editor's note: in love with Spring

Spring has finally arrived and this week's Reminder offers several stories related to the change in season. We've combine the Spring articles with supporting advertisements into a neat little package called Spring Splendor.

This week's lead story reminds us about one of the perils of Spring -- our inadequate, sometimes impassable roads. Carol Balzarini, back from two weeks of vacation tells us why the roads are in such bad shape and whether there is anything we can do about them.

A telltale sign of Spring is the significant increase of weddings. Reporter Kathy Rush stumbled upon an unusual wedding conducted at The Nickelodeon last Saturday.

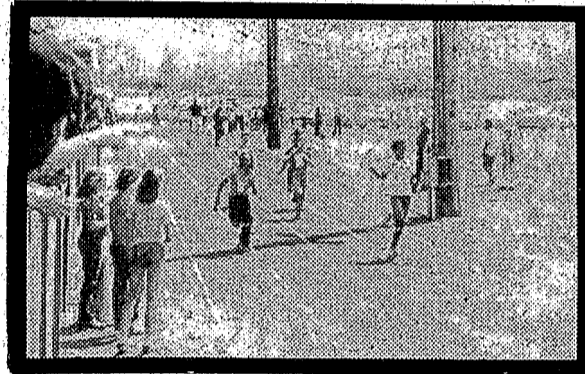

North Oakland County Girl Scouts celebrated the year's nicest weather so far with their version of the Olympics held at Clarkston High School. Reminder photographer Renee Voit was there to capture the event on camera.

Although we wouldn't want to pull you away from the splendor of Spring outdoors, this is an exceptional week for indoor activities.

Graduates of Clarkston Junior High School will be getting together at the old school on Saturday to observe its golden anniversary. A feature story on that event also appears in this issue.

On Sunday, Brandon S.T.A.G.E. presents "The Last of the Red Hot Lovers" in dinner theatre at Spring Lake Country Club. Promoters say the show, on its 3rd week, has been highly successful.

Beginning next Tuesday, the community will be treated to a film series that powerfully tells us how to deal with family problems. The series runs for four days, and because area organizations, churches and businesses decided to financially sponsor the expensive films, you can see it absolutely free.

Girl Scout Thinclads

Yes, Spring is here, and with the increase of activities both indoors and out, is certainly welcome!

Soft on Russia?

Kathy Rush:

In reference to your survey on boycotting the Olympics, and on President Carter's Vehement position.

1. Do you have a son or brother being held as a hostage in Iran? We do.

2. Do you believe that you as a woman living in Russia today would be writing a column in a Russian News Paper? (one on over-weight as it appears that you must over eat.) We don't believe you would be writing or even be over weight.

3. Do you believe that you would be allowed to run a survey in Russia on beliefs of other Russians if the shoe were on the other foot?? We don't believe that you would even be allowed to talk about or know what is going on.

4. Do you believe that the athletics of Russia are supported by donations from their fellow citizens as is required here in these Great United States?

5. Do you believe so much in the Russian way, let us know in your next article and we shall finance you a one way ticket to Warsaw?

6. If the Olympics are boycotted let the United States use the money donated to help free the hostages.

Our sympathy to you Kathy, you need it: From a Family of one of the Hostages.

Editors Note: The column this letter refers to was written and signed by Mike Wilcox, not Kathy Rush.

By the way, you're making an incorrect assumption by calling Ms. Rush overweight. She's just the opposite.

And really a one-way ticket to Warsaw--I'd love it! Warsaw, they say, makes a great vacation.

I can't figure out your reasoning however. No where did I ever indicate I believed in the Russian way. I'm proud to be an American and particularly proud of the freedom's we have in this country--particularly freedom of speech!

Fast and Pray for Hostages

Dear Editor:

Let us look to the promises of our Heavenly Father.

If you could actually do something to free the Hostages, would you be willing to do so? Would you be willing to fast and pray for one day along with thousands of your friends for this purpose?

Benjamin Franklin said, "There are more things wrought by prayer than this world dreams of." But greater than the quote of Mr.

WHAT ABOUT EMBALMING?

There are varying laws and regulations about embalming throughout our country by state and even by some cities. They differ by customs, religious beliefs, usage and consumer demands.

Embalming is not usually required by law except under certain conditions. It is usually written into law if death was due to a communicable disease or if final disposition has to be delayed too long or if the body is to be carried from one state to another.

The needs for such requirements are obvious. The advantages of embalming are three-fold: 1) It allows survivors time to make proper and unhurried funeral arrangements; 2) It permits relatives to come from afar for the funeral; and 3) Embalming preserves the body in a favorable appearance for the final viewings. In the case of a devastating illness or violent death, this third point becomes all the more important. While one can sometimes eliminate the embalming costs, the alternative solutions usually end up as more expensive and more harrowing.

If you have questions on this subject of embalming, please feel free to call us for further explanation.

Former Olympic Star, State Representative Frank Crowley Dies

Former Olympic runner and State Representative, Francis (Frank) Crowley died at his home in Clarkston on April 13.

Crowley, who died at the age of 70, after a bout with cancer and spinal problems that had confined him to a wheelchair since the early 1960's, owned a long list of accomplishments that were started in 1928 when he ran his first long distance race.

That was the start of a track career that took Crowley around the world. In 1930, while attending high school in Pennsylvania, he set a national high school mile record of 4:21. Two weeks later he did 4:16.

The highlight of his career, however, was making the United States Olympic team in 1932.

"I guess the Olympic trials at Stanford that year was my biggest claim to fame," said Crowley in an earlier interview. "I beat Glenn Cunningham and was No. 2 man on the U.S. team. In the games themselves, I finished seventh."

During The Depression, Crowley and his wife Billie lived in New York City, where he taught and coached at a parochial school. He later became a salesman for the Ballantine Brewing Company.

When World War II came, Crowley served as detachment commander in the 36th General Hospital Corps in North Africa and Italy.

After the War, Crowley and his family settled in Clarkston and opened his own beer distributorship. In 1964 he ran for and won a term as State Representative.

In the late 1970's, Crowley served as Assistant Sergeant of Arms for the Michigan State Legislature. When he fell ill, a joint citation from the legislature proclaimed Crowley as "a gentleman of incredible drive, persistence and accomplishment. He epitomizes the traits we most value in a person. He is accorded the highest tribute in recognition of all he has done to secure the commonweal."

Roads a Continuing Problem For Both County and Townships

BY Carol Balzarini

The single greatest complaint by citizens at Independence Township's annual meeting on March 29 was about the condition of the roads. They figured for what they paid in taxes, they should be getting better roads. Township officials directed them to the Oakland County Road Commission (OCRC) for some answers.

The average citizen knows little about the OCRC beyond the huge orange trucks and graders seem from time to time in the area. He knows the primary roads are salted in the winter while some of the side roads are sanded. If he contracts for chloride in the summer, he can expect to see that truck four times.

Repair crews can be found patching blacktop roads or grading gravel roads. Once in a while he may find tall grass and weeds being cut at rural intersections or chemicals being sprayed to kill weeds creating greater visibility.

Beyond that, what does the road commission do? Who runs it? Who decides which road projects are approved and which ones are not? Where does the money come from to operate the OCRC?

At the top of the administrative pyramid are the three road commissioners appointed by the county commissioners for part-time policy-making meetings weekly with OCRC management. They hire the full-time managing director and the county highway engineer, while County Executive Dan Murphy hires the eleven department heads with the aid of the highway engineer.

The three commissioners are chairman Fred D. Houghton of Rochester, vice-chairman John R. Gnau of Bloomfield Township and Richard V. Vogt of Berkley.

John L. Grubba of Southfield is the managing director and Paul Van Roekel of Waterford Township is the highway engineer.

Five of the departments, referred to as support departments, include legal, secretary-clerk, finance, purchasing, and personnel. The remainder include engineering, maintenance, traffic, permits, citizen services, and transportation planning and environment.

Dennis L. Pajot, public information officer for the OCRC, explained the road commission was separate from the rest of county government by legislative action. The state legislature passed an act allowing counties to establish road commissions if they wanted them and make them separate from the political part of government.

The OCRC is financed primarily by state collected gas and weight taxes amounting to about sixty percent of their budget. The amount received is determined by a state-wide distribution formula. State money for the 1980 budget totals about $22 million.

About $5 million is anticipated by the matching-fund road projects between the OCRC and local government. One example of this is this year's planned paving of Holcomb Road between the Clarkston village limits and the I-75 overpass. The county and Independence Township will share the costs. By state law, Pajot stressed, the county cannot fund more than 50 percent of local road construction projects with state gas and weight taxes.

He also agreed with citizen complaints that many county roads are below standard, but Pajot blamed it on the state which, he said, too long treated Oakland as a rural county and funded it accordingly. Even with improvements in the funding formula, the county has been unable to catch up and a still greater percentage of state funds is needed, according to Pajot.

The OCRC's 1980 budget totals $35 million, $22 million of that from the state. Of the total, about $25 million goes for operating expenses not including construction, while the remaining $10 million, including local matching funds, goes into the construction program. Salaries and wages for its 547 employees take 11.8 of the $35 million budget while fringe benefits take an additional 3.5.

Oakland County does not do the actual road construction, their engineers design and inspect the road projects but the construction is done by private contractors who bid for the work. Pajot said there have been no new county-built roads in decades. Instead work has been limited to resurfacing, widening and paving.

The question of who decides what roads get repaired, resurfaced, graded or simply maintained is an important one to the citizens of North Oakland County. What factors those decisions are based on is of great concern to those in this less densely populated area with mainly gravel roads. Do areas with more people and more traffic get more money and more attention?

Pajot said the county highway engineer keeps a log in which he assesses the needs of the county's roads. A second factor is the money available, both federal and local.

In 1968, safety was established by the county commissioners number one priority in determining road work. One example Pajot gave was extensive shoulder widening in high hazard locations.

As some citizens may have feared, population density is a factor. In this case, the state tells the county that it will use population as a factor as well as mileage.

Thirty-four percent of state funds to local road commissions is based on population and miles of roads. A second aspect of state allocation Pajot called "urban fund mileage", giving counties like Wayne and Oakland more money than a predominantly rural county. Cities, on the other hand, get their own state funds for road projects.

Of the funds coming to the county from the state, state law determines that 75 percent will be used on primary roads, 25 percent on local roads.

To put this into other terms, local roads account for 61 percent of the county's total roads, but they only get 25 percent of the state money. Primary roads, on the other hand, only account for 39 percent of the county's roads, but they get three-quarters of the money. The county is monitored by the state to make sure the funds are distributed as required, Pajot said.

There are no county taxes paid directly to the road commission, nothing earmarked. A decision is made each year by the county commissioners to budget some money for the OCRC. Pajot said that has amounted to less than $500,000 since 1971 but this is not property tax money, he said. That is prevented by law.

Township property taxes may be used for funding road projects, however, and millage is another method of local financing.

Of the county's 23 townships, Pajot said four of them levy millage for roads. Bloomfield uses theirs for road maintenance only working with the county. Avon's also goes for maintenance but they do not work with the county. Commerce uses their millage for road construction with matching county funds. Highland's new millage is for road construction working with the county.

Other townships, such as Independence and Springfield, must use general fund money or whatever federal funds may be used for roads.

Pajot said the county is encouraging local governments to establish their own road millages or to put more money into roads from the general fund. A committee of super-

Thayer was chosen by the Anniversary Committee to be the keynote speaker because he holds the distinction of teaching more years (33) than anyone else at Clarkston Junior High.

The Golden Anniversary Open House is scheduled for April 26, beginning at 1 p.m. According to Kate Germuska, committee co-chairperson, 1130 invitations were sent out to former graduates in 35 states and two foreign countries.

Co-chairperson Keith Poulson, researched the history of the 50 year old building for the open house.

When Ralph Thayer, affectionately known as "Doc", first hung his hat in the relatively new Clarkston School, he was one of only about a dozen teachers. Rather than housing three grades, back then the school accommodated kindergarten through 12th grade.

Besides teaching, Thayer coached a variety of sports. And at the end of the day, he drove school bus. "Doc" was not averse to performing custodial duties either, especially when it concerned getting an athletic field ready for a big game.

The Clarkston School, which graduated 13 students in its first class (1930) was built to replace the old Union School, which now houses the township offices.

Dan Winn was superintendent when the school was built. He was also principal and geometry teacher. Interestingly enough, the school had plenty of space back then, with four large rooms unoccupied.

Poulson also claimed, "When the school was first built, they said the school was too far out of town. A lot of oldtimers were upset."

In 1956 the school underwent significant physical changes with the largest being a new addition. Four years later the school was officially designated Clarkston Junior High when high schoolers were moved across Waldon Road to new and larger quarters.

Before the keynote address, attendees will hear an introduction from current principal Duane Lewis and two musical arrangements from the Girls Select Chorus.

McLaughlin Announces County Commission Candidacy

R. Kirk McLaughlin of Ellis Creek Drive, Clarkston, has announced his candidacy for Oakland County Commissioner - District 2 on the Republican ticket.

McLaughlin, 32, is a journeyman pipefitter for the Pontiac Motor Division. He is a graduate of Pontiac Northern and is currently working towards a BS degree from LaSalle Extension University.

For 2 1/2 years, McLaughlin served in the Army as a helicopter crewman, serving part of that time in Viet Nam. He's currently a member of the American Legion, the Board of Directors of Family and Children Services and the United Way.

"I propose, and am presently investigating the possible formation of a northern western township coalition. A comprehensive partnership among local municipal officials through their commissioners could only contribute to the well being of our citizens. Though we may not have an overwhelming mass of humanity, a solid front of some 125,000 to 200,000 people would have to be heard," said McLaughlin.

"I do not support any plan which includes a subway. At the moment I would not support the county's withdrawal from SEMTA. However, if pending legislation in Lansing is finalized and does not allow our electorate a vote on the SEMTA plan I would urge immediate dissolution of any ties with the Southeastern Michigan Transit Authority," concluded McLaughlin.

These Troublesome Roads

Grading Cecilia Ann Avenue near South Sashabaw Elementary is one of the Oakland County Road Commission's familiar organ trucks.

Wha-Ta-Wa Road in Thendara Park is one of the many Independence Township roads bringing a flood of complaints. Not seen is the large ditch with a log in it presumably to keep small cars from disappearing completely.

visors has been formed, headed by Springfield Supervisor Collin Walls, to study the situation.

Walls said the committee has reviewed the road situation and believes what the OCRC has been telling them. Alternate funding methods are definitely needed.

He said that Brandon and White Lake Townships will place a request for one road mill on the August ballot. Avon is considering increasing its millage to allow for construction also. Road millage is also being considered by Lyon, Orion and Springfield townships.

At Springfield's annual meeting response to the millage idea was not so much opposition to it as conviction that it wouldn't pass. Walls said it was up to the board first to justify the necessity and then to sell it to the citizens.

Even if the board decides to ask for the millage and the voters approve it, all township roads will not be blacktopped. Walls said maybe one or two where necessary but the bulk of the money would be used to maintain what was there already.

The township board realized a number of years ago that without local money set aside for road projects there would be few improvements made. General funds have been set aside since the 1978-79 budget combined with money left over from the previous year. There is now about $80,000 in the road fund in addition to annual programs for graveling and tri-party projects already agreed to with the county.

The type of planning Springfield is engaged in is what Pajot would like to see more townships have. With current economic trends, state-allocated money has not begun to fall off, he said, but it has begun to level off. Gas and weight tax money is based on the number of gallons sold and the weight of the cars driven. Recently, the trend has been toward smaller cars and gasoline conservation.

Pajot feels the legislature will have to consider changing from number of gallons and tonnage as a basis for funding and replacing cost as the basis to offset this trend.

As financing becomes more of a problem, Pajot said many of the road projects now on the books will have to be scrapped. The number will have to decrease simply because less money from the state will be coupled with increasing construction costs with an additional problem of questionable federal funds.

In a recently-released three year plan, the OCRC estimates the costs of simply maintaining the county's roads will be $14.3 million in 1981, $15.5 million in 1982 and $16.9 million in 1983.

At the same time they expect the total amount to be spent for construction to be $19.4 million in 1981 declining to $11.8 million in 1982 and $7.7 in 1983.

Pajot reiterated the only answer is new sources of funding. One must be a new state formula and the other must be more local money of some sort.

ARE EASILY HANDLED WITH A SNAPPER GARDEN TRACTOR. IT'S TOP QUALITY... COMFORTABLE AND DEPENDABLE.

SNAPPER garden tractors were designed by agricultural engineers with quality features like an inline drive train for efficient power transfer and welded steel frames for ruggedness. Another great feature is the ability to "quick change" attachments so you take less time getting ready and spend more time getting the work done. You have the choice of gear, or hydrostatic transmissions with "memory"; manual or hydraulic lift systems; rear power-take-off; 2", 48" and 54" cutting units; and 16 or 18 H.P. engines.

Shown with optional cutting unit and garden tool kit.

Resuscitators, hypodermic needles, pulse tachometers, intravenous fluid, tourniquets, leg splints and stretchers. All words that might make the average person's stomach do an uneasy flip. In the case of Holly Volunteer Ambulance (HVA) service these terms are as natural as baseball, hot dogs, apple pie and Chevrolet.

Beginning in 1969, HVA's equipment consisted of one ambulance - an old, refurbished Cadillac hearse, a one-room office at the Holly Police Station and several lawn chairs used for seats.

HVA has come a long way since then. The construction of the nearly new building which is the result of dedicated personal time and effort on the part of the volunteers, reeks with efficiency. The station is outfitted with three modern, fully-equipped ambulances, sleeping quarters for both men and women volunteers, kitchen facilities and a direct hotline to the Holly Police Station.

Not only is the equipment effectual but the attendants are extremely competent. Roger Gillespie, charter member and director of HVA says, "Preparation is becoming more and more complex. Requirements for an attendant presently are a certificate in Advanced First Aid and Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR), which involves at least 60 hours training, or the more advanced Emergency Medical Training (EMT) certificate involving 128 additional hours."

At least 50% of the attendants at HVA have attained an EMT certificate and many of the others are waiting to take the exams given by the overburdened state department. Additionally, HVA has set up a fifteen hour program instructing attendants in how to handle the equipment, plus six to nine training sessions a year as a refresher course. "Because it is a continuous training situation," Gillespie said, "we have plenty of qualified instructors right here at HVA. There are twelve Advanced First Aid instructors, 14 CPR instructors and two instructor trainers."

Having responded to over 700 calls last year is confirmation that there is a need for HVA. "Every year the number of calls seems to increase," said Gillespie. "Our area covers four townships; Holly, Springfield, Rose and Groveland." Although this forms an imaginary line, they will respond to any call. "Last week we had a call to north of Goodrich. We had not thought this to be our territory but this is not the name of the game. The object is to get help as fast as possible in a medical emergency, wherever it may be."

HVA also performs what they refer to as "first-aid runs". Gillespie explained, "These are services in which we respond to a call, yet do not transport the patient to the hospital because that is their preference." For example, "We delivered a baby whose mother did not wish to go to the hospital so there was no fee involved. We charge nothing for these services because this is a benefit we like to give to the community since we are community supported."

Having women attendants presents no problem with hoisting stretchers. "Training involves learning how to lift with the legs rather than the back," says Lois Merrill, secretary and attendant. "It's not a problem, although sometimes police officers at the scene sometimes think so."

A crew consists of three attendants on duty for a 24-hour shift. Should the first crew go on call, immediately Lois is on the phone

When these attendants - Frank, Sandy and Sally - are on duty they hope the hotline never goes off.

Independence Firefighters Push for Special Assessment District

by Mike Wilcox

Independence Township voters will have more than just a Presidential primary candidate to vote for on the May 20th ballot. A controversial special assessment district that if approved, would allow the township board to levy up to 10 mills for fire protection, has already been the topic of much discussion, despite the election being a month away.

Fire Chief Frank Ronk and nearly two dozen firefighters attended last week's board meeting to ask board members for support of the ballot proposal. When they met more opposition than support, it became a lively meeting with board members having to defend themselves against verbal attacks from Ronk and his frustrated cohorts.

A special assessment district, although new to Independence, is currently utilized in Avon and Brandon Townships. Its purpose is to allow the township board to levy up to 10 mills, (one mill is equal to approximately $215,000) in this case for fire protection, without having to bring it to a vote of the people. Each year the township board would be required to levy the assessment. One year it could be 1 mill, the next year possibly 10 mills.

Chief Ronk claims the likelihood of 10 mills ever being levied is remote, however. He intends to ask for 1 more mill this year if the proposal is passed. The fire department presently operates on 2 mills.

In outlining his objections to the Board's unwillingness to support the proposal, Ronk said he has been after the Board to act on the matter since September 1979.

In January he threatened to circulate petitions to get the proposal on the ballot. With no action forthcoming the firefighters began going door-to-door in March to collect the 955 signatures needed. They came close to collecting that number—so close the Board agreed to place the proposal on the May 20 ballot.

One of the ways Ronk expects to utilize the extra mill is for the purchase of the new equipment. Fire apparatus, some nearly a dozen years old, are on first response. One front line engine is nearly an antique, having been built in 1959.

Ronk would also like to initiate a building program, thus improving and adding to present stations.

"We are at best just holding our own now," he said. "It's not our intent to ask for any more funding than necessary to operate the department safely. But without more funding, we will have to cut our services."

Ronk added, "It's very frustrating to me as a department head to continue to butt heads with you guys." Everytime the fire department brings a proposal in front of you we get no support he said.

The special assessment district received plenty of support from firefighters.

Neil Ashley stated, "There seems to be plenty of support from the community (referring to the over 900 signatures gathered). Ten mills means everyone here could put a pumper in their garage. All we want is one more mill!"

Neil Sage added, "I don't see you folks walking into the (fire) hall. I don't think you even know what we have down there." How can you make a decision without this basic information?

But board members were unwavering by the firefighters' logic.

Trustee Jerry Powell bluntly said, "I think it (special assessment district) is a lousy idea. I won't support it."

"I think this proposal will fail," added Trustee William Vandermark. "I don't think it merits a place on the ballot. It avoids the intent of the Headlee amendment and it exposes the township to the possibility of a 10 mill levy."

Trustee Rudy Lozano also voiced his disapproval. "I disagree from the standpoint that people want to have a little more to say about how their government spends money."

"I don't think it's a good proposal," said Clerk Chris Rose. "There's nothing in the act that says the money must be used for fire."

Trustee Mike Thayer had a different opinion, however. "I will support the proposal the way it is because we got to get the money one way or the other."

And Treasurer Fred Ritter objected too, suggesting, "We should go after something smaller for a definite period of time."

The debate between firefighters and township board will likely not end here. The firefighters expect to campaign heavily for the proposal up until the May 20th election.

calling in a back-up crew. "We have rolled all three rigs within seven minutes. This is the way the people involved respond," said Gillespie.

The volunteer attendants are from all walks of life. There are ministers, nurses, factory workers, retirees, housewives and students. A real mixture of people with one thing in common - the desire to serve their community in a meaningful way.

Until recently, the only money earned by the volunteers was $5.00 per run. Now to offset the cost of the slacks, coats and time away from their families, they receive approximately 50¢ an hour. "The only person here who truly draws a salary is the secretary," said Gillespie. "Obviously, it's not the money these people are here for. This organization is made up of an unselfish bunch of people who have donated much time and effort - that's what really has kept this program going."

How many lives have been saved by the HVA service, I wouldn't even attempt to guess, Gillespie said. "I do know that if there was not an ambulance service in this area and people had to wait 15 or 20 minutes for one from Fenton, Waterford or Pontiac, there's a number of people who would not have survived."

Robot Wins Sashabaw Science Fair

Best of Show was this light activated robot.

The 1980 Sashabaw Junior-High School Fair consisted of projects in home economics, art, industrial arts and science.

The science fair had about 350 projects. The grand prize went to Rod Dovletian, an eighth grader. His project was a very ingenious light activated robot. The three class trophies went to Dawn Cowle, seventh grade, Lisa Hicks, eighth grade, and Kerl Chenoweth, ninth grade. Dawn's project involved experimenting with the ecology of freshwater communities. Lisa's project was an elaborate mechanical and electronic maze game. Radiation detection and monitoring was Kerl's project.

Ribbons went to:

Seventh grade; Chris Eschler and Hugh Boyd, first place, Tina Leake, Debra Slingley, Amy Pearson, Mark Southby, Kenny Dean, all

Franklin, are the promises from God's Holy Word. Ezra. 8:23 states, "So we fasted and begged God to take care of us. And he did." Jesus fasted for 40 days and throughout the New Testament, many stories are told of fasting and praying and the results of this Divine Power. In the Old Testament, marvelous examples are told of the power of fasting and praying in the books of Esther and Jonah.

why not ask Carolyn?

Dear Carolyn,

My boyfriend and I are planning on getting married in April. This is a second marriage for him, my first. Our minister requires that we go through some premarital counseling. We've talked about it and I think it's a good idea, he doesn't feel it's anyone's business. I know something about why he and his first wife split, but he is hesitant to talk about it. We can talk about everything else, money, children, jobs, but not his former marriage. I think he is afraid the counseling will get into private areas. Yet, our minister won't marry us if we don't go through with the counseling. Just how much do you get into in premarital counseling and will we each have to bear our soles?

Hesitant

Dear Hesitant,

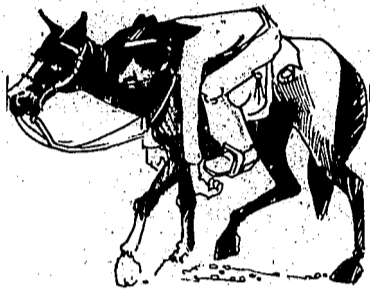

No therapist can force anyone to say more than they want to. People usually have an idea of what they are willing and unwilling to discuss. You indicated open subjects for you and your boyfriend are money, children, and jobs. Accordingly, these will be accessible subjects to be discussed during counseling. A subject that would be off limits, according to what you say, is his former marriage.

As a therapist, I would ask why this is such a sensitive area. Not that I would recommend dragging out all the dirty linen, but I would want to know why he is unwilling to talk about it. Are there things he is trying to hide, are there unresolved feelings left over from the divorce? It is important he know and be able to verbalize what was wrong with that marriage for him. Likewise, he should be able to express what are his hopes, dreams, and expectations for your marriage.

Unless this work of introspection is done before marriage former issues in that previous marriage will come up again in your marriage. What better place to get things sorted out than counseling before you marry. Take this opportunity to get your married life started out on the right foot. You could not make a better investment.

Thoughtfully,
Carolyn

Perry VP Boss of the Year

Robert Shapiro, vice president of the professional affairs for Perry Drug Stores, was named Boss of the Year by the Independence Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association at the organization's second annual Boss Night banquet held Tuesday, March 25 at Spring Lake Country Club in Clarkston.

Shapiro, a pharmacist, joined Perry Drugs in 1964. He is currently in charge of all pharmacy personnel in all 68 Perry stores. He is a member of the company's board of directors and the executive committee. He was nominated for the honor by his secretary, Mrs. Linda Houston of Clarkston.

The feature speaker at the dinner was Woody Woodring, who acted as General Patton's driver until the General was killed in an automobile accident.

The vocational speaker, Charlotte Maybee, combined her talk with the evening's World War II theme, bringing back memories of war bonds and ration stamps. Ms. Maybee is currently employed for the State of Michigan Department of Social Services.

Mrs. Ruth LeGault, president, welcomed the guests and Christine Schmidt, Boss Night chairperson and mistress of ceremonies, presented an engraved plaque to the 1980-81 Boss Night award recipient, Robert Shapiro.

I sit here alone
The kids are asleep.
The house is so quiet
without little feet!
The dark and the silence
bring peace, like a friend,
Helping to quiet my fears at days end.
Sometimes, if I let it,
the blindness of night
Will sort out my mind and bring me true sight.
The quiet, in similar fashion,
can speak.
It points out the spots where
I'm strong--and so weak.
I thank God for daytime
when everything's bright.
But, ever more truly
I thank Him for night.

by Ruth Brueck

A GREAT ROOM PLAN FOR ECONOMY

© By W. D. Farmer

A private deck is shown for this plan, encased on two sides by the extended slope of roof and bordered by wood rail. This deck is accessible through the glass sliding doors from the great room. There is a large activity room with sloped ceiling, stone fireplace, second floor and basement access. A small entry is shown.

The kitchen is full size with built in appliances and extra cabinet and work surface. The laundry is sized for convenience and includes bonus pantry space.

The master bedroom is very large and has direct access to a powder room and bath. The closet is well sized.

There are twin bedrooms up, both with a large closet and they share the central bath. The stair area is shown with an open rail.

The economy in this plan is the absolute rectangular design, but exteriorwise, the plan has a very different appearance due to the roof design, vertical siding, stone chimney and covered entry. A covered terrace is indicated below the deck area. The basement room may be finished now or later.

The plan is Number 594. It includes only 1,521 square feet of heated area, and an additional 518 square feet available in the basement. All W. D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency. For further information on plan 594, write W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc., P.O. Box 49463, Atlanta, Ga. 30359.
