BUY NOT, EAT NOT

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Sometimes we have to go against our training or go broke. Some times what we have always believed to be a rule of virtuous conduct proves fatal in practice. For instance, we have grown up in the belief, fostered by our parents and teachers and enforced by our government, that we have no right to take or use the property of another person without his consent, but if the property in question happens to be a blackjack that the other person is about to bring down on my head I shall have a better chance of surviving if I perceive, in time, the unwisdom of clinging unalterably to old convictions. That is, there are times of emergency when clinging to an old conviction will be ruinous. Let us consider the present time in its relation to our old conviction in favor of thrift.

People of pioneer stock are often spoken of as the "backbone of the country," and probably they are. Pioneers are thrifty or they don't survive. If the wood pile is used too freely in the autumn it may not last through the winter, and the Midland child learned thrift at its grandmother's knee. Moreover, we've been taught for several generations that it isn't what a man earns that counts and takes care of him in his old age; it's what he saves. We've always believed that thrift is a wirtue, that spending is risky and that squandering is suicidal. We demand thrift from our government, vote against political candidate proven unthrifty, and we investigate, and often relegate to private life, officials shown to be carelessly lavish with public funds. The value of thrift, indeed, is one of our strongest convictions. No one doubts that it is a right and useful conviction or that it would be dangerous to unsettle it; but here is the United States government coming to us now, asking us to buy, buy, buy, advising us to spend our money rather than to save it, and generally appearing to set itself strongly in opposi-tion to that old principle of thriftiness in which we were trained. There seems to be a contradiction somewhere.

Moreover, the government asks us to spend at a time when we have the least to spare, at a time when the Federal government, itself, as well as our State, county and city governments, are taking heavily from us in taxes and in that way lessening our power to spend. Worse still, our government, through the N.R.A., asks us to spend at a moment of great financial uncertainty in our lives, at a moment when we don't know whether we're emerging from the depression or going deeper into it, and when we aren't sure whether we're less afraid of the future than we were a year ago, or more so. The curious thing about the government's exhortation to us to spend is that the exhorters know how we feel and how we're situated; they know our old conviction in favor of thriftiness and they agree with that conviction—and yet these same exhorters ask us to buy, buy, buy!

What's the answer? Money is a means of trade. If you had a cord of wood and no food, and your neighbor had a cellar full of potatoes and no fuel, and if neither of you were willing to trade, he'd have raw potatoes to eat but he'd keeze to death, and you'd have heat enough perhaps, but you'd starve to death. Thrift is indeed a virtue; but this is a time of emergency during which it's necessary to buy goods so that somebody'll have money enough to pay us for what we produce. If it's hard for us to get rich by washing one another's shirts, it's certainly impossible for us to make a living by washing our own. It seems wiser to live by spending than to perish by saving.

Monday night Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Michigan Industry to Stimulate Winn entertained the school faculty at their home. The honor guest was Miss Elsa Buchanan who severed her connection with the school this week. promises to be the most aggressive Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. and intensive newspaper advertising Huttenlocher and Mr. and Mrs. Fred' Stewart. #### STATE MATTERS OF INTEREST TO ALL

Digest Prepared In Office of the Secretary of State

A study is being made by the De partment of State that may result in a request for legislative relief for defunct corporations. At the present are more than one year delinquent in payment of corporation taxes, are automatically revoked.

Many of these former corporations, which have lost their corporate powers and which have operated at a deficit for years, now inform the department that they will be able to continue in business at a profit, if their charters can be restored. It is likely that legislative action will be requested to allow delinquent corporation taxes to be paid in installments as are delinquent property taxes.

The State Administrative Board last week reduced the price of complete sets of the Compiled Laws of 1929 from $30 to $15. This reduction in price, it is thought, will allow many individuals and companies to purchase the latest compilation of Michigan laws. At the same time the Department of State announced that Harvey Bishop, Myron Van Syckle the Michigan Manual will be ready and Earl Wilson returned Monday for distribution about Dec. 20. The contain a complete up-to-date highway map of Michigan.

> The legality of Michigan's chain store tax is being considered by Cirmit Jugde Robert M. Toms of Wayne County, following arguments last Friday. At the present time 100 chains representing 591 stores have paid the chain store tax while 27 of the larger companies are testing the validity of the law. Of these companies, 26 are joined together in the suit in Wayne County while the 27th company last week filed a bill for a permanent injunction against the colection of the tax in Shiawassee

Liberty Theatre HOLLY

The breach of promise suit of the century—with Slim Summerville as the lawyer and ZaSu Pitts as the girl who has been promised-will be at the Liberty Theatre Sunday and Monday. The title of the picture is time, charters of corporations that "Love, Honor, and Oh, Baby!" and is based on the Broadway stage hit, Oh Promise Me."

The plot revolves around Slim, cast as a ne'er-do-well lawyer, and ZaSu, filing clerk who gets all the "spinach and-carrot" advice from her bankervegetarian - philandering employer. Verree Teasdale makes the devastating blonde villainess.

One of the outstanding discoveries made by the pair is that life and love are "just a lot of spinach". To find this out, they go through several amazing experiences, including a aked rain-storm, threats of perjury and the breach of promise trial. For while it looks as if Slim will join is unlucky clients in the local jail.

"What Price Innocence?" will be at the Liberty Theatre next Tuesday Wednesday nights with Jean Parker and Ben Alexander in the leading roles. This is a story of modern, pseudo-sophisticated youth. The theme centers about pretty Ruth 1933 Manual will, for the first time, Harper, 17, and "blessedly innocent" with Tommy, a young rotter, she is bewildered by the strange, overwhelming sensation. Eager to learn, to discover what to do, she is repulsed by a self-contained Puritanical mother who just knows that "no daughter of mine would eyer do wrong". But tragedy does stalk into little Ruth's life.

This picture has been strongly recommended by women's clubs, educational societies, social workers and religious bodies, Mr. Nichols, director of visual education of the Board of Education of Buffalo, New York says: "The makers of 'What Price Innocence?' may justly be proud of it. I was singularly impressed by the simplicity of the treatment of the delicate subject matter involved. This was accomplished in a most skillful and natural manner. The story holds a real lesson for the adolescent youth of the country. Every parent should be afforded the opportunity of viewing it. I wish that there was more we might do to encourage and pro-mote the production of similar intelligent entertainment."—This is what Miss Dexter, chairman of the Par-ents-Teacher Council, of Springfield, Mass, says: "I would like to say that we consider What Price Innocence?" difficult subject well handled and a splendid picture for a mother and daughter to see together."

MISS ESTELLE McGRAW

Miss Estelle McGraw recently retired from the employ of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company with the longest record of telephone service ever attained by a Michigan woman. She became an operator on July 5, 1887, when Detroit had only twenty telephone girls, and she was the youngest of the lot.

At that time, only 1,700 persons in the city had telephones, and during those early years her experience included local and long distance operating, collections, waiting on customers at the counter, and making herself generally useful. For the past 30 years she had filled an important place in the Michigan Bell Telephone Company's directory department, and for ten years had been in charge of the compilation of all of the company's telephone directories except the Detroit book.

The first thing she did upon her retirement was to go to Northern Michigan on a trout fishing trip.

EMERGENCY WIRE HOOK-UP TELLS OF STORM DISASTER

When a tornado struck the town of Liberal, Kans., a short time ago, killing five persons and injuring 150 others and wiping out the business district, the town was cut of from telephone and light service. Help was sent at once to restore tele-phone service, and toll lines were cut at the edge of the town, where a temporary office was set up by plant men of the Southwestern Bell: Telephone: Company, from + Dodge

Three magneto sets were booked to toll circuits to Dodge City, Hutchinson and Wichita. One telephone was hung on a fence post and the others were placed on a sign board. They, were put in use immediately and, by lantern light, these telephones were operated practically all night, giving to the world outside the first accurate news description of the damage. Boy Scouts on foot, on bicycles, and on horseback acted as messengers to assist in locating people on inward calls.
