Moon Valley Rustic Furniture Destroyed in Blaze

Firefighters from five townships responded to last Friday's inferno at Moon Valley Rustic Furniture on Dixie Highway. But to no avail. The 50-year-old plant was completely leveled in less than two hours.

Moon Valley employees were at lunch when the fire started in the rear of the building and Monday Independence Fire Chief, Frank "Tink" Ronk, said no cause had been determined.

No injuries were reported, but Ronk said the building and its contents were valued at over $200,000.

editor's note

Many times in the past, The Reminder has cajoled and reprimanded our State Legislature for not tackling the school funding crisis we are experiencing in Clarkston, Holly and elsewhere.

Unfortunately, those reprimands fell on deaf ears. The State has had a half dozen years to deal with the situation. Each year it gets worse and worse -- yet still nothing is done.

Clarkston, if it does not get passage of the three new mills it is requesting will have to many severe cuts if it is to stay in business as a school district. Other districts have already made those cuts -- they've survived but the quality of education being offered is poor.

Getting the Legislature to make changes is a long, cumbersome process. Although they've been discussing it for a decade, they aren't anywhere near changing the state aid formula.

What we have to do, as citizens who care about education, is constantly pressure our local lawmakers. Groups are organizing to take the cause to Lansing -- join them, support them, encourage them.

At the same time local school districts are facing the worst financial crisis ever, the Department of Defense has made some rather questionable decisions to purchase foreign-made vehicles. Yes, that's right. When the President and the Congress are working to keep the domestic automobile industry from going under, the Department of Defense is buying foreign-built vehicles for the government.

Congressman William Broomfield reports that the Defense Department plans to replace, by 1985, its entire fleet of noncombatant trucks in Europe with European-built vehicles. That's more than 20,000 vehicles costing taxpayers over $300 million.

We agree with Congressman Broomfield who calls the procurement decision outrageous.

Our cover story this week is about one of the most spectacular fires ever to hit Clarkston. My heart goes out to the Beatties, who lost a building and part of their Moon Valley Rustic Furniture inventory.

I know my heart was pounding as I sped back from lunch to view the fire. From where I was coming from it looked like it could be The Reminder on fire. As I got closer and closer, it looked like my worst fears were materializing.

Then, I saw it was a quarter of a mile down the road and I let out a sigh of relief. I can't imagine watching my life's work go up in flames. Moon Valley is a family business that had built up a fine reputation in the rustic furniture industry. Let's hope it won't take too much to recover -- and that the Beattie's can continue building furniture in Clarkston.

No Quick Solutions to School Dilemma

Letter to the Editor

It's time we began to look at education as a financial investment, both in our children and in the future of our community and our country. We've come a long way from the days when only the very wealthy or the very zealous received an education. We must continue that great progress for a fundamental education for all and not regress to learning for a select few.

The field of education has been assaulted from many sides in the last decade particularly. The current popular explanation is that the state budget has been balanced on the back of education. In other words, after all other departments and services have received what they want, education gets what's left over.

Take a look at a state appropriations chart sometime and see the increase in the social services budget, for example, compared with the decrease in funds for education. Lansing, it seems, would prefer to leave the problems of funding education to the local school districts.

Each June, all the while, these local districts hold elections -- for board members, for millage renewals and for millage increases. There was a time when local administrators kept their fingers crossed and hoped for passage of new millage but were fairly confident of approval of millage renewals. After all, they reasoned, the taxpayers were already accustomed to paying those dollars. Now, however, the renewals themselves are in jeopardy and passage of new millage is regarded as something of a miracle.

At the same time during this last decade, local property taxes, the prime source of educational funding, have increased at an alarming rate along with the rate of inflation. Our state's economy is down; our personal income levels have not kept pace. We have less spendable income than ever before and we don't need an economist to explain that to us.

The recent trend has been toward attempts at tax reform. So far none of the proposals has met with the approval of the majority of the voters. On the average each proposal would have benefited some segments of the economy and population while others would have suffered. People fear, and maybe with just cause, leaving implementation of these tax proposals to our elected officials in Lansing.

As an example, whatever benefits may have been realized by the Headlee amendment have been lost in publicity of its disadvantages. Many people still do not understand if it's working the way it was intended to or not.

On May 19, we had still another choice. Was Proposal A the answer to our need for tax reform? Overwhelmingly, statewide and townshipwide, the voters said it was not. In effect, we have sent our legislators back to the drawing board to do the job they were elected to do in the first place, to come up with an acceptable, equitable answer to our needs.

On June 8, we must make still another choice. Do we, or do we not, want to spend more money for education? To put it another way, do we want to increase our investment in our children's education and in our future as well?

Many people who have contact with the Clarkston Schools as employees, parents or just interested citizens know that we are not an extravagant district. For the most part, we have responsible, dedicated administrators and teachers. We do not have educational "frills", we do have a pretty basic school system. What extras or enrichment programs we do have are due to the efforts of teachers and volunteers who recognize the need for them. If our enrollment is declining, it only means our over-crowded classrooms are gradually returning to a "teachable" level.

Some people claim that athletics, band and other extracurricular activities, plus some specialized or advanced classes do not need to be part of the educational program. Some even feel they should be paid for by the students who participate in them. Other disagree feeling they are an integral part of the total education of the child, that they play an important role in shaping him as an individual.

Some people say, in effect, that schools shouldn't provide what they do today because schools didn't provide them forty or fifty years ago when they themselves were in school. But consider how much more com-

Dobson Open Set

The second annual Dobson Open, a fundraising golf outing and banquet event, has been set for Friday, July 24, at Spring Lake Country Club. The activity is designed to raise money for the Tim and Jennifer Dobson Memorial Scholarship fund for graduating seniors at Clarkston Senior High School.

Tim and Jennifer, the children of Clarkston residents Ron and Janet Dobson, were killed in a May 9, 1980 plane crash which also took the life of Mr. Dobson. The scholarship program was set up by friends of the Dobson family led by Oakland County Prosecutor, L. Brooks Patterson, and was successful in raising $3,000 in scholarships for CHS students this year.

The 1981 outing will begin at 8:30 a.m. with tee times available until 12:30 p.m. Golf reservations entitle the golfer to 18 holes, breakfast, buffet lunch and steak dinner with open bar.

The banquet is scheduled to begin around 6:30 p.m. and golfers are invited to bring spouses. Non-golfers are also welcome to come for dinner and entertainment provided by Del Ray.

Tickets for the event can be purchased by calling Mr. Patterson's office, 858-0646, or Dan Daniels at 623-0585.

Asparagus Sale

Three area food cooperatives have joined forces to purchase Michigan grown asparagus in bulk quantities at co-op prices. The purchasing arrangement is open to co-op members and to any area resident. There will be a total of three, 1500 pound truckloads delivered locally direct from Michigan farms.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in a story that appeared here last week that Independence Township department heads salaries for 1981-82 had been set at $23,625. The $23,625 figure was the mean salary level for department heads in 1980-81. The correct figure, $25,800, reflects the 9.3 percent increase by the township board.

Reading to Start

Independence Township Library's Summer Reading Club, Adventures '81, will hold registration June 1 through June 20. It meets every Wednesday from June 17 through August 5 from 1-2:30 p.m. For more information, call 625-2212.

WHY HAVE I PUT OFF PRE-PLANNING MY FUNERAL?

The thought of one's own death is hard enough in itself! There is also the uneasiness of not knowing how to go about pre-planning your own funeral.

Perhaps reading some materials which present pre-plan facts and options would be helpful. We have specially prepared pamphlets you may take home and read at your convenience.

When you become acquainted with the facts, it will become apparent that three general stages of pre-planning are available:

1. Pre-Planning - discussion of the important items you want included in your funeral with the person most likely to have to handle the details.

2. Pre-Arranging - discussion of the details with the funeral director.

3. Pre-Financing - which would include a contract between you and your funeral home covering the extent and cost of the services you specify.

In these days of serious inflation, you might wish to consider our Inflation-Proof Pre-Plan option.

School Financing: A Hornet's Nest?

by Dawson Bell

Five years ago the nation's schools faced a crisis symbolized by the headline query "Why Can't Johnny Read?" Responding to the charge that they were doing a lousy job, educators scrambled back into basics and in 1981 Johnny's reading, or at least the manipulation of these test scores, has improved.

But in another five years Johnny may be illiterate again and this time no one will have to look very far for the answer. Johnny's teacher got laid off and he's in a classroom with 35 other kids trying to shout loud enough to be heard.

School systems across the country are going broke trying to keep their programs together and Clarkston is no exception.

On June 8 area voters will be polled on their willingness to supply the Clarkston district with three more mills for operations.

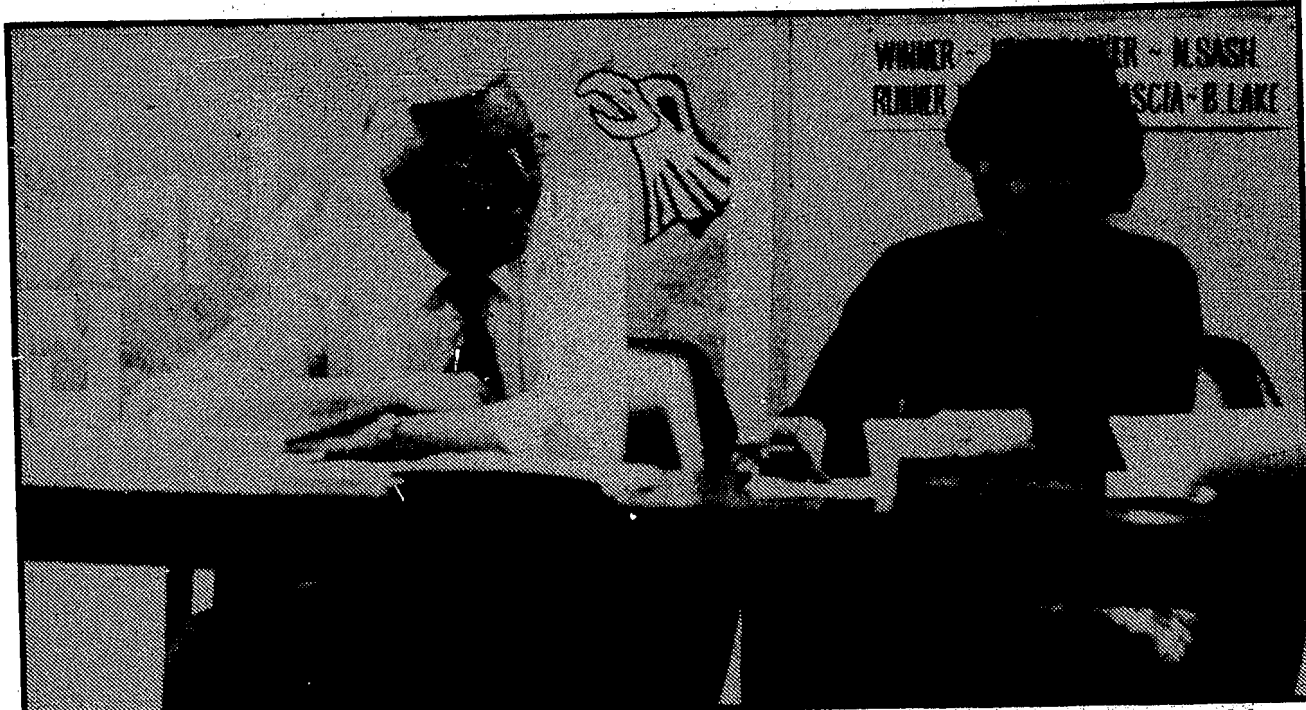

Although supporters remain outwardly optimistic the outcome will be favorable, they admit circumstances could be better.

Chief among the elements working against a millage increase is the still smoldering property tax revolt. Despite the recent defeat of Proposal A not very many school boosters believe the issue will fall by the wayside. And most of the revisions of the property tax system posed so far would dig a deeper hole for education.

The long established relationship of schools and property is falling apart. K-12 education seems to be hitched to a falling star.

But what rankles most for school supporters like Clarkston Superintendent Milford Mason is the feeling that they haven't benefited very much while the property tax star was on the rise.

Mason has said repeatedly, "Nobody seems to understand that increased assessments and increased property taxes don't necessarily mean increased revenues to the schools."

Clarkston Schools Superintendent Milford Mason, left, and school board president Janet Thomas would rather laugh than cry over the plight of the "in-formula" school district.

What they do mean, he thinks, is increased reluctance on the part of local voters to approve millages at the same time the State of Michigan is tightening the screws on their own support to schools.

In any discussion of school financing the State Legislature plays the most important role, and in these times becomes the villain of the piece, because of its control of the state aid formula.

The formula is ostensibly designed to equalize the number of dollars spent per pupil in schools throughout the state. Because local dollars (even inflated local dollars) in most cases don't pay the full freight for educational costs, the balance is supposed to be made up in state funding as defined in the formula.

But with soaring property taxes some districts have gone right off the end of the scale and produce so much in local revenue that they don't require state support at all. And the districts left "in-formula" are finding the state is steadily decreasing the percentage of "equalizing" dollars it is to spend.

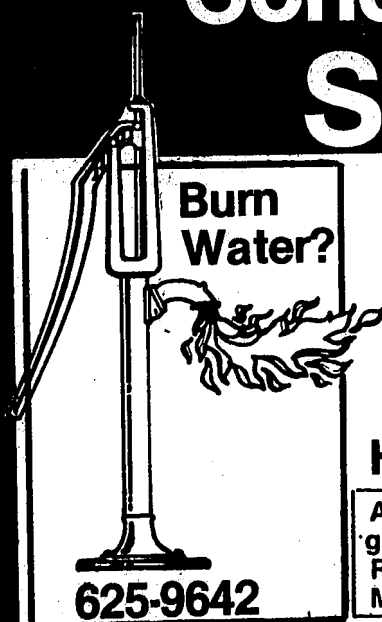

For example -- in 1965 the state supplied 65 cents of every $1.00 spent on K-12 education. In 1981 the figure was 35 cents on the dollar and in 1982 it is expected to fall to 30 cents.

Under those conditions one would expect school boards to be spending less time exhorting voters for millage support and more time on recalling legislators.

But the ranks are fragmented and beleaguered. On one hand, the "out-of-formula" districts, those that generate all their revenue locally, are more than happy with the status quo; they do benefit from assessment increases.

A Real Dilemma School Financing

For some out-of-formula school boards the financial quandary in recent years has been in deciding how many of the voted mills they needed to levy.

And on the other hand, legislators have enough recall worries about the way they are spending tax dollars already. Almost everyone claims to support education, but when it comes to discussing how to increase the tax load to pay for it or how to reduce expenditures in other areas, politicians keep silent.

One thing everyone (except the out-of-formula districts) seems to agree on is that the present system isn't working.

Last year, the per pupil revenue for districts in Oakland ranged from Holly's $1,643 to Southfield $3,442. Clarkston came in at $1,674.

For most in-formula districts, and especially for in-formula districts in areas where school expenses are fairly high like suburbanized North Oakland County, the state's formula for equalization has become a formula for equalized desperation.

The problems are compounded too by other factors. Enrollments are declining even in high growth areas like Clarkston. And while many costs remain constant (or are inflated), declining enrollments mean less money coming from Lansing in the form of membership aid.

Dropping enrollments also mean, simply, fewer voters (28 percent in Clarkston) have children in school. Minorities don't pass millages. Nor are they likely to elicit increased state support from legislators who can look at K-12 education not so much as an integral part of society, but merely as another special interest group.

Spreen and Smith Working on "Scooter Patrol"

Independence Township police protection may be upgraded if a pilot program for additional patrol coverage being developed by township supervisor James Smith and Oakland County Sheriff Johannes Spreen is worked out.

The pilot project would be modeled after a similar program instituted by Spreen in New York City known as the (motor) "scooter patrol", a volunteer street patrol force.

In discussions held over the past few weeks, Spreen has indicated to Smith that he would actively pursue the development of additional police patrol in the area if a plan can be worked out.

The basic elements of the program, as sketched out by Smith, would require the township come up with vehicles, possibly provided by local car dealers, and the sheriff's department would provide manpower, either in the form of regular deputies, reserves or interns.

Smith said the discussions were still very tentative, but that he was very encouraged by the cooperation he was receiving from the sheriff's department.

"My idea is to provide a higher visibility of police protection in the community," he said.

"Our concern is with the increasing vandalism and break-ins in the area. Two deputies (the current level of police protection in Independence) just can't be everywhere."

Spreen also called the spirit of cooperation "outstanding" and said the pilot program in Independence, and another being developed for Avon Township, could provide the basis for a countywide system of increased police protection.

He said, "All I need is the cars. If I can get the cars to do the job, I can fill them."

The patrols could provide supplemental coverage for local areas without high resources at "no cost" to the township, he said.

Spreen admitted however the idea was still only tentative. And major stumbling blocks exist in the form of insurance coverage and sanction from county government.

Spreen said he had been trying "for years" to get something like his "scooter patrol" going in Oakland County, but that he has been unable to interest county executive Daniel Murphy in the project.

"This time I hope I can waltz into Dan Murphy's office with an offer he can't refuse," Spreen said.

If such an offer is to be made he will first have to work out prospective insurance problems. Although Spreen said he could initially man the extra patrol cars with available sheriff's deputies, his plan to use reserves and interns, backed by full deputization, could meet resistance.

Nevertheless, both Spreen and Smith are optimistic at this point the preliminary discussions will lead to some form of increased service. "If we can get this thing together, it could mean the best damn patrol coverage this county has ever seen," said Spreen.

DNR Cites Powell for "Non-compliance"

by Dawson Bell

More than a year after he stopped using his own landfill and two weeks after getting out of the garbage business altogether, Jerry Powell, former owner of Ben Powell Disposal in Clarkston, is still up to his ears in solid waste as far as the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is concerned.

According to Valerie Burgess, of the DNR's Resource Recovery Division, the Powell landfill located on 17 acres off Clarkston Orion Road, has not been officially closed and until it is, and for a two year maintenance period following official closing, Powell will remain under state jurisdiction.

Burgess said a recent review of resource recovery files indicated Powell was in "non-compliance" for not having completed required restoration of the landfill which was "closed" in September of 1979. And the DNR has since sent Powell a notice to that effect.

The uncompleted work includes mandatory cover and grading, according to Burgess. If the restoration work is not performed she said Powell would be cited with a "notice of violation" and face legal action.

Powell admitted that some of the work the DNR had required for official closing has not been done. But he was reluctant to say when it would be.

"I've put a lot of clay (cover) out there," he said, "but I don't have a half a million bucks and I'm just not buying this (DNR requirement of) two feet of clay over everything."

Powell said the expense involved in meeting the DNR guidelines was exorbitant but acknowledged he could be in for a legal hassle if he doesn't do the work.

"If push comes to shove they might take my bond and bill me for the rest," he said.

The landfill was closed after neighboring residents complained it was a public nuisance and put pressure on the DNR to force closing and restorative work. Then, in

"I've put a lot of clay out there, but I don't have a half million bucks and I'm just not buying this (DNR requirement of) two feet of clay over everything..."

Jerry Powell

early May of this year, Powell sold the family waste hauling business to Leonard Smith.

Powell said he thinks his landfill has been reclaimed to a greater degree than many private landfills and other public and private landfills and pointed to the old county landfill on M-15 north of Clarkston as an example.

"I don't think they did anything up there when they shut it down except close the gates," he said.

CURE Aims for Legislative Remedy

by Dawson Bell
Clarkston's Carol Balzarini says she "can't face another millage campaign." Not because she doesn't support the principle of increased support for schools, but because she is tired of seeing local school systems try to open with what she feels is not a provincial problem.

With that thought in mind Mrs. Balzarini, and her friend and neighbor Karen Ohrenberger, have joined forces with other Lansing directed school supporters and formed a group called Citizens United to Restore Education (CURE).

"We wanted to start working on a more equitable funding of K-12 education and we decided to work on the state level," she says. "We thought we could be more effective working on legislators than we could on taxpayers."

CURE is yet in its formative stages, but has received, by resolution last Thursday, the sanction of the Clarkston School Board.

The coalition is made up of citizens from

Carol Balzarini

Avondale, Holly, Huron Valley and Lake Orion. All of those systems are facing or likely to face soon the unwelcome prospect of going to the voters for increased operational support.

Balzarini calls the endless cycle of financial crisis millage requests too much to live with.

"The kids can't live with it; the parents

there is $600,000,000 earmarked for K-12 education. The Clarkston schools, despite what the board and the administration claim have been "bare bones" cutbacks, spent a million more dollars in 1980-81 than they did in 1979-80. And the projected budget for 1981-82, the one which triggered the recent flurry of activity on the school board, would require more than a million more. $13,355,530 (Clarkston's 1981-82 budget after recent cuts) may not be enough, but it would be hard to argue it is not a lot.

It all adds up to a very expensive service which, in the words of Milford Mason, "Isn't on a high level or priority anymore." Mason doesn't think the state will let education sink, but before it can be truly revitalized he expects some fairly radical changes in structure may be required.

Possibilities include the consolidation of more school districts, more centralized administration, possibly even a county-wide school system.

It has also been suggested the federal government should pick up more of the tab for K-12 education. But that idea, and even the consolidation of school districts, is often met with resistance by those who feel schools need to be locally controlled.

Given the current economic and political climate, there isn't much point in speculating on how much more money that state or federal government is going to contribute to schools anyway. Local control isn't a matter of choice; it's simply something to live with while one waits for the millage returns.

can't cope with it. There's just too much insecurity," she says.

"There has got to be a more equitable form of funding."

She believes a concerted effort on the part of parents and educators directed at legislators could help turn things around.

"I don't think they (the legislature) have really sat down to do anything thoughtful. I don't think there is any reason we can't find something which is all right for everybody."

What that something is though Mrs. Balzarini is less sure of.

"We're not economists by any means," she says. "We're just parents who are concerned."

CURE has laid out a four step strategy to pursue, the most immediate aspect of which is to dissuade legislators from passing any panic legislation in the aftermath of Proposal A's defeat.

Then, given a stable, if inequitable, system of state aid to schools, they would like to pursue the possibilities of a supplemental appropriation for education or, at the least, the assurance that current guaranteed levels will not be cut.

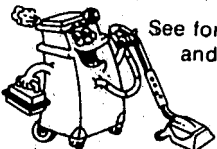

Finally, the group will pursue its advocacy of a more equitable method of K-12 school support. It has got to work claims Carol Balzarini. "What kind of world are you going to have if your children aren't educated?"

Springfield Poses Road Requests

Springfield Township residents aired dissatisfaction on a number of traffic related problems at a recent meeting of the township board.

The chief concern, backed up by petitions signed by over 200 residents, is the absence of a traffic signal at the intersection of Davisburg Road and Dixie Highway. There is entirely too much traffic using the intersection for crossing and access to Dixie, residents say, to allow motorists on the highway to speed by unchecked at over 50 MPH.

The board also voted to send requests to the county road commission for the placement of speed limit signs on three of the township's heavily traveled gravel roads: Davisburg east of Dixie; Tindall Road between Carriage Trail and Davisburg; and Crosby Lake Road between Andersonville and Teggerdine Roads.

Supervisor Collin Walls said the requests for both the traffic light and the speed limit signs had been made before to no avail.

He said the road commission refuses to erect speed limit signs in areas they consider "non-residential".

Of the light Walls said he had been asking for it for years and "It's my assumption we'll just have to continue asking until it gets there."

The board sent along an additional proposal to the road commission to lower the speed limit on Davisburg Road east of town past Dilley Road to 35 MPH from 50 MPH.

That suggestion came after Davisburg resident Lorraine Woods, 11771 Davisburg Road, told the board she couldn't cross the street to her mailbox without running while autos were approaching at 50 MPH.

The board approved written communication with the road commission on the whole parcel of proposals.

County OKs Pine Knob Police Contract

The Oakland County Board of Commissioners approved a police contract with Pine Knob Investment Corporation last Thursday, insuring the presence of county sheriff's deputies for crowd and traffic control at this summer's concerts.

The approval came within 24 hours after Pine Knob Investment paid the last installment on the police services bill from last year.

The rate of pay for the deputies has been set at $17.98 per hour, a change from past policy which required Pine Knob to pay police officers time and a half.

Under the agreement, the officers will provide crowd and traffic control before and after concerts outside the theatre located on Sashabaw Road in Independence Township. The agreement also stipulated monthly billing for the services and interest charges on late payments.

Status Quo Upheld A Defeated

In heavy voter turnout for a special, one issue, election local voters rejected the Milliken/Legislative tax cutting Proposal A by margins more than double the statewide average.

In Independence, 6,438 voters turned out and cast 5,479 "no" votes to 930 "yes". In Springfield Township, the margin was even greater, nearly 8 to 1 against with close to 2500 votes cast.

Proposal A would have cut homestead property taxes by close to 50 percent. But it would also have provided for an increase in the state sales tax from 4 percent to 5.5 percent, and that apparently turned a lot of voters off.

The proposal came out of the legislature in late March with what seemed to be broad based support. But a combination of disenfranchised property tax reformers who wanted a more clear cut reduction along the lines forwarded by Shiawassee County Drain Commissioner, Robert Tisch, and others who felt the measure would hamper local services and undermine education served to defeat Proposal A almost 3 to 1 across the state.

Stolaruk Hearing June 24

A June 24 court hearing has been set in Oakland County Circuit Court for Independence Township attorneys to plead for the forfeiture of a $20,000 bond on unfinished reclamation at the Stolaruk gravel mine.

The hearing comes after lengthy litigation between the two parties in which Independence alleges Stolaruk violated a 1979 consent agreement to restore the property, located at the corner of Sashabaw and Stickney Roads. The restoration was to include retention basins and grass seeding to slow the erosion off the site. Neighboring residents have complained the unfinished work has resulted in damage, by water runoff and erosion, to their property.

And the bond was once before, at the township's request, ordered forfeited in the court of Circuit Judge Farrell Roberts. That decision was appealed however and returned to Roberts.

A March 19 action by the township board has initiated this most recent push to seek forfeiture and comes after Stolaruk failed once again to perform the work required, according to township zoning enforcement officer James Hock.

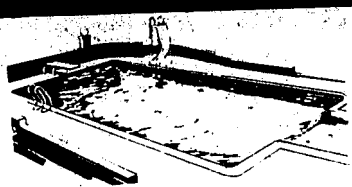

Hock said that some work had been completed, but that it fell far short of the standards set in the consent agreement. He said action on the bond had been delayed following the March meeting in the hope that restoration would be made.

The township had been reluctant to pursue the matter in court if it seemed likely it could be resolved outside because the $20,000 bond will not come close to covering the cost of reclamation, Hock said.

And it is still hoped the threat of bond forfeiture will force the company into action. Hock said the size and terms of future bonded projects by the company would significantly be affected by a forfeiture. "The bond won't cover it (the needed restoration)," Hock said. "But he'll be up against it in municipal bonding if it's forfeited."

Millage Request Set at Three

In a brief and unanimous vote the Clarkston School Board moved last week to set the millage request for the June 8 school election at 3 mills for operations. The board's action came two days after the tax cutting Proposal A was resoundingly defeated by Michigan voters.

The board had previously expressed the intention of requesting 6 mills if A passed based on projected cuts in funding from the measure's 6 percent cap on growth in property tax revenue.

The board also decided to hold another special meeting on Tuesday, May 26, to spell out a reinstatement program for the district if the millage passes.

Under current working plans for the 1981-82 budget year, the board has approved cuts totaling almost $1 million, including teacher and administrative layoffs, supply cuts and an end to extracurricular activities.

And since the administration and the board have indicated they will try to carry any new millage over at least two years it is expected the reinstatement program will fall short of complete restoration.

Groveland Wins Stablex Appeal

The Michigan Court of Appeals has overturned a lower court ruling and sided with Groveland Township in its fight to bar the construction of a hazardous waste disposal plant proposed by the Stablex Corporation of Radnor, Pennsylvania.

In handing down the ruling last week the court upheld the arguments of Groveland attorney, Thomas Plunkett, that the proposed plant would violate township zoning ordinances.

Oakland County Circuit Court Judge, William Beer, had entered the earlier decision and, for a time, construction of the proposed facility had proceeded.

The plant was intended to handle hazardous industrial waste, using a patented process for the transformation of liquid waste into an inert, rock-like substance which would be buried on the site.

Stablex introduced the plan in June of 1978 when they leased a four-acre parcel near Dixie Highway from Tri-City Aggregates Inc. But opposition from the township forced the matter into the courts. Groveland Township clerk, Beth Steele, said $80,000 in legal fees have been spent to date in the fight to block construction.

As of last Thursday Stablex was still reviewing the decision and a spokesman said an appeal was possible.

Vintage Car Racing

Waterford Hills road racing club will play host to special vintage sports car races on both Saturday and Sunday, May 30-31. The vintage racers, all built prior to 1961, will compete on the tight-and-twisty, 1½-mile Waterford Hills circuit, joining Waterford's regular race schedule as an added attraction.

Members of the Vintage Sports Car Club of America and the Vintage Automobile Racing Association of Canada are expected to be on hand for the annual competition. Many of their antique vehicles look more like museum pieces than race cars.

This weekend's competition will also feature Waterford's regular drivers, battling it out on the 13-right-and-left-turn track in open-wheel formula cars, production sports cars and sedans. The track opens at 10 a.m. Saturday and Sunday for practice and qualifying. Racing starts at 2 p.m. Saturday and at 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

Tennis Tournaments June 5-7

The tennis season gets into full swing at the Waterford Oaks Tennis and Court Games Complex with two tournaments June 5-7.

The Waterford Oaks Junior Invitational and the Oakland County Mixed Open will take place June 5 through June 7 at the complex.

The Junior Invitational will include at least four nationally ranked players in each of its 10 divisions, according to Kathy Placilla, tournament director.

"We will have the top 16 players in southeastern Michigan in each division," Placilla added.

Sound Off

One man's noise is another man's music. This became a proven fact recently at Clarkston Senior High when a new policy was administered, turning the sound off.

Consequently, the once prominate portable stereos and speaker systems installed in lockers are becoming increasingly scarce. Halls once bombarded with rock and roll are growing quieter as radios are confiscated on sight.

Although it is unusual to create a new school policy with senior graduation drawing so near, students once allowed the privilege to play their favorite music at lunch, between classes, or in study hall were considered by faculty members as too bothersome to ignore.

Apparently, those in control of the "music-makers" made too great an effort to break the monotony and couldn't bare to keep the volume down low enough to avoid disrupting in-session classes.

Despite the belief that rock and roll will live forever, it has been sentenced to an untimely death in the halls of Clarkston High. This time, cutbacks cannot be blamed for making the radio listening activity solely extra-cirricular for sophomore, junior, and senior students.

In prediction, the no radio policy of CHS will most likely be renewed annually to the dismay of rock and rollers. Whether or not Bach or Beethoven would be permissable "jams" is a question left unanswered as students leave their radios home.

plex our whole way of life is today compared with that of past generations. Just because students didn't have calculators for math and chemistry at one time doesn't mean they shouldn't have them now. We had one-room schoolhouses at one time. Should we have them now?

There are no quick and easy solutions to the problems of school funding. Only through the efforts of many people on a long-term basis can we put education back in its former place as a priority item in the state budget.

Until that is accomplished, we must make every effort to support our local schools, to understand their problems, and to help them in any way we can. At the same time, we can join in the growing effort to change the methods of school financing in the State of Michigan.

Sincerely,
Carol D. Balzarini, Co-chairman
Clarkston Schools Legislative Committee

Forsyth Leads Lady Wolves to 2 Wins

Lisa Forsyth continued to lead the way as the CHS girl's softball team prepared for pre-district action last week.

Forsyth notched two more victories on the mound, bringing her record to 8-1, as the softballers downed Rochester and Waterford Kettering.

On Monday the senior righthanded aided her own cause in a 6-2 victory over Rochester as she pounded out a triple and a single in three at bats. Lynette Whitehead also had four singles and Annette Ulasich had a homer

Wyckoff Jumps to County Track Title

The Clarkston High School boys and girls track teams closed out their 1981 seasons last week with league and county meets. As has been the problem all year, fine individual performances, were overshadowed by a lack of team depth.

The girls placed fifth in the six team Greater Oakland Activities League meet on the strength of a record setting high jump from Kelly Craig (5'4") and Sherry Rowland's third place in the two mile.

Two days later Craig cleared the same height, good for sixth place in county competition.

The boys team faired hardly better with the exception of Steve Wyckoff's return to form on Friday in county competition. Wyckoff took the high jump with a leap of 6'8", marking the first time he has reached that height since setting a school record in the first week of the season. Wyckoff's improvement came just in time following the GOAL meet in which he place second at 6'6".

and a single with two runs batted in. On Tuesday Forsyth tossed a five inning one hitter as Clarkston destroyed Kettering 12-0. The Wolves finished league play at 6-3.

mike morrow's trivia

by Mike Morrow

There are three different kinds of law mowers and I don't mean the machines. I mean the people who push them. The first group lovingly manicure their lawn twice a week. The second group mows when the yard needs it. The third group mow once a year or more often only if they need to find the grill or a small child lost in the weeds.

I think it probably goes without saying that I fit into the third group. Unfortunately my neighbors fit into the first group. They hate my guts.

One of the reasons I hate mowing is that I can never get the darn thing started. Of course that could be because I don't take care of the mower. To clean it I leave it out in the rain and the last time it got oiled was three years ago when I was cooking outside and accidentally dropped a greasy hamburger on it.

If I took better care of the mower it would probably start earlier, but what incentive do I have? When I do get it started all I have to look forward to is mowing a yard the size of Kansas. Many people enjoy having a large backyard, but for a guy who asked to have the yard cemented over for a birthday present, a large yard is not a blessing.

Another thing I hate about mowing is that to do the job properly you should first pick up all the paper and garbage in the yard and then after mowing you should rake up all the cut grass. I never do either. So when I'm done mowing it looks like we had a confetti party in the hay field to celebrate the harvest.

Not only is my yard big but it's hilly, holey and covered with trees that shed their twigs uncontrollably. That combination makes the yard like a minefield where I trip, get smacked in the face by tree limbs and take the shrapnel fallout from all the twigs I mow over.

These are some of the reasons I love mowing as much as emergency surgery (and with the way I mow the two often go hand in hand).

A spectacular fire broke out last Friday at Moon Valley Rustic Furniture, 6465 Dixie Highway, Clarkston, and completely leveled the shop's 50-year-old production facility. There were no injuries.

The fire started at approximately 12:30 p.m. and apparently went undetected for several minutes while Moon Valley employees were eating lunch.

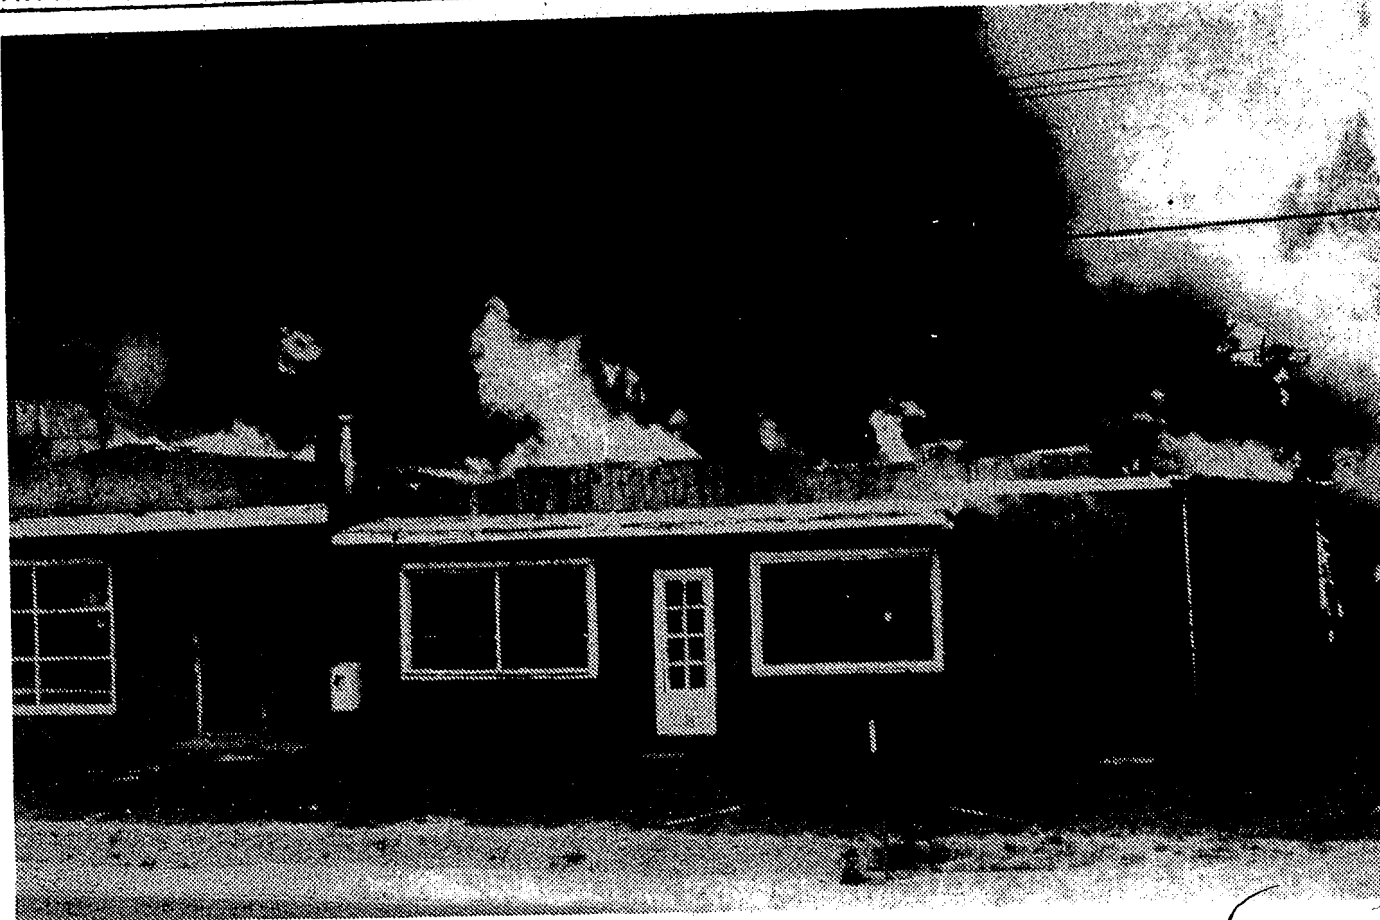

Three of those employees were even in the building at the time but it was not until Boyd Brokenshaw had finished his meal and was returning to the rear of the building that the fire was discovered.

It spread so quickly that by the time secretary Carol Thomas had picked up the phone in the front office to call the fire department the line was already dead. The alarm was sent in from a phone in the party store across the street.

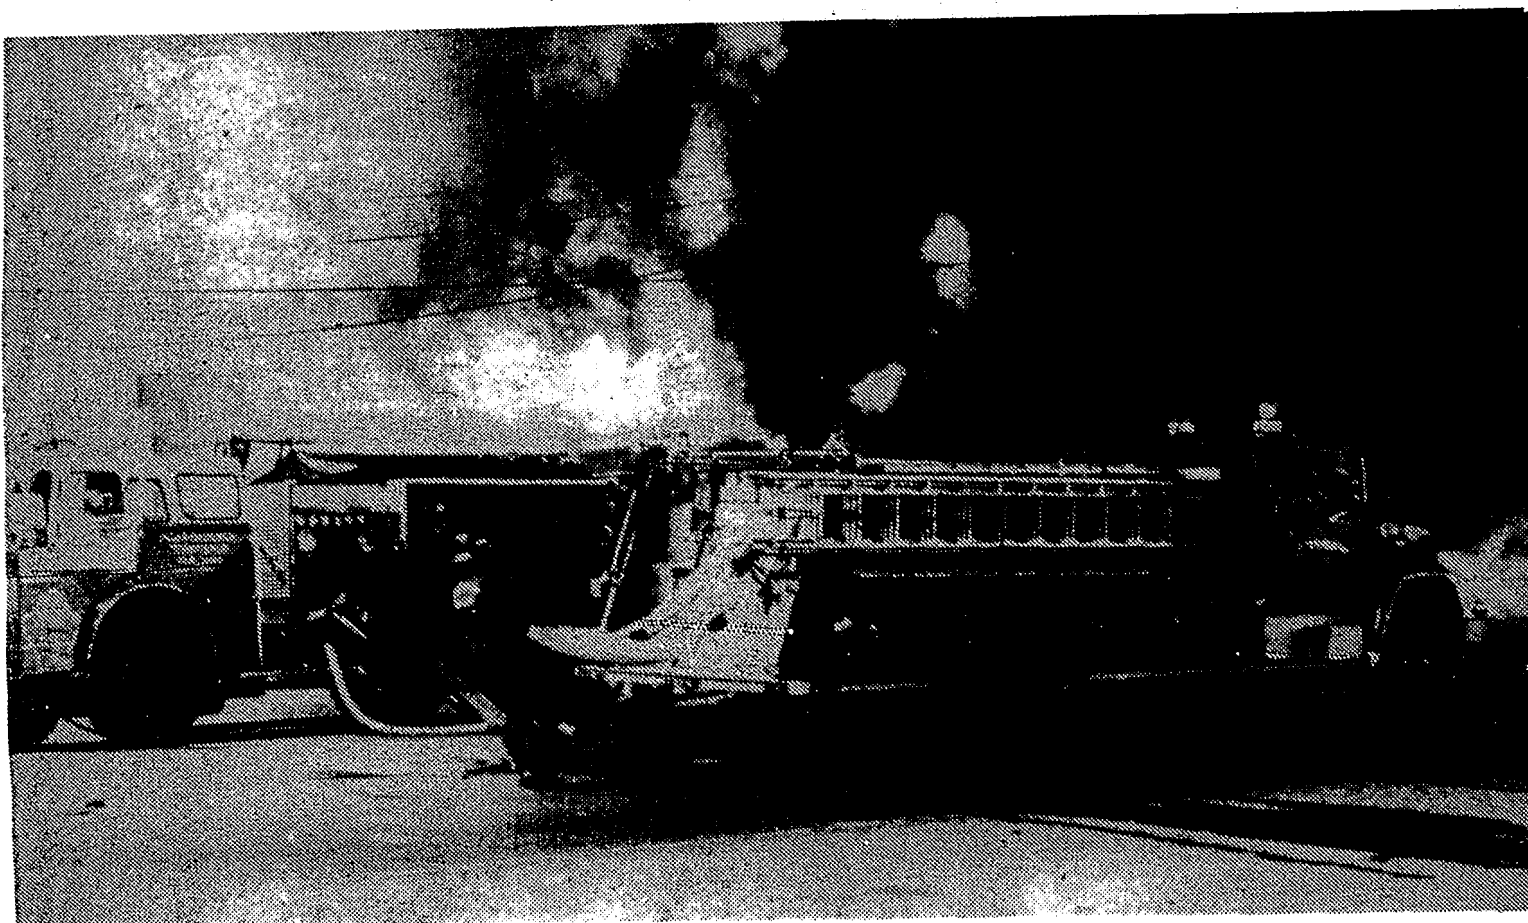

Independence Township fire investigator, Gar Wilson, said the spread of the blaze in the work area was fantastic.

"Somebody walked right through this room (where it is thought to have started) ten minutes before we got the call down at the fire hall," he said.

But by the time township firefighters had arrived at the scene an explosion, from some of the combustibles used in Moon Valley's production process, had already taken place and the entire rear half of the 3600 square foot building was engulfed in flame.

Fire spread quickly from Moon Valley's rear painting and staining area to consume the entire structure (above).

Independence firemen rushed to the scene but were hampered by a lack of water (no hydrants on the site) and conducted rear guard actions to keep the fire away from Moon Valley's two other warehouse and storage buildings (left and below).

Firefighters from five neighboring communities were called to the scene, but they fought a losing battle as the structure, "loaded with combustibles," according to owner Edward Beattie, became one giant firestorm.

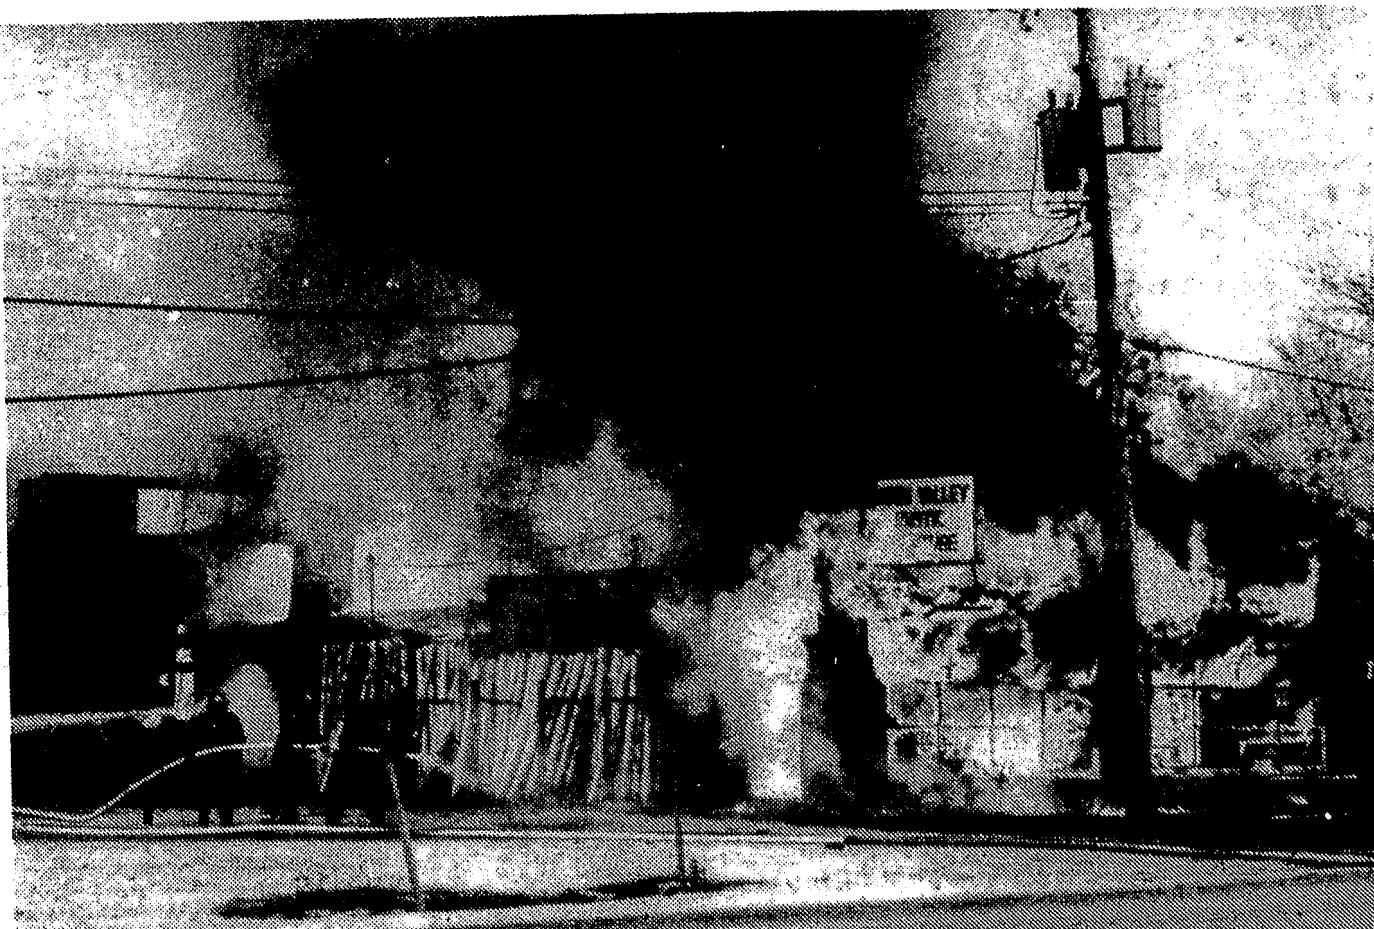

Clouds of black smoke attracted sightseers from miles around to watch helplessly as firefighters tried to keep the blaze from spreading to adjacent buildings.

Flaming debris shot across the street and started several small grass fires which were put out by spectators pressed into service while the local fire units were occupied with Moon Valley.

Beattie said he couldn't begin to estimate the damage to the business he has owned for twenty years and now operates with his son, Kim.

Eyeing the wreckage, Beattie said, "I've accumulated this stuff for twenty years -- you can't put a price on that."

Two other Moon Valley warehouses were spared, however, and Kim Beattie said much of the firm's stock was intact. That fact was demonstrated as employees engaged themselves in loading a shipment of Moon Valley rustic outdoor chairs and tables for delivery to Chicago even as the firehoses continued to spray down the what remained of the production house.

Wilson said the determination of specific cause for the first could take days or weeks. "With this kind of destruction we're probably looking at a fire of undetermined origin. There's just nothing left to work with."

Conservatory Students Hold Condo Concert

On Saturday, May 16, a series of student concerts of the Clarkston Conservatory was held in a model condominium unit at Pine Knob Manor Homes in Clarkston.

Ivan Rouse, Director of the Conservatory for 22 years was delighted to present the students' efforts in the Country French atmosphere of the homes. "It's a perfect blend of two art forms," he remarked. "The music amid the glorious architecture of these condominium homes."

The concert grand piano was placed in the elevated dining area of the ranch style unit with seating for 85 guests in the adjoining living room.

Faculty members, Brian Connelly and Ivan Rouse presented their students' work to family and friends at 10:00 a.m. Joy Miska, whose presentation and poise were outstanding, performed a Debussy selection. Her brother, Bill also represented well this very musical Clarkston family. An especially touching offering was performed on the piano by Barney Leddy, 8 years old, and accompanied by his grandmother, Mrs.

Helen Leddy, on the violin. Brian Connelly completed the program with his own fine performance.

Later in the afternoon, Edward Bollen created a particularly pleasant program by having his students perform two selections. The first half displayed their classical skills and during the second half, they chose the area of special interest where they wished to perform, making for delightful variety. An exquisite voice offering of "Blow Thou Winter Wind" by Stacey Nichols and a horn duet with her teacher at the piano, by Christie Stark, were very well received. Wendy McIlrath shone at the piano playing a Haydn Sonata. At the conclusion, Bollen played a Schubert Impromptu Op. 90 No. 2 for the assembly as a farewell gesture. After teaching at the Conservatory for several years, he is leaving the area.

Again, at 3:30 p.m., Rouse, James Wilhelmsen, John Williams and Wesley Fishwich acted as hosts for their students. Their fine work was highlighted by the all original classical pieces. Gary Mull, recent winner of scholarships from both the Oxford Music Club and Interlochen Music Camp, impressed the audience with a beautiful Gershwin Prelude.

ZBA Settles Kennel Dispute

A dog kennel dispute which has plagued the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) for the last six months was tentatively resolved last Wednesday in a compromise proposed by ZBA member Dale Stuart.

Under his proposal the kennel, J and J owned by John and JoAnne Nelson of 8600 Pine Knob Road, will remain in operation on certain conditions, one of which is the revocation of previous ZBA approval for expansion of the facility to accommodate up to 30 dogs.

Neighboring resident, David Endreszl of 8700 Pine Knob Road, had sought a complete shut-down of the kennel, a non-conforming use of residentially zoned areas.

But the ZBA, on a 4-1 vote, decided to approve Stuart's motion for the compromise. The Nelsons are prohibited from using a new accessory building for kennelling, are required to finish a screening fence around the property and required to keep the dogs inside overnight.

Endreszl and other neighboring residents had objected to dogs barking "at all hours of the night."

The Nelsons are also limited to a total dog population of 16, not counting those under five months old.

Neither party seemed particularly pleased with the latest decision, the third the ZBA has issued on the matter. Endreszl said he still may take the matter to circuit court to remove the non-conforming use. And the Nelsons claim they have invested thousands of dollars in the expansion project which has now been quashed.

Oakland County Parks Recognizes Area Residents

Individuals who have provided outstanding volunteer service to the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission were honored at an annual Recognition Banquet May 11 at White Lake Oaks Golf Course near Pontiac.

Among those honored were members of the "OAKlowns" Clown Alley, Bicycle Motocross (BMX) volunteers, a parks naturalist aide and Nordic Ski Patrol volunteers.

In addition, parks employees with 10 or more years of service were recognized as well as members of the Ronald Hall family of Oxford, who were the one millionth visitor to the Oakland County Parks in 1980.

"We genuinely appreciate the efforts of all of the people who have so generously given their time and talents to assist the Oakland County Parks," said commission chairman Lewis Wint.

The "OAKlowns" represent the Oakland County Parks at fairs, in parades and at hospitals and nursing homes throughout Oakland County and the metropolitan area.

Clown Alley volunteers recognized include: from Clarkston, Homer Biondi and Charles Haskins; from Rochester, Al Clinton-Cirocco; from Pontiac, Jack Lightcap and Joe McGinnis; from Highland, Maurice Peasley; from Davisburg, Joyce Walters; from Holly, Julie Hughes; and from Fenton, Bud Curtis, Lucille Durkee and Jeann Burdick.

The BMX group has been instrumental in developing one of the finest tracks for bicycle racing in the midwest and achieving national sanctioning for the program.

Members of the BMX volunteers being honored were: from Clarkston, Lawrie and Kelly Burnette and Rolina and Paul Barlow; from Southfield, Bud Bennett; from Pontiac, Dale Nance; and from West Bloomfield, Grant Webb.

Parks naturalist aide Jack Smith of Rochester was cited for the time and teaching he provided throughout the seasons during the past three years for nature interpretive programs at Independence Oaks County Park.

The Nordic Ski Patrol has been providing volunteer assistance for the past three years to help in maintaining and improving cross country skiing at Independence Oaks County Park.

Oakland County Parks employees honored for 10 or more years of service were: from Pontiac, Tom Jackson (14 years) and Mike Thibodeau (10 years); from Holly, Arnold Johnston (13 years); from Oxford, Frank Ostrowski (12 years); from Fenton, Rob Coffey (10 years); from Clarkston, Ray Delasko (10 years); and from Lake Orion, Terry Pender (11 years).

Citizen Unite to Recall Senator Kammer

A group of concerned taxpayers has recently organized for the purpose of recalling State Senator Kerry Kammer, District 17. Calling itself "Citizens United to Recall Kammer" the group feels that Senator Kammer has worked against the best interests of his constituents by voting against the placing of the Tisch tax-cut proposal, alongside Governor Milliken's Proposal A on the May 19 ballot.

At their organizational meeting held May 12 in Waterford, the group elected Rex Rose chairman, Tony Coumbo treasurer, and Joe Newton secretary. For further information or to obtain recall petitions, interested citizens may call Bill Munro, petition circulation coordinator, at 623-1120.
