

Oakland County Federation of Women's Clubs Meets Here Today In M. E. Church

COMMENT AND CRITICISM

It is rather unfortunate that the grass fires are being burned at this late date, especially over the swamp sections. During a fire Wednesday afternoon, north of town, one man who was trying to extinguish it saw a pleasant leave what appeared to be her nest, under protest, and only because of the fire. The fire went over the nest but cooked the eggs. This is the surest way to kill our game life.

Things are picking up in a financial way; working hours under our new conditions give us more time for leisure; in our spare time we wonder what became of Tom, Dick and Harry, or perhaps Clara, Lou and Em, the kids we used to play with, and what they are doing. There is only one cure. Let's have a homecoming. We shout the beauties of our lakes and hills—to a new group they may be hard to convince. Why not work on those who know but have forgotten. A homecoming would be a good thing for Clarkston.

Well the small town boy wasted or invested a half hour this week—going to the "big city". The only proper way to do this is to buy a bag of salted peanuts, pick a good corner and WATCH THE CROWD GO BY. There will be just enough friends from the home town to keep you watching for them and add a little interest. As for the strangers, feel perfectly free to laugh at this one or that. Always remember, perhaps you are just as good a joke to them. But do not take too long a dose of this sport or your face will attain that worried look of the youngster lost at the circus. The longing for friends' faces will beat you.

Lord Jesus, Thou has known
A mother's love and tender care,
And Thou wilt hear while for my own mother most dear
I make this Sabbath prayer.
Protect her life, I pray,
Who gave the gift of life to me;
And may she know, from day to day,
the deepening glow
Of joy that comes from Thee.
I cannot pay my debt
For all the love she has given;
But Thou, Love's Lord, will not forget her due reward—
Bless her in earth and heaven.
Henry Van Dyke.

CLASS MEETING WELL ATTENDED

The Progressive Sunday School Class Meets with Mrs. Emily Beardslee

On Wednesday evening the Progressive class of the Clarkston Methodist Sunday School held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Emily Beardslee. Mrs. Herbert Baynes and Mrs. Percy Craven were assistant hostesses.

There were twenty-six present. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. D. M. Winn. Mrs. C. E. Edwards led in prayer. A committee composed of Mrs. Walter Barrows and Mrs. Lloyd Sibley informed the class that they were going to make the rounds next Wednesday and collect all papers and magazines. These are to be sold and the money given to the class. Election of officers follows. Mrs. Ray Clark was elected president; Mrs. Walter Barrows, vice-president; Mrs. W. H. Stamp, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Lloyd Sibley, assistant secretary-treasurer.

After the business session the meeting was in charge of the hostess, Mrs. Emily Beardslee. Mrs. Walter Barrows gave a short discourse on "War, the horrors of War, and some means of Prevention of War." This talk was exceptionally interesting and a great deal of discussion followed. Mrs. Hoyard Huttenlocher gave a book review on "Flush" by Virginia Woolf. This story was made just interesting enough to make everyone anxious to read the book. The class was then divided into groups and Miss Virginia LeForge led in singing a few rounds. This was enjoyed by everyone and caused a good deal of laughing.

At the close of the evening dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Progressive bug was played, followed by a buffet luncheon, which was served at small tables. Guests were present from Detroit, Pontiac, Rochester and Birmingham and Waterford.

Be Ready to Help Saturday, May 26

Disabled Veterans Have Been Busy Making Poppies

A gorgeous crop of poppies that have been, like hot-house flowers, blooming through all the stormy weather months will soon be ready to show their faces to the world. Just a little over three weeks and they will be seen blooming on the coats of more than 10,000,000 citizens of our nation.

Clarkston, Waterford and Drayton Plains will be called upon to honor the World War dead and give aid to the war's living victims by wearing memorial poppies on May 26. This day, the Saturday before Memorial Day, will be "Poppy Day" throughout the United States and will be generally observed by the wearing of the little red flower of Flanders Field.

A large supply of poppies has been ordered from U. S. Veterans' Hospital No. 100 at Camp Custer where disabled veterans have been given employment during the winter and spring making the little paper flowers.

The purpose of "Poppy Day" is to give everyone an opportunity to pay individual tribute to the men who gave their lives in defense of the nation. The little act of wearing a poppy touches the individual more closely than large public ceremonies in which he is only a spectator and awakens a realization of the individual responsibility to the nation, so greatly needed at this time. "Poppy Day" also gives everyone an opportunity to share in the vast work which the American Legion and Auxiliary are doing for the disabled men, their families and the families of the dead.

Be prepared to do your bit on Saturday, May 26.

You Forgot the Chorus On Monday Afternoon

The Singing Class Needs Every Voice Available

Every woman and girl over school age is urged to attend the chorus at the school every Monday afternoon at 4:15. Just one hour is devoted to this class and this is one of the happiest hours of the week.

Charles Hutton, the director, is very patient and is also very anxious to make this chorus one worthy of praise. However a chorus of fifty voices is much easier to work with than a chorus of fifteen and that is the reason that everyone who can possibly attend should make a special effort to be there and give this worthwhile enterprise her support.

Perhaps you have missed all previous lessons and now you feel just a little timid at starting, but cast your cares and worries aside and be at the school next Monday afternoon and you will find a welcome waiting for you and you will be well repaid by starting the first of the week with one hour of song.

Community Events

May 14—Monday afternoon—The community chorus at the school at 4:15.

May 18—Friday evening—Dance at the Williams Lake Country Club for benefit of the Waterford school bus.

LOCAL BOY SCOUTS HIKE 14 MILES

Troop Activities Grow More Interesting

Troop Number 36, Clarkston, Michigan, sponsored by the American Legion, Campbell-Richmond Post, No. 63, announces that they are completing this year with high honors.

Under the direction of Scoutmaster James G. Bennett and Scouters Robert L. Jones, very favorable results have been obtained. New Scouts are joining every week.

Starting out the new year with eight scouts we now have on our records the following boys:

First Class—Milton Fiske.
Second Class—Max Souly, Lester Spencer, Kenneth Skarritt, Troop Scribe; Buddy Hoyt, Patrol Leader; Ralph Cole Jr., Daniel Addis, Arthur Clark, Hamilton Newman.

Tenderfoot—Richard Craven and Charles Perry.

All the boys in First Class and Second Class have completed the requirements for at least one Merit Badge.

All Second Class boys are taking their 14 mile hike this week. It is a requirement in which the boys walk seven miles and back, noticing all nature and its surroundings so as to write a 500-word essay.

Last Monday night there were eight small fires in the back yard of the Old School. Every boy was required to make his own fire with one match and without the help of any other person. This was accomplished with ease as the boys had had previous training in fire building. After the fire was started they were required to cook two of the following foods: bacon and eggs, pancakes, toast, hunter's stew, biscuits or fried potatoes. Buddy Hoyt made some very appetizing pancakes. Kenneth Skarritt and Daniel Addis fried bacon and eggs which they should be proud of. All the boys passed their test with ease. Ralph Cole Jr. had some time to eat his hard fried egg but mastered the task by finally putting in some grease.

Milton Fiske, who passed his First Class at Boy Scout camp last year, was the camp fire tender who stayed until every spark of fire was put out before he left. This is a Boy Scout custom which is always followed out.

With the cleaned up and repaired quarters that we now have we expect much from the boys in the months to come.

Another Graduate Attains Honor

Gladys Ross Becomes a Graduate Nurse

Every little while we hear of another graduate of the Clarkston High School making his or her mark in this great world of ours. This speaks well for the early training of our youth.

Last Tuesday evening Miss Gladys Ross stepped along in a line of graduates to receive her diploma as a graduate nurse. What a noble life-work she chose and how sweet she looked in that uniform so white. St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac is proud of her as is the Clarkston High School from which she graduated in 1931.

Congratulations and best wishes for success are extended to Miss Ross.

PET ON DISPLAY AT BORST'S SHOP

James Van Every Makes Annual Discovery

This year is no exception as far as rattlers are concerned according to the find made by James Van Every of Clarkston. While working at his farm north of town Mr. Van Every heard the dog making quite a fuss and on investigating found the snake. He managed to put it into a bucket by using the hoe and thus brought it to his home in town.

The snake had three rattles and a button. Mr. Van Every put it into a small glass case and put it on display in the Barber shop window. Wednesday the snake was quite lively and would rattle at everyone who went near, but Thursday it was rather sleepy, perhaps from want of food, and so it was decided to kill it soon.

To those who have heard a great deal about rattlesnakes and have never seen one, an exhibit of this nature is very interesting.

Council and Merchants Not Afraid of Work

Last Sunday morning some of the merchants and members of the Clarkston council decided it was time to clean-up Main Street. The fire apparatus was used and before long the street in the business section was swept and washed. While at work a fire was started at the rear of the Masonic Temple and the workers rushed to the scene and extinguished the fire. On Monday a number of the men got busy with the paint can and brush and painted the parking strips.

For Homemakers

The appetizing appearance of a properly made salad helps make it taste good according to home economics nutrition specialists of Michigan State College.

Certain simple fundamental rules in preparation will keep a salad from mediocre looks and taste. In the first place, a salad should be chosen which offers proper color and flavor contrast.

A variety may be used in the selection of a background, such as leaf lettuce, Iceberg head lettuce, Big Boston head lettuce, chicory, endive, shredded young cabbage, watercress or Romaine.

Serve the salad cold and dry, and use a large enough plate so that the entire dish is not covered, leaving sufficient space around the edge so that the salad may be eaten without spilling.

Marinating meats, fowl, and cooked vegetables with a tart French dressing before adding the mayonnaise will help to bring out the full flavor of the food and helps to keep the salad from being characterless.

Careful thought should be given to the arrangement of salads, striving for variation. Finely shredded lettuce used occasionally in place of the commonly used leaf or Iceberg varieties will help, or the vegetables or fruits may be arranged separately in small lettuce cups, serving several on the plate instead of mixing them together in one mass.

When salad ingredients are to be blended, care should be taken to mix them lightly to avoid all appearance of messiness. The appearance of salads is improved by such garnishes as: hard cooked eggs, sliced, rice, yolk, silvered white; parsley, whole, minced; tomato, sliced, quartered; nuts, halved, chopped; radishes, whole, chopped, roses; beets, sliced, cut in fancy shapes; pimiento, sliced, chopped, cut into shapes such as diamonds, hearts; celery, curled, stuffed; pickles, whole, fans (cut in parallel slices almost to end and spread out fanwise); strawberries, fresh, preserved; cheese balls, coated with chopped nuts, flattened with nutmeat on top; cheese carrots; yellow cheese-shaped like carrot; bit of parsley for green top; cheese pumpkins, yellow cheese molded into pumpkin shape; stuffed olive, whole, sliced; green peppers, sliced, shredded.

Chapter III
With her trunk at the dock, a basket full of lunch and her ticket ready no surprise was felt by the Henrys or Mrs. Fitzhugh to find Almeda waiting and they never knew that they were aiding a runaway.

Once settled in the city home, the few daily tasks allotted to Almeda seemed like play and they soon began visiting the shops for new ideas and styles for Olivia's winter wardrobe. The richly decorated windows thrilled her and opened up a world of possibilities and at times she could hardly wait to get home to try out some new idea in hopes of working magic on their gowns. Her success in these undertakings so pleased Mrs. Fitzhugh that she at once began to broaden out her plans as how to make the best use of this clever young person that fate had so kindly placed in her hands.

Almeda had added a set of grandmother's lace collar and cuffs to her scarlet wool, little dreaming of their value, and had taken a tuck here and a dart or two and looked so contented that Elvira would have gasped in astonishment.

Mrs. Fitzhugh suggested one day that they visit a friend of hers who had a large shop and a clientele of very rich ladies and it would be wonderful if she could get Almeda in to really learn to be a dressmaker and she could still manage for her room and board by doing their sewing evenings.

Madame Marie Jeanne greeted them very kindly, glancing with secret admiration at the dainty little girl with such decided looks that made plump Olivia look, if possible, more fat and stupid than ever.

She noted with a skilled eye the make-shift adjustments in the scarlet wool and the exquisite lace and smiled in her most patronizing manner. "You are always so thoughtful, Mrs. Fitzhugh, and although I am crowded, I will find a place for her just to show you how much I appreciate your patronage."

Almeda, quite bewildered in trying to take in the rich hangings and pictures and listening to a conversation of flattery sweetness such as she had never heard before, was speechless with surprise to hear Mrs. Fitzhugh telling the Madame that she was a poor orphan girl she had brought from the country to try to give a chance.

"You are always so kind, Mrs. Fitzhugh, and I think I shall use her for my own private errand girl." "This was more than Mrs. Fitzhugh had hoped for, but now she would not only profit by the newest styles but get every word of gossip, almost a necessity to the dear lady.

Her plans might have worked with one less clever than Madame who could not fix her mind on anything the remainder of the day but this dainty little girl who certainly did not belong in the Fitzhugh household.

When Almeda arrived the following morning to begin her work she found the Madame anxiously awaiting her. Carefully locking the door, she helped Almeda off with her hat and coat and seated her on the softest divan that made you want to bounce just a little bit.

"Come on, now, my dear, out with it! No poor little girl wears real lace cuffs and collar on a fine wool gown and I saw your surprised look when she said she picked you up. I know her too well to believe her on a bet."

Was she dreaming? Surely not! For there was Madame smiling at her and she could feel the strong hand-clasp. The story was soon out and they found themselves laughing to gether over her funny description of cousin Elmer.

"I would like to have you stay with me and become a great designer. You would pass for a French lady right now. Suppose we take a little time and think it out. That errand girl idea just suited Mrs. Fitzhugh, but I could see through her little scheme. Do you think you will like me well enough to stay?"

"It would seem like Paradise to work at such pretty things and I do want to be a great designer." "Settled!" said the Madame. "You shall stay right here with me as companion and I'm going to measure you at once for a new dress or two."

"And no time like the present. I will go today and see Mrs. Fitzhugh. I shall probably have to drive a hard bargain. I feel quite sure of that!" Almeda never knew how Madame managed, but before night the little trunk was in Madame's room where it was to remain for many years.

The scarlet wool underwent more changes by more skillful hands and had to be content with cuffs and collar of fine lawn; a hairdresser did things to her hair; and Cinderella never dreamed of such shoes as Madame selected for her. Poor lonesome little John would never have known her even though she wrote letters of great length describing every detail.

The gay fluffly gowns seemed to fill her with such untold ecstasy that she appeared to almost float when she carried them to Madame to show to some customer, presenting them with a demure little curtesey.

All this was for the public which would never have recognized the haughty Madame, shorn of all her grandeur, sitting in the snug little rooms back of the shop and enjoying a meal that Almeda often prepared. Then they relaxed and talked of home and family far away, always ending with their dreams of the future, while the bonds of sisterly comradeship strengthened daily.

Winter raced by and with spring came busy, exciting, and exacting days crowded full of style shows, hurried shopping trips to match material and oftentimes work long into the evening hours rushing orders that must be ready for Easter. All of which left the rosy little country girl a bit pale and listless.

Madame knew she would be in sorry straits without her now and lonely too, but she planned a visit for Almeda back home to rest and get fresh color in her cheeks. "For," she argued, "you must be ready to attend the style shows with me this fall."

And so Almeda's feet and heart danced in perfect rhythm as she packed a larger trunk this time and with much different clothes. Then a delightful shopping trip for gifts for each, and Madame added a head bag for Elvira that would have won any woman's heart.

The past months had made many change but once more at home she was the same gay girl and the life of the household and untruly told them of the city and its ways; her life with Madame Marie Jeanne, who was only Mary Jane Austin when they were alone; of the beautiful gowns and rich jewels; of all the wonderful stores and decorated windows; the great churches and the opera where she and Madame went at times to see the clothes as much as the show. Best of all, when vacation was over, Madame surprised them with a two days' visit to come back with Almeda. For days afterward Elvira and John could talk of nothing else and wondered how they could have ever thought of their little sister drudging for cousin Elmer on a farm and John was loud in his praise of her success.

Chapter IV.

As the years passed quickly to Almeda in the city, her boy playmate and friend was now a stalwart young man, restless and longing to strike out for himself, urged by the thought of Clarissa Wrightman who was growing more lovely every day and had promised to wait for him.

In her trips home Almeda had told them glowing tales of the wealth of the middle west and of the vast grain fields where men were employed at unheard of wages during the harvest season. So when it was rumored that some of the young men of the vicinity were going, John was one of the first to join the group.

Unlike Almeda, he did not have to run away, but went forth with loving goodbyes from Clarissa, Ruth and his mother and even his father's voice was shaky as he said, "Good bye, son! Be a good boy and God bless you."

Sturdy and strong, the harvest fields, far exceeding anything he had ever dreamed of, were no hardship to him, even if he were not all buoyed up with excitement and the thought of all the money he was earning.

Constantly he dreamed of a home in this Eldorado, and one night as they rested around the tent, he timidly brought out the beloved accordion that had now long been a realization.

At once the center of the group they demanded more and more and joined in singing the words of some of the old favorites. Somehow the days did not seem so long when the evenings were so jolly and John found himself favored in more ways than one.

The foreman of the crew was one Henry Field, a few years older than John, but a friendship sprang up between the two that strengthened with the passing days. This was Henry's fourth season and he had homesteaded a tract and owned a fine team on which John spent a lot of time helping Henry with the grooming and care.

Before the season ended, Henry had asked John to spend the winter with him in the shack on his homestead, where he would be on hand in the spring for a full season. It was not much of a home for Henry had provided for his team first and taken what was left for the house. When the last field was threshed, John tossed his belongings into the wagon and they set out on a slow three days trip. At the last town they laid in a supply of salt meats and dried fruits, vegetables, corn meal and flour as well as a few staple remedies, for the winter snows would shut them off from the world for days at a time.

In fact, they might not make the thirty mile trip to town again more than once during the winter. John mailed letters to all, including Almeda, telling her all about his new friend and the shack on the homestead, and they finally set out on the last lap of the homeward journey.

During the time Henry had been away, a neighbor had seen to the storing of fodder for the team, Tired and weary, the little shack looked like a palace, and they soon had bacon sizzling, pancakes browning and a pot of coffee that was a banquet to the two tired men.

John took on himself the duties of cook and could make corn bread and bake beans equal to any New England housewife. Henry liked mechanics and turned every bit of packing box or crate into something to add to their comfort and the accordion shortened many an evening. Henry had little or no near family and the company of a fine young man like John was something to be very grateful for and was careful to avoid anything that might suggest the homesickness which he could see was very close to the surface at times.

"One day in early winter a neighbor passed on his way to the city and offered to mail letters, do errands and bring back their mail. To their astonishment, his return trip brought them undreamed of treasures: warm mittens and socks for both from John's folks; holders and dish towels from Ruth; gifts and letters from Almeda; and a huge box from Almeda that Henry, with visions of untold furniture from its generous boards, was provokingly slow at opening. Finally the lid was off and the joys of unpacking began.

Blankets, underwear, wool shirts, books, music and foods came from its depths, and a letter that sent the chills racing up and down Henry's spine, a suggestion that she might visit them in the spring.

CAR DRIVERS MUST GET NEW LICENSES THIS YEAR

As nearly as it is possible to ascertain, there are 1,437,952 automobile drivers licensed in Michigan. The present motor vehicle operator's license law became effective May 1, 1931, requiring drivers to obtain new licenses every three years. For the three year period ending May 1, 1934, a total of 1,437,952 licenses were issued. This does not include duplicate licenses but actually the number of drivers is slightly below that figure as some drivers, after losing a license would apply for a new one instead of obtaining a duplicate. Before Jan. 1, 1935, a total of 765,093 Michigan drivers must secure new licenses.

LICENSE REFUNDS ARE GOING OUT RAPIDLY

All automobile weight tax refund warrants will have been mailed out by the Department of State by June 7th. The warrants are being issued at a rate in excess of 5,000 per day and 140,000 of the 257,000 total had been mailed from the main office of the department on May 4. At the same time 672 warrants had been returned because the automobile owners had moved without leaving a forwarding address. One warrant was mailed to Shanghai, China, and another to Abyssinia. In both instances the owner had purchased the vehicle in Michigan and driven the vehicle to the West Coast where it was placed on a vessel for shipment to its destination.

Liberty Theatre HOLLY

To theatregoers who are fed up on sex triangles, gang wars, racing thrillers, and other threadbare movie plots, it should be welcome news to hear that the Columbia production, "No Greater Glory", is to be shown at the Liberty Theatre on Sunday and Monday.

The screen story is based on Ferenc Molnar's novel, "Paul Street Boys". It deals with a cross-section of life, which reflects the author's intimacy with the part-of Budapest, Hungary, that is its setting. It might as well be Boston, however, or Buenos Aires, England or Japan, so far as the universality of its appeal is concerned.

Two rival bands of youths engage in a struggle to decide the possession of a city lot for a drill and playground. As primitive passions get into control, the lot becomes their sacred nation, and their self-inflicted sacrifices become patriotism of the highest order. The results are not what one could calculate on a piece of paper, nor anticipate from knowing how conventional movies usually end. The author wrote what he saw and what he felt, and the motion picture production of his story has not finched from telling it straight.

Under the skillful direction of Frank Borzage, "No Greater Glory" throws off the shackles of time, place and age, and becomes a record of humanity.

TO OPEN NEW FAIR MAY 26

Lower Cost to Visitors; 84 Miles of Free Exhibits.

Chicago.—A new World's Fair will open here May 26.

It is not simply an encore of the 1933 Century of Progress Exposition. In addition to many startling new features it retains all those of last year's Fair that were too important and popular to leave out—but even they have been enlarged, changed and improved.

This summer's Fair will cost little to see and little to get to. There are 84 miles of interesting free exhibits. The Exposition will look after the visitor's comfort hospitably, efficiently and inexpensively. Last year the average visitor spent only $1.7 a day inside the grounds.

World's Greatest Fountain.

Workmen have torn down more than 100 of the old buildings. New ones have replaced them. The entire physical appearance is different, with new color and new landscaping everywhere. New lighting effects at night, even more daring than those of the 1933 Fair, surpass anything of the kind ever attempted anywhere. Scores of new exhibits have been added, one of them the largest ever built. Virtually every exhibit here ever has undergone considerable change.

Comparable to the ferris wheel of the 1933 Fair and the sky ride of 1933, the outstanding single feature is the largest fountain ever built. It has a flow of water sufficient to serve a city of 1,000,000 population, and its spectacular lighting, in five colors, draws as much current as an average city of 150,000.

Visitors "Tour World."

Fifteen "foreign villages," twelve of them new, all of them patterned after the lovely Belgian village of the 1933 Fair, make the Exposition more truly worthy of the name "World's" Fair than any predecessor ever was. They offer the visitor the unique opportunity of making, in effect, a tour of the world in a single day.

Eleven of the villages are on a street of their own, where the Midway stood last year. The old Midway has disappeared and a new and more thrilling one has been built on the Northerly Island beach.

On the street of foreign villages are reproductions of life and scenes in North Africa, England, the German Black Forest, Colonial America, Ireland, Italy, Tunis, Belgium, Paris and Spain; there is also a village peopled entirely by midgets. Elsewhere on the Fair grounds are a Dutch village, a Swiss village, a Mexican village and the Streets of Shanghai.

Ford, Packers, New.

New to the Fair is the exhibit of the Ford Motor company, with its $1,500,000 exposition of the drama and progress of transportation, spread over eleven acres. Not the least important among its exhibits will be that of Henry Ford's own solution to the farmer's problem; he will show the farmer exactly how he can bring relief to himself by raising and processing soybeans.

The great packing companies, represented jointly last year, have come in separately, and in a big way. Swift and Company has the entire 23rd street bridge for exhibits, and has built a huge band shell and amphitheater for free concerts. For ten weeks, beginning July 1, the Chicago Symphony orchestra will play there twice a day. Armour and Company tells the story of the progress of the industry in its large new building in the lagoon. Wilson and company has part of a packing plant actually in operation.

Standard Oil (Indiana) will present daily, in a new arena a daring animal act with thirty-three lions and tigers performing in the same cage at the same time. Science will be made to perform seeming miracles every day in a scientific revue in the court of the Hall of Science. There will be plenty of free entertainment elsewhere on the grounds.

Railroad Rates Lower.

The new Fair has more restaurants, better equipped to serve tremendous crowds. Meals will be lower in price; in fact it will be possible to buy a meal on the Fair grounds for as little as fifteen cents.

Rates for buses, lagoon boats, rickshaws and roller chairs have been reduced; in some cases they have been cut in half. Eighty per cent of all the toilets will be free.

Eastern, western and central railroad lines have announced that rates, in general, are even lower this year than last. In many cases with special-rate tickets honored in Pullmans as well as in day coaches. Bus lines have announced special low rates and so have air lines.

Aid Auto Travel.

Hotel accommodations can be had in Chicago for as little as one dollar a day. Auto camps and private homes will accommodate visitors at correspondingly low rates.

Fourteen major highways lead to Chicago. Eight thousand Ford dealers throughout the United States have been organized into a giant travelers' aid organization to assist people in planning trips to the Fair. Oil companies have turned their gasoline stations into World's Fair information booths.

Everything possible has been done to make it easy and inexpensive for the throngs who will visit the new 1934 edition of a Century of Progress.

FORD PREPARING FAIR EXHIBIT

What is described as the greatest electrical installation ever made in a single building—a lighting, power and amplifying system which will require 100 miles of electric wiring—is now under construction at the Ford Exposition Building here, the largest individual exhibit at the 1934 World's Fair.

One of the most sensational lighting effects ever achieved will be a torch of light, 200 feet broad at its base, which will spring from the parapet of the open court on the building, rising under proper atmospheric conditions to a height of one mile. The powerful beam will be developed through the use of 24 thirty-six inch projector searchlights, resulting in a 30,000,000-candlepower display.

Lighting plays an important part in the scheme of the new Ford building, which is being designed to demonstrate the scope of the Ford World Empire. The building itself will be 900 feet long by 213 feet wide, terminating at the south end in a circular court, 204 feet in diameter. A mammoth lighting scheme is being constructed in the outer edge of the court, designed to develop tints and shades never previously produced with electric lights. One lighting effect will show how pure white light can be produced when blue, green and red lights are all turned on at full intensity. Dimming equipment for the entire mobile lighting installation weighs twelve and one-half tons and requires 20 miles of wiring.

The entire Ford project, extending over eleven acres of the Fair

Thomas Edison, life-long friend of Mr. Ford.

Ordinarily an eight month's job, the electrical work on the huge Ford project in Chicago is providing new problems for the electrical engineer in the matter of speed. The work is being rushed to completion by May 26, the opening date of the 1934 Fair. Engineers working on the project said that about 600 men would be given employment over the course of the installation.

Grounds along the Lake Michigan shoreline, will require a load of 6,000 kilowatts, or more than a third of the total electric capacity of the entire World's Fair in 1933. Engineers estimate that 4,000 kilowatts will be required for lighting, and 2,000 kilowatts for the power load. More than 225 electric motors will be required to handle the power for the building and the 21 exhibitors allied with Ford who will present displays in the mammoth Ford Building.

An amplifying system, designed to carry word pictures of the many exhibits, as well as musical entertainment from various sections of the building and from the symphony shell which will be placed in a large landscaped court, will require 250 master loudspeakers, and probably 500 more auxiliary speakers. A new system of amplification will be used, so that listeners at one amplifier will not hear a different program being carried from an amplifier a few feet from them. The amplification will be so designed that no one will be conscious that the music he hears is being amplified by loudspeakers.

With all the modern enterprise in electrical effects at the Ford Exposition Building, a contrasting display will be some of the earliest experimental models from which were developed the electrical devices of today. These models will be brought from Henry Ford's museum at Dearborn, where they were placed by

Fair Visitors to Explore 'Lost River'

Visitors to the new World's Fair which opens in Chicago May 26 will float, in a boat pushed by a prehistoric man, down the "Lost River" through the world of a million years ago in this new exhibition feature located on the new Beach Midway. This is one of all the new, startling features offered to Fair visitors this summer, at low cost. The prehistoric monsters reproduced will be animated, in some cases by as many as sixteen motors. They will move, hiss and roar. There are ample tourist accommodations and parking space adjacent to the Fair.

"YOU'RE CONNECTED!"

This wife and her husband discussed having a telephone. They considered the convenience... the social and business advantages... the protection to life and property that a telephone affords. They compared its value with its moderate cost...

Now, their telephone is connected. The installer is leaving. From this minute on, the family can reach relatives and friends easily and quickly... can keep in closer touch with business associates. And, in case of fire, accident, sickness or prowlers, they can summon aid instantly by telephone.

You can have telephone service for as little as $1.45 a month. Call, visit or write the Telephone Business Office to place an order. Installation will be made promptly.

Facts About the Telephone

There are more than 19,000 telephone central offices in the United States.

On the average, about 25,000 Bell telephones are connected and disconnected each working day.

Only six per cent of the Bell System's wire mileage is now in open wire; ninety-four per cent is in cable.

Nearly 40 per cent of all the telephones in the United States are served from dial system central offices.

The number of holders of Bell System securities is greater than the population of all but six cities in the United States: New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles and Cleveland.
