Old Fashioned Christmas

Plans are well underway for the annual Old Fashioned Christmas at Battle Alley to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday November 23, 24 and 25. Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday and Saturday-- 12 noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

An added attraction this year will be the newly opened Holly Hotel which will feature holiday decorations made of various food items the highlight of which will be a 6-foot croquembouche on display in the lobby. The croquembouche, of French origin, is a Christmas tree built of food and pastries. The chefs at the hotel have been working on their croquembouche for three weeks as of this writing and hope to have it completed by mid-December.

The elves have been busy decorating the many specialty shops and contacting artisans to join in the festivities.

Among those giving Santa a hand by distributing, making and selling their wares will be a silversmith, leaded and stained glass artisans, hand-painted jewelry, soft sculpture, basket weaving, quilting, custom perfumes. Christmas wreaths and centerpieces, Christmas decorations, beaded jewelry, and candle making.

New Springfield Horse Club

A new 4-H horse and craft club is forming in the Springfield Township area. Youth between the ages of 9 and 18 who are interested in learning more about horses are invited to join. In addition to regular meetings, members will attend workshops and clinics, tour horse facilities, improve horsemanship skills, trail ride, exhibit at the Oakland County 4-H Youth Fair, and visit Michigan State University for special events. The leader for the new club is Laura Western, who may be reached by calling 625-5663. For additional information on 4-H in your area, contact Georgina Cunningham at 858-0892.

Boosters Get Concession Stand

The Clarkston High School Athletic Boosters are to finally get the concession stand they asked for two years ago as the school board approved plans to go ahead with the project.

Plans have been drawn up and put out for bids coming back with a $22,400 price tag. To help with the project, the Boosters have pledged $5,000 of their own. The board authorized school expenditures not to exceed $20,000. Actual construction will be done by the building trades class at the high school.

Board members were assured the small building, complete with electricity, running water, and restrooms, would fit into the overall play for the improvement of secondary athletic facilities as devised last year by Anderson-Lezniak. That plan came as a result of the original Boosters' request in the fall of 1977.

Special Meeting at Andersonville

A special meeting will be held at Andersonville Elementary School on Tuesday, December 11, at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the housing of that school's sixth graders at Clarkston Junior High School.

Superintendent of Schools Milford Mason, Administrative Assistant for elementary education William Neff, Director of Transporation William Dennis and Andersonville Principal Lynn Jervis will be on hand to discuss the situation as it is now and to discuss possible alternatives.

All Andersonville parents are urged to attend.

Eidams Celebrate 50th.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Eidam celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary Friday. November 16th with a party given in their honor at the home of their son Walter Eidam of Clarkston. The couple restated their wedding vows in a short ceremony officiated by Rev. Robert Walters.

Presently residing in New York, the senior Eidams will be moving to the Clarkston area this spring.

Springfield Library Sponsors Louis Kaminski Lecture

On November 28th at 2:00 the Springfield Township Library is sponsoring a Mini Art-Lecture by Artist Louis Kaminski from Detroit. Admission is free. Mr. Kaminski will demonstrate several techniques such as pencil and charcoal drawing, watercolor and oil painting.

Fire On Ice---David Comb, Ice Follies' lightning-fast daredevil skater, takes a breathtaking dive through the death machine created by his father 30 years ago. Comb is one of many world champion skaters featured in the 44th Edition of Shipstads and Johnson's Ice Follies, presented by Irvin Feld and Kenneth Feld of Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus.

COMEDY TREATS AND AMAZING FEATS IN THE 44TH EDITION OF ICE FOLLIES

The 44th Edition of Shipstads and Johnson Ice Follies features delightful comedy and novelty acts, daredevil skaters and lively production numbers that appeal to young and old alike. The ice spectacle, which began November 13 for 19 performances through Sunday, November 25, is presented by Irvin Feld and Kenneth Feld of Ringling Bros and Barnum and Bailey Circus.

Tickets for Ice Follies are available at Olympia Stadium Box Office, Olympia Ticket Service in Birmingham and all J.L. Hudsons.

WE'RE GLAD YOU ASKED!

With Lew Wint Funeral Director

> Lewis E. Wint Funeral Home Clarkston

HOW DOES ONE DEAL WITH A DECEASED'S BELONGINGS?

One of the most painful jobs the family of the deceased must face after the funeral, is the disposition of the deceased's personal possessions.

Hastily discarding possessions is not always the wise thing to do. Memorabilia can become valuable with time; not intrinsically, perhaps, but sentimentally.

Clothing, jewelry, books, a stamp collection, a camera, a pocket watch - are these items to be discarded? Or retained as keepsakes?

We've observed that many articles, like jewelry, or a watch, are not discarded; rather they are prized by members of the family as precious mementos. Nostalgia often takes over and a simple item, like a small pocket knife, becomes a son's pride and bittersweet pleasure.

Clothing, on the other hand, may find its way into the hands of the needy, by way of a favored charity; or, very often, many mourners take great pleasure in seeing a close relative regaled in a favorite suede jacket, a suit, a fur.

Massey Tapes to be Presented

The Massey Tapes entitled What You Are Now Is Where You Were When. This is a film study of generational differences, presented in an interesting fashion. It is a thought provoking presentation of those outside events that effect our relationships with people from different age groups. There is no charge and the public is invited. This will be held at Bailey Lake Elementary School on Pine Knob Road at 7:00 p.m. on November 29, 1979.

This is a P.T.A. program. Babysitting is available.

11-Pointer Shot in Springfield

--It might have been wiser for a few of those hundreds of thousands of deer hunters to stay home and hunt the local area. From Springfield are reports of a huge 11-point bagged on Friday and two days earlier an eight pointer was sighted at the busy Maybee-Sashabaw corner.

Pranksters Toss Pumpkins, Almost Cause Tragedy

by Carol Balzarini

The facts are that an unidentified person, or persons, dropped pumpkins from the Holcomb Road overpass of I-75 last week onto two unsuspecting truck drivers. The first one was able to avoid being hit but the second one an hour later was not so lucky. The missile crashed through the driver's windshield and ultimately put the man in the hospital for treatment of lacerations and glass

Aside from injuries and the wrecked cab, further serious problems were avoided. The driver was able to keep his truck under control and no chain reaction accident ensued.

But traffic was tied up as were Oakland County Sheriff's Deputies and the emergency medical team from the Independence Township Fire Department. The wrecked cab had to be towed away and another one brought in to take the trailer portion.

Deputies who parrol this area prefer to think the pumpkin-throwing incidents were done by kids as a prank with no concept of the potential harm they might cause. Maybe it was "only a pumpkin", something kids like to smash at this time of the year, but it can also be a lethal weapon under certain circumstances.

Science teachers can better explain the law of the speed of falling objects, but it doesn't take much to figure out that when a falling object encounters another one going 55 miles an hour, something's got to give. In this case, a windshield.

Kids throwing things off freeway overpasses is, unfortunately, not unusual. Not too many years ago, someone dropped a bowling ball from one in Detroit killing the passenger in the front seat. Maybe he didn't think a bowling ball could be lethal either.

Gorsline to Leave Commissioner Post

Dear Editor and Friends.

Because of your friendship and generous support, I am sharing two personal decisions with you prior to my formal announcement of them.

I have decided to leave political life at the end of my current term as Oakland County Commissioner on December 31, 1980. It is then my plan to pursue studies leading to ordination as a minister in the Protestant Episcopal Church.

There are three points about these decisions which I especially want to share with you.

First, my decision to pursue the vocation of a priest is based in large measure on my belief that I can accomplish more of my personal goals and my goals for our society in this manner than through continued political involvement.

Second, during the more than 13 months remaining in my term, I will continue to be an active representative for western Oakland County, involving myself deeply in the important issues of our day. I have many projects to complete and some new ones which I hope to tackle.

Third, it is necessary for me to reduce some commitments so that I may begin to seriously pursue certain studies. Therefore, I will not seek or accept a continuation of certain official leadership roles on the Board, including serving as chairperson of the Republican Caucus and the General Government Committee, after those appointments expire next

Judy and I deeply appreciate your support and friendship and it is our fervent hope that we may continue to share a special relationship with you. It has been the highest privilege to work with you for the good of our society and we look forward to continuing and strengthening that partnership in the years ahead.

May God bless us all as we seek to serve Him and His people.

Sincerely, Robert H. Gorsline

Public Notices Belong in The Reminder

To The Editor:

I regret it but my last letter to your paper was apparently syllepsis in its qualities that related to a slight veracious failure. I put the word they before the work are and it should have been, are they within the village. I apologize to everybody but the Geritol crowd within the Village.

Now with regard to other matters. Why is it, the Township does not use your paper for public notice? I am sure the local paper used, should be the one with the largest circulation and not one that is blessed by the school system and the village. Oh, I am sure than when the altruism is evaluated, we would find the local school system a heavy contributor to the economy of the local paper. Now your paper is delivered to just about every mailbox in Independence and there must be about nine thousand mailboxes in the township. If my memory serves me right, the local paper of the village had about three thousand circulation but I don't remember what year that was. Anyway you look at it, three to one figures are worthy of township's full consideration. Maybe one of the local government's big problems is, that not enough of Independence people get to see the nonces and they don't know what is happening until it is over with, Of course, if you went after the school system's publication, you would probably need to add fen pages of a juvenile section to create a fanfare for administrative achievement. It is doubtful if the Commandos of the school system would settle for less. Their operation is big, big and bigger, especially around the top escuage of

Did you ever stop to think, that if you had a hand as expensive as some of the top brass in the school system, your five fingers would be costing you somewhere beyond a quarter of a million dollars. As you know that should include housing, hired hands and other allowance and benefits. I am sure it is all needed to survive. That one individual out of the school effort, apparently has a need for a moonlight income. This I am sure he must need. I firmly believe that there is a desparate need for any and all Gratuties coming his way. I am quite positive up to a point that these gratuties would never-never give this fine gentleman cause or reason toward barratry.

The Energy Crisis: The Country's Still Over A Barrel, But There is a Lot We Can Do

Energy Saving

At home

- · Caulk windows, weather-strip doors Install storm win-
- dows and doors Shut off heating/AC to seldomused rooms
- Insulate attic, exterior walls, floors over unheated spaces, air
- ducts and water pipes

 Keep fireplace damper closed unless fire
- Lower thermostat setting on hot water
- · Use clock thermostat to turn down heating/AC when not needed
- Replace heater/AC filter each month · Let sunlight in for extra heat; shut it out
- when cooling · Use heavy appliances in early morning,
- late evening
- Turn off all lights when not needed
- Repair leaky faucets
 Use cold water when possible
- Run full loads in dishwasher, laundry Take showers instead of tub baths
- Insulate water heater
- Dress for the season warm clothes in winter, lightweight clothes in summer

On the road

- Eliminate unneces-
- sary trips Drive at moderate
- speeds, steady pace
- · Have car tuned up regularly
- Keep tires properly

- Adjust thermostat for maximum energy savings in each part of building, depending on use Install revolving
- doors or vestibules for less air loss · Insulate all outside walls and roof
- · Weather-strip outside doors; add springs
- to speed closing · Use fresh air ventilation, instead of air
- conditioning, when possible · Maintain equipment at peak operating efficiency-
- · Consider burning company's waste;
- recovering heat for use
- Stagger start-up time of equipment
 Lower ceiling light fixtures where possi- ble for more intense, direct light

 Use reflectors behind incandescent lamps to boost lighting
- · Use most energy-efficient light fixtures for each need
- · Put automatic light turnoff switches in closets, storage areas
- · Cut back on exterior sign and architectural illumination · Install sweep lights for security instead of
- illuminating whole area · Wash windows regularly for maximum
- · Use more energy-efficient vehicles, where possible

Listen to the Experts

Vance Packard is an internationally acclaimed author and philosopher. His best-selling books include The Hidden Persuaders, The Waste Makers and The People

Q. Why don't we put more emphasis on solar rather than fusion? As of today, it still takes as much energy to create the process of fusion as comes out of it.

A. I'd like to make two points. First of all, at Princeton last year, they did have a breakthrough--just a flash of a second-where they created more energy by the fusion process than was put into it. It was considered a major breakthrough.

The other point I would make is that the simple problem of catching enough sun to create power is so great that I haven't seen any projections that solar power could ever take over more than 20 to 25 percent of our energy needs, even into the 21st century.

Q. Do we get better conservation by increasing the density of people, and if so, why shouldn't we do so?

A. The most wasteful thing in this society is our sprawling suburbs. Everyone drives to the shopping centers, every family has to have two cars, and if you're really modern the kids have to have cars, whereas in New York City practically no one has a car. I was talking to an executive just the other day who said he always goes to work in the subway.

I am sure there is much less energy consumption per person for transportation in New York than there is in probably any city in the world. I think there will be pressure to restore the downtowns of our cities, because they are more efficient in terms of energy. It's ridiculous that to get our food staples we have shopping centers where 8,000 cars go every weeks, when 12 trucks could do the same thing. f you had a computerized system where you could telephone the warehouse what you want off a list of a hundred staples-this warehouse could have aisles, each run by a computer, and each aisle could have all one hundred staples--you could have your order in 90 seconds, and within 90 minutes it would be at your house. This is the potential of the computer, and it would be an enormous savings of energy.

Q. With the nuclear technology do we really have enough? Why hasn't the government chosen to develop every last possible bit of nuclear power and to put great weight upon both fusion and fission?

A. What you're dealing with now is a matter of administration policy. It is the policy of this administration to turn away from foreign oil to a greater 10 dependence on coal, and it is also the policy of this administration to develop nuclear sources very slowly and carefully. And who is to say at this point that we are

We have not turned our back on nuclear power. But at this point it is not our policy to ask for additional funds, other than for research for the fast breeder reactor, which would have to be a factor in the nuclear scenario which you are projecting.

Q. If we can get all from Alaska to the west coast, why can't we get it from the west coast to where the users are in the middle west?

A. We can, anytime the decision is made to build the same kind of pipeline, or to provide the necessary kinds of shipping. Again, this is a policy decision. There is nothing that actually impedes this except the decision to do it and the cost of doing it.

Congressman John D. Dingell is chairman of the Subcommittee on Energy and Power of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, and is a ranking members of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee. Congressman Dingell is in his 23rd consecutive year in the House of Representatives.

Q. What are we doing to face up to the problem of storing spent nuclear materials and nuclear waste?

A. It has been anticipated for a goodly period by the Congress that the administration would submit a plan to us for dealing with these. Unhappily, no such plan has come forward.

As you know, we have a current fight going on AFR (Away From Reactor Storage), in which we're trying to get the administration to submit to us the amount of money and time that is required. We are probably going to have to impose a similar requirement on the administration as regards the long-range storage plan, which probably would involve two things: a program for reprocessing to pull out the valuable parts and consideration of whether or not we want to go into breeders and the utilization of plutonium as a fuel source. There are signs that we are going to run out of more conventional nuclear material tacher soon, sometime around 2010 or 2020.

The Congress is not a good body for hammering out precise, specific administrative undertakings. We need to have the kind of technical input that only the administration can bring forward. I run a subcommittee with a fairly good-sized staff. We are able to analyze what the administration does. We have been able to cost out the administration's figures on oil decontrol rather better than has the administration.

But the drafting of a very comprehensive and complex plan is really an administrative function. It's not something that the Congress can do.

Q. What would you think of the Federal government becoming the purchaser of petroleum for the United

A. We have afforded in EPCA already the authority for the president to become the sole buyer by sealed contract of oil sold abroad. Not because we felt that he should use that power, or even because we were certain that he or the government have the capability of doing that, but because we felt this was a highly valuable potential bargaining tool.

I continue to maintain that view for two reasons. One, I am not satisfied just who the international oil companies represent. In my discussions with them they make no bones about the fact that they are not U.S. companies. They also make no bones about the fact that they are interested in their profit and loss statements and their duties to their stockholders.

I'm not sure just how they're making their money on their international oil trades, whether they're doing it on transportation, production or refining, or whether they are taking their oil in such a way as to multiply their profits when they get it abroad, thus participating actively in the jacking-up of oil prices.

In consequence, I would like to see this mechanism at least used as a lever to assure that this country would be able to do the things necessary to level prices down as best we might and second of all, in concert with other countries, to use it as a lever to encourage OPEC towards a more reasonable pricing structure, and perhaps as a market ordering mechanism.

A yes or no answer as to whether it should be used is beyond my capability today, but I think that something of this kind is a very useful tool that must be exploited by an adroit president.

One thesis was that this kind of mechanism would enable us to use government to deal with other governments. I must confess, though, that this government's failures lie not only in oil production, but also in the diplomatic area. I'm not prepared to tell you that we would do a great deal better than the international oil companies.

O. Do you think we will see a tripling of the use of coal in the next 20 years?

A. I'd say the odds are strongly against it. One, we don't have the transportation; second, I don't think we'll throw the capital into it; three, you don't have the market for the stuff and you've got environmental constraints in terms of radioactive materials that are released by burning coal. If we could double the burning of coal in twenty years, we would be doing splendidly

Q. Are you in favor of rationing?

A. I want to make this very clear. I am in favor of having the president's plan put in place as a standby proposal for rationing, the idea being that if we get more than a 15 percent shortfall in supply versus demand, this country will have to consider some economic tool to ensure fairness for all in the availability of energy.

Gas Saving Tips

COMBINE SHORT TRIPS

The worst mileage performance is registered on trips of 10 miles or less in a car that hasn't been driven for several hours. Combine errands to the bank. grovery or drugstore and patron neighborhood establishmer

ACCELERATE SMOOTHLY

Avoid jackrabbit starts, but get to cruising speeds as soon as traffic conditions allow More gas is used accelerating than cruising. Once you reach your optimum cruising speed, maintain a light foot on the accelerator.

WATCH YOUR SPEED

Maintain your car's most efficient speed as closely as law and safety allow. All cars have their own optimum cruising speed, based on design. For most cars this is between 40 and 50 miles per hour

KEEP YOUR DISTANCE

Tailgating, causing repeated acceleration and braking, wastes gas. Leave room to react between you and the cars around you. Anticipate traffic flow, red lights and stop signs

MINIMIZE RESISTANCE

Keep tires properly inflated Underinflated tires can reduce mileage by one mile per gallon or more and cause tread to wear faster. Close windows at highway speeds and use internal vents for air circulation. Avoid permanent roof racks

GET A CONSERVATION TUNE-UP

Two fouled plugs can cost 20 percent of your gas consumption. Have your mechanic regularly check plugs, points, thermostat, anti-pollution equipment. filters and wheel bearings and alignment Remember, check your oil and water regularly and keep a record of mileage performance

Clarkston Community Schools told board members at the November meeting contract talks had reached an impasse and outlined the situation from their point of Duane Lewis, principal of Clarkston Junior High, told the school board the main problem was one of 'attitude' and he requested an executive session to discuss "guidelines".

William Potvin, director of planning and evaluation, expressed concern with the process used to determine salaries and with the overall "atmosphere" of the negotiations. He and his colleagues felt they were being forced to become "adversaries" of the central administration.

Potvin equated power with fair treatment as far as "some employee groups" were concerned. Those who can threaten to, or do, withhold services get greater concessions from the school board than those who do not, he said. Administrators were forced to take whatever they could get.

In negotiations with "other employee groups", he continued, building administrators are made to feel a part of the administrative team, but that status seems to change when their own contract talks are underway. "We work with you," he told the board. "The other employee groups work for you."

Potvin also appeared unhappy with the "discretionary fund", or merit pay, voted by the board that night. This gives Superintendent Milford Mason the power to award an additional two percent in salaries, over and above the seven percent pay raise awarded in June, to the four central office administrators, Mel Vaara, Bill Neff, Bill Dennis and Conrad Bruce. Mason is to determine who receives the extra pay based on performance:

Robert Brumback, director of special services, told board members longevity and advanced degree pay had. not even been considered for his group during contract talks. Other school employees have these benefits now, but not his group, he said, many of whom have been with the district a long time.

George White, assistant principal of Sashabaw Junior High, continued the report reiterating their concern over the "compensation package process". He asked that issues of longevity and advanced degree pay be thoroughly discussed even if not ultimately approved.

White also told board members there was no "team concept" when the superintendent and the board were pitted against this group of administrators. He said they did not want the same relationship with the board as the "other employee groups"

The report of the building administrators and directors was accepted by the board and discussed later in executive session.

It is not uncommon for those involved in education to continue their own for both professional and financial rewards. Compensation for advanced degrees is also not uncommon in school districts.

Clarkston teachers, attaining a nine percent salary increase in September, have a number of pay steps in the schedule of bachelor's, master's and educational specialist degrees. They have additional longevity pay once the 15th and 20th years of continuous service in the district have been attained amounting to $800-$1,000

For the most part, administrative benefits parallel those of the teachers with one or two exceptions. All administrators must have a master's degree to begin with, but there are no salary compensations for either an educational specialist's degree or a PhD. Their salary schedule has only five steps as opposed to three times that for teachers; they have no longevity pay.

In these contract talks, Mason is the sole negotiator for the board following guidelines they have set down. He said those maximums have been reached in the talks and that the administrators want more than the board is willing to go". Chief spokesman for the administrators is Duane Lewis aided by Bob Brumback, Jack Hayden and Jan

Mason said contract talks were held in May and June with administrators preferring to wait for a settlement of a teachers' contract before settling theirs. Meetings were held in September and October but not November with no others scheduled.

In answer to one question, Mason said the latest settlement for Clarkston administrators in the past was

In answer to another, he said Clarkston administrators had never withheld services and that the practice was not common for administrators in any school district.

Committee to Look at Student Code of Conduct

Following a motion by Clarkston School Board member Carolyn Place, a committee will be set up to look at the sudent code of conduct not so much from the standpoint of what disciplinary measures are meted out but rather how they are.

Questions concerning the code were first brought out at the October meeting by Edward Klein whose son had encountered some problems at the high school.

Following that meeting, Klein sent a letter to board members detailing his concerns about his son's suspensions plus a number of other involving students in their immediate neighborhood. Klein felt the number of suspensions was unusually high. He also questioned several situations where counselors allegedly advised students to quit school.

Klein siad he was interested in having the student code followed more closely and in having counseling of some sort to deal with students' problems. Suspensions, he said, were not the answer for working parents, detentions were a better answer.

Clarkston High School Principal Dom Mauti was somewhat defensive about Klein's concerns and said it was a matter of "misinformation". School administrators do follow the code of conduct, he said.

He said there were two sides to every story but that disciplinary problems such as the ones Klein's son was having were difficult to discuss in an open meeting.

Mauti did not feel detention was the answer because he said he would need a portable classroom to house all of the students to be detained; there was no space available in the school.

Mrs. Place suggested there was a larger problem than that of space, it was a philosophical one. She termed it "negative reinforcement of truancy...if you don't come to school, you can't come to school."

It was then she proposed a committee to address suspension policies on the secondary level. She cited a Florida program called PASS, or Practical Alternatives to Student Suspension, with parent involvement.

Disciplinary procedures have been of particular interest to Mrs. Place who also told fellow board members many more working mothers necessitated a closer look at the way they handled the schools.

Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara told board members the high school averaged some 10 suspensions a day primarily for smoking and truancy. These same two problems caused suspensions at the junior highs also Board secretary Mary Jane Chaustowich said she had no personal knowledge of the situation and thought the board needed more information.

Trustee Fernando Sanchez feared a committee looking into the code would result in a weakening of it. He felt suspensions were preferable to "hand slapping".

Vice President Janet Thomas said too many similar stories seemed to be repeated and she herself would like more information.

Board members were reminded the student code of conduct was available to all although not necessarily read by all. It was felt a "rather stringent" code was expected by the public. The administration was not aware of any confusion over the code or its procedures.

Superintendent Milford Mason said later the committee would look at the process of dealing with the problems of smoking and truancy primarily and not with the code of conduct itself.

The code in its present form came into being in the early 70s when the Michigan Department of Education "strongly requested" a revised student code of conduct with the right of due process included for both parents and students.

It was reviewed by school attorneys and found to be consistent with the state school code and with the laws of the state. "It has served us extremely well." Mason said. "It's solid."

Since it is against the law for anyone under 18 to smoke, smoking is not allowed on school property either. Mason said the high school had a smoking room at one time for students but its was "so badly abused" it was done away with.

Truancy is the other problem the committee will attempt to deal with. Mason said the school's philosophy was basically that if the student won't attend, he can't learn.

But it's also difficult, he said, to deal with a home situation where a parent calls in sick when he just doesn't want to go to work. That is translated into student terms as skipping school.

Tests Indicate Contamination Levels Not High in Springfield

According to the Oakland County Health Department tests taken on water, milk, meat and cider in the area of the Shindler Road and DeMode Road contaminated dumpsites have proved residents have little to worry about.

Tests of 186 water wells in late September were analyzed for chromium, lead, cadmium, cyanogen, phenol, PCE, TCE, diethylhexyl, phthalate and PCB. Final test results were received from an Ann Arbor laboratory in late October.

Contamination was found at low levels in 21 wells. But thirteen of the 21 were at concentrations less than the previous detection limit of 1.0 parts per billion (PPB).

No official criteria has been established for PCE and TCE in drinking water. However the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has recommended an interim drinking water limit of 10 ppb of TCE and a 2 ppb maximum limit for PCE.

No wells in the lastest survey exceeded the EPA 10 ppb interim drinking water limit for TCE. Three wells exceeded the EPA proposed PCE limit of 2.0 ppb, with readings of 2.5, 2.6 and 11.0 ppb. A total of 8 wells had either PCE and/or TCE exceeding 1 ppb.

The original 13 households who had previously been placed on bottled water were advised to continue its use even though only five showed contamination on this round.

Six residents with well samples showing greater than 1 ppb of either PCE or TCE were advised to use bottled water.

There are now 19 households who have been advised to use bottle water.

The continued use of bottled water is an added precaution measure until further definition of the problem can be made, said a spokesperson for the County Health Department.

No contamination was detected in samples of milk, meat and cider taken in the general vicinity of Springfield and Rose Townships: Samples, were collected and analyzed for TCE, PCE, Phenol, PCB, PBB, lead, cadmium and chronium.

Legislature Expected to Appropriate Cleanup Funds

State Representative Claude A. Trim (D-Davisburg) has reported that he is optimistic that the Legislature will approve funds for toxic waste cleanup operations in Oakland County.

Trim last month introduced a bill to appropriate state funds to be used for cleanup work ordered by the Michigan Toxic Substance Control Commission in Springfield and Rose Townships.

However, while the bill was under consideration by the House Appropriations Committee, the Senate moved on its own bill, which was amended to include funds for the Oakland County toxic waste cleanup project. That bill would appropriate $1,222,000 for the cleanup. An additional $50,000 was appropriated to repay the Toxic Substance Control Commission's Emergency fund.

"The decision has been made to work with the Senate bill," Trim said. "That bill is further advanced and we can move it quicker. Lam not concerned as to whether the final product is my bill or the Senate bill. What I am concerned about is getting these needed funds to Oakland County as soon as possible."

Trim said he would like to see more money appropriated for the project, but that he feels that the most realistic approach is to seek the amount appropriated in the Senate bill.

The problems involved liquid industrial waste which contains highly toxic substances which could be hazardous to human health and the environment.

Why Not Ask Carolyn?

Dear Carolyn,

I have been married for 10 years and have always done everything with my husband. Whenever we take a vacation, we take it together. I worked for awhile, but now I stay home with our 5 year old son. We have close friends who moved north a few months ago. We have visited back and forth as families. Of the four of us, my girlfriend and I are the closest. She would like my son and me to come visit for a few days. I'd really like to go, but I'm afraid to ask my husband. I've never gone off for a few days without him. Besides that, I think he's a little jealous of our friendship. Should I refuse her invitation or should I go? If I decide to go, what should I tell my husband?

Very married

Dear Very,

Don't make a prison out of your marriage that builds resentment. Some time away, giving each of you space to breathe, can be healthy for a relationship.

Traditionally men have had their hunting and fishing trips, why should you and your son be forbidden from time away?

Do ask yourself, though, why do you feel your husband is jealous of your friendship. Are you closer to her than to him? Why is he so possessive of your time?

If you decide to go, I would simply explain to him: (a) you need to get away for a couple days, (b) a change of scenery would do you good, (c) it is not a reflection on the marriage or him.

> Thoughtfully, Carolyn

Dear Carolyn,

I am a single parent and I have two children, both in school. During the week I'm okay because I'm so busy working and keeping up with the kids and their activities. My problem comes on weekends when the children are with their father. I dread going home, the house is so quiet and I get so lonely. I hate going out to eat or to a show by myselt. Do other single parents feel so lonely? Everyone I know is married, how do I meet other single people? Lonely

Dear Lonely,

Loneliness is a universal emotion. Nearly everyone experiences loneliness at some time in their life. Loneliness can also be experienced at fleeting moments throughout one's day.

After having been married, the aloneness caused by death or divorce can be especially difficult. You are not alone. Many single parents complain of the same problem.

There are some specific things I recommend. A hobby or special interest that you can become engrossed in will help pass idle time and add productivity to your life. Parents Without Partners is a group where you can meet other single parents. Not only do they have adult activities, but they also plan family activities for parent and children. There are local churches who sponsor singles groups.

The turning point in your life will come when you choose to do something about your loneliness, when you choose to move out of the same environs of your home to venture forth and involve yourself with life.

A Tragic Drama That Šhouldn't be Missed --"Of Mice and Men"

by Carol Balzarini

John Steinbeck's major theatrical work "Of Mice and Men" opened November 8 at Meadow Brook Theatre for a three and a half week run.

The theme of frustration and despair in northern California during the Great Depression is not a cheerful one to be sure, but despite that the play is a rewarding experience. The evening gets off to an effective start with the plaintive music of Woody Guthrie in the background.

Scene one finds George (Michael Medeiros) and Lenny (David Graf) on a river bank enroute to still another job as migrant workers.

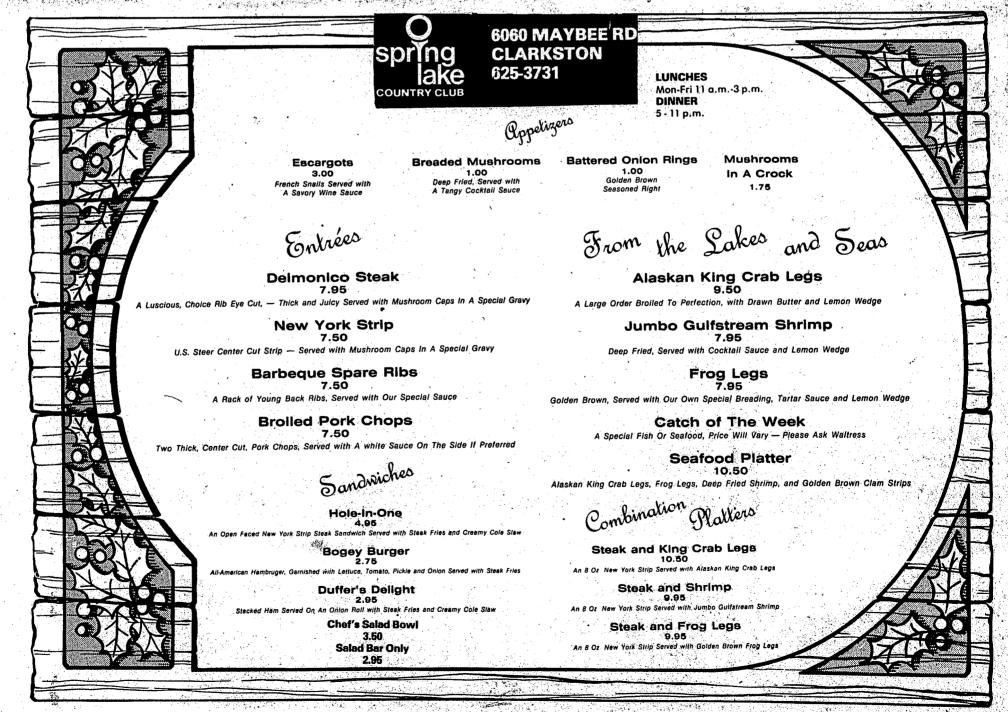

Lenny may seem like the stereotyped big, dumb oaf who doesn't know his own strength but in reality was created by Steinbeck in the 1930s and may have been the prototype for such characters to follow. He is preoccupied with petting a dead mouse whose head he had snapped when it tried to bite him.

George, angered by Lenny's preoccupation, recounts the story of why they left their last job in such a hurry, the result of Lenny's preoccupation with soft things he likes to touch. He seems to be resigned to his role as Lenny's keeper, however.

Other characters contributing to the overall theme of despair and frustration include an old man named Candy with a stump where his hand used to be and his equally old dog, neither of whom seems to be of much use anymore. Add to that the black man Crooks who is not allowed to share the bunkhouse with the rest of the hands assigned instead to a shed off the barn.

Trouble can be spotted immediately in the characters of Curley (Eric Uhler) best described as Mr. Macho, a little guy with a big chip on his shoulder, and his newly-acquired wife and a roving eye played by Gail Bryson.

Lenny's attraction to soft things progresses from mice to new-born puppies to Curley's wife with the same tragic results as the creatures all ultimately panic. The scene between the two is truly pathetic as each carries on a separate conversation all the while they are together about their dreams for a future that will never

The final scene with George and Lenny back on the river bank pursued by an enraged Curley and the rest of the hands is moving. George realizes he is truly Lenny's keeper and must take care of him no matter what the consequences may be. Their dreams of their own little farm are lost forever.

Tragic drama, to be sure, but not to be missed at Meadow Brook.

Posch Wow's em at Meridian

by Marilyn Bridgeman

Bob Posch, locally famous comic and singer, is now appearing at the Meridian Restaurant. The Meridian is located off M-59 at the Pontiac/Oakland Airport.

The Meridian, formerly the Voyager, is owned by Jimmy Glavas. Posch says he will be there indefinitely, and Glavas and the responsive audience seems to be pleased.

been an entertainer for 22 years. He played many clubs and restaurants in Oakland and Wayne Counties.

Bob's specialty is good country music and great comedy. Posch is accompanied by John Cionca on bass guitar and banjo and 71 year old Al Arsenault on electric fiddle, slide whistle and anything else that makes music.

The trio plays bluegrass to get the audience clapping

Between songs and comedy and just adlibbing, Posch keeps a good rapport with his audience.

Posch and company performs on Friday and Saturday nights -- 2 shows per night starting at 9:30. Go early for dinner. The Meridian has a great menu, reasonably priced. Reservations are needed for the weekends.

The Meridian also offers businessman's lunch, 5 daily specials, friendly atmosphere and good service. Plus the view at the airport is entertaining in itself. You can watch planes and jets taking off through the big windows in the dining room.

Posch speaks highly of the Meridian. "This is probably one of my best times. Jimmy is really a great guy.'

No Shortage of Water at Harbortowne

Harbortowne Village: A Lake, A Park And a Distinguished Resident

by Carol Balzarini

Harbortowne Village is a 45-lot development located on Davisburg Road in Springfield Township. It takes its name from the fact that it borders a harbor-shaped portion of Susin Lake.

As soon as more homes are completed on the west end of the development, the park area which edges on both the lake and an outlet of the Clinton River will become a real park with a beach and picnic area where now only rough grading exists. It will be deeded over to a homeowners association once it is formed.

Developers Robert and Del Lohff have created the 15,000 square foot lots along a series of cul-de-sacs with one main boulevard entrance. All of the lake lots have been sold except for two brothers are keeping. A number of homes have been built and some are under construction including that of State Senator Kerry Kammer and his family.

Lohff said a great deal of filling and grading was required to make the extremely hilly area useful. Many of the original contours remain, however, as well as many of the trees. When the contouring was being done, the interior lots were left higher than the lakefront lots so others would have a view of the lake, too.

Lohff said also that an odd-shaped parcel at the far end of the subdivision was cut into smaller pieces and sold to adjacent homeowners giving them lake access as

When completed, sidewalks will run along one side of each road all through the development. The homes have wells and septics and buried electrical, telephone and gas lines. An architectural committee approves a proposed home and certain size and other restrictions must be observed.

Once the park is completed and turned over to the homeowners' association, Lohff said, it will be responsible for its maintenance. The land can't be deeded over, however, until about three quarters of the Sales for Harbortowne Village are handled by Evans Real Estate. A number of builders are at work with a resulting variety in house styles with several spec houses for prospective buyers to look at.

Lohff admitted selling and building rates have slowed down somewhat since late summer. He attributed that to the rising interest rates, but he also said the period from early summer of 1978 until late summer of this year was one of unusually high activity. He expects that activity to increase again next spring due to it being an election

Harry and Marg Kirk lead a busy life. Harry a partner in the insurance firm Wells, McCann and Kirk works with insurance six days a week, is chairman of the Springfield Township Zoning Board of Appeals, and past treasurer of Davisburg Rotary.

His wife Marg maintains her husband's books, is president of the Springfield Township Historical Society and president of the Davisburg Rotary Anns.

When not catering to their civic and work duties, the Kirks are remodeling a 120 year old farmhouse on Big Lake Road. The Kirks have lived in Springfield Township for six years.

But despite all the emphasis Kirk places on civic activities, it's his insurance customers that rate most of his attention.

Kirk emphasizes personal service in his business. "If you call here you can talk right to me." He claimed that he is familiar with the policies of all his customers.

Although he actively solicits new customers, if he can find a better deal for them elsewhere, Kirk won't hesitate to lead them in that direction.

"If I take care of people, I don't have to worry about making a particular sale," he added. Kirk depends a lot on referrals, and figures being honest and straight forward is the best way to get more business.

Kirk can be found in his Davisburg office, located in the Walls Real Estate building, on Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. He also spends three days at the firm's home office in Southfield. The agency has been in business since 1882.

The agency is general in nature, carrying auto, home, boats, life, commercial, mutual funds, securities and many other lines of insurance.

Kirk is an independent agent offering several carriers including Travelers, Hartford, TransAmerica and Great American. Being independent, said Kirk, gives him an opportunity to better fit the needs of his customers with the proper carriers.

His particular specialities, said Kirk, are financial planning and commercial lines. Kirk just completed comprehensive training that earned him the designation of certified insurance counselor. The training was sponsored by the Professional Insurance Agents (PIA) and there are only about thirty agents in the whole state who have earned this designation.

Kirk has been an agent for seven years--the first two years with Travelers. He is a graduate of Wayne State University. He plans to soon be designated a Licensed Insurance Counselor, upon completion of more study.

About his Davisburg office Kirk said, "It's a very good growing community...a very good office." Helping out as secretaries in the office are Mary Watson and Diana Walls.
