Why a Community Newspaper? Have you ever asked yourself this

It has been said that a community vithout a newspaper is a moving graveyard. Do you know that the only record of any account is kept in the news- vision. Eternal vigilance for boys paper office? The files in this office will reveal the growth of the village year after year. Then as an advertising medium the newspaper has been known to make a village the trade center for the farmers and all prospective buyers from the surrounding territory.

To have a wide-awake community you need a live newspaper.

That special election, the way the votes were cast, leaves one wondering just who is in favor of carrying the welfare load.

The next big event along political lines will be the primaries. Both the Republican and Democratic parties will be up and doing, because the Democrats think they have things cinched and the Republicans are go ing to show them a good fight.

Little Tots Present Delightful Sketch:

The Clarkston P. T. A. held its last meeting for this season last Thursday evening. There was a large crowd present. The little tots under the direction of Mrs. Charles Hutton gave an exhibition of rhythm and then presented a little sketch, Cobbler and the Owls". The different parts were well acted and the chil dren seemed pleased to display to the parents what a wonderful training they receive at the school. *

taken care of by Mrs. Elizabeth

Mr. Winn then introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. Aulenbach of Cranbrook. All those who did not attend this meeting certainly missed an interesting talk. This talk the parents to make an effort to understand their children and interpret them in terms of their own ability. Children need, not so much correctof any great celebration or any event ing, but careful directing and superthey have in them potentialities that get them in a jam. Mr. Aulenbach claims that there is no certain period in anyone's life that is a better time than any other. For instance, you hear people say, school days are the best days of your life, but if we would interpret good times according to the age of a person, we would decide that a fifty-five year old person gets as much pleasure out of doing things suitable for that age as a five year old gets out of his or her activities. The five year old has worries that are just as great to the child as the worries of the grown-up are to him. Today as yesterday, the first thing that most parents think of when their child makes a mistake or commits a misdemeanor is chastisement. Instead, they should take a few seconds to think and then decide to guide the boy or girl and by this directing and careful supervision help the child to understand the difference

Robert Reynnells Honored at Party

It seems that good times come all at once for some people. This is what is happening to Robert Reynnells just now. He is able to celebrate two very happy occasions. He is a member of the Senior class and graduates the last of the month and he also had birthday the first of this week.

Last Monday evening Mr. and Mrs Floyd Bossarditt entertained a number of young people at a surprise party at their home honoring Robert on his birthday. Cards and dancing were indulged in and enjoyed throughout the evening. After a round of fun dainty refreshments were served and at this time the guest of honor was presented with a Hi-Y pin. Robert responded with a few words of appreciation.

Legion Auxiliary Presents Fine Program.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Camp bell-Richmond Post No. 63 of the American Legion held "Open House" at the Legion Hall on North Main treet on Tuesday, night from eight until eleven o'clock.

The entire program-was made up of musical numbers which were thoroughly enjoyed. Mrs. Charles Rochm and Howard Burt Sr., of Waterford Rochm playing the piano accompaniand Faul Shaughnessy on the violin.

The whole evening was a musical treat and during part of the musical numbers tea and cakes were served from a table at one end of the room. The table was very attractive with a accoloth and green tapers. Mrs. Elmer Collins, president of Ladies' Auxiliary, poured tea,

After the program a large number gathered around the piano and had a real sing. Then some of the crowd indulged in a few dances, and all in all everyone had a good time and enjoyed a good visit.

The members of the Auxiliary appreciate the efforts of all who made the program a success and it is to be hoped that the community will soon get acquainted with this noble organization and learn what a splendid work it is doing for all the disabled soldiers and their children. The members are constantly doing something, right now they are helping to add a building to the children's billet at Otter Lake which will furnish a place where the tubercular children may receive proper care.

Youthful Robbers Enter Barrows' Home

Most of the Loot Is Returned

the Following Day

Last Sunday noon two boys, ages of jewelry, some cash and a suit of clothes.

While the robbers were at work, and Mrs. L. D. Chase, went to the Barrows home to hang some pictures that he had been framing for them. Mr. Church intended giving Mr. and Mrs. Barrows a pleasant surprise when they returned Sunday evening by finding the pictures hanging in the dining room. However, Mr. Church had been in the house only a few seconds when he was ordered to "Stick 'em up." He was then bound and gagged and put in a clothes closet with the door locked. The dinner time was passing and Mrs. Chase wondered why Mr. Church had not returned and so went to the Barrows home. Help and officers were summoned and when Mr. Church made his exit from the closet, he told the story.

Later in the day the boys were caught in Detroit and admitted several robberies. Mr. and Mrs. Barrows went to Detroit and claimed their goods. Everything was returned with the exception of one or two articles.

Liberty Theatre

"Beloved," the Universal's musical romance of a century, opens on Sunday at the Liberty Theatre.

This romantic drama presents John Boles and Gloria Stuart in the lead ing roles, and features Boles in a number of songs of the type which he does best, especially composed for him by Victor Schertzinger, while additional numbers are given by other members of the cast.

"Beloved" follows the career of a man through his lifetime struggles in an effort to compose "the great American symphony," and its constantly changing background covers almost an entire century. In his role Boles is first seen as a baby in Vienna, son of a nobleman who is even then engaged in instilling great. music in the consciousness. of the child. The scene quickly changes to Virginia before the Civil War, where Mr. and Mrs. L. Ziegerland and Boles meets the girl who afterward becomes his wife, the role played by Gloria Stuart.

In swift succession the couple are seen at various stages of their life together, and the backgrounds for dramatic action include New York's

When your furnace fire goes out for the summer

HOW WILL YOU GET

Hot Water?

Hot water is indispensable for a dozen daily tasks — and with summer almost here, the furnace no longer supplies this needed convenience. Are you obliged to heat water on the stove or run up and down stairs to light a manually-operated tank? End this annoyance and waste of timeinstall automatic electric hotwater service in your home!

A new low rate is being offered for water heating. This is a flat annual rate for year 'round service. You can enjoy automatic electric hot water service for as little as $2.34 a month. You may buy or rent an electric water heater, whichever you choose. Rental rates are low, and if you prefer to buy the heater, convenient monthly terms may be arranged.

With an automatic electric heater, you are assured an abundant and constant supply of water, steaming hot, at a turn of the faucet. Day and night, summer and winter, you have hot water instantly when you need it-for bath and for shower, for shaving, for washing dishes, for the laundry, for housecleaning. There is no waiting, no inconvenience.

And you do not need to depend on a furnace coil for hot water, which -contrary to general belief—is an expensive method. of heating water, due to the coal burned in the process.

(Continued from last week) Perhaps John too had a trace of his great-grandfather's blood for he never tired of hearing Almeda repeat the oft told tales as she could emember them, always when they were up on "Old Baldy." For Elvira would have no such foolishness put in John's head and she always saw to it that Almeda had plenty of daily tasks, tho with no intent to be hard on the little sister who had been left to her care.

Today there were no tales of the sea and their tones were very serious and small brows wrinkled with thought as they talked of the cloud hat was slowly and surely settling forgot the seriousness of the occasion as they laughed and rocked with glee at the very thought of fiery little Almeda marrying tall, gangly cousin Elmer, much older and with a decided squint.

Lengthening shadows sent them scurrying homeward to chores that brooked not even a moment's delay in Elvira's well managed household. But the council was not in vain and little John could scarcely eat any supper for the lump that would come in his throat when he thought of anything that would bring grief. to the aunt he adored as a jolly chum-a bright spot in a home that counted time as lost when spent in vain pleasures. Aftermath

(Continued from page three) would moisten the pillow at thoughts of leaving them all and generous little John giving up his small savings to help her although she knew she could repay him many times over. And after all, she would come back, and what was one small lie to the whopper she would have to tell if she promised to "love, honor, and obey" John's cousin Elmer, when she knew she could not and would not do either of the three, The very thought brought a giggle as she visioned herself marching up the aisle, scarce up to his elbow while he squinted down at her. Ready for church ahead of time, Almeda begged to walk over for a final "good bye" to Olivia who was leaving for home today and would ride to church with the cousin's familv. the Henry's, and felt a bit remorseful when Elvira readily consented. When she did not appear at church, Elvira decided she did not arrive at the Henry home in timeand expected to find her at home and dinner ready. Imagine, if you can, the astonishment in that carefully Said premises are described in saidthe astonishment in that carefully ordered New England household when John and Elvira found a note that read:

Dear darling loved ones. Don't worry about me as I am with Mrs. Fitzhugh and Olivia on my way to the city. Tim will tell you about it. Our boat leaves at noon. I will be back, if you will have me, when I am eighteen. I just can't marry cousin

Your devoted Almeda.

After the flood of tears had passed Elvira began to think of her little sister in the city among strangers and no money—and what would her mother think—and Captain Parker if he knew she had let little Almeda beg passage from strangers while she hoarded the money left in her care. She must get word to them at once and money to repay them and to send Almeda back. It was just too much for John to see his mother so grief stricken and he confessed his share to their great relief, and they, after much deliberation, decided to let her stay for a month at least and see the city. It was a changed household from that day, and if John Sr. doubted the wisdom of it all, still it was Elvira's money and she was by far the best housekeeper in those parts. The coveted accordion was not forthcoming, but a fine new melodian and lessons for John and Ruth.

For a time we must leave the Bingham home to follow the fortunes of Almeda in the metropolis of the middle west.
