I Was An Elementary Student for a Day

by Claudia Brazel

I was late. Buses had come and gone, the bell had rung, and classes were in session. I didn't have a note from home excusing my tardiness. I would have to stop by the principal's office.

Standing, in the early morning office of North Sashabaw Elementary, waiting for the school principal, I began to speculate on possible disciplinary actions I might be deserving of. Would I be denied recess or be kept after school? Was there a paddle in sight?

Going back to elementary school, after a twenty year absence, was making me a bit nervous. Also, I was having a hard time adjusting to how old I had gotten since my school age days.

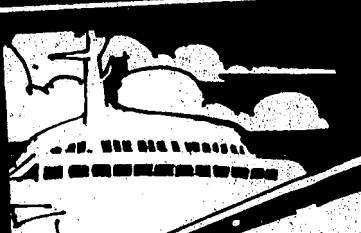

Soon, John T. Hayden, Sashabaw Elementary Principal, entered the room extending a warm greeting. A pleasant, yet reserved man, he began to make me feel more relaxed.

Hayden assured me it had been sometime since they'd used a paddle and offered to let my tardiness pass, this time, as long as it didn't happen again.

After a brief conversation, outlining the day's plans, Hayden escorted me to the teachers lounge where I was introduced to Mrs. Weglarski, a first grade teacher whose class I would be visiting.

The lower elementary grades (1-3) were at recess and several of the teachers were in the lounge preparing and correcting papers, exchanging conversation, and grabbing a quick cup of coffee or tea.

There was concern among the staff, over a child who had suffered a mishap on the playground earlier that morning. That concern continued throughout the day, until the young man's family relayed the message that stitches were in place and a dentist would be seen and the young man was going to be OK.

All at once, each teacher began to stir. Whether by instinct or clock-checking, they all knew it was time for them to take their post at the schoolyard door where all those anxious little faces would soon be lining up to come in. We all stood waiting. The bell rang and curious little faces, gathered at the door, peaking in, wondering who that other lady was.

The importance placed on a student's respect for himself, is evident in the Sashabaw classrooms and halls, and is a priority objective in Clarkston School District Policy.

The first thing to catch my eye as I entered Mrs. Weglarski's classroom were the colorful bulletin boards. The whole room expressed the wonderfully bright world a first grader should be living and learning in.

Brightly colored letters, pictures, and posters arrayed the wall, along with, starred charts showing each student's progress and examples of student art and academic achievements.

Later in the day when I mentioned my recognition of, the time that must have been spent creating those great looking bulletins, and how much they added to the classroom, I drew a laugh.

It seems that North Sashabaw has an abundance of overly large bulletin boards that require a lot of imagination, time, patience, and paper. Many Clarkston teachers spend a great deal of their summer vacation preparing for the next year, including, adding to and redoing bulletin board material. North Sashabaw teachers and Mr. Hayden would venture to guess that their bulletin board tasks might secure them a place in Ripley's Believe It or Not.

Settling down nicely the children took their seats. Instructed by Mr. Weglarski to get out their reading and math materials, they did so with objection. Reading and math are usually taught during the morning classroom hours. It is generally accepted that children are more alert and attentive during those earlier hours.

A good night's sleep of at least ten hours, followed by a nourishing breakfast, and a happy goodbye, can do miracles for a child's school work according to a local pediatrician. "Morning hours" he adds, "on the average, and if preceded by the things I have outlined, produce the most advantageous opportunities for alertness, which helps to intensify attention."

Curriculum material, and the time it should be covered in, are determined by general policy guidelines laid out by the School Administration and Board. Teachers interject personal teaching methods into the outlined system and adjust for personal circumstance.

The reading program, selected by the Clarkston District, utilizes phonetic, sounding-out techniques. Nationally, many schools are presently returning to that phonetic system, after excluding its use for several years, only to find a reduction in some skill levels.

In Mrs. Weglarski's class, students are placed in reading ability levels denoted by color: group red, group blue ... Weglarski, a teacher of 14 years experience, feels that reading levels referred to by number can sometimes create competitive and negative situations for students.

There will be none of that in Weglarski's room where 'positive' is practiced. The reading lesson, that day, worked on rhyming vowel sounds, but an overall theme for discussion on fantasy and reality had been built into the material. The children participate in discussion and give individual examples of the theme topic.

Fantasy and reality, and their differences seemed a pertinent topic for discussion among today's student. Teachers and Administrators, both, share in their concern over today's students, use of video games and their television viewing habits.

William Neff, principal of Andersonville Elementary, and acting Director of Elementary Education in Clarkston, has said that Clarkston educators and community participants are very much aware of video and television intrusions into student time, as well as limiting their learning and experiencing opportunities. The Clarkston District makes use of many volunteers and programs in trying to reach out to their student population and capture their attention into the wonderful world of learning.

Math skills in the lower elementary levels, focus on developing very basic concepts in the child's mind. Difficult for many children in this age group is the mastery of place value or counting beyond tens and into hun-

NECK, SHOULDER AND ARM PAIN

By Paul A. Rumph, D.C.

Do you suffer from tightness or stiffness of the neck? Sometimes just reaching for something or a little work causes a nagging pain in the shoulder. Does the pain radiate into the elbow and wrist and your fingers tingle? Do you use pain pills or aspirin to relieve these pains? These only mask the underlying reasons for your discomfort. The symptoms may come and go, but if the cause of the condition is not corrected, the condition will progress into constant pain, loss of strength and could cause total disability. Chiropractic has had great success in treating the above conditions in a natural non-drug related program that releases the life force through your nerves, enabling the body to heal itself.

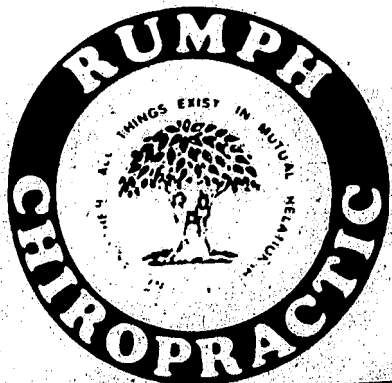

DON'T IGNORE THESE DANGER SIGNALS:

- Lower back and leg pains
- Difficulty in breathing
- Recurring headaches and nervousness

- Numbness in hands, legs or feet
- Painful joints and restless nights

- Neck, shoulder or arm pain

If not corrected, these can lead to more serious complications

NEVER CHANGE A LIGHT BULB AGAIN!

The Bulb Saver is a solid-state micro chip diode, manufactured by Motorola Corporation. It converts AC current to DC current and extends the life of a bulb filament up to 100 times.

For example, a regular bulb rated for 750 hours would last for about thirty-two days if burned continuously. But with the Bulb Saver, that same bulb's life would be extended to 75,000 hours or eight years. Less often used bulbs could last a life time.

This amazing development works with regular incandescent light bulbs (not 3-way type).

The results are amazing. Bulbs burn cooler and give a softer less glaring light. You save up to 30% on electricity, not to mention the savings on light bulbs. Just place the Bulb Saver on the bottom of a bulb and screw into the socket. The Bulb Saver has no moving parts so there is nothing to wear out. All materials meet or exceed U.L. standards and each Bulb Saver carries an eight year warranty.

The Bulb Saver comes in packages of 3 for $9.50, 7 for $19.95, 12 for $31.85, or 15 for $38.25 plus shipping and handling. Order the Bulb Saver today.

Send Check or Money Order, plus $1.75 for shipping and handling to:

How Can I Choose A Cemetery Wisely?

Like all the major purchases of your life, the choice of a final resting place should be made with care. Inspect several cemeteries, making note of the conditions of the grounds and markers. Don't be afraid to ask questions of the cemetery's directors. Here are a few questions which should be considered:

"Who owns and manages the cemetery?"

"Are there rules about placing flowers on graves or the times one may visit?"

"Is the location satisfactory?"

"If you move to another city, can you resell the lot?"

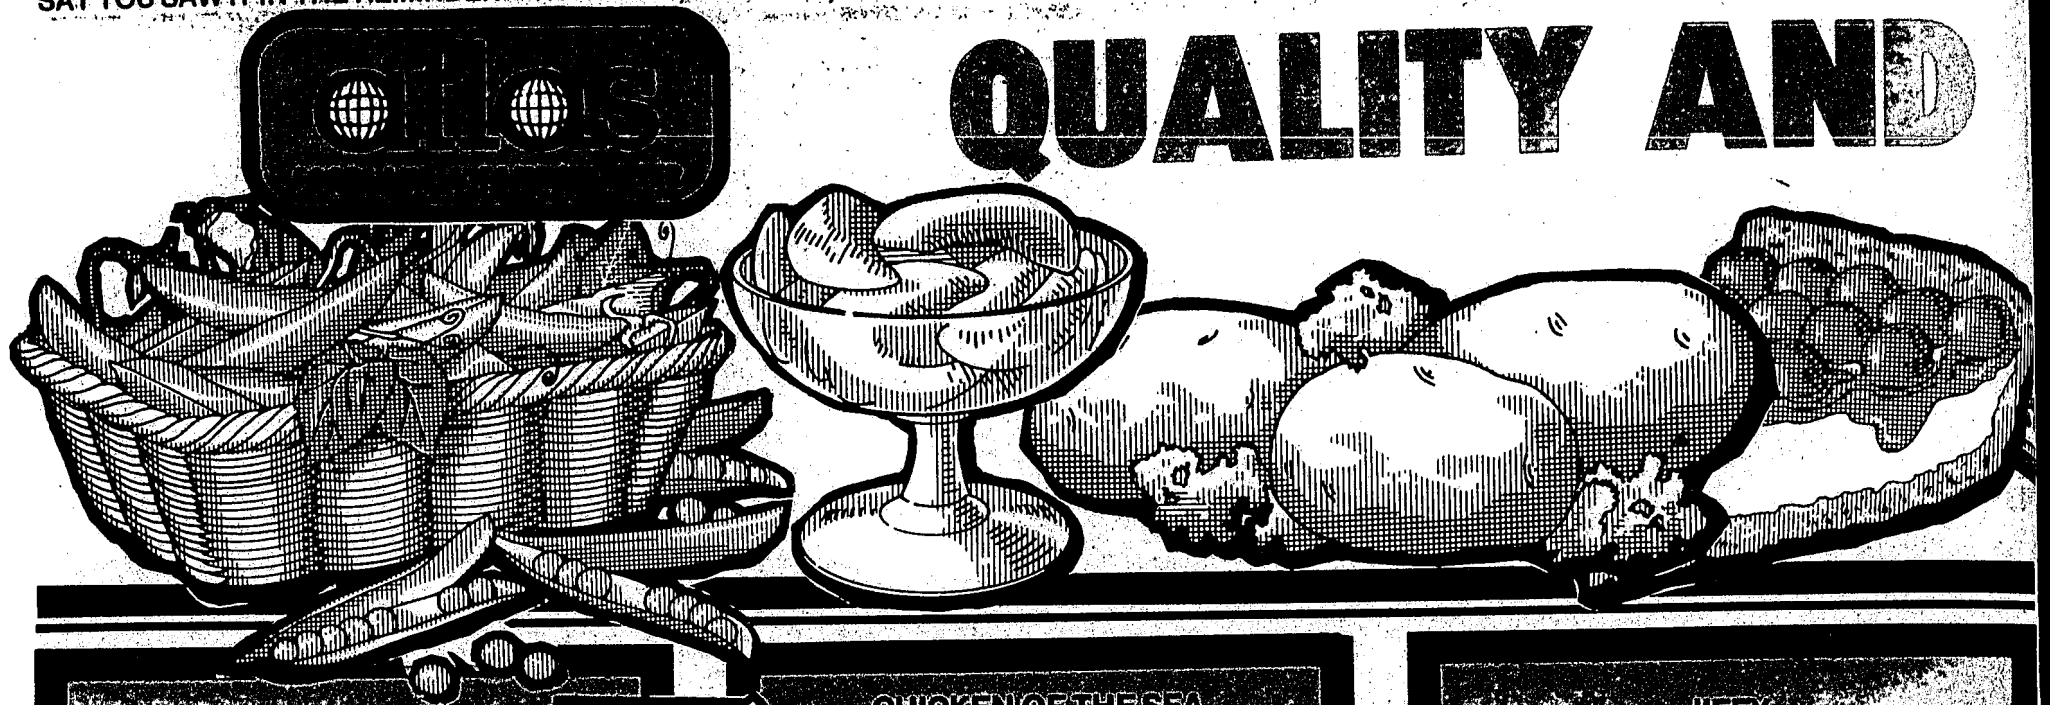

"Do you prefer a cemetery with monuments or a memorial garden, with only flush lawn markers?"

"Is the cemetery nonsectarian or devoted to one faith?"

"Is there a care fund (money to pay for upkeep)? If so, who administers it? Who is responsible for upkeep?"

Careful consideration of these various factors will make the choice one that you will be satisfied with. We can suggest more criteria for judging the cemeteries in our area. Please call us or stop by if you'd like more information.

Over the last couple of years, I've written many pieces about drunk driving and how it has attributed to the untimely deaths of many. One of the more responsible actions of Michigan's legislature, was to enact a stiffer set of drunk driving laws. Those laws will take effect March 30.

The tougher laws include use of a roadside breathalyzer test by an officer to determine if a drunk driving arrest is warranted and longer license suspensions for those convicted of drunk driving.

In case you're interested in more details, I've outlined the reasons behind the new laws and how they will be administered.

According to the Automobile Club of Michigan, on any weekend night before midnight, every 10th driver is legally drunk. After midnight the number soars to one in five.

That's incredible! But the next revelation is even more significant. In 1978, 48% of Michigan's fatal traffic accidents involved alcohol. By 1981, the percentage had climbed to 56.

A study of our own, reported in this newspaper a couple of months, supported these statistics. Alcohol and driving, in plain language, just don't mix!

More statistics. A drinking driver is six to 25 times more likely to be involved in a crash than a sober driver. In 1978, 26,923 persons were arrested with a Blood Alcohol Content (BAC) of .10. That number had been increased to 40,920 by 1981.

That increase is especially alarming when only an estimated 22% of those arrested for drunk driving are convicted on that charge.

The new legislation includes these three charges:

*Operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

*Operating a vehicle while ability is impaired by alcohol.

*A "per se" law which makes it a violation for a motorist with a BAC of .10 to operate a vehicle, regardless of the effect the alcohol has on the person's ability to drive.

A key change in the law is that an officer can administer a breathalyzer test to determine if a drunk driving arrest is warranted. Refusing the roadside test can result in a fine up to $100. The test is administered by a hand-held breath analyzer, about the size of a cigarette pack. It gives a digital reading of blood alcohol content when someone blows into it.

A motorist convicted of drunk driving under the new laws could pay more than $1000 in fines, court expenses, attorney fees, etc. That will be up from the 1982 average of $350-$550.

The new laws also call for the creation of a 23-member task force to review all aspects of the state's drunk driving problem. Among items to be studied are proposed and existing legislation, educational effort, law enforcement and judicial system activities.

Stablex Responds

Dear Mr. Wilcox:

We would like your paper to publish our response to an article that appeared in your issue of February 17, 1983 titled "Guest Editorial". We Can't Afford the Stablex Gamble in Groveland, signed Richard R. Wilcox.

The article indicates, a fundamental misunderstanding about what is the SealosafeSM Process utilized by Stablex.

The constant use of such words and statements such as -- gamble, take that chance, catastrophic results, possible destruction -- demonstrate that basic, factual data has not been researched by the author of the article.

We wish to submit that there is ample technical scientific public data to show without doubt that the Sealosafe process is a technology based on long known physical and chemical laws.

The chemical neutralization and fixation of the Sealosafe process is no more a gamble than the decision to use electricity in houses at the start of the century. This is a technological advance that should be evaluated by facts, not suppositions. Governments, universities, independent labs across the world have evaluated the Sealosafe process and found it safe.

We will gladly review these documents with citizens or any interested parties. We recommend as we have experienced in a very constructive way before in Pennsylvania, New Hampshire and Canada, the formation of a joint public committee. We are confident that such an open dialog would lead to a better understanding of this project. We can be reached at 634-8390.

Sincerely,
 David Wolf

Welfare Cheats Everywhere

Mr. Al Wieling:

A lot of the people in Michigan are wondering...Why and how can people who are on Welfare, never work a day to pay their taxes, etc. as we other suckers do ... just how can they file for income tax on their welfare free handouts, and get refunds??? This is being done and they are getting back big refunds and we who are not on welfare are paying for their free loading. It's not right and should be brought to the attention of someone, and you are a person who can make people listen.

One woman stood in a food handout program recently and said, "When I get my income tax back, I am going to buy a washer and dryer." What do you think of that?

It has also been brought to the attention of the welfare people that money they are giving some to eat and live on is being spent in the Bingo Halls. Any Monday you can find them at the Irqua Grotto Halls, Tuesday and Thursday nights at St. Benedicts Hall, Wednesday night at the policeman Bingo on Telegraph off Walton in Pontiac. Its loaded with welfare people. Thursday nights at Mason Jr. High School is loaded with welfare people too. One woman is on her eighth kid and goes to bingo everynight...The bingo hall on University is packed with Welfare dollys.

It all sums up that us taxpayers are scrimping to pay our bills, while they live it high on the hog and have all the enjoyment.

Then getting a tax refund on welfare burns our butts.

Check this out quietly and you will be shocked at what is going on to us.

Mat Dunaskiss

Why I Oppose Income Tax Hike

Guest Editorial by

Rep. Mat Dunaskiss

I cast my vote against the 38 percent income tax proposal which passed the House of Representatives last week because I believe that Michigan needs a reduced state government and long-term policy changes, not an income tax hike tied to the rate of inflation.

I do believe the state should put its fiscal house in order, however, I believe the Blanchard plan is essentially a permanent tax increase. The plan is an unsuitable remedy for this serious problem. The Governor and the Legislature should be making more policy changes, including cuts, consolidations, independent audits, and evaluations of state agencies.

Despite weeks of requests by Republicans, including myself, the Blanchard administration has failed to adequately explain the fiscal crisis. Just because the Governor says there isn't enough money to balance the books is not sufficient reason to pass a long-term tax. We still haven't pinned down exactly what the budget deficit is. How can you properly solve a problem that has never been defined?

Although I agree there is a cash shortfall, I don't see any justification for a whopping 38 percent permanent income tax increase. We don't know how much revenue we need this year, nor have we seen how much the Governor plans to spend in fiscal year 1984. Are we bailing the state out of an emergency or building up a windfall for future empire-building?

While it is necessary to raise some revenue to ease our immediate problems more attention should be focused on spending cuts. The commitment to eliminate or reduce government programs will evaporate if a long-term tax plan is signed into law. Instead of really changing the course of government by making it more streamlined, a tax hike will mean more "business as usual". Meaningful reform of government's size and structure is apt to be forgotten.

My goal is for a long-term budget reform mixed with a proposal which will address our immediate needs. I believe this is what would best serve the taxpayers of Michigan, and I will continue to work with that goal in mind.

SMALL TALK

by Rebecca Roberts

Sometimes, up here in the rural ramparts, we lose track of what's going on in the big city. Of course, one of the reasons many of us are here is to escape what's going on in the big city. However, in Detroit, toward the end of March, something exciting is happening. It's called Artrain.

For those who haven't caught this peripatetic little iron horse on its past gallops across Michigan, Artrain is a real train—full of real art. Every 14 to 16 months it gets a whole new show, beamed at yet another aspect of art. Since 1971, the train has been chugging in and out of little burghs and big cities, through Michigan and beyond.

Artrain is a museum, but it's not like any art museum we're accustomed to. No high domed monastic structure here. Artrain is three gallery cars sandwiched between a studio car, where people do art and other people watch (this tour has onboard a potter and a painter); and a turn-of-the-century caboose believed to be the oldest one still running.

Though it looks like a train on the outside, inside, Artrain's gallery cars are elegantly lit and the art is as fine as any you'll find at the DIA, or the Guggenheim. In fact, the art comes from museums around the country.

This tour, called "Uniquely American" gives us a crosshatch of the development of art in this country. It is divided into two parts. The first, called "Traditions in Process," gives us artifacts and art from our Native American Pacific Northwest culture. In this part of the exhibit, a Tlingit Halibut Hook shares history with a silkscreen, "Ka Ka Win," by Ahaswin artist Kwayatsapalth.

The second half of the exhibit, "Breakthrough: Post-War Modern," links the developments in art after World War Two with the native American art that went before it. Some of the art in "Uniquely American" comes from the Alaska Contemporary Art Bank. Next year, after a winter's hiatus, Artrain will travel to the West Coast.

Artrain will be sided at the SEMTA Depot in downtown Detroit (corner of Franklin Avenue and St. Antoine) from March 24 through the 29th. Hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily. Best of all, admission is free. Take the kids. They'll love it. Note: Artrain needs volunteers for its Detroit stop. If you're interested, call 313-871-2910 and ask for Therese Becker.

Neighbors to Give Away Fuel, Tissue

by Theresa Catalano

'Neighbor for Neighbor' has grown substantially since it opened for business on February 15 to help the needy in Springfield and Rose Townships. Approximately 30 of the volunteers attended the organizations

February meeting held at the Springfield Township Hall.

Less than 15 attended the month before when the group agreed to move forward.

Food supplies began coming in on February 12th and by the 16th of that month they were being distributed.

"We'd like to distribute on a second week basis but I'm afraid that that's not to be done," stated Norris Walls, the organizations coordinator.

'Neighbor for Neighbor' has been distributing food received from larger community programs, by individual donations as well as making purchases.

Perishables are being stored in a cellar owned by Lester Smith of Davisburg until other arrangements are made.

"Things we need in addition to food are monies for fuel oil," stated Walls. A fuel oil tank was donated to the organization which plans to store oil and distribute it to families who are in need of it to heat their homes.

Also, a large supply of bathroom tissue was obtained at a cheap rate that will also be given out.

"We're dealing with people with extra needs," commented Walls.

The group has approximately 50 families on file that they distribute to.

"I believe we have found a job for one man," exclaimed Walls. "I believe that there will be other services we can render, that have nothing to do with food itself, just by being made aware of the need and responding to that need."

Don Bradford of Springfield has offered to help by counseling people.

"I'm willing," said Bradford, "to work with people, individually, in small groups, and even in correspondence. And even to have one man hired means a lot to that family. So I'd like to offer that contribution.

The organizations next meeting is to be held on March 28 at the Rose Township Hall.

Mitch's Owners Refuse Lie Detector Test

The owners of Mitch's II restaurant have refused to take lie detector tests in connection with the Feb. 8 fire that caused extensive damage to their restaurant because they question the reliability of the test.

The four owners said last week they would take lie detector tests to prove their innocence, but changed their minds after reading a story in a Detroit newspaper last weekend about inaccuracies in lie detector test results, said Bill Mitchell, part owner.

In addition, fire marshals from the Detroit area advised the owners not to take lie detector tests, he said.

Mitchell said the owners do not believe the fire was arson, despite findings of township and state fire investigators who say they have evidence to show the fire was arson. He added that he doesn't believe fire investigators have evidence.

Studies by township and state fire investigators show that the fire was started in four places and had irregular burning patterns. In addition, fire investigators suspect arson because of the extensive damage caused by the fire in a short period of time. Firefighters battled the blaze for 45 minutes before putting the fire out.

Owners estimate the damage at $1 million.

The owners said they plan to hire a private fire investigation firm to determine the cause of the fire.

Mitchell said the owners will continue to cooperate with township and state fire investigators until the case is resolved.

The building's alarm system shows that no doors were opened after employees closed for the night and left the building at 12:40 a.m.

The fire was discovered by a passing motorist at 1:20 a.m.

The business's owners are Bill and Tony Mitchell, and Bill White and Tony Belli. The Mitchells also own and operate Mitch's Tavern at 4000 Cass Elizabeth Lake Road. Mitch's II is at 6665 Highland Road.

OCAI Circulates Petition

O.C.A.I. members are circulating a new tax relief petition. After being told, by some state legislative representative, that they haven't received all that much mail against an increase in taxes, Bill Munro and fellow citizens decided they'd better do something about that.

Here's what they hope citizens will sign or send on their own to their governmental representatives.

"We the undersigned Protest any more taxes!! Raised, new, old or any other. Let's get rid of some of the 32 taxes we already have. Michigan is #1 in the amount of taxes, if we still belonged to England we would not be paying this kind of tax. We had a Tea Party to get rid of taxes. It is time Lansing learned to live within their income, before all of us are without an income."

Coyle 1st Degree Conviction Upheld

The first-degree murder conviction of an Independence Township man in the September, 1979 "thrill" killing of a 19-year-old Clarkston woman was upheld Wednesday by the state appeals court.

A three-judge appeals panel unanimously affirmed the conviction of Jeffrey Allen Coyle, who was 19 when sentenced to life in prison for the slaying of Monica Hockey.

Coyle was convicted in March 1980 along with Kyle Johnson of Lake Orion, in the Sept. 1, 1979 slaying.

Miss Hockey was bludgeoned with a ball peen hammer, had her legs crushed by a car door and was stabbed with a meat fork. Her body was discovered in a wooded area off Clintonville Road.

The appeals court rejected various arguments raised by Coyle in his appeal, including misconduct by Prosecutor Patterson, poor work by his own court-appointed lawyer, and wrong decisions during his trial by Oakland County Circuit Judge Farrell Roberts, including allowing the jury to see four black and white photos of the murder victim.

Coyle, now 22, is serving his sentence at the state's maximum security prison in Marquette.

Johnson, now 23, is confined in the maximum security Huron Valley prison near Ypsilanti.

SAY YOU SAW IT IN THE REMINDER THURSDAY, MARCH 10, 1983

Board Approves 4 New Safety Paths

by Claudia Brazel

It seems the discussion over selection of safety path routes, in Independence Township, is nearing an end. Careful study of engineering data and cost analysis has focused board attention on four basic areas: Clarkston Road, Snowapple Drive to the library and Perry Lake Road to the library, at a cost of $27,000; Perry Lake Road north to Northview at a cost of $12,000; Eston Road to Algonquin at a cost of $33,000; and White Lake Road to Mustang at a cost of $67,500.

Total budget allowance for 1983 construction is $180,000. The four areas being considered are estimated to cost the township $140,000.

Two alternate plans are also being considered for possible completion, if funds are available after the four major areas are finished. They are: a connection of Sashabaw and Winell on Maybee Road and a Wealthy St. to library connection that is already an existing path.

It is possible that some money might remain after initial construction is done on the four objectives. The White Lake Road section may also create some problem as it is contingent on the Village assisting in completion of connector routes at a possible cost of around $30,000.

Residents were present at the March 1 meeting to reaffirm objections to path routes previously outlined for Maybee Road. The township board put the residents minds at ease when they decided that certain areas of proposed Maybee path routes would infringe on citizen property.

Trustee Dale Stuart suggested that parts of Maybee Road might have to be sectional. Stuart favored path routes that would begin and end sectionally, anywhere that taxpayers property and privacy might be violated.

Stuart stressed the need for the board to keep in mind the people who are paying the taxes. By constructing sections of path routes, that serve several areas of the township, without necessarily connecting them, Stuart felt the township would serve residents equally.

Some technical problems still remain but they are expected to be ironed out soon. The engineering firm of Hubble, Roth, and Clark will continue to address the specific problems associated with path route selection.

The firm has prepared township reports on all areas looked at so far and will now review, with more detail, the four primary sites.

Hubble, Roth and Clark apply national safety path guidelines to their research that included 17 points of safety to be considered as well as path size and construction details as outlined in Astro path guidelines.

Some discussion among board members and residents, regarding the 8 foot width of the paths occurred at the Tuesday night meeting. Many felt the 8 foot was too wide, tempting cars to utilize them. Especially when they ran alongside gravel roads such as Perry Lake Road. Other residents, simply thought they were unnecessarily wide and detracted from roadside attractiveness.

The engineering representative stated that national studies have shown that the 8 foot paths are necessary for safe and easy two way travel. Although in some cases a 6 foot, one way path may be appropriate.

Selection of the four path routes was unanimous although an amendment to include alternate Wealthy St. and Maybee Road routes was included only by a 3 to 3 vote.

Treasurer Fred Ritter was absent: Clerk Chris Rose, Trustee's Dale Stuart and Larry Kozma voted against the inclusion of the alternates. Supervisor Smith, Trustee Dan Travis and Bill Vandermark favored the alternate plan for the Wealthy St. route.

Already a usable path that cuts across school property, Kozma, Stuart and Rose felt it wasn't necessary to put additional money into paving it; especially in view of the fact that it crossed school property that may be utilized in the future, causing the paved path to be dismantled eventually.

Smith felt the probability of that occurring anytime in the near future was remote and that if the money was available, the township should pave it.

News in Brief

With the resignation of Trustee Addison H. Hubbard, the Clarkston Board of Education had been looking for someone to fill that position for the rest of Hubbard's term—approximately 4 months. At a special board meeting held on March 1st, Thomas Azoni of 5730 Kingfisher Road, Clarkston, was chosen to that position.

At age 30, Thomas Azoni is a trial lawyer for the West Bloomfield firm of Buchanan and Buchanan. He completed his undergraduate studies at the University of Michigan and has also attended the Detroit College of Law. Presently he's attending Wayne State University to obtain a L.L.M. Degree in advance taxation.

Married and being a recent father of 3 months, Azoni stated that his primary reason for applying for the position was due to his daughter, Lauren.

The decisions made by the Board have a profound effect on what is going to happen in the future and to the quality of education my daughter will receive, stated Azoni. "I want to be more than a concerned parent and this is the time to do it."

The township will cover increased chloriding cost for its residents. Independence Township residents will be able to provide dust control, for their neighborhood streets, at the same cost as last year, even though the county has raised its prices.

This year's chloriding costs are 34¢ a foot. The township will reimburse residents 17¢ of that amount, holding down residential cost.

D.N.R. approved substitutes for chloride will be allowed for use and will also be reimbursed at 17¢ rate.

Deadline for entry into the program is May 1, 1983. Resident areas should call the County Road Commission to obtain information and application forms. Applications should then be returned by the May 1 date to the county.

The Waterford Hills Race Track dilemma is closer to being resolved but still has some points of disagreement that must be worked out.

A resolution, outlining ordinance specifications, has been drafted but elements regarding sound decibel limitations and ordinance enforcement are still in question.

The resolution contains an agreement, by residents and track officials, to mutually discuss and report noise and activity concerns respective to track use. Lack of communication between the two parties in the past has led to major disagreement and hard feelings between them.

Township Trustee Dale Stuart and Attorney Jerry Fisher have been meeting with the two groups, in hopes of, drafting an ordinance with enforceable standards.

A special meeting will be held March 14th, in which enforcement guidelines will be reviewed and hopefully finalized, for ordinance approval.

Roads are in the news: The Oakland County Road Commission has asked Independence Township to participate, in whatever amount they can, in the improvement of Clarkston-Orion Road to Clintonville Road and South Eston Road.

The county intends to widen and further pave the shoulder approaches, of the two roads, where they join Clarkston-Orion Road. The cost is estimated to reach a figure of $368,000. Usual township participation is 50% but that requirement has been waived due to the high cost estimate.

The amount of township participation is, as yet, undetermined.

Degree in advance taxation.

Married and being a recent father of 3 months, Azoni stated that his primary reason for applying for the position was due to his daughter, Lauren.

The decisions made by the Board have a profound effect on what is going to happen in the future and to the quality of education my daughter will receive, stated Azoni. "I want to be more than a concerned parent and this is the time to do it."

The township will cover increased chloriding cost for its residents. Independence Township residents will be able to provide dust control, for their neighborhood streets, at the same cost as last year, even though the county has raised its prices.

This year's chloriding costs are 34¢ a foot. The township will reimburse residents 17¢ of that amount, holding down residential cost.

D.N.R. approved substitutes for chloride will be allowed for use and will also be reimbursed at 17¢ rate.

Deadline for entry into the program is May 1, 1983. Resident areas should call the County Road Commission to obtain information and application forms. Applications should then be returned by the May 1 date to the county.

The Waterford Hills Race Track dilemma is closer to being resolved but still has some points of disagreement that must be worked out.

A resolution, outlining ordinance specifications, has been drafted but elements regarding sound decibel limitations and ordinance enforcement are still in question.

The resolution contains an agreement, by residents and track officials, to mutually discuss and report noise and activity concerns respective to track use. Lack of communication between the two parties in the past has led to major disagreement and hard feelings between them.

Township Trustee Dale Stuart and Attorney Jerry Fisher have been meeting with the two groups, in hopes of, drafting an ordinance with enforceable standards.

ce with enforceable standards.

A special meeting will be held March 14th, in which enforcement guidelines will be reviewed and hopefully finalized, for ordinance approval.

Roads are in the news. The Oakland County Road Commission has asked Independence Township to participate, in whatever amount they can, in the improvement of Clarkston-Orion Road to Clintonville Road and South Eston Road.

The county intends to widen and further pave the shoulder approaches, of the two roads, where they join Clarkston-Orion Road.

The cost is estimated to reach a figure of $368,000. Usual township participation is 50% but that requirement has been waived due to the high cost estimate.

The amount of township participation is, as yet, undetermined.

An elementary teacher has the awesome task of making an arbitrary sign, such as 2 or 7 become a real meaningful entity to a child's imaginative mind. Once that is established, then skills in addition and subtraction can be approached.

Time went by too quickly and soon it was lunch. I had tasty chicken turnovers, but the kids told me their sliced turkey was really good too.

After lunch a goodbye to Mrs. Weglarski's first grade I had a few moments for chatting in the teacher's lounge. I asked the teachers present, how they felt about sending work home. I'd say there was a fairly equal split in opinion but there was one main underlying concern about creating an unpleasant experience at home.

Teachers are people too and they're quite aware of busy schedules, families with both parents working, and far too little time to enjoy a family. Whether they have children of their own or not, most Clarkston teachers seem to prefer less homework because of the possible abusive situation they could be, inadvertently, subjecting a parent and his child to. If a parent feels there is a need for his child to do more studying, then most Clarkston teachers are willing to send additional work home. They also encourage parent conferences to show them methods for providing learning experiences, other than rote homework.

After lunch, I was promoted to third grade and into Mrs. McDonell's class. When I arrived Mrs. McDonell was just finishing up the last chapter of "Charlotte's Webb." It was one of those little, perfect moments in life and the kids in the class were listening for it. The name's of the book's characters, entranced us all in the final familiarity of Wilbur, Zuckerman, Joy, Aranea, Nellie, and dear Charlotte. It certainly was a nice way to end a lunch recess.

Mrs. McDonell had opted to utilize the energetic morning hours for an art project that will be placed in one of the school's display cases. That is why math had been postponed until after lunch. The class was studying geometry. Third grade and they're studying geometry!

On the board Mrs. McDonell wrote the prefix's uni, bi, tri, and quad. The days lessons would address quadrilateral's, specifically. The young man seated in front of me, turned and with a sly smile said, "I wish they would come up with an abbreviation for that."

After spending some time on quadrilaterals, McDonell switched to reviewing fractions. She explained later, that she liked to break up her units of instruction, blending reviews of learned skills with challenging new concepts. McDonell views this as creating a positive situation to learn in, where established confidence provides encouragement.

Third grade seemed to be more of a listening lesson than first grade was. The kids, now older and wiser, had reached the age of learning. Basic skills, if not quite perfect, are familiar enough for use. The challenge is on, to acquire knowledge.

The bulletin board's in the third and fourth grade classes of McDonell and Mrs. Rasmusson, reflected the subtle link between upper and lower elementary accents.

In the third grade class, theme had become more specific and more lesson achievements appeared among the seasonal art work.

Mrs. Rasmusson's fourth grade room held shelves of research books, while maps and science displays were prominent on all bulletin boards.

Mrs. Rasmusson's class was discussing electricity. The material was advanced in comparison to my old fourth grade science class. The basic material may have centered around electrons but a more delicate lesson was being taught.

Rasmusson asked each child to imagine a situation, in which they might happen upon a downed electrical wire, and describe their reaction. Safety was stressed: don't touch, electricity kills, walk away, notify someone. The lesson was self-responsibility, safe action, systematic thought process, awareness and preservation. Fourth grade was a change, but the kids were still kids. They had Rasmusson ask me to answer a science question. I got the easy one, thank goodness. Rasmusson has a definite bond with her students.

Unfortunately, my earlier tardiness caused me to rush on to make it to Mrs. Mack's sixth grade class. I'm glad I made it, I wouldn't have missed it for the world. Sixth grade is it and it shows.

Mrs. Mack's room, seems to expand the longer you're in it. Perhaps it's because, occasionally at 3:40 p.m., sixth graders in Mack's room are busy expressing their growing independence. A larger group of 8 to 10 kids were clustered around a PET computer. True, they're playing a video game, but this one they helped to program.

And discussion is not necessarily, "WOW" "You got him", but rather, "I did a new game on our comp. last night." "Did" meaning programmed. A technologically, unique future, awaits these children, who in Clarkston Schools are obtaining hands-on, computer experiences as early as first grade.

Mrs. Mack respects her kids. She enjoys their budding sense of humor and feels stimulated by their growing independence. Mack says sixth graders can get a bit sassy and occasionally stubborn, but they have, through maturity acquired reason.

Too soon, it was time to go. A few last pictures of smiling, little faces and the day was over. I felt great.

As Mr. Hayden walked me to the door and we discussed the nature of being a child. We quietly acknowledge social changes, occurring today, that affect children.

The divorce rate is high and continues to expand. Only 20% of the kindergartners in school today, will have the same set of parents when they graduate.

Economic changes require more frequent and distant moves. Parents together or singly, must work harder and longer to maintain what they have. The whole world is trying hard to make it.

Within the Clarkston district, are parents who care and educators who care: both, are trying to allow the children their childhood, while preparing them for their place in destiny. For them the future holds challenge.
