Charles Ritchie Dies Suddenly

Charles O. Ritchie, of Maceday Gardens, Waterford Township, dropped dead at 7 o'clock Sunday evening, January 24, at his home, while he was at the supper table. Death was pronounced as due to cerebral hemrrhage.

Charles Ritchie was born in Hart-land, Ohio, January 11, 1886, and had just passed his forty-sixth birthday. He attended school at Shilo, Ohio. He was united in marriage to Frances Julia Miller in 1903, to which union were born six children. Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie came to Michigan in 1910. Mrs. Ritchie died in Detroit February 14, 1918, leaving five small children.

On May 30, 1921 Mr. Ritchie married Mary Louise Saunderson, of Detroit, and they moved the family to Memphis, Michigan. They came to Oakland County three and one-half years ago. Mr. Ritchie had been employed as a mechanic in the Repair Department of the Oakland Motor Car Company. He was a member of the Odd Fellows at Memphis.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Charles O. Ritchie, one daughter, Mrs. James Reed, of Pontiac, four sons, Lester, of Pontiac, Charles, Jr., of Nora, Ohio, Ray, of Commerce, and Arthur, at home, his mother Mrs. Mary Ritchie, and one sister, Mrs. William Richards.

Funeral services were held from the residence Wednesday afternoon January 27, with burial in Oak Hill Cemetery, Pontiac. Rev. H. A. Huey officiated. The body lay in state at the Ogden Funeral Home Monday and Tuesday.

Bushy-tailed fox squirrels frolic across the lawns and sidewalks and up and down the trees in the village and can be tamed in a very short time. The squirrels like to be fed and enjoy nuts and apples. The old school grounds are the haunt for the greater share of the nests for these fox squirrels, and there are many on N. Main and Holcomb Streets. However, it has been noticed that some of the youngsters of the village are enjoying the prank of chasing the squirrels up trees and stoning them. There is a heavy fine for killing fox squirrels in the state.

P. T. A. Hears at 1 o'clock. A. G. Leonard

A. G. Leonard, Deputy Commissioner of Public Schools of Oakland County, presented a valuable talk and outline of work for P. T. A. groups at the January meeting of the organization Monday evening in the High School auditorium.

Mrs. Iva M. Miller, president, open ed the meeting and presented Mr eonard.

"The success of the school program is felt only when the school and the, home cooperate," stated Mr. Leonard. He emphasized in his talk that the problems of the school and the children must be discussed and decided not as it might best suit the parent or the teacher, but as it will have its effect on the child.

"I do not know of anything that would prompt the superintendent to do his best work, that would encourage the Board of Education to organize to the best of its ability, that would inspire the teachers to fine work, and that would creep into the classroom itself and aid the pupils than the beneficial work of a P. T. A. if it is properly organized and run," stated Mr. Leonard.

He brought out in his' talk the purposes of the P. T. A. They are: 1. To provide a convenient opportunity for parents and teachers to meet together in sympathetic , cooperation for the good of the child; 2. To afford the parents an opportunity to become better acquainted with the newer methods of education.-

Mrs. Iva M. Miller presented an outline on ways and means of meeting the problems of the child and of cooperating with the school on these problems.

"No, I don't think it was," said Ashley. "We didn't inquire. No one mentioned it. Very likely it wasn't understood." if it had been known there might have been more interest in your responsibility." "There might have been more curlosity, Lieutenant, but it couldn't have changed the facts. The coroner's jury found the death accidental. You haven't heard the story, I guess. Rob-erts fell out of a window in his hotel room. Luckily for us, there couldn't be any question about it. A bellboy had just brought him some ginger ale and fce and was in the room. The chambermaid was making his bed. His room was in a courtway. A man was standing at a window across the way. It was all in the open. He fell backward out of his window." "It was murder," said Stanton.

"What did you go to his room for? What were you doing in San Francisco." "Traveling," said Ashley, grinning.

"There's no law against that. Callfornia particularly encourages it. Read the ads in your newspaper. We went to call on Roberts. Old friend of ours; also in San Francisco. Now, Lieutenant, I'll tell you something you won't believe. We'd just about decided that the panic was over. It was a panic. If you think a fellow's about to bump you, what do you do?_Bump him first, if you're in luck. These boys were panicked. But as I said to Blair, what was the use? What was it going to get us? Our reputations are not too good. Even you were suspecting us. You'll not deny it." "I'll not," said Stanton.

"There you are. Then what do you think other people were saying? As I told Blair, it would get to the police. in the end, and it wasn't worth the trouble. Elair seemed to give in. I'll not say he was really convinced, buthe seemed to be. We knew Roberts was at the Portula, and we knew he was sailing on a Japanese boat that afternoon. We went up to call on him, to say good-by. - A bellboy with ginger ale was knocking at his door. We waited until the boy had gone in, and then we opened the door sand said 'Hullo, Ron.' At that he gave a yell and backed right out of the open window and fell six stories.

"The bellboy saw it. The maid saw ft. A man across the way saw it. No one could have been more innocent." After the coroner's inquest we buried Roberts, as his nearest and best friends. We never did know anything about his people. He never talked of any."

"And now what?"...Stanton asked. Ashley laughed.

"Blair and I are left," he said, "with ninety thousand each. I don't know. Would you exactly trust Blair. Lieutenant, if you had to give a friend advice? Neither would I. Blair and I are good friends, you understand. I'm rather fond of the old brute, but I think I'll have to fix his clock. In of the palate of me. I'm a steak-andonlons man." "Thay's it?" said Ashley." "Moules for three. A steak for the lieutenant. a two-inch steak that the chef himself has pounded in the French manner. And onlons, golden brown onlons for the lleutenant. 'Calf's head and feet for Mrs.-Trembly and me."

"Good lord," said the lieutenant. 'T'm having dinner with a couple of cannibal tribes. Say the word, and I'll shoot you a nice young 'hood' or a tender snowbird."

"I didn't try to get you as a cus-tomer for the calf's feet," said Ashley, "but, man, you're missing another bet. Parsimonia, get on with the moules. We crave them. Now, Lieutenant, Ill draw you a map. I promised you two things."

He spread a napkin on the table and began to draw.

"I can do this fairly well from memory," he said. "You won't mindif it's not to scale. This is Peru. Ilike to draw maps.' We'll say this is Huacho to the north. This is Salinas bay, and here's Sulinas promontory. Then we come down by Ancon bay to Callao, and then here's Lima. Now, you're saying what's all this about, and the answer is that I like to draw maps, and I like to have Maisie lean over like she's doing. Stick around, Maisie. We're just starting for the mountains and the jungles. Here's the Mantaro river, there's the Apurimac and here's La Sol mountains. The mapmakers run their town out about to the Apurimac, and then they dismiss the rest of the country by marking it Indians. And never let anyone tell you they are not right. But you've got to know what Indians mean in Peru. It's not Sioux in the Dakotas or Apaches in Arizona. It's poison, fever, jungle, mountain, nestilence and all the plagues a white man dreads and will wade into for money. I got to put Peru away. Here's the moules. New, Stanton, if you haven't the good sense or taste to like these little friends of man I'll throw Peru into. the Bus-boy's arms, and that will be the end of that.

"Take a piece of the French bread, Mr. Stanton," said Maisie, "and dip it in the sauce."

"Take a hunk," said Ashley. "Man, you're about to eat something." Stanton did, and they watched his expression.

"Fall to, Maisie," said Ashley. "The meal's a success even without the steak and onions."

Stanton conceded that. An hour later when the table was cleared except for the coffee Ashley spread out his napkin map agrin.

"Up here is Cerro de Pasco, and onhere is Puerto, Bermudez, then the Ucayall river, and here is Masisea, and then to the southeast is the sorry for any poor sap who doesn't give himself a chance. I guess we're through with this map, aren't we, Lieutenant?"

"Have we begun with it?" Stanton TIM as curlous, as Blair. asked. What is your idea, Ashley? Ashley leaned back in his chair and laughed. "I wanted Blair to find me doing This," he said, "and I knew he would. I've been fond of the big fathead, I guess. I had to put him a little on his guard, Even if it won't do him any good. A sucher never gets a break, but Acton thinks he's on to me now. You'd not be surprised; would you, Lieutenant, if he got me tonight? He won't, but he thinks he'll do it some time, and he thinks I've given him reason and cause. So you see I'm playing square, but you can't play square with a fellow who never has a 'chance."

"Come clean, Ashley. That was a promise."

"What do you want details for? Honestly, I was using you and Maisle a bit tonight. I knew Blair would be here. You would know, wouldn't you. Stanton, that Blair and I would have to finish what Trembly began when he met Dunn Clayton'in the Dutch Mill? You wouldn't have any Illusion that Blair and I could live in sweetness and light? You can start a panic easier than you can stop it. What call have I to trust Blair and what call has he to trust me? You can't live always wondering when your old pal's going to, stick a knife in you if you don't stick a knife in him. As a matter of fact, Lieutenant, any other combination of the six might have come to a trustworthy agreement, better than Blair and I could. He's a simple sort of brute. It might take him six months to realize that he was going to kill me That's taking too much time in the case of me, because as soon as Roberts went out of the window backward I knew that I had to kill Blair. Now I've a clear conscience,"

"What did you do to Turner down in the jungle?" the lieutenant asked.

'Double-crossed him," said Ashley. What to you want details for? Double-crossed him. What else makes a man mad for ever? We were all crazy. What do you think we were guessing. We were Teep on doinz? hunting for Inca gold. Beat that! I don't want even to think of it. You've got a general idea of the story. Guess at the rest of it.

"We didn't do much to him, considering who we were and where we were. Just stole his map-he had a map-all these things start with maps -and left him to die: He didn't have The trouble was the a chance: fever. tough old devil didn't die. I'll say for Blair that he did want to shoot Turner or knock him on the head, but that would have been murder, and, Lieutenant, you know how we feel about murder.

"We restrained Blair. He always was too downright. He said we'd go to get help for Turner. His map was no good. No man ever is. We just barely got out allere. And we couldn't have found our way back to him if we had wanted to. We didn't want to. I don't know how Turner ever found his way out. I never asked him, and he never mentioned it. All in a lifetime, both ways. You can always laugh it off or fight it out." "You say you stole his. mane "The Inca-gold map; where it was buried. There's always a map with buried gold. That's the whole story. Turner was a man to do extraordinary things, crazy things. He liked them. He wanted his money hard, and he didn't object to making it hard. Generous-fisted devil, but he liked gold, I guess he liked the look and feel of it. He liked to hear the ring of one of his own double eagles on a bar. He fiked to feel the weight of a money belt around his waist, and if he was carrying it in a tough gambling town or oil field or mining camp he was happier. A great guy. He was the fellow who was born to hunt the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow and probably find it. Free-handed fellow, and sonare." "The square fellow you doublecrossed," the lieutenant said. "You. make murder seem like a public duty." "Isn't it the truth? Too bad you can't always pick the fellow for your dirf. You have to take them as they come. Spanish gold, that was what Turner was headed for. Some fellow had sold him a map. He wasn't the only one who ever went for burleds treasure. They're at it yet. There are some fools hunting for that Inca. gold right now. They'll keep at it. Couldn't you get a little excited by a map showing Spanish gold, Inca gold? Turner picked up a gang and went for it. Most of us were broke. He got Blair and me off a cattle boat at New-Orleans, Roberts had been trying to stake himself for another whirl at the gambling joints. Clayton he had found loating in St. Louis. Clayton wasn't broke. He had been with Turner before, on some Alaskan prospecting that didn't plan out. I think he found Trembly and Brown in Menphis contemplating some way of filling their pockets from some other fellow's pockets. There wasn't much to it. All-of us took Spanish gold on the brain.

Officers from both the army and návy have been detailed to attend the University of Michigan College of Engineering during the past year, according to the sonual report of President Alexander G. Ruthven. The transportation courses, established last year, have attracted wide attention from transportation engineers and transportation company officials, and the government recognized their importance by detailing two Army enginers to study in this field. At the request of the ordnance department of the Army, a special session was offered in chemical Engineering, in which 46 reserve officers enrolled, and the Navy Department has also sent several men to the University to do special work in explo-sives. The U. S. Army Motor Convoy was the guest of the University for three days on its annual tour. and the College is informed that two men each from the Coast Artillery and the Quartermasters Corp will do grad-uate work during the coming year.

Michigan Students Come From Many States and Countries

In the freshman class of 1980-1981 at the University of Michigan, 40 states, the District of Columbia, Canada, Bolivia, Hungary, the Irish Free Leonard. State, Japan, Persia, Peru and the Mr. an Philippine Islands were represented by students, according to the annual report of President Ruthven. In the total enrollment all states were represented, as well as 47 foreign coun-tries, statistics of Registrar Ira M. Smith show.

Michigan, of course, had the largest number of students resident in regular and summer sessions, with 8,519. The ten states sending the largest delegations of students were, in order, Ohid, 949; New York, 826; Illinois, 561; Fennsylvania, 895; In-diana, 384; New JerseyA133; Wisconsin, 105; Missouri, 100; and Kantucky, 99. Among the many nations or territories having students at the University, China led with 98, the next five highest being, Ontario, 77; India, 23; Philippine Islands, 22; Japan, 18; and the Hawailan Islands, 14. fact, I've already stavted to fix it. I'm, kind of sorry about Blair .- I'll miss him, but we've gone too far with this game to stop it now. That's how it is: Lieutenant. Old man Turner certainly called them, didn't he? Well, I hope he's had his fun'out of it. I won't say he didn't have it coming to him. But then we've had ours.

"What did you fellows do to him, mister?" "Oh, you can guess about what it. was. Double-crossed him. I'll tell you some time-maybe. You're such a pleasant cuss, Lieutenant, that everybody wants to oblige you. Even Maisle here, before she had even seen you. Tell you what I'll do. Have dinner with Maisie and mo and I'll do two things. I'll cell you the begin-ning of your story, and I'll show you the end of it."

'What do you mean by that?" "Take a chance and find out." "Take him up, Lieutenant," said Maisie suddenly. "Accepted," said Stanton. "When and where?" "Good scout. Be at your desk, at seven o'clock. I'll telephone you."

... CHAPTER XIII

Ashley Draws a Map of Peru At seven-thirty the lieutenant entered a West side restaurant, in Blue Island avenue a half-mile or so from Halsted street. Ashley had given the street number in telephoning as agreed and had asked Stanton to meet him and Maisle there.

Following the stout head waiter around the curve of the room, he saw Ashley and Maisie at a table. "I don't know this restnurant," he said as he greeted them and sat down ----You should," said Ashley, "for two reasons. It has the best food in town and more 'hoods' and opera singers than get under any other one roof. It also has the best dance orchestra. think there's a coke peddler works o racket in the rear. You can get cockle sauce with your spaghettl, and with your yeal you can get a real Frascati. You're not here as a copper so you can forget the moods' you see. Most of them know you. I told Parsi-monia---he's the head walter, his name's something different-you were coming. He was flattered. He'll be here in a second to take our order himself in person, You're a celebrated fellow, Stanton."

"Mister," said the lieutenant. "don't Tamaya river. If I could draw I'd put a little bunch of men in this region here between the Ucayali and the Tamaya, but I'm not artist enough for that, and even if I could make figures I couldn't make jungles. So you'll have to draw your own.

"One of them-I'll make some dots -is Turner. He's the big dot. Then this one is Dunn Clayton. He's sitting over here smoking a pipe. This one is Buck Trembly, and here's Preston Brown. You'd recognize this one, because he's more fidgety than the others, so he's Ron Roberts. And this one's me. You'd recognize me in a second, wouldn't you, Maisie? Even the lieutenant would after while. You can see something bold and dashing about that dot. There's a man!- What a mani That's me. And this one, I'll make him bigger, almost as big as Turner but not quite, you'd guess maybe--"

"That it was me." They looked up from the table and saw Blair leaning over Ashley's shoulders! "What's the idea?" Blair asked unpleasantly. Stanton thought there was a distinct suggestion of murder in the way he loomed over Ashley who was halfurned in his chair to look up at him. "You know Maisle, Acton, of course," said Ashlev.

"Yes, I know Maisle, and I know the copper here. What I don't know is your idea."

"Sit down and Join us, Acton. I'm telling Maisie and the lieutenant about the time we were down in Peru with Turner. You remember that time. Come on and sit down." "You're a d-n fool, Askiley," said Blair. "I didn't know you were so big a one. Sitting here miking maps for a copper and for Maisle. What's. the idea, Ashley? Just what is the idea 2" "Im tell you we were talking about Peru. Come and sit down. The lleutenant wanted to know why Turner left us so much money. I'm telling him. All right with you, isn't it?" Blnir scowled for another second and then began to smile. "Sure it's all right with me," he said, "but I can't sit down. I've got another table. I saw you here and came over to say bullo. 111 be get-ting pack. Adlos, Maisie, Adlos, Lieutenant."

He turned and walked away. Ashley instantly put his pencil on the map, 58 OUT OF 78 ADVERTISEMENTS* OF HOUSES, ROOMS AND GARAGES FOR RENT LISTED TELEPHONE NUMBERS TO CALL .

REQUENT advertisers in newspaper. "Want Ad" sections know that prospects usually will not trouble to look up an advertised house or product when they cannot telephone first for information or for an appointment.

Whether or not you have a house, a room, or a garage for rent, the telephone will prove useful daily in many social and business ways. And, in emergencies, it will summon doctor, firemen or police immediately, any hour of the day or night.

Of all the things you buy, probably none gives so much for so little as your telephone.
