Dr. O'Neill: Clarkston's Own Mover and Shaker

Local Physician to Receive Needling

by Carol Balzarini

Picture a tall, bearded man relaxing in his easy chair with a glass of iced tea, a telephone close at hand, two large dogs of unidentified origin curled up in front of the fire, and a small tow-headed boy nicknamed Frog who preferred being with his dad to going to bed. That's the Dr. James A. O'Neill not everyone gets a chance to see.

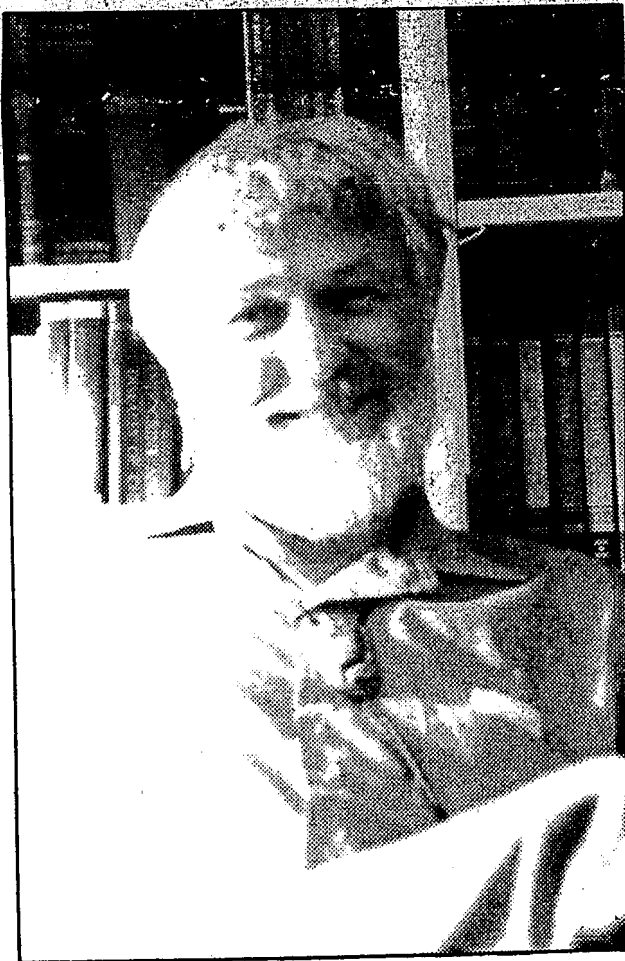

The side most do see is the busy doctor in a white coat zipping in and out of examining rooms pinpointing kids' maladies with alarming speed and accuracy. Others see him as chief of staff at Pontiac General Hospital trying to make order out of chaos as the institution struggled for survival. Still others see him in terms of his involvement in the community either endorsing candidates or providing the catalyst for bringing a whole new group of medical people to Clarkston.

It is the extent of Dr. O'Neill's involvement in such varied activities that makes him a great subject for the roast to be held appropriately on Friday the 13th of November at the Deer Lake Racquet Club. His family, his friends, and even his priest have promised to "tell all".

Before the public roast, however, it seemed only fair to give Dr. O'Neill the opportunity to defend himself telling stories about himself and his life from his own point of view.

As a child, for instance, he remembers the desolation of the end of the Great Depression in North Dakota, a time when if you wanted something you either built it or grew it. It was then he worked with an old Swedish stonemason learning skills he would use years later to relocate the old stone wall at St. Daniel's church. A wall, he said, was the remains of an old barn starting nowhere and going nowhere. Now it's been made an integral part of the new church and its surroundings.

With his farm background, it was only natural that O'Neill seek the rural life once again after completing his residency at Ford Hospital. And so it was, twenty years ago, that he and his family bought the old Ford farm. Now they raise beef cattle here, and dairy cattle at another farm in Clare. Visitors to the Clarkston farm are often surprised to find the cattle mowing the lawn for the O'Neills, an ideal arrangement unless someone forgets to close the gate and the "mowers" wander off. Occasionally, too, Dr. O'Neill has to replace his wife's shrubbery.

O'Neill has some very definite thoughts on the land and farming which he calls a "non-renewable resource". With high taxes, more people living closer together, a lower tolerance for the sounds and smells of farming, and little respect for fences, O'Neill says farming is not easy these days.

It's a "disaster" for people to be forced to sell off their land just to pay their taxes. He feels there should be incentives for farmers to keep their land. He also advocates incentives for people to live together in urban areas and not "sprawl out and run away from our problems", a sprawl also affecting schools with declining enrollment and even empty buildings.

The subject of schools brought O'Neill to the subject of children. He has six of his own ranging from 22 year old Mike and 20 year old Kari who are both working, Megan, 19, and Devon, 18, and two at home. Danny is a senior in high school and Timmy, known to his dad as "frog" is six. O'Neill said he and his wife Mikel usually have "a waif or two" living with them in addition.

His interest in kids, he said, began when he entered a small Catholic college in St. Paul, with an academy attached. He, although only sixteen, kept an eye on the boarders and tutored them also. He enjoyed teaching then as he does now relating that "physician" in Greek means teacher. The learning process, especially in young people, has always fascinated him.

Although a pediatrician, O'Neill spends an hour each night before going home counseling families and directing them to people who can help them. He tries to teach adults to be good parents, which he describes as difficult. Organic diseases are much easier to treat.

How does the doctor know there are family problems when he's treating a child for a physical problem? He says he just seems to sense them. He also tells many interns they have a sixth sense and to use it. Schools now are trying to separate the physicians from the practitioners.

"We (doctors) were taught to put out the fires," he said. Now medicine is going back to the old days of the doctor as a friend and confidante, the family practice. Pontiac General has the only residency in Oakland County in family practice.

Another facet of O'Neill's life has to do with emergency medical treatment. It began with working in emergency at General. Currently he is the township's public health officer and head of the public safety task force. He has also worked closely with the township Fire Chief Frank Ronk on emergency medical service, EMS.

Dr. O'Neill firmly believes police and firemen should be trained in basic emergency care. Then, after being transported by those with advanced EMS training such as Fleet and Riverside, patients will reach the hospital emergency rooms in far better condition than in the past.

O'Neill was chief of staff at Pontiac General during the turbulent '70s, basically a six year tour of duty involving extra training in hospital administration. He swears these jobs just seem to find him, that he never really looks for them.

He also treats the Jesuits at Colombiere claiming that keeps him up on geriatrics as well as pediatrics. It's the middle years that concern him, those between 20 and 50. They don't listen, they're always in a hurry, never receptive, he said.

In answer to the question, "How do you manage to get involved in so much?" O'Neill replied that he has really tried not to, that he'd much rather get others involved. Good programs have a lot of "horizontal and vertical depth" and Clarkston is head and shoulders above others in many areas but primarily in education, medical care and religion." He claims most "true" Clarkstonites don't brag about the community because they don't want anyone else to come here; they'd rather keep it to themselves.

Politics is another area of involvement for O'Neill but his philosophy is "you'll never get better than you choose and select." He prefers to get people involved and informed and then vote on the basis of that information. Politics, he says, cannot be left to the professional politicians, the people must participate. They don't realize the power they have in the voting booth or in a letter to Lansing or Washington.

And where is O'Neill's family life in the midst of all this involvement? In spite of what people might think, he keeps pretty normal hours. "I have a great family," he said, "and we do a lot of things together. Our practice is our life. The kids answer the phone, they've worked in the office from time to time." They've even assisted in treating some minor emergencies at home.

One family project has been the planting of some 160,000 trees in the area. The seedlings can be found along the freeway, all over the O'Neill farm, and scattered here and there wherever they find vacant land.

Family with a capital "F" is a priority with Dr. O'Neill, both his own and that of others. He feels the number one problem anywhere today is the dissolution of the family and possibly because they've gotten away from God. He sees this in his practice feeling that many of the medical problems stem from family problems. The solution of those problems would, he feels, result in fewer demands on social services a contributing factor to Michigan's faltering economy.

And so concludes the story of Dr. James A. O'Neill as seen through the eyes of the good doctor himself. An apparent pillar of the community, it does not seem possible that even the most conscientious roaster will be able to find a crack or two in that pillar, but they swear they will on Friday the 13th of November.

Funeral Director

CAN FUNERALS BE ADAPTED?

As funeral directors, we provide and carry out the arrangements for funeral services. Many traditional funerals are very similar to one another. But it is also our responsibility to provide services that allow each bereaved family and group of friends to best express their grief and to honor the deceased.

For example, an atheist or agnostic may request that non-sectarian music be played at his funeral. The deceased may have had a favorite poem, or scriptural passage; this, too, can be included in the services. The funeral is a highly personal ceremony, as individual as the person it honors.

There are important and meaningful differences in rituals among the various religious denominations. These must be respected according to the wishes of you and your clergyman. Veteran and fraternal orders may call for inclusion of their rituals. All these adaptations we respect in providing a truly personal funeral.

We can accommodate your wishes in planning a funeral. It's a matter of sitting down and discussing your plans. Please call us or stop by if you would like more information.

Dental Dialogue

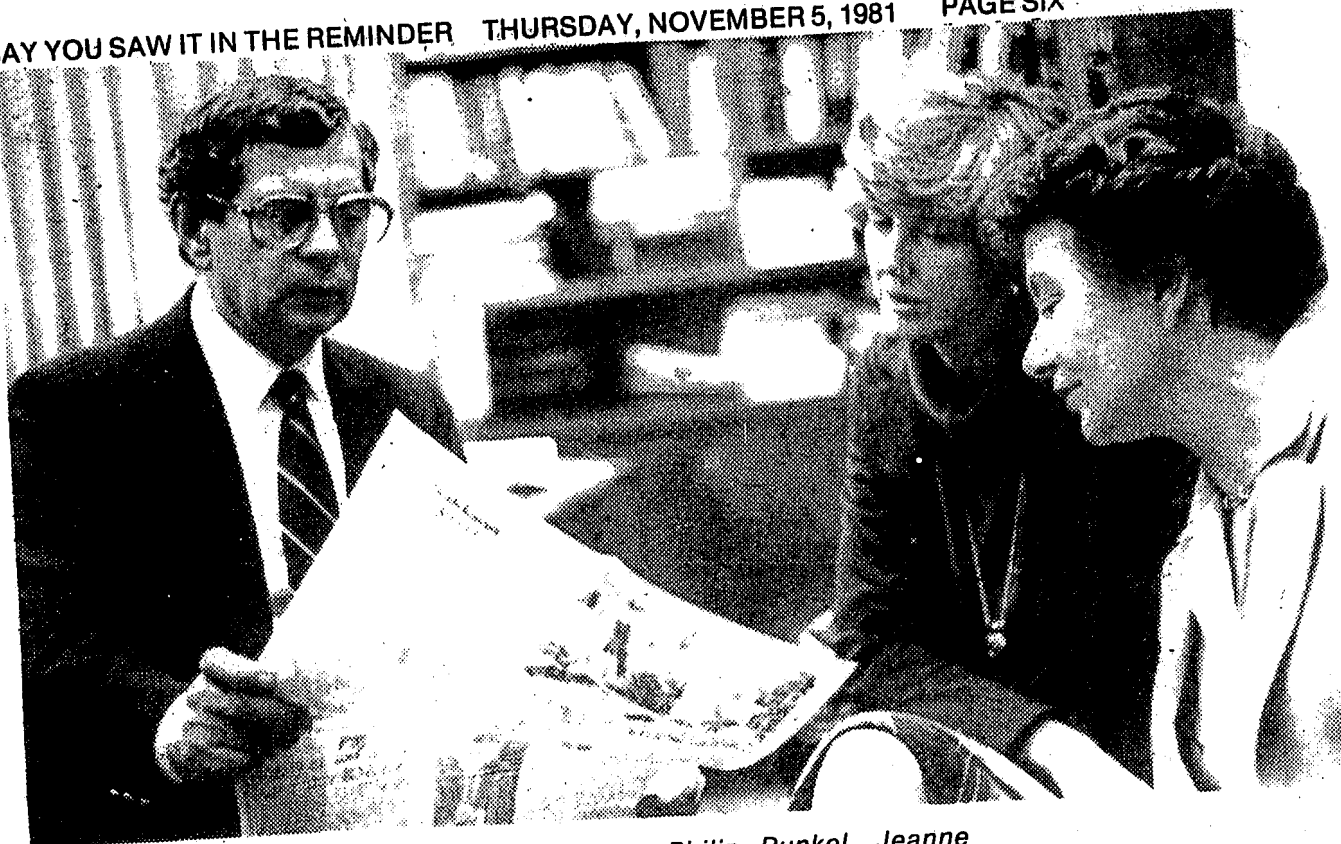

by Gary R. Ushman, D.D.S.

Q. What can I do about bad breath?

A. Certain toothpastes and mouthwashes make advertising claims that they can cure bad breath, when in fact, all they do is temporary mask the odor. Still they are popular because many people are overly sensitive about their breath. A more effective means of obtaining fresher breath would be the careful monitoring of diet (no garlic or onions), and good oral hygiene (vigorous brushing and flossing). If bad breath persists when the mouth is clean a person should be checked for gum disease or such conditions as diabetes or indigestion. The primary cure for halitosis is finding the cause and then removing it.

This column is presented in the interest of better dental health. From the office of Dr. Gary R. Ushman, 55 S. Main St., Clarkston, Michigan 48016. Phone 625-2066.

Clarkston's CURE Goes to Lansing

by Carol Balzarini

A delegation of eight people concerned with the state's methods of financing education traveled to Lansing last week to meet with some of those who may be in a position to do something about it: legislators, the people of the Office of Management and Budget, and the State Superintendent of Education.

Led by CURE's new vice chairman Karen Ohrnberger, parents Mary Jane Scharfenkamp and Jeanne Molzon were introduced to unofficial lobbying on the state level. Also in the group were Clarkston Schools Superintendent Milford Mason, board member Mary Jane Chaustowich, and teachers Larry Rosso and Al Bartlett, who is also president of the Clarkston Education Association.

The day's activities began with the House Education Committee meeting at 9 a.m. The topic of discussion was banking and bonding and caps on interest rates. Those speaking were primarily from the Romulus Schools. The committee later approved a bill allowing school districts, with voter approval, to sell bonds to meet operating expenses only after all other possibilities had been exhausted.

Next on the group's agenda was an appearance at a public hearing of a House taxation subcommittee taking testimony on summer tax collections, a concept generally favored by school districts and opposed by townships.

Should the concept ever become law, taxes would be collected twice a year instead of the current once thereby relieving the October and November cash flow problems of many school districts. They would not have to borrow against anticipated taxes and state aid to meet operating expenses.

In the afternoon, the group met with Fred Whims, director of the education division in the Department of Management and Budget, who was somewhat defensive when the group told him they were looking for more money for K-12 education.

He asked if they were willing to have children starving or prisoners running loose in the streets. He reiterated the Lansing position that money is needed for ever-increasing social services and that local districts should expect to continue to bear the burden for school funding. Whims concluded by urging more citizen involvement, more pressure groups, but he also reminded the group of the state's own budgetary crisis.

Although there were no firm answers to some very serious questions, CURE was satisfied for the time being with merely establishing themselves with the Department as a viable organization firm in its quest for more money for schools. The Clarkston group was the first to meet with Whims since he added K-12 education to his previous responsibility for higher education.

Last stop on the Lansing tour was an appointment with Dr. Philip Runkel, the State Superintendent of Education, who again brought up a subject he has been quoted about recently, that of a possible lawsuit forcing the state to do something. Runkel stated he felt it was only a matter of time before someone sought recourse in the courts.

When pressed for details, he said a case could be made in federal court for equal protection under the law. With the majority of school funding based on the property tax as it is now, school districts with higher state equalized valuations (SEV) will have more dollars to spend per child than those districts with lower valuations.

Clarkston and Bloomfield Hills have nearly the same school millage rate, yet the SEV spent per pupil in Clarkston is $37,858 while the SEV spent per pupil in Bloomfield Hills is $104,888. The premise of the lawsuit would be that children in less affluent districts get fewer programs and opportunities than children in more affluent districts, therefore there is not equal education for all.

When asked by Superintendent Mason why the state just couldn't ease up on the requirements of mandated programs to give the local districts some breathing room, Runkel suggested that proposal be made to him in writing.

He also asked that CURE, if interested, send him a letter stating they would be willing to work with a larger coalition of some sort to promote the interests of education. Also if they would be interested in having input in programs and plans being considered by the State Board of Education.

In between scheduled meetings the group also met with State Senator Kerry Kammer who explained his proposal to earmark a certain percentage of state budget money for education. In response to one question, Kammer said a formula for disbursement of that money could be made later, the most important step was to first get the money.

State Representative Claude Trim also met with them briefly and repeated his desire to have CURE meet with and talk to out-of-formula districts as well. Up until now, CURE has only reached out to other in-formula districts, those who depend on state aid for their existence.

Lawmaker Liaison - Our Way of Getting Things Done in Lansing

This Christmas season may not be a happy one for many families in our area. Our sagging economy has increased the unemployment lines to staggering lengths, and many families, with husband and wife out of work, are having difficulties making both ends meet.

Yet because a solution is so very difficult our lawmakers have not been able to help us out. Furthermore, the industries for which we work are moving, one-by-one, to other states where taxes and regulations are not as stringent. Yet, lawmakers are only now realizing that those taxes and regulations need to be overhauled.

Our state is further troubled by the financial difficulties that many of our local school systems are experiencing. Alpena and Taylor were forced to shut down their schools because of no money to operate them. Pontiac may have to do the same. For many years, critics, including this newspaper, have asked that a better method of school financing be developed. It hasn't come -- and our lawmakers don't foresee a major change in the near future.

All this leaves the average citizen in a quandary. The problems are easy to define, but they seem to be of such magnitude, that the people we voted into office are having a difficult time dealing with them.

Well, to help them out, and to make it easier for the average citizen to communicate with his elected representatives, The Reminder, will take on the responsibility of acting as intermediary between citizen and elected representative.

If you have a question for a particular representative, from the township level to U.S. Senator, or a solution or comments you'd like to share with your representatives pass them along to us and we'll see that they get in the right hands. We'll do it confidentially by your request, or we'll share your comments and resulting answers with our readers if you desire.

To get involved, send your comments to the Lawmaker Liaison, c/o The Reminder, 6569 Dixie Highway, Clarkston, MI 48016. You can be assured your comments will be treated with the utmost care and expediency.

New Editorial Staff

This week The Reminder begins a new era as Editor Dawson Bell has left us for an opportunity to report for the Oakland Press.

He has been replaced by current Nitelife Editor, Kathy Rush, who will lead a group of feature reporters and photographers including Carol Balzarini, Denise Fox Luczki, Al Wieling, Ron Wagner and Jim Nichols.

No doubt Dawson will be missed. We wish him all the luck in the world in his new endeavor. On the other hand, Ms. Rush has proven in her three years at The Reminder to be a very capable professional. With her at the helm, Nitelife has grown to be one of the slickest magazines of its kind. We suspect, The Reminder will benefit, likewise, from her writing talents and leadership capabilities.

Co-Workers Deserve Credit

Dear Mike,
In Thursday's, October 29th, Reminder Editorial Page article, you were very kind in giving me so much credit for the planning for the December 5th Davisburg Christmas Craft Fest.

You and Dawson have given us a great deal of coverage in the Davisburg Monthly and you see me a great deal of the time, but not my co-workers in our Home Extension Study Group who are each doing their jobs, plus Sandy Webster and Les Smith and Norris Walls; as well as the wonderful attitude of the group and individuals who are participating in the fest.

So you see, I have not and am not doing singlehandedly and thank you for your continued supported in our community project.

Helen Vergin

Enjoyed Festival Article

Dear Ms. Rush:

I just wanted to write and tell you personally how very much we enjoyed your extensive account of the Michigan Renaissance Festival. It truly captured the essence of the event.

Your resourcefulness in actually attending the Festival, rather than merely relying on the press kit materials, was evident in your story. I am sorry, and apologize that I missed seeing you at the site. With everyone sporting elaborate photographic equipment these days, it is more difficult to identify the working press.

Thank you, again, for your generous response. In these first years of the Festival in Michigan, it is only through articles such as yours that the public can be educated about this unusual event.

Sincerely,
Rebecca McLennan

MIKE MORROW'S TRIVIA

Somedays it's harder than others to come up with an idea for a column, then like a bolt from the blue, the U.S. mail service comes to my rescue. This time it came in the form of an updated "personality survey" from a local

Courageous Police

Dear Editor,

I would like to thank two very fine and dedicated Oakland County Deputies for a job well done.

I was in great need on Tuesday, October 27, when Phil Lichok and Gary Spalo came to my rescue. An intruder had entered my beauty shop in Davisburg, and Deputies Lichok and Spalo responded almost immediately to my call. Within five minutes they had the intruder cornered, captured and they emerged triumphantly.

I would like to commend these two fine and brave gentlemen on their tremendous act of bravery. Had it not been for their courageous efforts my employee Karen Lytle may never have gone to the bathroom again.

The intruder certainly looked frightened and full of shame for what he had done; but Phil I sure wish I had a picture of this mouse dangling from the fingers of a man with such an imposing uniform on.

There is only one thing to know though, how on earth did you two fit into that 4' x 4' bathroom with the door closed!!

Thanks again
Kathie Dice & Karen Lytle
The Hair Depot

dating service.

The last time I got one of these jewels I felt it was too good to pass up and did a column on it. This updated one was just as good because the questions are still so silly they lend themselves well to my poison pen.

1. Would you prefer to spend most of your time with other people?

What are my other options? As opposed to being locked in a closet, I guess so.

2. Is a jury trial the best way of obtaining justice?

No, being rich is.

3. Do your moods rise and fall for reasons you can't explain?

No, I can explain it. It's called life.

4. Are most viewers adversely affected by sexually suggestive performers?

That depends on what you think an adverse reaction is.

5. Are you usually a sound sleeper?

Only on blind dates.

6. Should children be given sex education in schools?

No, they get enough after school.

7. When criticized by others are your feelings easily hurt?

No, but their bodies are. I hit them.

8. Would a quiet spouse please you more than a lively one?

Yes, especially after she finds out I joined a dating service.

9. Is sexual compatibility necessary for a happy marriage?

With whom? Each other? yes. With the neighbors? hopefully not.

10. Do off-color jokes and stories tend to disgust you?

BLIND DATE:
EPISODE #57

Only if they forget the punch lines.
The only question they didn't ask on the survey was the one I could answer honestly.
Why did you fill out this survey?
Because I was hard up for a column when I got the mail today and this was a lot funnier than my bills.

Sonya Funck, Clarkston's Junior Miss for 1981, approaches the stage of CHS' Little Theatre to accept her crown. Sonya is the daughter of Glenn and Gwen Funck of 4710 Independence Road, Clarkston.

Junior Miss Title a Sweet Victory for Sonya Funck

by Kathy Rush

Joy, appreciation, gratitude and relief. That's how Sonya Funck, this year's winner of the Clarkston Junior Miss summed up her feelings today.

"The most difficult part was the interview," she relates, regarding the judging. "That part did count the most but afterwards I felt pretty comfortable with how it went."

At the two day event, held October 24 and 25, the interview, a 10 minute discussion session with each entrant in which a panel of judges consisting of prominent people of varied interests look for perception, a sense of values, clarity of expression, concern and ability in human relations, represents 35 percent of the competition. Other categories in which they are judged are as follows: youth fitness, 15 percent; poise and appearance, 15 percent; scholastic achievement, 15 percent; and creative and performing arts, 20 percent.

The interview discussion centered primarily around each contestants morals and values in life, said Ms. Funck. Deriving her own values, in the main, from her parents, Glenn and Gwen Funck of 4710 Independence Road, Sonya gives as the reason for any claims to excellence in that area of competition.

"My parents were pleased and behind me 100 percent when I told them I wanted to try out for Junior Miss." Incidentally, Sonya's parents celebrated their 28th wedding anniversary on Saturday, the first day of competition, and it was Sunday that she was crowned Junior Miss—a quite original anniversary present on Sonya's part.

She admits, "I really didn't think I would win." Her original motive was for the experience plus the opportunity to be with her friends.

Getting to know the true personalities of the seventeen other contestants was the most gratifying part of the six weeks or more of practice and the Junior Miss competition itself. Even though all eighteen participating seniors had previously attended different classes together and associated with each other on different occasions after school, Sonya says there is no comparison in the ability to develop friendships.

Appropriately dressed in a mime costume, it was the soft-spoken seniors own version of the song, "If I Had A Voice," that gained her points in the creative and performing arts category.

Sonya plans to attend Michigan State University in the fall to acquire a degree in music. Being crowned as Clarkston's Junior Miss will be a plus in Ms. Funck's favor to meet that goal.

Aside from the $600 college scholarship she received towards her education, Sonya will continue to be involved in voice and dance lessons in preparation for the state competition to be held in mid-January in Marshall, Michigan.

Other winners at the 1981 ceremonies were: Lisa George, 1st runner-up; Billee Hampshire, 2nd runner-up/Kraft Award; Jennifer DeLisle, 3rd runner-up/Scholarship Award; Stacy Nichols, Saturday's Talent Award; Lisa Laurie, Sunday's Talent Award; Kathy Cunningham, Simplicity Award; Ann Colwell, Clairol Award, and Melissa Savas, Spirit of Junior Miss Award.

And what is Sonya's game-plan for the upcoming state finals? She explains, "I'll be staying with a host family in Marshall for a week before the event and during that time rehearsals will be held. I'm very outgoing so it is my hope to make a lot of friends which will help me to be more relaxed at the actual competition."

The Junior Miss aims are to "focus attention on the constructive achievements of all youth, to encourage excellence and enkindle a sense of dedication to the future by presenting college scholarships and other awards to Junior Miss participants."

Go for it, Sonya.

"A little to the left... Now hold it!"

It was not all fun and dressing up in costume for some on Halloween. Like the volunteer members of the PTO, organized by Bonnie Campbell, PTO President and Jack Hayden, North Sashabaw Elementary Principal, who had the job of erecting this 1100 lb. spiral slide at North Sashabaw Elementary's playground. Also set up on Saturday were park and athletic benches, parallel bars and rocking animals on springs.

Century 21 Seeks Easter Seals Money

Employees from Century 21 Hallmark-North will be going from door-to-door throughout the community Nov. 1 through 7 in a quest to raise an all-time record amount for Easter Seals.

They'll be among more than 3,500 Century 21 brokers and sales associates across the state who will be seeking donations in their home communities across upper and lower Michigan during Dollar Days for Easter Seals.

"We hope our neighbors will be watching for the folks wearing gold coats as we go block-by-block on behalf of one of the nation's most worthwhile charitable causes," said Broker Bert Schmidt of Century 21 Hallmark-North.

"Our goal is to help Century 21 raise a total donation of more than the $46,000 that was collected for the Easter Seals Society's last campaign and, moreover, to surpass our all-time cumulative record of more than $50,000."

UNICEF $400 Richer

75 young people from churches in Clarkston canvassed the community for UNICEF on Sunday afternoon, October 25th. A total of $411.41 was sent to UNICEF.

Historic Ordinance Subjected to Public Debate

by Denise Fox Luczki
Last Wednesday evening a public hearing was held in Clarkston to discuss the

Clarkston Historic District Ordinance

The ordinance would act as a safeguard to the heritage of the Village of Clarkston through the establishment of the Historic District Commission. All construction, alteration, repair, moving or demolition of a structure within the Historic District would require the written approval of the commission.

Most of the opposition to the ordinance came from the business district.

Paul Stoppard, Clarkston Corners owner, expressed his concern: "We don't feel we should be subject to control of our commercial property. I want people to understand that they will be subject to a commission's ruling on their private property."

Resident of Historic District, Peg DaCosta, Church Street, responded favorably to the ordinance saying: "People feel negative toward the committee. But I would like to be advised on my home and the investment I put in it. The committee is not a bunch of meanies that will say no to all requests."

Present building codes are very restrictive, especially to owners of older homes who encounter a large range of specific problems in making their homes livable. Sue Basinger felt that the Commission could provide some leniency in this regard, especially since the council commission would be made up of residents of the Historic District.

The commission's approval would not be necessary for home upkeep such as painting, putting in a driveway, or for interior improvements.

Standards are built into the ordinance and not left entirely up to the discretion of the commission. The function of the commission would be largely an advisory one, making recommendations to help maintain the integrity of the historical district buildings.

Commission members must be residents of the historical district, a fact which disturbed Michelle Gaskell, wife of local attorney John Gaskell. She felt that the commission should include at least one representative of the business community.

"A representative of the business community could serve on the commission if they live in the village," stated Ted Thomson.

Thomson, along with the other village residents who have worked on the drafting of the ordinance. Gary Symons, Susan Basinger, Jennifer Radcliff and Jim MacArthur, felt that the district could best be represented by people who live there day to day, and understand the problems of the area.

All meetings of the commission shall be open to the public. Any decision reached by the commission can be appealed to the zoning board of appeals.

The commission will not have the power to demand changes to existing buildings that do not comply with the ordinance, only to approve or disapprove requests for changes.

The Planning Commission has to review the ordinance and may recommend some changes in its construction. The ordinance may also be taken to the village attorney before finally going to the village council, tentatively scheduled for next week.

Wolves Let 14-0 Lead Slip Away Lose 16-14

by Ron Wagner

Friday's football game against Rochester Adams was definitely a first-half game. All the scoring and excitement happened then, leaving the Wolves with a very frustrating loss 14-16.

A few plays after Clarkston's kick off to Rochester, Ed Zabrelski dropped the opposing quarterback for a 10-yard loss. This forced Adams to punt.

The two teams had a crack at the ball again, but failed to do much. Then, after a punt, also forced by Zabrelski, the Wolves got the ball on the Adams 49-yard line. Dave Fulcher ran for 5 yards and Tim Brennan ran for 4 and 11 to make it first down on the 29. Brennan found daylight and ran for the first touchdown of the game. With the extra point, the score was 7-0. There was one second left in the first quarter.

The Wolves' next score came quickly. Fulcher grabbed a punt at mid-field and ran 50 yards to a TD. With 10:28 on the clock, the score was 14-0.

Two minutes later, Rochester got on the board with a 52-yard pass play for a touchdown. The action slowed a bit as the teams traded punts until Adams went to the air again and scored on a 43-yard screen pass. With 2:46 in the half, they missed the point-after attempt making the score 14-13.

A Clarkston fumble gave Rochester the ball on the Wolf 42. Rochester worked down the field and, with seconds left, kicked a 24-yard field goal. This gave the Highlanders a 16-14 half-time lead.

The band and the pom-pom girls teamed up to put on the most entertaining half-time show of the season. The band members were dressed in various Halloween masks and one came as the Great Pumpkin.

Clarkston ended their next two possessions on downs and a fumble recovery by Steve Nichols and a pass interception by Brad Moshier ended Rochester drives. That took the teams into the fourth quarter.

Neither team made a serious attempt at scoring until Zabrelski came up with yet another sack on fourth down to give the Wolves a last minute shot at winning. A penalty flag was thrown on a long Mike Stefanski pass. It clearly looked like defensive pass interference, but the officials saw it otherwise and backed the Wolves up 15 yards. That killed any hopes and the game ended: Clarkston Wolves 14, Rochester Adams Highlanders 16.

JV Extends Unbeaten Streak to Seven

The JV football team traveled to Rochester Thursday and extended their unbeaten string to 7 games by defeating Adams 28-6.

Big yardage runs were the name of the game as Tim Parke ran for a 79-yard TD and Dave NewBlatt rushed for a 75-yarder. Parke's came on the second play of the game and NewBlatt ran back the second half kickoff. Lance Walenski pulled down a pass and ran 33 yards to score and Craig Kulazewski waltzed for a 3-yard touchdown. Rick Whittaker hit the highlanders for a safety to conclude the scoring.

Defensively, Mike Harbaugh, Chris Everett, and Walenski were good for interceptions that helped limit Adams to six points.

Girls Split to Waterford Schools

by Ron Wagner

Dave McDonald's girls split with the Waterford schools last week, defeating Mott but losing to Township. Traveling to Township Tuesday, they lost 58-52. Michelle Ulasich and Tracee Antos led the scoring with 11 apiece. Lanette Whitehead had 13 rebounds.

They followed with a Parent's Night stomping of Mott. All but one team member scored as everyone saw action. Lori Martin had 13 points and Whitehead had 11 with 13 rebounds.

They are looking forward to next Saturday's game against Kettering in the Silverdome.

Realtor Cleans Up Dumping Ground

Last Monday, eight salespeople from Clarkston Hills Real Estate disregarded all thoughts related to the sale of homes to focus their attention on the removal of trash from five acres off Clintonville Road.

The illegal dumping has been piling up for the past decade. According to the realty, it was a stipulation as part of the closing that the land be cleaned up before its sale. Therefore, they took it upon themselves the tidying task, as the property's sale closing was to be complete the following day.

Purchaser of the land intends to construct a home on the five-acre parcel yielding to the first residence for miles along Clintonville Road.

Items that established the eyesore, like mattresses, dilapidated furniture, tires and old, broken washing machines were hauled off to the Pontiac City Dump.

Carter Home Design Wins Edison Energy Award

Recently, Jerry Carter of Custom Home Designs, Inc., 6575 Dixie Highway, Clarkston, was contracted by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hirt to design an energy efficient "passive solar" home. Located at 1855 Dawson Road in Milford Township, the home features graded earth banked up to the house on three sides to within 2½ feet of the eaves. The home also has a centrally located wood burning stove, solar assisted water heater, a 2½ ton GE heat pump with a 15 kW backup and a 9 ft. x 12 ft. greenhouse on the south side.

Last week, custom home builder, Dave Coffman, in recognition of his company's commitment to energy efficiency standards in residential home building, received Detroit Edison's Energy Efficiency Excellence (EEE) Award for the construction of that solar home.

At a luncheon at the Lions Den restaurant in Waterford Township today, James F. Connelly, Director of Cutom and Marketing Services for Edison's Oakland Division, presented Coffman with an EEE plaque which is suitable for display in sales offices or model homes as evidence that the homes meet maximum energy efficiency standards in insulation, lighting, wiring, and energy efficient appliances.

Connelly said the company established the award as "a means of exerting a positive influence on the home building industry to promote the efficient use of energy, and to demonstrate the company's awareness of its corporate responsibility, while assuming a leadership role in dealing with national energy concerns."

The award also provided home buyers with a reliable means of judging construction and insulation techniques that will ensure a wise use of energy and help keep electrical operating costs at a minimum, Connelly said.

How much insurance should your business have?

Many small business owners are unsure.

That's why Continental Insurance has just introduced a new package policy - Business Owners Xtra - designed specially for a small business owner.

It gives you the comprehensive protection you need. And, it's written in plain, simple language, so you can see exactly what you're getting.

This new policy takes a lot of the confusion out of business insurance. And, dollar for dollar, it can give you more protection than most other package policies.

Ask us about the Business Owners Xtra policy from Continental Insurance. It could be the best answer to your insurance needs.
