Farmers Week Shows Feature Livestock

Michigan livestock owners will find their special interests given plenty of attention at the various stock shows to be held Farmers Week at Michigan State College January 30 to February 3.

Colts, beef calves, and sheep owned by Michigan farmers who are cooperating with the College in livestock improvement projects will bring the best of their herds to the College for show that week. Students will use College livestock to stage the Little International, a contest in which the showmanship ability of the students is judged and some of the world's best livestock is exhibited. Good livestock has lost none of its appeal to farm owners and reports from the shows held throughout the country indicate that crowds attending and interest in these events have equaled any previous records.

A horse-pulling contest which will pit some of the best pulling teams against each other will be repeated on this year's program. This feature has been one of the most popular of Farmers Week events. Lack of seatng facilities for the crowd-which wanted to watch the pulling contest caused the program committee last year to place two feature night programs on the calendar for the week

FORMER RESIDENT. PASSES AWAY

Funeral services for William H. ickells, of Petoskey, formerly of this village, were held from the Ogden Chapel Thursday afternoon with burial in Lakeview cemetery.

Mr. Jickells came to Clarkston about thirty years ago from Diamond Dale, and he was engaged in the blacksmithing business here for ten years before taking up residence in Petoskey. During his stay here he took an active part in all of the community activities.

He was born in Wellington, Ohio, on March 29, 1862. In 1887 he was married to Angie Moon, who passed away in 1900. His second marriage was to Dora Killips, who survives.

In addition to his widow he leaves to mourn three daughters, Mrs. Frank Dunston, Mrs. Cramer and Mrs. Doris Hursfall, and several sisters and brothers, Allen of Davis-burg, Oliver of Lansing, Mrs. Lida Franks of Detroit and Lillie Jickells of Charlotte. Also eight grandchildren and two great grandchildren. His death occurred at his home in

Examine Sanitation of Bathing Beaches

Accurate information as to the sanitary condition of bathing beach es along more than 900 miles of Michigan shore line will be available next spring when the Michigan Stream Control Commission completes data on samples taken during the past summer season.

. A survey party operated by the Commission took more than 1,800 samples of the bathing beach water on the Lake Michigan shore from the Indiana State line to Cross Village, and on the east side of the state This included the shores of Lakes Erie, Huron and St. Clair, and the St. Clair and Detroit Rivers.

The Stream Control Commission's work resulted from the known existence of serious sources of sewage pollution along the Michigan shore line. Due to lack of bacterial confirmation of these facts, the survey work was devoted largely to the investigation of the sanitary quality and surroundings of the state's most used recreational waters. In addition to the general work, special studies were made at South Haven, Traverse City, East Tawas, Saginaw Bay, St. Clair River and Lake St. Clair and at the beaches in the county parks in Jackson County.

Because public health authorities have never established a definite permissible bacterial standard quality of natural waters at out-door beaches, a special study by the Commission has been under way during the past year in which samples have been collected and bacterial determinations made at points where typhoid fever and related diseases have been contracted during the past five years. It is hoped, according to Milton P. Adams? executive secretary and engineer of the Commission that with the completion of this work, definite conclusions will be reached which will be of future importance to every city where sewage treatment plants are operating and where treatment plants are to be installed.

Determination of sanitary conditions along the various bathing beaches is in line with the Commission's belief that adequate control particularly of sewage and certain industrial pollution is a necessary counterpart to the present and future welfare and reputation of the state as the "Nation's Playground," as well as sound public policy with respect to development and conservation of the state's water resources.
