TELL A FRIEND

Tell A Friend...A gentleman in the parking lot helped me to lift my groceries into my car. He said he was a supervisor with Food Town Markets and asked me if everything in the store was satisfactory. He also asked if I had found all of the items that I had on my shopping list, and if I had been treated with courtesy by all the store personnel...I liked that and I'm Telling A Friend.

Guest Opinion:

Gas Tax Not Solution to Inflation

Dear Mr. Wilcox,

I have just read your letter to the President in the February 28th Reminder. Let me state that I too am very concerned about inflation and our dependence on foreign oil. But after reading the solution that you propose there are some questions I would like to ask you. First I would like to say that I am a tradesman. For me to make a living and support my family I must go where the work is. Sometimes traveling 40-45 miles one way. Have you considered the effect on the many people in this same situation? The majority of us cannot car pool as can factory and office workers. Also many of us must carry the tools of our trades in our vehicles. As yet there are not very many American-built pick-ups or vans that get 30 MPG. I believe in buying American. How about you? Many tradesmen are already working short weeks (less than 40 hours) due to lack of construction. If you raised the price of gasoline by taxation along with the regular increases we have been having, many people would find it better off on unemployment. This would add thousands of more people to the already overcrowded unemployment lines, therefore putting a greater burden on the working taxpayer, wouldn't you agree?

How many people do you think can afford to go out and purchase a new vehicle that gets 30 MPG? With gas at $2.00 per gallon there will be no market for their old cars. So how much do you think people will receive in trade? Maybe if we're lucky we may get scrap value. So with no trade-in allowance, increased price of the new vehicle and the new ceiling on auto loan interest rates "Ye old John Q citizen gets it again" right? And if we get lucky and can swing the minimum down payment on a new automobile, there are still the payments each month. There are many people who are finding it hard to pay their heating bills, Edison, telephone, taxes (income, property, sales, etc.) and let's not forget the frills such as grocery and clothing bills. So let's tax the one thing that all the others depend upon, transportation. The poor and middle class would be the hardest hit by your proposal. Your idea is not original, many of our tax supported politicians have come up with the same solutions. A solution that would not deal fairly with the problem. I am not afraid of sacrifice or opposed to it. But I think sacrifice should be shared by all those who will eventually benefit from it.

I notice Mr. Wilcox that you refer to the United States oil needs as Mr. Carter's oil needs. I take exception to this opinion. Whatever Mr. Carter's politics and his rating as President may be, the oil needs are not Mr. Carter's alone. These oil needs are the responsibility of all Americans. I can except that responsibility can you?

I'm sure you are wondering if I have a solution to the economic and energy problems of our country. No sir I do not! And I'm not saying your solution is wrong either. What I'm trying to say is there are many other things to consider when coming up with a solution such as yours. Our country, in my opinion, is not economically or geographically the same as Europe.

Mr. Lee Iococca of the Chrysler Corporation had an idea that may be worth consideration. He proposed a one year gas tax to be returned to the people in a $1500.00 tax exemption for buying an American made automobile. Therefore helping reduce consumption and stimulate auto sales and the economy. By having a one year tax we could observe the results and if favorable, renew it.

This is my opinion.

Thank you,
Russell Walker

The Hockey Murder: A Close Look at the Trial

by Carol Balzarini

The trial of Kyle Johnson and Jeffrey Coyle began March 13 in Oakland County Circuit Court six months after they were arrested and charged with the Labor Day weekend murder of Monica Hockey.

In September following their arrest they were arraigned in 52nd District Court, a preliminary examination was held before Judge Gerald McNally, and they were bound over to Circuit Court on an open charge of murder.

In October they were arraigned in the higher court and returned to the county jail to await trial. At that time it was anticipated by County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson the trial would get underway some time in December or January. It was delayed until March 13.

In the intervening months, the case went through the "discovery" phase of the judicial process, according to defense attorneys. Court-appointed attorneys L. Robert Sterling and Howard Arnkoff were given the opportunity to look at all of the prosecutor's evidence as he assembled it. There are no courtroom surprises these days.

During that time the defendants were also given the opportunity to seek court-appointed medical assistance frequently used to determine if insanity is a possible plea. Apparently it was not in this case.

Two days prior to the start of the trial, jury selection began. Two juries were empaneled because some of the evidence to be presented would concern one defendant and not the other. This is not the first time two juries have sat at one trial.

When the trial began before Judge Farrell Roberts, Assistant Prosecutor Edward Sosnick made his opening statements to the Johnson jury. He told them he intended to prove through witnesses Kyle Johnson murdered 20-year old Monica Hockey in a "brutal, unfeeling and premeditated" manner. He outlined the events of that Labor Day weekend and told them what to expect from the various witnesses.

The Johnson jury was excused and the Coyle jury brought in. Moments passed, then the Johnson jury returned. Through a mixup, two of the Coyle jurors had sat in on Sosnick's opening statements meant for the Johnson jury alone. They were excused from duty on this trial.

The missing Johnson juror was brought in and Sosnick repeated his opening statements for her alone.

The Coyle jury reassembled, now with no alternate because of the mixup, and Sosnick went through his opening statements for the third time that morning.

When defendants Johnson and Coyle were in the courtroom, security was exceptionally tight with deputies guarding both the two men and the doors. Security was due to an altercation several days before when the pair apparently attacked another prisoner in the jail trying to establish, he claimed, possible insanity.

With delays, recesses, and other pauses in the proceedings, it's virtually impossible to cover a trial without covering the spectators as well. They can be as interesting, if not more so, than the trial itself.

Aside from the friends and relatives of the defendants, there were three middle-aged women one of whom was knitting, all of whom were chatting. One said her husband would be glad to know she had had such a nice day. Another said she really ought to be home stuffing cream puffs. Once they settled on a nice place to have lunch, they left when court recessed for lunch.

An elderly black man making notes on a scrap of paper said sitting in court was preferable to hanging around bars and pool halls and not nearly as lonely as staying home.

Also present were several law students, a journalism student working on an assignment, some apparent county employees and a few other people who were just plain curious.

Judge Roberts quickly ordered a delegation of high school students out of the courtroom and instructed deputies to not allow a disturbance of that kind again.

The remainder of the morning was devoted to having photographs admitted as evidence, Judge Roberts allowing black-and-whites but not colored. Defense attorneys objected to the latter as "inflammatory" and "more prejudicial than probatory."

Thursday afternoon and Friday Sosnick laid the groundwork for his case calling Dr. James Sillery, pathologist and chief medical examiner for Oakland County, Officer Richard Sesh of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department crime lab, and Charlotte Day of the Michigan State Police crime lab all presenting technical evidence.

So often courtroom proceedings are referred to as "drama", but in reality there is a theatrical quality about them. The jury is the audience, the judge is the director, and the attorneys, defendants and witnesses are the actors.

Sosnick frequently checked his notes apparently to make sure nothing was left out, no step omitted, as he pieced his case together, much as an actor would refer to his script as the drama progressed.

The boxes containing items to be entered into the case, as evidence could be likened to the various props needed during the course of a play. Detective Sergeant Heiligenthal make sure Sosnick had all of the items he needed in the proper order for the proper witness as the trial went on. Ultimately there was a total of 70 items.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hockey, the victim's parents, Dirk Feneley, former Independence Township policeman, Deputy Lawrence Liggett of the OCSO, and Stanley Golombeski all testified to the events of the weekend in question. Golombeski is the 70-year old Independence Township man who discovered Monica Hockey's body while bicycling near Clintonville and Maybee Roads.

Four witnesses, including one defendant's own sister Diane Johnson, testified Monday and Tuesday implicating the pair in the murder. One key witness told the court Coyle had told him they were thinking of "doing" mass murders saying there was "nothing like it", and making reference to Charles Manson.

Tuesday also saw the defense make two unsuccessful attempts to have a mistrial declared by Judge Roberts, one on the grounds that a witness said he and the defendants had all talked about "doing time", the second because a juror had sent a note to the judge asking a question. In trials of this type no mention is allowed of the past record of the accused so as not to prejudice the jury.

The trial resumed Thursday, Wednesday being motion day in Circuit Court, with the testimony of Rex Egress, owner of Rex's Union 76 station in Clarkston. Egress had towed Monica Hockey's car to his station after it was discovered by a state trooper in the area known as the Double D Ranch. He was followed by Detective Sergeants Heiligenthal and Davis. The People versus Coyle rested at that point.

Bulletin

As We Were Going to Press:

Kyle Glen Johnson, 19, of Independence Township, was convicted of murdering Monica Hockey. The first-degree murder conviction carries a mandatory life sentence. Jeffrey Allan Coyle, 19, of Lake Orion, was also charged in the murder, but his jury was excused for the weekend before reaching a verdict.

Juries went out, then defendants, the lawyers and the judge leaving the rest to wonder what was up. When all returned except the jury, it was learned that Johnson wished to testify in Coyle's behalf.

He was warned that he would be cross-examined, that his testimony could even be used against him later and that he had the right to remain silent. The defense attorneys and the judge explained everything to him very carefully before he took the witness stand, related to the court the events of Labor Day weekend from his point of view and said that Coyle had nothing whatsoever to do with the murder of Monica Hockey.

Sosnick was visibly annoyed with the unexpected turn of events. Although the defense is entitled to the prosecutor's evidence and list of witnesses during the discovery phase of the case, the reverse is not true for the prosecution.

He became somewhat sarcastic with Johnson during cross-examination questioning him about lying and about certain discrepancies in his story. He seemed annoyed about Johnson's calm, matter-of-fact recitation of the crime itself.

Later that day, Coyle was called to the witness stand to give his version of that weekend. Using terms like "recall" instead of "remember", "high intoxicated", "instead of drunk", and "vehicle" instead of "car" made the 19-year old sound as though he might have been coached. He said Monica Hockey had been drinking a lot and had taken drugs contrary to expert testimony and said he never struck her.

A rebuttal witness told the jury once again that Johnson had said, "Want to know what we did last night...we killed Monica." He also said Coyle told him he had punched her and showed his red swollen knuckles.

Diane Johnson testified her brother had told her during a jail visit to say that Coyle had not been there and that he was trying to get him off. She echoed previous testimony about the statements implicating both, not one, in the murder.

The prosecution rested its case to go to the Coyle jury Friday morning and the Johnson jury Friday afternoon. As of press time, the fates of Johnson and Coyle were still in their hands.

Good Ol' Capitalism...If Only We Practiced It

To The Editor:

The other day while prowling the business corridors of the local area, I was shown the following material of government description. Never was anything written, that was so close to the facts of life. I can't name the individual that gave the material to me, I wouldn't dare. The Terrorist Students might seize his business or local Socialists or Communists would picket his business. Some of the village terrorists might bomb his place and seize him as a hostage. Of course Carter would negotiate, although it is doubtful if he would negotiate more than one term in office. The question is, would Carter send food packages to the hostage or hostages. I am sure the hostages could eat the peanut butter sandwiches, but the way Carter slices his Bologna, yuk, who could eat one of them. Well here is the material as was given to me.

Socialism: You have two cows; and you must give one of them to your neighbor.

Communism: You have two cows; the government takes both and gives you the milk.

Facism: You have two cows; the government takes both and sells you the milk.

Naziism: You have two cows; the government takes both and shoots you.

New Dealism: You have two cows; the government takes both, shoots one, milks the other and throws the milk away.

Great Society: You have two cows; the government takes both, sells them to a Communist country, then buys the milk back and taxes you, so they can give the milk to someone that won't work.

Capitalism: You have two cows; you sell one and buy a Bull.

Now Mister Editor, I don't believe that last system will work. The Bureaucrats tax the people so much for shooting the Bull, we would never get enough tax dollars together to get rid of the Bull. Nobody wants to get stuck with Capitalism, they know that over half our population might have to go to work for living.

Your Discouraged Friend,
Lucky

Letter to the Editor:

Ten mills for fire protection for Clarkston and Independence Township!!! I have never seen the master plan for fire protection but I think that it is time we all had a look at that document. A special assessment district for fire purposes would authorize the board to spend up to ten mills. That is over two million dollars a year! The thought frightens me.

Our present township board has, in my opinion, been very responsible in their fiscal operations. Why the big change now? They know that good fiscal practice dictates that they must put monies where they are most needed. They also know that earmarked monies of ten times are used when many other more urgent needs go unmet. "The monies are there-let's spend it."

Frankly, I didn't expect this kind of a proposal in an election year.

Russell J. Buller

The Reminder:

Should The Oakland County Parks And Recreation Commission Purchase Pine Knob?

1. We are going into a recession which will not leave much extra money for that type of thing.

2. It promotes music groups (rock) in the theater that is not wholesome to the future of our young people. (I am against those groups.) Rock groups are the money makers and without them Pine Knob can not make a profit.

3. Our taxes are high enough without having to pay for our county officials to have a playground for them on our tax money.

4. The mafia is just trying to get out from under a losing proposition. They know what will make money and they are trying to get out, so what makes our public officials think they can make money without the influence that the mafia has behind them?

5. At the present time the property has a tax base which would be lost if it was purchased by the government. Therefore raising our taxes again.

6. The government has enough trouble taking care of itself without going into a private business. And the business that it is contemplating is seasonal which makes it even more risky.

Why let Locricchio and his backers (the mafia) play us all for fools as taxpayers?

650 Camp Fire Girls Attend Sleep Mall

Camp Fire - North Oakland Council repeated its successful Sleep Mall for the 3rd time at the Winchester Mall in Rochester, Saturday, March 22.

There were approximately 650 youth and adults for 8 surrounding communities who enjoyed the gigantic, all-night Slumber Party. Some of the fun-filled activities of the evening included entertainment by Magician, Jerry Clark, of Oxford, Special Guest, "Sir Graves Ghastly," and Disco Dancer, Pat Glynn of Step Sisters Dance Studio. An ice-cream eating contest, and food specials, courtesy of Mall merchants, kept tummies warm all night long. Door prizes, talent shows, movies, and a unique "Memory Booth" added to the excitement.

Camp Fire, founded in 1910, celebrated its 70th Birthday nationally. The Sleep Mall wrapped up North Oakland Council's own observance of Camp Fire Birthday week. It also kicks off the Council's Spring Candy Sale which runs March 22nd thru April 16th.

The proceeds from the sale support Camp Fire Programs in Pontiac, West Bloomfield, Avondale, Rochester, Lake Orion, Oxford, Waterford, and Clarkston, as well as year around activities at the Council's own camp "Camp Oweki," which is located in Clarkston.

Holly High Band Earns Top Rating

The Holly High School Symphonic Band proved that it is one of the best bands in the area on Saturday, March 15, as it scored an overall I (one) Division rating at the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association's (M.S.B.O.A.) District 3 Festival at Flint Southwestern High School. The Linden, Fenton, and Lake Fenton Bands all participated at the second festival sight, which was Fenton High School.

As determined by M.S.B.O.A., a I Division represents an excellent level of performance, a II (two) Division represents a good performance, but not worthy of the highest mark, a III (three) Division rating represents a fair performance, a IV (four) Division means that the band displayed a poor performance, and a V (five) Division rating represents an unsatisfactory performance.

In the competition, each band first performs three selections-one march, a required piece, chosen from a list determined by M.S.B.O.A., and a selection of the band director's choice. Then each band must perform sight-reading music-music that the students have never seen to test for skill and ability in learning new music.

This year's selections, performed by the Holly High School Symphonic Band, include "Castle Gap, March," "A Festival Prelude," "La Fiesta Mexicana-Mass and Aztec Dance."

The Holly High School Band, under new leadership of William Deal, is now eligible to perform at the State-level Band Festival, on April 26, as is any band which first receives a Division I at District Band Competition. This will be Holly High School's first appearance at the State Festival.

Look at the Plants, But Please Don't Eat

Little children are adventuresome. Just about anything they see is liable to be tested or eaten unless supervision is close. Parents spend a good part of their time instructing youngsters in the lesson: "Look, but don't eat." The lesson applies to so much around a home—medicines, cleaners, cosmetics, pesticides, living plants, and a long additional list.

Where living plants are concerned, the American Association of Nurserymen has compiled some statistics which should be reassuring to concerned parents. The data shows that, while the "look, but don't eat" rule must be emphasized, the danger to children from cultivated plants in and around the home is, at most, minimal.

The AAN's information comes from the National Clearinghouse for Poison Control Centers, the federal office which compiles reports from the some 500 Poison Control centers throughout the nation. The most recent data from the Clearinghouse to a hospital—for examination in the out-patient or emergency room or for admittance as patients. During the last year reported, 8% of all cases of "ingestion" were hospitalized.

The last category reported by the National Clearinghouse for Poison Control Centers is fatalities. Each year some people die from ingesting a toxic substance. There were 100 poison deaths reported in 1976, the last year of record.

None of these resulted from the ingestion of living plants.

Children under age five accounted for 61% of all ingestions reported through the National Clearinghouse, but accounted for only 22% of the symptoms, and 20% of hospital visits resulting from suspected ingestion of poisonous substances.

Where the "plants" category is concerned, among children under five years of age slightly under 5% of ingestions were accompanied by symptoms; 4% required a hospital visit; no fatalities occurred.

This indoor spa is big enough for a crowd, and provides year round fun for the children of the family. According to the Spa and Tub Association, such spas can be custom-designed in any size or shape, and constructed of pneumatically applied concrete. Pre-formed fiberglass spas are also available in a wide variety of sizes and shapes.

This table illustrates the latest report from the National Clearinghouse and shows the different categories of incidents occurring in the nation.

Category	Ingestions	Symptoms	Hospitalization	Fatality
Medicines	49%	65%	79%	65%
Cleaning/polishing agent	12%	7%	5%	7%
Plants	9%	4%	1%	0
Cosmetics	7%	2%	1%	1%
Pesticides	6%	5%	3%	4%
Turpentine/paints	4%	3%	2%	4%
All other categories	13%	14%	9%	19%

This table lists the five plants of most concern to parents and most often appearing in Clearinghouse ingestion reports.

Plant	Ingestions Reported	Symptoms Reported	Hospitalization Reported	Fatalities Reported
Azalea	63	3	0	0
Castor Bean	31	3	2	0
Holly Berries	306	4	1	0
Oleanders	72	3	2	0
Yews	359	8	2	0

The lawngresses most used for sod are spreading sorts—those which produce rhizomes (underground stems) abundantly, such as the Kentucky bluegrasses and many fescues. Ryegrasses, having neither rhizomes nor trailing stems (stolons), hold together poorly. Well-grown bluegrass sod is remarkably hard to tear apart. Machines have been designed to measure the force needed to tear a strip of sod; good sod requires over a hundred pounds of tension.

Help Celebrate a Birthday; Give a Hoot! Plant a Tree

1980 is the U.S. Forest Service's 75th Birthday and it wants you to give yourself a very special present to help celebrate.

Plant a tree for birthdays, anniversaries and all other special occasions will be the message Woody Owl, long the Forest Service's symbol for environmental improvement, will be taking to the public. "Give A Hoot! Plant A Birthday Tree!" is what Woody will be saying all across America in the hope that 75 million more trees will be planted in 1980 than were planted in 1979.

Joining Woody in this year-long birthday party will be Smokey Bear and the men and women of the American Association of Nurserymen. Woody will campaign in urban and suburban areas, Smokey will reach people who travel to the nation's public forests, and the American Association of Nurserymen will be asking people to plant trees for a healthier, cleaner tomorrow.

The Forest Service said it decided to turn the tables and ask people to give themselves a present as a way of demonstrating the importance of living trees and plants to our nation's environment. During the year it will ask people to plant trees to commemorate anniversaries, reunions, graduations, promotions, retirements and other important occasions.

Birthday trees, says the Forest Service, will not only beautify the country, but they will fight noise pollution and air pollution; they will cleanse the air, retard soil runoff and help clean streams and rivers.

Birthday trees conserve energy by acting as wind breaks. They serve to shade homes, keeping them cooler in the summer and warmer in winter.

The Forest Service hopes people will plant trees at home, sponsor community plantings at schools, parks and playgrounds. It admits that its goal of 75 million more trees is ambitious, but very possible.

Cooperating nursery garden centers will display trees with a special Woody Owl "Birthday Tree" tag. A portion of the selling price of these special trees will be sent to the Woody Owl campaign to assist in the Forest Service's environmental improvement education program. The tags are designed to remain on the tree for a year or more as a symbol of participation in the Birthday Tree celebration. "Plant A Birthday Tree" is another expression of Green Survival.

For additional information write: Woody Owl, P.O. Box 1963, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, garden clubs, service groups, entire communities are joining together with Woody Owl to Plant Birthday Trees. Woody Owl and Green Survival, the environmental symbols of the American Association of Nurserymen, are suggesting that everyone Plant Birthday Trees to help celebrate the U.S. Forest Service's 75th anniversary. For more information on Planting Birthday Trees see your cooperating nursery garden center or write Woody Owl, P.O. Box 1963, Washington, D.C. 20013.

A Step-by-Step Plan To Plant Your Lawn

1. Cultivate, as by plowing or rotary tilling.
2. Mix in fertilizer having ample phosphorus.
3. Break up clods (but don't fluff the soil, destroying structure); rake level.
4. Spread seed of good quality, uniformly (the whirl-throw Cyclone-type of spreader covers a lot of ground quickly).
5. Rake or drag if the seed does not settle well into crevices between soil chunks (roll only if the soil is dusty-fluffy).

6. Mulch if possible, as with clean straw a few straws deep; pine boughs, woven nettings, etc.

7. Soak thoroughly (or await a good rain).

8. Then don't let the seedbed dry out, although watering can gradually taper off as the new grass roots ever more deeply.

Lawn Upgrading

1. Run-down lawns containing little valuable grass well might be killed back with a non-selective weed killer such as glyphosate. Use a herbicide that is inactivated by the soil, so that there need be no delay before reseeding.
2. Scuff the lawn deeply enough to scratch into mineral soil. Sweep up any interfering debris that surfaces. Powered thinning machines can be rented, or a lot of gusto at the end of a tined cultivating tool will do as well for small areas. If the lawn was not chemically scorched the slicing may have to be drastic; striations must be made into soil in order to catch seed, yet not all existing grass need be torn loose.

3. Distribute seed of top quality cultivars as if making a new lawn. Should duff have accumulated in the thinning operation sufficient to hinder seed from contacting soil, another pass with the scarifier may be necessary to work the seed deeply into the sod.

4. Fertilize, irrigate, mow, etc. as you would with a brand new lawn. A mulch is not needed if old vegetation is retained.

Special Fire Millage Vote in May

In two special sessions, the Independence Township Board accepted petitions circulated by local firefighters and approved ballot language calling for a special assessment district for fire protection.

Petition circulators

Say You Saw
It In

led by Chief Frank Ronk gathered 1,369 signatures in a weekend and presented them to the board. Board members chose to place the question on the May 20 presidential primary ballot themselves without validating the signatures first.

The second special meeting, they approved the language of the proposal. If the special assessment district is approved by the voters, the township board will have the power to levy up to ten mills for fire protection each year. Also, once approved, voters will never have to vote on fire millage again as there is no time limit on the special assessment district. In the meantime, the present two mills levied for fire protection in the township and village will be allowed to expire although they will not run out until 1988.

Parkers End Wolfpack Dream Season

by John Huttenlocher

The Clarkston Wolves were stopped one game away from the State Finals when they lost of the Highland Park Polar Bears, 51-50. The upset win put the Parkers in the Class A championships against Lansing Eastern.

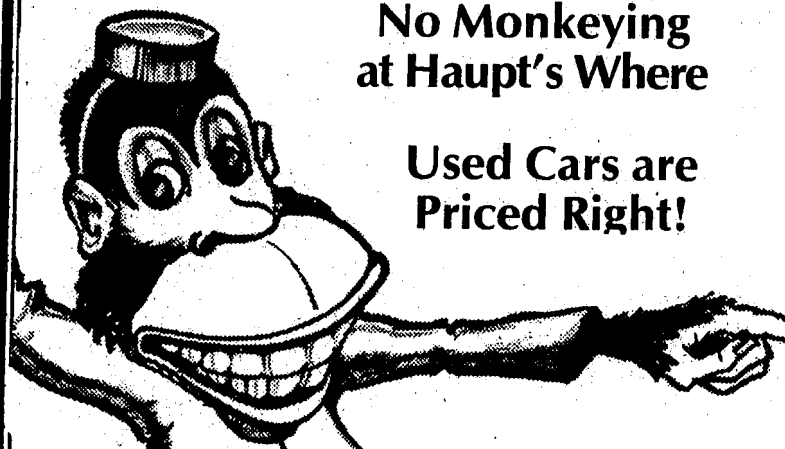

Unlike all of Clarkston's previous games, the Wolves have been the team to set the tempo for the game. But taking a 24-36 deficit into halftime, it didn't look promising. John Sheldon already had 4 fouls and the Wolves familiar shooting touch was on vacation.

Then, when Clarkston came out onto the court for the second half warmups, the fans started shouting for Clarkston to fire-up. All of a sudden, Clarkston's familiar spark was aflame and the Wolves narrowed the margin

With 1 minute and 15 seconds to go, the Parkers brought the ball upcourt. They went into the stall that they had been employing all of the second half. With 22 seconds left, Clarkston fouled sophomore Renardo Brown. With 10,004 fans screaming, Brown stepped to the line and sank both free throws.

Down by three, Clarkston's Tim McCormick scored with 10 seconds left, and Clarkston had to pressure the inbounds pass. Unfortunately, Highland Park got the ball inbounds and preserved an upset win, 51-50.

Scoring for Clarkston was Tim McCormick with 20, Scott McKoin with 12, Greg Lane and Larry Baylis each put in 5 points, while Ed Haddad scored 4 and Chuck Nicolai, along with John Sheldon, both scored 2.

Playing in their last high school game were seniors Tim McCormick, John Sheldon, Ed Haddad, Chuck Nicolai, Larry Baylis, Paul Brown, John Pappas, Nick Lekas and Doug

"There's two very tough things about coaching," commented Nustad. "One is cutting players at the beginning of the season. But the toughest is talking to your seniors after a loss like this."

A Re-Cap of the Basketball Season

by John Huttenlocher

It started off with a bang and all the people who lived in Clarkston were wondering if the Wolves were going to be as promising as they were expected to be.

The wins started to pile up and Tim McCormick was the only thing that people wanted to see -- along with his accomplices. John Sheldon and Ed Haddad. But soon, another name popped up, Scott McKoin.

He'd been starting all year, but all of a sudden, he was scoring in the low twenties and high teens. Another Tim McCorm...no, he wasn't quite tall enough, but he had the touch for hitting shots just as well as McCormick could.

It was midway through the season and the Clarkston gym was beginning to look like a sardine can. The voice of the Wolfpack, Dave

Smith, was continually announcing for the fans to "move towards center of the stands, make room for another few hundred." People were starting to take notice of the Wolfpack, and the college recruiters, even though they had been at some games last year, were in attendance most of the time.

Now, people were beginning to wear shirts immortalizing McCormick and the Wolves, and Wolfpack Fever, along with Weaver Fever, had struck Clarkston. The season was ending and a new season would be starting. All of the repetitious 25 point wins would come to an end as the Pack tucked the District trophy under their arms and headed for Flint Central. They pranced out of the Regionals and prepared for the quarter finals.

Instead of prancing away, the staggered. Saginaw fell to Clarkston, and from then on, everyone knew who Greg Lane was. Now, one game away from the State Finals. But, as if by magic, the Wolves slipped and lost by one point.

Yet, when the Wolves returned from Jenison Fieldhouse and their one point loss, people greeted them and let them know that the season wasn't destroyed because of a loss. The 1979-80 Clarkston Wolves gave Clarkston recognition and pride, and, after the Semi-Final game at Jenison, the Clarkston fans let the Wolfpack know it with a standing ovation.

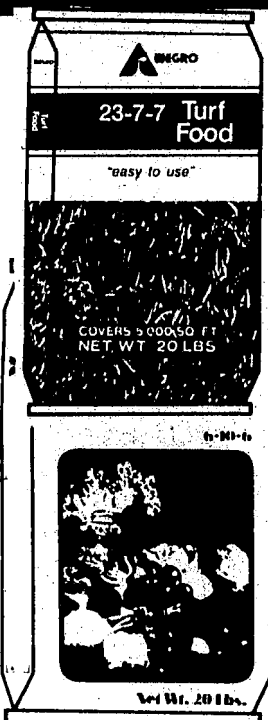

It will be a long time until a team comes along that does better than 26-1 and it will probably be a very long time until another "Tim McCormick" comes along.

Tim McCormick out muscles two defenders to score.
