Former Residenter

Killed on Dixie

Harold C. MacDonald, of Detroit, was burned to death in his automobile early Saturday morning after it struck a tree on the Dixie Highway three miles north of the Canteen. The car overturned and Mr. MacDonald was trapped in the burning vehicle. By the time motorists could reach it, the car was a mass of flames.

Mrs. Harold MacDonald is the former Bernice Rees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Rees, who resided until three years ago just north of Clarkston. At that time the Rees family moved their residence to Holly. Mrs. MacDonald's brother, John Rees, is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Miller.

The MacDonalds reside in Ferndale and Harold MacDonald was branch manager for the Wood Hydraulic Hoist and Body Company of Detroit. He was returning home from Flint where he had held a sales conference. It is the belief of some that the accident occurred when a tire blew out and the belief of others that he fell asleep at the wheel.

Harold MacDonald was 39 years old, was a native of Minnesota and a former resident of Clarkston. He leaves his wife and two sons, Harold, Jr., 14, and William, 12. He was a thirty-second degree Mason, a Shriner and a Methodist.

Wings — and Michigan

The current issue of The Michigan Bell organ of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company gives a splendid article on that rapidly growing young state among Michigan's great businesses, the manufacturing of airplanes. It states:

"We believe our state will become the center of the aircraft industry. For Michigan, one of the leading manufacturing states because of its ideal location, has all or nearly all of the facilities demanded for the business of building planes, just as it has for that of building cars."

"So we hail this young giant of the air, and the effort Michigan is making to fit with wings a world it already has placed on cushioned wheels."

The progress made in the comparatively new industry was displayed to the thousands who visited the National Aircraft Show held in Detroit last week. Thousands viewed the most modern aircraft, with all the accessories, and marvelled at the growth of this young business. Thousands saw the exhibit of telephone and signal equipment by means of which planes are dispatched, fields administered and the lives of flyers and passengers safeguarded.

The board of control of the show included two Michigan men, William B. Mayo, chief engineer, Ford Motor Company, and Edward Macaulay, aircraft division, Packard Motor Car Company. Out of the twenty-five airplane manufacturers to display at the show, three were from Michigan. They were the Ford Motor Company, of Dearborn; Stinson Aircraft Corporation, of Wayne; and the Heath Aircraft Corporation, of Niles.

"Michigan not only is a leader in the manufacturing of airplanes and accessories, but also in its airmail and passenger lines. Our state has more

Former Villager Succumbs in Detroit

Mrs. Maria E. Dunk, 86, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edward A. McLellan, 19411 Hershey Ave., Detroit, at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning, following a prolonged illness of eight years.

Maria E. Dunk was born in Clarkston, April 11, 1846, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Owen. She was born and lived as a child in the first house north of the Baptist Church. While still a child the family moved to Waterford, back to the Village, and then to Saginaw, where Mr. Owen, her father, spent a successful life. He was a former lumberman of the Saginaw Valley; he served as State Senator and as mayor of Saginaw for many years; he built and operated the first grist mill in Oakland County. He also built the general store at Waterford which was purchased by Henry Ford and moved to Dearborn a few years ago.

Her mother, Maria Sabine, resided in Detroit in the family home at the corner of Woodward and Jefferson in the early eighties before she married and moved to Clarkston.

Maria Owen was married to Alfred A. Dunk and the couple resided in Saginaw until his death in 1879. He was a prominent druggist of that city.

Mrs. Dunk is survived by one daughter, Mrs. McLellan, one son, Alfred O. Dunk, of Pleasant Ridge, four brothers, William C. Owen, of Pontiac, John S. Owen, and Edward A. Owen both of East Claire, Wisconsin, and James H. Owen, of Saginaw, and two sisters, Miss S. S. Owen, and Miss Goetner G. Owen, both of Saginaw. There are four grandchildren, Mrs. B. C. Lacey, of Dayton, Ohio, Alfred Dunk, of Pleasant Ridge, E. Allen and Mary Elizabeth McLellan of Detroit. Alfred O. Dunk, son of the deceased, is one of Detroit's pioneer automobile men and is president of the Detroit Electric Car Company.

The body was brought to the Ogden Funeral Home where it lies in state. The funeral will be held this afternoon, Friday, April 15, at 2:30, from the Ogden Home, and burial will take place in Lakeview Cemetery. Reverend Davis, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Saginaw will officiate.

C. K. Phillips Has Interesting Document

An original tax roll for Independence Township for the year 1845 is in the possession of C. K. Phillips, township supervisor, and is a document that gives many interesting lights on the times of that year. It lists the properties and assessments and the taxes range in totals, from 21 cents to $27.00. That later figure is the highest assessment made in the township for the year and covers several large plots of ground.

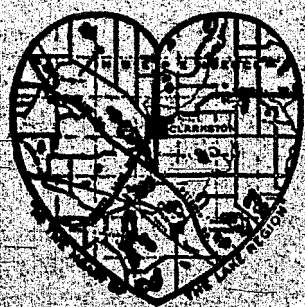

The largest tax was paid by one Adam Fisher. Next highest tax was levied on Jeremiah Clarke at $21.00; next to William Axford at $16.45 and next to Nelson W. Clarke, at $16.44. There were innumerable levies ranging from 21 cents to $1.00, some including assessments for more than one lot. It shows the vast difference between the taxes of 1845 and 1932.

Outside of the few mentioned high taxes (of that day) one of $9.17 was levied on Cornelius Voorhies and that figure taxed five lots.

Many names are mentioned in the roll that are familiar to local residents of today. They include the family names of Phillips, Clarke, Vliet, Demund, David, Green, Gale, Gallican, Holcomb, Linneberg, Miller, Mawbee, Pettis, Bierns, Warden, Wells, Walter, Addis, Allen, Ainsler, Bird, Beardsley, and Beardsley, Hoyt, Jones.

Attached to the first page of the roll is a document signed by Biden Phillips, Peter Voorhies, and William Beardsley, and dated at Independence this 20th day of May, 1845. The signed statement is the certified report of those three men that had assessed according to their best knowledge, etc. There is also a statement signed by William J. Henderson, Treasurer of Oakland County. It mentions that William S. Blake, Treasurer of Independence Township had that day, October 29, 1845, filed his bond at the office in Pontiac.

The document gives one a fair idea of how much the taxes have increased since 1845. It also lists approximately 50 lots and properties assessed, but the owner is listed as "unknown."

State Legislature Out To Force General Tax Reduction

When the present session of the special legislative session ends, no one in Michigan can say that members of the house or senate have not endeavored to serve the best interests of the taxpayers of the state for if they had their way there would be such substantial reductions in state expenses that even the severest critic of public expenditures would be thoroughly satisfied. They would go way beyond anything that the governor has recommended. In fact, they have done so wherever possible. The building fund for the ensuing year has been slashed an additional twenty-five per cent on top of the fifteen per cent asked by the governor. Many of the higher-up salaries will be reduced much more than fifteen per cent by the time the legislature is through with some of the bills now before it.

There is a general feeling of restraint upon the part of the legislators. The refusal of the attorney general's office to prepare only such bills as come from the governor's office has resulted in some members of the house preparing their own bills which seek to make more substantial cuts in salaries, expenses and maintenance funds than those that have been recommended.

Another newspaper publisher during the past few days stepped into the spotlight. Representative Len Feigner, of Nashville, has introduced a bill into the house which would require banks to insure all deposits. He contends that the man or woman who puts money into a savings account should have the same protection as granted public funds.

The legislature has made progress with its banking legislation. The bill permitting closed banks to open under a depositors' agreement providing 85 per cent sign it, is apparently on the way to become a law. The statute at present requires that 95 per cent of the depositors sign up to permit a closed bank to re-open. A number of banks are now operating under agreements of this kind, the largest one being Ypsilanti.

Representative Vern Brown, in his campaign for reduction of salaries as well as the decrease in the number of state employees, forced a reduction last week in the number of employees carried on the Chelsea cement plant payroll. This plant was closed over a year ago and Representative Brown discovered that it still maintained a yearly payroll of over $41,000. When he brought this matter to light, it was immediately cut in half.

Senator Chester Howell, publisher of the Chesaning Argus, is not letting up in his demands for a complete public review of an itemized report of the state personnel and salaries.

Coupled with the salary question has come the problem of state owned automobiles. Members of the legislature before the present week is over will know just how many cars the various departments are using—and what the state is paying to keep these cars in operation.

Most important of all, and the bill providing the greatest amount of difficulty, is the measure which seeks to divide the weight tax among the various counties.

Twice this bill has been called back by Governor Brucker and altered in an effort to have it give more general satisfaction. How to frame the bill so that it will give the most relief is the question none are agreed upon.

Until some sort of an agreement can be reached upon many of these conflicting measures, there seems to be little prospect of immediate adjournment.

Burn Marshes Early

An appeal to persons accustomed to burn over marshy pastures and meadow lands each spring is being made by the Department of Conservation. The Department is asking that the burning be done early before the upland game birds begin to nest.

Michigan has an annual toll of bird nests and eggs as a result of fires voluntarily set to burn meadows and pastures, the Department said. The nests of many ground nesting birds such as prairie chicken, quail, meadow larks and pheasants are destroyed when burning is done in the spring. Spring grass burning also destroys much good nesting cover, usually kills much of the humus and reduces the fertility of the soil, as well as frequently starting forest fires. A large proportion of forest fires have their origin in grass fires that get out of control with a shifting or increasing wind.

If the spring burning is done not later than the first week in May, in ordinary seasons, a minimum of wild life loss results. Farmers and others burning over grass should patrol the area while the fire is burning to make sure it doesn't get away, the Department advises.

Now is Time to Watch Dogs for Rabies

April and early May, not the "dog days" of mid-summer, is the time when closest watch should be kept of suspected animals, warns Professor Herbert W. Emerson, director of the Pasteur Institute in the University of Michigan. Because rabies is a disease communicated by bites or other close contacts, the disease is most frequent in the spring when breeding dogs tend to gather in groups, records show. The hot weather of summer has no connection with the disease, says Dr. Emerson, cases actually being fewer at that time.

"Don't immediately kill a dog or other animal suspected of rabies," is Dr. Emerson's second admonition. The proper thing is to keep the animal under observation for ten days, in which time he will soon show plain symptoms or die if the disease is actually present, since a bite is only dangerous late in the course of the disease, when virus is present in the saliva. Many dogs which have no sign of rabies are shot annually by police or excited citizens, and, from the physician's point of view, it is harder to make a diagnosis of a dead animal than from the observed symptoms of a live one, he states.

No immediate worry need follow a dog bite, since rabies is very slow in developing contrary to most infections, which spread by way of the blood stream, the virus of rabies travels along the nerves, and in the case of an infected bite on the head requires three weeks, or on the hands or legs seven weeks to reach the brain at which time only are symptoms evident. If during this period of spread, Pasteur treatments are begun, as soon as the animal causing the wound has been proven rabid, it is almost certain that the infection will be stopped before harm is done. Waiting is dangerous, however, if the treatment is indicated, says Dr. Emerson, since if the infection reaches the brain it is almost always fatal.

In animals the symptoms of rabies include a difficulty in eating, due to paralysis of spasms of the throat, fits or indications of pain and a great irritability and nervousness, which is the cause of such an animal snapping at every imagined enemy. In human beings there is a similar difficulty with the throat, a greatly increased sensitivity to all sights, sounds and other stimuli, together with a feeling of apprehension and other indications of disturbed mental life. All animals seem susceptible to rabies, Dr. Emerson says. In Russia it is spread by wolves, in the western United States coyote and dogs infect many cattle.

In settled districts the cat is most commonly affected next to the dog, but its more solitary habits protect it more from possible contact with infected animals. Care should be taken not to allow a suspected dog to lick the hands on which there is an open dog cut or scratch, and in handling the brains of rabid animals, states Dr. Emerson, since cases have been contracted in this way.

Rayon Takes on Silk Appearance

Many fabrics are appearing on the market in entirely new forms this spring. Rayon, for instance, is minus its hitherto characteristic luster, and has assumed the fine texture of soft woolsens or mixtures of silk and wool.

The result has been gained through the use of spun rayon fibres, according to Miss Julia Tear, textiles expert, who explains that the fibers are carded and spun as cotton is, and, by this process, a high degree of fineness in texture has been put into the rayon.

As in cotton and the light weight woolsens, many of the spun rayons are made in interesting mesh weaves, as the tendency seems to be to try to outdo each other in originality of weave.

The new rayon is offered in all the new pastel and brilliant shades being shown this season. Since the warmth of wool is absent in rayon, it is a practical and hygienic substitute for sports wear. The materials may be adapted to many other uses, also, since the improvement in texture.

Neither Sugar Nor Germs Cause of Tooth Cavities

Since the time of the ancient Greeks sweets have been accused of causing dental caries, but carefully controlled experiments carried out at the University of Michigan show that rats fed a diet 53 per cent sugar failed to develop a single cavity. The same experiment showed that rats failed to develop caries though repeatedly inoculated with Bacillus acidophilus, a germ supposed to cause caries, and also that a diet poor enough to cause rickets will not cause caries, at least in rats. The work was done by Dr. C. A. Lilly, research associate, and Dr. L. H. Newburgh, Professor of clinical investigation in internal medicine.

One group of rats was fed a diet of which 53 per cent was cane sugar, another with the same amount of corn starch. All were infected with Bacillus acidophilus in the bargain, yet when killed after nine months and the teeth microscopically examined, no caries were found. Another series of animals was fed a like diet and had the acidopholous germs rubbed into its mouth three times weekly, yet developed no caries, conclusive evidence that the germ plays little or no part in the dental trouble.

Two other groups of rats were tested for a possible relationship between rickets and caries. One of these groups was fed on a phosphorus poor diet calculated to normally give too little of that element for proper bone formation, which happens in rickets. This lot received also .03 viosterol, which furnishes vitamin D. Neither caries nor rickets showed in thirteen months, a time equal to about one-third of the span of life in man. The viosterol acted in this case to make the absorption of what little phosphorus there was super-efficient, and so sufficient for bone proper growth. The second lot fed on the phosphorus poor diet, but without viosterol, fared badly, only one living to thirteen months, and all showing florid rickets. None, however, showed any signs of caries, indicating that conditions causing serious rickets in the bones do not in themselves affect the structure of the teeth.

The Michigan experiments were designed to clear the field of conflicting opinions as to the cause of dental caries and make possible future experiments which may arrive at the solution. Although almost all experiments have used rats so far it may be necessary to use monkeys to get true results applicable to humans. Dr. Newburgh believes, since rat's teeth grow continuously, while those of monkeys are like human's. The best thing that human beings can do, until absolute knowledge of the caries is known, is to make sure that expectant mothers eat plenty of phosphorus and calcium bearing foods, since it appears that children who are perfectly nourished before as well as after birth are unlikely to show either rickets or dental caries. This great importance of proper diet in the production of sound teeth has been demonstrated by Dr. R. W. Bunting of the Michigan Dental School in a series of observations of school children.

New Method of Accrediting High Schools Adopted

A plan whereby the University of Michigan will actively cooperate with the high schools and junior colleges of the state in the formation of courses of study which will meet university standards instead of merely granting or refusing accredited standing to schools was announced by the Board of Regents at their February meeting. The university committees on accredited schools and inspection of junior colleges are discontinued and replaced by a central committee on cooperation with educational institutions, which will have sub-committees designed to carry out relations with secondary schools and institutions of higher education. The whole university policy is both centralized and broadened in scope under the new plan, bringing into closer contact the various institutions of the state and coordinating work and policies with the university. Improved academic standards both within and without the university are expected to result.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

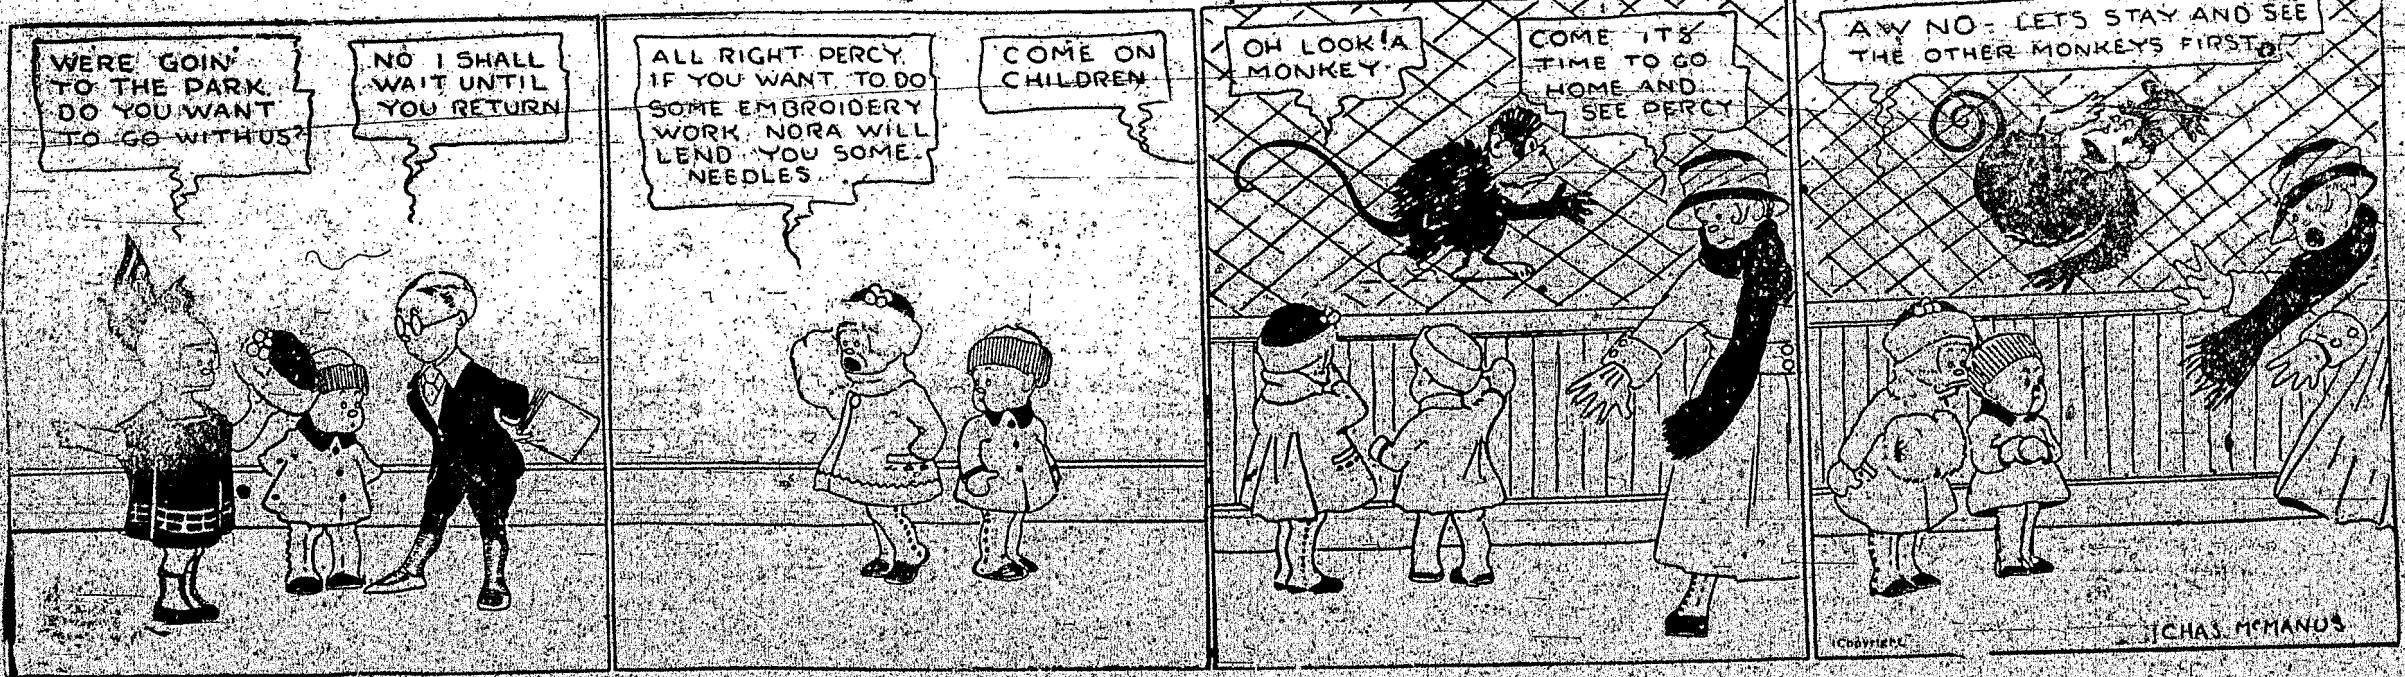

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931, C. M. Co.

Editors Meet with Poor Commission

Considerable Information Given Them by Mr. Wilson

Oakland County Weekly Press Association members had their April meeting with the Oakland County Poor Commission representatives at their invitation, on Friday of last week.

Before luncheon the group was shown thru the headquarters of the Commission in the Wilson Building by C. B. Wilson, one of the three members of the new Poor Commission which took office last November.

Everything Orderly

Everything at the headquarters was orderly. Each family who receives help there has a definite day during the week to come in.

Problems Increasing

The Commission has not been paying for electric lights, gas, or rents. Mr. Wilson says landlords are demanding rents and forcing evictions, and that soon the county must face that problem.

Interesting Figures

Since the new commission has been in office 1125 families, or 4800 persons, have been removed from the county roll. These removals have been for the following reasons: 216 returned to work; 572 because investigation showed they did not need help; 40 returned to their legal residence which was outside of county; 25 work with family completed; 61 moved and can no longer be served; 49 voluntary removal; 97 returned to other agencies; 22 lack of cooperation.

Change of Heart

Mary Ann had been anxiously looking forward to a visit from her grandmother and for the first few days after her arrival they were on most friendly terms.

Uses of a Hobby

One fine thing about a hobby is that one never knows where it will end or where it may lead. Many a man has pursued a hobby so zealously that eventually it became his vocation, leading on to fame, fortune and whatnot.

Gardners Attend Grand Opera Season

Wanted No Speech with Her

Giles had never been in London before, and had never used the telephone.

"He felt strange and lonely amidst the roar and bustle of the traffic, so seeing a public telephone box and having heard of the wonders of this invention, he entered the box, and, taking down the receiver, demanded speech with his wife."

The operator's voice came back, "Number, please."
