School Administration Offer Salary Concessions

Members of the administrative staff at the Clarkston Schools have indicated a willingness to forego at least part of their scheduled salary increases for 1981-82 in light of the district's current financial crisis. In a letter to the board of education assistant superintendent, Mel Vaara and administrative assistants William Neff, Conrad Bruce and William Dennis said they would agree to modified salary freezes to show their personal support for the educational process in the midst of overall school belt tightening.

Superintendent Milford Mason also said he would be willing to participate in the reductions. And Director of Vocational Education, Marvin Hess, told the board several weeks ago that he would take a salary freeze next year. Hess has been given layoff notice as one of two administrators whose positions will be eliminated in 1981-82.

Board member Carolyn Place had called several times in the last several months for salary cutting gestures from school employees as a way of telling voters and school children that education was a top priority among school employees.

She said that full participation in salary concession measures would "guarantee passage of our millage".

Clarkston has a school millage vote scheduled for June 9.

But according to Mason further wage concessions appear now to be a dead issue. He said he had met with representatives of the teacher's union, but that they had been unable to come to terms on the issue.

Parade Must Go On

A "Loyalty Day" parade set for the 2nd of May in the Village of Clarkston will apparently go on as scheduled despite a tangle of unforeseen legal difficulties that threatened to cropped up in the permit process.

The parade, sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) to allow area residents a chance to display their patriotism, was on its way along the usually smooth path of governmental sanction recently when township board members noticed that the waiver they were being asked to sign by the county road commission and state department of transportation (DOT) contained some questionable language about township liability.

The waiver, which township clerk Chris Rose said has been used "as long as he's been around", included a passage stating the township's willingness to hold "all persons harmless" for damages stemming from the occasion of the parade.

Board member, Dale Stuart, said at the April 7 meeting of the board language of that kind could make the township responsible if someone drove a float into the crowd along the parade route.

The waiver is required by the road commission and the state department of transportation before any parade can be held on roads under their jurisdiction.

Rose said last week that he had talked to the township attorney and the township's insurance company and been assured that everything was okay, except for the phrase "all persons harmless".

Attorney Richard Campbell suggested the wording be changed to "the township holds the county road commission and the state department of transportation harmless".

Rose didn't think the language change would affect approval from the county and DOT.

He is hoping, however, that it isn't subjected to too much further review from any more attorneys.

editor's note

This newspaper won what we consider a significant victory in Federal Court last Thursday. Judge Harry Hackett dismissed a $100 million lawsuit filed by Pine Knob against The Reminder for an article reporter Carol Balzarini had written during the ski resort's attempts to build a high rise hotel back in October of 1979.

The victory was significant because it restores our faith in America, the 1st Amendment and our judicial system. Pine Knob had attempted to "gag" us because they didn't like some of the things we were printing. We ignored their threats, thus they followed with the real thing - a $100 million lawsuit in an effort to put us out of business.

Needless to say we were shocked last fall when we were served with court papers. Never before had we been sued. Never before had our parent company, The Reminder in Ortonville, been sued in over 25 years of existence. Furthermore, we had been led to believe by our insurance company that we had sufficient libel insurance to protect us, but when it came time to come forward the insurance company said "no", you have no libel insurance.

Thus we had a $100 million lawsuit staring us in the face, and being a small business, very little money to defend it.

We were convinced it was a "nuisance" suit. The article in question, in our opinion, was a fair and accurate reporting on what a couple of Hilton Hotel executives had to say about a 600-room hotel being built in Clarkston.

The article outlined several positive aspects such as the hotel would provide new jobs, added tax base and would give a boost to the local economy. The executives did however state, 600 rooms was an "extremely heavy" number for this area. They also indicated the hotel would be "an eyesore" and "white elephant" if it was not successful. They said the distance from Metro Airport to Clarkston might be a deterrent in Pine Knob's effort to keep the hotel occupied.

Pine Knob also tried to contend that Ms. Balzarini and myself were malicious in our attempts to get the hotel defeated.

I can't speak for Ms. Balzarini, but myself, come on. I never once spoke a public word against the hotel project. To this very day, if I was living in Independence Township at the time, I don't know whether I would have voted "yes" or "no". All we were trying to do at this newspaper at that time, was trying to give our readership all the information we possibly could on the project. Going to Hilton, to get their opinions, was another story angle no other newspaper had offered. It was a good story, one we are proud of, and one that is certainly not libelous.

But Pine Knob, for reasons I still do not know, wanted to shut us up. Thus with a few pennies in our pocket and all the pride in the world we set out to find an attorney to defend us. All the locals we talked to indicated we should find someone familiar with libel to defend us. Through a friend of mine, I came in contact with John Ronayne III, a libel specialist who has defended some big names in the publishing industry and also teaches part-time at Detroit College of Law. Ronayne agreed to take on the case, and eventually got it dismissed for us.

On the one hand it was great to win, but on the other hand it has hurt the pocketbook. Legal fees have already approached $7-10,000 and with Pine Knob saying they will appeal the case, will probably run higher. That's an enormous bite out of a small business's budget.

Thus in that respect Pine Knob has made us pay an awful price for our integrity.

But we're proud we didn't back down. I could have taken Ms. Balzarini off the story, as requested by Pine Knob. I could have taken a strong stand for the hotel, as they would have liked. We didn't have to run the bankruptcy story that told about Pine Knob's money woes earlier this year. But we did.

Doing otherwise would be giving in to Pine Knob, and thusly losing a great deal of integrity. I think we've built a good reputation with our readers. They can expect us to give them the news without any punches being pulled. We will continue to strive to do that. We will not allow big entities like Pine Knob to control us.

And fortunately we have a constitution in this great country of ours that will back us up.

Garner's No Saint

Dear Editor,

Obviously your writer Dawson Bell was not around Independence Township in 1975. His article on developer Hugh Garner makes Garner sound like a saint. This is far from the truth, and in my opinion, he is an example of the worst kind of quick buck merchant.

As an original signer of the injunction obtained by (3) home owners groups from around Deer Lake, I remember his proposals well. We succeeded in preventing Township Board action which would have permitted the devastation of the area surrounding the north end of Deer Lake, the area now known as Deer Lake Farms. I find myself, at this point, satisfied that the fight which led up to this development well worth the effort.

Garage sales and car washes were all arranged in order to fight Mr. Garner's plans for what was described as "the jewel of the Township" Deer Lake. As a reward for these efforts we are now described by your correspondent as "the outspoken element of Independence."

From the very first, the home owners behind the injunction asked that the only development should be a continuation of existing patterns of single family homes. In fact it was suggested by the home owners that Mr. Garner investigate the concept of cluster houses as being developed in some high priced property developments in Oakland County. Now it appears Mr. Garner thought of it first.

Mr. Garner should be grateful for that injunction, which prevented him from building what could have been a complete disaster. By his own admission he now has a show-case development, arising from the Consent Judgment, jointly worked out with the courts and the Township. This Consent Judgment is only open to change if all parties agree, and the Township Board has a perfect right to dissent on behalf of Independence citizens.

Developers such as this take options on property clearly zoned and then get indignant when they are refused a change.

I suggest Mr. Garner needs Independence Township more than we need him. Leave the Consent Judgment as written and let him pout alone.

Yours truly,
Hady Cook

HOW TO PLAY THE MARKET WITHOUT RISKING YOUR LIFE.

It used to be so easy. Risk some money in the market for growth. Keep the rest in the bank and buy a life insurance policy for security. Inflation has changed all that. A lot of people are risking that "security" today just to stay even with the economy.

There's a better way. John Hancock Variable Life. Like any whole life plan, it guarantees you the face amount of the plan you buy, but unlike most other plans, it also lets you invest in the market, with the opportunity to add to the value of your coverage.

Send us the coupon for more information. In uncertain economic times like these, an insurance plan that gives you an opportunity to help keep up with inflation could be the best plan in the market.

Dental Dialogue

SQUEEK CAUGHT IN MOUTHRAP

Q. It sounds stupid, but my mouth squeeks ever since I had a number of new fillings. Have you ever heard of such a thing?

A. Yes, and you are definitely not alone with your problem. It is not uncommon for patients to complain of a "squeaky" sound after having silver fillings. This occurs when the contact between the teeth is not very tight, and allows the fillings to rub against each other causing a squeaking noise. It usually goes away, but sometimes you may need a new filling wedged closer to its neighbor to solve your problem.

This column is presented in the interest of better dental health. From the office of Dr. Gary R. Ushman, 55 S. Main St., Clarkston, Michigan 48016. Phone 625-2066.

Talbert to Speak

The Inde-Spring Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association will make its annual "Boss of the Year" presentation during its monthly dinner meeting to be held Tuesday, April 28, at Spring Lake Country Club in Clarkston. She is employed by Wright Filippis, Inc. as bookkeeper. For further information, call 634-7425.

PNH Reunion Announced

A 15-year class reunion is being planned for Pontiac Northern High School for September 19th at Springfield Oaks. All those interested, please direct inquiries to one of the following: Brenda Clawson, 666-4145; Loretta Swan, 666-1648; or Bonnie Woodworth, 628-1326.

HOW TO TALK TO YOUR CHILD ABOUT DEATH

Talk openly, simply and directly.

Explain what death is in terms the child can understand. Do not overdo the explanation. Encourage the child to question and probe. Be direct.

Good conversation-starters are all around us in nature: the changing of the seasons, floods, fires, frogs, birds, butterflies. Life, birth and death are all a part of nature and should be discussed comfortably, in small doses, with children.

Explain that death is really "a part of life." Discuss death with a child whenever his world brushes against it - when a pet cat or dog dies...when a flower begins to lose its petals...and certainly when a relative, friend or a public figure dies who is known to the child.

Explain what a child is to expect when a death occurs in the family. When children know what to expect and what to do, they are not surprised or apprehensive.

If you have special questions on this subject, please feel free to call us.

forecast

Spring arrived during March 1981 bringing with it almost summerlike conditions near the end of the month. The first 20 days of the month were generally cool, with numerous overnight dustings of snow. The final eleven days were generally very pleasant and warm, and hopefully signalled an end to another Michigan winter. March was rather dry with 2 storms near the end of the month bringing us more than two-thirds of our month's total precipitation. The eastern Clarkston station received 1.50 inches of precipitation in March, which is about three-quarters of an inch below normal. Through the first 3 months of 1981, total precipitation at the eastern Clarkston station has amounted to 5.65 inches, which is normal for this area. The northern portions of Oakland County have received near normal amounts of precipitation for the calendar year to date; surrounding areas have generally reported significantly less precipitation. Precipitation totals for March from my volunteer network are as follows (with calendar year totals in parentheses):

- Sullivan Lake/Tyrone Township - 1.60" (5.24")
 - Elizabeth Lake/Waterford Township - 1.53" (6.12")
 - Eastern Clarkston - 1.50" (5.65")
 - Oxbow Lake/White Lake Township - 1.26" (5.25")
 - Fenton - 1.26" (4.54")
 - Northern Clarkston Station - 1.21" (4.5")
 - St. Clair Shores - 1.10" (4.30")
 - Detroit Metropolitan Airport - 0.82" (5.09")
 - Bishop Airport/Flint - 0.7" (3.12")
 - Davison - 0.60"
- Snowfall in the Clarkston area amounted to 5.3 inches in March, which is 2.5 inches below normal. The 1980/81 winter season snowfall now stands at 56.3 inches, which is already 10.9 inches above our normal yearly snowfall. The eastern Clarkston station reported measurable snowfall on 13 days during March, all of which occurred during the first 20 days of the month. Other stations reporting snowfall during March include Sullivan Lake/Tyrone Township and Elizabeth Lake/Waterford Township, each reporting 5.25 inches of snowfall.

The mean temperature for March at the eastern Clarkston station was 35.0 degrees, which is 1.6 degrees above normal. Temperatures ranged from a low of 10 degrees on the morning of the 18th to a high of 71 degrees on the 29th. Temperatures were quite variable during the month, as morning lows dropped to 20 degrees or lower on 9 mornings, and daily high exceeded 50 degrees on 11 days during March. The warm weather at the end of the month may have given home gardeners spring fever, but keep in mind that the mean date for the last spring frost in our area is May 9.

With the advent of warmer weather, it is once again the beginning of tornado season in Michigan. In one of my reports last year, I mentioned that tornado expert Dr. T. Fujita predicted that 1981 would be a year of peak tornado occurrence in the United States. The early spring warmth could well be an indicator that his prediction may indeed come true, as several outbreaks have already occurred this spring.

Pine Knob/Reminder Libel Suit Dismissed

by Dawson Bell
A $100 million dollar libel suit filed by Pine

Knob Investment Corporation against The Reminder Zone II and Hilton Hotels Corporation was dismissed in U.S. Bankruptcy Court last Thursday.

The suit stemmed from a story which appeared in The Reminder on October 4, 1979 dealing with the feasibility of a proposed hotel at the Pine Knob Resort in Independence Township.

Pine Knob charged that statements made by Hilton officials, Salvatore Guarino and Lloyd Stalcup, and quoted by Reminder reporter Carol Balzarini were "false, slanderous, libelous and defamatory" and had contributed to the denial of permits for construction of the hotel.

But Bankruptcy Judge, Harry Hackett, in granting a Hilton/Reminder request for summary dismissal, disagreed.

"There is no question that newspapers sometimes engage in brinkmanship," he said. "But that is apparently what the Constitution intended."

"If people only said things that we like we wouldn't need the first amendment."

The first amendment to the Constitution guarantees the right to free speech.

Hackett said the opinions tendered by Guarino and Stalcup in the story were nothing more than opinions and expressions of opinion on a matter of public concern could not be libelous unless they implied possession of undisclosed facts.

He cited a Supreme Court decision which stated, "Under the First Amendment there is no such thing as a false idea."

The Hilton officials, Guarino a vice-president in charge of franchise properties and Stalcup a retired director of sales/corporate accounts, had been asked by Balzarini about the prospects for the proposed 600-room hotel at Pine Knob.

The suit charged that their responses "caused the impression that the hotel would be financially unsuccessful and a financial burden to the people and the community."

Both men had expressed some skepticism about the possibility of a community of Clarkston's size supporting a 600-room hotel.

Pine Knob representative, Anthony Locricchio, contended that the opinions of Guarino and Stalcup had been taken by township officials and voters as "expert opinion" and that their skepticism had led to hotel permit denials from the zoning board of appeals and a subsequent negative expression of public opinion at the polls.

Hackett said he doubted the remarks had been so influential. "There are still people who can stand up to the Hilton heads and say, 'Malarkey -- you don't know what you're talking about,'" he said.

At the time the story appeared Pine Knob owners, Joe Locricchio and Gary Francell, were scheduled to appear before the township's zoning board of appeals the following week.

A township-wide special election was also slated for October 16 on the questions of hotel use in a recreationally zoned area and the township's building height limitation of two stories.

Following the election, the variances sought by the resort owners were denied. The hotel is still in limbo pending the outcome of another Pine Knob suit filed against the township.

Anthony Locricchio told Hackett last Thursday, "One of the reasons we're in this (bankruptcy) court today is the loss of the hotel." Pine Knob is in bankruptcy reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S.

Bankruptcy Code.

Further, Locricchio said, the story was assigned to and written by a reporter with professed anti-Pine Knob sentiments who later ran for public office on an "anti-Pine Knob" ticket. He said he could establish "malice" on the part of Balzarini and the newspaper if allowed to bring the case to trial. Malice is one of the legal grounds for libelous action.

He said depositions from Balzarini and the Hilton officials showed the reporter had misrepresented herself and misconstrued the remarks made to her by them.

Hackett, however, discounted those arguments. He said there had been no evidence presented which indicated the remarks had not, in fact, been made and that they were protected under Michigan law as the right to "fair comment" as long as the statements were held to be true.

Locricchio said the decision to dismiss the suit would be appealed.

But Reminder attorney, John Ronayne III, appeared confident Hackett's decision would be upheld.

The appeal, he said, would have to be based on evidence presented to the bankruptcy court and none of the charges made in the suit were likely to be substantiated.

Ronayne said Pine Knob attorneys were attempting to confuse the legal grounds for libel action.

Malice, he said, under the law is not actionable unless it can be established as "actual malice". That is, the publication of any statement, no matter how damaging, cannot be libelous unless it was published with the knowledge that it was not true or with a reckless disregard for the truth.

"Malice has nothing to do with your attitude or with your state of mind," he said.

Locricchio had suggested to the court that Balzarini and Reminder publisher, Mike Wilcox, had actively sought to damage Pine Knob's position by printing the Hilton story. And that Wilcox had continued to evidence malice toward the resort and its owners by publishing a derogatory letter to the editor and a front page story on the bankruptcy proceedings.

He also pointed out to Hackett that The Reminder was the only newspaper that went to every home in Independence Township and that the Balzarini story was the "only article specifically referred to in the public hearing."

Levy May Be Back Before Township

by Dawson Bell
As the 90-day deadline for State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) action on an application for gravel mining in Independence Township drew near last week, DNR officials said their investigation was on hold.

The DNR has been in the process of making a determination on a permit application from the Edward C. Levy Company under the Inland Lakes and Streams Act. The Levy Company is seeking approval of a sand and gravel mine on a 494-acre site at Sashabaw and Clarkston Orion Roads.

At a public hearing held in Clarkston last January, the DNR received information from the company and a loose coalition of opponents to the proposal. A decision on the application was to have been made within 30-90 days.

But Brad Wilkens, of the Land Resources Programs Division of the DNR, said last Thursday that although the fact finding procedure was "pretty close" to complete, the department's final determination was being held up at the applicant's request.

Wilkens said the Levy Company wished to discuss some questions of local zoning with Independence Township.

Township officials, meanwhile, said they had not been contacted by the company recently.

In order to proceed with mining on the property the company would have to receive site plan approval from the township. The area is zoned for rural residential use presently. Wilkens said that, in general, the DNR prefers not to interfere in zoning questions.

It is unclear if that means the Levy Company is intending to reapply to the township and go through what could be a lengthy court battle if the two parties cannot come to terms. Levy did appear before the township planning commission in May of 1979 and the application was denied.

No representatives of the company were available for comment.

Chances for an amicable settlement between the township and the company appear slim.

Three township officials, Treasurer Fred Ritter, Clerk Chris Rose and Supervisor James Smith, were among thirty spokesmen at the January hearing in opposition to the Levy proposal.

Opponents to the project say that the mine would cause irreparable harm to the Clinton River watershed, surrounding parkland and residential areas adjacent to the Levy property.

Golfing is Big Business at Springfield's Royal

When winter broke in the spring of 1981 a curious phenomena appeared along Dixie Highway in Springfield Township.

On the front lawn of one in a series of small manufacturing plants lining that stretch of road a collection of grown men suddenly appeared from inside and proceeded to tee up and knock about golf balls. Not, one would think, very professional behavior.

Except perhaps in golf professionals, which is exactly what they were; the executives and employees of Royal Golf Corporation, a manufacturer and distributor of golf equipment and clothing.

Royal moved in around the first of the year, but went largely unnoticed until recently when they opened up the area's first manufacturer's outlet of golf equipment.

The firm was formerly based in Virginia but came to Michigan to locate nearer its parent company, Flint Manufacturing Corporation.

Ted Bunker, company president, says the move was good for him, because he lives in Grand Blanc, and good for the company, because it allows them the opportunity to open up the wholesale outlet.

The Royal line of balls, clubs, shoes and clothing is sold largely by mail order. Bunker says the wholesale outlet idea is fairly new in the golfing industry.

Royal, which had been a part of Uniroyal until bought up by Flint Manufacturing in 1978, had traditionally gone head to head with Wilson and Spaulding (and their advertising megabucks) in the pro shops and sporting goods stores across the country.

When the company changed ownership he says they adopted the mail order marketing concept, allowing them to offer direct discounted prices to the golfer.

Bunker says it has paid off. "There's one thing about golf," he says. "Even though it's popular, it's very expensive. So we wanted to go directly to the buyer."

The store on Dixie, and a number of other outlets Royal has opened recently, are just extensions of that idea.

"We'll still sell to pro shops, in fact we do quite a lot," says Bunker. "But they're going to pay the same wholesale price the guy off the street does."

The bulk of Royal's business is still done by mail and most of the Dixie Highway plant is either manufacturing and storage area or office space devoted to handling Royal business from all over the country. All of the company's inventory and ordering is computerized.

But the Clarkston area golfer can forget about the postman and just head direct for 10100 Dixie Highway near Ratafee Lake Road.

Clarkston Boasts Unusual Nursery

Well established rock garden flanks Pearson's front yard.

Judy Pearson setting up nursery display for upcoming gardening season.

A Hobby Grows into a Business

There are three nurseries in the state of Michigan that specialize in the sale of rock garden plants. One is owned by an elderly couple who will soon retire, another is operated by a woman who will be closing soon to pursue other interests and the third is in Clarkston.

Judy Pearson, owner, operator and bottler at the Owl Ridge Alpine Nurseries, says she'll stay in business as long as she can.

How long that will be depends only on the amount of traffic she can generate out to her backyard nursery on Whipple Lake Road. She certainly won't give up for a lack of interest.

Mrs. Pearson has a special affinity for the arcane branch of gardening with plants and in places where plants aren't supposed to grow.

She says her love for rock gardening began when she and her family moved to Clarkston from Pontiac fifteen years ago.

In Pontiac she had, like most people who bother at all, tried to dress up a rock wall in the backyard with greenery but succeeded only in replacing weeds with overgrown nursery stock.

"It takes a special kind of plant to do well in a rock garden," she says. "It's very hard to find the compact, low growing plants you need."

They come mostly from areas of high altitudes and rocky environments. Conventional nurseries don't often carry more than a couple of varieties."

When the Pearsons moved to Whipple Lake Road Judy decided to try rock gardening again, more scientifically.

"I stumbled on a book which started me in the right direction, and later joined the American Rock Garden Society," she says.

And last summer Owl Ridge Alpine Nursery was born.

"I had always gardened for relaxation...and it was good for me; I thought why not try to make a living at it."

Rock gardening, she says, takes a slightly different slant from traditional flower gardening. All of the plants at Owl Ridge are perennials, intended, in their reserved and demure way, to decorate inhospitable regions with patches of color and vegetation.

Rock garden species tend to be less showy than their comfortable flatlander cousins. Their flowers are no less bright, but less apt to shout.

Reflecting their wild origins, they tend to resemble nature more closely than does a rose hedge or a bed of annuals. Mrs. Pearson's selection also includes native wildflowers, which she has oft captured from seed right out of the field.

Rock garden varieties reflect their origins in other ways too. They don't always spring into bloom the first year of planting. Some take two or even three years to establish. Once established, however, they are usually hardy.

Rock gardening as a gardening specialty was imported to the United States about one hundred years ago from England and Scotland. And those two countries remain today the centers of sophistication and interest in the field.

In this country the east coast is a relative hotbed of rock gardening, with more nurseries in New England than in the rest of the country combined. California and Washington also have relatively high numbers of rock gardeners. But the Mid-West, except for Judy Pearson and about sixty other members of the American Rock Gardening Society's Great Lakes Chapter, remains something of backwater.

Mrs. Pearson isn't really trying to alter that condition, but she does think that this area is as good as any other for rock gardening. Here, like anywhere else, she says it takes some interest and commitment. Of course, a bit of friendly advice and a few starter plants from Owl Ridge probably wouldn't hurt either.

Titanic:

Historic Event of 1912 is Recalled

Editor's Note:

Last week marked the 69th anniversary of the sinking of the oceanliner, the Titanic. Among those most interested in the passing of another April 15 was Clarkston resident, Dallas Keffer. Mr. Keffer is a Clarkston High School student who has devoted much of his young life to the study of the ill-fated vessel and is considered a legitimate historian in the Titanic field. Among his work are volumes of information on the ship, its passengers and the fateful voyage. He has researched extensively the events surrounding the Titanic's genesis and turned that research into a veritable tome of Titanic literature. Keffer has also directed and produced his own movie on the Titanic and captured the ship's majesty in paintings. These accomplishments would be creditable in anyone; considering Dallas Keffer's age, they are truly remarkable. What follows are excerpts from Keffer's 1981 retelling of the Titanic disaster.

by Dallas Keffer

In the summer of 1907 a meeting took place in London that would lead to one of the most famous events in history. J. Bruce Ismay, president of White Star Steamship Lines, and his wife went to dine at the home of Lord Viscount and Lady James Pirrie. Lord Pirrie was a world renowned shipbuilder at the turn of the century. After dinner, the four aristocrats discussed the building of a trio of gigantic ships for White Star.

The idea became a reality just a short time later. On March 21, 1909, the keel of the Titanic was laid. Soon what looked like the framework of half a dozen cathedrals laid end to end materialized. By early 1911 the frame had been covered with huge steel plates and finally looked like a ship. So monstrous was this leviathan that it dwarfed the Cavehill Mountains when viewed from the shipyard.

The Titanic was completed in late March of 1912 and was handed over to White Star immediately after her successful sea trials. She then sailed under the command of White Star's 59 year-old commodore, Captain Edward James Smith, to Southampton, England where she would begin her notorious maiden voyage.

A maiden voyage at Southampton was always an exciting event. This one was even more special, since the Titanic was the largest and most luxurious ship in the world. On the morning of April 10, 1912, the Titanic was up at Ocean Dock. Crowds had been gathering for days; some were to be passengers, others were eager spectators. As they walked along the quay, all eyes were glued on the stunning behemoth. The Titanic was 882½ feet long, 92½ feet wide, and stood 250 feet above the water. Her long, graceful hull was topped by four tall, streamlined funnels each 70 feet tall.

From somewhere in the Arctic, a mammoth iceberg was drifting directly into the future path of the Titanic. The iceberg was to become infamous in maritime history as a most deadly foe.

The Titanic was steaming proudly across the North Atlantic. The weather was fine for an ocean voyage.

A few passengers relaxed outside on the promenade decks, enjoying the crisp breeze and working up a good appetite. Inside, passengers in first class dined in the large dining saloon. Those who did not wish to do so sat down to eat in the Restaurant or Cafe Parisienne. Among the many first class passengers were John Jacob Astor and his bride Madeline. Other passengers included Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Straus, proprietors of Macy's Department Store in New York; Charles Melville Hays, president of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railroads; Thomas Andrews, designer and builder of the Titanic and nephew of Lord Pirrie; Benjamin Guggenheim, mining magnate; J. Bruce Ismay; M. Rothschild; and Mrs. Margaret (Molly) Brown, who would achieve enduring fame after the disaster.

During the crossing several iceberg warnings were received over the Titanic's wireless telegraph, an instrument recently invented by Guglielmo Marconi. According to the reports, a number of large icebergs were drifting into the Titanic's path and it was advisable to alter course.

By Sunday, April 14, the Titanic was well over half way across the Atlantic and still moving ahead on the same course. J. Bruce Ismay, who had decided to sail to witness the success of his ship, felt there was no need to change course as the first and largest of the icebergs was not expected to be sighted until the next morning.

That night high in the crow's nest, lookouts Fredrick Fleet and Reginald Lee peered into the darkness. Their watch was almost over. At 11:40 p.m. Fleet saw something ahead in the black night. For a moment, he couldn't tell what it was -- a colossal iceberg, rising nearly 200 feet above the water and glistening in the starlight. Fleet rang the crow's nest bell three times, warning of danger ahead, then lifted the telephone and rang the bridge. "Iceberg, right ahead!"

The officer on the bridge who answered replied calmly, "Thank you." Then repeated the warning to First Officer Murdoch.

"Hard a-starboard!" Murdoch shouted. "Full speed astern! Close all watertight doors!"

The Titanic's bow swung slightly to port, but not enough. She turned sluggishly and passed by. On the surface it looked as if they had just missed. The mountain of ice glided by the starboard side. Underwater, a section of ice protruded from the berg and, as the oncoming mass of smooth steel came by, it ripped her open like a giant tin opener. For a mere ten seconds the ice ripped into the Titanic, leaving a wide gash 300 feet long. Aboard the ship, the impact was barely noticeable; just enough to rattle some glasses and silverware set at the dining room tables.

The Titanic stopped dead in the water. The iceberg was far behind in her wake. A few passengers who had been walking on the promenade deck caught a brief glimpse of the berg, but it promptly vanished in the darkness; gone as quickly as it had appeared. All was still and silent. Her engines had stopped, never to move again.

The order went out to muster the passengers and have them go up to the boat deck. In first and second class the passengers were annoyed by the fact that they had to get out of bed and go up to the deck so late at night. However, they finally mike morrow's trivia

Having been born into a family with two working parents I learned early in life that if I intended to eat I had better learn how to cook.

The learning did not come easy as my family will testify. I was the single-handed cause of two ruined kitchen carpets, one wallpaper job and in a truly unbelievable accident a totaled refrigerator.

Along the way though I learned a lot, including the true meaning of many of the words used in recipes. So it is with some authority that I offer my definitions of the following terms used in cooking.

TOSS: What you do when mixing a salad. Usually all over the counter and floor.

SET: What your Jello mold would, have done if you would have left it alone longer.

AU JUS: With natural juices. Roast Beef au jus is just roast beef with natural beef juice. Oatmeal au jus however is just another name for runny oatmeal.

BOIL: Usually followed by the word OVER.

PRE HEAT: What you say just before dropping the very hot pan of boiling potatoes all over the floor.

"%$": What you say just after dropping the pan full of boiling potatoes all over the floor.

GARNISH: The junk restaurant stick on the side of your dinner plate.

GIBLETS: The little packet of stuff inside the turkey that you immediately throw away. A nicer name for bird guts.

BREAD KNIFE: A large knife with teeth that is perfect for cutting your fingers severely.

There is one word closely associated with my cooking that I left out. If you are ever invited to my house for dinner you will probably learn the meaning of the word before the night is through.

The word is PARAMEDIC. That's the nice person who bandages me up just before rushing you to the hospital to have your stomach pumped.

Millage Set at Two Levels

The Clarkston School Board got down to naming their price in the millage game last week and they came up with two figures. One, a request for 3.0 additional mills for operations over 10 years, and another, for 6.0 mills over ten years.

The proposal which appears on the June 8 ballot will be determined later pending the outcome of a May vote on the tax cutting Proposal A.

The three mill request will be put forward if A fails. If Proposal A passes the board felt a three mill increase would be wiped out by the limits placed on local revenue increases.

In setting the request at three mills the board overstepped recommendations from school superintendent Milford Mason, who had suggested a 2.3 mill increase.

The millage money is intended to restore programs and personnel presently deleted from the school's 1981-82 budget. Without spending cuts or additional millage the district is facing an anticipated deficit of $1 million at the end of the school year.

Under Mason's proposal the district would be able to restore only half of the programs and personnel and none of the supplies which had been previously cut.

The board decided to aim higher and try to restore as much as possible, although they did concur with Mason's suggestion to apply the increase over two years.

With further increases in costs expected in 1982-83 this year's budget then would not realize the full benefit of the three mill boost (approximately $967,000).

The request was set after emotional pleas from the audience and board member, Robert Walters, to risk a higher figure in an attempt to keep the educational program at Clarkston intact.

Other board members had sided with Mason in feeling that it would be easier to sell something under three mills. But the tide turned when C. Vincent Luzi reversed and opted for the higher request.

His reversal turned a 3-4 vote into 4-3. The board then decided to repeat the whole process and make it unanimous.

CVP's Next Play "Deadwood Dick"

The Clarkston Village Players' next production "Deadwood Dick", or "The Game of Gold" is coming to the Depot Theatre May 1, 2, 8, 9, 10, 14, 15 and 16.

The action of the play takes place in Deadwood Gulch at Calamity Jane's "Man-Trap" Saloon in the late 1800's. The plot centers around a hidden gold mine and the black secret of the Sheriff's wife.

Mike Michalski stars as the villainous "Black 'n Red" who will stop at nothing to find out the location of the lost gold mine. Lee Rebennack as Wild Bill Hickok and Dave Brock as Ned Harris appear as the pair of handsome, noble heroes. The two innocent and sweet heroines, Lilly and Rose Blossom, are portrayed by Barb Markwood and Sandy Sanford.

Judy Rood is Calamity Jane, proprietress of the "Man-Trap" Saloon and Kathy Michalski as Piano Annie who enhances the drama with musical aplomb, and accompanies the vocal and dance numbers.

Tendin' bar is Chet Pussy played by Jim Tyrrel, who is recreating his original role when Players first staged "Deadwood" in 1966.

Scott Myers is Judge Nix and Chuck Haskins is Sheriff Loveless. Molly Loveless is played by Jan Malane. La Paloma, Spanish "Adventuress" is played by Barbara Crites.

This time Marie Luzi is Pong Ping, the Chinese cook, she originally played La Paloma in 1966. Nancy (Frad) Osmun was also in the original "Deadwood" as Lily but this time is the hatchet slinging crusader, Teetotal Tessie and Vi Biondi appears as one of the Hatcheteers.

Directing is Marlene Sewick, assisted by Denny Colwell and producing is Lee Brown.

Tickets are available at Tierra Arts and Design at 20 South Main Street, Clarkston or by calling 363-0188. A special benefit performance is scheduled for Thursday, May 14, for Youth Assistance. Curtain time at the Depot Theatre on White Lake Road is 8:30 p.m. except Sunday, May 10, when it is 7:30 p.m.

Pontiac State Bank is doing something about nature's most terrible storms

The danger of tornadoes comes to Oakland County every spring and fall. In the winter, it's ice and snow.

Pontiac State Bank is cooperating with station WPON to help safeguard the public from these and other emergencies. The station interrupts regular programming to broadcast news about all major hazards, and PSB sponsors the broadcasts.

But what if you're not tuned in?

Special radios are available specifically for the news alerts. They have no other purpose. The radios turn on automatically when WPON issues a warning signal. At all other times, the radios are silent.

PSB is donating the special radios to public and parochial schools in our area. We're also encouraging local retailers to stock the radios for anybody who would like to buy a set for their home.

The entire program is in operation now. As it should be. Our customers expect this kind of service from PSB. We're the active local bank.

Titanic

consented and began the journey. Up the grand staircase they went. The astors, the Strauses, all went up to the boat deck. Many had put on their evening dress once more. Society was very formal in 1912. The thought of being seen on deck in skimpy night clothes was appalling.

At 12:15 a.m., now April 25, the telegraph operators were told to send the distress signal.

The first lifeboat left the Titanic at 12:45 a.m.

As the minutes went by, more lifeboats were lowered. Once they had been rowed out far enough, their occupants could see the entire length of the Titanic. She was brightly lit from stern to stern and her four huge funnels stood out sharp in the night. She seemed as solid and powerful as ever, except for the ominous tilting toward the bow.

The last lifeboat lowered from the Titanic went over the side at 2:05 a.m. The excitement and confusion was over. A curious calm came over the Titanic. The hundreds of remaining passengers and crew clustered inward, keeping away from the rail. Mr. and Mrs. Isador Straus sat hand in hand in deck chairs. Mrs. Straus had refused to leave her husband when the call to abandon ship came. He refused to board a lifeboat, since the rule was "women and children first".

The Titanic was down hard at the bow. The lights now had an orange glow, showing the electricity was almost gone. Captain Smith walked onto the abandoned bridge for the last time. He thought about how he had planned to retire after this trip.

A deep, horrifying thunder sounded from within the Titanic as her boilers ripped loose from their beds and tumbled toward the bow.

The ship began to move forward in the water as the watertight bulkheads deep inside her gave way. Her bow then began to plunge rapidly and her stern rose high into the air. The thunder grew louder as everything moveable inside slid toward the bow. Twenty-nine boilers, three huge engines and the electric power plant, 5,000 tons of coal, the motorcars in the holds, three 16-ton anchors and their chains (each link weighed 175 pounds), the massive silver duck printing press, everything inside tumbled down to the bow. The water around the Titanic bubbled furiously as the great vessel slowly went under. The ship continued upending until she stood at a 90-degree angle, with her stern pointing straight at the starry sky. The thunder grew to a crescendo, then, suddenly, all was quiet. With half her length standing out of the water, the Titanic groaned and cried as her ornate woodwork strained. It was the only sound that could be heard. The ship's band, which had stopped the ragtime and played their last melody, the Episcopal hymn "Autumn", had gone under. All of the eight men drowned at their post.

After what seemed like eternity, the Titanic settled back slightly to stern, to an angle of about 75 degrees, then began sliding slowly and gracefully beneath the glassy ocean surface. As the survivors in the lifeboats looked with awe upon the dying behemoth, she slid under. Her stern plunged beneath the water and a great effervescence and cloud of smoke marked her grave. She would continue her downward journey until she reached the bottom, nearly three miles below.

Gone forever was the Titanic, the most beautiful ship to ever sail the seas. Years of work had gone into her, eleven lives were sacrificed building her. Of 2,217 passengers and crew who had embarked on her, only 705, a mere third of them, survived. 1,512 souls went to their deaths on the Titanic.

The 705 survivors were picked up the next morning by the Cunard liner Carpathia after several hours of shivering in the cold night air. None would ever forget the tragedy they had witnessed. The disaster remains to this day the most tragic in maritime history. The Titanic became the most famous and legendary vessel in world history. Her name, like the disaster, will remain forever on the lips of man, TITANIC.

Terri Douglas inspects a frame for a customer.

Frame Shop Has New Owners

Terri Douglas has been working with frames for a couple of years as Russ Klatt's manager for his Waterfall Plaza frame store. Thus when he decided to sell it was only natural that Terri be the buyer.

So now, the once-called Frame-Art store is now called Frames-n-Art. But that's about the only change, customers will notice when they enter the Waterfall store.

Terri, with her parents, has taken on the added financial responsibilities inherent in owning a business. But, her smiling face, still man's the store 8 hours a day, 6 days a week. And her framing expertise is still utilized as all the framing is done right at the store.

And the wide range of merchandise and services are still being offered. Items like redi-made frames, stand-up frames, regular and non-glare glass, custom, needlepoints, frame kits, custom matting and frame repair are all readily available at Frames-n-Art.

Service for most frames is one week, a far cry from the three or four weeks many frame shops require. Prices are also quite reasonable.

Officials Attend Briefing

Parks commission chairman Lewis Wint and manager Eric Reickel attended a National Recreation and Park Association national briefing session on Federal resource funding proposals in Washington, D.C. on March 25 and 26.

The meeting was attended by parks and recreation professionals from throughout the country to encourage our congressmen to maintain the current level of Land and Water Conservation funding.

Many Oakland County Parks projects have been made possible through these funds including new campsite development at Groveland and Addison, the Waterford Oaks Tennis and Sports Games Complex and the recently-acquired Orion Oaks County Park.

President Reagan's administration has proposed that $105 million in Land and Water Conservation Funds be diverted into restoration and improvement of the National Park System. The administration has also proposed that $45 million go into Federal land acquisition.

Pvt. 1 John M. Eiden, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Eiden of 8274 Ellis, Clarkston, recently completed One State Unit Training (OSUT) at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia.

OSUT is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training.

SKEPTICS

O.K. You've read about Chiropractic, you've heard about Chiropractic, you may even know someone benefitting from Chiropractic Care ... still you are skeptical ... Still you continue to live with pain.

More often than not the story is the same. You have spent years suffering with pain and discomfort. The medical doctors have tried every known medication to cure your condition, but it was all in vain. The pills and medicines may have helped for awhile, but the pain would return and you had to keep popping pills to feel good. You may even have had an operation or two, in a futile attempt to "cut out" the pain.

Now the doctors don't really know what to do for you.

CHIROPRACTIC PUTS AN END TO SUFFERING. If you are skeptical and this story fits you, now is the time to pick up your phone and take us up on a FREE SPINAL EXAMINATION AND NERVE TEST for new patients. Chiropractic gets results.

It's Not Just for Sore Backs!

For New Patients

come first and the fee is second. We have a family plan, call and ask about it.

To get your Free Spinal Examination and Nerve Test ...

You must call the Rumph Chiropractic Life Center at 673-1215 and SCHEDULE AN APPOINTMENT TIME for your Free Test.

AFTER YOU FILL OUT A CASE HISTORY FORM, we will begin your Free Spinal Examination and Nerve Test.
