COMMENT AND CRITICISM

Have you heard the news? Isn't this a question you hear asked almost every day of the week? Did you ever take time to think that this was the first purpose of your home-town paper?

Information of past and coming events, and news of a general nature provide the readers with a general fund of knowledge, drawing them into a unified group. News of a personal nature tends to bind them together in a family-like relationship.

This distribution of news satisfies a desire for knowledge and sets other forces in motion. As successfully as any church or lodge it encourages mutual acquaintances. It inspires the feeling of neighborliness, that trait peculiar to small towns.

The home-town paper's second service is it makes news—that is, it initiates and organizes public action. What better method or agency is there for exerting pressure on the village council or county supervisors, the school board, the Legion Post, or private individuals to consider the desires of the majority or of a progressive minority? Anyone can start a ball rolling, but its momentum and direction, are usually dependent on the attitude of the local newspaper.

A paper with a reputation for clarifying confusing situations, fathoming motives, pushing worthy activities, exposing dishonesty, and generally siding its readers to think rightly on problems of community interest—such a newspaper does more than accomplish the immediate ends just mentioned. It determines where the local citizens, and those in surrounding townships, shall look for intelligent leadership. It resolves the town in which it is published into the focal point, the hub around which thousands of people will integrate themselves. Briefly it makes the town.

Lastly, the newspaper publishes the advertising appeals of the local merchants, and by these reminders, week after week keeps its readers aware of their own Main Street stores. The appeal of goods in a nearby city is often due simply to ignorance on the part of villagers as to the variety and quality of goods handled by their own stores. Yet, this mutual service amounts to more than an effort to persuade people to trade at home and stimulate their own prosperity. The paper is also promoting a healthy home-town loyalty, which will bear fruit in increased resourcefulness and self-sufficiency. After all, this face alone, and not the separate political identity, is what distinguishes the small town from the city suburb. In the latter, having no community newspaper, the residents go to the city stores for their chief pleasures, and use the neighborhood stores only for convenience sake. Further, being subscribers to a city daily, in which local news is highly selected and information about their neighbors usually lacking, these people are slow to make one another's acquaintance, slow to develop unity of action on matters affecting their welfare, and are likely never to develop a social consciousness.

No district can progress when its citizens have only their bodies in that place, and their minds and pocket-books in another. But brought together by some agent, and "thrown on their own" as it were, they begin to realize their capacities. It is the community newspaper that carries on the work of making these physical neighbors conscious of having similar desires and interests, as well as the means to satisfy them. Most important of all, it makes them aware of what may be accomplished through united effort for mutual improvement.

GIFTATORY OF CLASS OF 1934

Given Commencement Night by Florence Chamberlain

One night not so very long ago I dreamed that I found a basket of many pretty gifts. I decided to keep these gifts and present to each member of the graduating class of '34 a small token, which I hope will bring them many fond memories.

Sarah Lowrie: In every class there is one who is the baby, and tonight the honor of being baby of the class goes to Sarah Lowrie. Now, all babies need to be pacified, and Sarah's no exception. So I wish to present her with this most attractive pacifier, which I trust she will put to good use.

Leslie Denton: Leslie has worked in the Bakery this year as well as attended school and I feel that he has done well in being able to carry on both positions. With great honor I present Leslie with this Gold Medal for his good work.

Dorothy Ware: Dorothy is our star soprano in the High School Chorus. She also plays the violin and in all is quite talented in music. I give to you, Dorothy, this small pitch pipe; see that every one else is in tune with you.

Robert Beardslee: I hear that Bob has an awful time playing up to the women, therefore I wish to present him with this book on "Essentials of Love Making," which has been used previously by Jack Huntly and has shown excellent results. Remember the minstrel!

Lolita Mann: Oftentimes one hears a loud racket out in the hall. Upon investigating we find none other than Lolita Mann giggling as much as anyone possibly could and causing quite a disturbance. To Lolita I present this adhesive tape, to tape her mouth whenever she feels like giggling.

Harold Konzen: Harold is always playing violin solos at banquets, meetings, and everywhere. In fact, he has kept the fiddle pretty warm. I shall present him with this piece of ice to be used as resin when the strings get too warm.

Lillian Beardslee: Lillian is the quiet one in the class of '34, so I give to her this horn with the request that she make plenty of noise from now on.

Jack Huntly: Have you ever noticed how red Jack's face gets every once in a while? It seems that he is bothered with "that something" called blushing, especially when around the fairer sex. It's terribly embarrassing sometimes, so therefore I shall give Jack this package of flour to cover up his blushes.

Charlotte Spencer: I've seen much of Charlotte during her high school years and been with her most of the time. It seems that she is always primping before the mirror, so I bestow thee, Charlotte Spencer, with this mirror so that you may have an extra one if you ever need it.

Floyd Hursfall: A little birdie told me something about Floyd. It seems that he must razz those boys who press their own pants. Once when he was giving someone the ha-ha he was told that his pants might look a lot better if they were pressed once in a while, so I give him this flatiron in order that he may keep his own pants pressed.

Bernice Bowers: Bernice has had to walk to school many times during her high school years, since she has lived in the country most of the time, but in spite of that Bernice was usually to school on time. So that she may not have to walk any more in her life, I present her with this baby Austin to take her where she wishes to go.

Mary Kathryn Hammond: Mary Kathryn came very close to being the baby of the class, coming second in the race, so I shall give Mary this baby doll in order that she may not feel slighted.

Keith Lowrie: Keith has taken quite a liking to dancing lately, so it seems, and appears to be getting along nicely as far as having lots of partners is concerned. I wonder if "she" could be responsible for all of this? Regardless, I give this leather to Keith to keep his shoes soled should they ever wear out from too much dancing.

Edna Coy: From all reports Edna is a very good cook, having worked in the Domestic Science room for the past year. To Edna I present this soup ladle, which I know will be useful in the years to come as she finds need for ladling out soup.

HISTORY WILL REPEAT ITSELF AT MECOSTA

The old adage "History repeats itself" has been proved true in the case of the F. E. Robinson family. A son is following in his father's foot-steps. Thirty-three years have elapsed but little has changed.

Professor Frank E. Robinson, present head of Central's commerce department, signed his first contract to teach in 1901. He was to be superintendent at Mecosta, in Mecosta county. This spring Charles Robinson, son of Professor Robinson, has signed his first contract to teach. He will be principal of the same school.

In June, 1901, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Robinson said their marriage vows. Charles and Phyllis King, of Clarkston, a Central alumna, are to be married late this summer.

The old Mecosta home of the F. E. Robinsons is directly across the street from that which the Charles Robinsons intend to occupy.—Central State Life.

CLASS OF 1932 HOLDS REUNION

New Officers Elected at Meeting Friday

The graduating class of 1932 held their annual reunion last Friday night at the Masonic Temple. Twenty-three members and guests were present. Dinner was served by the Eastern Star ladies. The tables were prettily decorated with flowers, class colors and also a class motto. Favors which included the classmates' pictures were used as place cards.

A short business meeting was held with Gladys Gundry in charge. Minutes of last year's meeting and several messages from classmates were read by Marion Dunston, secretary.

New officers elected were Gwinn Gador, chairman, and Wayne Parnell, secretary. The remainder of the evening was spent socially. Games were played and several prizes awarded.

Bob Reynolds: Bob, as you know, was the editor of the Blue and White Flash, and it was under his nickname, Walt Winchell, that Winchell's Flash column was written. I, too think that Bob is designed to be another Walt Winchell, so I take great pleasure in presenting Bob with this microphone to practice when and where he wishes.

Venetta Deamond: As one can readily see, Peggy, as she is commonly called, is very short and has spoken of the desire to be taller. To remedy this, I shall give her a pair of stilts so that she may look over, or overlook, the tallest of men.

Albert Tallanger: Al has a Chevy of which he is very proud. He has painted the wheels red, tinkered with it, and driven it many miles. In spite of the potentialities of this magnificent car it does run out of gas, and left Al to walk many miles during a recent date. So I shall give him this gasoline pump to keep him supplied with gas at all times.

Elizabeth Belitz: Elizabeth has been on the Clarkston News staff for some time now and I feel that she makes a very efficient secretary. Since she types much of the news, I give you this copy of a speed test to enable you to keep in practice and perhaps some time break the world's record for speed.

Donald Scrace: Don is one of these persons who is inclined to be a little bit slow. I shall give Don this package of Pep, hoping that it may help in giving him more speed and energy in the future.

Helen Allen: Many times during the cold winter days Helen has been seen driving her Ford to school. It seems that she has never been able to see anyone "bumming" a ride so I shall give her this magnifying glass which she may install on the windshield, hoping that she may never fail to see anyone from now on.

Lynn Rexford: Quite frequently we see a group of people out on the school yard, who are yelling and laughing. One wonders at first what the trouble is, and come to find out Lynn Rexford is in the center, his temper having got the better of him once again. To Lynn I present these boxing gloves so that he may protect himself much better than he has previously done.

Former Resident Has Passed Away

Ward B. Clark Succumbs From Heart Trouble

Ward B. Clark, age 77, passed away at his home in Lansing, June 6, one week after a visit to Clarkston to attend memorial services in Lake View cemetery. Mr. Clark was born in Clarkston and lived here for many years.

Mr. Clark was married to Mary Bruce, a sister of Mrs. Christina Reese. The couple lived on a farm north of town until Mrs. Clark's death in 1919. After her death Mr. Clark and his two children, Blanche and Harry, moved to Lansing where he married Verna Stearns, who survives him.

In addition to his wife and two children, one sister, Mrs. Carrie Kyle of Clarkston, and two cousins, Mrs. Blanche Mills of Lansing and Miss Katherine Clark of Detroit, are left to mourn his loss.

Services at the grave were conducted by Cedar Lodge, F. & A. M., of Clarkston, of which Mr. Clark was a member and at one time acted as Secretary and Treasurer.

Mr. Clark dearly loved the little folk and one little girl in Clarkston did not forget his smile and his many kindnesses to the children. She had saved her pennies and the day of the funeral those pennies were spent on flowers to be put on the casket by little loving hands that felt they had lost a dear friend.

THE TELEPHONE CALL MUST GO THROUGH

Hats off again to telephone operators. Saturday evening, during the excitement, uncertainty and shock of the automobile accident, where two were killed and 11 injured, Duane Hursfall, 16 year old boy, operated the local board, correctly placing all rush calls for doctors, ambulances and help—even tho he knew that his brother was one of the injured. Modest as Duane is, he desired nothing be said as he was only "doing his duty" but such perseverance deserves recognition.

Head-on Collision Is Fatal to Two

Three Clarkston Young People Seriously Injured

A tragedy that caused the lives of two boys, seriously and perhaps fatally injured two other young people, one of them a girl, and in which several other youths were more or less hurt, occurred at 12:30 Sunday morning at the crest of a hill in the northwest corner of Waterford township.

The dead: MYRON TURNER, 15 years old, of Davisburg.

WILLIAM HASLOCK, 22 years old, Davisburg.

Seriously injured: Edna Coy, 19 years old, of Clarkston.

Ferris Holcomb, 21 years old, Clarkston.

The other victims were Gladys McClure, 21 years old, of Holly; Rose Valek, Holly; Clifford Howe, Holly; Floyd Hursfall, Clarkston; Everett MacNamara, Malcolm Bolton, Eugene Lowes, Carl Jubelt and Glenn Robinson, all of Davisburg.

The Davisburg boys were in Haslock's car, and he was driving. They were on their way to a dance hall at Williams Lake. At the crest of a hill in front of the barn on William Nelson's farm on the west side of Mace-day Lake, the car collided head on with another in which were the Clarkston and Holly young people, who had been at the dance and were out for a ride before returning. Haslock was killed instantly and Turner, who was on the running board, received injuries from which he died before reaching Goodrich Hospital, where all of the victims were taken.

The place where the accident happened is on a road not greatly travelled and the officers called to the scene had some difficulty in locating it, their first information having been inaccurate.

Edna Coy, of Clarkston, was seriously injured and is still in the Goodrich Hospital. At first the report was that Edna had received a broken arm and shoulder but it later developed that she had been hurt internally and after many hemorrhages, blood transfusions were necessary. Several from Clarkston offered to give their blood, and blood tests were taken. However, on Tuesday afternoon Bradley Miller gave one pint of blood and almost at once Edna began to gain strength. The report Thursday morning was that her condition was improving slowly.

Ferris Holcomb, of Clarkston, the driver of one of the cars, was also badly hurt and did not gain consciousness for several hours. He received many cuts and bruises and a severe head wound. Thursday morning Ferris was reported to be gaining and hopes of his recovery were much brighter.

Floyd Hursfall, who was a passenger in Holcomb's car, received severe cuts about the face. His lower lip was badly lacerated and stitches had to be taken inside the mouth as well as on the outside. On going to press we learn that Floyd is getting along nicely and perhaps a few more days of quiet and rest will put him on his feet.

Gladys McClure, of Holly, received seven cuts on face and body and a broken nose. Her condition was regarded with considerable concern for a few days, but she is now reported as getting along nicely. Rose Valek was more fortunate and was not seriously hurt. All of the Davisburg boys suffered cuts and bruises.

The funeral of Myron Turner on Tuesday afternoon was one of the largest ever held in Davisburg. Business places were closed and the whole community paused to pay homage to the schoolboy. There were 74 cars in line from the house, where the services were held, to the cemetery. The Turner home is a mile north of the village.

William Haslock was buried on Wednesday and the same scene was repeated. The services were held at the M. E. Church, conducted by Rev. J. O. L. Spreekin, who also officiated the day before. Burial was in the Davisburg cemetery.

Myron Turner was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Turner. He is survived by three sisters and two brothers: Mrs. Ellsworth Rundell, Geraldine, Betty, Merald and Gerald Turner.

William Haslock was the eldest of three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Haslock. The younger brothers are James and Harvey.

R. McConnell, of Redford, secretary to Congressman George A. Dondero, and the Congressman's brother, Gus Dondero, of Royal Oak, were in Clarkston Monday.

Rev. J. W. Jacobus and family, of Vassar, make plans each year for their friends to spend the day with them. This is a day of note for both communities when cars trend their way early Sunday morning to be in time for the morning service at 10:30 at the Baptist Church where a special program is arranged by Rev. "TRY IT YOURSELF MR. HUSBAND!"

You try doing the housework with a lot of cold, clammy water. You try fooling around waiting for water to heat—depending on furnace coils after furnace weather (do you know how much fuel they waste in the winter, too?)

DO HUSBANDS KNOW?

Husbands know what comfort there is in an ever-ready supply of hot water for shaving and the bath at any and all hours. But most husbands don't realize what such hot water means in running the home. Instant hot water for the dishes, for baby's bath, for the laundry, for hurrying cooking, for housecleaning, for the hundred and one things that are a regular part of every woman's busy day.

Year after year, vacationists from other states return to Michigan to enjoy the many advantages our state offers. Here they have found everything in scenic beauty, historic interest and opportunity for healthful play on land and water that one could desire.

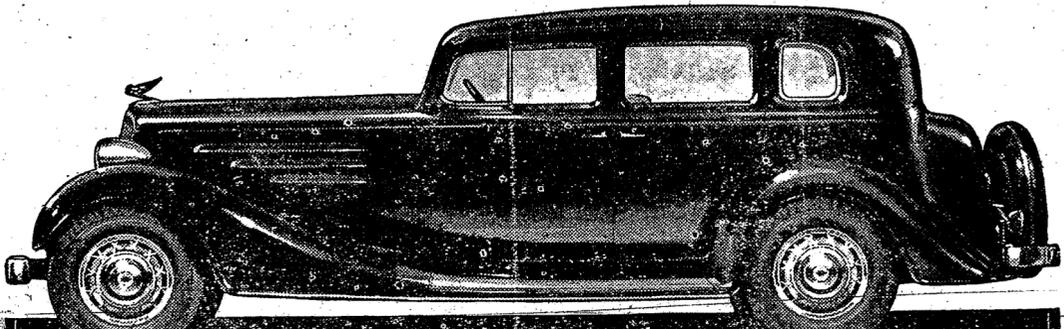

Michigan's tourist and resort business brings large sums of money to the state each year. It provides employment for thousands, and greater prosperity for all of us. We can increase that business further by telling out-of-state friends about Michigan's vacation advantages and by spending our own vacations here.

And, no matter which part of Michigan you visit this summer, banish worry by telephoning home and office frequently. Call ahead for reservations, or tell friends that you are coming. Long Distance calls will add but little to the cost and much to the enjoyment of your vacation.

clung to each other, not in any effort to comfort, but they seemed helpless and lost without mother. Nelly refused to leave her father, begging Myron to come to the farm to stay. This, though, was not to his liking, for no one could idle around or make questionable excuses with John Bingham. So he easily persuaded Nelly it would be best for him to sleep at home and take all his meals at the boarding house, and he would come out every day to see her, and she was too sad and bewildered to argue or question. She must stay with her father or he too might slip away from her. He spent hours at the grave of his loved one, and though he tried to be cheerful with Nelly, she knew there were long, tearful nights for both.

One day in early autumn Myron came to the farm in haste with a new idea. A friend of Clem Culver was in town getting up a party to spend the winter in camp in a northern location. It was a great get-rich-quick scheme, planned to fish, hunt and trap, and only a few were to be let in on this big deal. Clem had urged his friend to include Myron, and he explained it would be good for his bronchial trouble to spend the winter in the pine woods. Oh, yes! they were each expected to advance a little cash for the winter's provisions but would have plenty of game and fish for their main support and would each have several hundred dollars extra in the spring when they sold their furs and fish.

Much to Nelly's surprise her father was quite enthusiastic about it and reminisced somewhat in a really happy way of his own camping days with Henry Field and said he would be more sure of Nelly if Myron were away for the winter.

Myron lost no time in packing and while the sun needed seemed large to Nelly, there would be no coal bills to pay, so she bade him goodbye quite cheerfully and warned him to be sure and write each month when the pack team went out.

Afternoons now when Henry Field or Dr. Marston came to visit her father, she and Susan Dawson, their housekeeper for many years, made hurried trips to her home to put things in shape for winter closing. It was not until this was accomplished and she sat down to write to Jack and Marian, that she remembered that Myron had not even mentioned the children or left a parting message for them and the weight of it settled heavy on her heart.

The first note from Myron came from the outpost where they had purchased suitable heavy wolen clothing and were waiting for the pack team. A month later another letter came and the rosy hue had a decidedly drab tone. They had spent the first week fixing the camp, felling trees and dragging up wood before the heavy snows covered it up. His feet were usually soaked as the water must all be carried from the lake and he was not handy at doing chores and was very suspicious that the boss had never hired a cook at all, as none showed up to come with the team and each one was obliged to take turns in cooking and doing the housework. The next letter and all following were black with disgust and Clem Culver had overrated the place; fishing through the ice was terrible and frozen fish were hard to handle; no cigars were allowed, so he must smoke a pipe that made him sick; the snow was deep and they had to tramp miles each day to look after the traps and he had been lost twice, and he doubted very much if he could stand it, but there was no way to get home and any who quit could not share in the spring sale proceeds.

This last letter brought a real laugh from John Bingham and Nelly suddenly became suspicious that her father had intentionally encouraged Myron by painting a rosy picture as the promoter had done, thinking that a few months with real men might do him good. Well, she hoped so! But right now she had much to occupy her mind.

It was very plain that her father took no interest in life and was only waiting until he could go to join Clarissa. And yet at times he was gray with Nelly and talked with her about the farm and new improvements and current events. They were invited to spend Thanksgiving with Henry Field and Aunt Ellen and Nelly was surprised to have her father accept and look forward to spending the day with his old friend, see it on some one else.

Nelly and her father rushed to her side, but the spirit had flown. Tenderly, with hope in their hearts, they chafed her hands and tried to bring back color to the cheeks until the doctor arrived and tried to comfort them.

Numb with grief and stunned by the suddenness of the blow, neither Nelly or her father knew how the next long hours were spent. Henry Field and his wife, the latter affectionately known in the family as Aunt Ellen, came and took charge and never left the home during the sad days that followed. Jack and Marian came and all that was earthly of their treasure was laid to rest on the hillside with little John and Aunt Almada under a carpet of flowers. Desolate indeed seemed the home!

Weight Reduced From 180 to 137

"Wonderful," She Says

Here's to-day's story of a woman who knew she carried too much fat and decided the right way to get rid of it—just a few words that wise fat folks should heed—worth reading.

"I use Kruschen Salts to reduce. It's wonderful. Take it daily and eat what I want and still lose. I did weigh 180, now 137. Want to get down to 125." Mrs. Leonard Bass, Ft. Atkinson, Wis., Feb. 6, 1934.

When you take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water—you not only lose in weight but you put healthy activity into your whole body—you feel younger and look it—get it at any drugstore in the world.

Alma Wall: Alma joined our class in the Junior year and was always seen hurrying through the halls, usually talking as fast as possible. She is rapidly becoming a second Grace Allen as is evidenced by her nickname. I give to her this book, entitled "Impersonating and how to become a ventriloquist" with special request that she make use of it in her training for the time when she will play the dual character of Grace Allen and George Burns.

Stanley Irish: Stan is an excellent sportsman and has a wonderful physique. He played baseball, basketball and many other sports. Since we find him in every indoor sport, we feel he needs experience in outdoor sports in order to round out his training. So I shall give to Stan this bag of marbles, wishing him the best of luck in this new sport.

Bernice Thomas: The class wishes to donate this alarm clock to Bernice to assure her punctual appearance for all future appointments.

Emerson Vliet: To Emerson I present this mugilage for I hear that he has a terrible time hanging onto a baseball. I'm certain if he applies this to the palms of his hands, he'll need no gloves in which to catch the ball and furthermore it will stay caught.

Hazel Clemons: Since Hazel has such a meek and low voice that it cannot be heard from the front row of her class, we believe that she needs some assistance even after leaving school, for never to be heard is a terrible calamity. Therefore I present her with this megaphone.
