Vacation Mail Should Be Addressed Properly

Postmaster Andrews asks the News that a suggestion be made in this paper that in renting your cottages for the summer you give the proper address to the vacationist so that his or her mail will not be delayed in reaching its destination.

Many important letters are delayed every year because the mail does not have the proper rural route together with the proper post office. Attention to this matter will add to the pleasure of the person spending his vacation.

The Prophecy of

The Class of '33

Vonda Douglas and Winifred Holcomb

We have a surprise for you tonight. Through the kindness of Mr. Salamencia, the world famous magician from India, we have obtained a magic printing press. On first inspection you may think it merely a clotheswringer but we assure you that its resemblance is only on the surface, as it prints word pictures prophesying the future of anyone for ten years in advance. It is nearly worn out but Mr. Salamencia said it probably would print nineteen more cards, which luckily is exactly the number of graduates we have and we will feed them one by one to the machine and read the results to you.

In a large room are many foreign appearing girls at work. Strange sounds of an alien tongue arise. Moving about the room is Ethel Mertens, supervisor of the woman's division of the large General Motors Plant in Russia.

Lo! A courtroom. Crowds of people sitting tensely forward. Cecilia Seeterlin, that great criminal lawyer, is brilliantly defending her client. The jury goes out, the verdict is returned—not guilty, and Miss Seeterlin adds one more victory to her impressive record.

Derrick and steam shovels are all around. Hundreds of men are working at constructing a bridge. Robert White, chief engineer, is inspecting the job. In his hands are blueprints which he is studying carefully as he inspects the work done.

In the wilderness amid trees and rabbits a young man is seen riding his Harley-Davidson motorcycle around on his inspection of the reserve—a game warden is Drexel, who frightens the bunnies and deer with the noisy pop-pop of his motorcycle.

A soft hush comes over the radio audience. Lucy Molter is at the organ in the large WJR broadcasting station. Her skill as an organist is unsurpassed, and thousands listen nightly to her broadcast.

Rural district—dogs, cats and chickens scurrying about. A young lady is seen in the distance, Alice Miller, who was in her high school days known as Alice Halsey. A long happy married life is in store for Alice.

People going in and out; waitresses hurrying to and fro with laden trays. Donald Beach is at the counter of his restaurant, serving food to the customers. With pride he looks upon his modern establishment known the State over for its service and quality.

Wham! That was good for a three bagger—no—a home run that George Holmes, or Babe Ruth the Second, is famous for. Plays second base when not up batting home runs. A thousand ladies in the stand cheer for their hero and a thousand men applaud his skill.

Church bells are swinging and people surging before the door. A young couple is descending the steps of a church. Robert Jones and Uldene Coleman have just taken the vows.

Stillness and reverence fill the air. A large church with Ethel Halsey as the preacher. "The World of Today Belongs to the Women", is her text for this day. The large congregation is tensely held by her sermon.

In a large modern office is a young woman sitting at a desk, typewriting. Louise Carnegie is the secretary for the Governor of Michigan, a young lady with a big political future.

The great physicist, namely David Cell, is displaying an invention of remarkable construction to a vast audience, of scientists. The machine is a motorless car to prevent knocks and is sure to be a success.

In a bright sunshiny schoolroom little children are hanging on their teacher, who is none other than Vonda Douglas. She is beaming and patting the little dears on their heads, and other places, too, when they need it.

Bright lights fading and large spot lights glaring. It's Roxy's Theatre in New York, and heading the cast of dancers is Miss Pauline Devereaux. Miss Devereaux's own name is Winifred Holcomb. Her success has been startling and stupendous.

In a large and peaceful hospital in Flint, a young woman is sitting behind a desk. She is Elinor Ware, superintendent. How tactful and efficient she seems at her task.

In the seclusion of a vast laboratory sits Georgia Johnson taking notes on one of the speeches of the great physicist, Mr. Cell. Georgia is also spellbound and has almost forgotten that she is David's secretary and not one of the audience, and has entirely forgotten her notes.

Harvest time. A young man is working in the field. It is noon and he is going up to a prosperous looking house and barns. It is Jerome Galligan, who has been selected as the farmer's candidate for Governor.

Music in the air—the crowd has gone wild. Miss Marshall takes bow after bow as an appreciative audience applauds her skill on the violin.

Comment and Criticism

One of the pleasures of riding around the country is the many specimens of wild life. Frequently squirrels and rabbits cross the highway in quick time and it is no rare sight to see a turtle plodding across. If one drives slow enough to see the country, it should be possible to miss hitting and killing these animals.

Fourteen renewals in the last week show that the Clarkston News is read and needed. This should mean a lot to the local merchant who wants to reach the people of the community.

Famous Open Air Clinic Visited

Mrs. E. S. Waterbury Includes Visit on Extended Trip

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Waterbury and family returned Sunday from a three weeks trip thru New York and Canada. After a two weeks stay at their summer home Rest Haven, they motored north to the Thousand Islands territory of the St. Lawrence River, crossing over into Canada and proceeding to Williamsburg, Ontario.

Here Mrs. Waterbury visited the famous open air clinic of Dr. M. Locke, foot specialist who treats people of all kinds of rheumatism thru manipulation of the feet, together with proper advice as to the proper shoes to wear which are made to his specification in a nearby factory.

Mrs. Waterbury has been interested, since last year, about this doctor, who is apparently doing so much good to mankind. Her attention had been called to him and her interest aroused by an article in a responsible magazine written by a famous writer. It seemed to her that the article was perhaps a little too high in its praise of the doctor but being in the district she wanted to investigate for herself.

Mrs. Waterbury found all the magazine and newspaper reports she had read of this clinic and the results were true in every respect. There were 400 patients on the lawn awaiting their turn. In contacting ex-patients she was told they had seen as high as 800 at one time. The fee is one dollar to everyone, rich or poor.

From this point the Waterburys motored westward along the north shore of the St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario which they found an interesting and beautiful drive to any nature lover. There was very little vacant property and most of the farms had substantial buildings and fine dairy herds.

"Her Gloves" Repeated

Another Chance Given Public to View Local Talent

The play given by the Epworth League in the High School Auditorium received so much favorable criticism and there have been so many requests for a repeated performance that the young people have decided, to give the show again, tonight, June 23rd, at eight o'clock. Much credit is due these young people and their directors for trying to please the town folk in spite of the trying weather. The young folk would appreciate playing to a crowded house.

Thursday night they are playing at Davisburg, which proves they are not afraid of hard work.

Let's encourage the town's young people by being at the High School Auditorium on Friday night.

Strange Chicken Thieves

If you have any chickens, a wise investment would be a few cans of rat poison. This is the conclusion that Mrs. Margaret Rockwell has come to, after losing a large number of chickens.

One by one the chicks disappeared and finally they started going in large numbers. A keen sight was kept to catch the culprits. At last Mrs. Rockwell's sons pulled up the chicken house floor and here to their amazement they found the chickens. Rats were doing the damage and were preparing for a good chicken dinner.

ATTRACTIONS AT LIBERTY THEATRE

Feature Films to Be Presented at Holly Playhouse

"Rasputin and the Empress", the sensational drama of the fall of the Romanoffs, with John, Ethel and Lionel Barrymore together on the screen for the first time is the attraction at the Liberty Theatre in Holly on Sunday and Monday.

Based on happenings within the memory of the present generation, the picture's episodes present a replica of the most colorful royal court in the world, thus including the spectacle of a period picture while still remaining strictly a modern story.

Ethel Barrymore plays the Empress, John is cast as Prince Chogodoff, and Lionel essays the role of the "Holy Devil" in picturing the downfall of the Russian Empire and the rise of the Bolshevik regime.

Intense dramatic material is contained in the hypnotizing of the little prince by Rasputin, in his intrigues and orgies and in the vengeance of the nobles after his tamperings have sent the empire on its way to ruin. Another spectacular detail is a great review of Russian troops.

The cast in support of the Barrymores includes Ralph Morgan, Diana Wynyard and Tad Alexander.

Modern young women cannot, with all their present-day freedom and self-reliance, beat the code laid down centuries ago. This is dramatically and interestingly proved in "Cocktail Hour", showing at the Liberty Theatre, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Rebe Daniels in this picture portrays Cynthia Warren, wealthy and famous young poster artist, who's going to "take her fun where she finds it", and refuses to marry until she has "tasted life as a man tastes it". This, she claims, is her right.

But her attempted love-freedom is a dismal failure. She is fooled and inflicted with heartaches and has to admit that the ancient conventions are right after all.

Miss Daniels, as always, is charming. The story allows her to exhibit her well-known comedy talents as well as her emotional ability. Also she has a chance to sing one song, a lovely ballad called "Listen, Heart of Mine".

Others of prominence in the picture are Barry Norton, Randolph Scott and Muriel Kirkland.

Waterford People Will Go to Vassar

A good number of Waterford people are making plans for the trip to Vassar on Sunday, which is always a pleasant one. The cooperative luncheon is served on the spacious front porch. The morning services which are made very beneficial for all are conducted by the pastor of the Baptist church, Rev. J. W. Jacobus, who is a former pastor of both Waterford and Clarkston. Waterford extends a challenge to Clarkston to join the line of cars going north on M-10 to Vassar by way of Clarkston, Ortonville, Goodrich, Davison, and Millington. Good roads. The services begin at 10:30. Friends of the Jacobus family at Clarkston as well as Waterford and vicinity are cordially invited to attend.

NUMBER NOW SIGNED TO PLAY INDICATES GOOD INTEREST

Sunday, June 25th, all of the golfers of this vicinity, which takes in good golfers, fair golfers and those "who play for the exercise" will gather at the Duck Lake Golf Club and the first tournament play of 1933 will be on the way. The first foursome will tee off at 7 in the morning, while the last foursome will be following them before 8 o'clock.

There is a chance for everyone to enter and win as under the handicap system, the players are so graded and handicapped that all players, both good and bad, leave the first tee on the basis "that all men are created equal". The handicaps for this season will be based upon their play of last year. Of course those players who have been practicing in their parlors during the winter and have improved their game will merit a new marking and set back among their fellows who play the game for recreation. The handicap set by the committee is final.

The green fees are 50 cents but after the round of 18 holes is played for the tournament, any "bear for punishment" can play the course for the rest of the day.

For those who are busy keeping books on their score cards; too fatigued from a busy Saturday, to carry their clubs; need second eyesight to watch the ball; or even just too lazy to breathe, caddies will be in attendance. In case any caddie tries to sell a "lost" ball that he has found, always remember the old rule and ask if the ball had stopped rolling when it was found.

Last but not least and this is important to the success of the tournament, sign up with L. Chamberlain so that the committee can arrange the foursomes. There is no charge for entering, the only cost being the green fee—and perhaps we should not mention this, but now and then one does lose a ball.

This is a community tournament open to everyone and his friends. 24 are already signed. There are easily another 24, perhaps better players who should sign to play and PLAY.

HOME LOAN ACT IS INTERPRETED

So that Michigan home owners may be advised immediately regarding the new Home Owners' Loan Act, Senator A. H. Vandenberg has prepared the following statement. Careful attention to it will obviate needless correspondence and delay.

1. The Michigan home owner presents his case to an agency of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. These agencies will be established at convenient points in Michigan. Their location can be learned from any postmaster or from the newspapers. Information will be furnished by these agencies upon application. None of these transactions are handled at Washington.

2. These Agencies, acting for the Corporation, may exchange bonds of the Corporation for first-mortgages on homes and pay in cash accrued taxes, assessments, necessary repairs and incidentals, provided the mortgagee will accept the bonds for his mortgage. These bonds bear 4% interest, mature in not more than 18 years, and are tax exempt. The Federal Government guarantees the interest on the bonds but not the principal.

3. When the Corporation acquires the mortgage, the Corporation becomes the mortgagee, 15 years is given the home owner to pay the government. The rate of interest is 5%. During the first 3 years no payment on the principal need be made. Extensions for the payment of principal or interest may be made if the Corporation feels the circumstances justify.

4. The exchange of bonds for mortgages may not be made in an amount higher than 80% of the property's value, or total more than $14,000, whichever is the smaller. Homes must not be valued at more than $20,000 and must not have been built for more than 4 families. Borrowers must be residing in their homes or only temporarily residing elsewhere.

5. The Corporation is authorized to make cash loans on property up to 50% of its value for payment of taxes and assessments, and necessary maintenance and repairs.

6. If the mortgagee will not accept bonds for his mortgage—and this is entirely up to him—the Corporation may loan the home owner cash up to 40% of the property's value so that the mortgage can be taken up in cash. The interest rate on these cash loans is 6%. The amortization plan is otherwise the same as that used when bonds are accepted.

7. The Corporation is able, under conditions which will be explained by the agency, to provide exchange of bonds and cash advances to persons who have lost their homes through foreclosure to enable such persons to redeem their homes. The loss must have occurred within two years prior to such exchange or advance by the Corporation.

8. It should be remembered that this relief is intended only for those who actually need it. The holder of the mortgage must be pressing for payment and threatening to foreclose and the applicant for a loan must be unable to raise the money elsewhere. The merits of each case will be individually considered and investigated as to these considerations by the agency to which application is made.

BARTER ASSOCIATION PRESENTS A PLEA

Some two months ago a group of unemployed first class mechanics of various lines banded together in Pontiac with the idea of bartering their labor for necessities of life.

Their association has recently found that many farmers are in need of labor, but are in no position to pay cash for it.

The Citizen's Barter Association points out that as long as a farmer has any surplus articles of produce, he can secure needed labor in exchange. Thus he will benefit himself as well as the Citizen's Barter Association.

A telephone call to Pontiac 8604 or a letter to the Citizen's Barter Association, Pontiac, will bring immediate response.

INSTRUCTION RECEIVED AS TO WELFARE ORDERS

Prosecuting Attorney Arthur P. Bogue has advised Supervisor C. K. Phillips not to allow minor children of families receiving welfare aid to present orders to stores. He says that these orders are contractual obligations and are not legal unless signed by the head of the family; also that it is a bad practice to allow children to perform such service because of the influence it may have upon them by inculcating lessons of dependence.

JANE ALDEN SPEAKS FOR HERSELF, GETS RADIO JOB

John Alden didn't speak for himself. But Jane Alden, a direct descendant, did, over the telephone.

It was a telephone call, accidentally overheard, which enabled her to break into radio and to take an important part in the radio romance, "The Magic Voice," at a time when her hopes had reached their lowest ebb. She had visited various broadcasting studios without success, and had just tried in vain to get a part, when she stopped in the building of the Columbia Broadcasting Company for lunch.

Before lunch she called up a friend. At a table nearby sat Augustus Barratt, author of "The Magic Voice," discussing the possibility of introducing a new character with the producers of the script series. Miss Alden's pleasing voice carried from the telephone a few feet away, and as a result, she was taken upstairs for an audition and was given a part in the production.

LAST MINUTE ACTS OF LEGISLATURE

Bills That Now Await the Approval of Governor

The three per cent sales tax, adopted by the legislature just before the session adjourned, provides that the law, if signed by the governor, shall be administered by the auditor general, the state treasurer, the secretary of state and a fourth to be chosen by the three elective state officials. It is estimated that the sales tax will produce approximately $32,000,000 annually.

As finally adopted by the legislature, the sales tax bill makes no provision for extending additional state aid to Michigan's school system although it contains a direct appropriation of $12,000,000 for state aid to local welfare agencies. In dropping the appropriation of $15,000,000 veteran members of the legislature asserted that there was no organization to fight the battles of the unemployed while school officials were well organized and would be able to fight successfully for state aid in event the schools were unable to function efficiently under present revenues.

One of the closing acts of the legislature was the restoration of publication in delinquent tax descriptions. Under the new bill, publication of descriptions of property to be sold for delinquent taxes will be resumed in 1935. Newspapers are to be paid under a graduated scale which will make no change in the rate paid previously to the majority of weekly publications.

The complicated Raymond bill which would permit automobile owners to "pay as you drive" is now before the governor for his approval or veto. The bill contains provisions for paying the full weight tax or for paying portions of the tax according to whether an automobile is placed in use in January, March, June or September. The measure might result in decreasing the gasoline tax receipts.

Old age pensions to be financed by a $2 head tax on all Michigan citizens will become effective in Michigan, if the measure adopted by the legislature is approved by the governor. Under certain restrictions the bill provides for allowances of $30 per month for aged persons who have no other means of support.

A COMPANY THIRTY YEARS OLD.

Last Friday the Ford Motor Company completed 30 years of automobile making.

It is also my fortieth year at the same job. I made my first engine in 1893, and it still runs. This is the engine that won the Selden Patent Suit—which took the motor car out of the exclusive class, and opened the automobile industry to hundreds of manufacturers who started during the last 30 years.

Some of the men who began with me that June day in 1903, are working here yet. All of the principles we laid down then, are still operative; we find that they have great survival value for the future. To date they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars.

Although we created the automobile market we have never thought it was good for anyone to monopolize it. We have always believed that before business could be good for one, it must be good for all. Our discoveries and improvements have always been open to other manufacturers without patent restrictions.

Of course, there is one thing we cannot share—everyone must get it for himself—and that is experience. Money could duplicate our buildings and machines, but it cannot duplicate 40 years of experience. And it is experience that makes a motor car.

But the past does not especially concern me; it has all been a preparation for the future. For myself, I feel that I have just been gathering the tools to do something worth while, and that my real task is still ahead.

Great changes are upon the world. False ideas of every kind are vanishing in the general upheaval. Those who built truly on principle will survive—their service will carry over. Business integrity and commodity honor will be fully justified. And newer and better ways of living will appear.

That is the outlook for this young thirty-year old company of ours.

ROOSEVELT INAUGURAL HEARD AROUND WORLD

Telephone Service Has Had Big Part in Former Ceremonies

The wide use of telephone facilities during the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt calls to mind other inaugurations.

The inauguration that perhaps will be longest remembered by telephone men is that of President Taft, which took place in 1909. On Inauguration Day one of the worst blizzards in years swept the entire eastern part of the country, including Washington. Not only did it ruin the inaugural parade, but it tied up transportation and communication facilities and did thousands of dollars of damage to telephone property. To the Bell System's decision that such a situation should not recur is due in large part the country's present network of storm proof telephone cables.

Population Doubled Over Night
The first inauguration of Woodrow Wilson is remembered by telephone employees as that during which they were called upon to handle the telephone traffic of a city of which the population had doubled overnight. The condition had had no parallel in the history of the telephone business. More people than ever before were present, and the weather was perfect.

The second inauguration of President Wilson in 1917 was the last inauguration where the President spoke to the multitude without the aid of voice amplifying equipment. Thousands of people in the crowd, and even some of the distinguished guests in the reserved seats, heard practically nothing of his address.

First Use of Loud Speakers
At the inauguration of Warren G. Harding in 1921, the Public Address System was used with great success. On that occasion President Harding addressed the greatest number of people that ever listened to one man's voice at one time in the history of the world up to then. The installation and successful operation of the amplifying system was hailed as "a telephone achievement ranking with the opening of the transcontinental line."

Radio broadcasting had come into existence in time for the inauguration of Calvin Coolidge in 1925, and as a result, not only did the people in Washington hear what was said during the ceremonies, but long distance telephone lines carried the words of the speakers to broadcasting stations in important cities from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and these stations sent the spoken words into the homes of listeners throughout the land. This was the first time that so wide an audience listened to any inauguration. The Coolidge inaugural also was memorable as the first during which photographs of inaugural scenes were received in distant cities within an hour after they had been snapped in Washington. This development being made possible by the newly perfected telephotograph apparatus of the Bell System.

Made "Talkies" of President
When Herbert Hoover was inaugurated in 1929, one more new product of Bell System research was available, the talking picture. Four picture companies were represented, and in spite of drizzling rain, the movie men stuck to the job and were rewarded with the first "talkies" of an inaugural.

The inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1933 had the advantage of the greater approach to perfection of the things which had been introduced at previous inaugurations. Radio equipment, for instance, was more perfect, and so were the telephone circuits which interconnected the nation's broadcasting stations. The telephone service in Washington could hardly have been improved, and the inaugural ceremonies were heard clearly by people not only in every part of the United States, but in foreign countries as well.

FIRE DESTROYS FARM HOME AS OWNER GOES FOR HELP

A short time ago the owner of one of the finest farm homes in Saunders county, Nebr., had his telephone removed as an economy measure. A few weeks later he and his family were awakened to find their beautiful modern house ablaze. In order to get help, he was obliged to drive several miles to Colon to summon the Wahoo fire department, and by the time help arrived, the house, with all its contents, was doomed. It was totally destroyed.

Commenting on this catastrophe, the Lincoln, Nebr., Star terms the removal of that particular telephone the most costly economy imaginable. It calls attention to the fact that other farmers have done the same thing and that, obviously, one who owns and occupies such a fine home ought not to dispense with such an essential thing as a telephone. If this farmer had been able, through the use of this quick means of communication, to summon help quickly, the Star continues, it is probable that thousands of dollars might have been saved.

43 Conservation Camps in Michigan

To Contain 200 Men in Each

Designation of L. R. Schoenmann to organize and direct the Conservation work of the 43 state camps which will be operated by the Department of Conservation under the President's Emergency Conservation Work program has been announced by Director George R. Hogarth.

Since 1926 Schoenmann has been in charge of the Land Economic Survey which has now mapped some ten million acres in the northern counties of the forest and ex-forest districts.

From its inception, Schoenmann has been identified with the Emergency Conservation Work, having represented Michigan at Washington conferences and having been in constant contact with the several United States and state agencies which are cooperating in the camp organization.

Instructions from Washington are that the camps are being allotted to the several states on the basis of population, and Michigan has been allotted 43 camps to contain some 200 men each. The preliminary estimates and suggested camp locations were prepared and submitted to the federal offices. From Lansing they were sent to the Regional Forester of the U. S. Forest Service at Milwaukee; and then, as approved in that office, they were sent to Washington for final consideration and approval.

The detailed estimates as to tools and equipments for the approved camps, and as to the work to be done in each camp area are now being worked up under Schoenmann's supervision.

The enrollment of the Camp workers will be conducted through the welfare agencies, in the same manner as the enrollments for the National Forest Camps which are already in operation. All applicants for jobs as foremen and camp superintendents must conform to the federal regulations covering personal qualifications, training and experiences, with references, and regular application blanks must be filled out and filed before any such applications can receive consideration. All selections of personnel for such supervisory positions will be subject to the approval of the U. S. Regional Forester, Schoenmann said.

The several Divisions of the Department, such as Fire, Forests, Parks, Fish and Game, are now working on detailed plans for work to be done out of the many Camps which are expected during the next month or two. These plans are collected and under Schoenmann's supervision are being organized into general working plans and estimates of time required, tools and equipment needed so that the actual work in the Camps may start off promptly soon after the crews are sent from Camp Custer.

Facts About the Telephone

Of the 700,000 holders of stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, more than half are women.

An average of about 750,000 telephone calls is made each day in Washington, D. C. About 40,000 of these calls are to points outside the District of Columbia.

All countries in the world having more than 100,000 telephones, except China, Japan, New Zealand, and Russia, can be reached by telephone from any part of the United States.

Famous Actors and Actresses Played Where Operators Now Handle Calls

The old California Theater in San Francisco, built in 1869 and a brilliant center of the drama for 20 years. Inset shows the plaque marking the site of the theater, recently placed in the telephone building which now occupies the spot by the Commonwealth Club of California and the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company. At the right is George Van Buren, long-time telephone employee, who as a young man frequently played as a "super" on the California's stage.

Grandchildren and great-grandchildren of red-shirted miners of '49 pause today before a San Francisco telephone building to read inscriptions on a bronze plaque, which tells the story of the famous California Theater, where their forebears saw many of America's most illustrious players tread the boards.

A gift to San Francisco from the Commonwealth Club of California and the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., the recently unveiled plaque is mounted on the facade of the telephone company's 444 Bush street building, which stands on the site of the West's premier theater of the sixties. It was at the request of Miss Emelie Melville, actress in the California's first production, that the plaque was made. Miss Melville recently died in San Francisco.

The old California Theater, built by W. C. Ralston, at a cost of $125,000, was a San Francisco landmark, known to play-goers throughout the world. Ralston, one of the richest men of his time, also founded the Palace Hotel. He spared no expense in securing players for his new theater. His action in bringing the company for "Money," the play with which the theater was opened, from the East by special train aroused wonder even in the days of flowing gold.

One of several theaters for which San Francisco was famous, the California was the scene of many dramatic triumphs, such as "Monte Cristo," which brought in box office receipts of $30,000 in four weeks; "Richelleu," and "Julius Caesar." Among the artists who played at the California were Edwin Booth, Kate Castleton, Edwin Adams, John Brougham, Charles Coudock, Walter Montgomery, Adelaide Neilson, Mrs. D. P. Bowers, and Lotta Crabtree.

John McCullough and Lawrence Barrett, favorites of their day, were the first actor-managers of the theater. They were succeeded by Barton Hill, who managed the playhouse for many years in the old California Theater and Hotel, which stood until the great fire of 1906. The telephone building, one of the largest in San Francisco, was constructed in 1917.

The recent opening of the Faraday building, Great Britain's largest telephone central office building and telephone headquarters of the British Empire, was the occasion of impressive ceremonies. The Lord Mayor of London, in his colorful robes of office, participated in the formal opening, and the Prince of Wales headed the party which inspected the building.

TELEPHONE COMPANY AVERTS NEAR CRISIS AT HARVARD

Harvard undergraduates have had a narrow escape.

Not long ago the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company thought it would be a good idea to honor Dr. Charles W. Elliot, who served for so many years as President of Harvard University, by naming the new dial telephone exchange, to be installed in Cambridge, "Elliot." The idea appealed to the undergraduates until it was realized that to dial the exchange, one would have to dial the letters E-L-L.

Shades of Eli Yale! Such an indignity could never be permitted. Consequently, the Harvard authorities with whom the decision rested turned down the suggestion of the telephone company that the new exchange should be called "Ellot," and instead adopted their alternative that the exchange should be designated "Kirkland." This isn't so bad, because Kirkland is likewise the name of a former Harvard president, although not so recent a one as Dr. Elliot. The exchange, therefore, is to be named after John T. Kirkland, who was President of Harvard from 1810 to 1828.

BURGLAR SENDS IN SIGNAL FOR OWN ARREST

A telephone in the store of Fred A. Hannaford in South Lancaster, Mass., recently led to the capture of a burglar in the store. Howard Nichols, night operator at Clinton, Mass., was on duty at the local telephone exchange when he received the signal but got no response from the South Lancaster number. He immediately got in touch with the chief of police who went to the place and found a man rifling the cash drawer. On entering the place, the burglar had accidentally tipped over the telephone which flashed a light on the switchboard.

VACATIONS SPENT IN MICHIGAN MEAN DOLLARS SPENT IN MICHIGAN

Annually, thousands of visitors come to Michigan for their vacations. They spend a great deal of money in our state each summer.

The concerted effort of Michigan residents can bring many more vacationists to Michigan. We can tell our out-of-state relatives and friends of the advantages of Michigan and persuade them to spend their vacations here. No state can offer them more . . . few so much. They will find no disposition in Michigan to "soak the tourist." They will find vacation costs moderate and accommodations to fit every pocketbook.

In Michigan, they will find a delightful summer climate; enchanting and varied scenery; historic points of great interest; unlimited opportunity for all-summer sports; the best of highway and other transportation facilities; comfortable and reasonable hotels, tourist homes, and camps; modern and progressive stores, newspapers, and theaters.

And is this not a good year for Michigan people to spend their vacations in Michigan? Few of us really know our own state well. A tour of both peninsulas would be pleasant and instructive. Many points along the way would be of great interest both to children and adults. Let us spend our vacation money in Michigan this summer. We would all profit by it.
