COMMENT AND CRITICISM

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! Hear Ye!
We are now privileged to hear a few words from that sterling citizen, that fairly good golf player, that fine automobile salesman, a man honored by his own township by being appointed to the township committee, the party, political, now in the ascendant of power in governing this grand, glorious republic; a man liked by everybody and disliked by none; a man upon whom you can rely, but why go on any further, space is pressing and without further ado, we beg to refer you to the announcement in this issue of "Joe" Seeterlin for the office of Sheriff of Oakland County. Give the boy a "great big hand!"

And now, before any democrat thinks they have a convert, or any republican thinks they have a backslider, the News demands that we reiterate, (really that is too big a word for a dollar a year paper) that the News is an independent paper, that we have an intelligent group of readers; that all we have to do is to present facts and they will decide for themselves. However we can add that because the News stands for anything good for the district we serve, that Joe should be elected because this district needs more officials down in the county seat.

In the dear old days, long beyond recall, someone coined the phrase "Fools walk in where angels fear to tread." And well might they have added: Reporters. Yours truly "covered" the annual school meeting in the Clarkston High School and opening his mouth, at the wrong time, nearly choked himself, shoving his foot into it. It seems that we kinda expected the board to rest upon their laurels and pick a few well earned bouquets for having secured the free aid of the Federal government in finishing two rooms of the Clarkston High School, repainting the trim on the school, refurnishing the gymnasium, constructing a real athletic field, installing a sidewalk to the Sashabaw Road, not to mention securing from the FERA 8 weeks training for the youngsters (and even the older people) which summer session is now being carried on to the satisfaction of all. Well, Ladies and Gentlemen, you can imagine my surprise when Joe Hubbard entertained a motion to adjourn without one of those modest members of the school board mentioning a thing about all of those benefits. Joe not only entertained the motion, but it was supported and carried so fast that I gasped (out loud of course) and Joe asked those present to remain seated because I had a few words to say. Did I wish I could do a disappearing act.

ANNUAL REPORTS MUST BE PUBLISHED

Attention of School District Officers Called to Law

Attention was called this week by the State Department of Public Instruction to the provisions of the school laws calling for the publication in local newspapers of the proceedings of the annual school meetings to be held in Michigan school districts this week.

The General School Laws of Michigan provide that each township, rural, agricultural and graded school district shall cause to be published in a local paper a complete statement of the proceedings of the annual school meeting, together with an itemized financial statement of the receipts and expenditures for the preceding school year. This report must be published not later than the first Monday in August, the department points out. Proof of publication shall be filed in the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction not later than August fifteenth of each year. The law states that the annual report of any district shall not be accepted unless there is sufficient proof that the report has been published in a local paper. The publication of the report offers opportunity for boards to inform the citizens of the community regarding the financial conditions of the schools and is regarded as a necessary contact with the public.

The department also suggests that expenditures be listed under administration, instruction, auxiliary agencies, operation, maintenance, debt service and capital outlay. Boards of Education are authorized by law to pay for the expense of publication from the general fund.

Mr. and Mrs. William Michelson, of Detroit, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Forest Jones.

Ice Cream Is Enjoyed In Spite of the Storm

Last Friday in spite of the terrible storm that raged in Clarkston the Methodist choir was pleased to see the old faithfuls attend their ice cream social at the home of Dr. Sutherland. In the afternoon the rain and wind forced the guests into the house but in the evening the ice cream and cake were enjoyed out on the spacious porch. The choir will be able to use to advantage the money realized and perhaps the weatherman will be more considerate next time.

STAMP IS REQUIRED OF DUCK HUNTERS

New Federal Act of Interest to Local Sportsmen

Under provisions of a new federal act all sportsmen who hunt any species of migratory waterfowl during the coming season will be required to purchase a federal duck stamp at a cost of $1, according to the Department of Conservation.

The stamp is the first of its kind ever issued. The funds derived from its sale in every part of the United States have been set aside by Congress for the purpose of acquiring marsh and water areas as inviolate refuges for ducks, geese and other waterfowl.

Stamp collectors as well as hunters are interested in the new stamp. It will be unique in character as well as design, having an appropriate waterfowl scene.

Every sportsman engaged in hunting migratory waterfowl this autumn must have in his possession a federal migratory waterfowl hunting stamp, valid from July 1 of the year of issue to June 30 of the succeeding year.

It will be possible to obtain the stamps at a cost of $1 at post offices in county seats having populations of 2,500 or more and in certain post offices conveniently located to be designated later. The individual applying for a stamp will be required to fill out an application form to be provided by the postmaster. The stamp must then be affixed to the individual's hunting license. It is not transferable.

Possession of a federal stamp does not prevent the arrest of a holder under state law if he does not have a state hunting license. If he possesses a state license but not a federal stamp while hunting, he is liable to prosecution under federal law, according to the Department. If a hunter holds neither a state license nor a federal stamp he may be prosecuted in both federal and state courts.

Under provisions of the federal migratory waterfowl act, hunters who do not have in their possession a duck hunting stamp while hunting migratory waterfowl are subject to a fine of not more than $500 and imprisonment of not more than six months or both upon conviction in federal court.

The federal bureau of biological survey, which has the task of selecting and acquiring the refuge areas as well as administering them, expects that the sale of the stamp will provide a revenue of from $600,000 to $1,000,000 each year.

Naturalists, sportsmen and conservationists have long realized the necessity of an extensive system of waterfowl refuges, not only on the breeding grounds of the north, but on the southern wintering grounds as well. The duck stamp is the result of years of agitation for federal aid on the part of the conservationists who have been growing alarmed at the steady decrease of ducks and geese.

According to the Department of Conservation, there have been 1,422 fires in Michigan up to July 3. These fires burned over 34,857 acres of land, the largest fire ravaging 7,200 acres.

Supervisor's Sister Passes Away

A Resident of Oakland County For 78 Years

Mrs. Fredericka B. Kier died at her home at 365 N. Jackson St., Pontiac, on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at the age of 82 years.

Mrs. Kier was born in Germany, April 30, 1852, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Belitz. The family moved to Oakland county 78 years ago and lived in Clarkston for 30 years, then they moved to Pontiac. Mrs. Kier was the widow of Frederick Kier, who died in 1913.

She is survived by three children: Miss Marie Kier and Karl Kier, of Pontiac, and Mrs. Cora Fulkerson, of Kalamazoo, and five brothers and sisters: Mrs. Rose Francis and Mrs. Martha McIlveen, of Lapeer; Mrs. Elizabeth Martin, of Port Hope; Henry Belitz, of St. Louis, Mich., and William Belitz, of Clarkston.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Central Methodist church, following a prayer service at the house which was held at 1:30. Rev. Parley Bingham of Port Huron, officiated, with burial in Oak Hill cemetery.

E. church in Davisburg on Saturday afternoon, July 7, occurred the marriage of Miss Amy Horton, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Horton, of that place, to Elmer Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Mills, also of Davisburg. Rev. J. O. Spracklin, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony, a double ring service, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, and in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Mills left for Chicago to visit the Century of Progress. They will make their home in Davisburg. Both young people are well known in the community. The bride is a graduate of the Holly High School.

ANNUAL MEETING HELD ON MONDAY

Small Attendance Hears Board Members Give Reports

At perhaps one of the least attended annual school meetings of recent years, held Monday in the Clarkston High School, Roy Spencer and Joseph Hubbard, whose terms had expired, were unanimously reelected for another term of three years each.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Hubbard, who called on the Secretary, Earl Walter, for the records of the last annual meeting. Lee Clark then gave the Treasurer's report and the next item of business before the meeting was the election of officers.

Fred Steiner and W. H. Stamp were appointed tellers and were sworn by Irving Ronk.

Nominations for the office held by then turned the chair over to Mr. Spencer who was reelected, unanimously.

Mr. Hubbard, as presiding officer, then turned the chair over to Mr. Spencer, who called for nominations for the office held by Mr. Hubbard. Mr. Hubbard was unanimously reelected to this office.

As there was no other business, the meeting adjourned.

The News feels that the board should be complimented for their actions of last year, in a public manner. Perhaps the best compliment that could be given was given Monday by having such a small attendance. The public must have believed that the present board was doing all that was possible to maintain the high standard the school now holds and that the only thing it could do would be to reelect the officers whose terms had expired. We believe that the student of today will be the board of tomorrow and that perhaps more interest should be shown in the meetings, at least by attending. We believe that Mr. Hubbard invited the short speech of acceptance in his particular pains to invite the public to the monthly meetings of the board.

DINE AND DANCE HALL OPENED AT HIGHLAND

Welly Waring, formerly of Detroit, but known in this locality, recently purchased the John Atley property in Highland and has been making no small improvement to the place.

All of the adjoining available property was acquired and a small army of men of various occupations was put to work at once rebuilding, remodeling, adding additions and decorating.

The old livery barn, long out of use, has been remodeled into the last word in dance halls, with plenty of windows, high roof covered with green lattice work, a shell paneled in maple and silver, where their own orchestra of six pieces plays, and no expense has been spared on the floor. The refreshment room adjoins the dance hall and opens out on a landscaped garden.

Modern ideas have been pressed into service on all sides, even to an up-to-date beauty parlor in connection.

Located right in the heart of the resort section, "Waring's" is sure to be a popular place to dine or dance or both. More than 1200 visitors passed through the front doors on opening night, the first of last week.

For Homemakers

For the benefit of those interested in establishing canning centers, Miss Roberta Hershey, home economics extension nutrition specialist of Michigan State College, will give a series of demonstrations during the next few weeks.

Demonstrations will be given at Lapeer, Kalamazoo, Alpena, Petoskey, Cadillac, Clare, Jackson and Muskegon. Miss Hershey is cooperating with the state relief commission in providing means to care for the surplus produce in the relief gardens.

Because of the large number of welfare gardens throughout the state, it is especially important that proper canning methods be used to insure preservation of the surplus until next winter.

High temperatures for shorter lengths of time, rather than longer cooking periods at ordinary temperatures will be demonstrated, as it has been proved that this method retains the palatability and preserves the texture of the vegetables and fruits.

Mr. and Mrs. Ell Fisher announce that they are grandparents to twin granddaughters, born Saturday, July 7, to Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Goffnett, of Walton Blvd., Pontiac. They will answer to the names of Irene Mae and Ilene Mae. Mother and babies are doing fine.

Fireworks Thrill World's Fair Crowds

Chapter XVII.

Usually, on arriving home, she began at once to prepare her dinner, but tonight she had no thought of food. She had searched the shops to find something to buy with Aunt Almada's birthday money, but they all seemed lacking—too modern, machine made, gaudy and trifling. But here was dainty coloring combined with usefulness and delicate stitchery. She could just see Aunt Almada nod her approval and hear her mother's comment of "honor work." Just a cotton jacket for housewear, but that did not describe it! Fine, soft, creamy white, scattered over with the daintest pink rosebuds and green leaves, interlined with the softest, fluffiest cotton and lined with a heavenly blue that boldly asserted itself in a rolling collar and turn-back cuffs. And the quilting! An intricate pattern of circles that entwined themselves in interlaced designs making it look softer and more luxurious.

The present was lost and she was living again the days with her mother in the old farm home where there was no gaudy imitation or false pretense, but all was honest and dependable. Of course, the girls in her department were nice and she knew they were friends, but their lives had been in different paths and they would always judge a gown by its newness and lace by the price tag.

Oh, well! One must live and learn, and she had learned her lesson and made friends of her associates at least, but her mind was fully made up to leave the store as soon as she could teach her assistant a little about the different laces. And putting the precious jacket carefully aside, she busied herself with her home tasks, making her plans in the meantime.

She would have all five in her department out for dinner the coming week, as there would be no more days off, and began thinking out a suitable menu. Everything must be home-made, dainty, and she would use the best silver, finest china, and put a tiny gift at each place. They had not failed her, but, if anything, she had failed herself. And she would not forget to have extra cakes and helpings for the forelady's two little folks and a box for Billy, who lived in one small, stuffy room.

Chapter XVIII.

Fall days became wintry days before she could think of leaving the store and now the holiday sales were beginning. Jack was busy and Marian had extra duties as one of the staff was very ill, so Thanksgiving was just a day and Christmas did not promise much more. The children tried to make plans but memories would come and the day was a sad one in spite of many gifts and greetings, and the church services were something to be remembered. She was gradually becoming acquainted with more of the ladies, and now that she was free had promised to become an active member of the Guild and help in other church affairs. First of all, she was going to have a gay time sewing and remodeling her own and Matian's clothes, and she was going home for a couple of weeks to visit Uncle Henry, Field and Aunt Ellen.

And were they glad to see her, and could scarcely believe their eyes. Apparently years younger than when they had last seen her, gowned in the most approved manner and with an air of assurance such as they had never seen in the old days, she quite took them by storm. She kept them laughing with her droll recital of store happenings and painted vivid word pictures of the marvelous gowns and accessories to Aunt Ellen, and remodelled her clothes till the dear old soul scarcely knew herself. They visited the graves of the loved ones and the farm, and she selected things from the old home that heretofore had seemed unimportant and had them packed to send to the city apartment. Among them Captain Parker's old sea chest and Aunt Almada's Spanish chest of red leather, studded with brass. And when the two weeks had lengthened into three and more and she finally must go, it was quite a different Eleanor who waved a laughing good-bye to Clairfield.

Chapter XIX.

Home again, and she wondered at times, where the hours, days and weeks went to, for as chairman of a group she entertained the ladies at luncheon, and then they each in turn did likewise, and there was Easter work and charitable enterprises, and a couple of modest dresses no longer sufficed. She realized that she had inherited a "knack" for designing and copying and spent happy hours reproducing some daring model that she wondered when or where she could wear such a creation. One, a French room dress of metallic lace in an elusive shade, and she spent hours tinting and dyeing inexpensive lace and threading with gold and silver to get the desired effect, and topped it off with jeweled buttons from Aunt Almada's store. She spent hours in the window and as the world passed by it seemed at times that the curtains of life rolled back and she could see plainly the reason why many things in her life that had been so hard to understand now appeared not as crosses but sign posts to a fuller, nobler life, with an understanding heart. She would even smile in thought at some remembrance of Myron that had seemed almost a tragedy at the time and there was no bitterness in her heart.

Summer—and she had fairly swamped Marian with fluffy dresses, and now the children, as they would always be to her, were making great plans for a September outing of the entire choir—an invitation to spend two weeks at the country estate of one of the wealthy parishioners of the church where they attended, and Eleanor shopped for sport clothes and flannels and evening clothes for both in a reckless manner and left nothing to mar the anticipated good time.

The annual fall bazaar was not far distant and she had been urged to take charge of the booth of fine laces that an importer would put in on commission and a real daring thought came to her. Why not! And time rolled back to the old days and she visioned the little girl draped in much too large gaily embroidered peasant's costume with tiny fingers busy with knots and flying shuttles while Aunt Almada told enchanting tales and the threads became filmy lace.

Trunks were delved into and the plump pillow was once more in service for the fingers were no longer tiny but firm and strong and there were many anxious hours before the patterns were recalled and the fingers as adept as the peasant girl's in tossing the right shuttle. And the old costume so carefully packed away for many years was no longer large for her, almost the reverse.

As the day drew near her spirits failed at times and again rose as she viewed the gay, embroidered skirt and lace shawl, and then many of the others were planning on gay colored costumes to suit their booths, and she must not fall them, and the week was too full for much thought, but the bazaar Friday afternoon and evening, and Jack and Marian leaving on Saturday for the first vacation they had had since their father's death. She had made a few plans for herself and then discarded them and refused to let the children worry about her vacation.

So it was with beating heart and trembling knees that she slipped off her long wrap and stepped out of the dressing room into the church parlors and walked quietly toward her booth that was all ready and the plump pillow was there with the three-headed shuttle and a lot of lace already creeping over its faded side.

Much to her surprise, she was greeted with a chorus of "How quaint!" "So different!" "Clever!" and "Charming!" "Where did you get such a lovely costume?" and "How did you ever think of such a clever idea?" and booths were forgotten as they gathered around her. Seating herself and spreading the voluminous skirts around her, she set the bobbin flying as she answered their excited questions. "We certainly are fortunate to have some one with such clever new ideas," said Mrs. Whitman, chairman of the bazaar, "and we only wish you had helped us more with the plans. Consider yourself a member of the committee on arrangements hereafter," and she patted her shoulder, saying, "You'll draw the crowd and the money today and you deserve it!" To Eleanor the world suddenly seemed bright and full of lovely people.

Crowds began pouring in and with answering questions, showing how the lace was made, and helping with the sales, the afternoon flew by and one of the ladies in an adjoining booth called to her to go to the dining hall as her guest, and they spent the half-hour chatting like old friends over the afternoon's sales.

Rested and refreshed, Eleanor returned to her booth and sat down to her lace making, as it was quiet at this hour. As she counted the stitches and tied knots her mind went back to happy days and loved ones and she winked back the tears as she thought how happy Aunt Almada would have been to see her here.

tops a 22-year record of engineering progress that makes Chevrolet the best riding car in the low-price field

Year after year, it's been the same story: Chevrolet FIRST with the NEWEST and BEST! Chevrolet leading—others following. Chevrolet out in front with the latest proved advancements. Self-starter! Sliding gear transmission! Streamlined design! It was Chevrolet aggressiveness and progressiveness that forced all low-priced cars eventually to adopt these and other major improvements. And now, this year, comes the climax of Chevrolet's engineering leadership: the Knee-Action ride! This newest of motoring sensations is a marvel of smooth, easy, gentle motion. No other ride in the world can even compare with it. It makes Chevrolet far and away the best riding car in the low-price field. Have you noticed how America has taken to the Knee-Action ride? 3 Great Letters Read Them All

From all over the country—north—south—east—west come letters of praise for the world's safe and healthful enemy of fat—don't miss these three letters.

"I am using Kruschen Salts on advice of my Doctor. Have used three bottles and lost 15 lbs. and gladly recommend it to all my friends." Mrs. G. W. Bryant, Foxboro, Mass., 1934.

"I am using Kruschen Salts on for constipation and reducing. Have taken 3 jars and have lost about 20 lbs. I can recommend it to be great." Miss A. J. Harber, Pineville, Ky., 1934.

"I have taken 8 bottles of Kruschen. I weighed 256, I reduced 56 lbs., and felt better each day, have got my 4th bottle." Ed Jordan, Levee, Ariz., 1934.

If you are proud of your double chin and bulging abdomen don't take Kruschen Salts. Ed Jordan made up his mind to take off 50 or more pounds of fat—and he did—Ed was sick and tired of lugging it around with him—persistence won for Ed as it will for any fat man.

Ford Sales Are Still In the Lead

For the sixth consecutive month this year, sales of Ford V-8 passenger cars continued to lead all makes in Detroit and Wayne County during June, by a wide margin, official automobile registration figures show.

Ford also maintained a substantial lead in truck sales, the figures showed. The official figures showed 4,184 Ford V-8 registrations, of which 3,983 were passenger cars, in Detroit and Wayne County during the past month, or more than two and a half times as many as the next closest make, and more than four and one-half times as many as the third make.

Truck registrations for the County showed Ford to have a total of 831 units, or approximately three and one-half times as many as the next closest make.

At the Dearborn Branch of the Ford Motor Company, it was stated that the demand for Ford V-8 passenger cars and trucks is continuing at a steady pace during the early days of July.
