Real Winter

For those of you who are spending the winter in the sunny south, in California, or other places away from here, perhaps you might be interested in our weather conditions. We had six inches of snow late Tuesday and during the night Tuesday. It was a regular blizzard and no doubt many of the hunters who left here earlier in the week for the northland arrived there and are many of them snowed in. They have a fine chance to hunt, now, but probably cannot drive their cars around much.

It was beautiful out and everyone was out shovelling snow Wednesday morning. It was much warmer Wednesday, but there wasn't a great deal of melting. The limbs of the trees have been beautiful with their heavy branches of snow. Icicles have been hanging from the house eaves and water troughs, but are many of them melted by now. Snow ploughs were all busy Wednesday morning. Several folks, were stuck Tuesday night and had to be pulled out.

tutional Amendment The recent radio talk by Professor

Repealing a Consti-

Brown of the Political Science Department has led to such a wide de mand, for reprints from those who are unfamiliar with the procedure of repeal that we present here a digest of that talk. In the radio address the questions were put by Professor Waldo Abbot, director of broadcasting, with Professor Brown giving the answers.

Article V of the Constitution of the United States states that an amendment of the Constitution shall be effected as follows: "The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall of Cape Cod," Mrs. Lee Clark. propose amendments to this Consti- Fourth Course—Pumpkin tution, or, on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress. . . ."

To repeal an existing amendment another must be passed, repealing in part or whole the one already in the Constitution.

Question: Would any other means than that provided by Article V be valid for proposing or ratifying an amendment?

Answer: No. The agitation for a popular referendum on the 18th Amendment would be useful in determining popular sentiment only. The Supreme Court has held that a popular referendum cannot take the place of the legislative action laid down in Article V.

Question: Which of the two methods of proposing amendments has beeen used more?

Answer: In every instance to date the proposals have been made by Congress directly. Many legislatures of individual states have requested the calling of a convention to propose amendments, but the necessary two-thirds of all the states have never so acted at once.

Question: What is meant by "twothirds" in Article V?

Answer: Two-thirds of a quorum of each House, a quorum being a majority, and not necessarily the whole membership of the House.

Question: What part does the Presthe occasion being King's 12th bir h- ident play in amending the Constitu-

Answer: Legally, none. But as a political leader he may exert influon his narty, members in Congress. The resolution passed by Congress proposing an amendment does not need the President's signature, nor can he veto it.

Question: What is the step after Congress has approved an amendment by two-thirds of both Houses? Answer: It is submitted to the 48 states for ratification, either by the state legislatures or by state conventions especially called. Congress determines which method shall be used and so far has always chosen the state legislatures.

Question: If ratification is by the legislatures, what vote in each is needed to adopt the amendment.

Answer: The same as is required in each state constitution to pass state legislation; in most cases a mere majority or a quorum. To put the amendment in the national Constitution, noth Houses of the legislatures in 36 states must pass it. Question: Can Congress withdraw submitted amendment? Answer: No Its duty ends with submitting the amendment. Power then goes o the states.

Question. Muri stafes act immedi ately of does their opportunity main open indefinitely?

Answer: in the past states could wait indefinitely. For the first time, with the 18th amendment, Congress set a time limit, seven years in that particular case, and was upheld by the Supreme Court. Question: Can a state, after ratifying, rescind its action?

Answer: This point is not absolutely settled. Attorney-General Mitchell believes it can. Opinion in the past has been to the contrain Of course once the required, two thirds of the states have approved the amendment the matter is definite ly closed.

Question: Ought a proposal for re peal of the 18th Amendment be sub mitted to state legislatures or to state conventions?

Answer: On a question directly af-fecting the rights and habits of the people a convention, popularly elected to consider this one matter would doubtless give the clearest expression of popular feeling. Both major parties have indicated their preference for this method on the prohibition issue, though it has never been used so far. Question: Can Congress interfere with the methods of calling and vot-

Adoption of the tax limitation amendment, No. 2, in last week's election seemed almost a certainty at the latest report, with a majority of over 22,000 votes. There are still a number of precincts to be heard from. but the majority of these were outlying districts, certain to pass the amendment in their sections.

The effect of the amendment is doubtful according to the opinions of some. Some state officials and many speakers in the recent campaigns predicted that the amendment would reduce the revenue of Michigan's taxing bodies more than 50 per cent. However, other tax experts state that the amendment passage would only necessitate minor economies.

MICHICAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

It's easy to be forgotten if you have no telephone

When friends plan parties and other good times, often "on the spur of the moment", they usually turn to the telephone to invite the "crowd". For telephoning is the easiest and quickest way. As a result, those without telephones miss many good times.

A telephone costs surprisingly little ... only a few cents a day. It helps in finding employment. It is a social and business aid. And it Is PRICELESS PROTECTION IN EMERGENCIES, enabling you to summon doctor, firemen, or police instantly, day or night.

Just one telephone call in an emergency may be worth more than the cost of the service for a lifetime.

Have Entry Exposition

According to the management of Come tonight and learn how Olivia the Exposition, which will celebrate its 33rd anniversary November 26 to December 3 in its permanent home at the Chicago Stock Yards, there were 340 carloads of cattle, sheep, and swine entered at the 1931 International, the largest display of prime commercial livestock ever assembled at any show in the world.

The sheep carlots consist of fifty animals to a load and the judging is based on the comparison of one unit of fifty to another. Rov Guy, sheep buyer for Swift & Company, Chicago, will judge them.

Railroads from Michigan points to Chicago will grant special low round trip fares during the week of the Stock Show. The management assures that ample free parking space will be provided on the Exposition grounds for those who drive.

The reason why purebred sires are sending to the International Live-stock Show at Chicago, November 26, with the herds going from Michigan State College.

This carload of lambs was selected from the flocks of 20 different farmers living in 14 Michigan counties. The fact that similar types of pure-bred sires had been used on these farms enabled the selection of a uniform carload of lambs. Animals of uniform, high quality bring top market prices.

College stock which goes to the Show will include 11 head of cattle, 48 sheep, 14 horses, and 24 hogs. Many of these animals have been exhibited at state fairs this year.

Present Annual Play What? The Red-Headed Stepchild. Where? Drayton Hi, in auditorium. When? November 22.

Time? 8:00 p. m. The story runs thus:

When Richard Russell brings his young daughter by his first marriage from the western ranch, where she has been brought up without education or culture, to his fashionable Chicago home to live, society freely predicts that the experiment will be a failure; and it is. It would be easier to domesticate the wild deer than to tame this free and unspoiled child of nature, who is in her element breaking bronchos and completely at sea trying to learn the technique of afternoon tea.

The play abounds in laughable situations and lively dialogue and sparkles with humor. The cast includes:

Fishes Do Not Drink

When you say a man "drinks like a fish," you really imply that he does not drink. For fishes swallow no water for refreshment. When you see a fish opening and closing its mouth a tish opening and closing its mouth it is merely breathing. Water is tak-en in, but it does not pass down the throat to the body. While the fish breathes, its gullet is tightly con-stricted at the back by means of muscles encircling the throat, and the water flows away over the gills. While water does not pass the closed The boy did not appear to grasp his meaning, so the teacher, seeking to make it clear, said:

of such importance that no person interested in the purchase of a low-priced automobile can afford to disregard it

MERICA naturally expects big things of Chevrolet—world's largest builder of automobiles for 4 of the past 6 years.* And again America's confidence is fully justified. The new Chevrolet, to appear early in December, advances standards in every phase of motoring. For Chevrolet has broken boldly with the past wherever change means improvement in style, comfort, smoothness, performance, safety, economy, and dependability.

Chevrolet engineers have packed it with advancement after advancement. Fisher body craftsmen have taken advantage of an even longer wheelbase to contribute entirely new coachwork-including one of the most fundamental comfort improvements of all time. And Chevrolet's experience, together with the marked advantages that naturally accrue to the leader in sales, makes possible a price which takes account of today's incomes.

So keep an open mind on the question of an automobile purchase until you see Chevrolet's Great American Value for 1933. It will prove to you, beyond a doubt, that this is the time to buy a car, and this is the car to buy.

Relief Valued at $135,122 Given County By Red Cross

holds that it may not Question: What form would the proposed repeal of resubmission of the 18th Amendment také?

Answer: This is entirely up to Congress. That body may simply submit a proposal merely to strike the 18th Amendment out of the Constitution, or it may combine with such a proposal the provision that control be returned to the states, reserving certain powers to Congress, Several proposals might be submitted for state choice, but this would lead to considerable confusoin.

Question: Can early action on repeal be expected?

Answer: Most likely not: In the first place a long debate in Congress is probable. It must be remembered that the Congress which convenes in December of this year is the Congress elected two years ago. The members elected this November election will not begin their terms until March 4, 1933. If the old Congress does not act favorably on repeal, the new Congress will have no opportunity to do so until December, 1933, un less called in special session at an earlier date by the President.

These facts become all the more important when it is pointed out that the legislatures of forty-three states meet in January, 1933. If a repeal proposal was not ready to be sub-mitted to them for action before their adjournments a couple of months or so later, there would be a delay of two years until their next regular sessions, unless special legislative sessions were held to provide for the calling of the conventions, it being taken for granted that the convention method of ratification would be used. Time would then have to be allowed for the election of delegates and subsequent debate in the conventions. Not until thirty-six states had voted favorably could any repeal, or new amendment, become effective.
