16 which would determine whether or not the voters favored a high rise hotel.

Later that same day, Pine Knob, which wants to build a high rise hotel on some 600 acres of land, struck out with the ZBA when the members voted 3-2 to delay any action for two weeks while one very key question was answered, that of how the property on which the proposed hotel would be built was actually zoned. There are several zoning maps with various dates and they do not agree.

The court hearing, ordered by Judge Webster several weeks before, took the better part of the day on October 10. Attorneys Dale Stuart and Neil Wallace appeared on behalf of the plaintiffs. Tom Raguso represented both Pine Knob and the Committee For the Pine Knob Hotel, Anthony Locricchio appeared as both co-counsel and as agent for Pine Knob Investments. Peter Keenan represented Independence Township.

Arguments for the plaintiff centered around the contention the meetings of both the planning commission and the ZBA were invalid because the proper procedures had not been followed by the township. They further contended vesting could occur if the ZBA, meeting that night, were to approve the hotel. A rejection by the voters then would have no effect, they said. Vesting, or vested rights, is the point at which a project cannot be stopped.

Improper notification, they further argued, made all actions from then on invalid. The controversy dealt with the fact Pine Knob had applied to the ZBA before any decisions had been rendered by the planning commission and that notice of the ZBA special meeting had been published prior to planning action.

Raguso stated vesting would not occur as a result of ZBA action and that proper procedures had been followed by the township. Keenan concurred arguing the governmental process should be allowed to continue. Keenan told Judge Webster much of the argument was a matter of "semantics".

Locricchio said Pine Knob Investment's "right to proceed" was based on statute. He also said vesting could not occur as a result of ZBA action because vesting had occurred in 1972.

Pro and con arguments about planning commission action, application to the ZBA and the published notice of the ZBA meeting continued until Judge Webster stated the sequence of events and how the township ordinance was interpreted as becoming a "circular" argument.

The judge injected a little levity by saying the ordinance was not clearly worded and "an example of what lawyers can do with plain English".

After all arguments and rebuttals were heard,

Webster ruled he must "assume the validity of action on the part of the township" in the application, notification and meeting procedures.

Concerning the question of vested rights, Webster said to move forward "in the teeth" of this referendum would give Pine Knob no superior right by ZBA action. If the ZBA said "yes" to the hotel and the people said "no", Pine Knob's interest is gone, he said.

He denied the injunction because no "irreparable harm" had been shown by the plaintiffs.

Stuart's considered emergency appeal did not materialize because, Stuart said later, Pine Knob had admitted in court vesting would not occur as a result of ZBA action, they had promised not to pursue a building permit until after the election and the township had promised not to allow issuance of a building permit or administrative approval of the site plan.

That evening the ZBA met in special session at the township hall to consider three issues outlined by chairman Mel Vaara. The first was the question of proper zoning, the second was conditional permitted use, and the third was height variance.

A lengthy letter written by township planner Tod Kilroy was read into the minutes and then summarized by township attorney Richard Campbell.

Planned Unit Development (PUD) allowing large parcels of land to be developed with a variety of zoned areas within the acreage was a part of the township ordinance when Pine Knob first presented their plan for development. However, there was no statutory authority for local governments to have PUDs.

After lengthy hearings, he said, Pine Knob was allowed the PUD by the planning commission with recommendations to the township board. The specific zoning designations continued until 1975 when the zoning ordinance was rewritten by Campbell, then-planner Larry Burkhardt, and another person.

PUD was eliminated and Pine Knob rezoned to specific uses. Present lines in the zoning map do not coincide with Pine Knob's current proposal, some five acres of the ten are zoned multiple. Recent township board action has allowed hotels in recreation zoning only.

The ZBA, Campbell said, must interpret the map. If it is correct, Pine Knob must apply for rezoning. If incorrect, the ZBA must change the map accordingly.

The problem centers around the legal description presented in February of 1972 to the planning commission and those finally approved by the township board in December of 1973.

The discrepancies came to light when Kilroy fed the 1972 description into a computer and made an overlay from it. The resulting overlay did not coincide with Pine Knob's map. Kilroy said later that particular legal description was used because it was the one printed in the public notice. He had no reason to believe it was different from the one presented in 1973 and approved by the township board.

Discussion continued with comments both pro and con from the audience and questions from ZBA members.

Member Paul Menke made a motion that zoning in the area of the proposed hotel be based on the 1973 legal description. Jerry Powell said he was "satisfied" with the 1973 map as was Menke who said Pine Knob's map indicated what the zoning should be and the township's map was in error.

Vaara was opposed to the motion saying he was unsure of the proper zoning and wanted to have Burkhardt present to answer some questions. Dunlop agreed asking also for a 1973 overlay. John Newlin's concern was with what happened in 1975 when the zoning map was changed and also suggested a meeting with the former planner.

Menke's motion was defeated by a 3-2 vote.

Vaara then made a motion to table this issue for two weeks giving them time to contact Burkhardt and to get a new overlay. The other two issues of use and height could not be resolved until the first one was. That meeting would be on October 24.

Vaara's motion passed on a 3-2 vote, Vaara, Dunlop and Newlin in favor, Powell and Menke opposed.

Energy Management

by Carol Balzarini

This is the time of year when leaves of red and gold outnumber those of green...when daytime temperatures are chilly and frost appears at night...when your fuel supplier notifies you this year's budget payments will be double last year's!

A typical reaction to the latter, and maybe to the weather also, is anguish, perhaps even despair. The fuel supplier has you in his grip and there's no way out! Ah, but there is!

Maybe you can't control the price of heating oil or gas but you can control the quantity used through a variety of ways.

One way is to add more insulation to your home. Apparently many people are doing just that because local dealers report business is brisk both for having it done and for doing-it-yourself by renting a portable blower. Materials available include mineral wool, fiberglass, and cellulose.

Although business has increased, it does not approach last year's record year for all insulating companies. Then, the demand was so great and supplies correspondingly low that dealers operated on allocations. This year no supply problems are anticipated.

It is recommended that six additional inches of insulation be added to the three and a half normally found in homes, or a factor of R-30 or R-33. The price of additional insulation varies according to material used, what depth is desired, what insulation exists in the home and the square footage to be covered. Money spent on insulation now will be recovered through the years in money saved due to the decrease in energy consumption.

Another way of reducing the amount of gas or oil used for heating is to provide supplemental heat in the form of a wood-burning stove. This is most practical for people with easy access to free or inexpensive wood supplies.

Supply and demand for wood stoves this year seems to parallel the situation for insulation last year. So many people are buying wood stoves, they may be not only in short supply for some dealers, but also back-ordered. One dealer said his order last spring was cut in half by the supplier with no guarantees on delivery of the other half.

Stove styles available are varied from those that fit into a standard fireplace opening to the traditional Franklin and pot-bellied styles. A neat little box-shaped one sits on the hearth and comes with a back panel that completely covers the fireplace opening cutting out drafts from the chimney.

Prices for these stoves seem to be as varied as the styles with a range of several hundred dollars to over a thousand dollars. Correspondingly, the price has a great deal to do with the size of the area to be heated, from one room to a whole house, the material the stove is made of, and some cosmetic features such as a little window for those who have to see the flames to enjoy the warmth.

People with access to still great quantities of free or inexpensive wood have even installed wood-burning furnaces to replace or supplement the standard variety.

Whether a separate unit or what is called an "add-a-furnace", they operate in similar ways with one pipe using the existing furnace flue and the other pipe connected with the plenum on the standard furnace.

The efficiency of a wood-burning furnace depends on a number of variables: the kind of furnace, the kind and amount of wood used, and the size of the home to be heated. One wood-burning furnace may be sufficient to heat an entire house while another may only cut down on the use of a standard furnace.

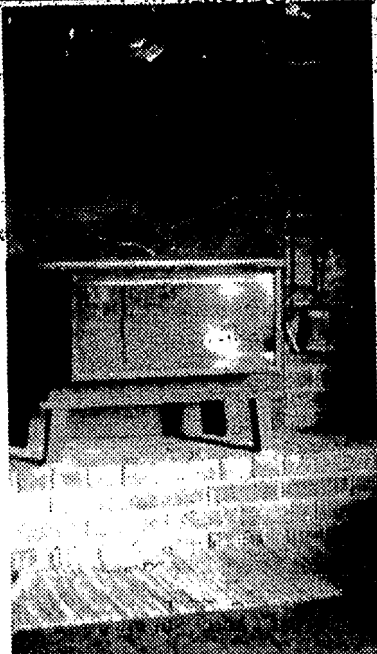

Another means of shutting out cold air and keeping in warm air is with insulated or heavy winter drapes both at the windows and to shut off little used rooms with no doors. One inventive person had decided to use two thicknesses of ribless corduroy because the old-fashioned heavy drapery material is no longer available.

This idea is not new. People have been using fabric to keep out drafts for years. Did you think all those tapestries on medieval castle walls were just there to look pretty?

Caulking and weather-stripping go a long way in helping prevent cold air from coming in and warm air from escaping. Over the years, caulking shrinks and dries out while weather-stripping wears out. Many times this happens without the homeowner even being aware of it.

It's fairly easy to scrape away the old caulking and replace it with new. Weather-stripping, at least on newer sliding windows, can just be pulled out of its channel and new stripping slipped in.

Whatever measures are taken to winterize your home, it is generally agreed they will pay for themselves in the long run in energy saved. Winterizing is really economizing.

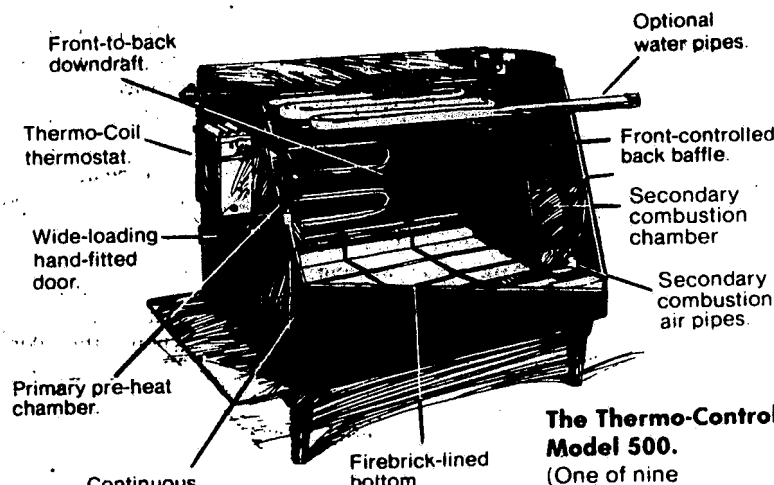

A woodburning stove takes up very little room.

But it does consume a whole lot of wood.

THE ULTIMATE WOOD-BURNING SYSTEM.

The Thermo-Control Model 500. (One of nine available models.)

Continuous welded seams

Firebrick-lined bottom

A Thermo-Control stove is designed for one thing: to heat more efficiently and effectively than any other wood-burning stove you can buy.

There's the Thermo-Coil thermostat, which automatically regulates the fire, for up to 15 hours of continuous, even heat—without reloading.

Two distinct combustion chambers, for effective burning of wood and wood gases. Air pre-heating systems that get air to each chamber at near-ignition temperatures.

Optional interior coils for hot water central heating. Or a warm air hood for warm air central heat.

ing. Even coils for free domestic hot water. Rugged $\frac{1}{2}$ " and $\frac{3}{4}$ " welded steel construction. And our stoves are safe—listed by Energy Testing Laboratory per UL standard 1482 for radiant heat, plus domestic hot water, warm air and hot water heat.

Put all this together with our other features, and you'll see why we call Thermo-Control "the ultimate wood-burning system."

Rare Twin Colts Born on Clarkston Farm Last Week

Jerry Legge of Rattalee Lake Road, Clarkston, was a busy but happy man last week when his Appaloosa four year old Sunburn gave birth to twin fillies. This is a rare delivery for horses and even veterinarian Dr. Duhome of Milford didn't expect twins.

Owner Legge while at work was called home by a neighbor who stopped an Oakland County Sheriff's car. The larger of the two did not survive but the smaller colt called Sundance, by her owner, is gaining strength.

Directors Decide to Dissolve Independence Center

On October 9 the Board of Directors voted to dissolve Independence Center.

At the October 4 Board Meeting the Advisory Committee presented their report which urged the board to define the center's role in the community.

The board called a special meeting inviting others associated with the center to offer their input on the future of i.c.

At the close of that meeting, it was determined by the Board of Directors that the tremendous amounts of volunteer manpower and money spent did not justify the results attained. The board was made aware that there are other organizations that do serve members of our community in need. Too much effort has been spent on maintaining the building, raising funds, sorting rummage and solving administrative problems and not enough on our basic goals.

Coordinator Elaine Murray was contacted while in the midst of packing at the Center last Friday. She said, "It's not just a financial decision at all." She added that a lot of study went into making the decision.

Ms. Murray revealed that she had submitted her resignation at about the same time the Board of Directors was deciding to close down the Center. Her resignation, she claimed, had nothing to do with that decision, but rather, was made because her family is moving out of the area.

The building will return to Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church who had leased the former church building to i.c. for several years.

the best in business This Week-Nan's Coiffures

Nancy Overstreet, Owner

The reception area with stations in the background.

This week's Best in Business really is one of the best in her field. Nan's Coiffures, according to its owner Nancy Overfield is one of the biggest hair salons in all of Oakland County.

Located on Airport Road, just off of Andersonville, Nan's has thirteen operators trained in all phases of cosmetology as well as a large retail sales area.

Operators are Kaye Harrison, Cindy Howie, Norma Gomez, Sharon Wagner, Linda Smith, Doris VanDeusen, Linda Finney, Jody LeMarbe, Delores Malatin, Paula Conner, Linda Kintros and Ms. Overfield. The receptionist is Roslyn Gidcumb.

Nan's was started seven years ago at a small shop on the Dixie Highway. Four years ago, Ms. Overfield moved it to the present 2000 square foot building. She recently remodeled the entire interior of the building, buying all new Belvedere equipment.

She describes her salon as one with wide-ranging clientele running the gamut from singles to family, from young boys to elder senior citizens. "We have a very large clientele of men, also," she added.

Price-wise, Ms. Overfield, maintains the middle-of-the-road, although recently she cut prices to help the consumer fight inflation. "I used the economy as an aid for myself and the customer," she said. "I was looking for more volume and I also wanted to make it easier for the customer."

The move proved successful. Ms. Overfield prides herself in being a top quality salon, but cutting prices brought in a lot of new customers. "Although my image is not budget, it's really helped," she reiterated.

Ms. Overfield is very careful about who she hires to work in the salon. "I don't have people with bad personalities--no matter how good they are."

But most important, she said, was that the operator has to be able to do what the customer wants. "The customer is always right."

The operators are also required to attend several beauty shows a year in an effort to keep up with the latest styles and techniques.

Retail-wise, Nan's sells all types of beauty products. Ms. Overfield said Redken products are especially popular.

Although Ms. Overfield is proud and content with her present success, she doesn't rule out expansion. "Expansion would have to be well thought out. I wouldn't want anything to jeopardize my home or my business."

At home, Ms. Overfield has two daughters, Michelle, 12, and Nicole, 10. Her husband Charles operates a construction firm.

The Reminder Announces New Column

Hello Readers

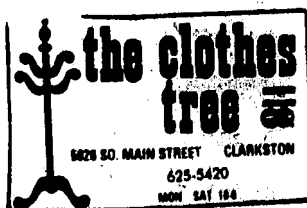

This little corner of the newspaper will be reserved on a fairly regular basis (perhaps monthly) to help remedy two of today's problems: too little recognition of the good deeds people do and not enough available information for the fight against inflation.

We'd like to hear from you about those heart-warming deeds your friends and neighbors perform; as well as any tips you have for beating the high cost of living. We'll even pose a question from time to time.

This week we'd like to hear about any Halloween costume ideas you have. Many will be do-it-yourself projects in this inflationary time!

American Artist Series Announces 10th Season

Season ticket sales have begun for the tenth anniversary season of the American Artist Series, five consecutive monthly concerts from January 20 to May 18. The series promises to be the best of a decade of creative musical offerings to Michigan cultural life. Highlights of the season include guest appearances by the legendary Choreographer Agnes DeMille, Flamenco Guitarist Juan Serrano, the courtly Concert Royal and the award-winning New World Quartet.

In honor of the 10-year anniversary, Richard Kozlow, internationally known artist, has designed a serigraph especially for the series. The limited edition work, individually numbered and signed, will be available exclusively to AAS season subscription members.

The non-profit American Artist Series was the 1970 brain child of Joan Freeman Shwayder, internationally acclaimed concert pianist. Her talented dedication, together with strong community support, has made the AAS Michigan's foremost showcase for emotionally stimulating and musically informative concerts.

Beginning primarily as a chamber ensemble of professional musicians, the group soon outgrew their first home in the Bloomfield Township Public Library and moved to the Cranbrook Academy of Art in 1974. After 45 successful concerts, they moved again to their current stage, the art-deco Kingswood Auditorium in Bloomfield Hills.

Joan Freeman Shwayder continues to guide the AAS as its artistic director and the majority of American Artist performers are Detroit Symphony Orchestra members.

major in "History and Asian Studies"—is the wife of Ron Foon, Attorney, with Oakland County Friend of the Court.

Together, they are the proud new parents of Jonathan Monson Foon—just three months old.

Little Jonathan, who already has a social security number, is, also, a member of another "team." Jan and her mother, Shirley Monson—a music teacher on leave from the Oak Park School District—have been the owners of The Candle Factory at Davisburg since June, 1978; and Jonathan spends most of his days there with them.

Jan feels her parents greatly influenced the course of her early adult life.

For high school graduation, in 1967, they gave her a gift of the summer in Japan—as part of the "Youth for Understanding" program. "I had such a positive experience in Japan," she says, "it put my life in focus." "The lack of conveniences...simplified me."

Her love of Japanese culture influenced her choice of a college major; and she returned to Japan again in 1969.

Upon graduation from the University of Michigan, Jan moved to Boston for one year. She was unable to find work in her field, but as secretary to a doctor in a hospital, she participated in research on blood studies—ie, hemophilia.

This was followed by two years at the Japanese Embassy, in Washington, D.C. Here, her working knowledge of Japanese was valuable in her position as Assistant to the Press Counselor.

In 1974-75, Jan returned once again to Japan—where she traveled and studied Japanese. Using her teaching certificate, she taught English at a foreign language school.

It was following this that Jan moved to Holly, (mailing address: Davisburg), where she secured another job teaching English—and helping the foreign-born—at the International Institute, in Flint.

Married life in the house on the lake in Holly—which reflects both Ron's love of nature and Jan's love of the Orient—expanded to include a six-to-seven-day-a-week "career" when Jan Monson Foon and Shirley Monson became the third owners of The Candle Factory in June, 1978.

Charles Goings' original line (mechanism) still remains and the present owners have kept some of his designs while creating and expanding some of their own. Candles of many hues and sizes carry intricate, handcrafted designs, such as, mushrooms, butterflies, and Christmas wreaths. One design has been named the "Meadowbrook Rose", in honor of Matilda Dodge, who loved roses.

November 28-December 2, 1979, the loft of the annex to Meadowbrook Hall will be decorated by The Candle Factory staff for the annual "Christmas-Walk". Jan and her mother alternate going to shows, while the other remains in Davisburg.

Jan's home decorating scheme could be classified "a mixture." She described an "earthy setting"—lots of browns, beiges and wood—interspersed with Indonesian prints, Japanese art, batik, and objects from her travels. The baby's room is, also, done in earth tones—"so he can grow up with it."

As to working and motherhood, "I'm finding it difficult to combine, but not impossible. I'm very content with my life right now."

Jan's future goals are: "Continue to work and bring Jonathan here. I would like to improve wholesale and retail sales at The Candle Factory."

Family traditions are important, too. She plans to continue current events conversation at the dinner table—including the baby when he is older. Her long-range plans are most evidenced by the statement, "My dream is for Jonathan to go to Japan. I have started a travel fund so he can be an exchange student."

Wolves Make Homecoming a Success, 19-12

by John Huttenlocher

The Clarkston Wolves varsity football team won their homecoming game by a score of 19-12 as they beat the Milford Redskins. Clarkston was determined to win and came out fighting with an early first quarter touchdown by quarterback Nick Lekas on a 25-yard run.

Milford scored on a 3-yard pass to make the score 6-6 at half-time. In the third quarter, Lekas was hurt and junior Brad Sheldon was at the helm. He connected with end Kevin Krause for a 25-yard scoring pass to set the score at 13-6.

That didn't turn Milford away as they came back with an 11-yard run to put the game at 13-12. Then, with a few minutes left, Clarkston running back Mark Hughes jumped over the goal line to give the Wolves the victory, 19-12.

The Wolves had 140 yards rushing and 56 yards passing.

On Friday the Wolves take on the Waterford Kettering Captains. Both the Wolves and the Captains are 2-2 in the GOAL standings. The game is at Waterford.

JV Continues to Impress, Wallops Lakers, 30-12

by John Huttenlocher

The Wolves junior varsity put on another impressive show, as they beat the West Bloomfield Lakers, 30-12. The game was played in the rain and even some snow, but that didn't stop the Wolves.

Early in the first quarter, Clarkston running back Tim Brennan ran in from the 1 yard line, giving Clarkston a 6-0 lead. Tight-end Tim Ellis made it 12-0 when he ran sports

65 yards on a short pass from quarterback Mike Stefanski in the second quarter.

Then West Bloomfield scored on a 1-yard run to make the score 12-6.

But it was Brennan again, in the third quarter as he ran for a 19-yard touchdown to put the score at 18-6. The next to score was running back Bruce Burrwitz on an 11-yard run into the end zone. Then came Steve Nichols, who scored on a 4-yard run. The Lakers scored the last touchdown on a 5-yard run.

Quarterback Mike Stefanski was 4-7 in passing as he threw for 123 yards. Tim Brennan rushed for 119 yards and Bruce Burrwitz ran for 115.

The Wolves next game is Thursday when they play the Milford Redskins, at Milford.

People's Opens in Clarkston

Wes Van Houten, foreground and Stan Stoy.

Owner of one of the area's largest furniture retailers is a Clarkston resident, Wes VanHouten. Thus when it was time for People's Furniture of Flint to make an expansion move, VanHouten looked to his home town first, liked what he saw, and proceeded to buy out Deron's Furniture on M-15, north of Clarkston.

His decision to expand in Clarkston was threefold. One, the area was close to Flint where the main office and warehouse is located, yet far enough away that Clarkston's market does not overlap Flint.

Secondly, VanHouten admitted being a resident of Clarkston--and consequently liking the area--had a great deal to do with the move. But more importantly he said was the fact that "you can't talk to somebody who doesn't think it is the hottest growth area around."

VanHouten's acquisition of People's is a story in itself. His entire educational background is in accounting and for eight years after graduating from college he worked for the well-known-accounting firm, Arthur Anderson.

Because of prior experience as a part-time employee of a furniture store while in school, VanHouten grew to enjoy the business. When he heard about People's in Flint, he worked his way in as a general manager with an option to buy. Soon after he bought the entire store (there are now two People's in Flint) and has owned it now for about four years.

VanHouten has hired veteran furniture store owner and salesperson Stan Stoy to manage the new Clarkston store. Stoy, in the furniture business for 31 years, was most recently with Wiggs of Bloomfield Hills.

Other salespersons at the Clarkston store will be former Deron employees and Clarkston residents Barry Fortin and Jack Hess.

People's has nearly 60 employees and over a million dollars of inventory. That's ten times the inventory that Deron's had.

VanHouten hopes to utilize the huge inventory--much of it is in Flint--through catalog sales and showcasing single pieces.

Extensive changes within the store have already taken place. The appliance department has doubled in size with General Electric, Tappan, Zenith, Magnavox and Kitchen Aid, the major brand names. What was once warehouse space is now a new bedding department.

Brand names carried by the store include Sealy, Stanley, Lane, Hibriter, Broylhill, International, Flair, Crestline, Lazy Boy, Karpen, Flex Steel and Thomasville.

VanHouten claims that People's really is a people oriented store.

"The key thing to us is people," he said. "Hey, they can go anywhere to buy furniture. That's why people are most important to us!"

Part of that people orientation is a strong emphasis on service. "We bend over backwards for the customer," said VanHouten.

In describing the store, VanHouten and Stoy agreed, People's offers "quality furniture at popular price points."
