Park for Clarkston Is Being Planned

Definite plans have been completed for the creation of a park in Clarkston on the strip of land between Depot Road and Washington Street to the north and south and between Main and Holcomb streets to the east and west. This land at one time belonged to Henry Ford, whose original plan was to erect an assembling plant here. Conditions became such, however, that this never materialized and a few years ago Henry Ford deeded the property to the village. According to Village President McClelland, the work will be done at no expense to the village. Those who are now receiving township aid will be put to work. Within the next few days a crew will get started at cleaning up the premises, removing rubbish, etc. Old timers here recall when a mill stood on the site directly back of the Clarkston State Bank building. Part of the stone wall still stands and the rocks therefrom will be used in the formation of a rock garden. At a future time the park will be made level with the street but for the present it is planned to fill it in sufficiently to cover the swamp area. Several small springs will be preserved. The west side of the proposed park, directly back of Holcomb street, has a natural formed shoulder about 8 feet wide, a few feet below the street level. Should a sunken garden be created along that side of the land, this shoulder would serve as an excellent walk. Two lots on south main street which connect with the mill pond stream will also be put into shape. These tracts of land likewise belong to the village.

JUST HUMANS

The Daredevil

To the House of Dreams

By Nellie Hoard Sutton

Youth was the spirit that flitted near,
Dancing the while away.
While the spirit of Love from a rose
bush rare,
Laughed as she stepped forth gaily.
"Come Love," cried Youth, "Let's
float away,
To the House of Dreams we'll fly,
Where Patience will serve us nectar
sweet,
While Age looks on with a sigh."
He took her hand as they walked
along,
Toward the house on the top of
the hill,
But between the pair and the House
of Dreams,
The river of Jealousy lay still.
Envy, a boat both shallow and weak,
Drifted at the river's edge,
Into it they stepped, and Youth took
the oar.
"We'll soon be across", was his pledge.

Jealousy beckoned Envy to toss,
The spirits into her deeps,
For in the depths of her bosom angry and dark,
Friendship and Hope lay asleep.
But Youth was strong and Love was near,
To lend a helping hand,
They would not listen to the plotting
pair,
And were soon on the welcome
land.
Then came the ascent up the rugged
hill,
Paved with stones of falsehood and
care,
Love laughed as Youth took her in
his arms,
And lifted her clear of the snares.
Cupid opened the door of the House
of Dreams,
And the couple stepped within,
Youth folded his Love unto his breast
"It's only the beginning, not the end."

And now I can see her
 As she knelt to pray,
 And I know she remembered
 Her child far away.
 Now back thru the years
 My father I see,
 As he read from that Bible
 To the child at his knee,
 And I see the way clearer
 For these memories of mine
 Are deep in my heart,
 My soul's sacred shrine.
 The pages with age
 Are yellow and worn,
 But what richer treasure
 To me could be borne?
 Tho their dear hands are folded,
 Their still forms at rest,
 Their Bible shall guide me
 To peace that is blest.
 —Bertha Clark Gibson.

For the second time, Timothy Brooks, a farmer living near Seymour Lake, has been arrested and convicted on a charge of being cruel to animals on his farm. Dorwood Bates, a farmer living west of Ortonville, has lost two good milk cows and several others are seriously sick from eating arsenic of lead which had been spread in their mangers. Charlotte Republican-Tribune: "Governor Comstock — within his party — is a better politician than Governor Brucker. This is not a dig or a compliment but it is after all, we believe, a virtue in public life. Frank Fitzgerald is a perfect example. Unless all signs fail Comstock and Fitzgerald will be real chums before this administration moves out very far. They are much the same makeup — in other words they are friendly men."

Students Beat Hard Times—Co-Op Houses Are a Success

Hard time wolves will find no luck at the doors of the student co-operative eating and rooming houses established with distinct success this year at the University of Michigan. Working all for one and one for all, student members are finding that they can cut the eating and rooming items on their education expenses about in half. A "co-op" book store will open the next semester.

Largest of the joint student ventures is the Michigan Cooperative Boarding House, located in Lane Hall, where now an average of 165 are served at lunch and dinner. There are 145 regular members of the House, which started with 84 in October. Meals scientifically planned, with no ban on "second helpings," are served at 14½ cents each for 20 a week. Many non-members are served daily at 25 cents a meal.

Keen trading for supplies, 22 students who work 2 1/2 hours a day for their board, and the need of employing only one chef and 3 helpers, keep down costs. All bills are being paid when due, and records are kept by a student bookkeeper. Even at $2.40 a week, a surplus is being accumulated, which House managers are planning to turn back to members.

Two other cooperative ventures initiated by students are also proving successful. Both of these furnish room as well as board. One, with 22 members, at $2 a week, and the other, with 14 members, at $2.50. As at the larger Boarding House, the managers of these houses equal the most experienced housewife at getting the best for the least.

President Ruthven, Dean of Students Joseph A. Bursley and other University officials praise the initiative of the student leaders who have banded together to defeat conditions which threatened to force many of the students to drop out of the University. The cooperative bookstore, which will sell text books and stationery, is expected to be another success.

Teresa's Visit

Teresa loved to go to Grandma's visiting. Grandma lived in a big city and besides a doting Grandpa there was Aunt Helen, who hurried home from the office to be greeted with a big hug and lots of kisses by her "Angel-child" as she called her.

Teresa always sat very close to Aunt Helen at dinner. Afterward they disappeared, and didn't reappear until Teresa had been curled and fussed over and finally perfumed.

"I thought you were tucking Tessa in bed, Helen," Grandma said. "She shouldn't be up so late."

"She loves it, Mother. Just look at her shining little face. And see her pose," Helen whispered.

"You will spoil her," Grandpa predicted.

"Lou don't mind, Father, I'm sure. She has told me so."

Turning to Grandma, Aunt Heela asked: "Mother, I have tomorrow afternoon free, and I would like to take Tessa downtown with me. Will you have her ready by 2 o'clock?"

"I believe it can be managed. She can have an early lunch and her nap immediately afterward."

"Oh, won't that be fun!" Tessa danced round and round clapping her hands. "May I buy something for Doris, Auntie?" she asked hopefully.

"Of course, Angel-child, you shall take something home to Doris. You always think of your sister," Auntie replied hugging her.

So at the appointed time they excitedly started out. They soon reached the downtown section and parked the car. Tessa tucked her little hand in Auntie's white gloved one and they made their way toward a big department store.

Tessie skipped as much as she walked. She just couldn't help it. She was so excited. And Auntie didn't mind at all.

Wherever they stopped someone was sure to exclaim "Oh, can't I have a curl? Is her hair naturally curly? What a sweet child!"

It seemed to please Auntie but it bored Tessa. Her hair didn't matter to her except that she certainly wasn't giving any curls away. They were all spoken for anyway. Daddy had one, Mama had one, and so on.

"Going up, going up," a man called from the elevator. Auntie hurried her into the cage and up they shot. Tessa clasped Auntie's hand just as hard as she could and was given a reassuring squeeze in return. This funny thing took her breath away for an instant, but she looked up at Auntie and she smiled protectively.

The man let them out almost as soon as they started—and eyes of every description greeted her eyes.

"Now let's find something for Doris right away. We must not forget that."

Unwise Laws Reduce State Chicory Crop

The production of chicory, a profitable farm industry which is almost entirely confined to Michigan, has suffered from restrictive legislative acts which apparently are unwarranted, according to the latest scientific discoveries of the merits of chicory when blended with coffee.

The use of chicory for this purpose goes back many years, and this plant is the only one of the many which have been tried that continues to be demanded by consumers. European countries use a large amount of chicory to blend with coffee and a part of the Michigan crop also goes to the southern states.

Chicory obtained its bad name and suffered from restrictive laws against its use because popular rumors attrib-

Snakes Freeze When Dug Out of Hole

The snakes were just beyond the mouth of a wood chuck hole which they had evidently chosen as their home for the winter months. Some other animal, however, had decided he wanted that hole when the last

New Column of Timely Agricultural Topics

In order to be of more service to the public in the vicinity of Holly, J. P. Hoekzema will conduct a column dealing with agricultural events that should be both timely and instructive. Any one who has a question he wishes to have answered may send his question either to the Agricultural teacher or to The Holly Advertiser and it will be answered if possible.

At this time of the year one commences to receive Baby Chick catalogs and thinks about where and when he should buy his chicks. Any one who has had any experience with chickens knows that there is considerable difference between chicks of the same breed. Melvin Wheeler obtained White Leghorn chicks from two sources last year and now that the pullets have matured those from one hatchery can easily be picked out because of their smaller size. Investigate the Hatchery carefully and be sure that the advertisements are not misleading. Sometimes the advertisements will state that the chicks are from R. O. P. stock but they do not state how far removed they are.

R. O. P. means Record of Performance and any hen that qualifies must lay over 200 eggs per year and they must average twentyfour ounces or over per dozen after February 1. The hen must also pass inspection and if she has any disqualifications she is not banded. All R. O. P. hens have copper leg bands placed on them by the State Inspectors. These hens are then mated to male birds whose dams are R. O. P. approved and in the Fall they are inspected and if they are good representatives of the breed, free from standard disqualification they are banded with the R. O. P.

leg bands and are called R. O. P. male birds. R. O. P. sires should throw chicks that will lay a larger number of eggs than birds whose ancestry is unknown.

Maynard Hutchinson and James Haslock, Davison, bought ten R. O. P. male birds from Walter Andrews, Holly, this past week. James got four while Maynard bought the other six. They selected them from about twenty excellent birds and the males they bought had dams that had laid from 237 to 282 eggs each. The record of 237 eggs is from a seven pound hen that lays a 28-29 ounce egg, so she combines large body size with large egg size and large number of eggs. These boys are planning on building up their flocks and are using the best male birds that are readily available. They are also using very good methods of feeding and management.

Melvin Wheeler bought four R. O. P. male birds from Herman Berndt. These males were used by Mr. Berndt last year and he is known as a man who breeds from only the best. The records have not yet been obtained but the males are banded and so must come from high producing stock.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Mitchell, Five Points, sold twelve Capons last week that weighed 100 pounds. They were able to get a premium of five cents a pound for these birds. They had one other capon that weighed nine and three quarters pounds. These birds were not bought until the middle of June, were operated on the first part of September so are not quite seven months of age now. The Mitchells have had excellent success with these birds as they raised 225 out of 250. They are large, well fleshed and fat. They very seldom fight and are sluggish in disposition so all of the feed they consume goes for growth and fat.
