MILK PRODUCERS FEEL AGGRIEVED

at Pontiac on March 5

Due to the large amount of controversy over the porposed Federal Li-cense for the Detroit milk market, the officials of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration (AAA) have decided to hold an open hearing. This hearing will be held in the high school gymnasium at Pontiac, beginning at 9:30 a. m. on Monday, March 5. This hearing may continue for three days.

The license part of the old agree. ment has been continued in effect until such time as a new one will take its place, or until such time as it shall be terminated by Secretary Wallace. In the meantime this new license has been proposed. Trips have been made to Washington by representatives of the Michigan Milk Producers Association and by repretatives of the pro not members. These representatives have appeared before the Dairy Division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, making various requests for changes. The Association representatives were able to have the prices increased. The point has been reached, however, beyond which the Federal authorities will not go in the matter of price. The Sales Committee of the Association has agreed that the best thing that could be done at this time would be to accept the provisions of the license. However, the Federal authorities have been requested to delay putting the license into effect and have been asked for a public hearing. This hearing, as stated above. is scheduled for the near future. It will afford everyone an opportunity, whether favorable to the license or otherwise, to appear there for a fair

Now we KNOW. Ever since we have lived in Clarkston, we have heard of the famed chicken dinners served by the Seymour Lake Ladies' Aid. We have wanted to try one but never could make proper connections, until Tuesday night. Then we went out to that beautiful farm house that Iva Miller calls home and did I enjoy some chicken dinner. I ate so much I was ashamed of myself and I guess the wife was also ashamed of my appetite. Here is honing that this becomes an annual affair.

I hear that this is the coldest weather for this time of year in 88 years. I was not there but I doubt it. My personal feelings vote for the coldest ever.

Speaking about voting. Betten get ready and do some home work. Soon you will be voting at the village election and then the township election. If you have not registered there is a notice about each registration in this paper.

Yours for warmer weather.

Campbell-Richmond Post and Auxiliary Enjoy Chicken Dinner

On Tuesday evening twenty-five members of the Clarkston Legion Post and the Ladies' Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. Iva Miller and had a chicken dinner served in real country style. The ladies of the Seymour Lake Ladies' Aid did the catering and if there are any chickens left in Oakland County it will be a big surprise. Homemade ice cream and homemade cakes were served as des-sert and after all this there was much groaning as the guests retired to the living room to enjoy a social evening, visiting and playing cards. STATE MATTERS OF INTEREST TO ALL

Digest Prepared in Office of the Secretary of State

A bill calling for reduction of auto-mobile license plates to three, six and nine dollars was introduced in the House of Representatives last week by Rep. James G. Frey of Battle Greek. Under the proposed law, light cars would pay $3 per year. Medium-weight automobiles would pay $6 while the heaviest cars would pay $9. This would mean a saving of from $8 to $20 a year for each motorist in the state.

Two other measures were sponsored by Rep. Frey. In the first, the Wednesday evening. The play was annual weight taxes of trucks would given by the Ladies' Aid of the Davbe reduced considerably. It calls for a two-payment plan for trucks in future years. The measure also sets small trucks used by farmers' to haul in Cass City. their own produce and light delivery trucks used by groceries, in a different class from trucks used solely for commercial purposes with a corresponding reduction in the cost of license plates.

table stock. They are good bakers and can be attractively served in any way that potatoes are cooked. The tubers are white, are nearly round, and have shallow eyes. They yield about the same as Russet Rurals and have produced a greater percentage of No. 1 grade than the Russets. Katahdins are resistant to mild mosaic and seem to be affected by scab about the same as Green Mountains or White Rurals. This variety does especially well on the lighter potato soils. The tubers grow quite near the surface so the seed should be planted deeply. Some soil should be thrown toward the rows during the last cultivation.

Seed of this variety is available in the State. This seed stock has been carefully supervised and has been examined for quality and for freedom from disease. Information concerning seed sources can be obtained by writing to the farm crops department at the College for names of farmers who still have seed.

This class is defined to represent 110 percent of the fluid milk sales. This price is not as high as is desired by most producers. N Angel Food Cake especially, the VITAL POINT-to achieve desired results-is proper baking. The cake shown above . . . temptingly light and fine-textured . . . is an excellent example of what can be done in an electric oven. Fluffy tenderness and fine texture are combined in this most difficult of all cakes. And whether you bake one cake or a dozen, an electric oven assures uniformly successful results time after time. No longer is cake-making a bit-or-miss proposition : Electric baking ends guesswork.

You simply set the dial for the proper temperature, and the electric oven does the rest.

* We want you to try electric baking in your own kitchen. We want you to enjoy electric cooking without making any investment or being under any obligation. So we have arranged a special trial offer. We will install an electric range in your kitchen without initial charge, and let you use it for six months, removing it without charge if you do not like it. During the trial period, you pay for the service as registered by your meter, plus. a monthly charge of $1 for the range. If you decide to keep the range, your monthly payments will be applied toward the purchaseprice. If you decide that you do not want it, the range will be removed at our expense. Since this trial plan was begun a short time ago, over 1500 of our customers have taken advantage of the offer. Send in your application for a trial range today!

COLDEST FEBRUARY IN PERIOD OF 30 YEARS

Wednesday was the last day of February and no one in this vicinity regretted its passing. The weather bureau reports that it was the coldest February in 30 years, and we shall not question the accuracy of that during the month when the mercury dropped well below zero, on several occasions touching the -20 mark. The only consolation afforded was that no severe blizzards accompanied the cold. The first three days of this week were very cold, with little let-up even in the middle of the day. More moderate readings of the thermometer arrived on Wednesday, and everybody is hoping that no more zero weather is in the offing.

What State Law Demands of Driver in Such Cases

On the rural highway according to compilation of accident reports, the vast majority of accidents occur between intersections on smooth, straight stretches of highway, and a goodly portion of them can be traced to some operator overtaking and passing a vehicle proceeding in the same direction when he has insufficient distance to do so.

Section 14, of Act No. 313, P. A 1927, reads as follows: "(a) The driver of any vehicle overtaking another vehicle proceeding in the same direction shall pass at a safe distance to the left thereof, and shall not again drive to the right side of the highway until safely clear of such overtaken vehicle.

"(b) The driver of an overtaking motor vehicle not within abusiness or residence district as herein defined shall give audible warning with his horn or other warning device before passing or attempting to pass a vehicle proceeding in the same direction."

It might be well to remember in at the seemingly normal speed of 40 m. p. h. is travelling 67 feet per second, and with a vehicle coming in the opposite direction, traveling at 40 m. p. h., the space between the two vehicles is closing at the rate of 134 feet per second. sections: the

On September 29, 1927, telephone service was to be opened between the United States and Mexico. President Coolidge in Washington was to talk to President Calles in Mexico City. Circuits had been set up between Washington and Mexico City by way of St. Louis and Dallas.

Just a few hours before the official opening, a tornado near St. Louis caused a failure of the wires. An alternate circuit was immediately set up by way of Chicago and Omaha, and, as an extra preeaution, another via Atlanta, New Orleans and Dallas. These points were outside the storm area, and the program was carried out without any delay. The speakers never knew the difference

This was a spectacular though little known demonstration of the way in which the nation's present network of long distance telephone lines makes it possible to complete a telephone call between two points, if not by one route then by another. First Long Line 50 Years Ago

Long distance telephony in the United States dates back to 1880. Four years later the first New York-Boston line was completed. The next year a line was built between New York and Philadelphia, but it was not until 1892, in time for the opening of the Columbian Exposition, that a line connected New York and Chicago. The first transcontinental telephone line, giving direct connections between the east and west coasts, was placed in service in 1915. When the country's first longer telephone systems were laid out, they consisted of single lines connecting various cities and, of course their surrounding territories. With the development and expansion of long distance telephone service, and improved transmission, facilities, new problem arose.

Alternate Lines Are Built Demand for the service increased and as the-lines were lengthened their exposure to sleet, tornado, fire, flood or other temporary interrup. tion became greater. Before-long, It became apparent that single lines-connecting various sections of the country were insufficient, no matter how well designed and soundly constructed they might be. To maintain communication at all times, it became necessary to construct more than one line between cities and sections of the country. and to have the lines so located that storms or accidents which might affect one of them would be unlikely to interrupt service on the other or others at the same time. There has gradually been con structed a system of lines which has been so planned as to make many alternate routes available. Today scarcely any large part or section of country is dependent for long distance telephone service upon any one set of lines alone. Alternate routes are usually made up of lines which are direct connections between points other than those located on the primary route.

Four Transcontinental Lines

For example, seven telephone cir cuits are routed in a group between Pittsburgh and St. Louis in direct cables by way of Columbus and In dianapolis. There exists, however an alternate cable route by way of Cleveland, Toledo and Chicago, so that if any interruption of traffic should occur on the one route ser vice could be maintained over the other.

This is true not only between Pittsburgh and St. Louis; but, as a esult of foresight and careful plan ning throughout the Bell system, it is applicable likewise to almost any section of any state in the Union.

The first transcontinental tele phone line ran westward from Chi cago through Denver and Salt Lake City. To the north there now exists another transcontinental line which runs by way of Minneapolis, Fargo Helena and Spokane to Seattle while to the south it is possible to route transcontinental messages through to Los Angeles not only by way of Salt Lake City, but also by a route which goes through El Paso and another route through Albuquerqué.

These transcontinental lines are also linked with each other and with other cities at various points throughout their length. If weather or other conditions cause temporary interruption to the service at any point, messages can still be routed so that, in the great majority of in-stances, they will reach their desilnations without delay.

They Crisscross the Country The provision of alternate routes includes not only the transcontinental telephone lines, but all other sec-tions of the country. Through New England, for example; two different with a nationwide telephone sur cable routes exist shelween New I vice of a high degree of reliability.

One of them is York and Boston. by way of Hartford and Providence, while a second is by way of Hartford, Springfield and Worcester. A third route to Boston is by way of Albany, Springfield and Worcester. Between New York and Washington, the normal route is via Philadelphia and Baltimore in underground cable, but there is an alternate cable by way of Harrisburg and Baltimore. From Chicago, for instance, the normal route to Florida points is by way of Cincinnati or Louisville and through Atlanta, but it is possible to route Chicago calls to Florida by way of Baltimore and Washington.

Demonstrate Their Value

In the earlier days of the telephone. in the era of the one-line system, if, through storm damage or other causes, a direct route between two points failed, it was necessary to wait until the damage could be repaired before service could be continued. With the advent of the alternate routes, the maintenance of uninterrupted long distance telephone service entered upon a new

If it were not for this network of alternate routes and there were still only- one transcontinental line, it might be a good many hours before service between New York and San Francisco could bé restored in case of damage by storm.

On November 20, 1930, an unusually widespread wintry storm broke down sections of three of the transcontinental lines, leaving the southern line, by way of El Paso, as the only connection to the Pacific Coast. but telephone service was continued without interruption.

Now a System of Lines -As a result of the nationwide network of direct and alternate routes, reference no longer is made to long distance telephone lines merely as lines. The New York-Chicago line, as one example, is now a system of lines connecting these points, while the transcontinental line of 1915 has become a system of lines widely separated and traversing the country from the Canadian to the Mexican orders.

Such a system of long telephone. lines, supplementing the local telephone service and the innumerable circuits interconnecting nearby citles and towns, fuinishes Hie public

USED CAR VALUE SETTLED BY CODE Standard Prices Are Fixed by

Federal Regulation

What is the actual value of a used automobile? Car owners have pondered that question many, many times in the past. The automobile dealer himself more often than not has been fooled by the answer. The value of a used car has been heretofore arrived at by a computation much similar to figuring out "How old is Ann?"

Today all that is changed. Horse trading is no more a lost art than is the old method of used car merchandising banished into oblivion by the prices for used cars.
